Herman E. Kelt, Jr., Likes Navy

San Diego, Calif.
Nov. 3, 1942.

Dear Mrs. Smith: Well, here I am still in San Diego, I am attending a Machinist's Mate School. It is a very interesting course and I like it.

I used to think we had long hours of school in civilian life. Well, I was wrong; here in Uncle Sam's Navy we go to school anywhere from eight to ten hours a day, every day except Saturday and Sunday, and on Saturday we have four hours of school.

I don't think the Navy can be beaten by any other part of the service, just about the roughest part of it is all that drilling you have to do when you first come into the Navy; and also, all of the washing you have to do each night.

Well, I have to close now as it is nearly time for taps to blow. Good wishes to my friends.

Sincerely,

Look Out Below! 2,000-lb. Bomb!

The pictures presented herewith are the very first actual photographs of 2,000-pound bomb tests ever to be released in the United States. They were taken at the Army Ordnance department proving ground, Aberdeen, Md. In picture at top the bombs are being readied by a muscular civilian expert for the test. He is attaching the tail fin to one bomb, across which lies a red flag—warning signal to other workmen. Fins are placed on large bombs just prior to dropping, to guide them in their flight. Made of comparatively light metal, they might be bent if shipped attached to bombs. Bent fins would cause misses.

The 2,000-pound demolition bomb is trundled carefully to the bi-motored bomber. Notice the pistol worn by the soldier who is pushing the hand cart. He is armed to enforce, if necessary, rigid safety restrictions applying when high explosives are handled.

An electric winch in the bombardment plane lifts the bomb through the bomb bay to its position in the plane. These tests are conducted in co-operation with the air corps, which furnishes the bombardment aircraft and flying personnel.

This remarkable photo shows a 2,000-pound bomb an instant after its release.

Flame and smoke are sent nearly 2,000 feet skyward as the bomb explodes. Photo was taken with a telephoto lens, a mile from the blast.

These two ugly, jagged fragments of metal, held by an army officer, formed part of the case of the test bomb.

International Red Cross Aids, Helps to Locate War Prisoners

Instrumental in Obtaining Fair Treatment of All Internees.

Perhaps you know a soldier or sailor who is a prisoner of war? Or perhaps you have been notified that he is missing in action but have no official word that he is a prisoner?

In any case you want more information. You want to know about getting more news of him. You want to know if you can send a letter, or a parcel with warm clothes and some of those cookies he is so fond of.

The best place to get that information is through the Red Cross. Your nearest local Red Cross chapter can tell you what you want to know. If possible go to the chapter yourself, rather than write. If you don't know where it is, or can't find it in the telephone directory, call the city hall, or any government or municipal agency, and they will tell you.

The Red Cross chapter will tell you exactly how to address a letter to the prisoner, or will help you fill in a message on a special form if he is only listed as missing in action. They will tell you, too, about parcels. And they will explain what is being done by the Red Cross and other agencies to make life as bearable as possible for him while he is in enemy hands.

The situation changes frequently, but you can always be sure that if you go to the Red Cross chapter you will get the latest information on what you can do.

International Committee.

There is of course no direct contact between nations at war, but the American Red Cross can work through the International Red Cross committee in Geneva, Switzerland, which is recognized by everybody as strictly neutral, and has acted as go-between in wartime ever since it was founded for that purpose nearly 70 years ago.

Under agreements made at Geneva before the war—in 1929 to be exact—the nations promised to give humane treatment to prisoners, and drew up a set of rules for use in time of war. Long before the present war Germany and Italy were among those who agreed to abide by those rules, and in February, 1942, Japan announced that she would observe them.

Each nation agreed to set up a central bureau for prisoners of war information. The United States has set up a Prisoners of War Information bureau in the office of the provost marshal general—in the war department. The Japanese government established its Central Prisoners bureau in Tokyo in December, 1941.

Cabled to Geneva.

Names of prisoners and civilian internees are assembled by these bureaus, cabled to the International Red Cross committee's agency in Geneva, listed and filed for reference in the committee's Central Agency for Prisoners of War, and forwarding lists of those captured in the Philippines.

If after a reasonable time you have received no word of a man believed captured, you can ask your Red Cross chapter to help you fill out an inquiry form and the Red Cross will make every effort to obtain a report.

Each nation also agreed to provide suitable prison quarters, with adequate heat and cooking facilities, and food similar to that given to its own soldiers in barracks, and to allow the prisoners to write home and receive mail and parcels. War prisoners are confined in camps, or compounds, usually surrounded by barbed wire and armed guards, in which they may move about comparatively freely, but they may not be shut up, as in a jail.

Prisoners are allowed to send a limited number of letters or postcards, depending not only on the country but the camp in which they are situated. Prisoners of war and civilian internees held by the United States, for example—German, Italian, and Japanese—may send two letters and one postcard per week, and may receive an unlimited amount of incoming mail.

Letters from German prison camps are sometimes received within two or three months, but obviously mail from prisoners in the Far East must be expected to take much longer.

Parcels Delivered.

It has also been possible to deliver weekly standard Red Cross food

'New' Clothes

Civilians as well as prisoners of war benefit from the cargo of a Red Cross mercy ship. Evidence of distribution, through Red Cross channels, of cracked wheat is seen in the garments worn by these Chinese children.

parcels to supplement the diet of prisoners in Germany, Italy and occupied France. These supplies are distributed through the International Red Cross committee at Geneva. Delegates of the committee are allowed to inspect the prison camps to check on whether the prisoners are being treated in accordance with the international agreements, and to see that the parcels reach them safely.

Contents of the parcels vary from time to time, but at present each package, weighing approximately 11 pounds, contains milk powder, 1 lb.; cheese, 8 oz.; liver paste, 6 oz.; corned beef, 12 oz.; pork meat, 12 oz.; raisins, 16 oz.; sugar, 8 oz.; lemon powder, 12 oz.; cocoa, 8 oz.; coffee, 8 oz.; chocolate, 4 oz.; candy, 6 oz.; cigarettes, 40; tobacco, 2 1/2 oz.; lunch biscuit (type C), 7 oz.; matches, 2 boxes.

The sending of packages to Japan is a more difficult matter, due to the refusal of the Japanese government to allow neutral vessels in the western Pacific ocean. It is hoped that eventually arrangements may be made for the shipment by the Red Cross of a regular supply of standard food parcels, cigarettes, clothing and medical necessities.

In the meantime, the American Red Cross has been able to send food parcels for trans-shipment to the Far East on the neutral Swedish vessel, the Gripsholm, sailing to Portuguese East Africa, where American and Japanese diplomats and other non-combatants are exchanged.

On her first sailing the Gripsholm carried 20,000 parcels, $50,000 worth of drugs and medical supplies, 1,000,000 cigarettes, 10,000 tins of smoking tobacco, and large quantities of clothing and toilet articles supplied by the army and navy departments for their respective departments.

On her second voyage, the Gripsholm carried 63,000 of the 11-pound food parcels, 20,000,000 cigarettes, over $33,000 worth of drugs and medical supplies, $95,000 worth of blankets and toilet articles, and large quantities of underwear, shoes and other articles amounting to more than half a million items.

Distribution of supplies to prisoners in the Far East is being carried out by International Red Cross committee delegates in Tokyo, Shanghai, and Hong Kong, who will make every effort to see that part of this aid goes to the prisoners captured in the Philippines, even though the Japanese government has not yet allowed the appointment of a delegate of the International Red Cross committee in the Philippines.

There is naturally anxious speculation on the treatment of prisoners, especially in view of reports of brutality brought back to the United States by some internees, particularly newspaper correspondents returning on the exchange ship, the Gripsholm.

Political Suspects.

These latter were detained by the Japanese equivalent of the Gestapo, and were in most cases thrown into jail on the pretext that they were political suspects. The Japanese did not recognize that they came under the protection of the Geneva Prisoners of War convention. The International Red Cross committee delegates are strictly limited by the Japanese government to efforts to protect the interests of the men of the armed forces held as prisoners of war and of civilians interned in recognized camps.

These are held in prison camps or compounds. International Red Cross committee delegates permitted to inspect these camps in Japan and occupied China, and to speak to the prisoners, have reported that conditions are satisfactory and that they have received no serious complaints.

Any report of ill treatment of men in the armed forces who have been captured usually applies to the period when the prisoner is still on or near the field of battle, when the animosities engendered by hostilities are still strong. As soon as the prisoner has been placed in an organized prison camp governed by the agreements made at Geneva, his situation is usually much improved.

International Red Cross Grew Out of Eye Witness Story of Italian Battle

In 1862 Henri Dunant, a Swiss who had been an eye witness, wrote a graphic account of the Battle of Solferino. He told of the suffering of the wounded soldiers and discussed the possibility of organizing, in all civilized countries, "permanent societies of volunteers" to care for the wounded of all nationalities in time of war.

A lawyer from Geneva named Gustave Moynier read Dunant's book. As president of a local philanthropic society Moynier appointed a committee of five members of the society to consider the possibility of putting Dunant's plan into action.

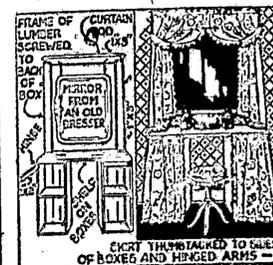

The "Committee of Five" then issued an invitation to all European governments and military, medical and philanthropic societies to send delegates to a conference to be held at Geneva on October 23, 1863.

The 26 delegates who attended the now famous Geneva convention recommended that relief societies be formed in each nation, authorized by the government of that nation and co-operating with its army.

The original "Committee of Five" became the International Red Cross committee. In 1919 the League of Red Cross Societies was founded, thus uniting all the separate national Red Cross societies. And in 1928 was instituted the International Red Cross conference, governing body of the International Red Cross.

THE illustration shows what became of a mirror and piano stool. To the mirror and stool were added two wooden boxes from the grocery. These were placed on end about 18 inches apart and a shelf of half-inch plywood was screwed to the back of the boxes as shown. A curtain rod was placed across the top and the mirror hung lengthwise under it. An arm was then hinged to the front of each box. Paint was next. White, because white furniture is smart and because it matched the woodwork. The flowered chintz in tones of rose and blue-green with narrow frills of the plain blue-green tone matched the window curtains.

The dressing table skirt was made with a one-inch heading at the top and tacked along the ends of the table and the hinged arms with thumbtacks through a double strip of the plain material.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman
SHOWER CURTAINS APT TO MILDEW ON LOWER EDGE

ONE of the petty annoyances of a housewife is the mildewing of shower curtains, which always takes place on the lower edge. It is this part of a curtain, of course, that takes the worst punishment and is usually the last part to dry. Mildewing can be checked by shaking off the loose drops of water each time that the shower is used, and then supporting the curtain in such a way that the lower part is aired on both sides for quick drying. When the curtain sticks to the inside or the outside of the bathtub, drying is slow, and mildew forms quickly. For quick drying, the end of the lower edge of the curtain should be flipped over the curtain bar, or should be supported in some other way, so that air can get to both sides of it. Mildew spots can be taken out with a bleaching liquid. This should be a weak solution and allowed to act for only a few minutes before being rinsed off. Several applications may be necessary. A white shower curtain that I saw recently of silk or silk substitute was so badly mildewed that it was replaced. Later, it was sent to a good laundry, and on being returned, its owner was amazed to find that every trace of mildew had disappeared, apparently with no injury to the fabric. Curtains that are claimed to be mildew proof are on the market.

Oak Furniture

Question: I am carpenter and sandpapering all varnish from my oak furniture. How can I make it lighter in color? How should I finish it? I want to show the grain. What is a "pickled oak" finish? How should magnolia and gum be finished?

Answer: All of the natural color of the oak can be taken out with a commercial wood bleach, to be had through large paint stores. Instructions should be carefully followed. After drying, you can finish with clear lacquer or colorless varnish. In a pickled oak finish the bare wood, after sandpapering, is painted with white paste filler thinned with turpentine to the consistency of paint. While still wet, the surface is wiped off with a coarse cloth, across the grain, to force the filler into the pores. After drying, the surface is rubbed with fine sandpaper and then finished with clear varnish. Special finishes for the less usual types of wood can be learned from the National Association of Paint, Lacquer and Varnish Manufacturers, Washington, D. C.

Damp Basement Walls

Question: There are large damp spots on my basement walls, and about 50 neighbors have the same trouble with our new houses. What kind of paint can I get that will cover the spots and keep them covered?

Answer: There is every probability that the spots are not from leakage, but are due to the drying out of the concrete. This may take a number of months, and very possibly the walls will not be thoroughly dry until you have had your heat on until well into the winter. You should then finish the walls with a cement paint. If this is used while the walls are still damp, it will also show the spots. But after the walls have dried, the spotting should end. If you cannot get cement paint from a paint store, it can be had from a dealer in masonry materials.

Finish for Plywood

Question: How could plywood walls for a bathroom in a summer cottage be finished? I am thinking of putting oilcloth on the lower part and using enamel above it. Would this be satisfactory?

Answer: Instead of oilcloth, use wall-cloth, which is light canvas finished with oil paints in wallpaper designs. This could be used all over the walls and ceilings. It would be satisfactory to use enamel on the upper part. Large manufacturers of plywood issue instruction sheets for the application of wallcloth, as well as of enamels and paints, that can be had on request.

Powdery Brickwork

Question: Brick and mortar in my foundation are beginning to powder and to fall to the floor. The walls do not seem to be damp. What can be done?

Answer: Soak the wall with water and then brush with a mixture of portland cement and water to the consistency of thick cream. Follow immediately with a quarter-inch coat of 1 part portland cement and 3 parts building sand, with only enough water to make a stiff mixture. As soon as this coat hardens, sprinkle with water and keep wet for three days.

Velvet Is a Fabric Favorite For Lovely 'Dress Up' Things

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

VELVET has ever been a magic word in the fabric realm and this season its luster is being played up more glamorously than ever. It is in lavish mood that designers are creating velvet throughout fall and winter collections, bringing out most exciting "date dresses" and evening modes styled for "date" wear, for afternoon and after twilight formals, in charming off-duty contrast to starchy uniforms and functional workaday outfits.

There are many outstanding plants to the velvet vogue that make for big news just now. One is that of the simply tailored afternoon velvet suit that is conceded to be one of the smartest items on fashion's program this season. It adds to its lure that it is so dramatically adaptable to the accompaniment of show-piece fur, lovely, lacy blouses, glittering jeweled buttons and, what is most important, high color touches in gloves, bags and bejeweled hats.

Then, too, stunning separate coats made of ink-black velvet luxuriously collared in ink-black fur carry a message of see-high chic for winter. Which all goes to show that no matter how formal or casual your social moments are, there will be lovely, appropriate costumes for the occasion done in regal velvet which will make you as feminine and elegant as your best beau's heart could desire.

Suitable for any "date," from afternoon to midnight, is the charming priority-correct furlough frock shown to the right in the above illustration.

It is fashioned of handsome, wine-colored, crush-resistant transparent rayon velvet. The grand thing about crush-resistant rayon velvet is that it is all that its name indicates—crush-resistant! You can wear it with confidence, knowing that it will keep its freshness. Note especially that gleaming metallic embroidery defines the simulated two-piece effect. Many of the new velvet fashions are gleaming with bead and sequin touches. The slimly fitted bodice has a deep V-neck. Worn over a properly fitted foundation garment (the new slenderizing fashions call for just that) the youthful, slim-waisted lines of this lovely dress are unusually graceful.

The vogue for contrast has inspired the charming "after five" bolero costume to the left, which is done in rich crush-resistant rayon velvet in deep midnight blue. The long slim lines of the colorful rayon-and-metal bodice are accentuated by the patriotic fabric-conserving brevity of the bolero jacket, making a well-corseted figure a necessity for effective wearing.

The luster of handsome velvet in deep, rich black is combined with the enchantment of exquisite lace in the charming dinner dress illustrated in the center above, which is designed especially for the woman whose program includes club activities. The graceful, long lines of this dress are accentuated by effective, velvet-banded puffed sleeves of thin-to-transparent black lace. A cluster of flowers adds coloring to the softly draped neckline.

Enthusiasm for velvet is also finding a new outlet this season in that most important vogue which calls for accessory accents, especially velvet gloves matched to hats, the ensemble carried out in daring colors, notably fuchsia shades, Kelly green, turquoise, and flaming red. PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

IT IS the military air—in the double row of buttons down the front—which gives this young frock its glamour! The same feature makes the dress a practical one, for little girls can get in and out of it unaided. Clever piecing gives the frock a full swinging skirt.

Sound on Light Beam

Sound may be transmitted between two widely separated points over a beam of light, says Collier's. The sound waves at the source are transformed into light waves and back again into sound waves in a loud speaker at the point of reception.

Over a powerful searchlight not long ago, a man in Schenectady talked to a friend in Gloversville, N. Y., a distance of 32 miles.

Can You Win Freedom From Constipation?

Too many folks go on suffering from constipation when there's no need in the world for them to do so! Why? Simply because one of the commonest causes of constipation is lack of "bulk food" in the diet. In such cases, cathartics and purges can give only temporary relief!

If this is your trouble, you can expect lasting relief from constipation—simply by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This crisp, delicious cereal supplies the "bulk" you may need—gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it. Start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today and drink plenty of water. See what a wonderful difference it makes when you correct the cause instead of trying to "remedy" the result! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

For years the U. S. has consumed over half the world's supply of rubber. Close to 70% of the rubber imported by the U. S. was used in the manufacture of tires and tubes and tire accessories.
Last year a 6.00 by 16 1/2 by 1 1/2 Black & Swallow tire weighed 21.54 pounds, of which 11.0 pounds was rubber. The balance of the weight was in rubber fabric, wire and chemicals.
Several years ago a man from Seattle traded a small house for one of the earliest types of automobile tires, of which he was a collector.
The most valuable gift for a Uganda bride of Africa is an old auto tire. It is a symbol of wealth and a necklace on special occasions.
The tires on the "Spirit of St. Louis" in the Smithsonian Institution are fifteen years old and still good.

Shawl to Match

As Scotch as heather is this plaid suit made of spun rayon yarn fabric dyed for true color combinations. The material has a warm, woolly finish. The navy sweater is piped in the plaid of the skirt. The outfit includes slacks, a mannish lined vest, a cap and, most important of all, a three-cornered fringed shawl made of the identical plaid used for the dress. The idea of a cunning shawl "to match" is taking the young campus crowd by storm. These are often embroidered in peasant style and colorfully finished off with hand-tied yarn fringe or with a self-fabric, frayed-fringe edge.

Small or Large—Hats Are Feathered

Gorgeously colorful feather hats are out in full force. They range from the pheasant-pod gaiter (so tiny you have to look twice before you can identify them as hats) to pillboxes and dashing types that flaunt towering crowns with impeding feather motif trims.

A charming feather fantasy that does the "pretty-pretty" gesture to the halo of pastel feather flowers that pose back of your forehead curl.

The single ostrich plume swirls from the front over the top of the hat to the back where it falls low to the nape of the neck.

Ruffles Galore Are Seen On Coats, Skirts, Suits

So on the lookout for ruffles galore, for many of the newest fashions are being smartly styled with ruffles.

Even cloth coats are taking on ruffle effects, such as cascades of self fabric running down side closings from neckline to hemline. Tailored suits, too, are softened with fabric of self fabric on the jacket fronts. Afternoon dresses have cascades of ruffles on both skirts and bodice tops. Tiny flutings and ruche effects finish off the hemlines of narrow skirts.

Cozy 'Nighties'

The flannel nightgowns that we'll be wearing this winter will be old-fashioned, long sleeved ones. Women who never wore these quaint types will be wearing them this year. Some of them are really very pretty, made as they are of flower prints in delectable colors.

It is imperative that the ship lanes be kept free of ice. With American troops occupying Iceland and the Navy using the northern route for transportation of supplies to Russia, ice breakers are essential to Naval operations. The ice breaker is a specially constructed ship with heavily armored bows and powerful engines that crush the ice floes rather than ram through them.

Ice breakers of the Kleckpoo class operating in the North Atlantic cost approximately $10,000,000. You can help our Navy build these ships by investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday. Enroll in the payroll savings plan or apply at the nearest bank or postoffice. U. WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., is the mother of 12 children, holds six college degrees and is a distinguished engineer. In the various moves to bring women into war work engineering, including the present forum of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at Rochester, Mrs. Gilbreth is busy and prominent. Her sixth child was born when she was getting her Ph.D. at Brown university. I asked her a few years ago if it wasn't quite an engineering problem, running a house with 12 children. She said that was proof enough for anybody that women could be, and were, good engineers.

Her degrees, in literature and engineering, are from the University of California, Brown, Michigan, Rutgers and Russell Sage college. She shared the study and practice of her husband, Dr. Frank B. Gilbreth, an eminent engineer, and when he died, in 1924, picked up his work as well as her own, chiefly in the field of industrial motion study, and in combatting drudgery, inefficiency and waste in factories. She believes that tools are liberating instruments if used intelligently and the frankness of modern machinery can be neatly and nicely domesticated. Women, she thinks, can be a great help in this—as well as in winning the war.

She is a brisk and personable lady, 63 years old, born and reared in Oakland, Calif. As a consultant in factory processes and organization, she stresses the fact that her methods involve no "speed-up" plans.

WE ONCE know an illustrious and talkative citizen, an authority on nearly everything of public interest, who came to grief when his ghost suddenly appeared and died on him. In truth there never really had been any such person as he was supposed to be. He was a synthesis of this hired alter ego and when the ghost died the great public man became quite inarticulate and helpless. Before long he was utterly forgotten.

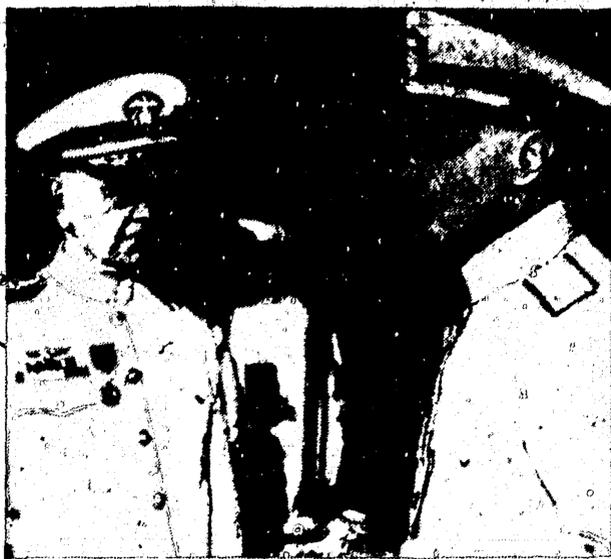

Henry J. Kaiser, the cargo plane and ship wizard, has a ghost but need have no such worries. He can say his say effectively and it is more in the interest of his famous super-efficiency that he has Philip H. Parrish, editorial writer of the Portland Oregonian, writing his speeches and statements for him. It might mean a loss of a half dozen chips if Mr. Kaiser took time out to write speeches. Mr. Kaiser can lay the feel of a sentence or a speech as simply and soundly as the next man. Mr. Parrish, one of the best wordsmiths in the business, assembles the various parts and brings through the superstructure, all chip-shape and in fit time, and it's all authentic Kaiser.

As to transportation, Mr. Parrish started away back of scratch, several years ago, with a book, "Before the Covered Wagon." He is a fast worker and moved on handily into the cargo plane era, with Mr. Kaiser and, in charge of the editorial page of the Portland Oregonian, made his typewriter crack steam-roller blows in the building of the master shipbuilder. Everybody out that way knows him as Phil Parrish, turning in a professional talent of high order to help win the war. Having started newspaper work in Olympia, Ore., on the Morning Olympian he catches in nicely the quite uniformly Olympian stride of Mr. Kaiser.

Mr. Parrish is 45 years old, a native of Constantine, Mich., educated at the Oregon State college and the University of Wisconsin. In Portland, he worked first as a reporter on the Journal and then worked on through virtually every editorial post on the Oregonian. He takes the long view of Oregon and the nation, as disclosed in another successful book of his, "Historic Oregon." He is married and has one daughter.

SIR EDWIN L. LUYTENS, venerated and distinguished British architect, takes over the job of putting London together again, under the mandate of the Royal academy, of which he was elected president in 1936. Not only will he restore the bombed areas, but he will tear up the old hang-overs of hit-or-miss development and bring through a modern city, along that old line of Norman, Saxon, Norman, modern growth. He designed the British embassy at Washington and many other great government buildings.

Ring of Bases Defend Canal

Panama Waterway Is Now Protected by Circle of Steel and Air Power.

NEW YORK.—United States bases established in the Pacific at Santa Elena on the westernmost point of the Ecuadorian mainland, and on Ecuador's Galapagos Islands, completes a veritable defense ring of steel and air power around the Panama canal.

Outlying bastions for the protection of the great Panama waterway, so vital not only to United States interests but also to many of the South American countries, now dot the arcs of a great circle.

One swings out from Cuba, on the northern edge of the Caribbean, down to the very shores of the South American continent.

The other curves westward, northward, then eastward, from Santa Elena, just below the equator, embracing the Galapagos archipelago in the Pacific west of the 90th meridian, west longitude, and about 1,000 miles from the canal.

The Panama canal lies somewhat to the south of center of this imaginary circle, which traverses or includes 10 of the 11 American republics aligned with the United States in the conflict against the Axis, the Western hemisphere possessions of European belligerents, where United States bases are now located, and some of the American nations that have opened relations with the Axis and which pledged themselves to whole-hearted defense co-operation.

Bases in Cuba. Within this circle lie the following territories and countries in many of which strong points exist or are nearing completion:

1. Cuba, with a great U. S. naval base on Guantanamo bay, and U. S. air bases under construction at San Antonio and at two other points. Cuba and the United States recently signed a military and naval co-operation pact to remain in force until six months after the end of the war.

2. Haiti and the Dominican Republic, both at war with the Axis, and both providing full co-operation with the United States defense system.

3. The island of Puerto Rico, often called the "Gibraltar of the Caribbean."

4. The Virgin Islands, United States possessions, whose defenses have been greatly strengthened since 1940.

5. Some of the British Western hemisphere possessions, where U. S. bases already have been constructed.

Mexico Increases Patrol.

6. Mexico, the five Central American republics of Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Honduras, and Costa Rica and the republic of Panama, all at war with the Axis and co-operating with the United States in the defense of the continent. United States air bases long have been established in many of the Central American republics, and Mexican military, naval and air forces, supplied with lease-lend military material, are constantly stepping up their patrol activities.

7. The Dutch West Indies, where great oil refineries are situated, and which are defended by Netherlands and United States land and air forces.

8. The Republic of Venezuela and Colombia, lying close to the canal. These two countries acted promptly in reverting relations with the Axis after the attack on Pearl Harbor, and United States naval craft and planes unceasingly patrol their Atlantic coastlines.

9. The republic of Ecuador, which also has broken relations with Germany, Italy and Japan, and where the latest announcement of U. S. air bases was made.

BOMBS BURST ONCE

By GRANVILLE CHURCH

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Jeff Curtis and his wife, Lee, are already on their way to Sierra Leone when he receives a note from Zora Mitchell warning them not to come. They arrive to find both Zora and her husband dead. Although he investigated the fruit company that hired him before accepting a job as chief engineer, Jeff is already suspicious of the company and of his employer, Senor Montaya. Conversations with Jerry McEneaney, who works for a rival company, and with Bill Henderson and Gias Monahan reveal that there is something going on and that Mitchell and Zora were killed because they knew too much. Now Montaya has just called Jeff to tell him that Henderson, too, has met with an "accident" and is dead. A hasty inquest is being conducted.

NOW CONTINUE WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

Also present were a lieutenant and uniformed aid from the Tempujo comandancia. During the entire scene they said nothing aloud, only whispered to each other as they made notes. Extraordinarily respectful, these two hombres. Of the presence of death, or Senor Montaya? Curt was aware of them only subconsciously. He stared down at Bill Henderson. A severe blow on the back of the head, Dr. Berry had said.

An ideal Reaching out, Curt rolled back one eyelid of the unconscious man, then the other. Both eyes were clear. One pupil was contracted, the other dilated; that was the concussion. But the whites were clear. Curt compressed his lips. He lifted the square of gauze that hid the mangled chest. The stain of the tinea-vascular was there, but it wasn't red. It was scarcely copper pink.

When Henderson was drunk this area of his skin became fiery, his eyes bloodshot. But he'd just lost a great deal of blood. How much would that affect the aim? And if he'd drunk only a few minutes before the accident, perhaps there wouldn't have been time for the eyes and the skin to betray the fact.

Curt became aware of the surprise of the doctors, that Montaya was eyeing him closely. The two men from the constabulary had ceased whispering in mid-sentence to watch. The photographer alone paid Curt no attention. Still champing on his gun, he was cutting up his equipment.

"How did it happen?" asked Curt, bitterly.

Dr. Fisher gave them the story. Henderson lived at Tempujo in the same building which housed the young doctor, a bachelor quarters. It was a sort of hotel for the single white men working here. Fisher knew that Henderson had chafed and chafed after coming in from work, then changed into white; that he planned to run up to San Alejo.

"He asked me if I wanted to go along," Fisher said. "But I couldn't, not having arranged previously for a room. I don't think he'd had a drink at that time, when he went to the shower room."

However, doors were never locked here, and were carelessly left ajar more often than closed. Passing Bill's room later, after Henderson had gone, Fisher had noticed a half empty bottle and glass on Henderson's table.

"That didn't seem strange," he said. "I thought nothing of it at the time."

From then on Fisher had to reconstruct the unfortunate man's movements. Henderson first went to the dispatcher's office for an empty car on his trip; that much was fact. But the truck wasn't clear. So Henderson drove to the end of the yard, threw a switch, and backed his motorcar onto a siding to let the incoming train pass on into the yard. Then the truck would be clear for him.

Apparently his drinking had befuddled his brain so that he'd forgotten to throw back the switch. The incoming train, a locomotive and three flats, took his siding and plowed head-on into the motorcar, telescoping it, throwing its engine back against Henderson.

Young Lester had by now got his pictures here. The others followed him soberly out into the yards while he took pictures of the wrecked car, now a mass of junk. There was nothing more to be done, so the four men headed back to San Alejo.

On the way Montaya continued to smoke his long cigarettes. He seemed angry, bitter, brooding, frustrated. About halfway across the flats he held forth.

"There is no excuse for this kind of accident. There is no excuse for drinking to excess. More than once I have thought of establishing a rule that any employe becoming drunk on the grounds shall be let out at once. But I can't do that," he shrugged.

No one answered. Suddenly Curt remembered the two khaki-clad police representatives. He wondered: Did their whispering and note-taking constitute an "inquest"? Was this kind of inquest held in the cases of Mitchell and his wife? More than likely, he thought. Without a doubt Montaya "owned" the police, and it wasn't to his advantage to stir up any fuss.

Curt told Lee about the accident without dressing up the story. Gave her the simple facts without the gory details. She was silent for some minutes.

Then, "Jeff," she said quietly, "I'm no fool. What's the answer? This is the third death by violence here in less than three weeks!" Curt was sitting on the low couch-hammock on the porch, bent forward, elbows on knees. His hands were busy with his pipe. Lee dropped into the hammock beside him.

"What's strange about it?" he returned at last. But he didn't lift his eyes to hers. "There's always a lot of drinking and sometimes sudden deaths among construction workers in a place like this. You know that. It was so in the earlier days of Associated across the river."

He reached for her hand, pulled her closer to him.

"But—" There was a catch in her voice. "Oh, darling, darling, be careful, be so very careful. If anything should happen to you—"

There was a Catholic church at San Alejo, and a small nondenominational chapel; between them a burial ground. It was here Mitchell and his wife now lay side by side. Service was said over Bill Henderson's body early Sunday morning, and he was lowered into the ground before the sun was high.

Lee clung close to Curt during these last rites, and Curt could feel her trembling. She dabbed at her eyes and turned homeward as Curt went on to his office where Montaya was to join him for their first major discussion of the engineering work Curt had taken over.

While waiting for the Spaniard, Curt pawed over in his mind this chain of deaths. All three were so apparently what they seemed to be—a grudge killing, a suicide from grief, a drunk's accident. Yet there was that tolltale coincidence among them. All three victims had known something. There were, too, a few details which just didn't fit. They haunted Curt.

"The whole thing is none of my business."

One was the fact that Montaya's letter offering Curt this job was written before Mitchell's body was discovered by a truck driver.

Another, not only was Zora Mitchell very definitely not a neurotic type, but where would she get hold of—in the Mitchell household—a foreign make of gun?

And, though it was not out of character for Bill Henderson to have taken a drink, it was certainly out of character for him to forget that switch even if he'd been rolling drunk! Bill was a railroad man!

Curt's thoughts lurched back to Mitchell. What was it the man had "known"? He'd done some muttering about sitting on a "powder keg." He couldn't have meant revolution, for that wouldn't have upset Mitchell. He'd been through them before in this country. No American who minded his own business had anything to fear on that score.

He'd also done some muttering about the Canal, about wanting to go there. As near as he could remember, the Canal business was a vague so-near-and-yet-so-far sort of thing that had no meaning at all.

Curt had been fiddling absently with his tobacco pouch. He now flung it to the desk angrily and jumped to his feet.

"I'm an engineer, not a sleuth. Maybe Mitchell did know something, but I don't, and the whole thing is none of my business!"

But it was, and he knew it. Walking in at that moment, Montaya raised smoothly clipped brows as he saw Curt's congested face.

"I was only thinking," said Curt, in violent explanation, "what a shame it is that liquor can't be outlawed."

I have gone over your memoranda carefully.

One of Curt's suggestions had been to bring in some additional draglines and bulldozers, and to speed up the work in two shifts per day, using flood lights for the few hours of darkness they'd overlap.

"Two shifts of work, it is a good idea," Montaya agreed. "As for more equipment, I have two three-year shovels now on order. They should arrive soon."

"You'll need more," Curt answered.

"But when the work for such equipment is completed? It will be a lot of money to have tied up."

"There's more work here for such machines than you think. You're going to install overhead irrigation when the more important work is out of the way. You plan to pump from the rivers, but I can show you a better way."

Curt strode to the huge photographic map and picked up the pointer.

In the end Montaya agreed, and by phone, then and there, ordered the necessary radiogram sent to his New Orleans office. Other business followed, disposed of item by item. Montaya glanced at his wrist.

"There are two men you have not yet met. Knowing you would be free at this hour I asked them here. Sunday seemed a good time, not to interfere with the routine of anyone."

He opened the door to the outer office, nodded to someone outside, held the door open.

In marched two young men in freshly starched whites, punctilious and stiff of manner. They could be only the Swedes whom Curt had heard mentioned so many times. Both were tall, both dark blond, with fair skin and blue eyes, both wide of shoulder and hard as nails.

There the resemblance ceased. One was round of face, with full lips that held a curious quirk in the corners. He had wavy hair. Not too strong a countenance, this.

The other's face was square, with thin, straight lips, frosty eyes, and stiff cropped hair. There was an old scar on his left cheek.

"Mr. Curtis, this is Mr. Ryden, who smooths out our transportation problems." Square-jaw bowed stiffly. "And Mr. Lannestock, our Chief Pilot." The other followed suit. Neither smiled.

Curt extended a hand but felt no warmth in their response. Palpably, they were ill at ease, and Curt presently put this down to their poor command of English.

"Flying always seemed an adventurous life to me," Curt said, by way of conversation. "Do you enjoy this sort of utility flying? Freighting, laying chemicals, that sort of thing?"

"It is a job," was Lannestock's answer. He had trouble with his "j." Ryden was more voluble. "A good flyer likes any kind of flying. It is not always work. There was the map." He cast a glance at the big map on Curt's wall. "And the all-gators!"

Montaya explained. "Before the swampland was drained of surface water, alligators were quite a nuisance. And, yes, some danger. As fast as the clearing progressed, Mr. Ryden bombed them from a low altitude with grenades. Those that were not killed were driven down the rivers into the marshes between Tempujo and the sea."

A curious look lived on Ryden's eyes as Montaya spoke. They took on a mercurial gleam. Lines of cruelty tensed his thin lips. Features that a moment before had been merely cold took on a hint of leashed fury and hate.

The sudden transition hit Curt like an electric shock. He shifted his gaze to Lannestock. There was no viciousness in this man's face but Curt got the impression that Lannestock was dominated by the other.

"Karl and Gosta," Montaya continued in a tone shaded with affection, "were invaluable to us when we needed two full-time flyers to freight materials. There is still much work for them to do. I could not get along without them."

Here was another surprise—warmth from "The Dark Lily!"

"Planes have their uses," Curt admitted. "What make of plane do you use?" He'd asked Montaya this question before, and got no answer. "They are old planes!" Ryden spit this out, with it giving Montaya a dirty look.

The Spaniard's teeth shone affably. Here was nothing new. He was, indeed, mildly amused.

"Always they ask for new machines," he shrugged expressively. "But if the planes they have will fly, I cannot be putting several times the price into new equipment for this heavy work. They, too, become at once second-hand."

"But repair work," asked Curt, "to keep them in condition?"

"Both Karl and Gosta are quite competent at repairs. And they have good mechanics to assist."

"But always we repair, like we glue together. Some day we come to pieces in the air and have no glue!"

Montaya shrugged again, less good-naturedly. "Karl, you are too good a flyer to take up a bad plane. I have no fear of that. And how long would it be with new planes before you would have to repair, adjust, tighten?"

Honey Pumpkin Pie Inspires a Harvest Supper

(See Recipes Below.)

Harvest Supper Social

One of the nicest things about fall are those harvest supper socials when folks throughout the land gather together with the fruits of their summer labors and heap high the table with steaming chicken fricassees or beefsteak pies, fruits and vegetables, and pies, anything good to eat!

It's partially the food that makes these suppers unforgettable and partially, too, the way it brings old friends together before the long winter pulls in. Whether it's the local grange who sponsors the affair or the ladies' aid, or groups, the affair will be a tremendous success.

Remember the chicken fricassees? *Chicken Fricassee.

- (Serves 8-10)
- 2 3-pound chickens
- Salt, pepper, ginger
- 3 quarts boiling water
- 1/2 cup each, onion, carrot, celery
- 1 bay leaf
- 4 tablespoons chicken fat
- 4 tablespoons flour
- Juice of 1/2 lemon
- 3 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1 can mushrooms

Clean chickens, cut into pieces for serving. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and few grains of ginger. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly for one hour. Add vegetables and bay leaf and continue cooking until tender. Drain off liquid and surplus fat. Add flour to melted fat and cook until brown. Gradually add 3 cups chicken broth or 1 1/2 cups chicken broth and 1 1/2 cups rich milk. Season and cook until smooth. Add lemon juice and mushrooms. Place chicken in gravy with minced parsley and heat.

- *Baking Powder Dumplings
- 3 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- Milk

Sift dry ingredients, and chop in butter. Add eggs with enough milk to form a heavy drop batter. Drop quickly by spoonful into chicken broth. Cover closely and cook 10 minutes without removing lid.

- *Cabbage and Apple Coleslaw.
- (Serves 6)
- 2 cups crisp, dried, shredded cabbage
- Salt
- 1 cup sliced apple
- 1/2 cup cocked salad dressing

Mix cabbage and apple with salad dressing and salt. Chill thoroughly and serve from a large bowl.

A highly prized and cherished favorite for these fall harvest suppers is Steak and Kidney pie, the meat floating in delicious gravy, topped with a flaky, crisp and golden crust:

- Steak and Kidney Pie.
- (Serves 6)
- 3 pounds beef steak (cut 1/2 inch thick)
- 2 pork kidneys
- 2 small onions, minced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

LYNN SAYS:

Sudsy Facts: Higher industrial activity and consumer income contribute to larger soap consumption, according to a Department of Agriculture report, making last year's soap consumption the largest on record.

Domestic oils and inedible tallow will take the place of imported and tropical oils for this year's soap supply.

Healthfulness dictates cleanliness, and that means not only in clothing and personal hygiene but in clean surroundings in the home, especially in the kitchen where food is prepared. Light or white floors insure cleanliness.

You can restore freshness by laundering draperies, walls, rugs and upholstery by using a soap jelly made by dissolving 1 part soap to 8 parts hot water, letting cool, then whipping to a stiff with a beater.

This Week's Menu

- *Chicken Fricassee
- *Baking Powder Dumplings
- *Cabbage and Apple Coleslaw
- Sliced Crabbles
- Bread-Butter Pickles
- *Sautéed Corn and Green Pepper
- *Honey Pumpkin Pies
- Coffee
- Milk
- *Recipes Given

- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 cup fat
- 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce

Cut steak into 1 1/2-inch pieces. Dredge with flour, salt and pepper. Sauté with onion until brown in heavy Kettle. Add sufficient water to cover meat well. Add sauce and seasoning. Place on heat to simmer.

Remove every trace of white tubes from kidneys and cut into cubes. Place in kettle, cover with cold water, bring to a boil and drain, and repeat a second time. Add kidneys to meat in kettle and simmer together until tender, about two hours. Continue to add a little liquid and stir from time to time to keep meat from sticking. Remove meat to a casserole, add enough liquid to cover, and set aside to cool. Cover with a crust of plain pastry and bake in a hot (450-degree) oven 12-15 minutes.

There are so many good foods at this autumn banquet that unless your vegetables are pointed up, their consumption may lag. There's no danger of that if you have either of these combinations:

- *Sautéed Corn With Green Pepper.
- (Serves 6)
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 cups corn, cooked
- 2 tablespoons green pepper
- Salt, pepper
- 1/2 cup cream

Melt butter in a frying pan. Add vegetables and seasonings with cream. Cover and cook slowly until liquid evaporates.

- Savory Cabbage.
- (Serves 6)
- 1 head cabbage
- 1 tablespoon chicken fat
- 1 tablespoon flour
- Salt, pepper
- Hard-cooked egg

Cook cabbage in boiling salted water until tender but crisp. Drain and chop. Brown flour in melted fat, add stock, cabbage and seasonings. Cook slowly for 10 minutes. Garnish with egg.

- *Honey Pumpkin Pie.
- (Serves 8)
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup cream
- 1 1/2 cups pumpkin
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 1 recipe all-bran pastry shells

Prepare pastry shells. Beat eggs slightly, add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour into individual, unbaked pie shells and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and continue baking 35 minutes or until knife inserted comes out clean.

- Pastry Shells.
- (Makes 8)
- 1/2 cup all-bran
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 4 tablespoons cold water (more or less)

Roll cereal fine. Combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water, little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out on a lightly floured board to about one-eighth inch thickness. Place in individual pie tins. Trim edges, leaving one-half inch beyond rim of pan. Fold under and flute. Fill with pumpkin filling as directed above.

Last Words

Last words of dying persons are the utterance in a lifetime. Why then are they so treasured? asks Dr. J. Shelton Morley in an article in Hygiene Magazine. The most beautiful picture of relatives hovering over a deathbed is based on the wrong conception. Last words are of no value when they come from a mind benumbed by approaching death. It is better to remember the words spoken while the person was in a healthy mental and physical state.
