Lt. Freeman Home For a Visit
Lt. Carl A. Freeman arrived home Sunday afternoon, and will stay about ten days. Lt. Freeman was awarded his diploma in the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia and has been assigned to duty at Camp Roberts, Calif.

Attend Ford Meeting
Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Shafer and Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Swearingen went to Denver September 20, where they were in attendance at a meeting of Ford Dealers.

Local and Personal

Mrs. Alvin Carl and little son Melvin went to Hot Springs last Sunday where they will spend several weeks.

Mr. Roy Stimmel, who has been here with his parents for about ten days left for Albuquerque last Saturday, accompanied by his sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. Tennis Smoot. He returned to his home in Tacoma, by airplane from Albuquerque.

Lt. Carl Freeman will spend the weekend at Tucson, Ariz., with his sister Mrs. Ralph Pruitt.

Mr. L. J. Adams arrived home from Birney, Missouri Wednesday of last week, where he had been on the sad mission of burial of his wife.

Dr. Carl E. Freeman was in Albuquerque Tuesday of last week to attend a meeting of the New Mexico Veterinary Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie La Rue of Albuquerque visited Mrs. La Rue's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Norman last week.

Mrs. Spiller of Santa Rosa came to Carrizozo last week and will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Sam Nickels at the Jake Spring ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Smith and children have gone to Douglas, Arizona, where Mr. Smith will be employed for 90 days by the Southern Pacific.

Pvt. Procopio Huderos who is in a military camp in California, is here on leave, visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. Floyd Rowland is now employed as a book-keeper for the J. W. Harkey Lumber Company.

Word has been received here that Sat Chavez, Jr., formerly Lincoln county deputy county treasurer but who lately was connected with the Triple A, at Bernalillo, N. M., is now with the Air Corps and is stationed at Sheppard, Texas.

Attention Sheep Men

Results of three years' experimental sheep breeding work will be explained and demonstrated October 6 at the Cully-Martin Ranch, near Wagon Mound. The effect on the kind and amount of wool and lambs produced from using smooth and tight Rambouillet, Corriedale, Romney and Hampshire rams on long and smooth and short and tight range ewes will be discussed by College officials, and the lambs from the selected group matings will be penned at the ranch headquarters to permit inspection by visiting producers.

Ranchers from all over the state are expected to attend the meeting. A car load of ranchers from Lincoln County will accompany the County Agent, and other ranchers in the county are urged to attend the meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Our Football team played Friday against Tularosa on the local court and the score was 12-12. Next Friday, Oct. 10 we meet the Corona team on their court. A large number of Boosters plan to follow the team.

The "All School Carnival" will be staged in the near future under the direction of Messrs. Martinez and Ripley for the joint benefit of the Athletic Dept. and Senior Class.

School Bus transportation was at a standstill Monday and late Tuesday.

Thursday, Oct. 2, at the 7th hour, the Home Ecs. Club presented a pleasing and profitable program.

The floods in the Ruidoso valley caused great suffering. Students and teachers may do their part by donating clothing and household goods. If the gifts are brought to school we will arrange for the gifts to get into hands of County Committee.

The Music Department is staging a Cakewalk Saturday evening at the intersection of Alamo, gordo and Main streets. Your presence and cooperation will help the Band and be appreciated by all students of the Music Department.

Messrs. Ripley and Carpenter with the help of the Manual Training Department have collected and are shipping Cacti to the High School of Boon, Iowa. The material shipped this week will be made into 22 ornamental cacti, 20 fancy reading lamps, and one large chandelier. Thus the splendid workmanship of our Manual Training Department is extended 1400 miles.

Conoco Station Changes Hands

Mr. W. J. Ferguson, has purchased the Conoco station from Wayne Richard and took charge October 1st. Mr. Richard will continue with the Southern Pacific Company. Mr. Ferguson, who is an ex-railroad man, will be assisted by Billy Ward as helper and by a mechanic.

Federal Tax Exemptions

Effective Oct. 1, 1941, all exemptions from payment of the Federal tax on admissions, on account of the fact that the beneficiary is either a religious, charitable, educational or military group, will be terminated and tax will be collected on all admissions at the rate of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any place.

Prior to Oct. 1, 1941, it has been the custom for all types of schools to obtain this exemption on account of the fact that they are an educational group, for all churches to be exempt under the heading of "religion," for numerous organizations to be exempt on account of the fact that the proceeds of the dance or entertainment inured to charity, and for numerous military groups, such as the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Soldiers' and Sailors' Organizations, etc., to be exempt from this Federal tax on admissions. They will now pay this tax and remit it to the Collector of Internal Revenue in their Districts on or before the end of the month following the month in which the tax is collected.

This change is included in the Revenue Act of 1941 on account of the present Defense activities and will cause no burden on those liable as they will now simply add this tax to the original admission price.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Purcey and little son went to Albuquerque this week to make their home. Mr. James Duncan moved their household goods for them.

Rummage Sale Postponed

The Woman's Club Rummage Sale has been postponed and the garments donated will be sent to flood sufferers. If you have any warm clothing or blankets they will be appreciated and will be sent to the near-by flood victims.
Mrs. Degitz, Chairman.

Business Men's Club

15 members present. President James M. Carpenter presiding. W. S. Ripley was elected to membership in the club.

C. P. Radcliff made an extensive report on flood damage to Hondo Valley during recent floods and presented to members 17 kodak pictures showing damages on several farms, which plainly showed almost complete destruction of orchards and farms.

Mr. J. P. Jones reported on activities of his office in cooperation with other committees on flood damage, and stated that it would take several weeks time to obtain funds for the use in the county.

The Chairman of the Red Cross reported that investigations were underway to determine amount of funds needed for immediate relief of flood stricken families, and that clothing and other items were being collected for use in the flood district, with headquarters at the County Library.

The Club voted to send wires to the National Red Cross appealing for immediate aid, and also to wire the Congressmen and Representatives at Washington requesting their assistance on federal aid projects.
Frank Adams, Sec.

As a result of the recent floods, conditions are acute in the Ruidoso, Hondo, and Hondo Valleys, according to County Agent Radcliff.

Due to impassable roads, a complete survey has not been made in the vicinities of Ruidoso and Alto; however, a several of cabins have been reported destroyed and damaged in Ruidoso and on the Bonito. The homes of Messrs. Stanley Pepper, Buck Nosker, and Rube Gonzales were destroyed near Glencoe, and a number of other homes have been badly damaged.

A personal survey made by Mr. Radcliff, together with a flood questionnaire mailed to all farmers in the valleys, revealed that every diversion dam and farm bridge that crossed the Bonito, Ruidoso, and Hondo Rivers were destroyed. Hundreds of acres of valuable land were completely destroyed or damaged severely. Most of the crops were destroyed and portions of many orchards were completely wiped out or badly damaged.

A large number of families are in immediate need and others will have to have assistance with the reconstruction of dams and diversion ditches, if they make a crop another year, or prevent their remaining orchards from dying.

As a means of coordinating the efforts of the people in getting assistance, Mr. Radcliff, in cooperation with other governmental and county officials, has arranged for representatives of the Program Planning Committee and other governmental and county officials to spend Friday, October 3 in making a tour, or a survey of the valleys. After the tour, the group will meet at the Hondo School house to make recommendations and formulate requests for governmental assistance.

Cattle Growers Association Warns Against Grass Fires

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 3, 1941. Tom Clayton, President of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association today stressed the present vital dangers of grass fire hazards throughout the state, and urged all government agencies, associations and individuals to do their utmost toward preventing grass fires on New Mexico ranges.

Owing to the fact that range fires are exceptionally hazardous at this time because of unusually heavy growth of grass and woods, Mr. Clayton said that every precaution should be taken by ranchers, hunters, tourists and others to prevent grass and weed fires which could destroy ranches, livestock and homes in short order where little or no protection is available.

Mr. J. T. Sayers of Ruidoso was dismissed from the McCleary Clinic and Hospital in Excelsior Springs, Missouri, September 25. He had been receiving medical attention there since September 10, and his condition is now much improved. Excelsior Springs is a mineral water health resort located about 28 miles northeast of Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. Riggs Houston has accepted a position at Fort Stanton and will enter on his duties there Monday.

Mr. Claud Branum has been ill for two weeks from an intermittent fever. At present his condition is unimproved.

KNOW YOUR BANK

How Do Bank Checks Provide Safety?

Checks provide safety in at least two ways: (1) They eliminate the need of carrying cash and (2) They furnish valid receipts in the form of cancelled vouchers which prove that payment has been made to the designated person. Both of these features are entirely automatic yet the amount of money they have saved for people with checking accounts, if possible to calculate, would be enormous.

Hitler-Mussolini Ignore Roosevelt World Peace Plea

President Sounds Alarm as Aggressor Nations Arm For Conflict.

By special arrangement with Collier's Weekly and Western Newspaper Union this newspaper presents in condensed form, the fourth in a series of articles by President Roosevelt currently appearing in that magazine. The articles are taken from the President's newly written introductions to forthcoming volumes of his state papers.

THE FIGHT GOES ON—IV 'War and Neutrality' By Franklin D. Roosevelt

(Copyright, 1941, by Franklin D. Roosevelt and by the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. Reproduction in whole or in part is forbidden.)

IN 1939 there started another general war, for which Germany had been preparing since 1933, and for which Italy and Japan had been preparing for years before. It is a war which had been definitely and unmistakably foreseeable since 1930, when the Nazis marched into the Rhineland.

I think that historians will record the fact, that, ever since 1933, the United States and its government had persistently and actively sought to prevent this conflict, and to preserve peace in the world. This search for peace was the very keystone of our entire foreign policy. It was dictated not only by a natural humanitarian desire to prevent the bloodshed and horrors of war, but also by a realistic appreciation that any European war would be a definite danger to our own peace and security, and to the welfare of the entire Western hemisphere.

In other ways, too, the government of the United States actively sought to preserve the peace of the world. The two great obstacles to world peace in modern times have always been: first, the piling up of armaments, particularly weapons of offense; and, second, the erection of tariff barriers to prevent reciprocal trade and commerce between nations.

With respect to disarmament, this administration took the lead as

For two years, from October in 1937 to September in 1941, President Roosevelt broadcast repeated warnings that America could not escape European internal troubles and pleaded through state notes to Hitler and Mussolini, for a world peace conference. The dictators scorned a direct reply. Hitler (right) views a part of his mighty air armada in 1940, which was even then blasting Old World cities in his effort to conquer more land for the Reich. Mussolini, (left) assumes a characteristic pose, as he addresses the Italian people on the eve of war. The Chief Executive sent a message to all important powers in Europe on August 24, 1939. A second urgent note was delivered to Hitler alone, on the next day. Exactly one week later, war was declared. The swastika, mark of the Germans, shown at the right of the picture, floats over crushed Paris, with the famed Eiffel tower in the background. The French fought fiercely but accepted an armistice on June 22, 1940. Since that date the war has spread almost entirely over the face of the globe, even affecting the normal life of American citizens, thus carrying out President Roosevelt's prophecy in Chicago, in 1937, that unless present European conditions were remedied, America would eventually have to face the problems arising from acts of aggression.

It was later that I pointed out that the recent systematic violation of treaties, the indiscriminate bombing of civilians, were wiping away the very landmarks of law, order, and justice which had characterized our civilization. I warned that "if those things come to pass in other parts of the world, let no one imagine that America will escape, that America may expect mercy, that this Western hemisphere will not be attacked." I called upon the peace-loving nations to "make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy and instability.

During 1939 there came the Czechoslovakian crisis. On September 26 and September 27, 1938, I sent messages to Hitler and to the heads of the Czechoslovakian, British, and French governments, seeking a peaceful solution of that threat of war. The particular crisis was averted, but, as I stated at the time, "it was (is) becoming increasingly clear that peace by fear had (has) no higher or more enduring quality than peace by the sword."

Conditions Grow Worse.

Three months later, at Lima, Peru, the 21 American republics, including our own, agreed to stand together to defend the independence of each one of us in the Western hemisphere. That declaration at Lima was a further step toward continued peace and common defense in this hemisphere, but it did not have any effect on matters in Europe. In 1939 international affairs in Europe grew steadily worse.

That is why I was so anxious in July, 1939, for the congress to repeal the arms embargo provisions of the neutrality law. For such a repeal would, in effect, say to the aggressor nations that if they did declare war they would find that their enemies would be able to obtain the needed war supplies here in America. I knew that the sale of arms by the United States could and would help the weaker nations resist attack from those nations which had built up these vast offensive striking forces.

The Arms Embargo.

Congress was ready to adjourn in July, 1939, without passing the repeal of the arms embargo. We were convinced that the arms embargo was actually having the effect of hastening the war in Europe by the encouragement which it gave to the aggressor nations. I therefore called a conference at the White House of the Republican and Democratic leaders of the congress to urge upon them further the necessity of the legislation, and to canvass the situation so as to learn whether such congressional action were possible. At that conference I pointed out how the arms embargo was encouraging the outbreak of a general war, how it operated in favor of the aggressor nations of Germany and Italy, and how thoroughly it weakened the position and prestige of the United States as a motivating factor for peace. For we were hardly in a position to urge the aggressor nations to desist from attack, if we could not, under any circumstances, sell merchandise to the threatened democracies of Europe.

GOP Attitude.

It appeared clear at this conference, however, and was so stated by the congressional leaders, that practically all of the Republican members of the congress would vote against repeal, and that about 25 per cent of the Democratic members would. This opposition was based on the belief that there would be no war in Europe before the following January, when the congress would again assemble in regular session, and that, therefore, there was no need for immediate legislation.

Of course, it was useless to insist upon the legislation under those circumstances. It should be borne in mind, however, that the responsibility for this action properly lies with those who refused to repeal the arms embargo in July of 1939. I made it clear to them at the conference that the opponents would have to take the sole responsibility for the results of their opposition. And forthcoming events proved that early legislative action in this matter would have been extremely helpful to the cause.

Presidential Highlights

"A war which had been definitely and unmistakably foreseeable since 1933."
 "With respect to disarmament this administration took the lead as early as May, 1933."
 "The peace of the world was being jeopardized by a handful of relentless men."
 "In my annual message to the congress on January 4, 1939, I pointed out that all about us, undeclared wars were raging."
 "During 1939, in April, on behalf of the American people, I again sent messages to Hitler and Mussolini. I received no direct answer to this suggestion for world peace, from either Hitler or Mussolini."

 "What I was suggesting was a peace conference with everybody's guns 'parked outside.'"
 "I have had a fine holiday. I'll be back in the fall if we do not have a war."
 "We could not sell a single plane or tank or gun to Great Britain or France once war was declared."

early as May 16, 1933. On that date I addressed an appeal to all the nations of the world in an endeavor to obtain some definite result from the disarmament conference which had been meeting rather ineffectively in Geneva since 1932. Armaments in nondemocratic governments had been persistently increasing. International trade had been continually falling off because of newly imposed quotas and other trade barriers. In my message to the nations of the world, I pointed out that only a very small minority of governments and of peoples have any desire for aggression or for enlargement of their own territories at the expense of others. I pointed out that if armament of offensive warfare were eliminated, the fear of invasion then held by so many other nations would necessarily disappear. I appealed, therefore, for drastic reduction in offensive weapons. I also asked that "all the nations of the world should enter into a solemn nonaggression pact."

Cause for War.

In this same message there was also discussed the necessity of breaking down international trade barriers which always go hand in hand with increase of armaments, as a cause for war. The difficulty with this appeal and with subsequent appeals was this: although 90 per cent of all the people of the earth were content with the territorial limits of their respective countries, and would have been willing to reduce their own armed forces if every other nation in the world would agree to do the same thing, the possibility that the remaining 10 per cent would seek, by force of arms, territorial expansion into the lands of their neighbors provided an ever-present danger which could not be disregarded by any one. That small 10 per cent, under various pleas and pretexts, remained unwilling to reduce their own armament or to stop their vast programs of rearmament, even though the other 90 per cent were more than willing.

The peace of the world was being jeopardized by a handful of relentless men who sought selfish power for themselves apparently, American efforts to limit world armaments, to bring about peaceful settlement of disputes among nations were to fall.

"No nation can be safe in its will to peace so long as any other powerful nation refuses to settle its grievances at the council table." I therefore urged again upon the congress the necessity of increased national defense to protect ourselves against attack and other forms of aggression.

Offer America's Services.

During 1939, on April 14, on behalf of the American people, I again sent messages to Hitler and Mussolini, suggesting another approach to the solution of the problem of avoiding war and preserving the press. As the head of a nation far removed from Europe, I offered to serve as a "friendly intermediary." I asked for assurances from Hitler and Mussolini, however, that their armed forces would not attack or invade any of the independent nations of Europe or the Near East for a period of 10 years. I stated that I was reasonably sure that if such assurances were given, each of the other nations would give similar reciprocal assurances. I suggested that a peaceful discussion follow this exchange of guarantees, in which the government of the United States would be willing to take part—with two essential objectives in mind: first, reduction of armaments; second, opening up avenues of international trade. At the same time all governments—other than the United States—directly interested in territorial and political problems, could undertake to discuss those problems in this peaceful atmosphere.

In other words, to use a colloquial expression, what I was suggesting was a peace conference with everybody's guns "parked outside" the conference room doors.

I received no direct answer to this suggestion for world peace from either Hitler or Mussolini. A few days before, on leaving Warm Springs, Ga., after a short vacation, I said: "I have had a fine holiday with you all. I'll be back in the fall if we do not have a war." This remark was again attacked by many newspapers and politicians as war mongering. I proposed that the community of nations throughout the world act the same as communities do when "an epidemic of physical disease starts to spread," namely, join in a quarantine "in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."

One of the requirements of national defense is swift and certain communication. Trained to do the job are 8,300 telephone men and women in this Company and over 340,000 in the Bell System.

Rush orders for new construction, materials and expansion of present facilities have been handled in less time than ever before. More calls have been handled than ever before.

Telephone men and women like being busy; it is their aim to continue to supply the service to which you are accustomed and to meet defense needs as well.

Court Officials Open New Chapter In Fortune Mixup

Thousands Claim Share in Millions Amassed by Snuff Magnate.

PHILADELPHIA.—Legal referees of an international fortune scramble are ready to shake another family tree.

Somewhere among its branches they may find what they seek—the heir, or heirs, if any, to millions a little old lady didn't bother to mention in her will.

Amassed from sales of snuff during the mid-Victorian era, Mrs. Henrietta Garrett's fortune totaled $17,500,000 when she died 10 years ago.

That sum has expanded into a $20,000,000 golden apple—and it's still growing.

25,000 Claimants.

It is claimed by no less than 25,000 persons scattered throughout 46 states and 27 foreign countries. In the fight, too, is the state of Pennsylvania, which contends that since there are no known heirs, the money should go into the public coffers.

But four years of turbulent and interminable court hearings have failed to establish whether any are entitled to it. This fabulous grab-bag has driven people to suicide, fraud and even murder.

Court hearings were interrupted last October by commonwealth charges that a Pennsylvania family group falsified Bible birth records to support a fraudulent claim.

They contended one of their kin, Isaac Newton Sheaffer, Newark, Del., wall paper dealer, was an illegitimate son of the widow—born before her marriage to Walter Garrett, wealthy Quaker snuff manufacturer. Sheaffer and five others were convicted. Their appeal for a new trial is pending.

And now—with less than 5,000 cases heard—investigators are ready to explore the next claim—that of the German clan of Kretschmar.

It was from the junction of the Kretschmar and Sheaffer families a century ago that Mrs. Garrett came. Daughter of an immigrant German cabinet maker, she met Garrett under Cinderella circumstances (she was scrubbing a porch) and married him not long after. He died in 1835. Disposed of $62,500.

She was 61 when she scribbled her now-famous "request" to "Dear Mr. Charles S. Starr," wealthy investment broker and one of the two executors:

"Give you my estate and belongings which are named in my book per A/C the following amounts:
"Give Henrietta G. Ferguson the sum of $10,000 if living. Give to Mary A. Weaver. . . ."

In that manner, to a few intimate friends and employees, she disposed of only $62,500—a pittance of her fortune.

The stupendous problem confronting investigators could have been avoided had the widow heeded the advice of her business-like husband. Fifty years ago he urged her to "make a will at once" and not "let the scoundrels get any" of her money.

She put it off for 29 years. Then when she did write a will, it was the inadequate document. If there was another will, it never has been found, although the search has extended even to her grave.

Walls in her old home were torn down, floors ripped up, closets virtually demolished and an iron safe drilled open, without avail.

An eerie tale prompted reopening of the widow's grave in family Laurel Hill cemetery. There was, however, no will.

Local and Personal

Mr. E. H. Hendricks of Jicarilla was in town last Tuesday buying supplies.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Roselle were in town last Saturday from the Jicarillas. They said recent rains had almost obliterated parts of their road.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon spent part of last week in Roswell. Mr. Hobbs of the Vaughn bank helped at the Lincoln County Agency during his absence. Mr. Lemon came home Monday of this week, and Mr. Hobbs returned to Vaughn the same day.

Mr. Wayland Hill is employed by the Phillips 66 station just out of town on Highway 380.

Mr. Winzeli Rickerson is employed at Monte Vista Service station near the overpass.

Born—Sunday afternoon, Sept. 28, 1941 to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Welsh, a daughter. She weighed 8 pounds.

Mrs. May Jordan went to Hondo last Saturday where she met her daughter, Mrs. Lenora Turner, of Hobbs. Mrs. Turner spent Sunday here and Mrs. Jordan took her back to Hondo Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Roy Harman spent Tuesday and Wednesday in El Paso.

Mr. D. D. Tiffany, who has been ill for about two weeks entered the Turner hospital last Wednesday for a few days of special treatment.

Dr. R. E. Blaney went to San Antonio today to attend a meeting of the Highway 54 Association. Gov. Miles and other state officials will be there.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin Campbell went to Denver Saturday, Sept. 20th and returned home the following Wednesday, bringing two new Oldsmobiles.

Run Over by Locomotive,

Sleeper Just Has Headache
MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Oliver Graham, 47, went to sleep on the tracks of the Seaboard air line, using a rail for a pillow. A freight train bound for Americus, Ga., struck him and the big locomotive and three box cars passed over his body.

In consequence, he is suffering from a severe headache.

The engineer saw the head on the rail just before the train reached it, whereupon he stopped the train and the crew went back to investigate the remains. They found Graham sitting beside the track, dazed.

Railroad men say Graham's head was too low for the cowcatcher, and the ponderous wheel simply pushed his head from the rail. A few ailing bruises were evident when he was taken to Hubbard hospital.

Fleeing Rabbit Scores

Knockdown in Cornfield
DES MOINES, IOWA.—Dick Van Whyhe, farmer, got the surprise of his life as he walked through a cornfield.

Something hit him. The next thing he knew he was flat on his face, knocked down by the strength of the blow.

He looked around to see what had hit him. Nearby lay a large jack-rabbit, also stunned from the collision.

In its hurry to get away from a dog the rabbit collided with Van Whyhe. Van Whyhe was bruised. The rabbit died.

Corona Ranch Owner Here Monday

Mrs. Carleen MacCustion Bland of Corona, New Mexico, who recently purchased the J. R. Jenkins ranch was a business visitor in Carrizozo last Monday. Mrs. Bland has an extensive ranch at Amarillo also and will divide her time between the two. In reference to a report that had been circulated when she bought the Jenkins ranch, she states that she has no partners; she is the sole owner.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Although the answers to the famous inquiry of Pontius Pilate aren't all in yet, we assign a man to discover and tell us what is truth.

Dr. James P. Baxter III, president of Williams college, takes on this office. 'Tis Said, 'Truth May Lie at the Bottom of a Well' defense information. His job will be to screen out from the mine-run of world information the dubious, tricky or deceptive items of propaganda or distortion and deliver to the President and the state department the chemically pure raw material for policy-making. This "fact-filter" appears to be news in world statecraft.

In the midst of a long address which Dr. Baxter delivered in 1938 was the following pertinent utterance, foreshadowing his new undertaking:

"The first element of defense is truth. Incultation of the zeal to get at the truth, no matter what the cost of time and effort, characterizes real education."

Is it possible that this led Colonel Donovan to his truth-seeking in the above address and on several later occasions, Dr. Baxter denounced "defeatism," and has been a spirited advocate of a "militant democratic faith," which would not wait until it was enslaved before fighting back.

After his graduation from Williams college in 1914, Dr. Baxter tried Wall Street for two years, with the Industrial Finance corporation, and then returned to Williams and Harvard for master's and doctor's degrees. He taught history at Colorado college and Harvard and became president of Williams in 1937. With him on the new truth-filtering board are six other professors, all skilled researchers in the entomology of the propaganda bug. They have as an unofficial precedent the extensive researches of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT would have approved highly of his fellow townman of Oyster Bay, Col. Van Santford Merle-Smith, just now arriving at Sydney,

Always Somethin' Stirrin' Wherever Merle-Smith Goes
Australia, as the newly appointed naval attaché. He is tall, handsome and physically impressive, always looking for action.

At Princeton, young Merle-Smith "hit the line hard," as a backfield football star; he was a hell-for-leather cavalry officer on the Mexican border, and in the World war, he mixed in the fighting wherever he could find an opening, was wounded three times and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross; he had a fling at statecraft, at The Hague and in our state department; he engaged in the rough-and-tumble of Wall Street, winning every bout, and as a yachtsman could make more out of a hat full of wind than anybody on the Long Island shore. All in all, his career would make T. R. snarl a couple of octaves of teeth and yell "Bully!"

He is the son of the late Dr. Wilton Merle-Smith, who was pastor of the Brick Church of New York, and has long been active as one of the leading Presbyterian laymen. After his graduation from Princeton in 1911, he took his law degree at Harvard in 1914. He was a member of the American secretariat at the Paris peace conference, and in 1920 was appointed third assistant secretary of state.

For several years after 1935, his yacht, Seven Seas, was showing her heels to competing craft, but, more recently Colonel Merle-Smith has been shore-bound by ill health.

He practiced law with a distinguished New York firm, in the immediate post-war years, and entered the investment banking field about a decade ago. He is now a member of the advisory committee of the New York Trust company.

Colonel Merle-Smith in all probability will find action even in the Australian navy.

Coal Was Used in the Bronze Age

The popular legend is that coal was discovered by Joseph of Arimathea who, near Glastonbury in A. D. 67, found a black lump and took it to the monastery where it was thought to be a stone and thrown on the fire. It became known as "seacoals," and was first used generally as fuel in 1228. It is now established that coal was used in Great Britain much earlier. Sir Cyril Fox, director of the National Museum of Wales, while excavating in the neighborhood of Bridgend, England, came across two cairns, both of the Bronze age. One had buried in it two adults and a child, and fragments of coal found with each set of remains show that coal was used in these cremation burials. It was also established that the burials took place about 1600 B. C.

An Important Statement About Rubber in National Defense

AND WHAT YOU AS A CAR OWNER AND A LOYAL AMERICAN CAN DO ABOUT IT

Among the strategic raw materials so vital to national defense, rubber is one of the most indispensable.

Airplanes, scout cars, tanks and trucks — as well as thousands of vehicles necessary for transportation in defense industries — require tires, tubes, and hundreds of other products made from rubber.

And while no other nation in the world has such vast natural resources as the United States, all of our rubber must be imported across thousands of miles of ocean.

Map showing routes that rubber travels to the U.S.

With world conditions as they are today, we must face the growing possibility that this country may be cut off from its principal sources of rubber supply.

Realizing the dangers of a single source of supply, Harvey S. Firestone began years ago the development of a huge million-acre tract of land in Liberia for growing rubber. Today, an ever-increasing amount of highest-quality rubber is being shipped to Firestone from these plantations.

At present, this country has on hand or in transit only enough crude rubber and finished products to last 13 months at present rate of consumption.

Comparison of rubber supply on hand and amount needed for one year at present rate of consumption.

Every month part of the rubber imported is used by the government to build up a reserve. The remainder is allotted to the rubber companies who must FIRST manufacture products needed for defense. They then use the rest to make the thousands of rubber products needed by automobile and other manufacturers and by the public.

New Firestone synthetic rubber factory

Fully aware of these serious conditions, Firestone has taken many steps to conserve and increase America's supply of rubber. In cooperation with the government, Firestone is now building another factory for the manufacture of synthetic rubber. This will greatly increase present capacity.

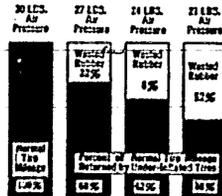

As a further step in conserving rubber, Firestone scientists and engineers recently developed the new wear-resisting Vitamic rubber compound, which enables car owners to get much greater mileage from their tires and thus save more rubber.

HOW EVERY CAR OWNER CAN HELP CONSERVE RUBBER

Today's conditions stand as a challenge to the loyalty and patriotism of American motorists. Here are a few common-sense rules of tire care which will save millions of pounds of rubber annually for your country — and save money for you.

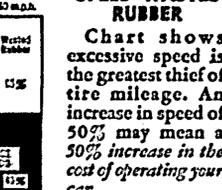

UNDERINFLATED TIRES WASTE RUBBER

Look at this chart — if a tire with 30 pounds of recommended air pressure is run at 25 pounds, 32% of normal mileage is sacrificed! Save money and save rubber by having your tires checked every week.

EXCESSIVE SPEED WASTES RUBBER

Chart shows excessive speed is the greatest thief of tire mileage. An increase in speed of 50% may mean a 50% increase in the cost of operating your car.

QUICK STARTS AND SUDDEN STOPS ARE COSTLY

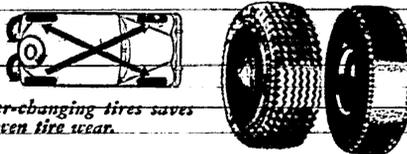

In quick getaways, wheels spin against the pavement, wasting rubber. Sudden stops cause your wheels to slide. Save rubber by starting and stopping slowly.

CHECK WHEEL ALIGNMENT AND HAVE BRAKES BALANCED

A wheel only 1/8-inch out of line is dragged sideways 87 feet per mile, scraping off tread rubber. Unbalanced brakes are equally wasteful of tire mileage. Save rubber by having your wheel alignment and brakes checked regularly.

CHANGE TIRES FROM WHEEL TO WHEEL EVERY 5,000 MILES

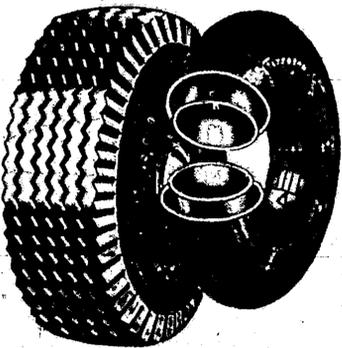

The diagram at the right shows how the tires on your car should be changed from one wheel to another every 5,000 miles. This plan of inter-changing tires saves rubber by eliminating uneven tire wear.

WHEN YOU NEED NEW TIRES IT'S ALWAYS GOOD JUDGMENT TO BUY THE BEST

One of the most effective ways to save rubber — and at the same time save money and save precious human lives — is to equip your present tires with Firestone Life Protectors, the new-type tubes that out-wear three sets of ordinary tubes.

With Firestone Life Protectors on your car you can drive your present tires safely thousands of extra miles without fear of blowouts, because these tubes make a blowout as harmless as a slow leak. And after your present tires are worn out, replace them with the safest, longest-wearing tires that money can buy — the new Safli-Sured Firestone Deluxe Champion Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proof on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

You are invited to listen to the Voice of Firestone with Richard Crooks, Margaret Sparks and the Firestone Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein, Monday evenings, over N. B. C. Red Network

SAVES YOUR TIRES... SAVES YOUR CAR SAVES YOUR MONEY!

In every community there is a Firestone Dealer or Store that will gladly perform these services without one cent of cost to you.

INSPECT YOUR TIRES AND CHECK THEM FOR CORRECT INFLATION

Your tires will be properly inflated free at any time. Nails, glass or other objects are removed from the tread. Breaks in the tire body are located so that they may be repaired before damage occurs. These simple precautions increase tire mileage.

TEST YOUR BRAKES WITH THE MOST ACCURATE MACHINES

Balanced brakes prolong tire life. Firestone electric brake machines scientifically balance each wheel. Your Firestone Dealer or Store will gladly test your brakes free.

CHECK YOUR WHEEL ALIGNMENT WITH MOST MODERN EQUIPMENT

Pigeon-toed wheels that waste so much rubber and gasoline can be quickly aligned. Your car should be checked regularly for alignment — another free Firestone Service.

INSPECT AND TEST YOUR BATTERY

Your Firestone Dealer or Store will gladly test the battery free upon request. And their efficient equipment will tell the exact condition of each cell so that you may avoid annoying road delays.

TEST YOUR SPARK PLUGS

Unless your spark plugs have full firing power they waste gasoline. Your motor will fire unevenly and cause increased wear on running parts. Have your Firestone Dealer or Store test your plugs every 4,000 miles. There is no charge!

SAVE RUBBER BY RETREADING YOUR SMOOTH, WORN TIRES

If your smooth-tire has a safe body, a rugged, tough, long-wearing, non-skid Firestone New-Tread can be applied at amazingly low cost, which will give up to 80% of the mileage built into the original tread. This is one of the best ways to save rubber.

The Lamp in the Valley

BY ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. Service

THE STORY SO FAR

Carol Coburn, Alaska-born daughter of a "bush rat" who died with an unproved mining claim, returns North to teach school. Sidney Lander, mining engineer, rescues her aboard ship from annoyances of Eric (the ...), Ericson. Lander is engaged to

Barbara Trumbull, whose father is fighting Coburn's claim. Lander breaks with Trumbull and moves to Sock-Eye Schlupp's shack. Carol gets a school job at Matanuska, but there is no schoolhouse, and her residence is a shack. Barbara visits her one

INSTALLMENT VIII

"About the change in Sidney," was the unexpectedly frank response. "He's a man of his word. And he's a good mining engineer. Yet he's willing to throw up his chances by hanging about this God-forsaken valley."

I resented that slur on the land of my adoption just as I resented the implications behind it.

"I have no intention," I said, "of interfering with Sidney Lander's career. I happen to have a career of my own to look after."

"I understand you're to be a teacher here," she said with a commiserative small smile.

"I am," I replied. "And my work will keep me too busy to think of wrecking other people's happiness."

"May I tell Sidney that?" she asked as she buttoned her queenly cloak of pink.

"Of course," I retorted with more vigor than I had intended.

She stood silent a moment, and I could see the hardness go out of her eyes.

"Thanks," she said, rather quietly.

Before I knew it, in fact, I found myself taking the hand which she held out to me.

CHAPTER IX

It didn't come to me as a surprise when I learned that Sidney Lander was no longer concerned with the management of the Willow Creek Mine. What perplexed me was the discovery that he didn't go to Seward when Barbara Trumbull sailed for the States.

But it wasn't mine to question why. All I cared to remember was that, for reasons entirely his own, he somewhat pedulously kept his trail from crossing mine.

So, in that interim of suspended action, I lost myself in action enough of my own. I trimmed the wick of the lamp of learning and came a little closer to my valley neighbors. And even Sam Bryson, I began to feel, was no longer an open enemy. He thawed out sufficiently around the edges to come and inspect my shack and declare the school board would have to keep me in firewood.

One Sunday, as I was shoveling the drifts from my doorstep, Sock-Eye arrived with a home-manufactured hand sleigh, which came, he dourly explained, would make it easier for me to mush supplies from the village. On that sleigh, however, reposed a war-scarred old rifle and an equally worn revolver, to say nothing of a Morris chair which he had fashioned with his own hands and upholstered with the hide of a moose brought down by his own trusty forty-five.

When he took me out to practice marksmanship on the side hill back of the shack, the rifle made my shoulder sore and the six-gun did things to my wrist. But I soon found I could hit a spruce plank at twenty paces. Sock-Eye, watching me, eventually admitted I handled a shooting iron like an old-timer.

"I'll bet it was your pappy first showed you how to handle them peace-makers," he chucklingly observed.

"It was," I admitted as I took a final pot-shot and made the bark fly from a hemlock trunk.

"Then he gave you education that meant something," conceded Sock-Eye. "I've seen a heap o' changes in this cockeyed country. But she's still raw around the edges. And there's times when slapping leather's still the short cut to a square deal."

My teaching was an odd sort of teaching. For morning by morning, in parka and mukluks, I set out for one or another of the lonely homesteads, and there, beside a stove crackling with spruce wood and birch, I held my classes, sometimes with the Monday's washing or the Tuesday's ironing being done on the other side of the room, sometimes with the sourdough sponge being worked into loaves on the far end of the table at which my solemn-eyed little scholars were at work with paper and pencils. I was asked, as a rule, to have dinner with the family. Sometimes, when I started for home, I'd be given a jar of blueberry jam or a bowl of sauerkraut, sometimes even a slab of deer meat.

But very few of them, I found, were able to be givers. Most of them were shockingly destitute.

I did considerably more than teach the three R's and correct papers and pass out assignments. Sometimes I looked after a baby or two, and took the bread out of the oven, and airily prescribed for an earache or frostbite, and tried my hand at cutting a pupil's hair, and attached much-needed buttons and even more urgently needed patches to the garments of my not ungrateful little scholars. They no longer laughed at Sock-Eye's old revolver, which I carried in a belt holster around my waist and from which I derived a somewhat foolish sense of protection. For I felt more self-reliant, with that old firearm swinging against my hip.

When Sam Bryson first told me he had a girl in need of schooling I pictured a frail and frostbitten child in pigtails. But Salaria Bryson—universally spoken of as "S'lary"—turned out to be something quite different. I found myself confronted by a dusky and wide-shouldered Boadicea who towered several inches above me. She wore her hair close-cropped, dressed like a man, and could swear like a trooper. She was hard-muscled and strongly-knit and could swing an ax or drive a team or carry a deer carcass over her shoulder. She proved herself fonder of hunting, in fact, than she was of housework. And taken all in all she seemed about the most perfect specimen of physical womanhood I ever clapped eyes on.

Her attitude toward me as a chalk-wrangler was openly hostile, until she discovered I was Alaska born and had once lived in a hill camp. She was willing, after that, to overlook my unhappy dower of book learning. But there remained something pathetic about S'lary. She had missed so much of life, without quite knowing it. She was as strong as an ox and as tireless as a sleigh husky and as fearless, in one way, as a wildcat. She knew her woodcraft and could keep herself alive, I suppose, in any corner of Alaska. But she was afraid of that side of life which a school-teacher stands for. The sweat came out on her face when I gave her a list of third-grade words to spell.

S'lary, however, was seldom meek. She shared her father's resentment against the outsider in general and all invaders of the valley in particular. And certain newcomers, she intimated, would live longer if they talked less about that raft of broken-winded cheechakos the government was shipping up north in the spring.

They were to be families, rumor had it, taken off relief in the Middle West, hard-working farmers who had failed in their old homes and were looking for a new Land of Hope.

"But if they was failures there," contended Salaria, "they'll sure fail here. And all they'll do, after the first freeze-up, is amble out and give the valley a bad name."

"But they're to bring their women and children," I pointed out, "and the government is to stand behind them and build their houses and supply them with seed and stock."

I could see Salaria's eyes flash. "And it's a hell of a lot the government did for the old-timer," she exploded. "They fixed it so we couldn't even land a salmon or kill a deer without havin' a warden at our heels. They put the bush-rat out o' business by playin' into the hands o' the big minin' companies. They kept us with the Indians and Eskimos and squealed like a stuck pig when we asked for a school allowance. And they wouldn't even build a road for us."

"Perhaps," I suggested, "they'll bring along some of the things we seem to need."

"What 't' hell do we need we ain't got now?" was Salaria's prompt challenge.

I meekly suggested that hospitals and schools and churches and good roads and telephones and a radio station might help a little.

Salaria's smoldering eyes viewed me askance.

"I reckon you've been powwowin' with that long-legged college dood who's dennin' up with ol' Sock-Eye for the winter. He sure burns my pappy up hot-sirin' about what's goin' to happen to this valley. But any silk-shirt swamp-drainer needs a look for too many lovin' words from the old-timers who came to bear day while she is busy cleaning up the place. She slighted Carol and finally tells her it is no use trying to get Sidney away. "Then what are you worrying about?" asks Carol. Barbara explains she is worried about the change in Lander's career plans.

with a skillet and ax and hacked their homes out o' the wilderness. Them was men with the bark on. They cleared their own land and built their own wickypuns and didn't ask an agent in brass buttons to slice their sowbelly for 'em."

It was at this point I loosed an arrow in the dark.

"Then you don't approve of Sidney Lander?"

Salaria's smoldering eyes grew perceptibly softer. "He don't approve o' me," she finally proclaimed. "He goes dumb ev'ry time I git within rifle-range o' Sock-Eye's shack."

CHAPTER X

Sock-Eye appeared at my door and presented me with a bearskin, fresh off the stretching frame.

I suspected this was merely an excuse for a man-to-man talk.

Sid Lander, my caller casually explained, had just blown in after a week out on the trail. As I had no answer for that announcement Sock-Eye sat morosely and meditatively chewing his cud.

"I reckon you think quite a lot o' Sid?" he finally ventured.

I felt the need of picking my way with care.

"He was very kind to me once," I acknowledged.

"There's too many females think a lot o' that hombre," proclaimed my saturnine old friend. "It's sure gettin' him roped and hog-tied before his time."

"What's the trouble?" I asked with an effort at lightness.

"The immed'it trouble is that outlaw offspring of ol' Sam Bryson's," he announced. "S'lary's hit so hard she ain't got no shame left. She's borrowin' readin' books from him and carryin' home his cocks 't' darn. And that ain't good for no hombre who has obligations elsewhere."

"What obligations?" I inquired.

"I reckon he's told you he's goin' to marry Big John Trumbull's daughter?"

I could feel the bearlike old eyes studying my face.

"Yes, he told me that," I said as quietly as I could.

I couldn't forget what Sock-Eye had said when I was giving Sam Bryson's daughter her next lesson. She surprised me by her new determination "to better herself." She at last seemed willing to improve her mind.

She even asked me about cosmetics and how they were used, though those rich and ruddy lips of hers were in need of no chemical kalamining.

I could see a faraway look come into her eye.

"D' you ever git a sniff o' Sid Lander after he's had a shave?" she hungrily inquired. "He smells better 'n that drugstore down 't' Anchorage. But what I can't figger out is why he doubles up with an ol' has-been like Sock-Eye Schlupp, why he's willin' to batch it with a run-down bush-rat when he ought to have a woman doin' a woman's work for him."

"Have you ever told him so?" I asked.

Salaria's wide shoulders drooped a little.

"It wouldn't do no good," she listlessly proclaimed. "He ain't interested in females that-away."

"But he's a man," I reminded her.

"I s'pose he is," Salaria retorted with a heightening flame of indignation. "But I'll bet my bottom dollar that lousy four-fushing pie-eatin' Trumbull blonde back in the States is sourin' that hombre on women for life. I seen 'em when she flew in here. And he wasn't turnin' no hand-springs when she hunted him up."

As I stood staring into Salaria's flashing eyes I began to realize that she was of the same statuesque mold as Lander. She had the same love for open trails. She had the same ruggedness of body and the same wide jaw and the same brown tone to her skin. And I fell to wondering, with a ghostly twinge of envy, if there mightn't eventually be some kinship of spirit between them.

"I'll respect your secret, Salaria," I said with what dignity I could command.

"Secret? It ain't no secret," was the prompt and primitive reply. "Even ol' Sock-Eye knows Sid Lander could do what he likes with me. And the fire-eatin' ol' killer piped up and said he'd put a bullet through my short-horn female who made a pass at that shack-par' o' his."

"What's Sock-Eye saving him for?" I found myself questioning.

"For that sap-headed Trumbull blonde that's got him hog-tied, I s'pose," was the sadly intoned answer. "He's willin' to play ball with her even after her yellow-bellied old man came and bought up the Happy Day outfit jus' 't' give Sid his walkin' ticket and grind his nose in the dirt."

I sat down to think this over

Waters of the Earth

Almost 72 per cent of the earth's surface is covered by water. The superficial area of the earth includes approximately 139,440,000 square miles of ocean and 57,510,000 square miles of land, on which there are approximately a million square miles of lake and river surface. It is estimated that the oceans of the earth contain 323,000,000 cubic miles of water. The deepest place is the Milwaukee Depth north of Puerto Rico, 30,246 feet. The average depth of the ocean below sea level is 12,450 feet, or about five times the average height of land above sea level.

'Untouchable' Jurors

Because the jury at the first trial of Boss Tweed in New York city in 1873 disagreed on a verdict, the prosecution at the second trial made certain that it had 12 "untouchable" jurors by assigning 12 officers to watch them, 12 watchers to watch the officers and 12 other watchers to watch the watchers, all 36 of whom had to make a daily report.

Two More Victims Claimed By Flood

Two more victims were added today to the flood toll. Two Roswell motorists plunged to their death at a bridge washout on Ruidoso River, a mountain stream which swelled to flood proportions and washed out cabins and roadway in central New Mexico.

The dead were Ray Levers of a Roswell wholesale liquor firm and his driver, Claude Elton. Their truck plunged over an embankment on Highway 70 west of Glencoe after they apparently ignored barriers and warning signs.

At the height of the Ruidoso flood, the mountain resort town of Ruidoso was isolated.

Carrizozo Creek likewise went over its banks and washed out a highway bridge.

Governor Miles meanwhile invited authorities from the Gila River Valley as well as the Pecos and Hondo to participate in a flood control conference in Santa Fe "sometime in October."

Colonial Furniture

Colonial refers merely to the time before the Union was formed. New England and Virginia were settled by the English, New York by the Dutch and Louisiana by the French. The Colonial furniture of each section resembled the furniture which had been brought to that part of the country. Almost all Colonial furniture was a simplified reproduction of the more elaborate furniture made abroad. A few designs originated in this country.

Lesson From Chinese

In a Toronto court a Chinese who had been giving evidence through an interpreter was found to be quite fluent in English. It is a characteristic of the oriental mind not to reveal all it knows; and this is not a bad plan for any other division of the human race.—Toronto Globe.

Gap Famous in History

Snickers gap is famous because it was through it during the Civil war that the Army of the Shenandoah marched on Richmond. The gap marks the abandoned course of a small stream. Through what is known as stream piracy, the head waters of Beaver creek were stolen by the Shenandoah river.

Just So It's Free

This old world is cluttered up with folks who think the best is none too good for them, so long as they don't have to pay for it.—Ohio State Journal.

IN THESE UNUSUAL TIMES we invite you to inspect an unusual new car—new in its beauty, its comfort, its choice of two fine 90 horsepower engines, 6 cylinders or 8.

See it and you sense at once that here is new style that will stay good for years. On a lower, wider chassis, we have designed new long, low, wide and modern lines.

Interior treatment is entirely fresh, distinctive, pleasing. The beauty of this Ford will more than hold its own in any company.

Inside, the car is big—wide across the seats, generous in knee-room, leg-room, elbow-room.

On the road this year you find the "new Ford ride" still further advanced in its softness, quietness, steadiness and all-round comfort.

At the wheel, you will find driving easier than ever. Steering, gear-shifting, action of the big and sure hydraulic brakes have all been made smoother and easier.

In quality, the car is sound to the last detail. Defense requirements have all been met without a single reduction in the basic and lasting goodness of the Ford mechanically. Some new materials have replaced old ones, usually at a greater cost to us, but in every case the new is equal to or better than the old.

If your family needs a new car, go see and drive this Ford. For what it is today and for what it will be through the years ahead, we believe that you will find in it more and better transportation for your money than you have ever found before.
