To Award "4-H" Scholarships

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 27—The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company will award six $200 college scholarships to winners of the seventh annual National 4-H Club rural electrification contest now in progress. B. P. Hess, manager of the rural electrification, announced today. Contestants will prepare reports on electrical studies and projects to serve as the basis for selecting the winners.

In addition to scholarships, Westinghouse will provide free trips to the 4-H Club Congress at Chicago, Nov. 27 to Dec. 5, for winners of state contests, and gold pins for winners in county competitions.

Dual System of School Accrediting

The schools of the United States have two systems in general use of accrediting, one is to be a State Accredited School and the other is a system which gives the school a National rating.

There are at the present five National Accrediting Systems, The New England, The Middle West, The Southern, The Northwest and the North Central Association. The N.C.A. cover eighteen of the forty-eight states, while the other four have the thirty left divided among the associations.

The schools that are members of one of the above associations number far less than the number of recognized high schools of the state, in New Mexico where some one hundred fifty State Accredited schools, with one hundred schools that have a full four year course. The number of schools that were of the N.C.A. last year were forty in number. The schools that are State accredited enter any of the Institutions of Higher Learning in New Mexico, on graduation just the same as the graduates from the schools that belong to both associations. The difference being in that graduates going out of the State to schools may be asked to take entrance examinations before they will be entered in colleges or universities of other states.

School credits made in Carrizozo high school will be accepted by any high school in the State or other States. Graduates of this high school will be admitted without examination to any University, A. & M. College, or Teacher's College in the State.

This school by being dropped from the North Central only lost one and not both of the Accrediting it had, and the State credit is still good, and as the majority of schools in the State had only one, it is at least still recognized fully by all the State Institutions.

The first aim of all connected with the school is to get it restored to the N. C. A. at the earliest possible time.

Judge Frenger For Re-Election

The Lincoln County News has been authorized to announce the candidacy of Judge Numa C. Frenger for re-election as Judge of the Third Judicial District on the Democratic ticket, and his formal announcement will be found on another page. His announcement came last Friday, but was too late for publication.

Judge Frenger has held this position for a number of years. His decisions have always been void of partiality, his good judgment cannot be questioned, and his dignified conduct of the court and its solemn duties inspire the respect of the laity, and of the law-breakers as well.

We are sure of his re-election and know his decisions handed down will show thoughtful consideration and will be unbiased.

New Church to be Built At Ruidoso

The building committee of the Episcopal church was in town today and bought cement for the foundation and fireplaces for the Episcopal church that is to be built in Ruidoso as soon as funds, materials and workmen are available.

The church is to be a House of Prayer for all people; and there is to be a cabin for the use of a minister. The building site is in a central location and will be accessible for services all the year round.

Trees have been given for the buildings, which will be log structures; some work has been promised; a small sum is on hand with which to begin the operations; but not enough with which to carry on to completion.

It is possible that there are those who may wish to help with money.

The building committee for this project is Mr. R. S. Fagan, Chief Clerk, Fort Stanton, and Mrs. R. L. Boyce, Ruidoso, the Navajo Lodge.

Sam Dow and Reed Sherrill left for Roswell Wednesday morning. Both have volunteered for the Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Elva Sherrill of Oscura were here Wednesday to see their son, Reed Sherrill, who left Wednesday.

Mr. Corona for Commissioner of District 1

Mr. Manuel Corona has announced for re-election as Commissioner of Lincoln County for district No. 1. Mr. Corona is well known and highly regarded. He served Lincoln County very efficiently as Probate Judge for four years. In his race for County Commissioner two years ago, he was second highest in the number of votes received. Mr. Corona is agreeable, honorable and popular. He respectfully solicits your vote.

E. G. Shannon Announces Candidacy

My announcement as candidate for District Judge of the Third Judicial District is made public today. And calls for an expression of my conception of the duties of that office.

A court is much like a farmer baling hay. When the hay is cut and cured, the farmer runs the required amount of hay through the baler as swiftly as possible, presses it and binds it neatly into a bale. So in a court, the pleadings, the evidence, the arguments and the decision of the judge, go into each case or bale. Each bale is a case.

Suppose the farmer stopped the baler frequently to examine every fork full of hay that went into the bale. Or suppose he shut down the machinery to cut other hay while the workmen loaded. Each bale would be an expensive package.

So it is with your court. The judge is the baling expert. The county furnishes the baler and pays all expense of the workmen, who are the officers of the court. Each fellow with a law suit has some baling to do. The judge who lets his baler and workmen stand idle while one of the parties wastes time getting evidence, or getting witnesses, or getting the stuff into the bale, is making the county pay too much per bale. If he can't make up his mind what hay goes into a bale until he has read all the cases in all the books, if he wastes time on non essentials, more cost is added to each bale. If, because of such tactics, he gets behind with his work and judges from other districts have to come in and help with the baling, the bale begins to run into real money.

As your judge, I shall do your baling as quickly and well as possible, and cut a few dollars off the expense of every bale, having in mind that a swiftly moving court is more apt to overtake Justice than a creeping one.

I shall not maintain a law school, nor presume to tell a lawyer how he should prepare his papers.

No man shall suffer the indignity of standing in my office, waiting to be noticed, while I browse through papers or cogitate.

Finally, I hope always to bear in mind during my service the wisest words that Shakespeare ever uttered. "To thine own self

MRS. R. E. BLANEY

Funeral services were held for Mrs. Maude L. Blaney, age 67, at the Methodist Church Sunday morning, August 2, 1942, at 10 o'clock. The Rev. N. T. James and the Rev. John Klassen, pastors of the local churches were in charge.

Mrs. Margaret English and Mrs. Roy Shafer sang "Have Thine Own Way." The Rev. N. T. James read the obituary and the Rev. John Klassen delivered the sermon. Immediately following the services the order of Eastern Star held their service under the leadership of Mrs. R. E. Lemon.

Mrs. Blaney had been in ill health for several months; during June and July she became extremely ill and about ten days ago her condition became critical, and after a light stroke of paralysis last Thursday no hope was felt for her improvement by her family or her friends. At 9:30 last Friday evening, July 31st, she passed away; without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Blaney was always active in civic and educational affairs. Her life was modeled on lines of truth, honesty and community service. She was ever ready and willing to aid those with whom she came in contact.

BANKS AND THE WAR

What Will Win The WAR?

THERE are many statements, loosely circulated, to the effect that food, faith, hope, courage, production, unity etc., etc., each is the one thing that will win the war. However, the truth is that MILITARY MIGHT will win, nothing else. The things mentioned above, and many others, are highly important, some vitally so. But let's not be distracted from the fact that FORCE is what we must have to win. Let's bend our every effort to build the greatest striking force of all time.

Birth of a Glider

Glider pilots must first gain their experience through "training gliders," which are now coming off the production line for the army air forces. One of the factories engaged exclusively in manufacturing them is the Laister-Kaufman plant at St. Louis, where these pictures were taken.

The TG-4A is a two-place glider which weighs less than 500 pounds and takes a minimum of scarce materials to build. Jack Laister, the designer, and president of the plant, is famous in amateur glider and soaring circles.

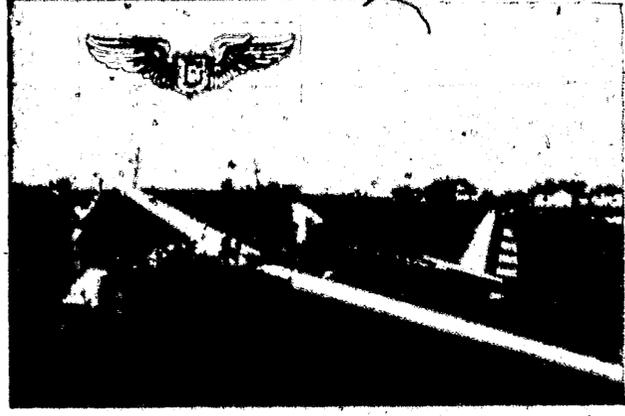

A large part of the construction work at this plant is being handled by women. Picture at top shows a group of them busy in the rib and wing assembly section. Right: Dressing down a piece of wood for the glider's wing.

A City in Itself, Great Lakes Naval Training Center Is Largest of Its Kind in the World

Thousands of Youths Are Trained There Each Day.

From farms, factories, offices and classrooms of the great Midwest plains area, thousands of men today are on the march.

Since that fateful Sunday of December 7 when Japanese bombs rained on Pearl Harbor, they have been heading toward the naval training station, Great Lakes, Ill., bent on becoming seagoing fighters with Uncle Sam's fleet.

At this great naval training base, 40 miles north of Chicago on Lake Michigan, far from salt water, the navy is undertaking the huge task of transforming "land-lubbers" into hard-hitting men of the greatest fleet in the world.

Greatest of all naval training centers in the world during World War I, the station again bears that reputation. In the near future, 11 camps, each bearing the name of a navy hero, will provide training and living quarters for men on the station.

These camps will be Barry, Bronson, Luce, Paul Jones, Perry, Dewey, Lawrence, Porter, Moffet, Morrow, and McIntire, the latter being the hospital area of the station.

Supplying approximately 35 per cent of the enlisted personnel of the fleet, Great Lakes is the headquarters of the Ninth naval district. The district includes 13 midwestern states: North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. Commandant of the district and commanding officer of the station is Rear Adm. John Downes.

Construction of the original training station at Great Lakes was authorized by an act of congress in April, 1904. Seven years later, President William Howard Taft officially opened the station on October 20, 1911. It consisted of 33 buildings located on a 167-acre tract of land and it housed 1,400 men. With the outbreak of war in 1917, 900 buildings were constructed. More than 125,000 men were trained for the fleet during the first world conflict.

The buildings erected during World War I were temporary structures and were dismantled after the signing of the Armistice. Today other temporary structures are being provided to handle the daily influx of recruits in this new war.

A Self-Sufficient Unit.

Extensive facilities of the station make it a self-sufficient unit. There are offices, barracks, mess halls, classrooms, drill halls, gymnasiums, store houses and large hospitals. The station has its own barber shops, hostess houses, post office, tailor shop, laundry and shoe shop. There are three swimming pools and ten regulation ABC bowling alleys.

But more important than the buildings and facilities are the men—thousands of Americans ranging from beardless youths to men in their forties who were Bluejackets in 1917 and 1918. Besides being a perfect physical specimen, the Bluejacket of 1942 is A-1 in intelligence, courage and patriotism. Anxiously he learns the seafaring lessons being taught by veterans of the fleet. Expectantly he awaits the day when he will graduate from the ranks of a recruit to that of a full-fledged sailor.

Requirements of Recruits.

Fundamentally, a recruit must be between the ages of 17 and 50 and must be no shorter than five feet three inches and no taller than six feet four inches. But would-be sailors who answer this general description are subjected to a rigid and thorough physical and dental examination upon arrival at the station, before they are finally accepted.

Primary examinations are given at various recruiting stations and sometimes physical defects are overlooked, because many of the tests required are not available at outlying recruiting centers. Statistics show that between 50 and 60 per cent of applicants applying at recruiting stations are rejected for physical or mental defects, or other conditions.

The physical examination at Great Lakes is of a routine but thorough nature, conducted by medical officers who are specialists in the various fields of medicine. The examination includes surgical, orthopedic, psychiatric, psychological, X-ray, and eye, ear, nose and throat examinations, the results of which determine a man's physical fitness for the service.

Each man is subjected to a photo-fluoroscopic examination of his chest and to the various blood and laboratory tests. He is also immunized for smallpox, typhoid, yellow fever and tetanus.

In some cases where there is doubt as to the physical or mental fitness of an individual, he is sent to the U. S. Naval hospital here for a period of observation and study. After this period, if the individual is found to be physically and mentally qualified, he is outfitted and takes his place in recruit training.

In cases where minor surgical conditions are discovered, the individuals are sent to the naval hospital, where the conditions are corrected before the recruit is accepted for naval service.

Men From All Walks of Life.

The navy is a great leveler. When contingents of recruits pour into the naval training station to begin "boot" training, they present a colorful picture in contrast—but not for long.

There are professional men and highly paid factory workers, men in smartly tailored suits, farm boys in overalls, cow hands from the West in high-heeled boots and combreros, prosperous men and poor men, men with long hair, men with short hair—a cross-section of America.

After recruits have undergone physical and dental examinations to determine their fitness for naval service, the "stripping" process begins. First the "civvies" go into boxes for shipment home. Then the men go through the line.

Each enlisted man in the navy or naval reserve is given an allotment of $118 for uniforms and equipment.

More than 700 experienced stewards, bakers, butchers and storekeepers man huge mess halls on the station, while a veritable army of mess attendants—recruits who must spend some time in mess halls as part of their training—serve the Bluejackets. Twelve general mess halls now are operated on the station.

Cafeteria Style.

Because of the great number of men consuming three "squares" a day, the navy serves its food cafeteria style, in compartment trays. The men "polish off" their meals at long, cleanly scrubbed tables. To facilitate operations at the conclusion of each meal, the sailors stack their trays, dishes and silverware, which are then sent to automatic dish washers for a speedy cleaning.

Each mess hall is equipped with a modern galley, butcher shop, vegetable locker, bake shop, refrigerators, bread room, store rooms and lusing rooms.

Fruits and vegetables are delivered daily to insure freshness; carrots, onions and rutabagas are locally grown and locally purchased; cheese, butter, eggs and poultry are trucked in from Illinois and Wisconsin. Dry provisions, such as canned tomatoes, are requisitioned in carload lots from the Navy Supply Depot at Norfolk, Va. Coffee is received in 5,000-pound lots from the Provision and Clothing Depot at Brooklyn, N. Y., where the navy operates its own roasting plant.

Sixteen different varieties of fruits and vegetables are served in general mess: Potatoes, cabbage, turnips, tomatoes, broccoli, apples, tangerines, oranges, lettuce, celery, peppers, cucumbers, onions, bananas and cranberries.

Uncle Sam's Bombers

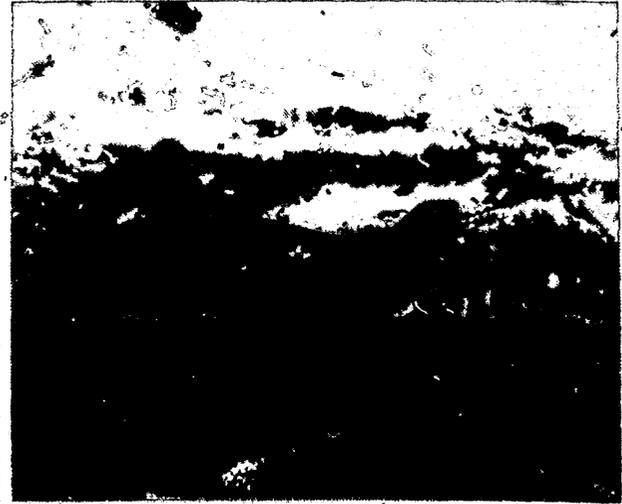

The history of the U. S. army bombing planes begins with the USD-9A De Havilland, finished just too late in 1918 to see action in the First World War. It was powered by a single 400-horsepower Liberty "12" engine, America's outstanding contribution to World war aviation, and had a speed of about 125 miles an hour. It carried a crew of two and a bomb load of 400 pounds. Its range was about 600 miles. While it had a ceiling of more than 18,000 feet, the crew's hardships of the day made bombing at even a few thousand feet pretty much of a hit and miss affair.

The first all-American twin-engine bomber was the Glenn Martin bomber, designed by the U. S. army air corps engineers for night bombardment over the Western Front during World War I. It had bomb bays which were opened to release its "pay" load of 1,040 pounds. The Glenn Martin weighed more than five tons. This weight is less than that of a modern single-engine fighter plane, and less than one-fourth the weight of the B-17 and B-24 of today.

A startling development in army bomber design was the high wing monoplane known as Atlantic LB-2. Ahead of its time, and an adaptation for military use of the famous Fokker VII transport, the LB-2 saw service with the army air corps between 1925 and 1931. It was capable of carrying a bomb load of 2,000 pounds.

With the advent of the B-3A the army air corps went back to the biplane design. The B-3A had a speed of 110 miles per hour and a range of about 750 miles.

The modern army bomber came of age with the Martin B-10, which attained a speed of more than 200 miles per hour and had a range of in excess of 1,000 miles. In July, 1934, a flight of ten Martin B-10 bombers flew from Washington, D. C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, and returned, a total distance of 8,200 miles, which was covered in 51 hours and 36 minutes flying time.

A "Flying Fortress" of the latest series, a B-17E, wings its way at more than 300 miles an hour to drop its tons of bombs with deadly accuracy on an enemy objective. B-17s hold seven national speed records and have a range of more than 3,000 miles.

Russian Summer Port Now Very Busy

Both the coming of summer and the recent bombing attacks by German planes on Russia's far-northern port of Murmansk have turned attention to Archangel, farther east on the White sea. Archangel is more than 300 miles farther from the North pole than is the ice-free port of Murmansk, and is about 500 miles closer by rail to Moscow, says the National Geographic society in a recent bulletin.

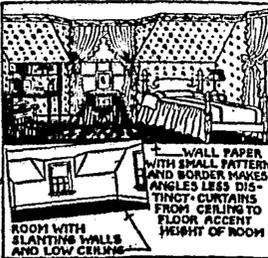

Unlike Murmansk, the harbor at Archangel is frozen over from late October until June, and can be kept open for a part of that period only by the use of powerful icebreakers. The January mean temperature of seven degrees, Fahrenheit, rises to 50 degrees in August.

The port also can connect with the Baltic sea during normal summers through the Baltic-White sea canal, which was completed in 1932.

ON THE HOME FRONT

IF IT ever seemed to you that the walls and ceiling of an attic room were coming down on your head you know how the owner of this room felt before she began to experiment a bit with wallpaper and furnishings.

Large samples of wallpaper were thumbtacked in place to test them. Stripes only accented the slant of the walls. Plain papers brought out angles with sharp shadows. Large designs made the room seem smaller. Wide borders made the ceiling appear to be even lower. But when a paper with tiny evenly spaced pattern and narrow border was tried all these defects seemed to melt away. The long curtains with ruffles on three sides also helped to make the ceiling seem higher. Pink and white striped material to repeat the wallpaper color was used for the chair cover and dressing table skirt. The chair is a remodeled rocker and the orange crate dressing table has hinged arms. Directions for them may be found on pages 4 and 10 of SEWING, Book 5.

NOTE: Book 5, in the series which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers, is now ready for mailing. There are 23 pages of these new ideas for homemakers with complete working drawings. Also a description of the first seven booklets of the series. Send your order to:

Advance Collections Herald Narrower Silhouette for Fall

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE big news as to fall style trends centers for the most part around the idea of slimmness for the skirt silhouette. It's quite all right and definitely style-correct to continue to wear the ever-beloved all-around pleated skirts through the summer-to-fall midseason period, but the moment fashion's ovan-cong sounds the knell to summer and you know by the calendar that autumn is here in will come such an array of smart and figure-flattering narrow silhouetted skirts you'll yield to temptation at the very first glance. In fact, the new slim, black frocks are ever so good-looking for immediate wear, and they'll be smart right on through into fall and winter.

These charming dresses, styled as they are with utmost simplicity, are ushering in a new era in costume design, one that patriotically makes fabric conservation its theme. Valiantly and victoriously have designers met the challenge to create beautiful fashions out of minimum yardage. Once you've donned one of these figure-flattering narrow silhouetted gowns, suits or coats, as the case may be, you'll be all enthusiasm for the new order of things, for it is a fact that the narrower silhouette is one of charm and chic.

A suit tailored of black bengaline or a dress fashioned of sleek jersey in either black or lush colors fashioned after the manner of the smart modes pictured in the above illustration (each is within the new fabric-saving rulings) gives the perfect answer as to what to wear now and on through the midseason days. In fact, these fashions are scheduled to function smartly far into the future.

an important fashion in that it is tailored of black bengaline, and it's bengaline that fashion-alert women are clamoring for this season for their best looking suit. You'll be starting your fall wardrobe going in the right direction if you buy a bengaline suit. Suits of this kind take kindly to accents of lovely lacy lingerie neckwear and it's also smart to wear accessories which give the vivid touch. The front fullness of this skirt is typically "Autumn 1942" in its styling. The jacket is a newly inspired version which stresses up-to-dateness.

The dresses shown are New York creations which observe all the niceties demanded by discriminating taste. The gown centered in the above picture shows its new-school origin in its slenderness and classic simplicity. The fact that it is made of sleek rayon jersey in a lovely mint-julep green is significant, for much importance is attached to greens on the fall color card. A celti-surplice bodice with draped detail outlines a V-neckline, and subtle shirring is stitched into the front seam of the bias-cut skirt. The hat follows the trend to wide flattering brims.

The dress to the left in the above picture interprets a stunning version of the new petgot silhouette. Perhaps no word in the skirt realm is being repeated oftener than "petgot" these days, for most of the newer skirts definitely reflect its influence. Developed of the now-co-fashionable sleek rayon jersey, this dress may be accepted as among the smartest offerings fashion has to make. Its unusual, softly draped sleeves are caught on the shoulders with flattering self-fabric ties. The general air of style assurance of this dress makes it outstanding. The becoming hat with its soft matching veil is of green baki.

Practical Trio

For gardening, tennis, cycling or what-have-you in the way of hard work or sports, here is the ideal outfit. Overall shorts of blue cotton denim, with a calico print blouse and a wrap-around skirt, are ready to meet every demand. It's the type of clothes everybody's calling for now that there's work to be done, something dependably washable, chic and becoming, and suited to all occasions, whether they be work or play. This outfit will hold good "for the duration."

Helps Give Variety To Work Costumes

In planning and designing practical clothes for the thousands of women now engaged in wartime factory work, every effort is being made to avoid regimentation or suggestion of monotonous uniforms. Thus, much importance is attached to color, as it offers variety and cheer.

Necessarily certain requirements must be observed in behalf of safety. For instance, most factories stipulate that women and girls wear slacks or coveralls or jumper slacks carefully styled so that nothing will catch in the machinery. Covering for the head is required to keep the hair protected. Dresses are out of the picture, with a ban on culottes or skirts. Banned also are toe-less or heel-less shoes and long fingernails. Blouses must be simple, so that no frilly details get caught in the machinery, but they may be, and are, very colorful.

Quilted Fashions

Enthusiasm for things quilted extends to every phase of fashion. Quilting as designers are employing it gives novelty to hats, will give warmth to coats this fall by bright colored quilted linings, is used for large flat pockets and offers clever novelty ensembles which include hat, bag and jacket sets.

For Trimming

There will be a generous use of embroidery this fall and also of applique design. And again designers are lavishing fringe on dressy frocks in unique and attractive ways.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

YES, your youngster is ready for hours and hours of play when you make her this cunning suit—in a stout durable cotton which "can take it"! We suggest seersucker, poplin, denim or broadcloth. The suit is trimmed down to essentials only—a topper which can be worn tucked in as a shirt or as a jacket—overalls and an abbreviated romper suit for sun worship. The last named carries a sail boat decoration which can be applied as a bright patch of contrasting color.

In California, the fashion of constructing and painting roadside buildings to resemble such objects as animals, fruits, tea kettles, shoes, igloos and airships has even extended to a house of worship. The Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in the town of Asti is built in the shape of a wine barrel.

Same "Dog Tag" as in War No. 1

A 48-year-old Private, Lewis
A. Goulden, of Chicago, who is serving Uncle Sam for the second time in war, has the same serial number on his "dog tag" he had twenty-five years ago. Goulden, who is stationed out at the Roswell Army Flying School, was a volunteer both times.

With the Engineers of the Second Division in World War 1, Goulden served overseas 19 of the 23 months of his first enlistment.
He was on fighting fronts most of the time from March, 1918, until the Armistice. The next three months were spent with the Army of Occupation in Germany.

Besides his serial number, which, incidentally, is probably the lowest numbered one on the post, Private Goulden has a n o t h e r souvenir of his previous service
... a tattoo on his left arm of the Indian head and star insignia of the Second Division. In each war Goulden volunteered in Chicago and later turned up at a camp in Texas.

Physical condition and alertness of the 48-year-old veteran believes his age. Soldiers coming here with Goulden from Texas said he made long hikes, bivouacs, and the obstacle course with the ease of a well-conditioned youngster.

Comparing Army conditions
now with those 25 years ago, Goulden finds the greatest difference in the comfort provided by good mattresses. In 1917-18 U.
S. Soldiers slept between blankets on a canvas cot. Their mattresses were straw-stuffed affairs that developed torturesome lumps.

Despite greater comforts provided soldiers of today, Goulden believes there were fewer complaints among the enlisted men of 25 years ago. "In the last war," said Goulden, "a soldier was a plain 'John' the first six months.
He was regarded as a 'recruit' the second six months, and after serving a year he had the honor of gaining recognition as a full-fleged private."

Tractors and motors will never wholly replace the Army Mule as a factor in the mobile units of our army. The Army Mule is a tradition and the "mule skinner" is a are used by the Field Artillery and the Cavalry in areas where the terrain is rough and tractors cannot operate.

Pack trains in mountainous sectors are often necessary and here the mule, slow but sure-footed, plays an important role. Our Army buys thousands of mules paying from $175

WAR COMES FIRST

The weight of war on the telephone lines grows heavier every day. We can't build new lines and switchboards to carry the load because copper, aluminum, rubber and other materials needed for telephone equipment are vital war materials as well.
What facilities we have must serve as fully as possible.

Telephone subscribers themselves hold a great part of the answer.
Here are some ways in which you can cooperate:

- 1 Limit long distance usage to necessary calls and be as brief as possible. The longer lines, particularly those to the Pacific Coast states and east of the Mississippi River, are especially busy, and calls to these areas should not be made unless they are very important or relate to the war effort.
- 2 If your call is delayed please do not ask the operator for reports unless necessary. Such requests tie up switchboards.
- 3 Please do not call "Information" until you have referred to the telephone directory. Other calls such as for "time of day" should be avoided unless they are necessary.
- 4 We cannot always give you the type of equipment you desire. In some cases we can furnish no new local service, and in general only party-line service. Considerate use of party-line service is neighborly and particularly helpful at this time.
- 5 Long telephone conversations not only tie up the two lines that are connected but also the central office equipment that is common to many lines. Please use the service moderately. A long unnecessary conversation may delay a call essential to the war effort.

We are confident of your continuing cooperation in this emergency.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—At Fort Des Moines, where the first 330 entrants of the Women's Army Auxiliary corps take up their quarters, for officers' training, there will be no guardhouse. Col. Don C. Faith, commandant of the corps, says "Standards of conduct of women are generally higher than those of men. We anticipate no trouble. If there is, there will be a discharge, rather than discipline."

The tactful Colonel Faith, a genial Hoosier who used to be an army educator, will, however, allow a beauty parlor, if not a guardhouse. He says there's no reason why women shouldn't get a hair-do when they need it and there'll be time out for that. But this doesn't mean a soft time for the soldier-girls. There will be seven 45-minute classes a day and one 45-minute period of drill.

The women who have qualified for officer's training have been chosen from several thousand applicants. The full complement of the fort eventually will be about 25,000 women. They will serve in kitchen police, as barracks orderlies, clerks and messengers and in many other capacities in which men have been used.

The tall, lean Colonel Faith, a trail-blazer in this kind of organization, takes his job easily and casually and gives assurance that the women will be inducted smoothly into army routine. While he is friendly and informal in manner, he is known in the army as "careful and competent officer and, while the girls may get their half-do and all that, there will be no slack administration of the corps."

"They'll do a grand job," says the colonel.

He has held an army commission 25 years, which experience includes service on the Mexican border and at Camp Logan, Houston, Texas, and in the first World war. He was on duty in the Philippines in 1922-23, and in Tientsin, China, in 1931-32.

Great Britain has made a tremendous success of its women's auxiliary corps, which now includes about 7,000,000 women. Fort Des Moines is just a beginning for us, and Colonel Faith thinks we can do even better.

MAJ. GEN. FOLLETT BRADLEY, commanding general of the First air force, with headquarters at Mitchel Field, N. Y., rates More Difficult for Japs to Interpret Our Native Idioms as slogans among the least effective of war weapons. He will have none of them around the field, not even "Remember Pearl Harbor." He is, however, hospitable to native, home-grown idiom, just as it happens along, uses a lot of it himself and commends the boys "who keep the flies off the horse's back," referring to the aerial gunners of his command in whom he takes special pride.

"The expression is not mine," said the general. "It's their own and it's very apt. It is a light way of saying that they keep destruction away. If the aerial gunners weren't up there doing their job every time one of our bombers goes out over the Libyan desert or China or the Pacific, many of the bombers would fall in their mission and many would never get home."

This came up in connection with talk of this month marking the general's 23rd straight year in the air services of the army, and the fact that operating a fighter or bomber plane is a matter of a complex organization of human and technical factors, undreamed of when the general first went aloft.

"Every bombing mission is a matter of team work," said General Bradley. "It is not by any means just a piloting job. The aerial gunner is a member of the team without whom the mission might fail. So is the bombardier, the navigator, the engineer and everyone else in the crew. The failure of one can mean the destruction of all."

He said he was getting a "splendid type of young men for all these jobs" and stressed his view that the war would be won by "straight shooting with bullets and bombs." He was overseas in the last big war, both as an aerial gunner and pilot, having learned flying in 1912. A Naval academy alumnus from Omaha, Neb., with an extraordinarily diversified career, he was transferred to the field artillery in 1913, in ordnance from 1914 to 1917, stationed at many air service bases, including the Canal Zone and schooled in several army schools.

Germ Warfare Laid to Japs

Official Back From China With Proof of How Plague Was Spread.

NEW YORK.—First-hand evidence that the Japanese have been using germ warfare to spread bubonic plague in China was presented here by Robert Barnett, former Rhodes scholar and Rockefeller foundation fellow, who returned recently from a six-week trip to China as a representative of United China relief. The evidence, made public by Mr. Barnett, is in the form of documents from P. Z. King, director-general of the Chinese National Health administration in Chungking; Miss E. J. Bannan, a registered nurse at the Presbyterian hospital, Changteh, Hunan province; Dr. R. Pollitzer, former epidemiologist of the League of Nations and at present holding the same post with the Chinese National Health administration, and Dr. W. K. Chen, consultant with the Chinese Red Cross Medical Relief corps at Kweyang, China.

Scatter Germs From Air. Statements by these persons to the effect that the Japanese have tried to produce epidemics of bubonic plague in China by scattering grain and other matter mixed with plague-infested fleas from airplanes were released by Mr. Barnett and corroborated as authentic by Dr. Donald D. Van Slyke of the Rockefeller institute, who is president of the American Bureau of Medical Aid to China.

"These statements are documentary proof that the Japanese are engaging in germ warfare," Dr. Barnett said.

Dr. Van Slyke commented: "I have read the documents and my impression is that they are entirely authentic."

Mr. Barnett, who was born in Shanghai, the son of an official of the Young Men's Christian association, and attended the University of North Carolina, Yale university and Oxford university, said there were also other instances of Japanese germ warfare which had not yet been completely authenticated.

Methods Experimental. Dr. King, in his report to Dr. Soong, said "sufficient circumstantial evidence has been gathered to show that the Japanese have tried to use our people as guinea pigs for experimentation on the practicability of bacterial warfare."

The Japanese methods were clearly experimental, Dr. King reported, but caused many deaths from bubonic plague. Lone planes would fly over Chinese cities and drop grain mixed with plague-infected fleas. The grain would attract rats, who would become infected, and in turn would infect men, women and children. Rats are the classic carriers and transmitter of bubonic plague, he pointed out, and wherever the plague strikes the mortality among rats is even greater than among people.

Miss Bannan, in a report to Dr. King from the Presbyterian hospital, Changteh, Hunan province, on December 18, 1941, on an outbreak of plague in that city, stated that it "followed the visit of an enemy plane on the morning of November 4."

"The unhulled wheat and grain found on the streets and roofs of houses in Changteh was dropped from that plane," Miss Bannan reported. "I might say in this connection that I watched the flight of the plane closely that morning. In appearance it was somewhat like a hydroplane and flew low over the city—lower than any plane has yet flown in the more than 20 bombings I have witnessed here."

Miss Bannan said some of the grain was collected and brought to the hospital for examination, and that a laboratory test was made which "showed bacillus closely resembling that of plague."

Modeling Now Keeps

Oklahoma Kids Occupied

NORMAN, OKLA.—Prof. Ralph Blenfang of the University of Oklahoma offers this novel way of keeping the children busy at home:

Put scraps of paper in a pan of warm water. First the bits of paper are worked into a pulp in the water. The pulp can be removed and worked into a variety of useful art objects.

Hot pads, bowls, masks and match holders can be fashioned without difficulty. After the objects dry they may be painted.

To careful mothers who want to keep their children spotless, Blenfang warns that such creative work is a bit messy. But remember, too, he adds, it keeps Junior busy while those victory gardens are being canned for winter.

Telling time in the Navy is on the 24-hour system. Morning hours are from one to twelve, but afternoon hours are from 1300 to 2400 (midnight). So if you ask a sailor the time and he says "seventeen," subtract 12 and you get five o'clock in the afternoon. It's simpler if you ask him what cigarette he smokes. Chances are he'll say: "Camel," for Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men as well as among men in the Army, Marines, Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) Local dealers are featuring Camel cartons as gifts for men in the service from the folks back home.—Adv.

'May Warn of Disordered' Kidney Action.

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its lack of exercise and inactivity—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up night after night, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Forced to run from the law to save his life when he is suspected of being the notorious "Comanche Liza," Con Cameron is trying to prove his honesty. With his pal, Caramba Year, he is working for Topaka Tenison, owner of the Broken Wheel ranch. Nevil Lowe, marshal of the neighboring town of Tivan, is after him but doesn't yet know that the "Twenty Johnson" of the Broken Wheel is the man he suspects of being Comanche Liza. Lowe's sister, Janet, is staying with the Tenisons. They are deeply attached to her, having lost their only child, a boy, when he was kidnaped many years before. On their way out to the ranch after persuading Tenison to give them the job, Con and Caramba met Monk Irby, one of the Megeath crowd. Megeath and the Paramours, headed by Dad Paramour, hate both Nevil Lowe and the Broken Wheel outfit. In the fight that followed their meeting, Con knocked out Irby. Now he has had to fight off the rest of Megeath's men, who followed Tenison and Janet out from town.

New continue with the story.

CHAPTER XIV

Con overhauled his outfit after dinner. He was ready before Caramba and Skeets and he went wandering curiously about the place. Janet called him from a side veranda, and when he walked up to the big house, dusty Stetson at his knee, she was sitting beside a small, white-haired woman. Con looked curiously at Mrs. Tenison and she studied him intently for a moment, before she turned smilingly to Janet.

"Why, honey, he's just a boy! From all you said—"

"Nearly twenty-one. Not quite," Con told her, wondering why Janet's face was suddenly so flushed. "And you are not so terribly old that twenty is terribly young to you!"

"Good—lands! He's dangerous!" Mrs. Tenison gasped. "Paying compliments to old women—"

"I used to know a girl in Chicago," Con said truthfully, "and she had the prettiest gray hair, almost white, from the time she was nineteen. Somehow, it just made her look younger. The way yours makes you look."

"What were you doing in Chicago? Go up with cattle? Don't tell me you're a city boy! Not after the top-roping Mr. Tenison says you did—and Janet says you did."

Con hesitated. Janet, still very pink—and prettier than he had ever seen her, he thought—was looking steadily at him.

"I worked for horse dealers and all sorts of commission men. So when my uncle and aunt were killed in a train wreck, I started for Texas. That was last year. I took on with the 20 Bar trail herd and made the trip to Wild Horse. Then I started this way, to learn the cow business. And here I am, roping Mr. Tenison's colts."

She shook her white head and smiled at Con.

"My boy would have been about your age—twenty-two next December fourteen! But he—no, he was stolen from this very yard, by a partner of Mr. Tenison's, a man who must have been very hard and vindictive, or he wouldn't have done a thing like that to pay a score with a man. He and Mr. Tenison had trouble about a mine and—on one evening he took my boy from this yard and just vanished. We hunted and hunted, but his trail disappeared within fifty miles and from that day to this—"

"I—I heard some of that," Con told her awkwardly. "Well! I reckon Skeets and Caramba ought to be ready to start for Red Mesa."

"There's a nester family, a man and his wife and little boy, on the road to the Mesa. When you boys go by, see if you can sort of sneak around and have a look. Into the kitchen, if possible. If it looks like they're really in bad fix, I want to know it."

He nodded and turned away. Skeets and Caramba were waiting and they mounted. They went on very cheerfully for ten miles or more, climbing into the foothills. Presently, where a narrow trail angled off along an arroyo, leading toward wooded heights, Skeets jerked his head to indicate the track.

"Gracey road," he said. "Nester family. Gracey, he's an oldish fellow, kind of. But his wife is a mighty pretty woman. Not over twenty-three or about that. They got a boy seven-eight years old. Yes, sir! Mis' Gracey is mighty pretty. She jiggled some hearts around and about, I reckon. But Gracey ain't a man to cross just for the fun of it. He sent one Helligo Canyon hair-pin bowling home with a hole in him. Caught him projecting around the place one morning."

Pancho cov'rd a half-mile of twisting trail, up the arroyo and out of it across a low mesa, then into scrubby pines. The tall trees were ahead and above. Where a dry creek cut an opening in the woodland a rifle barrel came poking out of green brush beside the trail and a shrill yell checked Con.

"I never done it, none a-fall!" he cried, lifting both hands. "No, sir, it was the big fellow with the long, black whiskers."

"Stay back on Gracey land!" a thin little voice commanded fiercely. "Stay back or I'll kill you dead!"

"But what for?" Con asked plaintively. "Come on out, Mr. Gracey, and talk to a man. Where's your pa?"

"He—he's dead! Them dirty dogs, they shot him, they before yester-

He staggered slightly as he stood beside Pancho.

day, early. Shot Mom and me, too. She's worse'n I am. She's awful sick. I couldn't go for nobody. Ain't a horse on the place I can catch up. Besides, I got to stay and give her water. And I got to be ready to kill 'em, if they come back. I like to shoot you."

"Good—Lord!" Con exploded. "Come on, boy! We've got to do things."

The child came out of the bushes, dragging the big Winchester, a sturdy, blue-eyed tawhead, who seemed to Con so tiny that his manlike way was incredible. He staggered slightly as he stood beside Pancho. A flour sack was wrapped clumsily around his right arm.

He sagged wearily against Con and his face was hot against Con's hand. Pancho went on across the creek, past the bucket which the boy had evidently come down to fill. Twenty yards beyond was the little adobe house. The door stood open.

Con set the boy down and swung off. At the door he stopped to look into a dusky, untidy room, that kitchen which he had promised Mrs. Tenison to examine. In a corner sprawled the body of a tall man in faded chambray shirt and patched overalls, barefoot. Con went over to Gracey and looked down at the grim, beard-stubbed face. Only a glance was needed to see that he had died almost instantly, of a bullet near the heart.

In the other room Mrs. Gracey lay upon a home-made bedstead, breathing harshly through her mouth. She was fully dressed and her thin, work-hardened hand picked at a bandage as rude as that upon the boy's arm. She had been shot through the right shoulder.

The boy came in and leaned against the wall, with fever-bright eyes moving from his mother to Con. "She's awful sick, ain't she?" he whispered. "But you can get the doctor, now. I tried to get her to eat."

Con went at the run to Pancho, swung up and loped to the dropped bucket. When he came back with cold water he took a clean white shirt from his alforja and ripped it into bandages. He looked doubtfully at it, then shrugged.

"Well, no way to boil it and dry it, here. The thing is to get her down to the women."

He asked the boy if anything on wheels was here.

"Old spring wagon," the child said drowsily. "One horse. But Pa had to sell Coaly. He was our harness horse. And one shaft is busted and so's the seat. It's out back."

Con heard Caramba calling from the trail. He went out and waved the two up, to tell them quickly and shortly of the woman's condition. Caramba swore incredulously.

"Doc ought to be at the house, time we hit there," Skeets said frowningly. "Topeka told Gale that Doc's due out to check up on Mis' Tenison's heart. Let's look at the wagon."

"I'm going to try cleaning up their bandages," Con told them. "I'll be out when I get done."

He washed the quiet woman's shoulder and she hardly flinched, then bandaged it cautiously. The boy's wound was a deep gash like that on Con's own thigh.

The old wagon was as dilapidated as most other things on the shabby place. They took off the wheels and greased the axles, wired and braced the snapped shaft, patched and reinforced the harness. Pancho went between the shafts, about trouble and only put his ears nervously when Con drove him experimentally about the yard.

The three of them lifted Mrs. Gracey gently and carried her, mattress and all, out to the wagon, packing her about with bedding and old clothes against road shocks. Then Con got on the seat with the boy beside him. Caramba and Skeets helped ease the wagon down to the more level range at the mouth of the narrow trail.

"I reckon you can make out," Skeets decided, there. "Me and Caramba better go on to Red Mesa like Gale said."

He looked curiously at the boy. "Son, who was it that done all this?"

"I didn't know 'em. I was asleep and I woke up because somebody was yelling outside the door for Pa to open up. Pa ask' him who it was and he said something and Pa told Mom it was all right. He opened the door and—pow! pow! Pa fell down and of course I knowed he was shot. Mom run in to the room where I was in the corner, because a slug had come in and hit me in the arm. I run over to her and I could see her a lil' bit from the light out of the kitchen. She was kind of moaning. It was two men."

"They just shot twice, as soon as your pa opened the door?" Con prompted him.

"Shot a lot of times. Two men done it. They come in the room where we was and Mom told 'em she was shot, too. She says to him that she was dying. They brought the lamp in and looked to see if she was. I just laid still by her. One was a towhead, same's me. He cussed a lot about Mom being shot and waved his six-shooter around. And he grabbed the blessinghome and wiped his six-shooter with it—"

"Grabbed the what?" Caramba thrust in.

"The blessinghome! Aw, you know them things women makes to stick up in houses! God—bless—our—home; that's about what they always say. He wiped out his six-shooter with it."

Con and Caramba stared at each other, then nodded.

"I said to Monk Irby that it was bad luck," Con drawled. "And we'll try to make it come true, huh, Caramba? Well! I'll take her down. It's going to be dark before we make it."

Men came out of darkness when he drove into the Wheel yard and up to the kitchen door. Gale Goree and Tenison pushed up to the wagon and Con answered their surprised questions shortly.

Mrs. Tenison came out, Janet at her heels. She called for lights.

"Janet," she said briskly, "you trot in, honey, and fix the bed in the west bedroom. The boys will bring her in. Pecki you and Gale and Twenty and Perch carry that mattress. Careful! Where's her boy? Is he hurt much?"

She went in ahead of them, calling to Mexican house servants. The four carried Mrs. Gracey into a clean, orderly room and put the old mattress down. Mrs. Tenison looked at it and clucked, then waved them out.

"Let's get to work, Janet! If we want you men, I'll call. Pecki we can't wait for the doctor. Send somebody to town, fast! He may not show up for a week. My heart's an old story to him and I think he just comes out for barbecued chicken. Scoot!"

In the kitchen, Tenison looked at Goree, then at Con.

"You better make the ride," he drawled. "Grab some coffee and a chunk of meat and catch up a fresh horse. If the doctor's not in town, trail him. He sent word today that he might be two-three days getting out."

He reached behind him to the big coffee pot and motioned to a cup. When he had poured the coffee he set out steak and biscuit. Con told them what the boy had seen and heard, between bites of his supper.

"But how-come you know it was this damn' Monk Irby using the motto for gunnery?" Goree asked him.

"Monk rode up to Caramba and me yesterday, on his way to Onopa. He had that motto."

"Well, if you run into him in town, you let him alone," Tenison ordered. "Tell Janton—the constable—about it. But let him handle it. Get the doctor and come on back."

Con nodded and went out to unhitch Pancho. Goree came after him and picked a black horse for the ride to town.

Con came into Onopa near midnight and banged at the doctor's door until a weary, resigned voice answered. Then he explained his errand.

Summertime Means Picnic Time! (See Recipes Below.)

Sandwiches Plus

Your fling with summer isn't quite complete without one or a dozen picnics with those sandwiches that taste so good, bubbling hot coffee and fresh, juicy fruit to top off that outdoor meal. You'll have fun with these simple things, even if you don't make a long trip in the family car to some far-away, favorite picnic grounds. Try the back yard, the park, the beach or even that shady spot down the road a mile or so for this year's picnic.

Scrub your favorite picnic hamper clean and sun-dry it to assure your food freshness and cleanliness. Fill it to the brim with exciting sandwich combinations that your family will get such a surprise when they begin digging into the pleasant recesses of the big basket. Remember the salt for the tomatoes, paper napkins, paper plates, plenty of glasses or paper cups and, yes, a gay checked cloth to add atmosphere to the affair.

Are you in a quandary as to what sandwiches to make? Well, glance over the following combinations for some really tasty ideas in fillings:

Chopped bacon (broiled until crisp) and hard-cooked egg, moistened with mayonnaise or softened butter.

Sliced ham and American cheese, lettuce, sandwich spread.

Cream cheese, finely minced onion, chopped stuffed olives.

Chipped beef, ground fine, mixed with crumbled Roquefort cheese, seasoned with Worcestershire sauce.

Liver sausage, mashed, seasoned with chili sauce.

Summer sausage, ground with sweet or bread and butter pickles, moistened with mayonnaise.

Cucumber, chopped fine, excess moisture drained off, mixed with cream cheese, salt and pepper.

Peanut butter mixed with honey.

Tuna or salmon, flaked, mixed with lemon juice, finely chopped celery and mayonnaise to moisten.

Fillings combined generously with butter are often known as spreads. This facilitates the handling of sandwiches. Just spread the "butter" thickly between slices of bread and your sandwich is made, ready to be wrapped in waxed paper for picnicking.

Cheese Spread.
Blend cream cheese with lemon juice and add 2 tablespoons butter to each package (1-ounce) of cream cheese. To this add one or more of the following: chopped watercress, green pepper or celery; pimiento, green olives, or nuts.

Sardine Spread.
Cream 2 tablespoons lemon juice with ½ pound sweet butter. Spread this on toast or plain whole wheat bread. On top of this place tiny sardines, sprinkle with lemon juice and top with slice of toast or plain whole wheat bread.

"Make-your-own" sandwiches are loads of fun for picnics. Just pack your lunch box with meat loaf or ham loaf already baked at home. Provide the crowd with bread and butter, and let them slice the meat for their own sandwiches:

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Your best bargains during the present can be found in eggs and cheese, so plan to fortify your meals generously with both of these foods.

The campaign to save fats is really getting under way, and it's good policy on your part to turn all excess fats to your butcher.

Economy's yours if you use a variety of meat cuts in planning your menus. Best bargains can be found in the less used cuts such as liver, sweetbread, heart, kidneys, rump roasts, etc.

Primary or unlimited production in canned fruits is decreed for the following items: peaches and pears (not whole), pectin, fruit cocktail, fruit for salad, and concentrates of grapefruit, lemon, lime and orange.

*Ham Picnic Loaf.

(Serves 10)

- ½ cup quick-cooking tapioca
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 pound lean ham, ground
- 1 pound lean pork, ground
- 2 cups milk

Combine tapioca with remaining ingredients in order given. Bake in a loaf pan in a hot (450-degree) oven 15 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 45 minutes longer or until done. Serve hot or cold.

Munching on golden, crisply fried, cold chicken is many a picnicker's dream of the perfect outing. This is easily managed if you fry the chicken the night before, let it stand in the refrigerator, then wrap in waxed paper to take to the picnic the next day:

*Country-Fried Chicken.

(Serves 5 to 8)

- 2 3-pound chickens
- ½ cup flour
- 1½ tablespoons salt
- 1½ teaspoon pepper
- Lard or shortening for frying.
- ¼ cup butter

Clean chickens and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Mix flour with salt and pepper and place in paper bag. Place several pieces of chicken in the bag, and shake to coat evenly with flour. Take out and fry chicken until brown, slowly, in the lard which has been placed in a heavy skillet. When all the chicken has been browned, dot with butter, cover closely and let cook for about an hour over low heat. Or, if you prefer, after chicken is fried, let cook in a moderate (350-degree) oven until done. Uncover during last 15 minutes of cooking time to brown and crisp chicken.

Potato salad made the old-fashioned way with home-cooked dressing is guaranteed to go over big with the family:

Potato Salad

(Serves 8)

- 6 potatoes, cooked in jackets
- ¼ cup french dressing
- 1 onion, chopped fine
- 1 cup celery, chopped fine
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 recipe cooked dressing

Peel potatoes, and cube. Marinate in french dressing for ½ hour. Combine with other ingredients, and chill thoroughly before serving. Garnish with paprika.

Cooked Dressing.

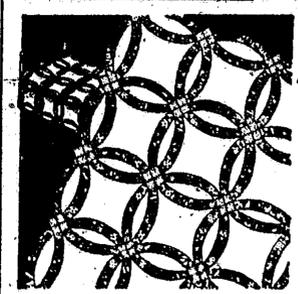

- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1½ tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 2 egg yolks
- ¼ cup milk
- ¼ cup vinegar

Combine dry ingredients. Add egg yolks, blending carefully, then mix in butter, milk and vinegar slowly. Cook until thick in double boiler. Let cool before adding to salad.

Two Towns Are One
Nogales, Arizona, and Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, are two towns geographically, but only one physically, says Collier's. The international boundary line, which runs down the middle of their one common main street, is marked by a barbed-wire fence. Internationalism is so strong that the inhabitants celebrate all American and Mexican holidays.

Fire Watchers Service

SANTA FE, N. M., August 4--The New Mexico Council of Civilian Defense is launching a drive for the expansion and development of the fire watchers service as an effective first line of defense against fire bombs, Lieut. Col. E. L. Safford, State OCD Director, announced today.

The necessity for numerically strong and well organized body of fire watchers in every city within reach of enemy bombers is apparent from studies of British experience, he said.

"A study of the effect of bombing raids made upon Britain shows that a major portion of all property destruction is caused by fire and that prevention of fire is the most important single step which can be taken to reduce damage.

"The fire watcher must be situated so that he can see or hear every fire bomb dropped within his area. He must be able to reach bomb promptly and extinguish it before the flames have reached conflagration proportions. "It is of the utmost importance that we be prepared to meet possible attack with an organization of fire watchers large enough to protect every building in every target area. Fire watchers must be trained and equipped to deal with fire bombs as soon as they have fallen."

Appointed As Consultant

DENVER, Aug 5--Barron B. Mr. Beshoar will serve as consultant to the committee during the investigation, which is expected to require about three weeks. He left Denver July 29 for El Paso, Texas, which will be his headquarters during his investigation.

In addition to New Mexico, Southwest Texas and Arizona also will be covered by the survey. Mr. Beshoar said his work will be devoted to investigating employment conditions of Spanish-Americans in the mining industry.

How to Address Prisoners Of War

Now, simplified address forms for correspondence directed to American prisoners of war and civilians interned in the Far East were announced this week by Eleventh Naval District officials.

The required form of address when the name of the prison camp is known is as follows:

Lieut. John Doe, U. S. N.
Zentsuji Prison Camp,
Island of Shikoka, Japan.

Mail to prisoners or internees in a known locality where the name of the camp is not known should be addressed as follows:

Lieut. John Doe, United States Marine Corps,
(Formerly of Wake Island)
Shanghai, China,
care of Japanese Red Cross,
Tokyo, Japan.

In order to clear such correspondence through the Army censorship office the notation "Prisoners of War Correspondence" should be written in upper left hand corner of the envelope, and at the bottom under the address "Via Chicago, Illinois" should be written. In the upper right hand corner should be written the word "FREE."

To facilitate censorship all correspondence should be written in a clear and brief manner and should be typed whenever possible.

Clearance of cable messages to prisoners and internees are to be made through the American Red Cross. Forms for 25 word messages have been distributed to chapters throughout the country. Cost of these messages is approximately $13.50.

Simplification of the mail routing to the Orient was effected by joint action of the Prisoners of War Board of the Navy Department, officers of the International Red Cross and the Universal Postal Union in Switzerland.
