Baptist Church Program
The orphan children, from the Baptist Childrens Home in Portales, will be at the local Church Sunday night, June 29th, for a program. The public is invited to attend.
Beginning Monday night, June 30th. The Church will be led in two weeks revival meeting with Rev. S. M. Morgan of Artesia doing the preaching. Every one is urged to come and hear Brother Morgan. He is one of the outstanding Ministerial and Christian leaders of the State.

LEGION UNDER NEW OFFICERS

After a well attended American Legion convention held last week at Ruidoso, the Legion and Auxiliary set out on a new year of activity in New Mexico under new officers elected.

The group will hold their 1942 convention in Albuquerque. Heading the Legion is Donovan Hoover, Santa Fe attorney, elevated to the commandship from the post of office commander. He succeeds Charles Morgan of Artesia.

Mrs. Rowena Jolting of Clovis was elected president of the Legion auxiliary, succeeding Mrs. Lucile Woodward of Albuquerque.

E. S. French of Albuquerque was elected grand chef de gar of the New Mexico Forty-and-Eight, Legion fun organization.

Fellowship Given Curry County Home Demonstrator

Miss Erna Ruth Wildermuth, home demonstration agent with the College Extension Service in Curry county, has been selected one of the winners of two $1,000 National 4-H fellowship for outstanding work in 4-H leadership. Extension Director A. B. Fitt announced Monday at State College.

The fellowship which Miss Wildermuth has received will provide for a year's graduate study in the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C., beginning October 1.

Miss Wildermuth and the other fellowship winner, John W. Poul of Statesville, North Carolina, were selected from 27 applications representing 22 states.

According to the State College announcement, this is the 11th year the fellowships have been given; the first eight years they were given by the Payne Fund of New York City, the last three by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work of Chicago. Miss Wildermuth is home demonstration agent in Curry county, New Mexico, but hails from Arizona where she grew up on a farm in Maricopa County. She was an active club member for 8 years and a delegate to the 1934 National 4-H Encampment. Miss Wildermuth graduated from college with distinction in 1938, receiving her B. S. degree from the University of Arizona.

Following graduation from college Miss Wildermuth served first as home agent in Chaves county and was later leader for girls 4-H club work. She has been Curry county agent since the spring of 1940.

SHAYER-WRYE WEDDING TOMORROW MORNING

The wedding of Miss Thelma Shaver and Mr. Paul Harvey Wrye will be solemnized at the home of the brides parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Shaver, tomorrow morning, June 28th at 11 o'clock, by the Rev. Elvin Bost pastor of the Church of Christ. The double ring ceremony will be used, and the bride will be attended by her niece, Miss Margaret Myers, while the best man will be the groom's brother, Mr. W. Wrye. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon will be served to the two families and other assembled guests, after which the bride and groom will leave for a short honeymoon trip through Texas, after which they will go to Amarillo, Texas, where they will reside.

The bride to be is a most charming, attractive and popular young lady. She was reared and educated in Carrizozo, where her friends are numbered by her acquaintances. For the past several years she has been deputy county clerk, where her efficiency and close attention to duty has made friends for her all over the county.

The groom-to-be is an excellent, highly regarded young business man who became well known here during the time he was employed in Carrizozo. He, too, has a host of friends.

Mrs. Ralph Petty Honored
Last Tuesday afternoon, June 24, Mrs. Roy Shaver and daughter, Betty entertained at their home with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Ralph Petty, a recent bride

American Legion-Auxiliary Notes

The regular meeting of the American Legion and Auxiliary was held June 12. Plans were made for the State Convention which was held in Ruidoso June 19, 20 and 21.

Carrizozo was well represented in the convention. The Ruidoso post entertained with a Chuck Wagon Supper and the Child Welfare Banquet Thursday, and a ball Friday night. There was a large attendance from all over the state and many well known and interesting speakers were present. The convention was reported to have been both worthwhile and enjoyable.

Edith McKinley, Publicity Chairman.

The Livertock Situation

June 21, 1941... Mr. J. A. McNaughton, Vice-President and Gen. Mgr. of The Los Angeles Union Stock Yards says... Advancing hog prices add considerable encouragement to those interested in pork production on the Pacific Coast. The Los Angeles market is now the highest since the summer of 1937 when an extreme top of $14.60 per 100 lbs. was scored. The Los Angeles market reached $11.65 per 100 lbs. last week, the advance at Los Angeles being relatively greater than in the middle west. For example, on Friday of last week, the Los Angeles top on hogs was $11.65 a cwt., while the extreme top on the Kansas City market was $10.35 a cwt.

Lard has become an important factor in strengthening the hog market, the increase demand for lard coming as a direct result of the Government's Lease-Lend program for Great Britain. Lard makes up from 15 to 16 per cent of the total carcass weight of a hog and naturally the price of lard has much to do with the value of a live hog. The broad demand for lard may be expected to continue as long as Great Britain needs our lard but hog growers, in my opinion, should not lose sight of the fact that this country is primarily on a meat-type hog basis, due to competition from vegetable oils in our fat requirements.

With this broad demand, and the guarantee of sufficient government buying of pork and lard to give the market a "floor", western farmers might well give serious thought to increasing hog production. An upward trend in hog raising is already notable in the large wheat growing sections of the west, and in the interests of assuring the Nation of a plentiful supply of food, it would be well for many farmers to plan pork production as part of their operations, providing that they are producing feed and pasture which will assure efficient and economical production.

TO FINISH HIGHWAY 54

A program for the completion of Highway 54 within the next two fiscal years was announced by State Highway Engineer Burton Dwyer. Mr. Dwyer said the State Highway Department has petitioned Washington to have Highway 54 placed on the primary system.

As soon as this is done Mr. Dwyer said that the department expects to spend $750,000 in the fiscal year beginning July, 1941, and another $750,000 for the year beginning July 1, 1942, for the completion of the highway.

Mr. Dwyer favors the plan of beginning construction to include oil surfacing, at Tularosa and carrying it through to Carrizozo, and in the next year to complete construction and paying from Carrizozo to Santa Rosa, the end of the present paving.

Charles-Moran
Miss Virginia Hazel Charles, daughter of Mrs. Elsa Charles of El Paso was married last Sunday morning to Mr. Glenn H. Moran, in St. Patrick's Cathedral, in El Paso. Attendants were the groom's brother William Moran, Jr., and the bride's sister, Mrs. Frances Charles Bible.

Local and Personal

Mr. Huntsinger of the Lincoln County Agency is here from Vaughn looking after affairs of the bank.

Mr. Hodges, who was Southern Pacific night-watchman here several years, was in town yesterday.

Charles Spence who has been at San Angelo, Texas with the U. S. Army, passed an examination with the second highest grade made and will now be transferred to the 49th school squadron, where he will be graduated from the air school.

Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney were El Paso visitors last Sunday.

Mrs. Frank English was in El Paso on business last Saturday.

Miss Wilma Snow will be home for the 4th of July holidays.

Mr. Minton of Kermit, Texas is in Carrizozo looking for a location. He is with the Lincoln Oil Company.

Mrs. Thomas Ludlow and four sons of Phoenix, Arizona were here last week to visit Mrs. Ludlow's mother, Mrs. H. M. Bullard. Mrs. Ludlow was formerly Miss Lucile Jones.

Mrs. O'Dell Baker and Mrs. Roy Harmon visited Mrs. Jack Graves and infant son at Nogal last Tuesday.

The editor of the News received a gorgeous bouquet of roses from the Graves rose garden at Nogal last Tuesday.

Mr. Florencio Vega was in town from his ranch Thursday.

Is the United State Prepared? Record Proves we are on our way

A year ago America was unprepared. Its weapons of war were obsolete, its military manpower at a very low point, its citizenry blind by trusting too much in isolationism which grew up after the first World War.

A year ago last month President Roosevelt went before Congress and gravely warned of the turn in world affairs which made the speedy armament of this country a prime necessity for the insurance of its continued existence in a chaotic world.

To the casual spectator the defense program has been a scapegoat for name-calling and bureaucratic fumbling. Behind the surface one of the greatest industrial feats of all time has been accomplished in the last year. At the present rate the United States, the world's richest country in natural resources, will soon be among the most powerfully nations in the entire world.

The Wall Street Journal recently issued a special edition to summarize the accomplishments in the first year of our defense effort. It is the first thorough compilation of the record to be made. The contents refute the notion that the democratic process is a handicap in the efficient preparation for war.

Some of the things on the accomplishment list:

An army of over 1,800,000 men has been built on the foundation of last year's Regular Army of 243,000 and a National Guard of 225,000 and Navy planes, all types, as of May 1, this year, number 3,476 as against 2,172 on July 1, of last year.

Construction of a "two-ocean" Navy is running ahead of schedule.

Airplane production has been jumped from 450 a month to over 1,500 and is scheduled to reach a monthly total of 2,600 by October. That will be equivalent to 31,200 annually.

In 1941, 115 merchant ships will be delivered, compared with last year's 53.

A year ago there were only 83 privately owned ship ways in the country. Today there are 254.

Before the summer is over, several industries will be in quantity production of the most modern and powerful armored machines in the world.

Government arsenals and newly built and equipped private plants are turning out large and small cannon, aircraft guns, rifles, machine guns and ammunition in ever increasing quantities.

This showing has been possible through one of the greatest conversions of industry to the purposes of war in the history of the country.

In commenting on defense progress editorially, the Wall Street Journal says:

"A year ago we heard men say that much of this was not possible under our form of society, that we would have to accept a dictatorship. That is not so."

"We have done it all in a democratic way.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Is Individual Thrift Out Of Date?

Some people think so. But let's look at the record. Figures recently compiled by the American Bankers Association show that thrift deposits in banks have increased for the seventh straight year! Over 45 million depositors have thrift deposits of more than 25 billion dollars. These figures speak well for the average American's faith and foresight. Our bank encourages thrift and welcome the accounts of all sincere depositors.

More Power to U. S.

Two new destroyers, the U. S. S. Fitch and the U. S. S. Forrest, were launched within a few minutes of each other at Boston navy yard. Immediately after the launching, keels for two new ships were laid on the ways just vacated. The Fitch, shown above, was sponsored by Mrs. H. Walter Thomas of Salt Lake City, Utah, and was named in memory of her grand-uncle, commander Leroy Fitch.

Child Genius Popular Only With Parents

Talented Children Escape Discipline, Develop Individualism.

By ROGER SHAW (Released by Western Newspaper-Union.) CHICAGO.—Gifted children are a pain in the neck. They are the pride and joy of their parents. And the special pride of the psychologists. They are also the special pet-hate of the psychologists. They are this and they are that, and nobody ever seems to know quite how to handle them, or get along with them.

They used to crush gifted children under the Old Testament and the strict Victorian hearth-and-fireside technique. They made them do the goose-step. There was a German movie called "Maedchen in Uniform" that told the tale. English schools, too, are mostly run that way—the so-called traditional method.

There was a revolt against that method. It was nicknamed the "express-yourself" method. Under the express-yourselfists, anything went. Anything was all right. If the gifted child wanted to stand on its head, instead of doing its arithmetic, it was all for the best. It was developing its little personality in its own sweet little way. If the child wanted to stay up all night and read the Encyclopedia Britannica, so much the better. Loss of sleep might make it peevish, but in the long run the child would be the gainer. It had cashed in on its moment of excited curiosity, and a good thing, too.

Unconcerned Children. By and large, gifted children are not pleasant children. That goes without saying. They themselves know this, generally speaking, but don't care. They are a bit unbridled. They rationalize all around the parental discipline, and tie it up in knots. They tend to be arrogant, and even condescending. Generally speaking, they know they are gifted children, and that's a headache from the word "go." They love long words. They are blasé. They know how to make their elders uncomfortable, and how the elders hate them for it! There's a perfectly good psychological reason for this. Child-appeal is very much like dog-appeal. What makes it appealing is trustful, dumb devotion which makes the adult feel flattered and superior. The adult naturally loves this, so he loves children and dogs as well. But wolves and gifted children do not share this engaging trait with dogs and normal children. Hence, wolves and gifted children are not so popular. Never look a gift-child in the mouth. He's liable to bite you. Beware!

When Thomas Babington Macaulay was a very wee gifted child, they asked him how his finger felt. He had hurt the rosy little digit, somehow. The gifted little Macaulay replied: "Thank you, madam. The pain has somewhat abated." Macaulay's contemporary, John Stuart Mill, could read two foreign languages with considerable fluency when he was four. In the modern era, Braintruster Berle and Bob Hutchins have quite lived up to the Nineteenth-century English standard. So have London Punch and the New York New Yorker. A high percentage of their humor is based on the precocious chatterings of gifted

Quizzers Quiz Quints' Dr. Dafoe

When Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe brought the Dionna quintuplets into the world, he had to think fast if the five famous children were to survive. Now another set of five famous children, the Quiz Kids, again, make him think fast. This time it is the good doctor who is in danger—of losing his reputation, as a scholar, as they fire a barrage of questions at him. He is holding Richard Williams (L.) and Gerard Darrow. In the rear are (L. to R.) Cynthia Cline, Van Tyke Tiers, and John Bishop.

children, and the gift-child spoofery of humiliated adults.

Discipline Returning.

There has, however, been a considerable reaction against letting the little supermen and supergirls express themselves with all the initial post-war freedom. Discipline is again asserting itself, in its most draconian forms. There is now a school of thought which one might call the neo-Victorian. It believes that children should be seen and not heard, and that—like Mussolini's trains, and troops—they should be made to run on time. One "reactionary" spokesman for this group of counter-reformers is Dr. Henry Link, the eminent psychologist. Dr. Link is convincing, and he is highly articulate. He thinks that group games and individual self-abnegation are far more valuable character-forming factors than the rugged childish individualism that flourished in America in the twenties and the thirties.

Dr. Link—and he is typical of his school of thought—dislikes intraverts. He believes that pampered gift-kids should not be encouraged to do what they want when they want it. He prefers the age-old virtues, and the allegedly eternal verities. He thinks that the gift-bairn should be compelled to play extravert tennis, willing or no, even when the gift-bairn would much prefer to go on the licentious spree of studying prehistoric natural history, or submarine conchology. He believes that the little gifties should be shoved into bridge, systematically and without stint, even though the Wunderkinder think bridge is pretty lowbrow and intellectually sterile. Spare the rod, spoil the child, according to the neo-Victorians. Their opponents, of course, label them "intellectual fascists." The intellectual fascists, so-called, come back by mud-slinging the express-yourselfists as "cultural bolsheviks." Get your gift-child and take your choice.

Physical Growth Also.

Gift-children, the bright little things, are not undersized, pale, and anemic. They are generally bigger and more active than the average, and hearty, too—sometimes too hearty, say the observers. They sometimes do seem to be smaller than the others. That's merely an optical delusion. The answer is simple. They have been pushed ahead into classes of older children, who are bigger merely because they are older. In their own age-class, which they have out-stripped, the gifted children are big and bouncing. In other words, gift-children may be ascetic, but they don't look it. They may be greasy grinds and little book worms, but grinding and worming have built them up, somehow, physically as well as mentally.

There is another startling discovery about the gift-bairns. It is this: Their genius is not closely linked with dark insanity. Most of us have always thought otherwise. We have been led to believe, and even to swear to it, that genius and nuttiness are close pals—almost Siamese twins, to be exact. If genius oversteps, or over-reaches itself, it's just too bad for the genius. All this, apparently, science now tends to disprove. Insane asylums are not actually filled with what used to be gifted children. As a matter of fact, say the statisticians, gift-kids are more stable in their emotional reactions than the plodding little hovers of wood and drawers of water. This latest datum, frankly, does not make sense to your correspondent, but there it is, in black and white.

Speakers Address Housing Committee

High government officials led the discussion in a "National Housing Inventory" at the convention of the national committee on the housing emergency. Principal speakers at the opening session were, l. to r., William S. Knudsen, production chief; Mrs. Dorothy Roseman, committee chairman; and C. F. Palmer, co-ordinator of defense housing.

Now You See It—and Now You Don't

Here is a striking example of the ability of Uncle Sam's forces to camouflage cannon in the field. Battery E, 115th field artillery of the Blue Army, can be seen easily from the working end of the field gun, but from above where soar the "enemy" scouting planes (see lower picture) it looks just like a field of grain.

George Washington Tied His Horse Here

Back in the days when Americans were fighting the British instead of helping them, George Washington came to Lexington, rallied the forces of the Revolution, and tied his horse to the elm tree outside the Munroe tavern. The tree flourished for over a century and a half, but today it is gone, blown down by a big wind. It is shown above.

Canine Midget

Deserted by his mother, this Boston bull was raised on a doll nursing bottle in San Francisco. He is 2 months old, 6 1/2 inches tall, and weighs 1 3/4 pounds.

'Cross-Currents' in Farm Picture

Cross currents are running now in the agricultural situation, the U. S. department of agriculture reports. Higher prices, income and costs are in prospect this year, coupled with anxiety over drought. Early crops and livestock were in good condition, but the long dry spell has seriously damaged pastures and fields.

WASHINGTON.—Anxiety is felt over the possible effects of continued dry weather on the food-for-defense program, but drought would need to be serious in view of the reservoir of feed in the ever-normal granary. Winter wheat will soon be in harvest. The crop is practically made, a crop estimated at 653,000,000 bushels, the largest in 25 of the last 30 years. Total supply of wheat during the coming year should be of near-record proportions. Higher government commodity loans have aided farm markets. Prices of agricultural staples rose to new marks in more than a year. The food-for-defense program has raised the prices of livestock, poultry, and dairy products. Prospects for farm income in 1941 are above earlier estimates. Total agricultural production may be larger this year than last, notwithstanding the smaller 1941 pig crop—unless drought prevent. Reports of a serious farm labor shortage have been received by the department of agriculture.

Local Division Offices Handle U. S. Purchasing

WASHINGTON.—How can a business man sell to the government? Approximately 2,500 government purchasing agencies purchase some 200,000 different articles. Indeed, the government buys some quantities of almost everything produced in this country.

The magnitude of the government purchasing set-up, especially in this grave emergency when first emphasis is necessarily placed upon defense equipment for the expanding army and navy and for Great Britain, tends to confuse many manufacturers who desire to co-operate 100 per cent.

Actually, government purchases are made on a very simple formula. The specifications are not complicated. In fact, the biggest buyer in the world—Uncle Sam—has the simplest system of purchasing supplies, equipment and services. The system functions something like a large mail order house, except that where the latter sells to thousands, the government buys from thousands.

The initial venture of selling to the government will, of course, present some new problems. None of these problems, however, are necessarily complicated. In order to help manufacturers solve them, Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, early in his administration set up a service and information office, staffed with men who have had years of service in government and have recently completed months of intensive study of the purchase systems of each governmental office.

Write for information. Consequently, the service and information office is equipped to inform manufacturers whom they should contact and exactly how to do so. A manufacturer who desires to co-operate with the government in the present emergency, and lacks specific information as to how to proceed, is invited to apply to this unit, room 1060, department of commerce, Washington, D. C. The effectiveness of the assistance rendered by the office is demonstrated by the large number of telegrams and letters of appreciation which it has received.

Many manufacturers apparently have felt that if they desire to transact business with the government they must either come to Washington in person or employ somebody familiar with government purchasing methods. The service and information office strongly urges manufacturers not to come to Washington, at least until they have carried on preliminary negotiations by mail with the purchasing agency that handles their particular products. They are advised not to employ outsiders on a commission or other basis.

Then George spoke her name behind them, and she turned in quick guilty dismay; and George saw her confusion and his cheek paled. She went toward him, forced herself to speak casually.

"Well, they're gone, almost out of sight now."

George nodded. "I think I'll go below." He seemed hoarse. "I'll try to take a nap."

He turned away. Mary, after a moment's doubt, went with him.

He did not protest when she followed him; but neither did he look around. He walked rapidly aft to the companionway, descended before she overtook him. At the foot of the companionway she found that he had stopped to wait for her; and when she faced him he asked a flat question.

"Mary, what were you and Richard talking about?"

He asked wretchedly: "Oh, I'm sorry, Mary! I don't want to be this way! But I've seen you so often lately talking to him, and if I come near you, you stop. I try not to notice. I try as hard as I can. But I can't help it, Mary."

Desperate to reassure him, and to stop his questions, she remembered the pearls. "Richard's worried," she said. "There were some pearls in a packet in his desk, and they've been stolen."

"Pearls? Where did Richard get them?"

"They were mine." Once begun, she must tell him everything; but at her word, his hand tightened on her arm.

"Where did you get them, Mary?"

"Jarambo gave them to me the day we left Gilead."

"Jarambo?" His eyes cleared with relief. "I suppose he'd had them for years. Probably dove for them himself. Was that it?"

"No," she said. "I think I know what happened." She told him the truth, or her best guess at what the truth might be; she related now at last the massacre at the island, and the burning of the ship.

"They had killed Aulgur, you know," she reminded him. "I suppose these were his pearls, and they got them, and Jarambo found them on their schooner."

He sat down, shaken by what he heard, fumbling for solid ground again. "Our islanders slaughtered those men?"

"Yes!" She said. "But they did it because they loved you, George."

After a moment he cried in a sudden strength: "Mary, I'm glad they did! The world's better without them."

"Yes."

"Mary, why didn't you tell me all this before?"

"You were so ill."

"Did Cap'n Corr know about the massacre?"

"Yes."

"Does anyone else aboard know?"

"Corkran knew, of course. He's probably told everyone. And they all saw the smoke from the burning schooner before they reached the island."

He nodded briefly, said in a slow voice of himself: "Everyone knew but me, but no one told me."

"I knew how unhappy it would make you."

He laughed shortly. "I know now where I stand with you all. You think me a weak woman of a man, who has to be guarded and cajoled and shielded, protected from the truth."

"Pleace, George."

He shook his head. "Oh, I suppose I'll be all right when I've thought it over; but it's pretty hard to find yourself so contemptible in the eyes of other men!" He went to his own cabin and shut the door behind him, shutting her out.

When he appeared for supper, he seemed to be himself once more. They were all cheerful at the supper table. Peter did most of the talking, as he was apt to do. Since that day when he killed the whale which had broken Richard's arm, he was exuberantly sure of himself, inclined to condescend.

At dark that night, the weather changed; the wind came more southerly, and it stiffened, and was cold. Richard shortened sail a little, stayed on deck most of the night watching his ship, using as much wind as he wisely could, extracting from the half gale all it would safely give. The weather got no worse next day, but it got no better; and Richard drove her carefully that day and the days that followed.

time southeasterly, and Richard took every opportunity to catch the sun, or to take a lunar.

They sighted the Diego Ramirez Rocks one morning an hour after breakfast; and Mary put on her coat and went up the companion and found Richard exuberant as a triumphant boy in the knowledge that his calculations had been accurate. The men forward were shouting instead of talking, their voices high-pitched with triumph, knowing that presently they would turn at last northeasterly for the long run home.

"Now, I'll snatch a wink, Mr. Forbes," Richard told Mat. "Call me when we come abeam of the Rocks."

So he and Peter went below with George and Mary; and Richard stripped off his great sea coat.

Mary said: "You're dead for sleep, Richard. Go lie down."

He nodded. "I could sleep three days in a row," he agreed. He went into his cabin and closed the door behind him.

Mary made George lie down in his bunk for warmth's sake, and covered him over. She returned to her own cabin, and drifted off to sleep. Later she roused a little; heard Peter say in the common room outside her door:

"I tell you you're wrong. But anyway, watch yourself. Dick will

But Mary knew. So many incidents out of the past came now to enlighten her. This man facing them with a weapon in his hands was the same George who could not endure the thought of leaving her with Joseph Neargood at Gilead. He was the same George who could not see Fritz Aulgur give her a pearl. He was the same George who was forever tormented by a devil of jealousy. It did not occur to her to wonder why the passion in him had thus suddenly come to a head. Certainly he had lost control of himself.

She moved toward him, said leadingly: "George, you're sick. Let me put you to bed. Please!"

"I'm sick to death," he told her. "Sick of you! Don't touch me. I've shut my eyes to your wantonness long enough."

His word stopped her like a blow. Richard protested gravely: "George, you're talking in circles. If you've got anything to say, say it. What's on your mind?"

"I'm talking about you and Mary making love to each other all the time," George told him; and his own rage choked him, and he coughed, bending double, clutching at his chest, his face dark with lack of breath before he could speak again. "Do you think I'm blind?" he challenged then.

"I think you're crazy!"

"I'm crazy, am I?" George visibly fought to control himself; to speak impassively. "Oh, I don't blame you so much. Why wouldn't you make love to her, when she begs for it? Captain Corr, leave her alone. No matter what she says. Because if you ever touch Mary again, or speak to her, I'll kill you."

Richard said miserably: "Man, you're sick!"

"Maybe I am. But I'm not too sick to pull a trigger. I've killed a big man as you, with a pickaxe, and he had a gun! Don't you touch Mary again, or speak to her."

"Speak to her?" Richard echoed.

"Why, sure I will; and I'll touch her too if it comes that way. Have come cenzel Why wouldn't I?"

George cried explosively: "Because you're in love with her, and she with you!" But on his own words, a paroxysm of coughing swept him, bent him, allenced him. He dropped the revolver on the deck, clutching at his chest with both hands. It was long before he could speak again.

Through that long moment Richard looked at Mary, and Mary looked at Richard. Before the moment ended, each knew.

It was true! While their eyes met in that long exchange like a revelation, like vows exchanging, these two forgot George, racked and helpless by the deck. His words unlocked at last a long-closed door. What he said was true, and while their eyes held now, they both knew it! They knew that they had loved each other always, and would love each other always. They had not guessed the truth before; but they knew it now forever, beyond doubt, beyond change, beyond forgetting.

Each thought wonderingly: I was blind not to know then that this was true.

But now they knew. Now they knew; and the knowledge was a gulf, deep and terrible and hopeless. Their eyes held hard, till George recovered; and they did not know he had recovered till he crossed to thrust at Mary with a movement like a blow, to break the bridge of their exchanging glances, and to cry, pitifully furious:

"Don't! Stop! You shan't even look at him so!"

She spoke in a panic of haste, desperately denying, as much to persuade herself as her husband.

Mary whispered: "George, George it isn't true!" She looked at Richard again. She knew it was true, knew he knew. "It isn't, please!" she cried like a prayer.

George faced her, challenged. "So it's not true?"

"Of course not!"

He lifted one hand, brushed it past her like a scornful blow.

"You're a liar!"

Mary begged: "George, please!"

He swung to her, staring at her narrowly. "You want me to believe you don't love him?" he demanded.

"I don't, George."

He grinned mockingly. He slipped his arm through hers. "All right," he said. "I believe it. I believe you. You're my wife, and you love me. Is that true?"

"Yes, yes, yes."

"You love me with all your heart?"

"Yes."

"And soul?"

"Yes."

"Fully and completely and passionately?"

"Yes, yes, you know I do."

He had begun this catechism in tones derisive; but under her earnestness, his derision faded. He was so lost without her, wanted so much to believe her, that he began to do so.

She saw with a slow rising hope that he did begin to believe her; and she thought fear would live with her always now, fear lest he discover the truth. She thought: All my life I'll have to lie to him, pretend, make him believe I love him if he knew I don't, he would die blow you to pieces. He keeps a gun in the top drawer."

She sat up in swift alarm. As her feet touched the floor, she heard Peter go on deck again; and then George opened her door.

He grasped her arm, his fingers crushing it so that she uttered a low cry of pain. She looked up into his face and saw it twisted and convulsed by some terrific passion; and she whispered in a quick terror: "George! What's the matter?"

He said harshly, "Come out here! I want to talk to you and Captain Corr."

Holding her, he wrenched open the door of Richard's cabin; and Richard asleep in the bunk opened his eyes, his head rising from the pillow, and then his whole body rose as he came to his feet in a sharp alarm, steadying himself with his good hand.

"What's wrong?" he asked. He brushed past them into the common room, leaped toward the companion, thinking only of the ship, thinking her in danger.

When Richard, emerging from the cabin, brushed him aside, George had lurched toward the desk; and before Richard reached the foot of the companionway, George dragged open the top drawer of the desk and lifted out of it the heavy old revolver always kept there. At his cry, his command, Richard turned and saw the weapon leveled at him firmly. For a moment he did not move, staring in a bewildered astonishment; but then, his concern still for his ship, he said curtly:

"I'll be back!" And he went up the companionway.

Mary began to understand what was coming; to foresee the content of the next half hour. She heard, as though far away, voices over their heads; but she did not look up. She stared at George as though he were a stranger seen for the first time; and she waited for Richard to return as for a rescuer.

When he descended the companionway, he closed the scuttle behind him, shutting them in. He stopped at the foot of the ladder, looking from one of them to the other. George had turned, stood braced now with his feet wide apart, his back to the desk. The Venture, quartering the seas, was combining a pitch and a roll in an exasperating motion, slithering upward at an angle, poisoning, lurching down again.

George had put on some composure. He was sturdier now, and quieter. He backed against the desk, still holding the revolver, and faced them both; and he spoke in crisp, slow tones. He said evenly: "I want this business between you stopped, today, now."

Richard stared at him; he looked helplessly at Mary. "I'm so tired I'm dumb," he said, speaking to her, not to George. "Maybe it's because I'm short of sleep. I don't know what he's talking about."

CHAPTER XV

George coughed more and more; but in spite of Mary's urgings, he went on deck every day, refusing to be coddled, interested in this westward passage of the Horn which they were approaching; and he asked Richard many questions.

"We're all right," Richard assured him. "The only thing I don't want to hit is fog. We're apt to see icebergs anytime. I'm shortening sail at night. As long as it stays clear we can see ice a long way from the crossrees, and we can tell pretty well before dark if there's any ice ahead of us. And the nights are short. That helps."

He himself now kept the deck during the brief hours of darkness, not going below at all, sleeping in the daytime. Their course was by this time southeasterly, and Richard took every opportunity to catch the sun, or to take a lunar.

They sighted the Diego Ramirez Rocks one morning an hour after breakfast; and Mary put on her coat and went up the companion and found Richard exuberant as a triumphant boy in the knowledge that his calculations had been accurate. The men forward were shouting instead of talking, their voices high-pitched with triumph, knowing that presently they would turn at last northeasterly for the long run home.

"Now, I'll snatch a wink, Mr. Forbes," Richard told Mat. "Call me when we come abeam of the Rocks."

So he and Peter went below with George and Mary; and Richard stripped off his great sea coat.

SOLID doors for the cupboards at the sides of this sink would have placed the accent on vertical lines and made the room seem narrower. But most important of all, this combination of glass doors and plywood doors gives an opportunity to display dishes and other things that lend color, and at the same time makes a place to hide away less decorative utensils.

The lower cupboards and sink enclosure were built first. The vertical supports for the glass cup-

Cave Material From Lincoln Area

Through the courtesy of Mr. W. W. Hale of Fort Stanton, the Lincoln County Museum now has a loan collection of dry cave material from the Lincoln Area. The bulk of the collection was dug from a cave in the Rio Bonito Valley a few miles upstream from Lincoln. Mr. Hale's excavations were confined to a circular area about six feet in diameter in the center of the cave. The cross section of the cave fill exposed in the pit wall shows that it is composed of three distinct strata. The uppermost layer has a maximum thickness of fourteen inches and is made up of a mixture of twigs, grass, weeds, and wind deposited dust. Below this is a layer of refuse about eight inches thick which rests upon a layer of yellowish clay of undetermined thickness. All of the specimen material apparently came from the middle layer.

Pre-Nuptial Shower Honoring Miss Shaver

Mesdames Frank Richard, Robert Smith, Allie Stover and Elvin Boat were co-hostesses at the home of Mrs. Robert Smith last Monday afternoon at a pre-nuptial shower honoring Miss Thelma Shaver who is to be married next Saturday morning to Mr. Paul Harvey Wyre of Amarillo.

The house was a marvel of beauty with a profusion of roses and peonies as decorations.

The honoree received a great many lovely gifts which will be reminders of the happy occasion for a long time.

The thirty-eight guests present were served with sandwiches, relishes, mints, punch and cookies.

RAILWAY LABOR UNION DEMANDS WOULD COST 900 Million Dollars A YEAR

THE labor unions have made their demands upon the railways of the United States--and through the railways upon the PUBLIC. These demands are vastly larger in proportion than any they have ever made. The economical and efficient operation of the railways is vital to the nation's defense effort. Therefore, the Western Railways present to the public the following facts:

The labor unions representing engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen and switchmen are demanding a 30 per cent increase in wages, amounting to 190 million dollars a year--although their present rates of pay are the highest in history.

Other unions representing a greater number of railway employees are demanding wage increases ranging as high as 95 per cent--averaging 47 per cent--and amounting to 580 million dollars a year--although their present rates of pay also are the highest in history.

Thus the wage increases being demanded by the labor unions amount to 770 million dollars a year, an average increase in excess of 41 per cent.

In addition, certain of these labor unions have demanded advances in their pay not included in the above figures, and more rules for the creation of unnecessary jobs.

The situation, then, is this: The total cost of complying with all the demands made would be approximately 900 million dollars a year!

The average weekly earnings of railway employees are now 15 per cent higher than in the peak year 1929, while the cost of living is 12 per cent less.

The demands of the railway labor unions are being made when the entire nation has just been asked to make a supreme effort for National Defense.

The railways cannot meet these demands without a great increase in the cost of transportation. They exceed by more than 700 million dollars the income that the railways had left after paying their annual expenses, taxes and charges in 1940.

The railways have a vitally important job before them. They need all their resources to continue adequately to serve you and contribute effectively toward the National Defense Program.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Frequently cited is the vast difference between the World war bi-plane and the flying fortress of today, and frequent-

Col. Robert Olds, newly in charge of the air corps "ferry command," to start bombers on the way to Britain, is picked by informed onlookers as a shining example of the forward moving officer.

It was only two years ago that the colonel brought a flying fortress across the country in 10 hours and 45 minutes, then a record flight for a military plane. In between wars, he has been busy every minute and has come all the way through with changing flying techniques and skills.

A friend of Colonel Olds described him to me today as a Hollywood ideal of a flying officer, minus the exaggerated showmanship, the swank of the screen air-devil—trim, natty, alert, clear-headed, courteous and personable.

One of Colonel Olds' most distinguished air exploits was when he led six flying fortresses on a round trip to Argentina, in February, 1937, for which he received the Distinguished Service Cross.

WE ONCE saw two sports writers looking through the paper. Another sports writer had characterized a famous athlete as "a big squirrel-headed stumblum who ought to be arrested for getting money under false pretenses."

Not having to mind libel laws, or pull their punch on the typewriter, sports writers frequently become the most released and uninhibited of catch-as-catch-can utterances. In other words they never forget how to get tough.

Wiltentz drafted a bill to put the Bund out of business in his state and it has been passed unanimously by the state legislature. This first overt state move against the Bund is attracting national attention, as the high concentration of defense industries there might make the region an Achilles heel for subversion or sabotage.

His histrionics in the Hauptmann trial caused some comment, but the news men gave him an "out." They said he hadn't circled up the proceedings any more than was necessary to win his case.

THE rising prestige of Carlos Saavedra Lamas in the Argentine is good news for this country. Recent dispatches reveal Sr. Lamas definitely on record as favoring closer political and commercial co-operation of Argentina with the United States.

Household Hints

... AND SO THEY ARE MARRIED, (See Recipes Below.)

AFTER THE 'I DO'S'

Intermittent glances at the third finger of your left hand, as you leave the church and hurry homeward to greet guests, remind you that you're a "Mrs." now...

You're too thrilled and excited to even think about food, but friends and relatives and your new husband, especially, are more than likely eager to partake of the very distinctive refreshments that "Mom" has spent weeks planning.

And later when you recall the wedding reception, if details have been worked out neatly and carefully beforehand, you'll know that yours was an extra special after-wedding party.

Dainty rolled asparagus sandwiches and a luscious peach shortcake, with an iced or hot beverage, are sure to satisfy your appetite, as well as appeal to the elders' taste for "something different."

Deck the table with fresh flowers. A fitting centerpiece is a replica of the bride's bouquet... one exactly like that which she carried to the altar.

Asparagus Rolled Sandwiches. Remove crumbs from a loaf of sandwich bread and cut in one-fourth inch lengthwise slices. Butter slices and cut in half. In each piece, place a stalk of asparagus. Roll bread carefully, pressing well along buttered edge to hold it securely.

Peach Shortcake. 3 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1/2 cup butter or other shortening, 1/2 cup milk, 1 1/2 quarts sliced peaches, sweetened.

There is an old tradition that the luckiest sort of bride's cake is one baked in a ring—symbolic, like the gold band that is slipped on her finger for the first time at her wedding, of the endless quality of true love. This cake is cut by the bride and served to the guests as part of the wedding feast, and is quite different from the rich fruit cake that is given to the guests to carry away.

Now You're a Wife. And the business of cooking for two begins! Feeding your husband will be an important part of your new life—really essential to the smooth sailing of the ship of matrimony.

LYNN SAYS: In regard to after-wedding parties, plan a menu that's simple and easy to serve, yet appetizing and delicious to eat.

It is customary for the bride to throw her bouquet to her attendants prior to her departure on the wedding trip. Since the excitement and emotional strain will undoubtedly upset the bride, she'll not be able to thoroughly enjoy her own reception.

NOW YOU'RE A WIFE

And the business of cooking for two begins! Feeding your husband will be an important part of your new life—really essential to the smooth sailing of the ship of matrimony.

This cake brings luck to the guests, for it contains a ring, a coin and a key—signifying marriage, wealth and happiness to those who find them.

Bride's Cake. 1 cup sifted cake flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup (8 to 10) egg whites, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 1/4 cups sifted granulated sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 teaspoon almond extract.

Marshmallow Frosting. 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk, 4 marshmallows, 1 1/2 cups sifted confectioners' (4X) sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Butter Frosting. 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 1/4 cups sifted confectioners' (4X) sugar (about).

Windmill Vs. Electric Pump

QUESTION: Can you advise any preference for using a windmill for pumping water as against the pressure system operated with a motor, particularly if it is necessary to generate my own current?
Answer: For efficient and continuous water supply I should prefer the electrically operated water pump. However, for economical water supply the windmill type of pump cannot be surpassed. The only drawback would be that when there is no movement of air for a long period of time, water will have to be pumped by hand or by an auxiliary electric pump.

Cypress Pickets

Question: I have a number of cypress pickets which I intend to leave in a raw state. They are not dressed and consequently the surface is quite rough. I thought some kind of acid wash would rid the surface of the tiny splinters which produce the rough surface, and at the same time produce an interesting effect similar to sandblasting.

Answer: An interesting finish on cypress is obtained by using a plumber's blow-torch, charring the surface of the wood until it checks slightly across the grain. Then brush off with a fine wire bristle brush, first lengthwise and then crosswise until you get the desired shade. Another method is to wire-brush the surface until some of the soft fiber has been removed, leaving the hard grain raised. Finish by rubbing with steel wool.

Leaky Roof

Question: My roof is composition shingles. A leak has developed somewhere in the middle, but I cannot tell exactly where. How can I locate it and stop it? In several places nails have pulled out. Should they be replaced?

Answer: The pulling out of nails in a composition roof is likely to lead to leaking, and this is the probable cause of the trouble. Nails that pull out may have gone into the joints between boards, or into split places. They should be replaced with other nails driven close by and into solid wood. A dab of roofing cement under the heads may help to hold them. It should be possible to locate leaks by noting shingles that are lifted or torn. A leak can often be stopped by sticking down the surrounding shingles with roofing cement.

Old, Rough Floor

Question: Our house is old and the floors are badly worn and very rough and splintery. We cannot afford to spend much money on the floors, but neither do we want to have our rugs ruined. Could we make the floors smooth with putty? Or would you advise putting layers of newspaper underneath the rugs?

Answer: You can smooth the worst of the rough places with a heavy plane, which you may be able to borrow for a day or two. Putty is too brittle to be of any use for this purpose. You might, however, fill the deepest of the rough places with a mixture of sawdust, varnish and a little plaster of paris. Your idea of paper under the rugs is good, but it should be heavy building paper rather than newspaper, which would tear quickly.

Old Mahogany Bed

Question: I have a very old solid mahogany bed, the wood of which has become very dry. Will you please tell me how I can remedy this? The bed is finished with a hard shellac, and I am wondering if a liberal application of lemon oil would penetrate through the shellac. It may be varnish.

Answer: Wood does not require treatment to preserve it, unless exposed to the weather or subjected to extreme moisture. Dryness in wood is desirable. Oils and polishes are used only to preserve the finish.

Log Cabin

Question: The pine logs of my cabin have been shaved. How can I treat them for preservation and to retain their whiteness? How long should logs season before being treated?

Answer: Two coats of spar varnish will be a preservative and will retain the light color for some time. However, the logs will darken with age, which cannot be avoided. One winter's seasoning should be enough.

Book

Question: Is there a book that contains the information in your column?

Answer: The McGraw-Hill Book Company, New York city, publishes a book with the same title as this column, that is on general sale. It includes information on the general care of all parts of a house.

Chic Prints Feature Flowers In Colorful Wide-Spaced Motifs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS season the new look for prints is carried in big florals that dramatically splash and dash vivid color in wide-spaced motifs.

Nor is the technique and the eye-dazzling color confined to evening prints. While it is true that gorgeous prints of the type described have gone "tops" for party and for other formal evening wear, it is also true that big florals patterned in few and far-between motifs are the newest news of all in regard to materials for smart afternoon frocks.

What's more the craze for huge, wide-spaced flower prints is also reflected in sportswear fashions. Even if the material itself is not printed the latest gesture of fashion is to make pajama ensembles that have long semi-fitted jackets (come with a tunic flare) of quality-kind white crepe, spotting them here and there with applique of huge florals cut out of madly colorful silk print. As yet these flower-applique outfits are shown only in exclusive collections but the fashion is one that will gain in momentum with a rush. You can get stunning prints with huge Hawaiian designs that yield cutout motifs for applique that are both beautiful and unique.

For the most part the new big-flower prints run to hand-blocked types of exclusive and individual type. Flower-printed sharkskin is the "last word" in chic. It is especially good style in white with a background of enormous clumps of flowers spaced widely apart and fairly vibrating with hectic color. Lovely little afternoon dresses made of this new sharkskin print are being shown in the shops.

Necessarily these strikingly beflowered prints have to be made up very simple, whether for day or evening, but it is with a sophisticated simplicity that is purposefully planned in order to give accent to the beauty of the fabric. The dresses to the right and left in the picture illustrate this idea. The stately figure standing to the right is gowned in an evening creation styled of a splashy-tulip print on a white background. The maximum of dramatic effect is reached in the clever use of applique cutouts from this splashy tulip print placed at the upper left side of the bodice. Again tulip applique repeats at the shirred waistline. Note the chic long sleeves that are tightly fitted below the elbow.

Bright days ahead are promised by the perfectly charming flowered print dress centered in the picture. This multi-colored floral print is a pure silk crepe which makes it outstanding because best dressed women are insisting upon genuine quality-kind silk. Another important message in this gown is the trimming formed of quilted flowers (cut from the print itself) that edges the sleeves and neckline and goes meandering down the front of the simulated jacket top of this one-piece dress that looks like a two-piece. It also delineates the jacket edge around the neckline. This is one of the gay flower types that is very good style for day frocks and seen in the original it is strikingly colorful. As to the hat worn with this winsome frock it is one of the very wide brims such as fashion decrees for summer.

Chinese prints with legendary design and in authentic colors present a fascinating new trend of thought. Some designers are even going so far as to create dresses in the straight, slim Chinese lines thus emphasizing the native source of inspiration.

Button-On Yoke

One of the most successful and flattering fashions of the present season is the basic dress made to look important and lovely with crisp snowy neckwear and other refreshing lingerie touches. There is no greater favorite on the list of neckwear types than the youthful looking yoke collar. These yoke collars "do something" for you. They come in exquisite lace-trimmed and embroidered sheers, also in pique if a tailored type is your choice. A wide lace-trimmed flounce edges the enchanting yoke-collar pictured. It is made of eyelet embroidered permanent finish organdy with matching lace insertion following the squared line of the yoke. The fact that this dainty yoke buttons on adds practicality to chic and charm.

Irish Crochet Lace Trims

Dresses, Handbags, Gloves
The pendulum of fashion swings around to Irish-crochet lace this summer. Just arrived are a collection of summertime dresses made of cotton boucle trimmed with that old-time favorite lace—Irish crochet. Then too pique collar sets and yokes are being edged with Irish crochet and pique party frocks trimmed in this lace are the "last word."

You can find also little jackets, handbags and gloves to ensemble with Irish-crochet-trimmed frocks. Milliners are trimming some of their choicest hats with this same lace.

White Jewelry Accents

Summer Prints, Pastels
White hats call for white jewelry. The two are playing a duet this summer. The new white plastic jewelry, especially the lacy type, is very flattering, giving a fresh accent to dark dresses. Take a look at the new glass bead jewelry, too, next time you visit the jewelry section. You'll love it, for it so colorfully accents summer prints and pastels.

Gay Peasant Blouses

The peasant theme persists in the minds of schoolgirls and debutantes. Of course their fashion hobby at present is the full peasant skirt topped with a gaudy foreign looking blouse. However, if you are older and still feel the urge for a blouse of native Hawaiian, South American or Mexican, it will delight your heart to visit the blouse sections and see the grand array of peasant-inspired blouses to be had.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

notched collar, cuffed sleeves and double pockets are the tailored details which give Pattern No. 1381-B the smartness typical of the favorite shirtwaist styling. Every proportion is carefully planned, every feature is in keeping, and the design reaches a high standard of pattern smartness! Suitable materials are linen, gingham, chambray, broadcloth, shantung, pique, sharkskin, eyelet embroidery, flat crepe or prints. This is a dress which is well suited to stripes, geometric prints or polka dots.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1381-B is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 35-inch material. A detailed sew chart gives full directions for cutting and making. Send your order to:

Newfoundland Self-Ruled

Newfoundland is a self-governing dominion in the British empire, and is not a part of the dominion of Canada by geographical or political bonds. Provision was made for the admission of Newfoundland into the federation of the dominion of Canada in 1867, but it has never taken advantage of the privilege.

It was discovered by John Cabot in 1497, and is, by virtue of this discovery, the oldest British owned colony. It received the appointment of its first governor general in 1728, while Canada was still a French possession.
