National and International Problems Inseparable

We are at last beginning to feel the colossal changes war has forced on the economic and social life of the nation. And, in the next six months or so, changes in a far greater degree than anything we have yet experienced will inevitably take place.

It should be clear to everyone by now that the American standard of living, which has been infinitely luxurious by comparison with that of most of the rest of the world, will be largely abandoned for the duration. This year, our national income will be the largest in our history. But the amount of money which the people will have to spend for goods and services will be down to the lowest depression levels and perhaps lower. There are three principal reasons for that. First, and most important, is the tax burden, which will be felt in the lowest income groups, and will reach staggering proportions in the middle and high income groups. Second, War Bond purchases, whether voluntary or enforced, will take a substantial part of everyone's remaining income. Third, the price level is far above that of 1932 and 1933.

For the most part, we have not yet felt any particular lack of "luxury goods." While manufacture of such goods was stopped some time ago in most lines, stocks on hand have kept store inventories adequate. Soon it will be impossible to buy a refrigerator, an automatic heating plant, a radio, an office machine, and ten thousand and one other items, unless you have a first-class priority rating, and the item is needed for a purpose directly connected with the war. Rationing of public transportation services may make pleasure travel impossible. And it is generally expected that a card-rationing system, similar to that now in effect for sugar, will be extended to other foods, to clothes and to many additional necessities.

Whole professions are being virtually wiped out. For example, there is the plight of the salesman. There is no need for his services if his industry is engaged in war work. If his industry is not in war work, its production is swiftly declining and he has less and less to sell. These people are being absorbed by war industry, for the most part. After the war they will face another difficult problem of readjustment.

Whole industries are in the same position. The mortality, for instance, in the businesses which have been built up about the automobile, service stations, repair shops, roadside restaurants, resorts, etc., is great, and before long it will be tremendous. All their proprietors and employees can do is to close shop and get a war job. There is no place for their businesses in the war picture.

The face of American communities of all sizes is changing swiftly. Gigantic war plants are being developed in sections where there was little industry before. In many defense areas, population growth, unprecedented in its rapidity—has created an exceedingly severe housing and transportation problem. These problems have not yet been adequately solved, and they will grow worse. They constitute a major headache to governmental authorities.

The population trend from country to city is intense. Agricultural workers, attracted by the big wages paid by war industry, are literally leaving the farms in droves. The farm operator can't get enough labor, and, even when he can, he must offer wages that in many cases are beyond his ability to pay. This has offset a good part of the benefits of increased farm income.

The foregoing simply illustrates a few of the almost revolutionary changes that are occurring in this country. And they illustrate, by inference, what our post-war problems will be. Authorities in both business and government seem convinced that none of the problems are insoluble. They know that there will be many mistakes, many errors in judgement. But they believe that, after the war, this nation's incredible industrial plant will be able to provide jobs for all employables, and will in time bring the general standard of living to a level well beyond anything we have known. It is a healthy sign that, even as we grapple with the immense problems of war, we are also thinking ahead to the peace to come.

Joins Navy

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Sanchez received word from their son, Albert last Wednesday, that he had passed his physical examination and now was on his way to a Naval training station.

Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Rathmann of Pasadena, California and some friends are spending a week at the Rathmann cabin on the Bonito.

Notice

This is to inform all retailers in this County that Price Lists of cost of living commodities as defined in bulletin No. 2, must be filed with this board by July 1st, 1942.

Signed: William W. Gallacher, Chairman, Local Rationing Board No. 14, Carrizozo, N. M.

Miss Mollie Greer was an El Paso visitor last Wednesday.

Lest We Forget

On February 14, 1940, Republican Rep. George H. Tinkham, of Massachusetts, said: "At the very outbreak of the European War, the President began repeatedly to inject the poison of fear in the veins of public emotionalism. He began to see phantom submarines off our coast."

On Feb. 16, 1940, Republican Rep. J. William Ditter of Pennsylvania said: "The President's naval expansion program, based on an undefined foreign policy or on an exaggerated domestic need—a program that carries with it an admitted divergence of funds—must be looked upon with some degree of apprehension and a considerable amount of suspension."

On Feb. 16, 1940, Republican Rep. Frederick C. Smith of Ohio said: "Whatever may be our needs for additional expenditures for defense, every dollar we increase previous costs burdens our sick economy that much more. After all, it is hardly a good thing to do to give a sick man a gun too heavy for him to carry."

On Feb. 16, 1940, Republican Rep. John G. Alexander of Minnesota said: "When we consider that we are asked to forego wise and helpful expenditures for civil functions of the War Department so that we can build for war, we wonder. We are being asked to appropriate upward of $2,000,000,000 for national defence—a so-called program for peace." Do we?

Livestock Situation

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, June 25, 1942. Recognizing the need for vastly increased meat supplies for the armed forces and to satisfy Lease-Land requirements, Congress has passed H. J. Resolution No. 315 which gives the Secretary of Agriculture opportunity to extend Federal meat inspection to state, county and municipally inspected plants which qualify. This means that many slaughterers may now bid on government orders in addition to the plants which have been operating under Federal meat inspection, and should add materially to competition for supplies, and provide the government with more adequate supplies of meat.

The order is of particular significance in California where only a comparatively small portion of meat has been passed upon by the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry meat inspectors. This is due to the fact that California imports a very large percentage of its meat requirements, and Coast packers have not felt the need for Federal inspection which has been necessary for interstate shipments of meat. It should be pointed out that California department of agriculture health requirements have been rigid.

Only three or four of the 10 dozen or more regular buyers at the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards are operating under Federal meat inspection. The new order, when put into effect by the Secretary of Agriculture, may be expected to greatly expand the competition for grades of livestock which meet Army, Navy and Lease-Lend specifications.

Livestock markets have been maintained on a firm basis on most grades and classes at the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards during the past week. Strictly good fed steers are selling at $13

4-H Livestock Members Contest

Incentives to 4-H livestock club members as offered in the national meat animal contest, are more important this year than ever before, according to a statement by the National 4-H Committee in Chicago in announcing it for 1942. This is because some shows in which 4-H members enter have been cancelled.

"Even without a chance to show, 4-H owners of livestock can still put their work into competition if they enter the contest", it is stated "since it emphasizes the rate and cost of gains contained in the project record book, and also the general standing of the member in home, club and community activities."

With roundly a third of a million of clubsters growing market and breeding animals this year it is recognized by club leaders as good policy to keep alive their influence in the business and have the benefit of the large volume of their production for war and domestic needs.

Medals for county winners, watches for state victors and four fine trips and three $200 college scholarships are provided for this year's 18th annual contest by Thos. M. Wilson, chairman of the committee. The contest is accepted in this state.

ADVERTISING PAYS

LOST: Zipper change purse containing about $9.00. Finder return to Mrs. May Jordan. Liberal reward.

The above ad appeared in The Lincoln County News for two issues. Last Friday Floyd Littleton returned the purse to Mrs. Jordan, who gave him a liberal reward. Floyd was riding his bicycle along the street and found the purse, much the worse for wear, having been run over by numerous cars at the intersection. The money was all there, and Floyd had read the ad, so now everybody is happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Luis Nalda and little daughter were in town last Saturday from their ranch, near red canyon.

Mr. Melvin Richardson was here last Tuesday from Corona, where he has been employed.

Mr. Meyer Barnett went to El Paso Wednesday to attend the funeral of his brother, Harry Barnett, who died there after an illness of several months.

Hope Snow went to Captain Monday to spend a few days with her aunt, Mrs. Champ Ferguson.

to 13.85 a cwt., medium grades mainly $12 to $12.75, grass-fed steers $11 to $12 for slaughter with other grass steers going to feedlots for further finish at $10.25 to $11. A good many common steers, mainly of Mexican origin, are selling at $9.25 to $10.50, some fed Mexican steers at $10.50 to $11.50.

BANKS AND THE WAR

Buy Coal Now

Your government URGES you to purchase the coal you will need next winter NOW. You will be helping, not hoarding. You will be taking pressure off the nation's coalmining and transportation facilities in late summer and fall, when both will be badly needed for war purposes. Should you want a loan to pay for your season's coal requirements, this bank will welcome your application.

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: To save his life, Con Cameron is forced to join a band of outlaws headed by Dud Paramore. Because he was seen with the Paramores, who are wanted for robbery and murder, he is suspected of being one of their gang, of being a certain Comanche Lina. Arrested when he rides into Tivan, he is not released in spite of the fact that he had saved the life of the marshal, Nevil Lowe, only a few days before. Knowing that he must escape or be hanged, Con breaks out of jail with Jeff Allmon. On their way to join Paramore they meet a group of Mexicans, and Jeff takes their money. Con insists that he return it. One of the Mexicans promises to help him if he has a chance, and a little later, in the nearby town of San Marcos, he does so. One of Paramore's men, Gonzalez, has threatened to kill Con. The Mexican warns him in time; and Con kills Gonzalez first. They are surprised in San Marcos by Lowe and a posse. In the fight that follows Lowe kills some of Paramore's crew, and Dud swears vengeance. It is few minutes later.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VIII

"Now, Con," said Dud, "he's kind of like Big in one way—nothing on the shoot, but kind of fancying himself with his fists. Of course, Big was really something at flat-and-skull and Con—Says! You wouldn't think you're as good as Big was, Con? Would you?"

"Why, certainly not!" Con cried loudly. "How could I be, if he was somewhere around as good as you are? You let me be just next after him, will you? Even that makes me second to you and I couldn't ask more."

"Well, see!" Dud told him, flat, singsong drawl almost a whine. "You and me'll try a lil' tussle—friendly, of course. Kind of see where you do stack up when you ain't bucking somebody like poor lil' Snaky Gonzales."

"This is certainly obliging of you, Dud," Con drawled humbly.

Dud leaped a yard from the ground with a scowl yell and cracked his heels together. He dropped lightly and rushed Con with another yell, flailing terrific blows from all angles. Con slid to the side and let him go by.

"Of course," Con went on evenly, "I never did see Big—"

Again he evaded the bull-like charge and Dud fell flat.

Con watched him scramble furiously to his feet and charge with the ferocity of an animal. He increased his speed, trying to hammer down the smaller man.

Con hummed "Buffalo Gals" and jabbed his left into Dud's face to snap his head back, hooked a right to the belt that doubled him over, then turned and walked to where the goping Jeff and Catfish sat.

"If it's all the same to you," he said, "I think that's just plenty for a friendly mill. I'm all out of wind!"

Dud walked shakily to where Catfish held his pistols, but when he sank to the ground he could only pant open-mouthed for minutes.

"If you was—half as good—with your cutter—as you are with your fists," he said at last, "you'd be somebody! Yeh!"

Dud gestured toward the whisky jug.

"Take a big snort of that tarantula blood, you-all. We're going out in society. Yes, kid! We'll hit Nevil Lowe a lick that'll knock the book right out of the hand of that college professor grandpa that started the NL. We're going visiting him; going to strip the NL clean. If he ain't home—that's what we want."

They packed food into their saddle pockets before mounting. Jeff and Catfish and Dud seemed to pick up cheerfulness during the day as they rode across the mountains.

From thinking of the gunman, Con moved naturally to thought of that other artist with the Colt, gray and silent old Hugh Norris.

They stopped before dark at the house of a Mexican rancher, set on the divide that marked the long drop down to Lobo Valley—that held Tivan forty-odd miles westward. While he ate, and after the meal as they lounged about the door in pine-scented darkness, he listened to the talk of Dud, Catfish, and Jeff, and the ranchero and his two lean, handsome vaquero sons.

"Many! and fino!" the rancher answered Dud's question about Nevil Lowe's horses.

When they rode away from the rancher's next morning, Catfish led the way across foothills until they came to a one-room adobe with a small polo-cerisal beyond it. A tall man with bifoculars at his eyes studied them, then lowered his glasses. He stepped from the doorway into the yard and waited. When they came up to him he nodded.

"Howdy, Dud," he greeted them. "Hello, Catfish. Looking for a meal? Or just riding by?"

"Rode by to see if you-all wanted to come along with us and help Nevil Lowe out with his horses. Seems terrible, them horses running wild just because Nevil's so busy 'sheriffing he can't round 'em up. I got some other notions, too."

"We had something like that in our heads," the other said calmly. "Coming over to wawa with you. Pickings are awful slim with us. Be with you in a shake. Sain't come on down."

"Coming!" a cheerful voice said—

Con mounted calmly and rode over the ridge.

A blond head lifted at the edge of the dirt roof. They stared at the lanky cowboy gathered a Winchester and shotgun under his arm and swung easily to the ground beside his dark, older partner. He laughed at Con's disgusted expression.

"We like to be ready for company. So when we sighted you-all, I cached myself up there. If you'd wiggled a finger at Dandy, the four of you would have waked up in hell!"

"What we need is about eight nursemaids—two apiece!" Con drawled. "Somebody is going to steal the clothes off our backs and the horses from under us, in this wicked world."

"Hell! I guessed he was up there," Dud said quickly. "Well, let's go going," he grunted, when Con laughed.

By early afternoon they were out on a great flat where mesquite and greasewood studded the long grass. A cut wire lay behind them and they began to gather horses and move them slowly forward. At last they halted in a cottonwood grove in what Catfish said was Nevil Lowe's small holding pasture.

"Horse is just across the ridge," Dud announced. "Catfish, you and Con stick here to keep an eye on our horses. Rest of us'll round up the ranch. You say the Boy Sheriff's just working two boys, huh, Dandy? Reckon we can take care of 'em. May not be anybody there."

He led the diminished band across the ridge and Catfish and Con smoked and waited. When an hour dragged past, Con looked at the sun.

"I'm going up to see what's happened," he told the patient Catfish. "You're enough to watch the horses, in this pasture."

Catfish began to object. Dud had said—Con mounted calmly and rode over the ridge. The gang's horses stood outside of a neat, white plastered house set in a grassy yard shaded by big trees and bordered with flowers. Con rode down the slope and into the yard, to swing off and let the reins trail.

"Well!" Dud cried, when Con walked into a large, clean kitchen. "Thought there was something said, Con-Comanche, about you sticking with the horses."

"While you-all sit easy and gobble everything in sight, huh?" Con countered, grinning. "I left Catfish. He's a nice doggy—fool enough to sit up and bark and be glad if he's flipped a bone."

They were gathered comfortably at a big table covered with dishes. But evidently their meal had been finished; two quart bottles and tumblers were in the foreground and Dud and the big, dark Dandy were drinking. Con made himself a sandwich of steak and loaf bread and Yocked around. In a corner, very quiet and strained of expression, two young cowboys sat with backs stiffly against the wall.

While he ate, Con loomed curiously about, looking at the tidy place. He could see the hand of Janet Lowe, he thought. He went outside and around to look at the front. One door opening off the living room was open. Through it he glimpsed a bed—and two slender feet, oddly bunched about the ankles.

He went noiselessly across to look in. Janet Lowe was tied hand and foot with saddle strings. Her white, horror-stricken face was turned toward him; dark eyes were widened, glazed. He drew a long breath and slipped into the room, hand going mechanically into a pocket.

"What's all this about?" he breathed in her ear. "I didn't know what Dud was up to—"

"He—he's going to take me with him! He hates Nevil. He's afraid of him. He says this will fix Nevil—"

Con stood and looked desperately about. The casement window in the thick wall was open and outside he could hear the horses stamping lazily. He went swiftly back to the bed, opening his stock knife. The whangs about Janet's wrists and ankles dropped away from the sharp edge. He put an arm around her and helped her up. She began to work her hands, move her feet, staring at him.

"Come, girl!" he whispered.

"There's a good horse out there for you. You know the road to town. Ride it!"

He kept his arm around her shoulders as they crossed the room. Then he went easily through the window, reached through and caught her wrists. The small noises she made did not stop the talk in the kitchen. On the ground, outside, she watched him as a child might have done, expectantly—trustfully!

"Quiet!" he warned her.

There was a kitchen window to pass, before he could reach Jeff's horse. Someone would certainly be facing that way. He moved down the wall, dropped to hands and knees and crawled under the line of that sill. Erect again, he moved toward the horse. It opened its eyes and stiffened. When he put out a slow hand toward the trailing reins, it moved back a step. He edged closer. Another pace and he would be past the corner and in view of anyone looking through the kitchen door. Again he reached for the reins and the horse lifted a foot.

He caught the reins and pulled. The horse followed easily—even when he got down to crawl beneath the window. But inside the kitchen Dud said:

"Sain't! That damn' caballo of yours is a-walking off. Better catch him. We'll be leaving quick."

Con stood and went faster toward the girl. He drew his pistol and faced the corner of the house while he put down a hand to help Janet mount. But Jeff's voice came lazily:

"Ain't Sain't's horse. Mine. He won't go nowhere."

In the saddle, color seemed to come back to Janet's face. She looked frowningly at Con.

"Come with me! No matter what it is that you have to face, I don't think that you're—what—You—I'll make Nevil help you! He's not so sure of himself since that awful night when you and Jeff got away and—the others—Come with me! Please!"

"Reckon not. Now, you walk on off, slow. Get over that slope, then give him the lead."

"I wish you'd leave that awful Paramore!" she whispered, staring down at him with lip caught between her teeth. "I know you're not their kind. But—goodby!"

She bent suddenly from the saddle and her lips brushed his cheek. Then she straightened and tent the horse off at a slow walk toward the gate in the front fence.

Footsteps on the veranda sent Con swiftly to that corner. But it was Jeff coming from the front door. His mouth was tight and his eyes narrow. He looked furtively behind him, then at Con again. He beckoned imperatively.

"Boy! You have got to take your foot in your hand and light a shuck! Dud and that big, mean, new fellow, Dandy, they have had their heads together. Dud says to Dandy, when I ain't supposed to hear, that there's one in the lurch he aims to get shut of. And it's your tail feathers he aims to collect! Dandy says he would as soon do it as not—today."

"Because of—that?" Con asked frowningly.

Jeff started in the indicated direction. Through a gap in the trees Janet showed, going over the ridge that would hide her perfectly from the house, once passed.

"You—you let her loose!" he breathed. "And give her my horse! Hell! You ain't got five minutes. Dud'll look into that bedroom. Then he'll kill you! Man—Dud was plumb crazy about her first time he ever laid eyes on Janet. Here! I'm going back in and I'll stall Dud all I can. You slide around and grab Pancho and go on back to Catfish. Tell him—oh, anything! Then you ride like hell and don't you never let Dud catch up with you, no time! And—luck, kid! I never met a man I liked better!"

Con slapped him on the shoulder and ran noiselessly around the house, to drop and crawl beneath the window and so get to Pancho with the careless bearing of a man weary of hiding.

"I'm going back to the horses, Dud," he called. "Want Catfish to come down and eat?"

"Yeh. He might's well," Dud answered, leaning so that he looked through the door, grinning.

"Come, girl!" he whispered.

"There's a good horse out there for you. You know the road to town. Ride it!"

Cotton Plays a Stellar Role Throughout the Fashion Drama

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT'S the smartest fabric for summer? Cotton! Gingham, calicoes, denims and other equally humble cottons have soared to such heights of importance you can count on finding them 'way ahead of more pretentious fabrics in popularity.

Then, too, there is a feeling spreading among women that cottons are American and that it's a fine patriotic gesture to wear simple, pretty clothes that radiate cotton freshness. And so it is! In the gallant "spirit of '42" we are returning to the sweet simplicity of fashions made of cottons ranging from the most lowly, practical workaday types to appealing, lovely sheers that are correct even for formal wear.

To add to the zest of things, the current trend to cottons brings into use materials that were once never thought of in connection with costume design, such as, for instance, upholstery prints, pillow ticking, awning stripes, quilted calicoes, quilt patchwork prints. The truth is, anything on the "what-have-you" list of cotton materials qualifies as high fashion these days if given artful and ingenious styling.

Just now a novel cotton that comes under the glare of fashion's spotlight is quilt patchwork print. It is used for the cunning dress to the right in the above picture. You will see these amusing prints that make gay color contrast their theme in all the best store windows and on all the best beaches and in all the finest gardens. That calls to mind the latest entertaining "stunt" backyard barbecue parties for stay-at-homes with whom long motoring trips are taboo due to gas restrictions. Alert to the new movement, designers are creating cunning fashions of gay cottons. In the country casual pictured the patchwork design of the printed calico adds interest to the simple lines of the dress. The square neck and set-in waistband are smart style details. A triangle of light color at the neck achieves a yoke effect, with another in the skirt to look like an apron.

Darling daughters, as the illustration to the left in the above pictures shows, are going to the shore and out to swim as well, in striped glazed chintz. This cotton drapery fabric has made the hit of the season, appearing everywhere, in evening gowns, daytime dresses and play clothes. The pinafore shown covers striped "bra" and plain green chintz shorts.

The clam-digger overall and wrap-around skirt of the play suit centered in the group is equally at home working in the garden or on the beach. The material for this outfit is long-wearing and easy-to-wash denim in the popular faded blue. Its demure blouse, with pleated frills on the collar and cuffs, utilizes yellow calico in a quaint print. Without the blouse the overall is a grand costume in which to absorb the vitamin-giving rays of the sun.

Watch summer suits made of cotton! They're the rage this season. The long-jacket types lead, and they are of gingham, seersucker, gabardine, chambray, denim and shantung (black shantung is very smart). They are the smartest ever for about-town wear. Dressier suits are made of gay cotton prints.

War Bride

This charmingly feminine coiffure, especially designed for the war bride, is presented by the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association. The bride's hair is arranged in a rolled-back pompadour indented with a deep shadow wave, which provides a perfect complement to the coronet bridal veil. Clusters of loose finger curls are arranged at the neckline.

Clever Designers Use Glass, Seeds and Nuts

Now that so many materials have been restricted, it is interesting to note what clever media are taking their place.

Just to mention a few, there's silver, vegetable ivory, glass, nuts, seeds, shells, wood, string, hemp, rayon and reprocessed wool. Endless other items to follow are being transformed into smart jewelry and wearing apparel with consummate art under the magic touch of skillful designers.

Suit Fabrics Can Be Sheer or Sturdy

The suit mode has carried over from spring to summer. The difference in suits now and then is chiefly in the materials, which feature gingham, washable gabardines in pastels, navy or black.

A leading favorite is the suit made of black shantung. You can wear the new shantungs all summer long and look well-dressed.

An interesting item about summer suits is that so many have short sleeves. Most of the longer ones are of the open "bell" type, and they do not reach to the wrist.

Thin black mesh suits are a foremost fashion. These illustrate the renewed enthusiasm for the dressier uses of fragile black. This trend is carried on in lace-trimmed afternoon dresses with their exquisite detail.

Newest of the Browns

Is the Smart 'Ginger'

Making conversation everywhere in fashion circles are the new summer browns. Merchants are showing everything from hats and shoes to dresses and wraps in the new browns.

These are called by various names, including toast, cinnamon, cocoa, luggage, and the newest of all is ginger brown. A shantung suit in ginger brown is a "last word" in fashion. Also, many of the best looking prints are in brown and white.

Quilted Hats

Ask your milliner to show you the newest in quilted hats. No doubt you will be shown hats of yellow chambray quilted in the latest smart manner, for yellow is a much emphasized color in millinery fashions this season. Flowered chintz quilted is also very smart.

CLOSET WITH DRY AIR AN OFFSET TO MILDEW

ALL summer long come reports of dampness and mildewing in summer houses near the ocean or other large bodies of water. In humid and rainy periods the air of these houses is likely to be so damp that mold forms on clothing, and especially on shoes and other leather articles. One way to get around this is to utilize heat radiated by the kitchen chimney. This can be done by building closets around the chimney. The volume of heat thrown out by the chimney is not great, but it is continuous, and the air in these closets is dry enough to prevent mildewing. Another idea is to set an electric bulb on the floor of the closet and to burn it continuously. With the door shut, enough heat will be thrown out to keep the closet air dry. The bulb need not be large; 25 watts will have a decided effect. Care should be taken to keep anything burnable out of contact with the bulb. It should not lie on the floor, but be on a safe lamp base.

Septic Tank Drain

Question: All our drain pipes run into the septic tank. I recently heard that the kitchen sink drain should not be connected to the tank because of possible damage from soap suds and drain cleaning compounds. Is this true?

Answer: For best results the kitchen sink should be connected to a septic tank through a separate drainpipe provided with a grease-trap. This trap will separate the grease from the rest of the drainage and you will not need to use a drain cleaning compound. Also, the operation of the septic tank will be greatly improved. Any plumber can install a grease-trap.

Refinishing a Table

Question: Can I refinish a kitchen table top made of wood? The finish would have to be water resistant, and not require frequent refinishing.

Answer: Refinishing with a quick-drying synthetic resin varnish is one method. Another is to apply several soaking coats of boiled linseed oil. Allow each coat to soak in for an hour or two, then wipe off the surplus. After two or three such applications and after time for drying begin polishing with a rough cloth, such as a piece of old carpeting, wrapped around a brick. The more the surface is rubbed the better the finish will be.

Color for Walls

Question: We wish to paint the walls of our living-room, but cannot decide on the right color. We have a plain rose broadloom rug, a soft green sofa and a large rose chair. Can you suggest a color for the walls?

Answer: My own preference for the walls would be a very light shade of dusty rose, so pale that it is hardly noticeable. However, I suggest that you visit one of your large department stores to consult the interior decorator.

Stains on Copper

Question: In repairing a large copper window frame, turpentine acid was sprayed on its lower part. The result is a sprinkling of what looks like rust on the lower part of the frame. The acid has also stained a part of the slate roof. What will remove the stain?

Answer: Acid that remains in the copper and on the slate can be neutralized by washing with household ammonia. The stains can then be removed with fine steel wool or sandpaper.

Removing Asbestos Paper

Question: Several years ago the hot air pipes in our cellar were covered with asbestos paper. I find that this is a mistake, for the cellar is too cold and the floors above the cellar are also cold. How can the asbestos be removed?

Answer: The kind of paste usually used with asbestos paper can be softened by soaking with water. However, this will probably soften the paper so much that it will tear when being taken off.

Oak Chairs

Question: What would be the best way to finish some ordinary oak chairs from which the finish has already been removed?

Answer: If a light finish is desired, finish with two thin coats of a quick drying varnish. For darker effects, first stain the wood with an oil stain of a desired color. For best results follow the directions on the label. Finish with two coats of quick drying varnish.

Burned Food

Question: How can burned food be removed from the bottom of an aluminum kettle?

Answer: A method that is strongly recommended is to cover the burned food with wet baking soda and allow it to remain overnight.

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

NEWEST of all the American Red Cross activities is the Wool Conservation program. Under it, volunteers from the more than 3,700 Red Cross chapters throughout the nation collect scraps of new, unused wool and place them in reprocessing channels.

The Wool Conservation program was developed jointly by the War Production board and the Red Cross when it became apparent that the nation faced a serious wool shortage. There were only two ways in which this shortage could be alleviated within the next year. The first was by cutting down wool consumption in every possible way by restyling and re-designing garments to save wool. The second was to have every scrap of new, unused wool reprocessed as rapidly as possible. The Red Cross was selected to do this job.

Under the agreement between the Red Cross and the War Production board, the 3,700 Red Cross chapters arrange for the collection of trousers cuff clippings, wool samples and other wool clips from tailors, men's clothing stores, department stores, clothing manufacturers and cleaners. These are then placed in reprocessing channels by selling them to wool reclaiming firms.

When reprocessed into wool cloth, the clippings from 21 pairs of men's trousers will be enough to make a complete soldier's uniform or another civilian suit. One Red Cross chapter in a large city collected enough wool clips in one day to make 1,755 soldiers' uniforms.

Proceeds from the sale of the wool clips collected under the Wool Conservation program are retained by the local Red Cross chapters to carry on their work of War Relief and Civilian Defense Preparedness training.

War-time Problem Solved

Necessity has forced the American people to do many new things. While in the past many bird lovers have raised canaries at home for the pleasure and satisfaction they derived, now the breeding of canaries at home has become a new, worthwhile hobby—a money-making hobby that is spreading all over this country.

With the major supplies of canaries from abroad abruptly stopped . . . with a strict war-time ban placed on the importation of hundreds of thousands of canaries formerly shipped yearly from Central Europe and Asia, the ingenuity and foresight of the American people have met the situation with smiles of satisfaction—as they turned this canary shortage into a wartime opportunity.

But a small out-lay was required to start this worthwhile hobby—turning a most pleasurable undertaking into a profitable, money-making business at home.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

MOST quilts today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps is used one color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut

Big Wind From Motor

The army air force's new $2,500,000 wind tunnel at Wright Field near Dayton is equipped with a 40,000 horsepower, alternating-current induction motor that develops a 400-mile-an-hour wind, says Collier's. Largest of its kind ever constructed, this motor cannot be turned on until notice has been given to the electric company, so it may be prepared for this load, which is equal to the capacity of one of its largest generators.

down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

Fortunately Hole in Barrel Was Discovered in Time

The particular unit in question had taken on a large number of new recruits and some of them were a little raw. During the first rifle inspection, the officer approached one of the men, had a look at his rifle, and then called to the N.C.O. in charge.

"Look at this man's rifle!" he announced.

The sergeant looked down the barrel, swung the rifle around to the recruit, and barked: "Take a look at that rifle, you!"

The recruit peered carefully down the barrel, then muttered in a surprised tone:

"Well, what do you know. Got a hole clean through it!"

AROUND THE HOUSE

Spread a thin layer of orange marmalade or apricot jam on baked pancakes. Roll quickly and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Serve with pineapple syrup for breakfast or luncheon.

To prevent marmalade from graining, do not boil it too fast and take it off the stove as soon as a little of it jellies on a cold plate. Be careful that you have pure sugar for this and all preserves.

When frying in deep fat use a heavy aluminum kettle. It holds the heat and does not tip over easily. Use a wire basket to transfer food from and to hot fat.

When the corrugations on the wheels of your lawn mower wear out, take a rattail file and renew them. This will give your mower better traction.

Lemon juice sprinkled over all-garlic pear salad just before it is served improves the flavor.

Fine grained sandpaper will remove surface spots from white felt hats and will raise the nap on felt hats that have been caught in the rain. For white straw or fabric hats, try art gum.

When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh try extraction by steam. Heat a wide-mouthed bottle and fill it two-thirds full of very hot water and place under the injured spot. The suction draws the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam in a few minutes removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

Notice for Publication Suspension of Assessment Work on Mining Claims:

United States Department of The Interior District Land Office Las Cruces, N. M.

Attention is called to the act of May 7, 1942, Public No. 542, providing for the suspension of annual assessment work on mining claims held by location in the United States, including the Territory of Alaska, which reads as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That the provision of section 2324 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which requires on each mining claim located, and until a patent has been issued therefor, not less than $100 worth of labor to be performed or improvements aggregating such amount to be made each year, be, and the same is hereby, suspended as to all mining claims in the United States, including the Territory of Alaska, during the years beginning at 12 o'clock meridian July 1, 1941, and ending at 12 o'clock meridian July 1, 1943; Provided, That every claimant of any such mining claim, in order to obtain the benefits of this Act, shall file, or cause to be filed, in the office where the location notice or certificate is recorded, on or before 12 o'clock meridian July 1, 1942, and July 1, 1943, a notice of his desire to hold said mining claim under this Act: Provided further, That such suspension of assessment work shall not apply to more than six lode-mining claims held by the same person, nor to more than twelve lode-mining claims held by the same partnership, association, or corporation."

The act applies to the continental United States and the Territory of Alaska, but only to mining claimants who file or cause to be filed on or before 12 o'clock noon July 1, 1942, and July 1, 1943, in the office where the location notice or certificate is recorded, a notice of their desire to hold the claims under the act, and the exemptions do not apply to more than six lode claims held by an individual, nor to more than twelve lode claims held by a partnership, association or corporation.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas for June

The above map of the country shows the War Bond Quota by state for the month of June totaling $999,000,000. Everybody every pay day is expected to invest at least ten per cent of his income in War Bonds to aid in financing America's offensive against the Axis powers. The ultimate quota for the nation will be on a basis of one billion dollars per month effective in July. This sum is necessary to provide for all-out production of planes, guns, ships and munitions adequate to arm our fighting men with the tools necessary to win the war.

Forget-Me-Not Is Flower For Keeping USO In Mind

The forget-me not is now the official USO flower. It was so designated at headquarters in New York when Girl Scouts presented to Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, Chairman of the National Women's Committee, a bouquet of forget-me-nots and other flowers. The girls, members of Troop 6, Greenwich, Conn., have planted USO gardens in the shape of the flower and with forget-me-not borders.

The plan is getting support from other sections of the country. Florists can supply forget-me-nots when needed, and it is expected there will be a growing use of the tiny blue flower at USO events.

10 Per Cent Buttons

Soon hundreds of residents of Lincoln County will be wearing the new 10 per cent Treasury Buttons on their coat lapels, and displaying the 10 per cent stickers in the front window of their homes. The Buttons and Stickers, evidence of the fact the wearer is investing ten per cent of his current income in War Bonds and Stamps, have been received in Lincoln County by War Savings Staff County Chairman Mr. Felix Ramey.

"The Treasury Department wants every person to have one of the Buttons and Stickers."

Persons investing 10 per cent or more of their income in War Bonds and Stamps are urged to contact their employers or the War Savings Staff for their Buttons and Stickers. Every member of the family is entitled to wear the 10 per cent when the wage earner is investing that amount or more.

Ranchers May Get Pay For Lost Range

A measure before the House would provide for reimbursement of livestock growers whose rights from grazing permits have been lost through use of public domain for war purposes.

Rep. Anderson (N-NM) introduced legislation yesterday authorizing the secretary of war to make payment to holders of grazing permits on lands used by the army for bombing or gunnery ranges.

Livestock growers associations and governors of western states have asked such legislation. Anderson said it was in form approved by the war, agricultural and justice departments and superseded a similar bill which he introduced last April.

Make Our Crude Rubber Last

One way of making our stock of crude rubber last as long as possible is to mix the cruderubber with a percentage of reclaimed rubber made from scrap.

This produces rubber up to army standards -- five old tires or 80 hot water bottles or 14 20-foot lengths of garden hose will supply the amount of reclaimed rubber used in the rubber parts of a 37 mm gun carriage. And the reclaimed rubber used in a flying fortress could be supplied by 20 tires or 320 hot water bottles or 56 20-foot lengths of hose.

Scrap rubber makes reclaimed rubber. The reclaiming plants can get about 16 pounds of good rubber out of one old auto tire, two and a half pounds out of a tube, 20 pounds out of a 50 foot length of garden hose, three pounds from an old pair of four-buckle arctics, a pound out of a hot water bottle.

Guns and bombers will win the war, help hurry them off the production line by taking your scrap rubber collection to the nearest filling station, now.

Women Rallied to Duration Job By Mrs. Moore

The USO National Women's Committee, of which Mrs. Maurice T. Moore is Chairman, will become a permanent organization. Plans to effect this change have been put under way by Mrs. Moore, following her recent trip to the Pacific Coast. She is developing the project with the members of her recently appointed Executive Committee.

The decision to set up such a Committee to do all-year-around work in USO has come, according to Mrs. Moore, from the general opinion that the women of the nation must take a growing part in what USO is planning to do. Already thousands of women have joined in the program to bring recreation and cheer to the service men, and many more are anxious to help.

Because of the widespread growth of USO, representatives from every State will be on the National Women's Committee.

This will insure that the USO program, fundamentally the same the country over, will be properly adopted to fit the characteristics of the several sections of the nation.

Service Men Must Have Licenses to Hunt, Fish

Santa Fe.—State Game Warden Elliott Barker warned today that men of the armed forces must have licenses if they wish to hunt or fish in New Mexico.

"There has been some misunderstanding about that point," he said. "Our sympathies are with the service men, but the legislature has made it specific that all persons over 14 must have licenses to hunt or fish."

New Tokens

A supply of plastic one-mill tokens, supplanting Aluminum sales tax pieces cut off by the war, was ready for distribution to New Mexico merchants today. The new tokens are slightly larger than a nickel.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Aerial Camera for use on Scout and Observation and Reconnaissance planes is essential to both the Army and Navy air forces in planning battle formations and in obtaining information on enemy fortifications and movements. They look something like a cannon, and cost about $3,400 apiece.

The aerial cameraman can plot wide territories in bold relief so that Army or Navy Intelligence can make accurate measurements of enemy territory. We need many of these cameras so necessary to the air arms of the Army and Navy. You can help buy them with your purchases of War Bonds. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day, and help your county go over its War Bond Quota.

WAR RESTRICTIONS — on — TELEPHONE SERVICE

The War Production Board recently issued an order further restricting the use by telephone companies of materials essential to the war effort.

The order generally forbids additions to our plant, except for service required in the war effort or for public health and safety. It directs that only a minimum of materials may be used in connecting new telephones with facilities now in place. It orders much wider use of party line service. Also restricted are new installations of residence extensions, and the order forbids the replacement of any equipment except when required for the efficient operation of the service.

The application of these restrictions will undoubtedly mean inconvenience for some people—part of the price of protecting our liberty—but we ask your fullest cooperation, for the restrictions will mean that more lead, iron, steel, zinc, copper and rubber used in telephone equipment will now go into arms.

We pledge our continuing effort to keep our service up to the highest possible standard.

The attractive red, white and blue window sticker, pictured above, is the new yardstick of patriotism in the War Bond drive throughout the nation. With the slogan, "Everybody every pay day, ten percent," sweeping the country, patriotic Americans on the home front are rallying to their Government's appeal for funds with which to help finance the war. The home which displays the "ten percent" sticker is doing its share toward Victory for America and the United Nations. The stickers are being distributed through local War Savings Chairmen.

Old Tires May Get Recap For U. S. Motorists

Lexington, Ky., June 20. That old tire may become worth part of its weight in recaps if a plan suggested today by a New York banker is adopted.

In an address prepared for delivery before the interstate oil compact commission, Joseph E. Pogue, Chase National Bank executive, proposed that negotiable certificate be offered to help "marshal our scrap resources."

He gave this illustration of how his plan would work:

The owner of a discarded tire would turn it in to the proper authorities and receive a negotiable certificate entitling him to purchase a recap of reclaimed rubber.

"The discard will provide material for manufacture of two recaps," he said, and "the second recap may be placed on a priority list for purchase by a worker or other essential user."

Pogue said scrap rubber offers possible means for sustaining our automotive economy until mass production of synthetic rubber is built up.

One-Man Medical Corps on the Move

Dr. Gordon Seagrave, who was in the Harper Memorial hospital at Namkhan, Burma, when the Japanese moved in, is shown with three of his Burmese nurses in an army jeep after Dr. Seagrave had joined up with General Joseph Stilwell's Chinese army in Burma. Dr. Seagrave was in the thick of the savage fighting in this campaign, attending to wounded and operating under heart-breaking conditions. During the heat of the early fighting he worked one 24-hour stretch with but 90 minutes off, taking care of 150 casualties. The only assistance he had was from Makio, his head nurse, who handled 20 of the minor cases herself.

It May Be 90 Degrees in the Shade—
But Your Coal Bin Rates a Check-Up

Unnecessary Delay
May Bring Hardships
This Coming Winter

You can't say that you haven't been warned.
You can't say, when the leaves begin to fall, that you didn't have enough time to order your coal.

In another two months—at the most—it is going to be almost too late to get your coal supply. Then you won't be ready when the temperature begins to drop. During the summer months, when homeowners formerly paid but little attention to their coal bins, there had always been a definite slump in coal production. The producers called the months the normal "off season" period.

This year, though, because of the high rate of war-time production—despite the lack of fuel purchasing by the home and apartment owners, large stores, and other commercial centers—the mines are now working at 90 per cent of capacity.

What lies ahead for those who have not purchased their coal during the off-season is easy to see. At the present time American industry has not, as yet, reached its full war-time capacity of production for Victory. Fall and early winter will see the nation at this peak period.

They'll Be Out of Luck.
Then, when industry is humming its song of death for Hitler and his stooges, if Mr. Jones, or Mr. Slopik, or Mrs. Andy-Tardie have not ordered their coal to keep the home fires burning, it is very probable that they are going to be out of luck. They'll probably have to spend some very miserable days until the coal they order LATE arrives.

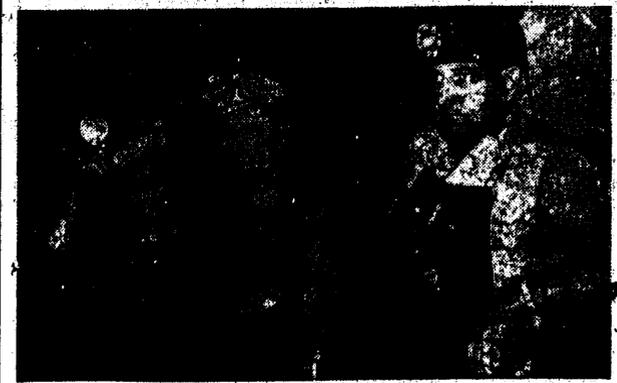

Why not?
Here's why: Increased production to peak records in U. S. factories is going to require more coal. It stands to reason that if the mines are now working at 90 per cent of capacity (and industry has not yet reached its peak of production nor coal consumption), when the peak does arrive Uncle Sam is going to see to it that those industries get all the coal they want, as often as they want it, and no questions asked.

It is true that all will have to forego some former necessities and comforts until this universal war is won. But there is little reason to take on a hardship which is doing no one—even the nation's offensive for victory—any good.

By waiting until it is practically too late to order coal, most of which is then going to the factories, the home owner is deliberately harnessing himself with hardship—besides getting in the way of the nation's wartime progress.

Like a Slow Freight.
Those who delay ordering coal now for this coming winter may be compared to a slow freight train heading towards its terminal with a fast freight right behind it. The latter is delayed from reaching its destination on schedule. Your nation's victory efforts are all being carried on that fast freight train. The dilly-dallying, late-ordering home owner is the slow freight.

But don't forget: Uncle Sam is the dispatcher on that railroad. He's

These three miners are typically representative of those thousands responsible for the continuous flow of coal for the nation. There has been practically no "slack" season for them this year. The usual off-season period (summer months) for them was omitted because of industry's need for coal to carry on for the coming victory.

a good one, too. What he's going to do is shove the slow freight on to a siding and let the fast freight come on through.

In other words, those home owners and other consumers who haven't as yet ordered their coal supplies, may have to be sidetracked later this year in favor of Uncle Sam's more important business of winning the war. Cold feet now may result in even colder pedal extremities this winter.

The fact that peak production of American industry will be reached during the coming winter months isn't the only reason why you should be now getting your coal.

Even today the railroad yards, the river shipping docks and terminals not give your fall bit to insure warmth for your home, or final victory for your country.

Check Heating System.
This is the time of the year—to see to it that the home's heating system is cleaned, inspected, and repaired if necessary.

Neglect now, during the summer months, can damage your home heating apparatus more than a winter season of hard activity.

Lack of ventilation in the basement, high humidity, condensation, or corrosion can soon play havoc with a heating plant. More than often it does, as shown by the short life of most smoke pipes which last only two or three years.

Improper operation, lack of maintenance, excessive stack losses, faulty distribution or circulation, overheating, infiltration, and needless heat losses waste 20 per cent of the fuel used in the average home. With the country at war, with extraordinary demands on transportation facilities, such waste is intolerable.

Coupled with the effect on health, lost time due to colds, absenteeism, etc., such neglect of proper maintenance and operation of the heating system becomes almost criminal.

Just as you check over your automobile periodically, or have someone do it, so too is it a good idea to have a competent heating man inspect your furnace or boiler.

If the average household gave its heating plant half the care it bestows upon the family car, the national fuel bill would be reduced many millions a year.

Coal mining is one of the nation's major industries.

The last available reports on the amount of coal mined show that over 51,997,835 tons of coal were prepared for consumption.

Chief soft coal producing states are Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, and Kentucky. Anthracite (hard) coal is produced principally in Pennsylvania, around Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

Coal Exports.
Coal exports amount to a sizeable figure, too. In 1940 (latest data available) over 16,456,928 tons were exported. The majority of the anthracite exported went to Canada.

Coke production, a coal by-product, also assumed gigantic proportions. Data shows that over 273,332,410 tons were produced in 1940. The gas from coke production is also used for fuel purposes.

Employment in the coal mining industry has declined ever since 1920. That year there were 784,621 persons employed. Ten years later (1930) there were 644,006 at work. In 1940 the number had further decreased to 543,200.

Crude Oil Production Increased.
Crude oil production in the United States, also, has steadily increased according to statistics.

In 1920 there were 442,929,000 barrels (42 gallons to a barrel) of oil drawn from the earth. Its value was $1,360,745,000. But the figures in 1940 were 1,351,847,000 barrels, valued at $1,352,000,000—a decrease in price.

The United States produced—in 1940—over half of the oil marketed. Russia was next in line with just slightly more than one-fifth of the United States total.

Fuel User's Pledge

- Every home owner might well subscribe to the following:
1. To conserve heat and fuel.
  2. To see that the heating plant is clean and kept clean.
  3. To have the heating system inspected by a competent heating man or fuel dealer.
  4. To have such repairs or alterations as are essential to efficient operation of the heating equipment made at once.
  5. To do everything practical to reduce heat losses.
  6. To learn how to operate the heating system properly.
  7. To prevent smoke, because smoke means waste and inefficiency.
  8. To avoid ever, or under heating because either is dangerous to health.
  9. To order fuel early, to anticipate needs, to keep a stock of fuel on hand, so as to equalize and conserve transportation and delivery facilities, and to prevent tie-ups and shortages.

U. S. LIFE DEPICTED BY OLD LIGHT FIXTURES

Two hundred years of American life are represented by nearly 100 Eighteenth and Nineteenth century lighting appliances and more than 250 samplers at a public exhibit in the Cooper Union Museum for the Arts of Decoration.

English, Mexican, French, Spanish, Dutch, German, and Italian needlecraft is displayed beside outstanding American samplers to show the variations developed in this country.

Similarly, the lighting fixtures are arranged in chronological sequence, demonstrating the transformation in design that came with changing needs and the commercial development of illuminating oils.

New pieces in Cooper Union's extensive collections of wallpapers, textiles, antique jewelry, buttons, metal work, and pottery are shown for the many visitors.

There are architectural sketches by the late Whitney Warren, internationally known architect, and designs for tiles by William Morris, English poet and craftsman for whom the Morris chair was named. A rare pair of glazed pottery figurines of Belgian origin is also included.
