BANKS AND THE WAR

FOOD FOR FREEDOM

You'll hear more and more about the government's "Food for Freedom" program as the war progresses. It is a plan for assuring ample supplies of food to meet the needs of America and its allies in the war, and a large part of the world after the war. It is an undertaking of tremendous proportions, a challenge to American agriculture, and an opportunity of service for America's banks. Later in this series we will discuss this program and deal specifically with the ways that banks are helping make it a success.

Briefs Concerning Selective Service System

A general tightening of Selective Service regulations governing men now deferred for dependency highlighted developments on the war manpower front in New Mexico this week.

Brig. Gen. R. C. Charlton, State Director of Selective Service, warned that marriage alone will no longer serve as a reason for deferment, nor will peace-time "border-line" cases be given the benefit of the doubt as in the past.

"The nation is now looking to men deferred for dependency to fill needs in both the armed forces and in essential war industries," he said.

At the same time, classification of a married registrant into Class 3A or 3B is not justified unless there is actual financial dependency on the earnings of the registrant.

When it becomes necessary to generally reconsider dependency deferments and to induct registrants previously deferred for dependency into military service, those first to be selected will be registrants who are engaged in non-essential activities.

Pointing out that the examination of registrants by local board physicians is merely preliminary examination to eliminate the obviously unfit, Brigadier General Russell C. Charlton, State Director of Selective Service, today warned registrants that they should await actual induction into the Army before making any final disposition of financial and personal affairs.

All local boards in New Mexico have been advised to give full publicity to the policy now in effect, the Director said, and to inform their selectees not to release their possessions, or otherwise make final disposition of financial and personal affairs, before final action is taken by the Army Examining Board.

Chas. Carl, who is attending the Naval school of instruction at Long Beach, Calif., is machinist mate, and says he likes the work.

How Flying "Ceilings" Are Measured

By throwing a patch of light on a cloud at night it is possible to calculate the height of the "ceiling" over airports. Recently a device has been developed in the United States for use during daylight. A rotating sector disc, thereby forming a fleeting patch of light on the cloud surface. This patch is invisible to the human eye, but it can be picked up by an "electric eye". This daylight method, it is reported, gives accurate results up to 9,000 feet.

Half of Jap Soldiers Wear Glasses

Nearly half of the men in the Japanese military forces have weak eyes and must wear glasses to carry on their activities. Defective vision long has been one of the major national problems of Japan. Trachoma, commonly called granulated eyelids, is widely prevalent. Better vision Institute.

Perhaps that is why the Japs always bomb the hospitals. They are too blind to see anything but the Red Cross on the roof.

Mrs. E. H. Ramey of Lincoln underwent a major operation at the Turner hospital yesterday morning. She is doing nicely. Mrs. Ramey is the mother of county clerk, Felix Ramey.

Expressive Gestures

Highly emotional people frequently express themselves by gestures. Primitive man used gestures to make himself understood, as languages were simple and did not express the full meaning he wanted to convey. Gesturing as an accompaniment to speech seems to be more natural and inherent in the Latin races, and may be termed a racial characteristic.

CHAPTER XIX

The Commissioner showed symptoms of apoplexy. "You could be jailed for holding back testimony."

Martha Samp bristled. "Sakes alive, could I? Because I waited for M's. Hale to tell herself. She's been a loyal wife. She's been through hell without whimpering. I knew when she got to thinking she'd straighten things out. The world's just bubbled with stories of man's loyalty to man, but there isn't so much said about woman's loyalty to woman, an' letting her tell her own story was my idea of loyalty to her."

"Suppose she hadn't told?"
"She did, didn't she? But I provided against that. When I've read about trials it's seemed to me that testimony re-hashed months after the crime took place couldn't be very accurate. The morning after the shootin' I wrote down everything I'd heard and seen. Sealed it. Took it to the radio man. He stamped it with place and date just as he does letters that go out. Here it is." She handed the Commissioner an envelope. He turned it over in his hand. Conferred with the deputy. Rose.

"My associate and I agree that the late Joe Hale met his death by accident. The inquest is closed."

All your little doughboys come and get your chow!" The ringing call of the bugle pierced Bruce Harcourt's absorption as he left the Samp cabin. Would he find Janice at the office, or would she have gone to luncheon? She had slipped away directly after the Commissioner had pronounced a verdict of accidental shooting. Paxton, immaculately attired, with deep lines of exhaustion about his eyes and an apparent stiffness in every joint, had come in, had announced an afternoon departure. He had offered to take anyone who wanted to go back to the States. Millicent had been tearfully eager to get away, Mallory advised expert surgical treatment for Jimmy Chester.

Janice was hooding her typewriter as he entered the office. Her cheek still bore faintly pink evidence of Blot's mercurial temperament, but her eyes and smile were radiant.

"Now that the cyclone of excitement has passed over, I hope to accomplish something."

Harcourt picked up a letter from his desk. "This is Alaska. You mustn't expect life here to be like life in New York. It's a different story in this wilderness."

"Paxton's yacht goes out this afternoon with Mrs. Hale, Chester and the Commissioner aboard. I want you to go with them."

Amazed consternation wiped the happy radiance from her face. "I On Ned Paxton's boat? You advise that?"

"Two days ago I would not have permitted it, but he has proved himself trustworthy. This letter is from your brother Billy. I wrote him after I discovered the identity of Jimmy Delevan. I've told you before that I will not let you spend a winter here. As soon as I can get leave I will join you and well, well, we will talk things over. I will cable Billy to meet the yacht at Seattle."

"Just like that!" Her eyes were brilliant with anger, he could see her throat contract. "You needn't trouble to cable Billy. I'm not going. Tubby Grant hired me to work for the outfit. I shall keep my position here. You talk about my going back as though it were as simple as setting out for dinner and dance. How am I to earn my living when I get to the States? It isn't so easy to pick up a job. Perhaps you think I'll live on my brother. Absolutely not!"

Ignorance swept him like a red hot wave. "My wife does not need a job. You'll have half my salary, more if you need it."

"Your wife! I'm not your wife. I'm merely a companion on a trial. Money doesn't figure in that agreement. Do you think I would accept it from you? You can't give me even understanding. When you made good my silly lie to Ned Paxton, I saw myself as I was, always at the mercy of my imagination. I determined that I would do my utmost to make you happy. I didn't know then that if you'd only waited you would have married Millicent Hale."

"Janie!"
"That whitens your face, doesn't it? You can have her now. Better go along in the yacht yourself and start annulment proceedings. Once you told me that when you pushed back behind the dog-team and saw the H house through the falling snow, it seemed like coming home, although you knew that only a husky and a house-boy waited for you behind those lighted windows. I had thought that next winter you might be glad to find me there too. My mistake."

The picture she conjured of her lovely self waiting for him to come in through the snow-filled darkness set Harcourt's blood afire. With all his strength he resisted her charm. He kept his voice under rigid control.

"That means that you will go—this afternoon?"
Her breath was a straggling sob. She caught her lips between her teeth. From the threshold she de-fed him. "Iceberg! I'll go, but only from the H house. Now that the one person to be impressed by convention is leaving—I will return to Argus of the Hundred Eyes and Miss Mary. They'll be glad to have me back with them." Grant pushed open the door. "Thank heaven, you've come, Tubby. You almost lost your secretary. Your superior officer was giving her notice. Don't ruffle up like a turkey-cock. She wouldn't accept it." The door closed behind her before Grant emerged from a stupor of surprise.

"New orders for us came by plane this morning. No bridge-building this winter. Retrenchment all along the line. We are to push the tracks from here south while the weather holds—the Crowned Heads are all excited about pulp-wood possibilities—then keep the repair shops at headquarters humming till spring."
"Headquarters for us all. Janice will be crazy about the winter here. We'll teach her to pilot, to handle a dog-team."

Harcourt crossed to his desk. "I want her to go out on Paxton's boat with the others this afternoon."

"Says you!" The words bubbled with indignation. "Granted you're a wov of an engineer, as a married man you're a total loss. Isn't he, Miss Marsha?" he demanded, as the elder Miss Samp entered the office. "Isn't he what? I heard you shout-in, Mr. Tubby, as I came from M's. Hale's cabin—she's pretty near packed up—ag' dropped in to see if you were tryin' to talk with Fairbanks without a wire."

Grant's grievance was too acute to permit of appreciation of her humor. "You'll shout when you hear that the chief wants Janice to join the party on Paxton's yacht."

"Sakes alive, has the excitement turned his brain?" Miss Samp dropped into a chair. "Course 'tisn't any of my business any more than 'tis Mr. Tubby's, but why are you sending that child away, Mr. Bruce?"

"You have been so kind to Janice that it is your business, Miss Marsha. I don't want her to experience the hardships of a winter here. Remember what this life did to Millicent Hale."

Martha Samp's gnarled fingers stroked the glossy coat of the black cat circling in her lap. She regarded Harcourt with shrewd eyes.

"Did to her! It made a woman of her, didn't it? Think back. She came here just an ordinary, spoiled, flighty young married girl. At first she fretted. Then she kinder found herself. Never complained. She developed the heart, the endurance of a noble woman."

"And how did it end?"

"You mean about her kinder fly-in off the handle at the last? I've got a pretty good idea of what caused it. She got to leanin' on you, Mr. Bruce, you were all her husband wasn't. When Janice came along, so pretty an' gay an' attractive, she got to broodin' on her troubles an' thinkin' life played favorites, an' something snapped. She hadn't any notion of hurtin' Joe. Course she shouldn't have threatened him, but who doesn't do a fool thing or two in the course of a life? Doesn't it restore your faith in human nature to find an officer of the law with the common sense to recognize an accident when he sees one, an' not try to make a criminal out of a female who hasn't enough sense to leave a revolver hangin' in its holster?"

Martha Samp's argument seethed like an undercurrent in Harcourt's mind during the afternoon as he packed for Chester, sent messages, helped the Commissioner with his reports. Not until she came to the shore to embark in the launch which was to take her to the yacht did he speak to Millicent Hale. Her hand clung to his, her violet eyes were tear-filled.

"I wish I were the one to stay with you, Bruce."

He smiled and shook his head. "You have forgotten the long, dark winter. I'm willing to bet that with the first sight of the lights of Vancouver, you'll be thanking all the gods that be that you're back in civilization."

Side by side Harcourt and Grant watched the launch as it shot like a brown streak for the yacht. Indians and Eskimos stood in groups on the shingle behind them, section bosses and engineers, with unconsciously wistful faces, waited for the Modern Mariner to hoist the anchor.

Janice was leaning against the H house, eyes on the pale blur which was gliding into an opaline mist. Her long lashes were wet, but she faced him with gay bravado.

"Sorry not to have been moved out before you came back, but Pasca was so busy helping the travelers off that he had no time for me."

He caught her by the shoulders. "You're not going back to the Samp cabin. You will stay in my house."

She defied him flippantly. "Big Chief! Heap bossy! You tried to push me out of headquarters, and now you are dictating as to where I shall live. I am working for Tubby Grant, not for you."

His hands tightened. "Jan, my dear, don't you know what it means to love a person so much that you would tear your heart out if you thought it best for her?" He cleared his voice of huskiness. "I know that you are forcing yourself to stay, triumphing over what you think is a fear-complex, what I know to be imagination. I know, also, that if you stay here you are bound to be miserably unhappy."

Angry tears drenched the eyes which made them think of bronze pansies. "How do you know that I would be unhappy? You and Tubby and the Samp girls think Mrs. Hale a marvel of sweetness and light because she carried on. Why shouldn't she? It was her job. You talk about love. A lot you know about it. I can see you following a person half across the world. Not a chance!"

"Janie!" The incredulous whisper brought her eyes to his. Even his lips whitened. "Janie!" He caught her up in his arms, kicked open the door. His laugh was a caress. "This time I'll carry my bride across the threshold as big, strong men do in the movies and points south." He set her on her feet, gently raised her chin till her head rested against his shoulder, demanded softly:

"All right with you, Beautiful?"

Eyes vacant, lovely color tinting her soft skin, she answered with an unsteady attempt at raillery. "I never did think much of that trial companionship idea of yours. If you care—"

"Care! If I care!" In a fury of passion he kissed her eyes, the hollow in her throat, her mouth. Kissed her vehemently, thoroughly. Said with a husky, reckless laugh: "That's how I care."

Tubby Grant pushed open the door. "First call for tea in the dining-car! You—" His voice dwindled to a gurgle. He blinked something suspiciously like tears from his wistful green eyes. With a softly breathed, "Praise be to Allah!" he gently closed the door from the outside.

[THE END]

Science Advances in Telepathy Tests; University Man Gives Much Information

Is telepathy, mongrelized by years of vaudeville trickery, at the threshold of becoming a science? Astonishing experiments have progressed to a point where private home tests are invited. With them goes the candid warning that, despite the fun of using the mind as a messenger boy, there is hazard, perhaps tragedy, as a possible reward for psychic tinkering.

The man who took telepathy out of the music hall and put it into the laboratory is slim, youthful, impetuous and mop-haired, a rapt believer in the theory that the human mind is, to more or less degree, a sensitive broadcasting station with messages for those with minds capable of tuning in the right wavelength, says the Literary Digest.

He is Dr. Joseph Banks Rhine, whose experiments at Duke university keep people awake nightly from North Carolina to California.

Mainly, success depends, he says, on possession of the "gift" to some extent, favorable mental conditions to a large extent. Then:

"First, a genuine interest is required. Preferably a fresh spontaneous curiosity to see if you can do it."

In more than 100,000 trials, conducted since 1927, he has obtained results that seem billions to one against the operations of pure chance. Mathematically, at least, he has shown that, in some persons, perception without use of the ordinary sense does in fact exist.

Support for Dr. Rhine's faith can be found in "Man, the Unknown," the recent book by Dr. Alexis Carrel, who wrote: "Those endowed with this power grasp the secret thought of other individuals without using their sense organs. They also perceive events more or less remote in space and time. This quality is exceptional. It develops in only a small number of human beings. . . . Clairvoyance appears quite commonplace to those who have it. It brings them knowledge which is more certain than that gained through the sense organs."

Dr. Rhine experimented with children, then college students. The results were dismaying. Then he tried hypnotized subjects and, finally the key to science, specially gifted students. Results followed impressively.

He is careful to distinguish between clairvoyance and telepathy. Clairvoyance, he says, is perception, such as symbols on the cards. Telepathy is "mind-reading." Persons gifted with one ordinarily possess the other.

Distance, he holds, makes no difference. Indeed, better results are obtained when test objects are separated by rooms. High scores obtained when several miles intervene. Remarkable results were obtained at a distance of 100 miles.

"With all its dangers it is, I believe, the greatest field for intellectual adventure that the student has before him today," says Dr. Rhine. "The perils add to the zest, and the size of the game is unequalled."

Smart Gowns Stress Peg-Top Skirts and Dolman Sleeves

program of handprinted bags, belts and other accessories.

The vogue for contrast has inspired the strikingly simple frock shown to the right in the above picture. Here a slender sheath skirt of smooth textured black rayon crepe conforms to the newest "lines." The immense dolman sleeves of matching fabric are in smartly contrasting hokey-beige. Thus this color contrast heralds a new era in sleeve technique. Pencil-slim silhouettes, such as characterize this frock, make a well-corseted figure a prerequisite to fashionable appearance.

Bi-color and tri-color are still magic words in the field of costume design. Designers this spring are particularly turning their talents to creating bolero ensembles which exploit color contrast. Typical of this mode is the suit that tops a navy skirt with a red bolero and a wide gypsy girdle in either purple or gold color, the entire three-piece using the one material, rayon crepe, differentiated only in color.

Speaking of present fashions great importance is attached to jacket or suit dresses that are intriguingly tailored of black or navy faille or moire or rayon taffeta. Almost without exception the skirts are narrow, with discreet fullness for action carefully planned. The jackets have sprightly plenums that flare from below slim waistlines, or are of the new short lengths that stress eton or bolero effects. These suits are given drama with the use of spectacular jewel buttons or flattering jabots in frilly white.

For one-piece classic day dresses the new spun rayon weaves in a vast color range are attractive in looks as well as price, and they yield beautifully to fabric manipulation. Practical suits there are also rayon weaves of wool type that tailor perfectly and give a high-price appearance at a low-price outlay.

Gloves to Match

Vermillion red with white daisy-print silk makes this day dress as refreshing as a breath of spring. It has a matching wool jacket and a hat of the new and novel "earphone" type. The most exciting style feature of this ensemble is the gloves she wears, made of the same print as the dress. This novelty stunt of matching gloves to blouse or gown or hat and bag lends intrigue to the current mode. It is possible to get patterns for gloves and many women are making their own.

Merchants Tell of Interest in Sewing

Merchants report that since the first of the year the demand for yard goods has been increasing by leaps and bounds. Which simply means that the home-sewing trend is gaining momentum.

A number of circumstances are leading to this increased interest in home sewing. One, and a very important one, is the necessity of trimming budgets to wartime economy. Then, too, a strong influence is the satisfaction you will find in "making your own."

There's every encouragement given to those who sew these days. Most excellent patterns are easily obtainable, and modern sewing machine equipment is a miracle worker in the way of achieving tucking, hemming, ruffling, shirring and all the little intricacies that sewing entails.

Bands Trim Play Frocks and Children's Dresses

A new fashion gesture is the trimming of cotton play frocks and children's wash dresses with gay embroidered bandings. These colorful border themes are worked out in vivid South American colors in flower or fruit motifs. They are particularly effective used to finish off skirt hemlines and to outline necklines, pockets and sleeves. Stitched together, they can be fashioned into oriental looking turbans, to which you can add a belt or a handbag made of the same material.

When You Buy Gloves Be Sure They Are Washable

On the "cotton front" gloves of this material are top-ranking favorites not only for their undoubted smartness, but also because they are so easily laundered. To look smart during the spring and summer months you must look spotlessly clean. And nothing gets dirty quite so fast as a pair of pastel or white gloves.

Baked Potatoes Do Right by Supper
(See Recipes Below)

Supper Social

The simple suppers at which a crowd gathers are pleasant for their warm friendliness, for the cozy talk which they inspire. They are especially easy to give if you plan to have each of your friends bring a dish for the supper—a pot luck, as it were. This will save each woman the time and effort of making a whole meal, and then you will all be together for knitting, sewing or defense work on the calendar for the evening.

An assortment of attractive main dishes are usually received with enthusiasm. Try these for enchanting appetites:

Russet Half Shells.
(Serves 8)

- 6 medium-sized Idaho bakers
- ¼ cup hot milk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 large onion, chopped and cooked in butter until tender
- 12 small pork sausages

Scrub and bake potatoes at 400 to 450 degrees. Remove piece of skin from top of potato, or cut large potatoes lengthwise in two. Scrape out inside being careful not to break the shell. Mash thoroughly, or put through a potato ricer. Add butter, salt, pepper, milk and cooked onion. Beat well. Pipe mixture lightly into shells, top with two small pork sausages that have been partially cooked (boiled in a small amount of water) Return to oven and bake at 350 degrees until sausages are cooked through and browned.

If you want to provide everything for your pot-luck supper from individuals except the main dish, here is one that will fill the bill perfectly. Simple to put together and as colorful as it sounds, the salmon loaf doesn't need much watching if you are busy with other things:

Salmon Loaf.
(Serves 25)

- 4 cans salmon
- 1 quart fresh bread crumbs
- 3 cups diced celery
- 2 ounces butter
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon onion juice
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 8 eggs
- 1 quart scalded milk
- 1 40-ounce package frosted peas
- 2 quarts medium white sauce

Combine salmon, bread crumbs, celery, butter, seasonings. Beat up

Lynn Says:

Laundrying Tips: With soap one of our prime, do not waste items, you will want to make the most of every scrap of soap you have. Save the small soap scraps from the bathrooms and kitchen, put them in a soap shaker so you will make use of them in washing dishes.

To have clean clothes even in spite of economical soap usage use your washing machine wisely. Use only just so much water in your machine as the water line indicates and do not overload your machine. Six to eight pounds of dry clothes are about right for the average washing machine.

Mix the soap thoroughly with the water before putting in the clothes. About two inches of soap suds are necessary to do the job up right.

Water temperatures play an important part in laundrying. Do not use very hot water for white clothes. For colored clothes, water comfortable to your hand is best. For synthetic silks, woolsens, rayons, water should be lukewarm.

eggs, add scalded milk. Add to salmon mixture. Make one or two salmon loaves. Bake in a greased pan placed in hot water at 325 degrees until loaves are firm. Make a green pea sauce by cooking frosted peas for 5 to 8 minutes in boiling salted water. Combine with white sauce. Pour over loaf when serving and slice the loaf.

Whisk any of these baked bean combinations into the oven and you have a quick dinner dish if you have just hurried home from your defense training courses:

- Pork Chops and Baked Beans
Casserole. (Serves 6)
- 6 pork chops
- 1 large can baked beans
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ cup tomato catsup

Fry pork chops until nicely browned on both sides. Pour baked beans over chops, add sugar and catsup. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Nothing equals the charm of home-baked, freshly baked bread that fills the surroundings with a delicious fragrance. That's why I give you this recipe for old-fashioned:

Raisin Bread.
(Makes 2 loaves)

- 1 package fresh granular yeast
- 1 cup lukewarm water
- ½ teaspoon sugar
- 1 cup scalded milk
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup brown sugar (solidly packed)
- ¼ cup corn syrup
- 5½ to 6 cups (or more) flour
- 6 tablespoons melted shortening
- 1½ cups seedless raisins

Pour the granular yeast into the cup of lukewarm water, add the half teaspoon sugar, stir and let stand about 5 minutes. Put the scalded milk, salt, sugar and corn syrup into mixing bowl. Let cool. When milk is lukewarm, add the softened yeast and 3 cups of flour. Mix well, then beat until smooth. Next add the melted (not hot) shortening and enough flour to have the dough cling together in a ball. Add the raisins which have been covered for a few minutes with very hot water, then dried in a cloth, and dusted with flour. Knead the dough thoroughly, adding only enough flour to avoid stickiness. Let dough rise in a covered, greased bowl in a moderately warm place (82 to 84 degrees) until doubled. Fold the dough down and let rise about ½ hour, then divide and shape into two loaves. Place in greased bread pans and brush tops with melted shortening. Let rise until doubled. Bake about 50 minutes in a moderately hot oven (375 to 380 degrees). If desired, brush tops with honey just before taking from the oven.

For an in-the-season, centerpiece note, besides its economical aspects, try this: A long, low, shallow bowl in pottery or glass such as you may have used for relishes, if large enough, use a snow-white cauliflower banked with parsley, eggplant, radishes or tomatoes.

If you like candles for the table, place these in little baking cuts or ramekins, at either side of the vegetable bowl.

A simple setting like this calls for gay, unadorned china and soft or bright plaids in tablecloth and napkins.

FADED FABRICS CAN BE BRIGHTENED WITH OIL COLORS

UPHOLSTERY fabric or a rug that has been exposed to too much sun or bright light may lose its good looks because of the fading of the colors. The best and most complete way to repair the damage is by replacement. But before this expense is incurred, it might be worth while to experiment with a process described by one of my correspondents, who is enthusiastic about the results. At a paint store she bought tubes of oil colors corresponding as closely as possible to those in her fabrics that had faded. She squeezed a little of each into butter dishes or other small plates, and to each she added enough benzine to bring the color to the consistency of paint. With small brushes, of the kind used by artists, she painted the fabrics to give brightness to those parts of the pattern that had faded. Skill in painting was not needed. Using benzine in this way the colors did not spread, and she could get more accurate lines and edges than would have been possible with water dyes. The idea is well worth trying out. But as a precaution, experiments should be tried on some unimportant piece. Needless to say, there is a fire risk in working with benzine indoors, but in this case the quantities used are so small that there should be little danger.

Wallboard Finish

Question: Calcimine has been used on a wall made of wallboard, but anything we use seems to peel. We would like to paper the wall. What should we do to prepare it?

Answer: There are many different kinds of wallboard for which different treatments are necessary. Your best move will be to consult the manufacturer of the wallboard, who can give you definite instructions for applications to his product.

Ceiling Finish

Question: Would it be possible to whitewash a hard-finished ceiling, and one that has been calcimined?

Answer: Whitewash can go on bare plaster, but a calcimined finish should first be removed. Ordinary whitewash is not satisfactory for an interior finish. You will do much better to use calcimine made with glue or other binder, or a casein paint that comes as a paste to be thinned with water.

Hot Water Supply

Question: What size tank and other parts should be installed for a building with four small three-room apartments, each with sink, bath and lavatory? What size heater for use in summer?

Answer: You had best get the advice of the plumber who will install the outfit. Being familiar with the layout and the conditions, he can make a close estimate of the necessary sizes.

Filter for Air

Question: How can dust be filtered from air passing through a ventilator into a photographic darkroom?

Answer: Put in a screen of cheesecloth dampened with any household oil. The screen should be made removable so that it can be renewed when necessary.

Cracks in Siding

Question: In my new home cracks are in the white pine, beveled siding, and openings due to nails not being set. Would it be advisable to set the nails so as to draw the boards closer together?

Answer: Yes. You should also close cracks with putty or white lead before repainting, to prevent trouble from the soaking in of moisture.

Resin in Wood

Question: Posts on our porch are oozing resin. How should this be removed, and how could the posts be finished?

Answer: Liberal washing with turpentine should take out the resin on and near the surface. A priming coat of aluminum paint should prevent further trouble.

Painting With Enamel

Question: I should like to paint the outside of our house with white enamel. Is this as good or better than the best outside paint? Will it stay white longer?

Answer: Enamel would not be as satisfactory for that job as top-quality white paint, and the cost would be much higher.

Leaking Roof

Question: Our slate roof leaks in several places. How should these be patched?

Answer: Leakage is very likely to be around the flashings, which may need renewal. Loose slates should be renewed, and any that are broken or missing should be replaced.

Glorious Inheritance

If we do our best; if we do not magnify trifling troubles; if we look resolutely, I will not say at the bright side of things, but at things as they really are; if we avail ourselves of the manifold blessings which surround us, we can not but feel that life is indeed a glorious inheritance.—John Lubbock.

Office of Senator Chavez In Washington

Below are extractions from Sen. Chavez address, to the Senate

"Traveling between the little city of Clovis and the little city of Roswell, both of which have furnished to this particular unit at least 200 of their sons, I turned on the radio, and that was when I heard about Bataan. My only reason for saying these things is to show that the American people are on the alert, and that the American people throughout the country do know that they are actually at war, and I desire to tell my colleagues just exactly how those who have relatives in the Philippines are taking this matter of war and suffering.

Landed at Roswell, which is a small rural community, composed of fine people. They had just received the terrible news. One could feel the silence in the streets, could feel the anguish of the mothers, the fathers, the relatives, and the friends. They had loved ones over at Bataan taking everything the Japs could give them.

"Eventually I went to the little city of Carlsbad, also with 200 of its sons in the Philippine islands, or about that number. The reaction there was exactly the same, one of solemnity, one of suffering in silence.

"By the time I reached the little town of Deming, close to the Mexican border, the city which furnished the officers of the 200th Coast Artillery, including Colonel Sage, Colonel Kean, Major Colvard, and 200 of the city's sons the reaction was different. By that time the people had had time for emotion. It was time for tears, it was time for the handkerchiefs, it was time for pleading.

"It was my good fortune to be invited by Mrs. Colvard, the wife of the medical officer attending to these boys in the Philippines, into her home. She had about 40 or 50 women in her home that evening. Remember, they had just received the news. They did not know whether their own, their loved ones, were dead, captured, or possibly could not be found. It would have inspired anyone, the strongest hearts, men made of steel, to see the reaction of the wives and the mothers of these boys. Then we in Washington worry about whether a contractor is to receive 2 or 10 percent. They were not worrying about that, they were worrying about their loved ones.

"Let me tell the Senate how these people take the news. The city of Deming is close to the Mexican border, it is settled by two racial groups. The sons of those Americans--descendants of the best of the Anglo-Saxon of the East and South, and the descendants of the best Spaniards and Mexicans, all Americans--were also in the Philippine islands, and Mrs. Colvard, bless her soul, said, 'Senator' will you not go with me tomorrow morning and visit the homes of those poor people?' It was in an atmosphere entirely different from that of the folks I have been discussing. I saw sights which would inspire anyone to die if necessary. The only spiritual consolation was to have a mother burning three candles for the sons she had in the Philippine islands. Possibly through neglect of our own government that mother herself could not

TRUTH about ADVERTISING
By CHARLES B. ROTH

HOSS TRADIN'

MY FRIEND asked me if I would go with him to buy a horse. I went. We traipsed from one dealer's to another. One man asked us $300 for a horse. The next man had a horse which looked no better, but his price was $450. Before the afternoon was over we had seen horses ranging in price all the way from $150 to $14,000.

Now, the $14,000 horse was a much better animal than the $150 horse. No use to deny that. But nowhere along the line did we find a stabilized market. Had we bought we would have been paying a price which the seller thought his horse was worth. There was no market authority we could consult which would tell my friend whether he was being overcharged or undercharged.

That same evening I went out to buy a small household item--one which is advertised in all the newspapers. I knew what the market price would be: advertising had told me.

With confidence I asked the clerk for what I wanted and put my 25 cents down on the counter. Had he said: "I am sorry, sir, but the price is 50 cents." I would have left and gone somewhere else.

What assurance have I, as a consumer, that someone won't take advantage of me and overcharge me in this bold way?

My only assurance is the advertising which I read in the newspaper. That is my market and my buyer's guide. It tells me the prices I must expect to pay. Let the seller who tries to charge me more beware.

It also tells me what quality I may expect. Let the seller who tries to give me a poorer substitute beware.

So you see that advertising stabilizes prices and enables me, no matter how inexperienced I am in business, to buy with the same expertness and assurance of a professional buyer who spends his life buying for a large concern.

No one objects to paying the established price for something he wants. But all of us hate to be robbed by an unscrupulous man who, taking advantage of our ignorance, "soaks us good and plenty."

The way to avoid being "soaked" in this complete way is to buy advertised goods from merchants who advertise.

There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Each merchant charged what he thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer. It led the way to the established prices you pay when you buy anything today -- except, perhaps, horses.

Sierra County Endorses Roach

Hot Springs, April 30---(Special)

Organization of a movement to elect Burton Roach to serve as New Mexico's war-time Governor was started at a mass meeting held at Hot Springs this week.

The speeches, a 11 impromptu and enthusiastic, were made by persons who have known Roach many years. They cited his outstanding business success as manager of Ladder Ranch, and praised his legislative record, first as member of the lower house and as present majority leader of the State Senate.

Although the meeting held Monday was called by J. W. Sullivan, Sierra County Democratic Chairman, and presided over by Dr. Thomas B. Williams, the mayor of Hot Springs, those present included several Republicans as well as the Democrats. Every precinct in the county was represented.

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution urging Roach's nomination at the Democratic primary in September. The resolution was in both Spanish and English.

Fish Season Closed April 16 to May 31

The warm water fishing season will be closed in practically all waters of the state from April 16 to May 31 inclusive, it was announced at the State Game Department.

This forty-five day period covers the greater part of the spawning season and it is good fish management to keep the waters closed during that time.

The only waters that will be open from April 16 to May 31 are the lower portion of Elephant Butte Lake, Bluewater Lake, the Drainage Canals from Cochiti Dam to Belen, the Rio Grande from the Taos Junction Bridge South and all waters in Dona Ana County.

The general trout season will open May 15 as usual, while Storie Lake will open on May 1.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK — Young Ezequiel Padilla of Mexico prepared for his country's revolt against Diaz by a course at the Sorbonne. He was back home in time for Dr. Padilla Looms much practical and applied shooting and hard riding with Pancho Villa and other non-academic revolutionists. He not only helped bring his country through, from the feudal Diaz regime, into the modern world, but at the Rio conference scored heavily in tooling the Latin-American republics into the world political orbit of the United Nations.

Padilla is Mexico's foreign minister, in Washington in the interest of closer co-operation and better understanding between the two countries.

Meeting the tall, handsome and engaging Dr. Padilla for the first time at a recent press luncheon, this reporter put him down as something new among political or diplomatic envoys. This impression of uniqueness is perhaps due to the fact that his mind is at once luminous and poetic, and shrewd, muscular and combative. He seems to vision a world in which it will be safe to be civilized—providing you are also wary.

Dr. Padilla's talk was "off the record," but with his permission we are allowed to report its main outline. The world cannot and will not be reorganized on any basis of traditional imperialism. The alternative is co-operation, on the basis of a just and ration-al allotment of world resources. This co-operation, Dr. Padilla is calmly assured, will come. It will mean a steadily rising standard of living, for all the peoples of the earth, automatically a safeguard against the glutting of trade channels and the rise of feverish nationalism which lead to war. There will be a genuine "culture and science" of living.

Dr. Padilla grew up in a remote mountain village in Guerrero, won a scholarship at the University of Mexico, and later one which took him to the Sorbonne. He continued his studies at Columbia. Returning to Mexico, as a deputy from his native state, he became secretary of public education, minister plenipotentiary to Hungary and Italy, and in 1940, minister of foreign affairs.

TALK of national defense in Washington is highly personalized and is apt to center on this or that spark-plug of the army or navy, who touches off action and gets effective results. Gen. Jarman's point is big, clearly in mind, and of Diorganization.

Gen. Sanderford Jarman, commanding the vitally important eastern area anti-aircraft artillery. His showing of achievement both before and after Pearl Harbor ought to be a good prescription for insomnia, if any considerable portion of the populace is worrying about bombs. When General Jarman was sent to Panama in June, 1940, less than one-fifth of the guns there could be fired, because of the lack of ammunition and personnel. By November of that year he had brought the artillery defense up to 100 per cent efficiency.

When he began the organization of defense in the Canal Zone region he was warned that jungle workers would suffer disastrously from malaria and that the operations should be preceded by a survey of means to combat the scourge. He called in the best available medical advisors, demanded a workable formula for immunization, got one, in a hurry—consisting mostly of quinine—and started building his pesto deep in the jungle, including large-scale housing units for his men. The general's whirlwind progress brought him a call to the States and topped him to the anti-aircraft command, under Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First army.

He is tireless in exploring the urgent requirements of his job and nothing is ever finished, so far as he is concerned.

Morale is one of General Jarman's specialties and his communications with his men are entirely colloquial. He likes to stroll through a mess hall and ask the boys how they like the food. If one of them replies that the chow is getting pretty schmalck, or words to that effect, he listens, investigates, decides and acts, if need be, or, if he finds that the soldier is just grouching on general principles, he tells the soldier to take what he gets and like it. It works. The men regard him as their friend and emulate him as a self-starter.

Churchill Spends Day With His Troops

Winston Churchill recently spent a day inspecting several thousand British fighting men and watched them go through various phases of their training. One of the things that interested the prime minister was the exercises by troops on the Commando lines, and he is shown here examining a knife used by one of the men with blackened faces who took part in the exercises.

LEAVES from Uncle Sam's Notebook

Three North American Game-Birds
THE PRAIRIE CHICKEN:
The prairie chicken—often called partridge—is now common only to Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Manitoba although the time was when this beautiful game bird was much more widely distributed. The hunting fraternity themselves, who—one would suppose—would be first to protect the game birds—have been very largely responsible for the extensive destruction of the prairie chick.

It should be noted, however, that this beautiful wild bird is more than just a game bird; it is of such definite value to the farmer that, as a recent government publication states, "any farmer would profit by having these birds reared on his place."

The same bulletin declares, further, that almost 15 per cent of the food of the prairie chicken consists of weed seeds, including those of such pests as foxtail grass, smartweed and ragweed (which suffers from hay fever should also note). Another 15 per cent of the bird's food consists of insects, largely grasshoppers. The prairie chicken showed itself particularly useful at the time of the terrible invasions of the Rocky Mountain locust. Sixteen birds examined at that time were found to have eaten 866 locusts. Among other pests destroyed by this bird are the Colorado potato beetle, the 12-spotted cucumber beetle, the sugar-beet leaf-beetle, May beetles, cotton worms, army worms, cutworms, the yellow bear caterpillar, and the chinch bug.

If for no other reason, the prairie chicken should be beloved as the harbinger of the lovely northern spring.

THE CALIFORNIA QUAIL:

Of all the charming birds in the world, none, probably, is more appealing to the bird lover than the little, scuttling quail, with its plaintive, peeping cry. Like the well-known Bob White of the eastern states, the quail is fond of cover, delighting to dwell on unimproved land where trees and scrub alternate with small natural parks of open land. The author of the bulletin referred to above states that he has "seen a female quail sitting upon her eggs in a garden within 30 feet of a house, between which and the nest foot passengers passed many times each day. In winter a covey frequently feeds with the farmer's chickens, and if not disturbed will continue to do so until pairing time."

It must be admitted that quail are sometimes destructive, especially in vineyards; they love grapes. However, under normal conditions the farmer and orchardist have nothing to fear from its ravages. It must always be remembered, in favor of the quail, that vegetable food constitutes 87 per cent of his diet, and that such food consists mainly of seeds of plants which are of noxious or troublesome species. Quail, when young, eat large numbers of insects including beetles, bugs, caterpillars, grasshoppers, flies, spiders and snails. They will also feed joyously, if given the chance, upon various kinds of scale insects. Adult quail, as well as the young ones, are particularly fond of ants.

THE HORNED GREBE:

The grebes belong to one of the most interesting groups of water birds. It may be said, in passing, that the most remarkable fact about the feeding habits of the grebe is that these birds eat great quantities of leathers. Grebes have been accused of living exclusively upon fishes and of doing, therefore, great mischief in fish hatcheries, but carefully collected evidence does not support this charge against them. Examination of many grebe stomachs shows they eat large numbers of insects including aquatic bugs such as caddis-flies, dragon-fly nymphs, etc. They also eat a great many crawfish and other crustaceans, together with snails and spiders. In spite of his fondness for fish, which constitutes probably one-fourth of his diet, the grebe is a useful bird, since he eats quantities of crawfish which often severely damage crops, and consumes those aquatic insects which are known to devour both small fish and the food of such fishes.

Common names for the grebe are hell diver, sprite and water witch because he dives like a fish, or, when he wishes, simply submerges, leaving not so much as a ripple to mark the spot where he was.

Further information concerning game, aquatic, and rapacious birds may be secured by sending five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., and asking for Farmers Bulletin No. 417.

THE DEODAR

A particularly symmetrical conifer is the deodar (Cedrus deodara) which is a native of Asia but has been very successfully grown on the Pacific coast and in the warmer parts of the Middle West and some of the Eastern states.

ROSE CULTURE

Roses are heavy feeders and must have rich soils if good results are to be obtained. The soil must be carefully prepared and heavily fertilized, the best fertilizer to use being cow manure.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.
Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended by the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to filter out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain no irritating drugs. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

DOAN'S PILLS

'Make 'Em Last'—That's Number One Rule For Nation's 32 Million Automobile Drivers

Cheated out of thousands of miles of service, these tires failed and were rejected at inspection station because of:

1. Bad wheel bearings, loose king pin bolts and badly worn tie-rod ends.
2. Loose front end.
3. Bad camber condition.
4. Boot substituting for tread and fabric.
5. Toe-in and low pressure.

6. Misalignment.
 7. Loose and badly worn tie-rod ends, king pin bolts, drag links and bushings.
 8. Camber error and loose front end.
 9. Excessive side drag.
- Periodic inspection, proper care and adjustment would have increased the service of any of these tires by thousands and thousands of miles. The driver who neglects his tires today will soon become a pedestrian.

"Never mind us. Take care of the tires first!"

That was the command gasped out to two stretcher bearers when (in a cartoonist's imagination) they attempted to give first aid to the injured occupants of a badly wrecked automobile.

The cartoon, published in a nationally-read magazine, may exaggerate the situation, but it demonstrates beyond all doubt that 1942 will go down in history as the year when rubber became more precious than rubies.

Talk of "rubber stockpiles," "crude rubber" and "carry-over tonnage" leaves the average motorist cold. He doesn't understand all the technicalities behind the current rubber shortage. But he does know that when his present tires wear out, he will be forced to leave his six-cylinder, 1937 Blue Streak standing idle in his garage.

The National Safety Council, Chicago, lists many DON'Ts the motor-

Drive only when absolutely necessary, and then drive at a moderate speed.

Start and stop slowly, slow down on turns, and park carefully to keep from grinding off the tread and nicking the rubber off your tires.

Use brakes carefully (shift into second going downhill), and make sure that your brakes are adjusted so that your tires will not be worn unevenly.

Every 5,000 miles or so cross-switch your tires to increase total mileage. If your wheels are correctly aligned and balanced, the cross-switching will add miles and miles to each tire's life.

Check the air pressure of all your tires each week. Have the tires and tubes inspected regularly against future trouble and wasted rubber.

Such suggestions will go far in helping you keep your tires as long and oil consumption of your car.

During the past years a nervous condition hit the majority of the drivers in the U.S.A. This was noticeable in their attempt to get between two points in the shortest time possible. They sped from one place to another without fully realizing that a moderate speed will get them to their destination, most of the time, in as short a time as if they roared on down the road.

Today, when gasoline and oil are necessary to help win this war, moderate speeding not only saves you money because of a smaller consumption of gas and oil, but also helps your nation.

The accompanying charts, dealing with tire, gas and oil conservation, give you more definite proof of the value of moderate driving than would thousands of words.

At a 65-mile per hour top cruising speed, as compared with 40 m.p.h., gas consumption was more than 30 per cent highist must continually keep in mind, besides a few important DO's. If he keeps on forgetting about them he is soon without rubber on his tires.

Checkup by Experienced Operators. It is possible that more motorists are going to maintenance stations to have their tires checked than ever before. (This incidentally, is one of the essential DO's.)

Motorists there will learn that their tires are unsafe (alas!) if the fabric, breaker strip, or outer body ply is exposed. Also that if the tire has cuts or snags greater than an inch in any direction and deep enough to expose body fabric, it is then in the unsafe condition. Furthermore, if the tire has a bulge it is dangerous to use, for patches or boots are not sufficient protection. Then, too, another way to learn if the tires are unsafe is either to look over the wheel and tire yourself, or have the garage attendant see if the rim or wheel flange is defective.

Then after you have made sure that your tires and wheels are OK, your next best procedure is to get yourself in the habit of using war time driving rules to conserve your tires as long as possible.

Here is a list of rules, compiled by the safety council. You, of course, can add to them.

as possible. But the time will soon come when you will be thinking about having your tires recapped or retreaded.

If you are one of those fortunate persons whose application was approved by your local tire rationing board, then a few suggestions may prove valuable. Recapping, which is vulcanizing a tread surface onto a partially remaining tread, and retreading, which means stripping old tread off the tire and replacing it with a new tread and vulcanizing onto the casing, is done with the greatest of economy and safety when the following rules are remembered:

Use only tire cases which have no cracks, punctures or flaws. Recap tires that are not worn through to the cords of the casing.

Don't allow anyone to recap or retread your tires unless he can meet a high standard of workmanship.

When you decide on a certain shop to retread or recap your tires be sure that their services are reliable, their material the best available, and the workmanship as good as, or better than, any other shop.

Checking on Gas and Oil.

Once you have begun to follow these rules and suggestions for your tire protection and safety you should center your attention on the gasoline

er. Yet the average gain in speed was only 15 miles an hour, as the faster driver had to slow down more frequently, and with greater abruptness.

Oil consumption increases at an even greater rate than gasoline consumption when the speed was stepped up to more than 35 miles per hour. Almost four times as much oil is used at 65 m.p.h. than at a 40-mile top cruising speed. The difference is even greater when a car is equipped with an oil filter.

If you want to be a safe driver and also conserve gas, oil, tires, besides lives of other motorists and pedestrians, remember these few rules for driving today:

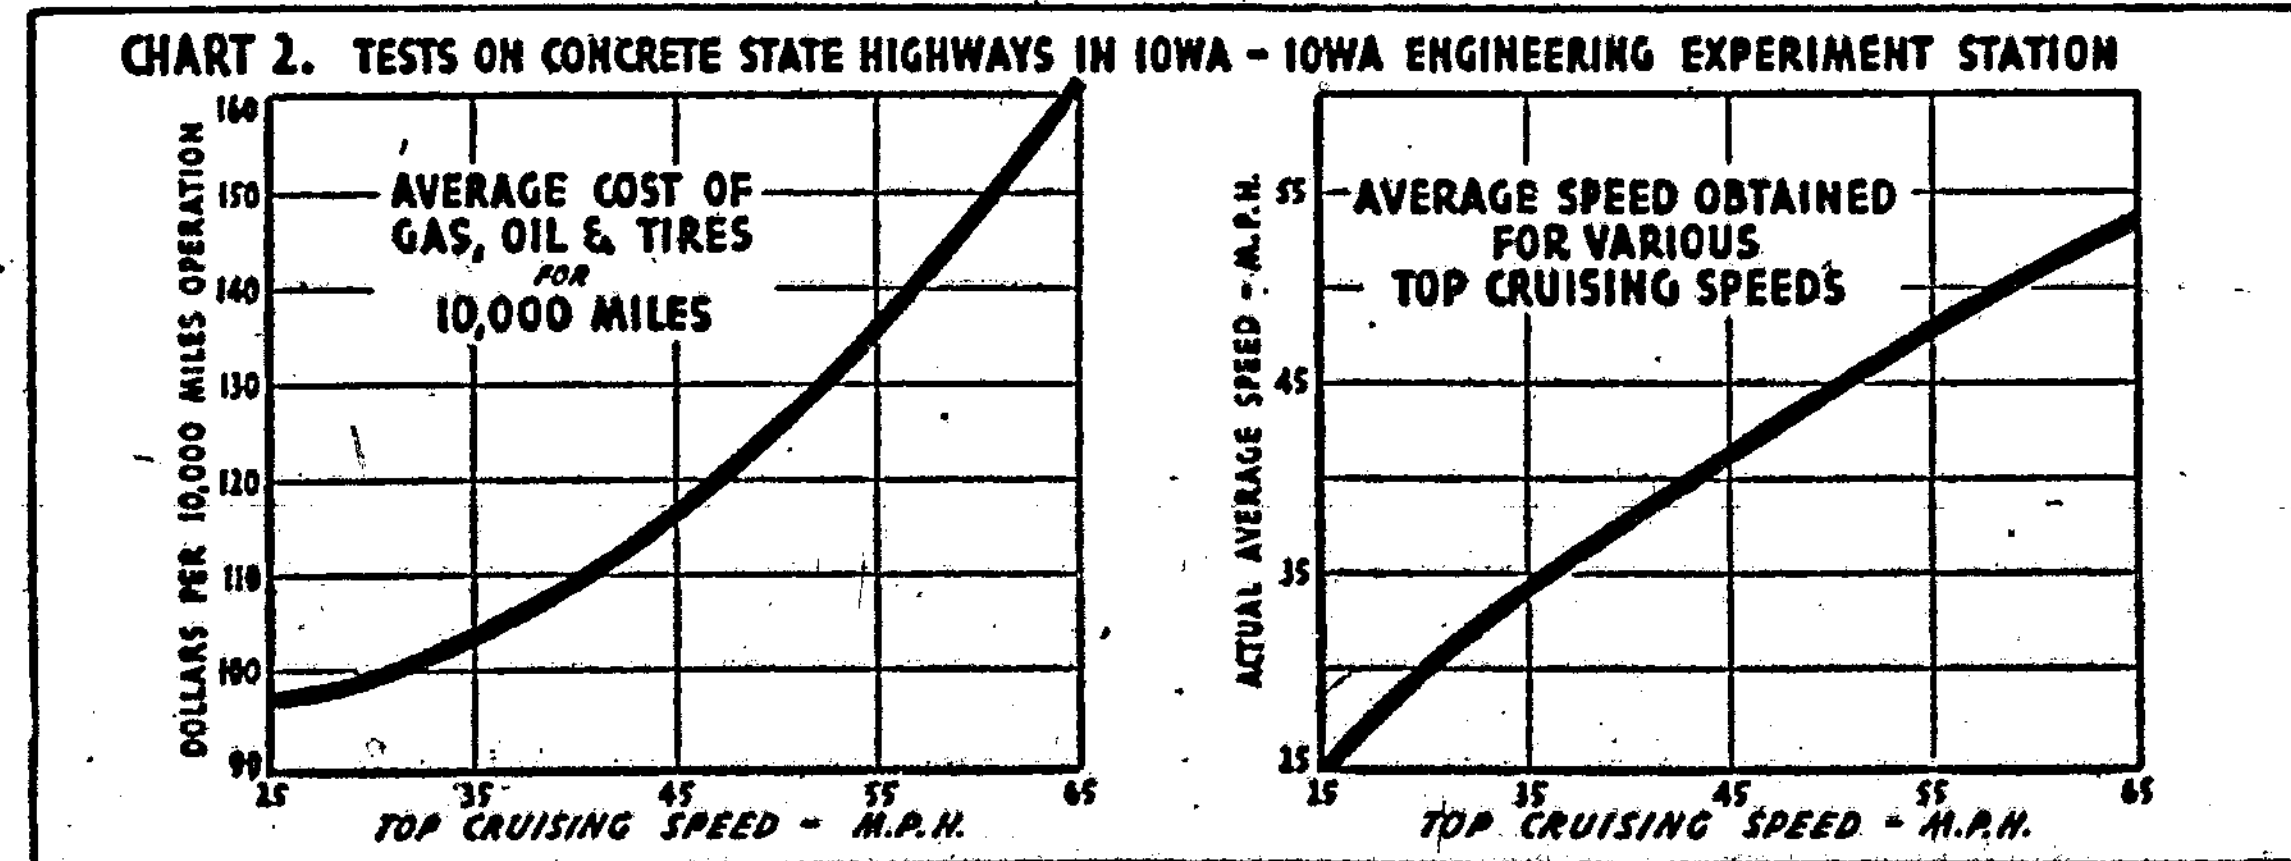

Start early on each trip so you can get to your destination without using excessive speed.

Drive at a moderate speed suited to the conditions of the highway on which you are traveling. Don't pass any more cars than the number you observe passing you.

Speed up gradually, but shift from one gear to another as quickly as possible. Slow down gradually.

Warm up the motor before driving . . . reduce speeds on grades . . . against headwinds . . . and keep your car tuned up for greatest economy.

Be smart by being thrifty with gas, oil, and automotive material.

Recaps, Retreads Keep Vital Transportation Moving

When your present tires begin to show the dreaded wear, you'll be giving more thought than now to the possibilities of having them retreaded or recapped:

If you come under the following "List B" classification you can get the work done. This list includes:

1. Applicants to whom other transportation service is not available: Licensed taxi, for transport to places where construction or mechanical structural, or highway maintenance services are needed.

2. Transportation of executives, engineers, technicians and workers to and from work essential to the war effort.

3. Transportation of produce and supplies to and from the farm if applicant does not have a truck or other means of transportation. In other words, applicant owning automobile may get retreads.

4. Transportation of federal, state and local government employees on functions essential to public health, safety or war effort.

5. Transportation of mail by private person under government contract—rural letter carriers.

6. Wholesale delivery of newspapers, provided automobile is used for NO OTHER PURPOSE.

7. Hearses, milk trucks are also included in the listing.

Denounces Plan to Cut State Flower From Ranges

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. Apr. 22, 1942. Tom Clayton, President of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association stated that any movement to cut or remove Yucca Plants from southern New Mexico ranges would result in serious loss of valuable livestock feed to ranchers in this, semi-desert cattle country and probably would cause complete ruin of the range in certain areas Mr. Clayton made this statement upon being notified by the Grazing Service that they were making a study of the advisability of cutting Yucca plants from New Mexico and other southern states to be used in the production of fiber bags and other commercial articles. The Yucca is the state flower of New Mexico; so designated by legislative enactment.

The Yucca Plant is one of the principal courses of livestock feed in many areas in the southern part of New Mexico during dry years, and that at times no other plant would grow in this semi-desert region. Yucca "daggers" make an excellent feed and fill the year around and even saves the good grass during wet years.

Any action to cut the Yucca from ranges by private companies on a commercial basis as proposed by the Grazing Service would certainly result in serious damage to the range in the cut area due to the loss of the plant and the methods which would probably be employed to reach, cut and carry away the fiber.

In response to the Grazing Service statement that the Yucca cut areas would be reseeded, Clayton said that in dry periods no other livestock feed plant would grow in the area where Yucca was most abundant, and that a Yucca plant once destroyed would not return for fifteen or even twenty years.
