All persons interested in taking this course are urged to attend the classes.

There are more accidents in the home and on the Highway now than at any time in the past, and therefore a much larger demand for trained workers in First Aid than ever before.

Any one taking this course will not only receive considerable benefit for themselves, but do a valuable service for the community.

Frank Adams,
Chairman, Red Cross
Lincoln County Chapter.

Sold Home

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Hobbie sold their home in the Highland addition May 8th, to Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Jones. Jones, Dr. Davis of Howard Payne College, Brownfield, Texas, and Dr. R. E. Blaney. Mr. Herman Kelt was chairman of the meeting. The Carrizozo High School Band rendered several numbers very efficiently, directed by C.O. Brewster assisted by Mr. Lou Fink.

CLAUNCH BOOSTER JAMBOREE

About 75 or 80 people went to Claunch Wednesday evening to attend a meeting. The Carrizozo band played some selections. The ladies served a splendid repast to the visitors. It was stated by one of the visitors that Claunch shipped 40,000 sacks of beans last year, but it wasn't all the beans they had, because they served some at the banquet.

POPPY DAY PROCLAMATION

Saturday, May 24, was proclaimed Poppy Day in Carrizozo in a proclamation issued today by Mayor M. U. Finley.

The Mayor called upon all citizens to observe the day by wearing the memorial poppy of the American Legion and Auxiliary.

WHEREAS the wearing of the memorial poppy is a fitting and effective way of keeping bright the memory of those young men who gave their lives in America's service in the World War, and

WHEREAS, men of Carrizozo served gallantly in that war, some being called upon to sacrifice their lives in that service, and

WHEREAS, the present national emergency requires the same use of unselfish patriotism displayed by those men, and symbolize by their memorial flower, and

WHEREAS, the women of the American Legion Auxiliary will distribute veteran-made memorial poppies throughout the city on Saturday, May 24.

NOW, Therefore, I, M. U. Finley, Mayor of the city of Carrizozo do proclaim Saturday, May 24, to be Poppy Day in the city of Carrizozo, and urge all citizens to observe the day by bearing the memorial poppy of the American Legion Auxiliary in honor of the men who died for America in the war of 1917 and 1918.

DISPELLING THE FOG

It is becoming evident from utterances in Congress and elsewhere that many isolationists are that way only because President Roosevelt is not.

It might not be far from the truth to state that if our Democratic chief executive had taken the position that the Nazi war was not our concern, some of the Republicans in House and Senate who assume that pose would have demanded total aid for Great Britain, and been as vehement in their criticism of the administration as they are now.

The other day the President wrote a letter to Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, in support of a three and a half billion dollar defense tax bill, which he insisted "must convince the country that a national defense program intended to protect our democracy is not going to make the rich richer and the poor poorer."

Minority spokesmen in the House protested, with much sarcasm and some invective, that the President should have given them definite suggestions of what taxes should be imposed.

It is not hard to remember that when he sent in the lend-lease measure they were equally sarcastic and resentful that he did not go into details, and inveighed against what they termed making Congress a "rubber stamp." That familiar designation has been yanked into every debate since the first year of the Roosevelt administration whenever a Democratic majority went along with legislation the President recommended.

Concerning Rubber Stamps

Congressman Ham Fish, of New York, while the lend-lease measure was being discussed, stated that it was a political scheme to usurp the powers of Congress and the Supreme Court.

Congressman Rich, of Pennsylvania, told the House of Representatives: "I wonder whether the President of the United States since he has gotten control of everything, since he can hand the Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps, and the Air Corps over to Great Britain, is going to stay in the White House or

Prominent Couple Wed EVERETT BRAGG FATTALLY STABBED

Miss Zane Harkey and Mr. Ralph Petty were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harkey, Wednesday evening, May 21, 1941 at 8:30, with the Rev. L. D. Cochran, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. The impressive double ring ceremony was used. The wedding was quiet, with only members of both immediate families present. Miss Bettie Shafer, class mate of the bride acted as bride's maid, while Mr. Vernon Petty, brother of the groom was best man.

The bride was wearing a lovely white wedding gown and wore a corsage of orchids. The bride's maid, Miss Shafer was also wearing white and her corsage was talisman roses.

Mrs. Petty belongs to one of the oldest and best known families of Carrizozo. She was born and reared here and after her graduation from High school she attended the Colorado Woman's College at Denver. She is pretty, charming and an accomplished musician.

The groom came here with his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Petty about eight years ago. He was graduated from the local High school, since which time he has assisted his father in the Petty General Merchandise store. He is a young man of acumen and ability. He also excels in sports, having been golf champion several seasons. The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for Phoenix, Arizona, where the groom is scheduled to play in a golf tournament Sunday, after which they will go to different points of interest before returning to Carrizozo, where they will be at home to their friends at an apartment in El Cibola hotel.

whether he is going to take up his abode in London to direct the forces of the world."

A favorite topic of the anti-administration spokesmen has been the necessity of protecting freedom of speech. Apparently, their idea is that everybody should have freedom of speech except the President of the United States.

"Those who exercise that freedom," said ex-Governor and ex-Presidential candidate Landon, "should not be subjected to smears and sneers as they have been from this administration since its inception." In other words, it is all right for the isolationists and their fellow-travelers to call the President of the United States "warmonger," but it is all wrong for him to point out that opposition to the defense measures in many instances lends aid and comfort to the Nazis and encourages the belief in Hitlerdom that the United States is divided on the defense policies.

During the political campaign last year, the minority party spokesmen repeatedly accused the President of agitating the war question; of scaring our people, with the sole purpose of having himself re-elected. Everybody recognizes that allowances are to be made, even for absurdities in a political campaign, but there is not even this slight excuse after the political issues have been decided and the country is faced with the deepest crisis in its history.

Smears—Pro and Con

There has not been, and there will not be, any effort to limit criticism of the Administration. Of course, nothing approaching the isolationists' assaults on the government would be tolerated in any other country. That they can go as far as they like over here marks the difference between the principles of democracy and the forces now mobilized to destroy democracy. But certainly, freedom of speech is not one-sided, and the assaults of the Administration have no privilege of

Mr. Everett Bragg, age 36 died last Monday morning, May 19th as the result of knife wounds he received in a fight with Bob Mannus, near the Bragg home on the Bonito, in the White Mountains. His father, Tom Bragg and wife brought him to town in the car, as quickly as they could, but he died from loss of blood just before reaching the Turner hospital. Bragg and Mannus had quarreled before. Mr. Bragg stated that they fought with rocks and that he tried to jump the fence to reach safety when he was stabbed in the back. Bragg was stabbed first in the groin and then to death from a severed artery.

Mannus gave up last Monday night and was brought to town by Mr. Harry Aguayo of Nogal, about 11 o'clock p. m.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at Angus for the deceased, who is survived by his widow, several children, by his father Tom Bragg, his step-mother and several brothers and sisters.

complaining of aspersions upon their motives when they attribute the most treacherous purposes to the officials of our Government.

Just now the targets of the Administration's assaults happen to be the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, though both are Republicans—highly honored by their party until they accepted membership in a Democratic President's Cabinet.

The isolationists, through their spokesmen and through their newspapers, profess to be horrified that these two officials, various Senators, and other eminent citizens are urging that the ships we are sending with war material and food to the countries that are battling against the dictators should be protected en route.

As Secretary of War Stimson asked the other day, after summarizing the steps we had taken to keep the war from our borders: "We hold in our hands the instrument ready and able to make all these steps effective; shall we now flinch and permit these munitions to be sunk in the Atlantic Ocean?"

Up to the time of this writing there has been no formal invocation of the convoy system; so why should there be anything shocking about a discussion of the righteousness and the expediency of such a program.

The isolationists say it would be an act of war for American warcraft to protect American cargoes. Why should it be considered more an act of war than our trading a flock of destroyers to England in exchange for a number of naval bases on English territory?

If Herr Hitler chose to make it the occasion for war, he could do so of course—just as he could have done over a variety of incidents of the past year. But it is very doubtful if he is prepared at this time to take on an additional adversary, and that adversary the most powerful in the world.

Sgt. Eddie Walton and Chief Machinist's Mate, Harold Beckwith, who are conducting a joint Army and Navy drive were in Carrizozo last Tuesday. Both arms of the Service are in need of men. Army age limits are between 18 and 35. Navy age limits are between 17 and 50.

The annual meeting of the Federated Music Clubs of New Mexico, which belongs to the National Federated Music Clubs, was held at Albuquerque, May 9th and 10th. Mrs. T. E. Kelley entered three of her piano pupils at the festival. The entrants were Jane Gallacher, Ann Eaker and Veda Lou Branum. In the Stadium Music Hall at the University the pupils played before the judges Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon Jane, Ann and Veda Lou played at the concert given by the junior club members. Mrs. Kelley's pupils rated high in the age group in which each played.

Right of the Accused

The right of an accused person to be confronted by his accusers is based upon the law of imperial Rome. This protection of St. Paul threads its way through the English law and is not original with our Constitution. Festus, the Roman procurator of Judea, answered Paul's accusers (Acts XXV, 16) at Jerusalem: "It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die before that he which is accused have the accusers face to face, and have licence to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him."

BREAD TRICKS APLENTY!
(See Recipes Below)

'BREAD 'N BUTTER'

Those new loaves of white bread featured on grocery store counters and in bakeries everywhere these days look just like the loaves of white bread you have been buying for years. But they're different—they've been "vitalized."

"How?" you ask. Through the use of enriched flour—a wheat flour which contains added vitamins and minerals.

It was the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States department of agriculture which suggested, when flour standards here were under discussion, that fortified flour should contain a specified amount of vitamin B1 and of iron, and that nicotinic acid, riboflavin and calcium should be added.

Because American dietaries lack chiefly B-vitamins and iron, the accent was placed here. The law is that each pound of Enriched Flour must contain at least 1.63 milligrams of thiamin (B1); 6.15 milligrams of nicotinic acid (pellagra-preventing vitamin); and 6.15 milligrams of iron.

So, now in addition to being the most versatile and economical energy-yielding food, bread also provides, in economical form, additional nutrients essential to health.

And, since bread is the one food that probably appears more often than any other on the family menu, I'm going to give you a variety of new and interesting uses for this "health food."

A good sharp knife, a loaf of good baker's bread and your imagination will do wonders in developing, in your own kitchen, delicious creations that make your menus full of new life and interest.

It's Picnic Time

Has winter made you forget the wonderful, carefree afternoons spent along sparkling streams or in sunny meadows, munching hot dogs, dipping into baked beans and ice cream? It's time to plan Sunday excursions and be lazy by eating off paper plates, with paper forks. And next week Lynn Chambers will delve into picnic atmosphere. Watch for her recipes of good things to eat out-of-doors!

Bread Patty Cases.

Cut three rounds of sliced bread. Cut holes in two of them and place on the first slice. Brush with a mixture of egg and milk (1 egg slightly beaten plus 1/2 cup of milk) and bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Checkerboard Sandwiches.

Remove the crusts and spread the slices with soft butter, and any sandwich spread of paste consistency. Then, alternating the slices, make two stacks of three slices each—one with a whole wheat slice between two white slices and the other with a white slice between two whole wheat slices. Next, cut the two stacks into half-inch slices. Spread with soft butter and another flavor spread, and alternate them again, making stacks of three-layer slices each. Press the stacks together, wrap each in wax paper and place in a box to harden the butter. When ready to serve, cut crosswise into thin slices to give the checkerboard effect.

Pinwheel Sandwiches.

Trim the crusts from a whole loaf of uncut bread; cut in lengthwise slices. Spread the slices with any desired spread of a creamy consistency. Roll the bread firmly the narrow way. Small stuffed olives, nut meats or hard cooked eggs make an attractive center for the roll. The rolls should be tightly wrapped in waxed paper and chilled in the refrigerator before slicing.

Ribbon Sandwiches.

Remove the crusts from four slices of bread, two white and two whole wheat. Put them together with different fillings, wrap in waxed paper and chill. Cut down through the four layers in thin slices to form a ribbon sandwich.

Crostades.

Trim crusts from two or three slices of bread, making even-size squares. Remove the centers from all but one slice. Dip in melted

Egg Filling.

4 hard cooked eggs
1/2 cup chopped cooked bacon or 1/2 cup stuffed olives
Few drops Worcestershire sauce
Cream or salad dressing

Chop eggs, add bacon and Worcestershire sauce. Add enough cream or dressing to give a spreading consistency.

Ripe Olive Filling.

Use one cup ripe olives, minced; one cup finely diced celery; 1/2 cup minced nut meats, and salad dressing to taste. Combine olives, celery and nutmeats and moisten with dressing, then spread on bread.

Sandwich Loaf.

Trim crusts from a sandwich loaf of bread and cut in four lengthwise slices. Spread each slice with softened butter. For the three different fillings necessary, use any good combinations of flavor and color, such as minced ham and pickle, a yellow cheese mixed with finely-chopped green pepper, chives, parsley or watercress, and chopped tomatoes and cucumbers, or a tuna or salmon mixture. Each of these fillings should be mixed with mayonnaise or softened butter so that it spreads easily. The loaf may be made several hours ahead of time if wrapped in waxed paper and kept in a cool place. Prior to serving, it is iced on top, sides and ends with cream cheese softened to spreading consistency with water, milk or mayonnaise. Garnish with slices of stuffed olive, sprigs of parsley or endive. For serving, cut in thick slices. This loaf will serve 10 to 12 persons.

LYNN SAYS:

Do your menus meet nutritive requirements, and appetite appeal, too? Careful, now. Here are 10 points on which to check your meals for appetite appeal:

1. Avoid repeating the same food in one meal.
2. Avoid serving more than one strongly flavored or highly seasoned food in a meal.
3. Avoid using too much of one type of food in a meal—such as spaghetti as a main dish and rice pudding for dessert.
4. Use as much texture contrast as possible—have some soft, some solid, and some crisp food in each meal.
5. Get flavor balance in your menus by serving some sweet, some bland, and some acid foods each meal.
6. Serve some hot and some cold foods each meal.
7. Serve foods whose colors look well together and avoid serving colorless foods in one meal.
8. Try to get contrast in size and shape in the foods served.
9. Serve leftovers in a new form.
10. Avoid serving the same food combinations too often. Serve some other tart fruit with your pork, instead of the stand-by applesauce.

Try these tricks very soon, won't you?

You'll receive no end of compliments on your ability to prepare these tasty and attractive "bread delights." They are all pictured at the top of the column.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Back in the days of Sockless Jerry Simpson and the Populists and the rock-and-sock battle between Wall Street and the Corn Belt, there was a Bankers Pick a prairie healer and evangelist named Slater who scolded the farmers for their intemperate talk about the New York bankers, and said that when the millennium came they would be brothers again.

The evangelist might have been locked up had he predicted that within four or five decades the board of directors of the New York Stock exchange would hire an Illinois farmer, with no experience in securities dealing, to be president of the exchange.

These things came to pass, in the Rev. Mr. Slater's scriptural parlance. By unanimous vote of the board of governors, the $48,000-a-year exchange job is offered to Emil Schram, operator of the Hartwell Farms at Hillview, Ill., and head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation since July, 1939. As this is written there is word from Washington that Mr. Schram will accept the post.

The tall, baldish, urbane, deep-voiced Mr. Schram has been teamed in Washington for his bilingual accomplishments. It has been noted that he can talk to New Dealers and business men in their own language.

Under the tutelage of Jesse Jones, who brought him into the RFC, and whom he succeeded as its head, he has served not only as a liaison between business and government, but between agricultural and industrial interests. Shrewd onlookers in Wall Street are interpreting his fall to the big board as a protective measure by the governors. The idea is that he might be a shock absorber as war tension brings more governmental regulation.

Of the third generation of German immigrants, Emil Schram finished high school in Peru, Ind., and took a job as a roustabout and handy man in J. O. Cole's lumber and coal yard.

By the time he was twenty-one, he was the bookkeeper for the business. Several years later, his employer took over 6,000 acres of swamp land on the Illinois river. He assigned his young bookkeeper the job of draining and developing the large tract of land.

Within a few years, the yield from the land was run up from 6,000 bushels of corn per year, to 140,000, with other crops increases in proportion. Young Mr. Schram acquired a substantial interest in the project, which became the Hartwell Land trust. Twenty tenant farmers have been on the reclaimed land for more than 25 years.

Mr. Schram's first contacts with the federal government came in later years as he became active in community drainage and reclamation projects, requiring federal co-operation. As chairman of the board of directors of the National Drainage association, he had dealings with the Hoover administration, when the Illinois river was messing up farm lands in this vicinity, and loans for flood control and reclamation were needed. The astute Jesse Jones made him chairman of the drainage, levees and irrigation division of the RFC.

He later was a swing man in various government activities, including the presidency of the Home and Farm authority, a TVA subsidiary. He made it pay. Recently Edward R. Stettinius "drafted" him as assistant priorities administrator, to allocate raw materials for defense purposes.

Mr. Schram is 48 years old, the grandson of a woodworker. He is a Democrat, but he has never been active in politics, and has never been a candidate for office.

William M. Martin Jr., the "boy president" of the Stock exchange, whom Mr. Schram will succeed, quit his lucrative job for $21 a month as a private in the army. His term of office had been a good investment, but not solely because of the $48,000-a-year salary. To take the exchange presidency, he had to sell his seat, for several hundred thousand dollars. Today's sales of exchange seats at $30,000, the lowest since 1898, reveal young Mr. Martin as having played in luck, regardless of salary. Much of the same to Mr. Schram.

NOTICE OF NEW TAX LAW

Santa Fe, May 12, 1941. Property tax owners are given seven more weeks in which to pay under one of the acts of the Fifteenth State Legislature: It postpones the sale of property for delinquent taxes from the first Monday in December to the third Monday in January.

The law also lightens the load on the county treasurer. Heretofore the annual sale of property because of unpaid taxes has fallen at the beginning of the tax collection period; current taxes fall due December 1st.

The postponement of the sale date however, doesn't change the redemption period for property already sold although it will for that sold hereafter.

Another tax law requires the head of a family to claim his exemption before the date set for the meeting of the county board of equalization, in May. If he fails to make the claim before then, he loses it. The purpose is to avoid the upsetting of budgets.

Substantially affecting only two counties, Lincoln and Grant, another law is intended to deliver to the state tax commission deeds on property acquired by counties under the 1929 certificate tax lien act. Owners of this property thus will be given the benefits to which delinquents are entitled under the 1939 act, being permitted to recover it on the installment plan.

Another law requires the county treasurer to notify taxpayers of all delinquent taxes with which they are charged at the time they are notified of the amount of their current taxes due. In this way, taxpayers will be protected against the unwitting loss of their property for unpaid back taxes of which they were unaware. Strange as it may seem, cases of this kind have happened, especially where the property has recently changed ownership.

MAY 24, POPPY DAY

The Legion Home is blooming with poppies as the Auxiliary women complete preparations for the annual observance of Poppy Day here, Saturday, May 24. The little red flowers of memory are being taken from the boxes in which they come from the Veteran's Hospital at Albuquerque, where they were made by disabled war veterans, and arranged for distribution on the streets on Poppy Day.

Memories of the past and hopes for the future—that is what goes into the making of a memorial poppy. The poppies are made in exact replica of the wild poppies of France and Belgium which grew in such profusion on the World War battle fields. They are shaped from crepe paper, with wire stems. The disabled men who make them often work under great handicaps but acquire remarkable skill in producing a close resemblance to the natural flower.

"The men who make the flowers are the comrades of those in whose honor the poppies are worn." "They are the ones who were not called upon to give their lives but to give the health and strength which makes life worth while. Into the little flowers they place great memories of the past, and from this work they derive new hope for the future."

THE LIVESTOCK SITUATION

A reflection of the greatly increased industrial activity in Southern California is gleaned from official reports of livestock slaughter under federal and state inspection services, just released by the U. S.
Department of Agriculture. Cattle slaughter in the Los Angeles area for the first three months of 1941 was by far the largest on record for the period, the total of 133,945 cattle being about 11,000 greater than in 1940. Calf slaughter also showed a substantial increase over a year ago. Fewer sheep and lambs and fewer hogs were slaughtered, in line with smaller supplies over the country as a whole. However, the total pounds of meat consumed in the Los Angeles area was by far the greatest on record.

It seems probable that as the defense program is carried through, there will be still further increase in payrolls, particularly in the rapidly expanding aircraft industry. All of this means a broader Pacific Coast market outlet for western produced meat animals.

Cattle prices have held firm during the spring period although supplies coming to the market are showing some increase as the abundant grass crops are being marketed via the beef route. Members of the trade look for a continued broad demand in the face of increased cattle supplies and see no immediate signs of any radical changes in the price structure. Much depends of course upon the manner in which supplies are moved to market during the next 30 to 40 days. Through orderly mar-
seems in prospect. However, if feed conditions should take a turn which would cause forced marketing, some temporary weakness may result, it is admitted. However, it appears that there are ample feed supplies in the area from which the Los Angeles market draws cattle, thus making it possible for stockmen to move cattle in an orderly manner. With relatively high replacement costs in sight, it is doubtful if many young animals will go to market from pastures and ranges. Owners will probably be inclined to hold the young stock over for another season.

The hog market continues on a stable basis, with choice 180 to 200-lb. grain-fed butchers selling up to $10 a cwt. The lamb market has been weak during the past few days, due to pressure of receipts during the height of the early lamb marketing season.

Infantrymen Continue to Hold Vital Place In America's Modern Streamlined Army

By RALPH D. G. NEWMAN
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK. — Despite the current military vogue for Panzer columns, dive-bombers, and fifth-columnists, the heart and backbone of every modern army is still that man of many battles — the infantryman.

The fifth-column can demoralize, the dive-bomber can terrorize, the Panzer column can knock out, but only the infantry can hold on to dear mother earth.

Now it's a new kind of infantry—streamlined, modernized, motorized, flexible, and specialized; and what I saw in my recent 6,000-mile tour of U. S. army posts indicates that the stress on infantry cannot be minimized without injuring an army's force.

The old familiar pattern of infantry is simple: a closed column of troops shouldering rifles and marching behind the commander, with a few horse-drawn guns and supply wagons bringing up the rear. But today a mere list of units and specialists in a typical U. S. infantry division would fill a newspaper column. A catalog of division equipment would fill another column. And that does not take into consideration that in actual combat the infantry co-ordinates with the air force, the armored force, and other specialized units.

Three Combat Teams.

After studies and field tests, U. S. infantry officers ordained the new-type "triangular" division, divided into three combat teams. Each team consists of an infantry regiment supported by its own artillery, engineer, medical, ordnance, and communications units. The combat teams function independently or in concert.

At Fort Sam Houston, Texas, I witnessed alongside high officers of the army, a review of the famous Second division whose field work since 1937 provided the war department with data on which to base the pattern of a triangular division. Tanned and toughened by outdoor life, the division's 13,500 men and 560 officers marched and rode before Gen. John J. Pershing and Gen. H. J. Breese, commander of the Third army, with 1,300 trucks, 267 trailers, 175 motorcycles, 18 scout cars, besides 36 105-mm howitzers, 12 155-mm howitzers, eight anti-tank guns, and numerous mortars. The full division carried 7,109 .45-caliber pistols, 6,942 .30-caliber rifles, 376 Browning automatics, 35 sub-machine guns, 232 light and heavy machine guns, etc.

This fighting Second, which won more decorations than any other American division in World War I, is now the model for other triangular divisions.

2,600 Motor Vehicles.

But the U. S. infantry has already gone beyond the triangular division described above. At Fort Benning, Ga., Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall commands the streamlined, motorized triangular Fourth division, which sets a new high for infantry firepower and mobility. The Fourth "rolls on rubber," and in field maneuvers it covers 200 to 300 miles per day in 2,600 motor vehicles of all kinds, giving this fighting force the greatest speed, mobility, and firepower of any infantry division in existence; and by virtue of this fact it is like the new First armored division, the model around which other divisions are being patterned.

Field tests show that a motorized infantry division arrives at a front-line position much fresher than Perfect co-ordination is the "secret" of our modernized army's tremendous striking power. Despite the rapid development of aviation and tanks, the infantryman is still the "backbone" of the army. Motorized, and armed with the Garand rifle, he is far more potent than ever before.

troops who have marched for miles, and they can, therefore, hold tenaciously to gains made by the rapid-advancing armored forces.

In order to get a bird's-eye view of how a motorized division "rolls on rubber," I flew over a bit of terrain near Fort Benning in an army three-place observation plane piloted by Lieut. J. D. Motyl, of the Ninety-seventh observation squadron.

Sitting on a parachute, in the rear gunner's seat, and facing the plane rudder, with my back to the pilot, we flew over patches of Georgia's red earth and green forest to a point about 30 miles from Benning where Pilot Motyl called my attention to what seemed an endless column of trucks, motorcycles, reconnaissance cars, command cars, armored cars, and guns—all motorized, all rolling on rubber. This particular combat team of the Fourth division stretched for 50 miles along a circuitous highway; hence, in closed single column, a full division of motorized infantry would occupy about 150 miles of roadway. The average daily gasoline consumption for such a force on a 200-mile march is about 50,000 gallons.

The infantry also receives support from all types of aircraft, and if necessary, from the chemical warfare service.

Use Parachute Troops.

The newest addition to the U. S. infantry is a rapidly expanding parachute force of highly-trained and resourceful "blitzers" who can unlimber a machine gun or mortar in a trice and who can harass an enemy behind the lines.

At Fort Sam Houston I watched the army's interesting experiments with air transports for rapid transit of guns and fully-equipped troops. In less than 10 minutes, a dozen men loaded a 37-mm anti-tank gun, weighing more than 800 pounds, and necessary ammunition.

In a matter of weeks, sufficient "blitz-buggies," compact but high-powered "bantam" cars, will be available for all infantry divisions. On four cylinders, these 2,000-pound four-man vehicles travel as fast as a mile per minute, if you can hold on. They climb steep slopes, leap ravines, and if they get mixed, the soldiers can lift one end clear.

The standard weapons of a U. S. infantry division give it the best potential fire-power in the world today. The Springfield rifle, which in past battles gave a good account of itself, is rapidly yielding to the superior Garand rifle whose firepower surpasses that of any similar weapon in Europe today. Trained soldiers fire up to 35 rounds per minute against 15 rounds with the Springfield.

Another U. S. infantry weapon, the Browning automatic rifle, fires up to 150 rounds per minute.

The 37-mm anti-tank gun fires a high explosive 1.5-pound shell at the rate of 23 rounds per minute.

The 81-mm mortar hurls an 11-pound shell up to 7,500 feet at a rate of 18 rounds per minute.

The Browning 30-caliber machine gun delivers up to 430 rounds per minute.

All in all, there are, besides the rifle and pistol, 11 different medium and small fire weapons in the U. S. infantryman's arsenal, and individually, or together, they give unsurpassed fire-power.

Ancient Disease Still Threatens Men, Livestock

CHICAGO. — The same disease which killed the cave man, and which prompted Moses to lay down the first-known laws on meat inspection, is still a serious threat to both animals and man, and a cause of severe losses to livestock producers on American farms today.

This disease—anthrax—is one of the oldest germ-borne plagues in existence. The cave man contracted it from the skins of animals which he wore for clothing. It devastated livestock herds in the Holy Land more than 2,000 years ago. For centuries it has taken its toll of livestock, ranging from reindeer in Siberia to sheep and cattle in South Africa.

Live Many Years.

The germs of anthrax are very large compared to other bacteria. In the blood of animals and man they exist in the "vegetative" form—rod-shaped single germs with square ends. Outside the body or after death, the germs form long chains with a central spore. In this form, hardy anthrax bacteria live for years in contaminated soil.

Livestock generally contract the disease from infected soil, from sawage of tanneries, or from the bites of flies that have bitten anthrax-sick animals. Man ordinarily becomes infected through skinning animals dead of the disease or from handling hides. Human anthrax usually shows up as a malignant carbuncle or huge black boil. The germs may migrate through the blood and lymph streams and produce systemic blood poisoning or "septicemia." Luckily, most cases can be saved if diagnosed early.

In America there are a number of severe anthrax "infection" areas, where farmers and veterinarians are making a valiant fight to overcome the disease and to protect livestock and man from its ravages. According to a survey by the American Foundation for Animal Health, these areas extend from the Mississippi delta country to the Dakotas, and from California to the Southeastern Atlantic states. Nor is the disease confined to these sections alone. Like all serious plagues, it sometimes appears unexpectedly in areas far removed from its source.

U. S. Scientists Develop Automatic Weather Stations

WASHINGTON.—Modern developments in the field of radio transmission have made it possible to devise an automatic weather station capable of unattended operation for periods up to one month—and possibly three months in the future—at isolated locations, such as mountains and islands, according to the U. S. department of commerce.

The aerological division of the bureau of aeronautics, navy department, pioneered in this field. To meet the requirements of the navy aerologists, the national bureau of standards, department of commerce, developed an ingenious but simple transmitting apparatus for use in such stations.

An automatic weather station may be equipped to make and transmit measurements of barometric pressure, ambient temperature and relative humidity, wind velocity and direction, rainfall, and probably other factors.

PASSENGER CAR TRAVEL

Various estimates have established the importance of the motor car to the American economy, but none has so strikingly demonstrated the reliance of the American public upon passenger car transport as a figure just released by the Automobile Manufacturers Association showing that more than 85 per cent of the travel in this country is by motor car.

And of the 495 billion miles traveled by American motorists last year, 65 per cent, approximately 250 billion miles, was travel on business, more miles than by all other forms of transportation combined, whether on land or in the air, between cities or within the community, on trips or merely between home and office.

Today America's 27,500,000 car owners—every fourth citizen—find it virtually impossible to differentiate between the "business" and "recreation" functions of their motor cars, for the same car that takes the wage earner to and from work serves as the family's principle source of recreation during leisure time.

"Assuming for the moment that 55 per cent of the cars sold by Chevrolet, the leading producer during the past decade, were used exclusively for business," William E. Holler, general sales manager, pointed out, "then you would have more than 6,900,000 privately owned passenger cars operating on business errands alone. Since, however, nearly every driver combines business and recreation with his car, every Chevrolet owner puts many hundreds of business miles on his auto annually.

FOREST NOTES

As you fish in the National Forest be on the watch for the ten-foot.

He is a real nuisance. He wades through the place where you are fishing.

He smokes while he travels in the woods. The experienced sportsman sits down in a safe place, lights his smoke, cracks the burning ends from the match with his fingers, and crushes the last spark out of the pipe bowl, cigarette, or cigar stub before he moves.

He doesn't know the fishing laws and doesn't care.

He builds big campfires in unsafe places.

He throws his camp trash into the water.

He guesses that his campfire is out. He doesn't feel for the last coal with his hand.

If you give a hang for your favorite sport, help us convert this ten-foot.

G. J. GRAY
 Forest Ranger.
