Afterwards, a social hour was held with Mrs. Blaney, Mother Advisor, acting as hostess. Tea and assorted sandwiches were served.
—Roswell Record

The Order of the Rainbow for Girls is an organization the citizens of any town should be proud of, and should have the moral support and the co-operation of everyone. It teaches the girls to have poise, to have initiative, to be less self-conscious in addressing an audience, and to lead those who are less privileged to a better and fuller life.
—Mrs. R. E. Blaney, Mother Advisor.

U. S. Naval Air Station
Corpus Christi, Texas
Corpus Christi, Texas, Jan. 16.—Nineteen cadets from six New Mexico schools represent their state at the Navy's gigantic new "University of the Air" at Corpus Christi, Texas. In all there are alumni from 551 schools in 45 states, with Maine, Vermont, and Delaware alone missing from the list.
New Mexico University has the largest group, seven, while New Mexico A and M is a close second with six. Other New Mexico institutions with sons here are New Mexico Military Inst., New Mexico Highlands University, New Mexico State Teachers, and New Mexico School of Mines.
This largest naval air station in the world is the only one offering a complete course in flying, primary, intermediate, and advanced, under one single command, and for this reason it is truly a "University of the Air."
It takes seven months for the New Mexico lads to finish flight training and join the group of commissioned officers now being turned out at 300 a month. During this period they learn basic flying and receive a "degree" from one of the "University's" specialized flying "colleges" which include squadrons of dive-bombers, fighters, long range patrol boats, and scout-observation seaplanes.
With their "wings" on their chests, they will take a polishing course and then either remain as instructors or go on the fleet and war flying.

Cautions Owners of Motor Vehicles Concerning Payments of "Use" Tax Collector of Internal Revenue, S. P. Vidal, issued a statement today which is of interest to the more than 125,000 owners of motor vehicles in New Mexico. Mr. Vidal called attention to a provision of the Revenue Act of 1941 which imposes a "use" tax upon motor vehicles, which tax becomes effective February 1, 1942. It was explained that the term "motor vehicle" means all motor vehicles of the kind chiefly used for highway transportation, including automobiles, trucks and motorcycles, and that the term "use" means use on public highways.
Collector Vidal stated that internal revenue stamps have been provided to evidence the payment of this tax and the stamps are gummed on the back so that they may be affixed to the motor vehicles. The first stamp to be purchased by owners of motor vehicles will cover the period from February 1 to June 30, 1942, and will cost the purchasers only $2.09 each because of the fact that only a fractional part of the fiscal year is involved. However, during the month of June, 1942, owners of motor vehicles must purchase stamps valued at $5 to evidence the payment of the tax for the entire fiscal year beginning July 1, 1942, and ending June 30, 1943. Stamps of appropriate denominations have been provided to evidence the payment of the "use" tax on vehicles purchased and first put into use on the highways during months subsequent to February, 1942.

Warfare on Ants
Ants infesting house timbers, which have not been previously impregnated with creosote, may sometimes be reached and killed by the abundant use of kerosene injected by means of a syringe, or where the timbers are accessible, by spraying or soaking them with kerosene. All timbers which have been mined and weakened should be replaced with timbers protected with creosote.

KNOW YOUR BANK

How Can I Prepare for The Post-War Period?

Two obvious suggestions come to mind: one is to pay off as many of your debts and obligations as you can now, while you are able. The other is to build a cushion of cash in a bank account which you can draw on, if the occasion arises, in the period of readjustment after the war. There is bound to be some hardship when we swing from defense back to normal peacetime activities, and a little foresight now will repay you well later.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK—People who send questions to radio quiz programs have been missing a chance to collect on "Who is the president of China?" The usual answer, as we try out the question, is Chiang Kai-shek—the generalissimo and not the president.

Lin Sen, serene and venerated patriarch, has been president of China for 10 years. He could be called doctor, and he has many honorary titles, but he likes to be called Mr. Lin Sen. Just now, he is casually and obscurely in the news, with word of powerful generals making pilgrimages to his peaceful retreat, not to talk war, but to visit him as they might a priest or physician.

He is a benign old gentleman, bespectacled, with a snow-white goatee, a scholar and an artist; wise and humorous and, above all, serene. He is one of the most famous chirographers of China and, so that he may quietly practice his art, he made a studio in a ruined garrison, with walls 10 feet thick. There, on bamboo paper, faced with silk, he copies the classics in swift, beautiful brush strokes, schooling himself in their wisdom. Sun Fo, president of the executive yuan, takes care of the merely temporal and practical details of the presidency. Mr. Lin Sen is free to practice wisdom and virtue and impart it to his people in beautiful characters.

Mr. Lin Sen was a missionary student in San Francisco's Chinatown, studied western civilization diligently and, returning to China, preached a careful distinction between a civilization and a culture. He said China must be modernized, and joined Dr. Sun Yat Sen, to that end, but insisted that China would lose its soul if it took only guns and machines from the west—that force alone always failed, even when it seemed to be triumphant. He maintained that true morality would in the end prevail even over bombs and bullets. But the latter, he believed, were all right in their place and in 1931 he became president, as the advocate of vigorous resistance against the Japanese aggression. His gods have generously answered for him an ancient Chinese prayer: "May your writing writ be as limber as a willow wythe."

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN used to be a social settlement worker in his young days. It has been apparent that in this he experienced a certain distillation as to the grand solution, for in his later years he has been a pragmatic liberal and it is as such that he tackled one of the most important jobs of the war, as chairman of the new office of defense transportation. All he will have to do will be to gear all transport into a working unit, to keep things moving on railroads, air lines, truck lines, inland waterways, coastwise and inter-coastwise shipping lines and pipelines.

It was a much simpler job when William G. McAdees took it over in the first World War, with plane and motor transport negligible. Mr. Eastman, through his long service as chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission and as former co-ordinator of the railroads, has grown into it.

Socially minded from his Amherst and Phi Beta Kappa days, he became a hard-working "good neighbor" at the South End house of Boston, then counsel for the Boston Street Railway employees and later a member of the Massachusetts Public Service commission. When Woodrow Wilson named him to the ICC, he wrote a regretful letter saying he would like to serve, but there was a bar sinister in his career—he was a Republican. Mr. Wilson laughed that off and Mr. Eastman has served under five Presidents. Supreme Court Justice Brandeis had recommended his original appointment. Railroad moguls like him personally and denounce his ideas.

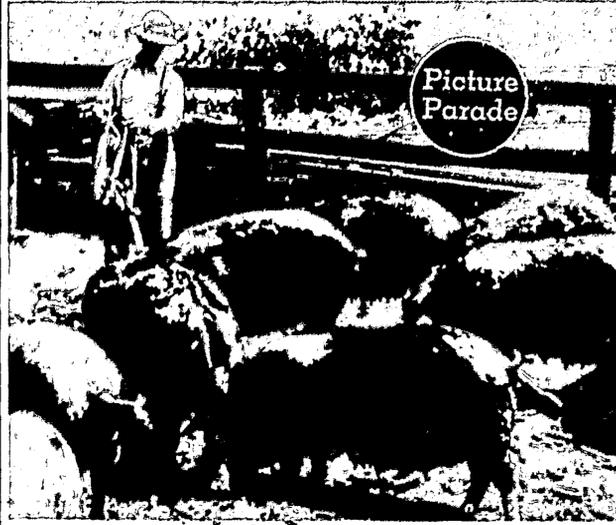

He threw a switch on the first Van Sweringen merger proposal in 1937, later on L. F. Loree's proposed merger of the Katy and the Cotton Belt with his own Kansas City Southern, and in valuation, rate rise cases, receiverships, recapitulations, mergers and the like he has been sharply at odds with the rail barons and definitely aligned with the drive toward firmer governmental control. Senate Progressives got themselves into a great lather in 1929, preparing to fight and die for their demand that he be reappointed. But President Hoover fooled them by doing just that.

Food for Freedom

We all know the vital part that food plays in any war, and food can be expected to play the same role in our war with the Axis powers, that it has played in all the wars of the world. Your farm can help, says Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard to more than six million U. S. farmers in urging them to produce more national defense foods such as milk, meat, eggs and vegetables, as part of our new Food for Freedom campaign.

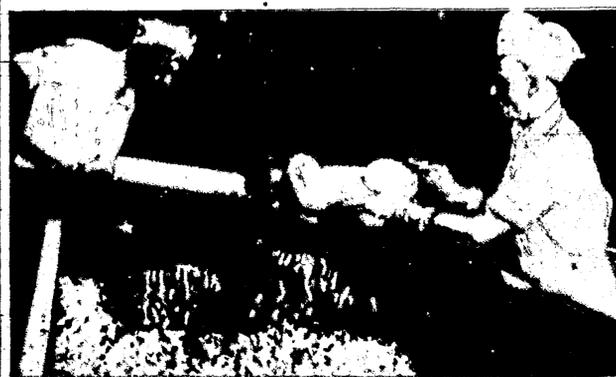

Here is Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. He practices what he preaches by making out an AAA farm plan for his own Indiana farm, showing how he will expand production of these foods in 1942.

Perry Thompson gives his hogs extra rations of corn to help provide plenty of pork, drawing on the huge reservoir of feed on hand in the nation's "Ever-Normal Granary."

Farm boys pitch in and help with milking and similar chores all over the nation, as their fathers strive to increase dairy production.

Cheese is one of the most popular of dairy products. Cheese factories in the U. S. are working overtime to supply the demand.

Dairy products being loaded on freighters ready to run the gauntlet of the Atlantic.

Leisure-Time Programs In Your Community

Community activities have a good many things to recommend them: They make for a better understanding among neighbors and consequently greater tolerance; they serve to bring the younger crowd together in a common effort with the older people, thus promoting a mutual respect and confidence; they frequently uncover unsuspected local talent; they help to tone down those who have a tendency to "run things" and to develop the hidden gifts of those who are too self-centered; they tend to keep people—particularly the restless younger ones—out of mischief; they are, in short, a strong unifying and socializing force.

A good time for the inauguration of a community leisure-time project is in the autumn or early winter when outside work in gardens and fields is at a minimum, and when, on the other hand, some of the sports and amusements which occupy people during the summer months are not available.

WHAT TO DO FIRST

Let those who have the germ of the plan in mind call a general meeting, urging everyone to come, so that, from the beginning, the project may be a genuine community project. It should never be thought that the activity is to be merely a temporary one, but on the contrary it should be planned for permanency. At the first meeting it will be necessary, after the purpose of the meeting has been discussed, to elect officers, since a permanent organization must be conducted in a business-like manner. Nevertheless, the organization should be kept as simple as possible, the officers consisting, probably, of a permanent chairman ("permanent" that is, for a year), a secretary and a treasurer. Some funds will be required, which should be raised by local entertainments or in some other simple manner. From the beginning the organization should be strictly self-supporting, and if funds are slender they must be eked out by individual and group effort.

At the first meeting a committee of persons who are not afraid of work should be appointed (or elected as the community may choose) to make a survey which will show, among other things, what are the major interests of the community and what agencies already exist which can be counted on to help.

It is of the utmost importance that the program finally outlined shall consist of activities which will appeal strongly to every major group in the community; that is, to men and to women, to boys and girls, to young people as a class, to older people as a class, to the young-marrieds, to those interested in sports, in music, in drama, in serious study, in politics or in purely social affairs.

It requires great tolerance, tact, and genuine human kindness to keep a large number of people working together in harmony, hence the executives and the committee members should be chosen from among the best-liked and the most impartial men and women available.

NOT A SPORADIC ATTEMPT

Unless plans are made from the beginning for a long-time project, it is probable that the initial enthusiasm will evaporate and the project will never get beyond the incipient stage. Therefore, the very first plans submitted to the community must include a group of seasonal projects, closely overlapping. Such, for example, as a series of plays or concerts in which the local talent figures, to be given to raise necessary funds; following these may come suggestions for garden groups—perhaps neighborhood gardens if the community is suburban; for 4-H clubs and Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations; for community sports such as bowling, tennis, badminton, volleyball—preferably types of sports which will involve large groups of people; for county fairs; for anything, in fact, in which the entire community will have an interest. More ambitious projects, such as beautifying the local highways, building a community center, or a community church; or plans looking toward the establishment of a branch of the State or County library which may draw upon the larger center for books—any or all of these worthy projects should come later, as an outgrowth of the original plans.

For inspiring information in this field, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Children's Bureau Publication No. 24.

THE HYMENOPTERA

Ants, bees and wasps belong to this order. They are industrious workers and many of them are famed as artisans. They are extremely valuable in the economy of nature since it is by their aid that melons, cherries, apples, squashes, cucumbers, and many other fruits and vegetables are fertilized. The Hymenoptera are frequently divided into two groups—the stinging group and the borer, they are the most specialized group of insects and invertebrates.

Rattling in Water Pipe
A HOME owner is much worried because of a rattling and vibration in his water supply pipes that comes with the turning on of a faucet. He says that the vibration is so great that it is felt all over his house, and naturally enough, he wants to know how it can be stopped. That trouble comes from a worn faucet washer, or from some loose inside part of a faucet. The rush of water through an opened faucet sets up a vibration that extends to the whole pipe. The remedy is to put in a new washer or to tighten up any part that may be loose. This vibration, which occurs when a faucet is opened, is quite different from the bang or hard thump that may come when a faucet is being closed, and especially when the closing is abrupt. That noise is due to the sudden stopping of the water flowing through the pipe; of the overcoming of its momentum. The noise is accompanied by a sudden rise in pressure that may strain the pipe and can be overcome by an air cushion.

This is an extension of the pipe, with the end tightly capped, or by a spring arrangement. Air contained in the capped pipe, or the springs, forms a cushion that takes up the momentum of the water and brings the flow to a gentle instead of an abrupt stop. The overcoming of the trouble, which is known as water hammer, calls for the services of a plumber.

Chimney Cleaning
Question: Our furnace chimney is so clogged with soot that there is no draft. Can the soot be cleared out by anything used in connection with the fire, such as salt? Or must cleaning be done from the chimney top?

Answer: Chemicals used as soot cleaners have the effect of reducing the temperature at which the soot will ignite, so that it will burn off. However, when a chimney is clogged with soot, this would be dangerous, for the fire might spread to the soot will be scraped off. The safe and sure way to clean a chimney is from the top. One easy method is to let down an old tire chain on a rope, swinging it around from side to side as it descends, so that the soot will be scraped off. The opening at the bottom of the chimney should have something over it to keep the powdery soot from scattering up the room.

Furniture Finish
Question: An oak breakfast set was originally stained pale green, but much of the color has come off. How can the remaining stain be removed? How can I give the set a maple finish?

Answer: The stain should come out with a varnish remover, to be had at a paint store. For a finish, use varnish stain; you can get a good maple shade by mixing oak with a little mahogany.

Refinishing a Dresser
Question: I have an oak dresser that is now finished with enamel. How can I take the enamel off, so that I can use varnish?

Answer: Any liquid paint remover will do the job. Be sure that you follow the instructions on the label. The remover should be used in a place where there is plenty of ventilation, so that the vapors will be carried off. In a closed room they might cause a fire.

Skating Rink
Question: Roller skating is now becoming the vogue, and I would like to convert my maple dance floor for roller skating. Would skating render the floor useless for dancing again?

Answer: Roller skates with composition wheels will not do any great harm to the floor. When you wish to convert the floor for dancing again, sanding and refinishing will put it in good condition.

Brick Floor
Question: I want to lay a brick floor on the dirt under my back porch, to make a shelter for bicycles, etc. How can I keep the bricks from settling into the dirt?

Answer: By far your best move will be to lay the bricks on a bed of concrete, two or three inches thick. An alternative would be to excavate and to lay six inches of packed sand, placing the bricks on top.

Roosting Sparrows
Question: Is there any way to keep sparrows from roosting on rainspouts and telephone wires? They gather on horizontal rainspouts in large numbers.

Answer: Birds cannot be kept from roosting on wires, but it might be possible to protect rainspouts with insect screening, of the same material as fish.

SYNOPSIS

THE STORY SO FAR: Bruce Harcourt, Alaska engineer, finds a satin slipper on Fifth Avenue and on answering an ad learns it belongs to Janice Trent, sister of college chum. Janice quarreled with her fiance, rich Ned Paxton, a gay blond, dropping her slipper as she tried to leave his auto. Impulsively Bruce asks her not to marry Ned. Harcourt returns to Alaska, saves a bridge from collapsing, flirts with engineer, who is dismissed. Bruce is made chief. The camp has a new secretary, Jimmy Delevan, hired by Tubby Grant, Bruce's assistant. Jimmy seems a tubercular youth who keeps out of sight as much as possible. Bruce had never seen him when one day he walked into the cabin of the Sampo sisters, who run the Waffle Shop, and discovers the youth is Janice. She is asleep in a chair. Martha shows him a newspaper which arrived that day. It tells of Janice disappearing four days before her wedding.

Now continue with the story.

Pasca said: "He keel him, sometam, p'raps."

CHAPTER IV

"Has she seen that paper?" asked Harcourt.

"No," replied Martha.

"That helps. Be sure that no one else sees it. Burn it. A useless precaution. Others like it, doubtless, have come in this mail. I must go to the office. You haven't told me yet why you sent for me, Miss Martha."

"I want another room built on the cabin for her. She's brought all her handsome wedding things, sheets and pillow slips made of pink crepe. Mary's near gone out of her mind over it all. She loves pretties. If the girl is goin' to stay she ought to have a cabin hitched on to ours."

"I'll talk with you about that later. I'm due now at the office. So is— Jimmy Delevan, but tell him not to come. Grant must take the notes."

His mind was in a turmoil. Should he let Janice stay? He must get in touch with her brother. Billy couldn't have known that she was coming.

Pasca, his part Indian, part Eskimo servant, who filled the dual role of house-boy and mechanic, was shuffling about the cabin living-room when he entered for his papers.

"We all mighty glad you big boss now, yes sirree."

"Thank you. Don't put on any more wood. You'll have me roasted alive."

"Cold later. I know these country. Much number cold nights. But, I do what you say." He lingered.

"What is it? Got something on your mind?"

The man's confirmatory grunt deepened the two little lines between Harcourt's brows.

"I got Kadyama on mind."

"What's the matter with him? Doesn't he like helping at the Waffle Shop after his regular work? Want more money?"

Pasca's dark eyes narrowed to glinting slits in his heavy face. "No sirree. He lak helpin' Mees Sampo ceesters, much good eat. He tink he marry on Tatima. He big chief's son. One day Meester Hale tell her she fine gal—Mees Hale off in Seattle—pay her plenty money to keep hees cabin clean. Tatima lak money. She lak beads an' gold nuggets. Now she tell Kadyama, 'Who, me, marry on Indian! No sirree! I lak gol'-hair men.' An' he say, he got Hale come day. You big boss now. You do comin' to mak Tatima lak heem. Save much trouble."

Harcourt's lips tightened as he looked up into the earnest face. Another complication.

"Tell Kadyama to take it easy, Pasca. Hale goes out on the boat day after tomorrow. He'll never come back."

The man's expression lightened. "He go day after tomorrow, you say? I tell Kadyama, yes sirree. He tink Tatima under spell. Says black cat—black debblin'. T'ings happen after he come. Bad! Bad! Bad! He keel him, sometam, p'raps."

He shuffled out. Harcourt looked after him in consternation. He had known that the native laborers regarded the black cat as an omen, but he hadn't realized that Blot was looked upon with superstition. Better suggest to the Sampo sisters that they keep their pet under guard.

He wondered if he were as colorless as he felt, as later he faced the men of the outfit, the consulting engineers, the heads of divisions.

"What the dickens has Janice done to her hair? I thought it was brown," he caught himself wondering before he directed curtly:

"Take the minutes of the meeting, Grant."

"But, my secretary—"

"Isn't coming." He was conscious of Tubby's grunt of surprise.

As in a haze he read instructions and outlined plans from the data furnished by the authorities.

Later, in the living-room of his cabin, he slipped into a brocaded lounging-robe, crimson as a Harvard banner, girdled like a monk's frock. His taut nerves relaxed as he felt its softness.

"You should see the fighting line of your mouth," Janice had said that night in New York.

"The present complication won't worry if any, Jan," he thought.

Tubby Grant slammed in.

"What's the big idea cutting out my secretary tonight? His greenish eyes were indignant, his voice low and hoarse.

"Delevan! Do you know who Delevan is?"

For an instant the guarded eyes of the two men met. Grant grinned sheepishly.

"I'm not dumb if I am fat."

"No, and no use bristling like a turkey-cock, Tubby. My mind's made up. I'll send her back to Seattle."

"Ba-gosh! Don't." The plea was a wail. "Think of the time we had finding a secretary. And she's good. Did Martha Sampo show you that paper?"

"She did."

"It's up to us to shield the girl. Why don't you get back to the man she ran away from?"

"Shield her? Of course—but how? It's a tricky situation. Tell Delevan to stay in the Sampo cabin till I see—her—him tomorrow. Good-night."

Harcourt stood at the open door watching Grant's stubby figure till it melted into the dusk. What ought he to do? There were two alternatives. Send her back, or acknowledge to the men that she had been sent under false pretenses and have her appear as a girl.

"Good morning, Bruce!"

With a barely repressed exclamation of annoyance, Harcourt returned the greeting of the woman who smiled at him from the office door. She was small and slender.

"It's great to see you back again, Mrs. Hale."

Color flooded the thin face. "Mrs. Hale! Why this sudden assumption of ceremony, Mr. Harcourt?"

He laughed. "Business for business hours. I picked up that slogan when I was in the States."

Remembering Hale's ugly thrust, "Home-breaker!" uncomfortable, feeling like a cad, Harcourt stuck to his guns. Could he warn the little woman without seeming a conceited fool?

"Come out, Millicent. I want to talk to you." As they stood in the strong, warm sunshine outside the door, he regretted gravely:

"I'm sorry about Hale's demotion. He can't have a very friendly feeling toward me. You'd better—"

She shrugged her understanding. "Better keep away from your office, you mean? Why should you be sorry? The best man wins in the end always, doesn't he? I've felt all that I can feel about Joe. When he reached Seattle, I was refreshed, rested. He was like his old self. I had the courage to go on, but since he heard of his demotion he has been unbearable. I suppose I shouldn't have left him alone last winter—they tell me that he was worse than ever—but, I had reached the stage where I couldn't endure my life here another moment. However, I shan't be on your mind much longer. I came to tell you that we are going out on tomorrow's boat, to ask you to help. If I'd known that he was to be sent home, I wouldn't have come back. I don't dare confide in Jimmy; he goes off like a rocket if he thinks me unhappy. Joe says he won't go, but he's going. I've ceased being a dumb Dora. He's going." Her voice rose on the last word and broke in a sob.

"Take it easy, Millicent. Grant and I will help you get him off. I'll see that Jimmy keeps on the track-laying job till you get away. Perhaps when Joe is back among his own people he'll straighten out."

"Do you think I fool myself? Do you think I believe that a man who has let himself go so far as he has can ever come back? Oh well, what's the use talking about it. You've been dear to me, Bruce. If only—if only I could stay with you."

Her reckless suggestion sent the blood surging to Harcourt's forehead.

"Millicent, you've heard me say before that an engineer's camp was no place for women. I'm mighty glad that you are going back to civilization."

"But you like having the Sampo sisters here."

"They are not women, they're ministering angels. I suspect they are fixtures. Were I to banish them and their waffles, I'd have a strike on my hands. I'm going to the shop now to discuss building another cabin for them."

"They've gone maternal over Tubby Grant's secretary, Jimmy Delevan. Have you seen him? He's an effeminate little fellow."

Harcourt with difficulty swallowed his heart which took-off to furiously run its engine in his throat.

"I haven't spoken to the boy. Tubby tells me that he's a wov at his job." They started along the board walk, Tong at their heels, toward the Waffle Shop, connected by a covered passage with the Sampo cabin. Millicent Hale stared at the snow-capped mountain with the faint cloud of smoke hovering above it.

"I—hate to leave you here with— with no one to look after you. Sure you don't want me to stay, Bruce?"

"Sure, Millicent."

Color stole over her thin face. With a quick drawn breath she turned away. Harcourt pulled out his handkerchief and wiped beads of perspiration from his forehead. He felt like a brute. Poor little woman, grasping at any hand which would hold her from going on with the man who had failed her. She hadn't meant that about staying here, with him. It was only that she was crazed with despair. She wouldn't leave Joe Hale to shift for himself, now that he'd lost his job, any more than she would desert a sick child. His knock on the door of the Sampo cabin was grimly imperative.

"Come in."

He closed the door behind him, backed against it as he regarded Janice Trent, alias Jimmy Delevan. The soft yellow moustache had been discarded. Eyes like velvety bronze pansies met his defiantly as the girl demanded in a voice forced to bravado pitch:

"What—what are you going to do with me?"

In the wall mirror he caught a glimpse of his face. It was white, his eyes were blazing. It was no part of his plan to terrify her to death. His attempt at a laugh was a grim failure.

"Why did you come?"

"Suspended sentence? Prisoner to be allowed to be heard in her own defense?"

He took a quick step forward. "Cut out the sarcasm, Jan. Sit down and listen to me." As she snuggled into the enfolding wings of the big chair the black cat touched her hair with a velvet paw.

"Let's not start out as though we were about to fight and die over this. Why did you come here in disguise?"

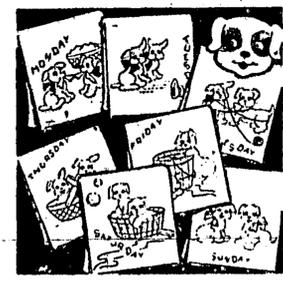

The girl locked and interlocked her fingers. "Now that your voice and eyes are human, not like those of a tiger about to spring, I'll tell you. Remember the evening you returned my slipper? I had already broken my engagement to Ned Paxton. Early that morning, when he was taking me home from a pre-nuptial celebration, I demanded the truth of a story which Billy had heard—that two nights before he had dined and dined some notorious show-women in a near-by city. He was insufferably flippant in his answer. Insultingly sure of me. I pushed open the roadster door to jump. He pulled me back, but not my slipper. Then he tried to cajole me into a forgiving mood."

"You didn't forgive him?"

"No. I returned his ring. He laughed. Said that with the marriage but a few days ahead I wouldn't have the nerve to break it off. Assured me in his caressing voice that I was the only girl he had ever asked to marry him. He tried to make me understand that the man who played round with other women was an entirely different self from the one who loved me, that his pursuit of the good and beautiful in me was to his credit. He was almost convincing, but not quite. I told him that not being Reno-minded the double personality argument left me cold. That I would cancel my part of the wedding preparations, he must take care of his. That night, just after you entered the house, he called me on the phone to inform me that he hadn't given me up, that he was sorry that he had pulled rough stuff in the roadster—Ned can be appealingly sorry; it's one of his charms—that he would see me later in the evening, he had pearls for me."

Greatest Sabotage

The most gigantic sacrificial sabotage in world history was the destruction of Russia's Dnieper river dam by the Red army last August, says Collier's. This great hydroelectric project, which was completed in 1932, required five years to build and cost $500,000,000.

Careers in Engineering
By R. T. Strohm
Dean, International Correspondence Schools

WHO enriched our lives by the airplane, the modern refrigerator, the automobile, the radio? Who provided us with light at the flick of a switch? Who, indeed, has wrought more changes in our manner of life than the engineer?

In conquering the forces of nature man learned engineering. The first lever used to pry a rock, the first wheel built to move burdens, the first wedge shaped to split a log were creations of prehistoric engineers. Over four thousand years ago, engineers built the dams on the Euphrates and erected the Egyptian pyramids.

Two thousand years ago Roman engineers tied Europe together by highways, spurred the migration of older civilizations into unexplored countries. There the conquerors provided uncontaminated water supplies and shelter against the elements. So down through the ages, making life more secure and more satisfying, the work of engineers has gone forward.

The work of engineers, often unsung, has provided for ever-widening and continuous benefits to the human race, through control of nature's forces and materials.

Today the youth of vision, interested in knowing more about our fast moving age may well consider engineering as one of the most utilitarian and fascinating professions.

Engineering embodying a knowledge of mathematics, technological arts and sciences and the ability to direct and work with men offers worthwhile careers for youth of ability!

Last Words

Last words of dying persons are like the mutterings in a delirium. Why then are they so treasured? asks Dr. J. Shelton Horsley in an article in Hygeia Magazine. The melodramatic picture of relatives hovering over a deathbed in based on the wrong conception. Last words are of no value when they come from a mind benumbed by approaching death. It is better to remember the words spoken while the person was in a healthy mental and physical state.

Tests Indicate 40-Knot

Speed for Ocean Liners Wallsend, England.—Liners which will cross the Atlantic at 40 knots—almost 10 knots faster than the Queen Mary—are foreshadowed by secret experiments now being conducted on Tyne-side.

A firm of shipbuilders is testing a model of a streamlined hull of revolutionary design. It has proved too fast for the Teddington tank of the National Research laboratory, and to enable it to be tested at full speed, a special tank has had to be ordered.

If the tests are successful, the firm will place on the stocks an ocean-going yacht embodying the new principles.

Engineers believe that the next step will be to build a 40-knot Atlantic liner and destroyers doing up to almost 60 knots. A liner with that speed would cross the Atlantic in approximately three days, compared with the three days twenty-two hours fifty-seven minutes with which the Queen Mary won the record in August, 1936.

'Flight Strips' Are New Aid For Aviators

WASHINGTON.—If it isn't an enemy ship don't be frightened some day soon if as you drive your car down the highway you see a plane swoop out of the sky toward the road. For chances are pretty good that the aircraft will be making for a "flight strip" or auxiliary landing area that has been built near the highway.

Army air force officials have announced that they are co-operating in building of these landing areas under terms of a highway act recently signed by the President. The flight strips are to be constructed for the use of the service type of aircraft adjacent to public roads.

Although highways themselves have been used for airplane landings in cases of emergency, it is obvious that this use of highways by aircraft is impracticable except in cases of the most extreme emergency because of the danger of accidents and the blocking of traffic.

Construction of flight strips in most instances, will involve little more than widening the highway rights-of-way or the use of roadside development areas and establishment of a definite line of demarcation between highway and flight strip.

Runway Must Be Straight.

The runway on a flight strip area may be 3,000 to 8,000 feet in length, depending upon elevation of the ground above sea level and the type of aircraft for which it is intended. Since this runway must be straight, the "flight strip" may not parallel the highway throughout its entire length, especially in rolling or mountainous country, where few roads have long straight stretches, but where the rights-of-way or adjacent roadside development areas can be widened to provide flight strips. The flight strip areas probably will have a minimum cleared width of 300 feet, with an actual runway width of not less than 150 feet.

The type of construction to be undertaken at each flight strip may vary with the geographical location and altitude of the area. Locations will be sought with a view to creation of landing facilities for "organization in depth" in order to conserve fuel and extend the range of aircraft. Effort will be made to develop areas where treatment of the soil may not require more than the growing of a heavy grass turf to make it suitable for the operation of all except the largest and heaviest of aircraft.

No drastic changes are necessary in highway improvement planning, except that in some cases, it is advocated that, highways be placed on one side of wide rights-of-way instead of in the center, thereby allowing the remaining parts of the rights-of-way to be available for flight strips.

Home Nursing Training Program Is Geared for War Emergency

(This article was prepared by the American Red Cross to aid in explaining to the women of the United States the efforts of the organization in its current home nursing training courses and war fund drive.)

By VIOLET K. LIBBY

NEW YORK.—Women of America! If someone in your family falls sick or is injured, and you can't get a trained nurse to help—do you know how to carry on? Can you take a temperature, give bedside care, carry out the doctor's orders?

Someone's life may depend on your knowledge of home nursing, the American Red Cross warns. Due to the number of nurses called to active duty with the army and navy the shortage of professional nurses grows daily more serious.

Through Red Cross Home Nursing classes hundreds of wives, mothers and girls are learning to prepare for home emergencies. For 30 years, through its chapters and branches, the Red Cross has been teaching the women and girls of America to take care of the sick in their own homes.

Classes Being Formed.

Now that we are at war, new Red Cross Home Nursing classes are being formed all over the country. Part of the $50,000,000 war fund for which the Red Cross is appealing will be used to finance these urgently needed courses, through which the Red Cross expects to teach at least 500,000 women the principles of home nursing as a vital measure of home defense.

Women of all ages may enroll in these Home Nursing classes. They are organized by local Red Cross chapters and branches in cities, towns, and rural communities, and may be held, not only in Red Cross chapters and branch headquarters, but in public schools, churches and similar places where there are suitable facilities for teaching. Registered Red Cross nurse-instructors give the classes, which cover 24 hours' instruction in simple home nursing.

In these Home Nursing classes, women learn through demonstration and actual practice how to follow the doctor's orders intelligently and what to do in case of emergency. They learn how to keep themselves and their families fit and well as part of their contribution to national defense. Mothers learn how to take care of their babies properly, what to do in case of illness, and how to prevent the spread of communicable diseases. Students learn just how to take care of patients in bed, how to make them comfortable, and how to feed them. They are also shown the best way to look after convalescents and old people.

All Can Help.

There are classes for all—mothers, wives, young women, high school girls—and there are even classes for men and boys. Any person or group wishing to join such a Home Nursing class should get in touch with the local Red Cross chapter or branch.

On completing the course satisfactorily, students receive a "Red Cross Home Nursing Certificate," and are ready to take care of the sick at home and to volunteer their services in local wartime or disaster emergencies, if necessary.

Last year 2,500 nurses, many volunteering their time, taught 60,000 women and girls. Today, the Red Cross expects to enroll 15,000 registered Red Cross nurse-instructors to teach these courses. Any nurse who is qualified and able to serve as an instructor for these Home Nursing classes should get in touch with her local Red Cross chapter or branch at once.

The Red Cross is appealing for a $50,000,000 war fund, to expand its Home Nursing and all other services to meet war time needs.

Hawaiian Islanders Defend Large Area

HONOLULU.—Hawaiian islanders in their longtime tourist paradise—transformed into an active war outpost with the attack on Pearl Harbor and bombardment of Maui island—have a "bits and pieces" area of nearly 6,500 square miles to defend.

The Hawaiian group, lying diagonally across the central stretches of the North Pacific, comprises eight main islands and a number of islets. Maui, near the easternmost end of the archipelago, is more than 2,000 miles from the United States mainland. On the western side, the outlying atoll of Kure is roughly 2,300 miles from Japan, according to the National Geographic society.

According to 1940 figures, the Hawaiian Islands have a population of about 423,000, of whom more than a third are Japanese. Of the rest, the chief classifications include about 108,000 whites, 65,000 native and part-Hawaiians, 50,000 Filipinos, and 35,000 Chinese and Koreans. With some four-fifths of the people born in Hawaii, a large proportion of the Oriental group are United States citizens.

The island of Oahu, containing Honolulu and the Pearl Harbor naval base, has the heaviest population density.

Farmers Prepare for Their Biggest Year

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

As their contribution to the war effort to achieve victory, the farmers of the United States are planning to produce, during this year, the largest amounts of farm products that have ever been raised. The new production goals call for more intensive efforts in every line, and farmers are being the slack winter months to get ready for turning out this greater output of food that is needed.

Increases reaching more than 10 per cent are planned for most of the major farm products, including corn, pork, beef, eggs, and chickens. Farmers specializing in these lines have already boosted their production and raised their income. They will do even more during this year in order to meet the larger demand from consumers with higher incomes, from the government to supply the armed forces, and from nations abroad that are fighting with us.

Dairy farmers are expected to lead all types of farmers in income gains, consumer use of milk is increasing and augmented exports of condensed milk and cheese to Great Britain will further improve their income. The national production schedule calls for a 7 per cent increase in milk production in 1942. Whether this will be reached is problematical. Dairy herds number only about 3 per cent more cows, and the other 4 per cent desired will have to result from increased output per cow.

Soybeans assume even more importance as the oil derived from them becomes more vital in our national production program. Acreage is expected to be larger in 1942, and higher prices are in prospect.

Less wheat and cotton will be raised because supplies of these crops are already large and the export markets for them have either been entirely cut off or greatly reduced. Surpluses now amount to almost two years' normal requirements. Instead of raising more to add to the surplus, farmers will devote most of their energies to turning out the food and feed crops for which the new need is much more urgent.

Farms in every part of the country are in good condition to meet the increased demands that will be put upon them this year. Except for the drought areas in the East and parts of the Southeast, and the excessive rainfall in the Central area, moisture has been normal and will give the crops a good start this spring.

Farm Labor Shortage.

The shortage of farm labor and increased wages for hired hands will add somewhat to costs, and is already handicapping farmers in many parts of the country. This shortage will be one of the major problems during this year, but it is now being tackled by federal, state and local co-operation. It will be a hardship for many farmers, but it can be overcome to a large extent by careful planning of work and improved methods of farm management.

Welcome at a Housewarming—Honey Twist Rolls (See Recipes Below)

Housewarming Time

Whether you've planned the housewarming as a surprise to the family in their new home, or whether you're inviting friends to an "at home" in your own home, keep everything as simple as possible. If you have many coming, ask some earlier and others later so the house

*Fruited Coffee Cake.

(Makes 1 large ring)
 1 cake yeast
 1/2 cup lukewarm potato water
 8 cups flour, sifted

Frost with a powdered sugar icing and sprinkle with chopped or shredded nuts.

Here are some cookies that are as delightful as homespun. They're especially nice for housewarming because the recipe makes a large quantity and you won't be able to count consumption on them. The blending of fruits with spices makes this a popular cookie:

Cape Elizabeth Cookies.

 1/2 cup butter
 1 cup brown sugar
 1 egg
 5 tablespoons milk
 1 1/2 cups flour
 1 cup rolled oats

Prints Make Their Appearance With Bright Floral Patterns

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WELCOME the new prints! They are gay, they are lovely, they are everything you want them to be in the way of chic and refreshing novelty. It's going to be a most exciting time for prints from now on. Not only are they putting in a much earlier appearance than usual, but they are strikingly novel in both color and design.

Smartly in keeping with the vogue for bright touches to add warmth and color to the winter wardrobe, charming rayon prints are appearing in such an out-of-the-ordinary assortment that they set a new high in zesty color and originality.

Speaking of the unusualness of new print design, you'll be thrilled with the charm of the new lace prints which fashion enthusiastically features this season. They are simply stunning! In some instances the lace motifs are so strikingly realistic it almost seems as if they were applied to their background. However, you will find it is really artfully printed patterning. Many of these lace prints are combined with gorgeous florals.

It is just such lavish lace designs as pictured to the right in the foreground of the group illustrated that are calling forth ohs and ahs from print-seeking enthusiasts. Here the patterning captures the delicate tracery of lace paper doilies and the color glory of chrysanthemums for a striking print design on fine acetate rayon jersey. The styling of this winsome midseason dress conveys a message of soft draping and a very important message it is, too, for the newer silhouettes are making a feature of slenderizing drapage technique.

An outstanding new treatment found in the new prints is that of wide-spaced, brilliant florals that contrast vividly against navy or black grounds. Such designs as scattered rose or tulip prints vie for popularity with extravagant mixtures of many-colored exotic blooms. See the stunning dress worn by the figure seated on arm of chair, as shown to the left in the picture. The luxurious rayon crepe used for this newest and smartest of afternoon dresses glories in an exquisite flower and feather patterning in many colors. This deftly draped and molded-to-the-figure frock is a typically last-minute creation which answers the question of what's new for immediate wear.

Centered in the picture above is a charming print design of immense parma violets gives an exquisite handpainted effect to the softly draped flat rayon crepe that fashions this graceful, full-skirted frock. Watch for these handpainted effects, which are stunningly achieved with multi-color bouquets or single flowers spaced widely over backgrounds of fine rayon crepe in solid tones. Be on the lookout, also, for the new and fascinating leather prints. Soft plume effects are being importantly featured; also graceful palm fronds that look very tropical when green widely-spaced ferns or palms are printed on white grounds. Other important prints that take you into the realm of small, bright effects carry interestingly diminutive plumes, formalized medallions and curls, or exotic paisley patternings.

Crocheted

To give the smart fillip to your appearance you really should wear a touch of crochet somewhere about your costume, now that crochet has grown to be one of the most outstanding words in the present-day fashion vocabulary. Why not crochet a beret as pictured above, the original of which was shown in an all-crochet fashion show recently sponsored by the National Needlecraft bureau.

For the smart beret here shown, Wanda Koller, a designer noted for her artistry and skill in crochet, uses two shades of pink mercerized cotton. Worn with a cerise colored crepe-afternoon dress, it makes a smart ensemble for a luncheon or bridge engagement.

Plastic Bags

Surprise and delight await those who first see the new handbags made of woven plastic thread. With the possible shortage of other materials plastics are definitely "in."

'Ballerina' Dress

Delights the Young

As a compromise, here is an evening dress that looks festive but not too formal. It is a new type of frock—the ballerina dress, which has recently made its appearance in the fashion picture.

As its name implies, this new frock is full-skirted and ankle-length. It really is a forerunner of the short-length evening dress. Young, pretty and so new is this dainty dress. The prettiest of materials go into its making. Lovely prints yield beautifully to the ballerina silhouette. Perhaps the most charming of all are the ballerina dresses made of lace. The bodices that top the ballerina skirts are purposely styled with the utmost simplicity, have short sleeves, fit snugly and add to their lure with deep-cut square or heart-shaped necklines.

A most significant sidelight on the ballerina vogue is that the junior and teen-age girls are so fascinated with the idea they are adopting the fashion for daytime dresses of gay chintz and crisp cottons.

New Sweaters

Luxury-type sweaters are taking on most dazzling details for evening wear. It's a good plan to have one or two sweaters in reserve. They play such a varied and helpful part in either your afternoon or your really "dress-up" wardrobe, with short skirts or the long evening skirts.

Lisle Mesh

Here's your answer to the hosiery problem! It's smart lisle hose in flattering mesh—perfect with your daytime woollens and tweeds. Favorite colors are cocobark, brown-burite and honeycomb. If you prefer fine plain lisle without mesh, it is now available in all leading stores.

Run Over by Locomotive, Sleeper Just Has Headache

MONTGOMERY, ALA. — Oliver Graham, 47, went to sleep on the tracks of the Seaboard air line, using a rail for a pillow. A freight train bound for Americus, Ga., struck him and the big locomotive and three box cars passed over his body.

In consequence, he is suffering from a severe headache. The engineer saw the head on the rail just before the train reached it, whereupon he stopped the train and the crew went back to investigate the remains. They found Graham sitting beside the track, dazed. Railroad men say Graham's head was too low for the cowcatcher, and the ponderous wheel simply pushed his head from the rail. A few slight bruises were evident when he was taken to Hubbard hospital.

Fleeing Rabbit Scores

Knockdown in Cornfield

He looked around to see what had hit him. Nearby lay a large jack-rabbit, also stunned from the collision.

In its hurry to get away from a dog the rabbit collided with Van Whyke. Van Whyke was bruised. The rabbit died.

Open New Chapter In Fortune Mixup

Thousands Claim Share in Millions Amassed by Snuff Magnate.

PHILADELPHIA.—Legal referees of an international fortune scramble are ready to shake another family tree.

Somewhere among its branches they may find what they seek—the heir, or heirs, if any, to millions a little old lady didn't bother to mention in her will.

Amassed from sales of snuff during the mid-Victorian era, Mrs. Henrietta Garrett's fortune totaled $17,500,000 when she died 10 years ago.

That sum has expanded into a $20,000,000 golden apple—and it's still growing.

25,000 Claimants.

It is claimed by no less than 25,000 persons scattered throughout 45 states and 27 foreign countries. In the fight, too, is the state of Pennsylvania, which contends that since there are no known heirs, the money should go into the public coffers.

But four years of turbulent and interminable court hearings have failed to establish whether any are entitled to it. This fabulous grab-bag has driven people to suicide, fraud and even murder.

Court hearings were interrupted last October by commonwealth charges that a Pennsylvania family group falsified Bible birth records to support a fraudulent claim.

They contended one of their kin, Isaac Newton Sheaffer, Newark, Del., wall paper dealer, was an illegitimate son of the widow—born before her marriage to Walter Garrett, wealthy Quaker snuff manufacturer. Sheaffer and five others were convicted. Their appeal for a new trial is pending.

And now—with less than 5,000 cases heard — investigators are ready to explore the next claim—that of the German clan of Kretschmar.

It was from the junction of the Kretschmar and Sheaffer families a century ago that Mrs. Garrett came. Daughter of an immigrant German cabinet maker, she met Garrett under Cinderella circumstances (she was scrubbing a porch) and married him not long after. He died in 1895.

Disposed of $62,500.

She was 61 when she scribbled her now-famous "request" to "Dear Mr. Charles S. Starr," wealthy investment broker and one of the two executors:

"Give up my estate and belongings which are named in my book per A/C the following amounts: "Give Henrietta G. Ferguson the sum of $10,000 if living. Give to Mary A. Weaver. . . ."

In that manner, to a few intimate friends and employees, she disposed of only $62,500—a pittance of her fortune.

The stupendous problem confronting investigators could have been avoided had the widow heeded the advice of her business-like husband. Fifty years ago he urged her to "make a will at once" and not "let the scalavags get any" of her money.

She put it off for 30 years. Then when she did write a will, it was the inadequate document. If there was another will, it never has been found, although the search has extended even to her grave.

Walls in her old home were torn down, floors ripped up, closets virtually demolished and an iron safe drilled open, without avail.

An eerie tale prompted reopening of the widow's grave in lonely Laurel Hill cemetery. There was, however, no will.

The year 1941 has past. 8557 people in Lincoln County have paid $35,364.65 into Defense Bonds and Stamps. That's pretty good but it costs $40,000.00 to build and equip one large tank. 1942 is just beginning. Let's see how quick we can put more tanks on the BATTLE FIELD.
