He says not, and also claims it's all a mistake about his being able to sit on water, float in the air or support himself on one finger. KNOW YOUR BANK

How To Avoid Service Charges

The costs of handling a checking account are in proportion to the number of deposits made, the number of items in each deposit, and the number of checks written.

Offset against these costs are the earnings of the account through the investment of the free balance (that part which is not set aside for reserves and which is not reduced by checks drawn). If costs exceed earnings a service charge is made to cover the difference. In other words a certain amount of free balance is necessary to carry the cost of each check written and each deposit.

We do not like to make a service charge so to avoid it we encourage the depositor to either increase his balance or limit the number of checks drawn.

Community Progress

Carrizozo is a very enterprising little town, much building and improvement is taking place.

Mr. Reil is having the T. & G. Grocery repainted; also the building to be occupied by Burnett's cafe has been renovated thoroughly.

The foundation for the new Harkey building will soon be completed, then work will be started in earnest. Building will be adobe, and well constructed.

The new addition to the county court house presents a very good appearance. When the interior is finished, several of the county offices will move into the more commodious quarters, leaving plenty of room for the ones that remain in the old part of the building.

The gymnasium and grade school building which is being erected has begun to look very impressive. Work will be finished during the vacation period.

Mr. Harry Miller's new camp ground is being rapidly completed and looks fine. Mr. Miller has already planted a lot of shade trees and is building a fence.

Many local homes are undergoing minor improvements and repairs, which indicate a spirit of progress and civic pride.

NAVAL RESERVE

There are approximately 197,000 enlisted regulars in the Navy today. In addition to building up the regular service the Navy Department announced today that it had opened recruiting in classes of the Naval Reserve that have heretofore been closed.

For service during this emergency enlistments in the Naval Reserve will be made for a period of four years or minority. Men will be enlisted as apprentice seamen for sea-men and firemen ratings, yeomen, signalmen, saddlemen, machinists' mates, aviation mechanics and electricians. These men will be sent to the training stations for the regular recruit training period and if found qualified, upon completion, will be sent to schools located throughout the United States for the above specialties. If they are not qualified they will be available for general Naval service.

Enlistments will be made between the ages of 17 and 30; however if a man is less than 21, he must obtain his parents or guardians consent. The same physical, mental and moral requirements for Naval Reserve will be used as now prevail for the regular Naval service. Full details are available at all Naval Recruiting Stations.

BAND CONCERT

Graduation day is approaching in our schools and our high school band is scheduled to lose six members as a result of commencement exercises. Our band is small now having only eighteen members, and upon losing six people it will be woefully small.

But the picture is not all dark for we have a beginners band numbering fourteen members. A beginners group in the grades is the only salvation from graduation losses that it is possible for any high school band to have.

The beginners band was started last fall and is composed of children who knew nothing about playing a band instrument when they started. They have been studying the fundamentals of music reading.

I am announcing a band concert to be placed by the beginners band on the stage of the high school auditorium on Thursday, May 8th at 2:30 p. m. Admission will be free.

GOOD WILL TRIP TO RUIDOSO

Citizens of Carrizozo drove to Ruidoso Wednesday. The motorcade left the High School Building at 2 P. M. The members of the High School band were distributed among the various cars. The cavalcade stopped at Captain giving the residents 15 minutes of good music, then proceeded to Hollywood, stopped for 15 minutes for another tune or two, which were greatly enjoyed by our good neighbors there. Arriving at the business section of Ruidoso, members of the Band formed in line and marched to the Navajo Lodge.

The parade was led by several men and women riding spirited horses and carrying flags and banners in honor of the joyous occasion. One hundred and forty individuals sat down to beautifully decorated tables to a sumptuous dinner, served under direction of the Boyce. As the strains of the march rendered by Mr. Lou Fink, violinist, with Mr. Browster at the piano, floated to the lobby, the guests marched into the dining room. Reverend Hughes gave the invocation and guests were seated. Mr. A. L. Burke was toastmaster. Mrs. Louise Coe graciously welcomed the visitors, to which Mr. John E. Hall responded with words of appreciation. Mrs. G. C. Kroggel, accompanied by Mrs. B. S. Burns, gave two beautiful solos. Colonel Wilfred McCormack gave an interesting address entitled: "What Ruidoso Means to Me." A humorous reading by Mrs. W. A. Hart came next. Mr. J. M. Carpenter depicted the assets, and portrayed the scenic beauty of Carrizozo and surrounding country. This was truly "get acquainted meeting." Mr. McCormack being well pleased with neighbors to the west, gave a Return and Farewell Address.—Contributed.

Teodoro Farmer

Teodoro Farmer, age 72 passed away at his home in the Highlands at 1:30 Wednesday morning April 30, 1941.

Mr. Farmer had been ill for several months and his death was not unexpected by his family.

He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Regina; and three sons, Juan, Espidiron and Henry, and many friends.

He was born at Lincoln and had lived in this county all his life. Most of his time he had been a ranchman. He moved to Carrizozo about 10 years ago.

Funeral services were held by Rev. Fr. Salvatore at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Interment was in the local cemetery.

LIVESTOCK SITUATION

Two field meetings for cattlemen held during the past few days have demonstrated in a typical manner two of the important trends in the livestock business. One was a tour of ranches in the Hemet valley, where farm feeding of livestock is increasing on farms that formerly depended on the sale of cash crops such as hay, grain, and fruit for their income. In this area, irrigated permanent pasture is coming into the picture, as is the home feed lot, where home-grown foods are marketed through livestock. The other field day was on the vast Tojon ranch in Kern and Los Angeles counties, where a radical change in being made in method of operation that typifies the change in style of cattle ranching.

Until a few years ago, in many large cattle ranches, steers were marketed as four-year-olds. But were allowed to run with the cows the year around, so that calves were born at all seasons of the year. No particular plan was followed in selecting bulls, and the result was a conglomerate herd.

At the present time, the Tojon is using all registered Hereford bulls, selected on the basis of uniformity and high quality. Calves are born mostly during late winter and early spring, so that they will get their start when grass is at its best. Nothing in the steer line is kept beyond two years of age, and most of the steers are sold as calves and yearlings. This permits carrying a larger cow herd, and utilizing available feed to better advantage. Heifers are culled at two year olds, as it is the belief of Manager Brodie Hamilton that heifers that look the best at calves and yearlings do not always make the best cows. He feels that he can do a better job of selecting heifers to go into his cow herd if he waits until they are two years of age. There has been "a improvements on this ranch through fencing and development of water.

All of these management practices are helping to increase the beef-producing efficiency of the Tojon. Similar programs are in effect on most western ranches, so that we are now producing more beef for the amount of grassland than was formerly the case. This is necessary if a ranch is to be on a paying basis, for taxes, land values, and other costs of operation have increased appreciably.

No matter whether one is operating a ranch, or a farm where livestock is fed — the problem is essentially the same. It is to market the crop that is raised, whether it be grass or grain and hay, to the best advantage. The livestock business resolves itself to a study of individual problems of each ranch, the solution of which will enable the operator to turn off more pounds of more valuable meat. Each rancher and farmer has a different set-up. He must study the feed he produces, figure out the kind and class of livestock that will use that feed to best advantage, and then do the best he can in handling that kind of livestock.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Stinnett, born April 23rd, has been named Sherrie Annette.

LINCOLN CO. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The annual meeting of the Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday evening, April 29th, Mr. J. H. Fulmer president of the association presided. Following the reading of the minutes of the 1940 annual meeting and the secretary's and treasurer's reports, eight directors were elected for two years and one for one year, to fill a vacancy. The meeting then adjourned and the directors were called into executive session and elected the following officers: President, J. H. Fulmer; Vice President, J. E. Hall; Secretary, Dr. R. E. Blaney; Treasurer, J. E. Wright.

The following program was outlined for the coming year: Continue our efforts toward the completion of Highway 54, first to have it designated a primary road, second, when that is accomplished to use every means possible to have 54 placed in the Military, that failing, to have the highway constructed as an auxiliary to the military system of highways.

To co-operate with all civic organizations in the county and should occasion require, with Chambers of Commerce in the state.

To do all things possible to bring tourists through Carrizozo and Lincoln county, and in doing that we can get a share of the money spent in the greatest industry of the nation.

To promulgate good will between all communities in this great Southwest so that this region will be a better and a more profitable place to live.

This association extends thanks to the Governor and the State Highway Commission for the work they have done on Highway 380 between Hondo and Lincoln, also for the grading and drainage on the same Highway between Carrizozo and San Antonio.

ALBUQUERQUE PRODUCTION CREDIT ASSOCIATION

Albuquerque Production Credit Association furnished $184,000 more short term credit to ranchers and farmers of its territory during the first quarter of 1941 than in the same period last year, according to a recent report of W. O. Hall, association secretary-treasurer.

Counties included in the district of the Albuquerque association are: Bernalillo, Torrance, Sandoval, Santa Fe, Valencia, Catron, Socorro, McKinley, Rio Arriba (Eastern Portion), and Taos Counties, and all other counties for loans in excess of $16,000.

Total loans made by this cooperative credit organization during the first three months of 1941 amounted to $620,000 compared with $430,000 for the first quarter of 1940, Secretary Hall states.

Hall also reports that the increased business noted by the Albuquerque association is general throughout New Mexico. Loans made by the five associations of the state from January 1 to March 31, 1941, totaled $1,400,000, which represents an increase of 32 percent over the same period of 1940.

Production credit associations make short term loans to finance all types of ranch and farm operations. Repayments are scheduled according to the time the member has livestock or crops for sale.

Mr. T. A. Spencer of Carrizozo is President of the Albuquerque association.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Roselle were in town yesterday. They started home to Jicarilla, but found the highway bridges were washed out and had to return to Carrizozo.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—(Ma.) Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps who has just arrived in England to serve as an official observer of the war, is about the only officer remaining in active service who learned to fly under the personal supervision of Wilbur and Orville Wright at their school in Dayton, Ohio. Just two years previously the war department had accepted delivery of its first batch of airplanes and so his experience as a flier pretty nearly spans the complete period of army aviation.

Anyone who can recall the status of flying in 1911 will appreciate "Hap" Arnold's exploits in his first year of training as a young lieutenant, assigned to flight duty from the infantry, with a record of 140 flights, 29 hours in the air. In his second year of training he achieved honor as the first winner of the Mackay trophy awarded for excellence as a military pilot. In a day so blustery and cold as to keep all but 2 of 12 entrants out of the race he completed a 40-mile flight, originating at College Park, Md., at an average speed of 52 miles an hour.

Twenty-two years later he again won the trophy as leader of a flight of 10 twin-engined bombers from Washington, D. C., to Alaska and return. As early as 1911 he practiced aerial bombardment and war department records credit him with being the pioneer in the successful use of the radio for military purposes in an airplane.

Quite at variance with the outward semblance of this slightly built, silver-haired soldier with his diffident smile, is his forthright utterances and writings concerning the airplane as a war machine.

"The only way to prevent air invasion is to attack the invader with superior numbers and knock him out of the air." He has been preaching this for years, his concern having ever been for the constant procurement of thousands of new, improved combat craft, training of thousands of new pilots, enlistment of tens of thousands of ground crew men, swelling of aircraft plants and acquisition of vital raw material for future aircraft production.

Still an active pilot, mounting administrative duties have cut down his time in the air and restricted his activity in two hobbies—cooking and writing fiction. Boys who remember his "Bill Bruce" books, including "Bill Bruce at West Point," "Bill Bruce at Flying School" and other breath-taking juvenile works, will regret the recent idleness of his pen.

PRONOUNCED feeling of good-will toward a nation where she has been most hospitably received, sentiment born of local pride and a high sense of honor, pervaded the christening of the new Moore-McCormack passenger liner, Rio de Janeiro, as it slid down the ways in the shipyard at Chester, Pa., the other day. So acting, she represented her husband, Commander Ernani Do Amaral Peixoto, governor of the state of Rio de Janeiro—for which the vessel was named—as well as her father, Getulio Vargas, president of Brazil.

A petite, vivacious woman, who has made a delightful impression upon those concerned in making the current visit of the distinguished Brazilian pair an important hands-across-the-sphere event, the senhora holds a degree in law, the result of study at the University of Brazil, a profession, however, in which she has never practiced. Marrying soon after graduation she eventually became secretary to her father, a position she now holds. Her hosts in New York have found her a fluent speaker of English.

This requirement has made her of value to her husband as an interpreter when our idiom and more involved diction carry him beyond his depth. No one, it seems, has yet found her at a loss on economic, social, or political questions—in fine she is a brilliantly accomplished woman. Practical, too. When it became clear that certain handwork arts in Europe no longer would be available to American buyers she founded the Fundacao Anchieta in Rio de Janeiro which gives free training in fine needlework to Brazilian women.

Making Sparks Fly at Tank Plant

This picture is typical of the way the national defense program is progressing. Soil Conservation

In the matter of soil conservation, the agriculturist will do well to take a leaf out of Nature's own book, for one of Nature's tricks for holding and fertilizing the soil is to keep it constantly covered with vegetation. Such coverage, when maintained by the farmer is usually called a cover crop. It may be a fairly permanent cover, maintained over a period of years, or it may be planted merely for a winter or a summer season.

Careful erosion surveys made throughout the United States show that 50,000,000 acres of once-fertile land are now completely useless and 100,000,000 more in bad condition as a result of soil erosion. The greater part, if not all of this shocking loss of productivity could have been prevented by the use of proper soil conservation methods. One of such methods, and an important one, would have been the planting of cover crops in proper rotation with other crops. A recent Farmers' Bulletin lists the following advantages to be derived from the use of cover crops:

- "1. The cover crop reduces runoff of rain and thus conserves moisture;
- "2. Prevents excessive erosion of soil;
- "3. Adds organic matter to the soil;
- "4. Prevents the leaching of available plant food, especially nitrate nitrogen;
- "5. When turned under, forms organic acids or other compounds which aid in the liberation of mineral plant food;
- "6. May provide late fall, winter, and early spring pasture;
- "7. Protects newly constructed terraces and other soil-erosion devices;
- "8. Increases yield of corn, cotton, and other regular farm crops;
- "9. When plowed under, improves the structure of both heavy and light soils and increases the water-absorbing capacity and the infiltration of water into the soil."

CROP YIELDS INCREASED

Farmers are sometimes disinclined to try cover crops because of the cost of seed and labor involved; nevertheless, both practical and experimental results of cover cropping show that in the Cotton Belt yields have been greatly increased—as much as 35 per cent for cotton and 75 per cent for corn by this practice. In winter-grain sections, yields have also been materially increased by the use of summer cover crops. Legumes, especially, themselves a cash crop, may be used as cover crops in rotation with other cash crops, to reduce erosion and increase the yield of the cultivated crops which follow them.

In the northern Corn Belt and in the western part of the United States where soils are neutral or alkaline, sweetclover, broadcast with wheat is very valuable since its large top and root growth add much organic matter to the soil. A standard crop along the Atlantic coast, from New Jersey to northern Georgia is crimson clover. It must be admitted that it is frequently difficult to obtain a stand of crimson clover, but wherever a stand can be secured it makes a very satisfactory erosion-control crop. For best results, sow the seed in the fall, at the rate of 50 pounds per acre, on a well-prepared seed bed, and press the seed into the soil with a roller.

NON-LEGUMES

In either the Corn Belt or the Cotton Belt, one of the best all-round cover crops is rye, which germinates easily and makes a complete cover in a very short time. Winter oats may also be used where freezing is not severe. Wheat, in areas to which it is adapted, or oats or barley make good cover crops. In regions where leguminous crops are, for any reason, not desirable, Italian ryegrass, redtop or rye are indicated for cover. Cover crops should be turned under two weeks before corn planting or three weeks before cotton planting. For early truck crops, plant for cover something which will form a dense growth in the fall to serve as a winter mulch and turn it under in February or March.

For further information concerning cover crops, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1759.

THE PITCHER PLANT

It is the leaf of the pitcher plant which gives it its name. These leaves may be anywhere from 4 to 10 inches long. They are hollow and are shaped like little trumpets with the small end of the "trumpet" attached to the stem of the plant. Each perfect leaf is winged on its inner side and is colored in various shades of green, streaked in purple or a dark liver color. These trumpet-shaped leaves are usually nearly full of water (the plants grow in boggy marshes). Hence its name.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking habits, causes kidney action—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the circulating blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, hot, cold, swelling feet, constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A large banana and two ounces of cream cheese mashed and mixed together makes a delicious spread for crackers.

Cream cheese mixed with a little chili sauce or catsup makes a piquant filling for sandwiches. They are especially appealing with a hot beverage.

Never allow cold water to run into an aluminum pan while it is hot. If done repeatedly, this rapid contraction of metal will cause pan to warp.

To remove dandelion stains from washable materials, rub lard well into the spots, roll the material and let it stand half an hour or so, then wash with mild soap and warm water. Rinse well and repeat if the stains remain.

A scrubbing brush with stiff bristles is invaluable when washing badly soiled collar bands, mud-splashed hems or other stains on white clothes. Lay the cloth smoothly on the washboard, wet the brush, rub it across a bar of soap, then scrub the garment with strokes of the brush.

To clean stained brass ash trays, cover them with a paste made of salt and vinegar. Let stand half an hour and then rub well with a cloth and wash the trays in hot water and soap. Wipe dry with a clean soft cloth.

Remove seeds from dates with a sharp-bladed paring knife. Keep your fingers moistened with cold water to prevent dates from sticking. Store dates in covered jar in a cupboard.

Combs should not be washed, for the water is apt to split the teeth. An old and fairly stiff nailbrush will be found very useful in cleaning them. Work the bristles well in and out between the teeth until all the dirt and fluff is removed, and then wipe the comb carefully on a damp cloth.

The Strumpet Sea

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

George McAusland was 33 years old when he sailed from America to undertake his post as a missionary in the Fiji Islands. A crime he had committed in a fit of excitement had shattered all his confidence in himself. He felt forced to avoid pretty Mary Doncaster, who boarded the ship at Honolulu. She was en route to visit her parents, who were missionaries on the island. Mary was attracted by George's attempts to avoid her. One day George accidentally fell overboard. Mary unhesitatingly dove into the sea to rescue George, who falls in love with her. When the boat approached her home on Gilead Island, they learned that Mary's parents had both died. George volunteered to take charge of the mission. Faced with the necessity of losing Mary if he left her now, George forced himself to ask her to be his wife. Mary accepted his clumsy proposal, and they left the ship to live in her former home on the island. The scanty dress of the natives shocked George at first, but he soon became reconciled to their customs. Mary discovered that Corkran, a sailor friend of George's, had deserted ship to live on the island. He had come there to help George and Mary if they needed him. When a ship stopped in the harbor in search of pearls, they saw the pearl divers attacked and their schooner sunk by a pirate ship. The pirates head their boat toward the bay near their village. George sends Mary inland for safety and walks down to the beach alone and defenseless, to meet the unwelcome visitors. Natives carry him back to Mary hours later, shot through the shoulder.

CHAPTER VII Jarambo sent young men to carry George away and that was done; so when the white men returned to the landing, he had been borne to safety. When they were gone, Jarambo and the other old men decided what to do to these white men who had hurt the child. So by and by many of the strongest girls swam off to the schooner, with flowers in their hair, laughing. "And it was night," Jarambo told Mary, squatting at her feet. "In the dark, many canoes went quietly on the water, and many young men. The white men on the ship were busy with our girls; and then we came aboard in the dark, the girls held them lovingly while our war clubs cracked their skulls."

CHAPTER VI—Continued Mary asked one of the young men for Jarambo; but he shook his head, not looking at her. If George had not filled her thoughts, excluding all else, she must have seen a tautness in these young men, as though they were waiting, listening. But she thought only of her husband; and when in midafternoon he opened his eyes and looked at her, she spoke in a quick tenderness, close beside him. "Quiet, my dear," she said. "You're all right. We're safe. Quiet. Rest, my dear."

He stared past her, stared straight up at the thatch above them. She thought he did not know he spoke. He said: "They were angry because no canoes met them. They smashed their boat against the rocks getting ashore, and that made them more angry. One was a red-headed man with a red beard and red hair all over his chest. They all had guns. I told them we didn't want them here, and the red-headed man put his hand against me and pushed me over backward. One of the others shot me before I could get up." He looked at her with a deep shame at his own weakness. "I fainted, Mary, like a woman."

"You couldn't do anything against their guns, George. Now rest, dear." His eyes closed. "Like a woman," he muttered again, and sighed, and slept. In the morning George was stronger, able to sit up with Mary to support him, her arms around him, his shoulders leaning against her breast. The young men were gone when she woke; but later they returned, and Mary saw a red gleam in their eyes, and their eyes would not meet hers. She wondered, and her heart began to beat hard with a sort of premonition, but she was not afraid of what would happen. She thought that in some strange way she was terrified by something already past; but she decided this was merely the reaction from her alarm of yesterday, now eased, and put the fear aside.

"What has happened?" she asked. His eyes flickered with something curiously like dismay, and he looked at his companion, then at Mary again, without replying. She insisted: "Is the ship still there?" She realized that he was confused by some strange sense of guilt; and her pulse pounded in her wrist. She looked back at George. He was asleep, so for the moment he no longer needed her. She said firmly to the young men: "Take me to Jarambo. Or bring Jarambo to me."

After a moment, one of them turned and darted off through the forest. The other spoke, bidding her come. Presently ahead of her she heard a call go down the mountain, summoning Jarambo. Soon Jarambo spoke at her elbow and she turned. The old man met her eyes and waited. She had never been afraid of him, but she was afraid of Jarambo now. There was that in his eyes she had never seen there, a blaze like a leaping fire, a drunk fury, a reckless intoxication. But this was not the drunkenness of rum. Nevertheless he was drunk with something. She looked at him intently; and suddenly her head rose. She said: "Jarambo, tell me."

He said, under his breath: "Long time we were men." She waited. He spoke explicitly, from the beginning. When the schooner anchored, George's insistence kept the canoes ashore; but presently a boat put off from the vessel with three white men in it. Those white men did not know the landing place, and they went toward the beach, but they saw that the surf there was impracticable, so they came along the shore and they shouted, and some of the children went out of the jungle to the landing place, and then some of the girls. When the white men saw the girls they tried to land, and their boat was broken against the ledge; but they climbed ashore. They were angry because of the loss of the boat, and when George came down the path and spoke to them, one of the men struck him down and then shot him, and he lay like a dead man. But one of the children, a little boy who loved George, bit the hand of the man who had shot. That man caught the boy, and he broke the child's arm across his knee.

Mary knew that a man afraid is dangerous. The people on the island were strung tight with terror at seeing the Venturer approach so soon after the massacre. They had drugged Corkran to keep him ignorant of what was to happen; but now here came many white men. Mary thought any small incitement might touch them into bloody madness again; bring the war clubs out of hiding, set them swinging. It would be important, when the Venturer came in, to warn Richard and the others against asking questions. All the others had disappeared; but Jarambo stayed with Mary, squatting on the platform, waiting her commands. She bade him watch and tell her when the Venturer anchored. In the late afternoon Jarambo reported that a boat from the Venturer was rowing toward the mouth of the bay. It would be night, Jarambo said, before the whaleboat came into the roads; and she told him to build a fire on the shore for a beacon at the landing place, and to help them at the landing. When sudden dark descended, Mary brought one of the whale oil lamps and lighted the wick and set it here by George's bed. Jarambo went to tend the beacon fire, and she was alone. She heard shod feet come up the path toward the house; and she rose and went from her husband's side through the big central room to the door. In darkness there she met a man, and thought him her uncle, and cried: "Uncle Tom!" and went into his arms, clinging to him. But she knew as she kissed him and felt his lips that this was not her uncle, and she pressed back, peering up at him. "It's all right, Mary. Don't you know me? I'm Peter-Corr." Before she could free herself, he kissed her again, his beard rough against her cheek and chin. "Peter?" she cried. "Oh, I'm glad you've come!" Then she saw someone behind him, tall and slender, and she asked, trying to see in the half light: "Who is it?" Then, seeing more clearly: "Why, it's Tommy!" Her voice broke, her eyes filled with happy weeping. "Why, Tommy, how you've grown!" She caught him, and he clung to her, young arms tight around her neck, hugging her hard. He did not speak, and she smiled to herself, thinking: He's so glad to see me that he's crying, doesn't dare try to talk for fear we'll know. She asked: "How's Uncle Tom, Tommy?" But Tommy, without answering, only held her harder, and Peter asked urgently: "Mary, where's your father?" "Father's dead, Peter. He and Mother died before we got here." Then, in the doorway: "This is my husband, George McAusland." Peter stood by George's bed "Husband?" he muttered. "He's sick," she said. "He sure looks like it!" "And—he's been hurt," she admitted, looking back to see if Jarambo had come in with Peter and Tommy, wondering how much just now to tell Peter. She asked again: "Where's Uncle Tom?" Peter said slowly: "Your uncle's dead, too, Mary." She noticed that he did not look at Tommy, seemed careful not to.

Brightening a Flagstone Floor.

QUESTION: How can I brighten up a new broken flag floor that we have just had put down on our porch? Could I take off its dusty look with a polishing of liquid wax? Answer: After brick, stone or tile is laid in cement mortar, it should be scrubbed with a solution of muriatic acid, to remove any cement that may have been smeared on the surface. Use one part muriatic acid in twenty parts of water; allow to act for a few minutes, then rinse with clear water. Work on a small area at a time. When mixing the solution, pour the water slowly into the acid, stirring constantly. As this acid is highly corrosive, wear rubber gloves and old clothes; be careful not to get any of it on your skin. You can enrich the color of the stone by applying a liberal coat of raw linseed oil, mixed half-and-half with turpentine. After several hours of soaking, wipe off the excess oil. Try the oil first on some hidden part of the floor, to see how you like the effect.

'Crazing' Varnish.

Question: Is it a usual condition, in all highly figured mahogany, to develop surface scratches, known as "crazing"? This condition has developed in my bedroom quite, which is English Chippendale, crotch mahogany. Can this condition be remedied at home, and will it recur after it has been repaired? Answer: Crazing in the varnish finish is not natural on any wood. This condition is usually caused by the drying out of the varnish. If the crazing is not very deep, light sandpapering will remove it, followed by a wiping with turpentine to clean the surface; after this, apply a thin coat of varnish. Deeply crazed varnish must be removed and the furniture refinished.

Water-Soaked Floor.

Question: We have just purchased and have moved to the mainland a house that has been standing in salt water for some time; for about a year water covered the floors at high tide. What solution can we use for washing the floors that will remove the salt from the wood? Answer: Nothing will be more effective than plain water, in which salt is soluble. Even with this, however, I greatly doubt if all of the salt can be removed. I should live in the house for a year or two, to study the effect, with the idea of replacing the floors if necessary. Mildew is not to be feared.

Washing Down Paint.

Question: Is there a liquid with which I can wash down painted walls to take off dirt, but not the paint? Answer: There is on general sale at most paint stores a powder made of a cereal compound, which is very satisfactory for washing painted surfaces. Or, you can dissolve a teaspoonful of trisodium phosphate in a gallon of tepid water. After the wall has been washed with this solution, rinse with clear water. Start working at the floor level and wash up toward the ceiling, to avoid making dirty streaks.

Paint or Stain for Shingle.

Question: Which is the more enduring, shingle stain or paint? Answer: Wood shingles on a roof should never be painted. They will last longer if stained with a good quality shingle stain. Wood shingles used as a wall siding can either be painted or stained. The lasting properties of paint or stain will be about equal if they are of a good quality.

Digger Wasps.

Question: My lawn is covered with round holes, about the size of a half-dollar, which I think must be from moles. Is there any simple way to get rid of them? Answer: Moles do not make such holes as you describe. Much more likely the holes are made by digger wasps. Two or three moth balls dropped into each hole, and the hole closed, should end the trouble.

Waterproof Glue.

Question: How can glue for wood be made waterproof? Answer: That will not be an easy job to do at home. It will be far simpler to buy waterproof glue. One excellent variety is a glue made of casein that can be had at a hardware store. While this is mixed with water, it becomes highly water resistant when it dries.

Making Things.

Question: I am interested in making small objects, such as decorative shelves, plant stands, etc. How should I go about it? Are there any books for novices? Answer: A book by Julian Starr, called "Make It Yourself," should give you all the information you want. It is published by Whitteley House, and is on sale at book stores.

Restaurateur Believed Himself Well Supplied

The couple had enjoyed a meal in the restaurant. When the bill was presented the husband was horrified to discover he had come out without money. Calling the proprietor, he explained the situation, ending up with: "It won't take me long to alip home, and my wife will remain here as security."

"Pardon me," said the proprietor, "haven't you anything else?" "Sir," snapped the customer angrily, "are you insinuating that my wife is not worth the $1.50?" "Not at all," the proprietor protested, "but I already have a wife!"

The Legion Home is blooming with poppies as the Auxiliary women complete preparations for the annual observance of Poppy Day here, Saturday, May 24. The little red flowers of memory are being taken from the boxes in which they come from the Veteran's Hospital at Albuquerque, where they were made by disabled war veterans, and arranged for distribution on the streets on Poppy Day.

Memories of the past and hopes for the future—that is what goes into the making of a memorial poppy. The poppies are made in exact replica of the wild poppies of France and Belgium which grew in such profusion on the World War battle fields. They are shaped from crepe paper, with wire stems. The disabled men who make them often work under great handicaps but acquire remarkable skill in producing a close resemblance to the natural flower.

"The men who make the flowers are the comrades of those in whose honor the poppies are worn." "They are the ones who were not called upon to give their lives but to give the health and strength which makes life worth while. Into the little flowers they place great memories of the past, and from this work they derive new hope for the future."
"Buy a Poppy on Poppy Day."

$90 ROUND TRIP

Thousands of travelers will take time out this year to know America better. Thanks to the low "Grand Circle Tour" fares, you can see America from border to border and coast to coast for only $90 round trip in chair cars and coaches, or $135 round trip in standard Pullmans (plus $45 for a Pullman lower all the way, or $34.50 for an upper).

You can travel as many as 9,000 miles, and by going on one of Southern Pacific's Four Scenic Routes and returning on a different S. P. route, you'll see twice as much as you would going and returning the same way. For example, take an S. P. train to Los Angeles, continue north to San Francisco on the streamlined Daylight, then go to Chicago via the direct Overland Route—over the High Sierra, across Great Salt Lake and through the Rockies. Continue on to New York—direct or via Montreal. Add Boston and Portland, Maine, for no additional rail or Pullman fare.

Visit Washington D. C. Then return to your hometown on any of several routes, each of which shows you another part of the United States.

The trip described above is just one example of how you can see two of Southern Pacific's Four Scenic Routes in one trip as much on a $90 or $135 ticket. Ask your nearest S. P. Agent about other combinations.

You have a wide choice of fine, fast Southern Pacific trains, ranging from deluxe Pullman limiteds to friendly economy trains featuring three good meals for $1.25 a day (breakfast 35c, luncheon 40c, dinner 50c).

Mechanized Fishing

The fishing industry, oldest of American industries, and one of the largest, has finally accepted a place in the machine column. Where snowy-sailed schooners put out from New England fishing ports almost since the coming of the Pilgrims, trim Diesel-engined trawlers now go forth. Operating from Massachusetts ports is the Forty Fathom Fleet. Come aboard one of the trawlers and let's go to the fishing grounds:

Here is a big trawl—a net shaped like a big bag. As much as 5,000 pounds of fish can be hauled in at one lick in this bag.

Above: After sword-play, sharks are not the worst offenders. The repair crew had to mend a big hole in the net after a swordfish had been rough with it. Occasionally a trawler brings in something the fishermen hadn't bargained for. The shark at the right, for instance. This is a 7 ft. blue shark. The liver is valuable.

A cleaning crew in action. They sort the fish, slit and clean them, and stow them below in layers of ice.

Motley Army Joins English Fighting Force

Men From Many Nations Leave Homes to War Against Germany.

By ROGER SHAW
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
WASHINGTON. — When the British beat Napoleon—the Hitler of his time—at Waterloo, only about half of the British army was actually British. The rest of Wellington's outfit was a strange mixture of peoples who thought they were fighting for their freedom. The list was a long one. It took in Dutchmen, Belgians, Hanoverians, Prussians, and men from Brunswick, Nassau, and Saxe-Weimar. The Hanoverians did well in the battle, but the Dutch, Belgians, and men of Nassau did very badly. After the battle, large groups of the latter were found playing cards miles back of the field of honor.

The King's German Legion was the best, and best known, of these foreign outfits under British leadership. The Legion was made up of refugees from all over the Germanies—a hodgepodge then under Napoleonic domination. The Legion served on every sort of front during the long war cycle, even acting as marines in various naval operations. They fought from the North Cape to the North African coastline, and campaigned against the Americans in 1812 and after. They were "owned," payed, and equipped by the British government, and they burned with hatred of the Hitler-like Bonaparte, who had turned their fatherlands into a "new order." The Legion, which made a specially distinguished record at Waterloo, contained Austrians and Netherlanders, as well as natives of the various little Germanies.

History tends to repeat itself, and in the year 1941 the King's Legion has come to life again in various forms. The old Legion was predominantly Germanic. The new Legion, or legions, are politically anti-Germanic, but they take in a wide variety of peoples. This time they include Dutch, Belgians, Norwegians, Danes, Poles, Czechs, "free" Frenchmen, and goodness knows what else. In such cases, their countries have been overrun, and England has become the refuge—the last white hope or chance. In fighting for England, these people feel they are fighting for their own lost countries, and against the common tyrant. Today the tyrant is A. H. and not N. B., but otherwise things are much as they were a century and a third ago. In England today, there are also anti-Fascist Germans, Italians, and Austrians, who swell the alien ranks of the King's Foreign Legion. This is not an innovation, either. Anti-Fascist Frenchmen served England against Napoleonic France in the early 1800s. In short, what we are witnessing—now as then—is an international civil war.

50,000 Foreign Fighters.
Today there are something like 50,000 foreign legionaries serving the British empire. Strangely enough, this is just about the same size as the King's German Legion of antiquity. These foreign legionaries might, in a sense, be considered the composite army of the late lamented League of Nations. In many cases, their dummy governments are in London or Bristol, as well as their armed representatives. The king of Norway and the queen of Holland are among the foreign-legion rulers in the British Isles, as was the black Ethiopian Lion of Judah until recently—i.e. Haile Selassie.

His country was seized by the Nazis in March, 1939, but this Czechoslovakian aviator fights on as a valuable member of the Royal Air Force.

World's Largest Island Placed Under U. S. Protection

WASHINGTON.—When President Roosevelt announced that the United States would defend Greenland, he extended the scope of the Monroe Doctrine to the largest island in the world. With a total area of 850,000 square miles, it is almost as large as the United States east of the Mississippi. More than three-fourths of this area is covered by an immense ice field. Eskimos greatly predominate among the 18,000 persons living in Greenland. Some English is spoken, but the vast majority know only Greenlandic, a dialect of the Eskimo language. The general standard of living is still primitive, with most needs for food and clothing being satisfied by hunting and fishing. Until the war started, the Government monopolized the foreign trade requiring almost all exports to be shipped first to Denmark.

Men have come thousands of miles to fight beside the British in their war against the Axis powers. The Arab soldiers (left) are helping to defend Egypt, while the American aviators (center) and the gunner from India (right) do their part in England to keep Hitler's "Luftwaffe" in check.

Poland and Belgium have ambassadors to the British government, and vice versa, while Norway, Holland, and the Czechs still maintain official ministers to the Court of St. James. General De Gaulle represents the "free" Frenchman, but he has no official standing with the French Vichy government. The foreign troops in England wear British uniforms and use British equipment, except for the officers on leave in London. They wear their fancy native garb, which seems to bore the Londoners, to a marked degree.

The Dutch are really considered the most useful, and best liked, of England's exiled allies. The English and Dutch peoples are closely akin, and follow much the same pattern of behavior. The Dutch have presented the British government with close to a million tons of commercial shipping, and come small warships to boot. The Dutch East Indies, with their oil, rubber and tin, are still independent, and they have perhaps 60,000,000 inhabitants. There are very few Dutch soldiers in England—the Dutch army lasted only four days—but the merchant fleet and colonies make up the difference. Another 2,000,000 tons of Dutch shipping are now trading on their own in the faraway Pacific area.

Norwegians Popular.
Second most popular with the English people are the Norwegians. Like the "Dutchies," they, too, are chiefly nautical in their contributions. Norway has supplied England with close to 1,000 ships—something like three or four million tons of shipping. Some lesser Norwegian warcraft also are co-operating with the British navy. These are mostly destroyers, minesweepers and armed whalers with perhaps the world's best crews. The Poles, "free" French, Belgians, and Czechs are not as popular in England as the kindred Dutch and Norwegians.

The Poles are the most numerous of the alien lot, and the most beautiful. They have garrisoned Scotland, and are also serving in the royal air force. They have come ships with the royal navy, and a puppet government at London. Their commander has been Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, a good man of comparatively liberal convictions, who was on bad terms with the reckless Polish dictatorship which reigned at the beginning of the war. The Czechs, close kith and kin of the Poles, are not very many. They are largely college men and armed intellectuals—as brainy as the Poles are militaristic. Just the same, the exiled Polish and Czech governments are planning a Czech-Polish federation for the sweet bye and bye after the war. Some of the Belgian politicians are actually petitioning to be taken into the British empire, with dominion status, after the shooting is shot!

These Belgians are very angry at their King, Leo, who is still in Belgium. They think, some of them, that he sold the Allies down the river—a claim which history may have a pretty hard time to substantiate. There are some Belgians in the royal air force, and elsewhere, including a few ultra-rich playboys. The "free" Frenchies are another story. The tactful British government has never known quite what to do with them.

If England is too kind to De Gaulle, who is none too popular at home, it may drive Vichy into the arms of Berlin. De Gaulle's Dakar expedition to West Africa was a terrible fiasco. De Gaulle himself is persona grata with Churchill, but not with many other Englishmen. At the same time, he tends to serve as a useful brake on the politicians and generals of Vichy. Further, the French colonies of Syria, North Africa, and Martinique, with their important armed forces, continue to be against De Gaulle, and for old Petain.

The Poles and Norwegians are reported as the toughest and most vengeful of the King's foreign legionaries. The Polish attitude is perfectly understandable. Poland has been very badly treated. In the Norse case, the pro-English Norwegians hate the pro-German Norwegians, and carry this hatred to a degree. The other exiled groups seem somewhat surprisingly indifferent at times, when viewed through excited American spectacles. Just the same, if the invasion of England ever comes, these motley groups may be counted on to fight fiercely—and no holds barred. It's their last chance this side of paradise. "Paradise," in this case, means America.

Plastics of Coffee Bring New Hope To Troubled Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO. — Brazil's greatest new industry is a demonstration of the world's most amazing scientific solution to an over-production problem. "Coffee plastics" from which Brazil may make homes and schools, war planes and even the industrial machinery of the future, is the answer of modern science to a surplus crop problem which threatened to engulf the whole economy of Brazil and impoverish millions of her people!

While all Europe goes coffee-less, Brazil's great coffee industry has warehouses bulging with the 100,000,000-pound surplus left over from last year. The National Coffee department also has on hand 1,430,000,000 pounds more, purchased from despondent coffee owners in 132-pound sacks for 10 cents each! Brazil has watched a total "sacrifice quota" of 9,200,811,032 pounds of coffee go up in smoke (1933-40) in a desperate effort to stabilize her most important industry. Only a scientific miracle, such as "Cafelite" will save the bumper 1940 and the greater 1941 crops from the same disastrous end.

World Market Reduced.
With an annual production of 2½ billion pounds, and a normal over-production of 720 million pounds, the war has reduced world markets until the United States is now Brazil's only substantial customer. Add to this surplus the 603 million pounds which Europe would normally have bought this year, and you have a coffee problem that would give any country a headache!

Conditions in Brazil's great coffee states have been desperate. Groups of coffee planters petitioned for the right to uproot whole orchards of fine coffee trees, and coffee was selling on the New York Coffee exchange at lowest prices in history.

Looking ahead gloomily to the best coffee crop in years, Brazil may be literally drugged by her own coffee.

What is Brazil going to do? Plastics Possible Solution.
While secret preparations have gone on for months, in a "too-good-to-be-true" atmosphere, hope, doubt, and hope again has grown that the coffee plastics will really make all the magic things science says.

That the miracle of coffee plastics will save this wanton destruction of coffee money, has been the hope of every coffee planter and laborer, watching the great barn-like buildings rise on barren lands outside Sao Paulo, seeing great crates of machinery arrive from the U. S.

The new Cafelite is heat-resisting, and thus excellent for Brazil's warmer climate. It is noise-proof, and may save the nerves of Brazilians from the increasing racket of city traffic. It is proof against termites and other pests who destroy homes and furniture in warmer climates. It may be made in a whole range of lovely "bathroom" colors, or combined with other substances to imitate wood or wallpaper.

It was discovered by a clever young North American, Herbert Spencer Polin, while doing research for the American Coffee corporation, in his floating yacht laboratory and rushed to Brazil.

Plumbing fixtures made of coffee plastics would be a God-send for millions of Brazilians living in the far interior, and for cheap apartment homes too. Cabinets, electrical appliances, kitchen equipment, furniture, school and hospital equipment, perhaps whole homes and apartments of the future will be made out of surplus coffee!

TIPS to Gardeners

BULB SUBSTITUTES
WITH the supply of many popular spring-flowering bulbs cut off because of the war in Europe, gardeners are seeking certain substitutes.

The color and form of many annual flowers makes them excellent choices for replacing the bulb favorites. As in the case of bulbs, the seed of these annuals may be planted in the early fall, for blossoming early the following summer.

The fresh yellow color of Daffodils, for instance, may be captured nearly as well in the petals of Sunshine Calendula, or in the rich hues of California Poppy (Extra Golden). The shape of the California Poppy and the Shirley Poppy closely approaches the typical Tulip shape.

The soft colors associated with the Tulip may be replaced best by Larkspur, with its tints of white, blue, pink, rose, lilac, and carmine. The newer, tall-growing Super Majestic Larkspurs are most desirable.

The blossom-crowded spikes of Snapdragons are likened by many to the Hyacinth. It is best to grow the dwarf rust-resistant strains of Snapdragons, with attractive varieties such as Compact Bedding Bronze, and Salmon Pink adaptable also because of their suitability for massed bedding, as Tulips are so often used.

THRIFT CUTS—MORE MEAT FOR YOUR MONEY
(See Recipes Below)

MEATS FOR BUDGET MEALS

If you're meat-wise, then you're budget-wise! For the less expensive cuts of meat have a way of making food dollars really stretch.

What's more, the thrift cuts of meat are equally as chock full of flavor, health-giving vitamins, body-building proteins and minerals as the more expensive ones. When you buy a chuck roast instead of chops; hamburger instead of steak; or baby beef liver instead of calves liver, your economy isn't depriving your family or guests of even a teeny, weeny bit of food value. That's the verdict of nutrition experts. And they know.

Economy in purchasing meat comes from knowing the wide variety of different meat cuts available, and from purchasing some of the cuts which are not in greatest demand. For example, a pot roast of beef, delicious as it is and as much as it is enjoyed by everyone, sells for considerably less per pound than a rib roast of beef. The reason, of course, is that there is a greater demand for rib roast.

You'll surely be pleased, and surprised, too, at the way you can save money on your food budget, at the same time adding variety to both your family and company meals, by following today's penny-pincher recipes.

Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb.
How to Buy: Good quality lamb is pinkish and well-marbled with fat. Outside fat is smooth, hard, glossy and cream-white. Look for both government inspection stamp and packer's private grade stamp. Find the grade that suits you, then always buy it. Ask your meat man to bone the shoulder, leaving a cavity to fill with stuffing. You can use the bones for broth, soup or gravy (recipe).

How to Cook: Prepare a well-seasoned stuffing; fill cavity, then sew up edges or skewer in place. Weigh meat after stuffing to compute cooking time. Place fat side up on rack in open pan, rub with salt and pepper. Cook in slow oven (325 degrees F.), allowing about 35 minutes per pound. Garnish with mint leaves and a vegetable; serve. Delicious!

Dressing for Lamb.
2 slices bacon
2 cups bread crumbs
1 cup sour apples, chopped
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup celery, chopped

Fry bacon until crisp and add to bread crumbs, raisins, diced apples and celery. Season with salt and pepper and pile lightly into cavity in lamb's shoulder.

Eye-of-Round Roast.
How to Buy: The lean of beef should be well-marbled with fat, firm, smooth, glossy; soon after the meat is cut, the surface should turn bright red. The outer fat should be fairly thick, firm, flaky, cream-white. In lower grades fat is softer, yellower. Though price per pound will perhaps exceed that of rib roast, it is all solid meat—no bones, no fat, no waste of any kind.

LYNN SAYS:

Spread apple or crabapple jelly over the top of roasting ham, veal or pork for the last 30 minutes. The jelly gives an appetizing flavor and a glossy brown top.

Crumbled bacon adds a wonderful new flavor to cooked green beans, yellow or white squash, browned navy beans or spinach. Add the bacon in the last 5 minutes.

Long, slow cooking at a low heat is the general rule for cooking the thrifty cuts of meat.

Ranking low on the butcher's price list but high in nutrition are such meats as kidney, brains, heart and liver. They make delicious dishes when properly cooked.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- Cream of Pea Soup
- *Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb
- Parsley Buttered Potatoes
- Buttered Carrot Strips
- Sweet Cabbage with Raisins
- Peppermint Ice Cream
- Chocolate Cup Cakes
- *Recipe Given

It goes a long way. For best results, slice very thin.

How to Cook: Put meat, well covered with fat, on rack in open roasting pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) and allow about 25 minutes per pound for rare beef, 28 to 30 for medium and about 35 for well done. Do not baste. Potatoes may be cooked in same pan with roast.

Swedish Meat Balls. (Served 6)
2 pounds finely ground beef
1 cup mashed potato
1/2 cup apple sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
Shortening
1 can vegetable soup
1/2 cup milk

Combine beef, potato, apple sauce and seasonings. Roll into small balls the size of a walnut. Brown well in hot shortening, in baking dish. Pour on soup and milk and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Thicken gravy; serve.

Cubed Steak with Vegetables.
Cube 1 pound of, thrifty cut, of steak, such as round or chuck. Brown it in hot fat. Add 1 cup boiling water and 1 teaspoon cornstarch, mixed with a little cold water, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir until mixture is boiling. Add 1 large green pepper cut into squares, and 2 large sweet onions cut into eighths. Cover and simmer until steak is tender. Add 2 large tomatoes put in eighths and cook 2 minutes longer. The gravy may be seasoned with a few drops of seasoning sauce. Serve at once. Baked rice is an excellent accompaniment.

Stuffed Flank Steak. (Served 6)
1 flank steak (about 1 1/2 to 2 lbs.)
4 cups dry bread
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup boiling water
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
1 egg
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Pepper

Have your butcher score the steak and cut a pocket in it. Break the bread into small pieces. Mix milk and boiling water. Pour over bread and let soak until soft. Melt the butter, add onion and cook without browning, about 5 minutes. Add to bread-milk mixture the parsley, beaten egg, salt and pepper. Press this stuffing into the pocket of the steak. Bake in a shallow pan, uncovered, in a moderate oven (350 degrees) two hours. Slice generously and garnish with sprigs of crisp parsley.

There's plenty of good, substantial eating in stuffed flank steak, so the rest of the meal can be simple. A vegetable (stewed tomatoes, beans or cauliflower, perhaps); dessert and beverage would round out a satisfying, appealing meal.

Veal Birds with Mushroom Sauce.
2 pounds veal round
bread stuffing
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons lard
salt and pepper
1 small can mushroom soup

Have veal round cut into one-half inch slices. Cut into pieces for individual servings as nearly 2 by 1 inches in size as possible. Place 1 spoonful of stuffing on each piece, roll and fasten edge with toothpicks. Dredge with flour and brown on all sides in hot lard. Season. Pour mushroom soup over veal birds; cover and cook very slowly until done, about 45 minutes.

For variety, instead of using a bread stuffing, spread finely chopped onion over the meat, place a partially cooked carrot in the center, roll and fasten.

Prints Teamed With Plain Wools Tell Fascinating Fashion Story

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DESIGNERS are in a mood to play with prints this season. Never in the history of fashion have prints been put to such different and fascinating uses. Anything and everything that can be made of printed fabric is being made. Perhaps the biggest splash prints are making at present is their teaming up with monotone wools.

This teaming of print with plain is dramatically interpreted throughout all costume design but most notably in jacket suits, redingote ensembles and in capes. While splashy huge-patterned prints play an important role in formal evening apparel and play clothes, neat, small prints are featured in smart daytime ensembles.

However, what these prints of tiny motifs and checks lack in size is made up in color. For instance, the latest fashion is to top red prints of neat design with red wool coats, jackets or capes—a fashion that is being used to a great extent in teenage frocks.

Red prints are the rage this season. Made up in dresses, they are variously teamed with black, navy, or as mentioned above, red. This trend is illustrated in the model shown to the right in the photograph. This dress featured by the Style Creators of Chicago in a recent display, is topped by a flower print red crepe with a thin black wool jacket, tailored to perfection. The pleated skirt and the hat that repeats the print of the dress are smart accents.

The youthful cape coat in dark wool, centered in the group, is made outstanding by the introduction of a silk print lining in the newly important fine check print, repeating the silk print check of the slim, pleated dress with which it is worn.

A youthful interpretation of the print with plain vogue is pictured to the left. This ingenue dress is of felt blue and white print crepe. The jacket, wearable over other things, is of blue rabbit's hair. Note that the sleeves are short, in keeping with the girliness of the ensemble. There is a cunning little handkerchief of the print. This is one of those casual, intriguingly styled dress-plus-jacket outfits that is so universally likeable for general wear.

There is a new use of prints this season that is challenging the creative genius of designers. It is the idea of trimming with gay prints. You will see it carried out in pipings, bindings, appliques of print motifs, also bow trims of print bands. There is, for example, the dress with pleated skirt that is topped with a monotone jacket that is bound with an inch bordering of print, or possibly a mere binding—just enough to relate it to the dress with which it is worn. Another way of arriving at a "touch of print" for your costume is to have a hat and bag of print that will enliven monotone dresses and coats to the nth degree.

Plaid Accents

Here's how to add a note of gaiety to a navy suit that boasts an extreme mannish cut. Wear a plaid taffeta hat and carry matching accessories! Choose a wide-brimmed hat of plaid taffeta in red and soft blues. Over your shoulder, sling a matching pouch bag. climax the plaid program with a handkerchief of matching plaid. It is the better part of wisdom to buy a simple one-color suit or coat, then depend on accessories to give it eye-dazzling chic.

Hair Styles Reveal

New Flower Motifs
A new vogue that probably will spread like wildfire is a cluster of flowers worn at each side of the head, balanced symmetrically. The flowers are caught to a ribbon band or to one of the new hairbands that fit to the head.

Roses Take Spotlight In Many Fabric Designs

It's sometime in fashionland. The most featured flower in fabric design, in hat trimmings and in smart corsages is the rose.

It is going to be a particularly "rosy" summer in cottons, because cottons this year are reminiscent of weaves that were favorites in the early 1900s. You will find roses blossoming on waffle piques, on unbleached muslins, in mezzotint, on glazed chintz and on lawns and percales.

For party frocks, the newest materials are hand-painted sheers. A huge American Beauty rose, one painted on the bodice, one on the skirt, enhances the beauty of these sheers.

Don't overlook the cunning little sailor hats that are made to wear with the new tailored suits or cape costumes. You will be charmed with single rose trim that mounts right from the very front of the crown.

The latest evening corsage is a single long-stem rose.

Cotton Fabrics Essential To Wardrobes, Supplies

A surplus commodity without which homemakers would be lost is cotton.

There are probably more cotton fabrics suited for more varied uses than fabrics made from any other fiber or combination of fibers. Cottons make up into at least 30 different fabrics suitable for dresses for women, girls and infants.

Without cotton, sheets, pillowcases, ticking and linings of comforters, curtains, draperies, upholstery materials, bath towels, hand towels and dish towels would disappear.

Frilly Accents

Everybody's doing it! Wear the frillest frilly-frilly neckwear ever. Regency frills, jabots, big sailor collars with frilled edges, yokes that are frilled.

PATTERNS

the other is turned back in narrow revers. Make the dress in household cottons, trimming with braid and adding a couple of pockets, and it will be one of your most comfortable work-a-day styles. Make it of light, inconspicuous prints, flat crepe or spun rayon for street wear, with plain neckline, softened by a narrow touch of contrast.

The detailing is perfectly planned to create the high-busted, slim-hipped line most becoming to large figures. The skirt has a gradual flare. It's one of those utterly simple dresses that has loads of distinction.

Pattern No. 1333-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with short sleeves, 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap; long sleeves, 5 1/4 yards. 1 1/4 yards braid or 1/4 yard contrast for neck fold. Detailed sew chart included. Send order to:

Where Days Are Born

The International Date Line, which, like the Equator, is an imaginary line, runs between two islands known as Big Diomedes and Little Diomedes, situated almost halfway between the mainlands of Asia and Alaska. It is here, between the Old World and the New, that each new day is born, and when it is New Year's day on Big Diomedes, it is still a full 24 hours behind on Little Diomedes.

The selection of this particular spot to decide the beginning of each day was decided by an international committee of scientists, who took every other possible site into consideration.

Embarrassed Motorist Expected to Reciprocate

Lasalle, Ill., April 15 - Drama was enacted on Highway 55 over the week end-drama which was not revealed until Tuesday night.

Painfully the embarrassed motorist explained to the traffic officer he just happened to take his eyes off the speedometer to admire the scenery and he didn't realize.

"Tell it to the judge," broke in Officer Adam Kotowski "You were doing 55 in a 30-mile zone."

"Yes, but..."

"Let's see your drivers license," demanded Kotowski.

"But... but..." sputtered the motorist.

"Why your signature isn't even on it," exclaimed Kotowski. "Say who are you?"

With his face the roseate hue no Western sunset could duplicate

the motorist replied:
"Why, I'm Judge John Gatknecht of the Chicago traffic court."

"Well, I'll let you off this time but I'm warning you, if any LaSalle residents come into your court, they'll expect the same treatment."
