Obituary of R. E. Bigger

Robert Elmer Bigger was born at the Bigger home near Capitan, N. M., Sept. 10, 1922. He lost his life in the Servicemen's swimming pool at Barkedale Field, La., June 17, 1943.

Robert was educated in the Capitan Grade and Union High Schools. He graduated with the 1941 class along with his only sister, Marietta. He always was very active in football and other sports.

To know Bob, as he was so well known to his friends, was to love him. He was inducted into the Army Nov. 2, 1942. He was in the Air Corps and graduated from Aircraft welding mechanics school in Los Angeles, March 18, 1943. Since that period he had the rating of Private First Class.

He was laid to rest in the Capitan cemetery beside his relatives who had preceded him. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Long, Baptist minister, with the assistance of Rev. Hood; also a prayer was spoken by the minister of the Nazarene church. The choir was composed of some of his former teachers and friends.

At the grave the American Legionnaires took charge of the services. The funeral procession was one of the largest ever in Capitan. To see the many flowers was to see how much Robert was loved and admired.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Bigger, sister Marietta and brother Gordon. Out-of-town relatives who were present were an uncle, J. W. Renner of Seymour, Texas, and an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Martin and cousin Billy Roy of Arlight, Cal.

WITH the Men In Service

Cpl. Ward Hobbs is back at Camp Claiborne, La., after fighting floods at Arkansas. Cpl. Hobbs is expected to visit here on furlough soon.

Second Class Petty Officer Raleigh Ewing Carter of Hollywood, New Mexico who joined the Seabees last November wishes to say Hello to his many friends in Lincoln County. He is now attached to a Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina.

In a letter to his uncle, Joe S. Chavez, Pvt. Carl Padilla, who is stationed at Camp Hulen, Tex. he states that they are out on maneuvers and expect to be shipped across soon. Pvt. Padilla is with the Artillery branch of the service.

(By Comdr. John R. Perry, (CEC), UBN)

Santa Fe, June 30—One of the most interesting activities to be developed during the present war is the Seabees. The name is derived from the initials "O. B.," the abbreviation for Construction Battalion. It also serves to correlate the naval traditions of the "sea" with the industriousness of the "bee." Their purpose is to build, repair and maintain Naval Bases in and around combat areas. Since they may be called upon to participate in combat work, particularly defense, they are given comprehensive military training before proceeding overseas. Many battalions have already given good accounts of themselves in action, and some of their personnel have been cited for heroism beyond the regular line of duty. Whenever you hear of the Navy, Coast Guard or the Marines carrying out a land attack on the enemy, you may be sure the Seabees are there also. To qualify for duty with the Seabees, one must be skilled in some of the varied trades in the construction industry. There are steel workers, excavators, carpenters, welders, bricklayers, concretemen, draftsmen, riggers, divers and numerous other artisans.

The soldiers who were stationed near Osuna for the past several months, have been transferred to Biggs Field, Texas. There will be another detachment brought to that camp soon, it is said.

Pvt. Amado Lacras of Camp Forrest, Nashville, Tenn., is here on furlough this week, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dolores Lacras and other relatives.

Mary Edith Weber was born in Fort Stanton, N. M. Later the family moved to Ft. Bayard and on to Rexburg, Idaho, where the children attended school. The Weber family returned to New Mexico five years ago and located in Tularosa. Mary Edith worked several months in the office at Ft. Stanton before she went to work for the Champion Hardware and Lumber Co. in Tularosa, which position she held until the time of her marriage.

The bride and groom met during school days, as Lt. Rule lived at St. Anthony, Idaho, and they renewed their acquaintance after he went into the Army and was stationed at Fort Bliss.

Parents May Receive Contributions

Santa Fe, New Mexico, June 25, 1943. Brigadier General Russell C. Charlton, State Selective Service Director, today announced that National Headquarters had issued a clarification regarding government allowance to Class B dependents of servicemen for the cases where there are more than one man in the Army from the same home.

He states that if it can be shown that a soldier prior to his entry into the Armed Forces had contributed a substantial portion of his earnings or services toward the family support, or if a relative through circumstances beyond his or her control has now become dependent upon the serviceman for support since his entry into the Armed Service, they are entitled to receive contribution from one or more servicemen.

For example, a parent having two sons in the Armed Forces may receive the government contribution for both of them, provided, (1) it can be shown that each son prior to his entry into the Armed Forces, had contributed a substantial portion of his earnings or services to such parents' support, or (2) such parent, through circumstances beyond his or her control, became dependent upon the son for support after his entrance into the Armed Forces.

Wood siding from which moisture has not been sufficiently removed may be finished with semi-transparent shingle stain instead of a solid film of paint.

Rub bacon fat over the skins of potatoes before they are put into the oven to bake. Then the skins will not crumble or break, and will have a delicious flavor. Eat the skins with the potatoes.

When pickling onions, if you are using white vinegar, a few drops of sweet oil of almonds added to each jar will help to keep them white.

When stubborn particles of meat and vegetables stick to the inside of the grinder, run a small piece of dry bread through the grinder. The bread acts as a chaser, and saves work in the dishpan.

Frozen meats should not be thawed before cooking. Soaking them to hasten defrosting impairs the flavor.

Airplanes and Pilots in World War I, and Now

Our army and navy had only 65 planes when the United States entered the first World war. And 51 of these had been pronounced obsolete by the advisory committee on aeronautics.

The Allies had, all told, about 700 planes at the start. At the close of the war, Great Britain had 14,000, France had 12,000 and the United States, 10,000. At the war's end, Germany had about 11,000.

In 1914, there were only about 1,000 trained pilots in the world. Four years later there were more than 100,000. Today there are more than a quarter of a million.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A chain of rest stations is being across northern Brazil along the route of workers trucking into the Amazon Basin gateway of Belem to increase collection of wild rubber. They provide medical aid and other human comforts to the 50,000 additional workers being recruited for the Amazon rubber forces.

The rubber normally used in one month's manufacture of baby pants can make 2800 rubber lifeboats for ocean-going planes.

A check of 7,200 farm-owned trucks showed that only 25 per cent of the tires on them were good; 54 per cent were fair; and 21 per cent were in poor condition.

JUST why the Chicago Cubs have spent most of this season as a National league tail-end club is a question that baffles almost every baseball observer.

There is no logical reason why the Cubs should be a cellar team, General Manager Jim Gallagher has been quoted as saying he is unable to determine why the team has been eighth best most of the recent weeks of the season. Some rather smart baseball experts are completely mystified at the team's showing.

Jim Gallagher

One thing is certain—and only one thing. The Cubs have lost a lot more games than they have won. One day the hitting is good and there is no pitching. A couple of days later the pitching is excellent and the hitting nonexistent. Then, the next game may see the defense crumble. Occasionally everything goes to ruin during the same game. At that point the Cubs have one of their "bad" days.

But Gallagher doesn't blame Manager Jim Wilson for the various shortcomings. He insists the Cubs have as good a spirit as any Cub team he's seen. And Gallagher, as general manager of the club, is Wilson's boss.

To date there have been no stories of club dissension—the usual prelude to a managerial change. Even the most bitter critics of the Gallagher-Wilson regime haven't hinted—at least out loud—that the Cubs are anything less than a fairly happy ball club.

Neither Gallagher nor Wilson have given up the thought that their boys will be pennant contenders before the season winds up in October. The Big Four pitching staff, including Claude Passeau, Lon Warneke, Bill Lee and Paul Derringer, have shown signs of strength recently, in great contrast to the horrible earlier weeks of the season.

It has been charged that Wilson doesn't get excited about losing. In other words, he grows too accustomed to the short end of the score during his years as a Phillie player and manager. He adjusted himself to defeat with no great pain. Gallagher denies this and insists that Wilson hates to lose as much as any manager in the big leagues.

Jim Wilson

Gallagher probably is right. No man likes to lose. And Wilson likely is as optimistic as any other manager. But his optimism has suffered many a staggering blow during the past months. Whether or not he will come through unscathed is a debatable question.

Sarazen's Donation

To a rather weird looking iron club now resting in the museum of the United States Golf association, today's low-scoring golfers owe a debt of gratitude.

The club is sort of a mongrel job which Gene Sarazen donated to golf's hall of fame for inanimate objects. It is one which helped him win the American Open and British championships in 1933 and which is largely responsible for the low scores of the present day.

The club head resembles that of a niblick, except that it has a heavy flange at the bottom. Frequent applications of lead have made it even heavier. No thing of beauty, Sarazen's masterpiece resembles something that might be carried by a sportsman-bandit.

It's the forerunner of the present-day sand iron. And Sarazen well remembers its history:

"Back in 1933 I had an idea that the sand club Bobby Jones was using, with concave space, was illegal. It was subsequently ruled so. I set about to devise a sand iron of my own.

"I finally came up with this club with the flanged sole. I made it myself. That year I broke the scoring record in winning the British Open and tied the record in winning the National Open.

"In about three weeks there were 40,000 copies of the club being made and distributed, and I think that the low scoring since that time can be traced to that club. It eliminates paralysis in the bunkers, and made the good players all masters of bunker play."

Sarazen always was a bold player, and it is said that he became so proficient with the club that he would bet he could get out of a trap and down in one putt four out of five times.

In taking the 1932 British Open, Sarazen had rounds of 70, 69, 70 and 74 for a 283 total—two strokes better than the tournament record. That same year he had a poor start in the National Open with a 74 and 76 on his first two rounds. He came in with a 70 for the third round and fired a blazing 55 for the wildup and a total of 265.

Women Dress to Please Selves, Incidentally Men

Do women dress to please the men? An old question that never loses its popularity. Obviously women take pleasure in dressing themselves with taste and discrimination, and they like to shine at the art in competition with other women. And they also like men—particularly those in whom they are interested—to be pleased.

Biologically, we must go back for an answer to prehistoric times when the human race was just emerging from the animal stage. In nature it is the usual rule for the male to be more resplendent than the female. No doubt when men and women began to acquire the power of thinking things out, women first adorned themselves in imitation of the male.

Note that, in what we call Western civilization, amongst people who could afford the expense men were usually more splendidly dressed than women until the days of the French revolution.

Admirals may be admirable, but that isn't where the word comes from. It comes from an old Arabic word "amir-al" meaning "commander of." That's what the Admiral is, the top-ranking officer in the Navy. Top-ranking cigarette with our Navy men is Camel—the favorite, too with men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard, according to actual sales records from their service stores. Camels are a top-ranking gift, too. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are. —Adv.

'Twas Too Late Then for Stammerer to Take Time

As the train sped on its way, the shy-looking, little man leaned forward and tapped the big man opposite on the knee.

"Your b-b-b—" he began, and it was obvious he was making a big effort to control his stammer.

The other man smiled gently.

"Now, take it slowly," he said. "Yes, b-b-but your b-b-b—" the little man gulped.

"No hurry, old chap," said the big man, winking at the others in the rack overbalanced and struck him squarely on the head.

MANY an American of pioneer background can remember when all the floors in the house except the parlor were covered with worn rag rugs and carpets. Today there is something about the vigor, simplicity and economy of these colorful old-time floor coverings that fits our mood. The local weaver with a rug loom is flourishing in many communities.

The modern weaver has an assortment of colors in warp and filler that may be used with the rags that you have prepared in the manner shown here. About one and three quarter pounds of worn rags will be required for a square yard of carpet. Rugs may be either cotton or wool but do not use both in the same rug. The rags should be soft and clean and hems or uneven finishes should be removed. Dye white rags the colors you wish to predominate.

NOTE—It is possible to make a great variety of floor coverings from odds and ends of things on hand. Books 9 and 10 of the series offered with these articles contain fascinating new designs for hooked and braided rugs. In Book 9 there is a rug made from old felt hats and school pennants. Big Farm and Ranch Scrap Drive Is Launched

A major, region-wide Farm and Ranch Scrap Drive was launched May 1 throughout the five states of the mountain region with the announced objective of "building the biggest possible pile of scrap in every agricultural community in the West." The drive is being sponsored and promoted by farm and ranch trade publications and rural press in the same way that the urban daily press sponsored the huge and tremendously successful public scrap campaign last fall. In firing the opening gun for the campaign, L.J. Todhunter regional salvage manager for WPB warned: "If we don't get this heavy farm and ranch scrap in the fight, steel mills may have to close down furnaces next winter."

You can speed his visit home by giving up your summer train trips

High point in many a service man's life is his short leave or furlough after months of strenuous training. This is often his last chance to visit home before going overseas — a last chance to see his parents, wife or sweetheart.

Furlough days are far too precious to be spent waiting for train accommodations. Yet nowadays our trains are so crowded that even service men on furlough sometimes have to "wait their turn."

Will you help make more room on our trains for service men and other essential war travelers this summer?

Please cancel reservations promptly if your plans change — release this space for use by other travelers. Postpone all train trips of a merely social, sight-seeing or pleasure nature until after the war.

This summer — unless your train trip is urgently necessary — you can do your country a real service by staying close to home!

Keep Vitamins In Home-Canned Tomatoes

The tomato rates respect because it is chockful of vitamins (A and C) those invisible spark plugs that keep one feeling fit. Because tomatoes are an important food, it is imperative that every one not needed for immediate use, be saved by canning, but they must be canned right, else there will be

Photo Courtesy Ball Bros. Co. little or no vitamin C left in them. Undue exposure to air after the skins are removed and over-cooking in an uncovered container destroy vitamin C. This is one reason that tomatoes should be prepared and canned as quickly as possible. Usually whole tomatoes have more food value than tomato juice, partly because a considerable amount of vitamin A is lost in the pulp that falls to go through the strainer when the juice is made, but mainly because greater exposure to air destroys vitamin C.

If you want first-class canned tomatoes, use freshly gathered, firm-ripe, round fruit—one small bad spot can ruin a whole batch. Wash the tomatoes before canning; scald a few at a time. Remove all core, clip off the stems, and cut away green spots. Pack the tomatoes tight into clean hot jars—this is best done by pressing each tomato down with a wooden spoon. Add salt to season to suit your taste—the usual amount is one teaspoon to the quart. Seal jars according to manufacturer's instructions and process 35 minutes in hot water bath. If tomatoes are not fresh from the garden, process 45 minutes.

No juice can be better than the fruit from which it is made, so be sure to use strictly fresh, firm-ripe, red tomatoes, which are free from all decay. Wash well and cut away any green spots or weather cracks. Weather cracks are those splits that form around the stem ends when hot sunshine follows a hard rain. Such tomatoes are unfit for canning or juice unless used immediately after picking. Leave the tomatoes whole and steam or bake them until they are soft; then press through a fine sieve, preferably a cone-shaped one; reheat the juice to simmering; pour into sterilized jars and process 30 minutes at simmering. The pulp will separate from the juice unless a very fine sieve is used or if too much heat is applied at any time. Oh, so you boil the juice in an open kettle until it is thick? Well, that's a fine way to get rid of most of those precious vitamins.

The best tasting juice is that made by pressing whole home-canned tomatoes through a sieve just before serving. Any seasonings liked may be added before canning but the juice will be better if seasonings, except salt, are added when the juice is opened for serving, and even the salt may be left out.

INDUSTRY AND BUSINESS AFTER THE WAR

Every American knows that the manufacture of automobiles has ceased for the duration of the war. The great automobile industry which in 1940 produced and sold more than 3 1/2 million cars, has been re-tooled to produce airplanes, guns, tanks and munitions of war. Where will these companies get the money necessary to resume the manufacture of automobiles when the war is ended?

The automobile industry happens to be important, and there are thousands of smaller industries which will also face the same problem.

What will the millions of workers do when the demand for war machines stops?

What will happen to the domestic market for farm products when those millions of war workers no longer have jobs?

The stage seems set for an even worse depression after World War II than we suffered after World War I unless right now we start to plan about these surpluses.

It is comforting to learn that Congress is now considering some plan to prevent, or at least to ease, any after-the-war depression.

War Profits for Peace-Time Recovery

The best plan seems to contemplate the dedication of a portion of war profits for the purpose of providing industry with the ready cash on hand to quickly change to peacetime activity and thus lessen the shock to manufacturing and agricultural surpluses when the war is ended.

A Recovery Bond program has been suggested whereby each industry, big and little, will be required to invest at least 20 per cent of its war profits in Recovery Bonds which do not bear interest until the war is ended and which cannot be sold by the purchaser until peace is declared.

Such a plan would build, at the rate of almost a billion dollars a year, a huge recovery reserve to convert war industries to peacetime production, launch new products and maintain employment. It would place this reserve immediately and automatically in the hands of those businesses and industries with the greatest after-the-war needs.

The moment peace is declared the "time lock" automatically releases this recovery reserve, the bonds become negotiable and begin to draw interest. Purchasers holding them will then treat them like any other Government bonds, to be sold or used to borrow money. There would be no waiting for a post-war Congressional appropriation, no red tape, and no delay in launching the business and industry offensive that may turn threatened depression into unrivaled prosperity.

The plan is simple, practical and fair.

During late years science and research have discovered many new uses for present major farm crops and many new crops which can be used in industry. A plan of this character places immediately in the hands of industry the resources which can be used to finance further research and to plan for the conversion of surplus crops, surplus factory buildings and the employment of war workers in new and useful enterprises whenever the war shall cease and normal peacetime industry, business and agriculture shall be resumed.

This problem deserves the thoughtful consideration of every American. If we can have the assurance of reasonable security in the after-the-war recovery period we can throw ourselves into an all-out effort to win the war and feel that by so doing we have secured "the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

Hoover Money

The monetary system of the Hoovers was based upon the Babylonian system of weights. The ratio of the value of gold to silver was 1:15 1/2 and prevailed over all western Asia.

If Hitler wins, the issue for you will be living itself and not just the cost of living. Think that over and figure it out for yourself how much beyond 10 percent of your family income you should put into War Bonds every payday.

HOME-CANNED BERRIES TAKE LITTLE SUGAR

Photo Courtesy Ball Bros. Co. Home-canned berries play leading roles in the pantry because they contribute vitamins and minerals for health, can be used in many ways, and are easy and inexpensive to can.

Blackberries, blueberries, huckleberries, raspberries, elderberries—can them all and others, too, with little or no sugar. Sugar gives them better flavor and more calories, but has nothing to do with keeping qualities.

Berries are too precious to waste and none will be wasted if you will see to it that every step taken is the right one. First of all, wash, rinse and examine your jars. Be sure to inspect the top edges of those to be sealed with glass top seal or two-piece vacuum seal closures because top seals refuse to work unless tops of the jars are perfect. Cover jars, glass lids, and zinc caps with lukewarm water, heat to boiling and keep hot until needed. Wash and rinse rubbers and vacuum seal lids and drop them in boiling water—they don't need boiling unless you plan to do old-fashioned open kettle canning—then they must be boiled a few minutes to sterilize.

Every berry must be fresh, sound, ripe, and firm. Wash them carefully and then take your choice of canning methods. Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, prefers to hot-pack berries. This is how it is done. Place berries in a wide, shallow pan; add one-half cup sugar, or less, for each quart of berries; set the pan over low heat and simmer until the berries heat through and the sugar dissolves (remember you don't have to use any sugar); pour the hot berries into clean, hot jars and process five minutes in hot water bath quarter.

If you prefer cold packing, fill a jar about half full with raw berries, then top it gently on a folded cloth to shake the berries down. When the jar is filled to within a half-inch of the top, add enough hot syrup to cover the berries. Process 20 minutes in a water-bath canner.

Syrup for four quarts of berries may be made by boiling two cups sugar and three cups water or berry juice together until the sugar dissolves. If you are a little short on sugar—and who isn't these days?—try making the syrup of one measure sugar, one measure corn syrup, and one-half measure water or berry juice. This syrup seems rather thick and sweet, but it will become thinner and less sweet after it has been with the berries a few weeks. And if you have no sugar at all, cover the berries with hot berry juice or boiling water; seal or partly seal the jars (follow the manufacturer's instructions) and process 20 minutes in a water-bath canner.

What is Inflation?
Do you have excess cash? You will answer, "No." But the fact remains that you do. For almost every wage earner these days has an income, in checkbook or pocketbook, well above the cost of his living, taxes, insurance and debt repayments.
You never actually "bid" against anybody for a porterhouse steak, but when you take the spending of all average Americans as a group, it's a different story. So it is important that excess money be saved rather than used collectively to bid up prices. If it is spent, instead of saved, prices soar. . . That's inflation.
Ideally, it should be invested in Government securities during the Second War Loan. "They give their lives . . . You lend your money."

It's A People's War
We are paying more in taxes than ever before . . . and likely will pay more. But we cannot rely on taxes to finance the war. It would not be fair to base a tax on the average single family income when many families have more than one income. We could borrow all the money from the banks, but for both economic and social reasons this is undesirable. The government would then sacrifice its greatest dam against inflation. This is a People's War and the people should finance it. The people WANT to finance it. Sale of War Bonds has mounted consistently since Pearl Harbor.

THEY WERE EXPENDABLE

by W. L. WHITE W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the first named officers who are all that is left of the 10th Cavalry. They are: Lieut. John Kelly (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. E. Kelly, second-in-command; and Naigra Anthony Akera and George R. Cox, Jr. Lieut. Kelly has told how he was sent to the tunnel hospital on Corregidor, where he met a nurse named Peggy. Survivors from the sinking of a shipload of refugees were brought to the hospital, and patients from Manila were moved there. From them he learned how badly the war was going for us. A member of the tank corps is speaking.

CHAPTER IV

"What happened to your tank?"
"We were lying on our side in that paddy, and the Japs would come over and look at us. We played possum in there all day. They tried to open our door with bayonets, but we had it locked. In the afternoon a Jap officer looked at us through the slots—all of us lying still, holding breath, and then he said, in English, 'They're all dead.'"

"But we figured it was a trick—kept right on playing possum and, sure enough, in about an hour they came back for another look. But we were lying in exactly the same positions. This time they gave a few disgusted grunts and walked off. About an hour after dark we listened carefully, and then unlocked our door. Sure enough, they'd gone, so we beat it for the road."

"Tell me what became of your shoes," I asked him. I couldn't figure how an experienced soldier would ever let himself get separated from his shoes. The kid grinned sheepishly. "I guess that was a damn-fool trick," he said. "You see it had been hotter than hell in that tank, and we were all dirty and tired and twenty, so we decided to take a bath in a creek just across the rice paddy. But we had to go through mud to get there, so, keeping our clothes on until we got to the water hole, we took off our shoes and hid them in the tall grass. But when we got back we hunted for several hours, and we couldn't find that grass clump. Finally we started on, barefooted."

"But where were the Japs?"

"They'd gone on ahead toward Manila. The next night we were resting by the roadside. We heard a noise behind us, so we cecoted low in the bushes by the side of the road, and saw more of them go by on bicycles—all headed toward Manila. It seemed to be a Jap reconnaissance patrol, because behind them came trucks and guns and infantry, going by in the dark—so close we could have reached out and touched them. If we'd had a machine gun, we could have wiped out several hundred, but we only had our 45's. They kept up most of that night—one group stopped and ate chow on the road bank opposite us; we were scared stiff they'd come over and find us. It was hard for the wounded to lie quiet. Our tank driver had a rivet stuck in his throat—every time he took a drink, the water would come leaking out—and the radio operator's arm was full of shrapnel from an exploding bullet. The rest of us were okay, but our feet were getting damned sore."

"At dawn we stopped by a native village to collect some shoes, but their feet were all too a tall."

"How'd they treat you?"

"Fine—gave us all the food we could eat, but you could see they didn't want us around. Afraid the Japs would find us hiding there and shoot them too. You couldn't blame the natives. So we got out, and spent the other six days of the trip sleeping in ditches or brush clumps, walking nights."

"Were the wounded weak?"

"Sure, and so were we. The tank driver with the hole in his throat wanted to stop—said for us to leave him behind. We were afraid the Japs would get him and we couldn't spare him a gun—we had only three 45's for the six of us."

"What did you do, carry him?"

"Hell, no. We gave him a 45, told him he'd better use it now if he wasn't coming with us. So he changed his mind, and decided to come on. He made it, too. But it took plenty of guts."

"None of them lacked that." Here Kelly shook his head. "Sometimes training, often equipment, but never guts."

"But getting back to that hospital. I went back to my bunk. Peggy helped me get my arm settled, and we talked a little bit. She was a smart girl. Having been with the Regular Army, she knew real soldiers when she saw them, and you didn't have to talk long with these poor brave kids who were so green they forgot their shoes to know what the score was. Here we were, trying to hold off the Japs with less than two thousand regulars, plus these green kids who had really been sent here to polish off their training, plus thousands of Filipino boys just as brave but just as green, most of whom had never been in uniform until a few weeks before the war started."

"Where in hell's the navy? They'd ask me. Why aren't they bringing us tanks and planes and more men? It only takes two weeks to get here from Pearl Harbor. Of course none of them knew what had happened at Pearl Harbor."

"They'll be along," I'd say, "Any day now."

"Hell," they'd say disgustedly, "We won't see them for six months."

"Suppose we don't," I'd say. "This place can last six months. Wasn't it built like Malta and Gibraltar—to withstand sieges?"

"Only pretty quick I began to find out how wrong I was. Corregidor had been built years ago, and then we'd agreed not to modernize it if the Japs didn't modernize the Carolines. We kept the agreement; they didn't. Anyway, ammunition and provisions were so short the Rock would be doing good to hold out three months."

"A few days after that the nurses in my ward were buzzing around—I heard some talk about a party they were giving in their quarters that evening, inviting their boy friends, who for the most part were young army officers stationed on the Rock. And I almost fell out of my cot that afternoon when Peggy, in a seemingly offhand way, asked me if I'd like to go. It was nice, of course, to be chosen, by the girl I liked best, out of 10,000 other men on that Rock, most of whom would have given an ear just to talk to a white girl. But it got me to thinking, too. I liked her, but the other girls had said there was a young medical officer she'd been dating pretty steady—and what the hell was I? A naval officer in an army hospital—here today, gone tomorrow—so I hadn't let myself get started thinking—or tried not to, anyway.

"Sure enough, in about an hour they came back for another look."

"Naturally, I said sure I wanted to go. So Peggy said she'd see if she could fix it with the doctor. And after she got through with him, he was certain it would do me good, if I was back in the ward by ten."

"Here in Newport maybe you wouldn't think it was much of a party. But it was a swell night, with a big moon hanging over Manila Bay—peaceful—and best of all, the girls had broken out with their civilian dresses. That doesn't count like much, but one look at them after seeing nothing but uniforms for months was like a trip back home. Makeup too—they looked so damned nice you could eat them with a spoon, and Peggy had put just a touch of perfume in her hair—anyway if it wasn't that, it was something. What did we do? Well, danced to a portable—FII bet we played 'Rice of San Antonio' a dozen times—and Peggy and I figured out a way we could dance with my arm in a sling. And afterward we cut out on the grass and talked. I remember someone saying, 'You think they'll ever bomb this place?' Of course we knew eventually they would, but that night the war seemed a thousand miles away. Only somebody spoiled it all by asking Peggy when this medical officer was getting back from Bataan, and she said she thought tomorrow."

"Next day I was out in the courtyard getting some fresh air," Lieutenant Kelly, who was invalided in the tunnel hospital at Corregidor continued: "I was allowed a certain number of hours per day out of my bunk—when the air-raid alarm went off, but by now we didn't pay any attention. I looked up to notice that nine Jap planes were going overhead, but what the hell, they did that all the time, and of course the anti-aircraft opened up—just a formality, because they were up out of range—when all of a sudden—Bam! the whole Rock seemed to jump, and we made a dive for the tunnel, because at last they were bombing us."

"It was quite a pasting. Half an hour later a batch of nurses came in in an ambulance—pretty well shaken up. They'd been strafed—had to leave the ambulance and run for the roadside ditches. A few minutes later the wounded began to come in—all the serious cases went into my ward. They had only two operating tables, so the litters were lined up, waiting their turn, while the nurses pitched in and took care of the minor surgery—cleaning wounds, digging for shrapnel, bandaging. There was no time for anesthetics except a quarter of a grain of morphine, but the wounded certainly had guts. They'd grab the sides of their litter with clenched fists, and tell the nurses to go to it—it really wasn't hurting much.

"The raid had been going an hour when all of a sudden the lights went out, but in half a minute the girls had produced flashlights. I remember Peggy standing there holding a flashlight on a guy's naked back on the operating table while a doctor probed for some shrapnel in his kidney. You could see her face and those steady blue-green eyes of hers by the light reflected back up from this guy's back, and just then there was a terrific crunching bang—a bomb had landed right outside the tunnel entrance—and with it a sudden blast of air through the tunnel. It wasn't nice, and yet I don't think Peggy's hand even wobbled."

"Presently the lights came on, and we found one hospital-corps man had crawled under a bed. He wasn't even sheepish. 'You're damn right I was scared,' he said. 'Thought the whole place was coming down on us.' Peggy's flashlight beam on that naked back had not moved. Hell of a fine, nervy girl to have in a war. Or any other time."

"But it was getting on toward New Year's, and bad news began to come from Manila. The Japs were closing in."

"But very few of them realized it in Manila," said Akera. "I was there with my boat on courier duty from December 13 until Manila fell. Staying with Admiral Hart until the seaplane took him out to join the Dutch East Indies fleet."

"You certainly couldn't criticize morale. The average Filipino had a childish belief in us. He was absolutely certain that the Americans would be there next week with plenty of equipment. Dead-cure that our American soldiers would throw back the Japans. Believed all the optimistic broadcasts and rumors."

"When a raid would come, of course, they were pretty excitable. We slept aboard the boat, and when the bombs started down, we were supposed to get away from the wharf and out into the bay. Sometimes people used to stow away, to get away from the bombs."

"They never lost faith, though. Right up to the end there were big dances at the Manila Hotel, and you could watch the Filipino boys in uniform, telling their girls about their heroic exploits. And there were plenty of them to tell, too."

"But over at the American Army and Navy Club, they knew what the score was. They didn't feel like dancing there. Their faces were plenty long."

"Of course the higher-up Filipinos knew the truth. If you'd see one with a long face, you could be sure he was a Senator, or better."

"I had a girl there—Dolores was her first name, and by American standards she was good-looking as hell. Her father was a Spaniard from Cebu and her mother was a mestiza. She'd been elected Miss Philippines a year or so before. Fairly tall and lithe, with big black eyes and enough of the Oriental so you'd never forget her face among the other brunettes you know."

"Her father I think was a Senator, and the family had a hell of a lot of money. His brother owned a lot of mines. They had a big colonial house in the suburbs. Usually when I was invited out she'd send a car down for me, but the first time I was coming out alone she said never mind about directions—and so it turned out. Every traffic cop I met knew just who they were and would point me on my way. So they were really big shots on the island."

"Her father knew what the score was, although Dolores didn't dream it was coming so soon. The last time I saw her, just before the Japs came in, she knew Manila had been declared an open city, but she thought that only meant there wouldn't be any more bombs. All that night the southern army had been moving through Manila, trying to get to Bataan before they were cut off, but she didn't know what the marching meant. That night her uncle, a tough old Spaniard who had mines all over the world, got pretty drunk and almost had a row with her father, the Senator."

"The uncle said the whole mess was the fault of this opposition faction of Filipino politicians hollering their silly heads off for independence—no wonder the Americans, if they were getting out in four more years, hadn't soaked a lot of money into fortifications. Then he cursed the Filipino politicians out for not appropriating money for the army—they'd set MacArthur up with a big salary and a penthouse, and then hardly given him a dime to train and equip an army—it was all wind-dressing."

"He said he wasn't so worried about himself because he owned plenty of property outside the islands. But he told the Senator he'd probably end up pulling a rickshaw for his part in this independence foolhardiness, and serve him damned well right. So I could see there were a few natives who knew what the score was."

Balanced Meals For Humans, Too

Nutrition Chart Helps Avoid 'Hidden Hunger'

Food is always important, but in wartime it becomes strategic material. That's why the seven basic food groups form the groundwork of a plan to get full benefit, nutritionally, from all the food in the national larder, according to the U. S. department of agriculture.

It's easy to figure out a balanced diet, nutritionists say, if the food chart is followed. If one or more of the "Basic Seven" groups is left out, day after day, it's a danger signal.

"I'm never hungry. I eat plenty of steak and potatoes."

People who talk like that, who never order vegetables, may be suffering from "hidden hunger."

This "hidden hunger" shows up in subtle ways. Workers who suffer from it tire more easily.

U.S. NEEDS US STRONG
EAT THE BASIC 7 EVERY DAY

GREEN AND YELLOW VEGETABLES...

some raw—some cooked, frozen or canned are more liable to stumble into accidents resulting from abnormal fatigue. They fall prey to minor illness, their morale is lower, they are irritable and difficult to work with. All this may add up to millions of lost working days, if "hidden hunger" spreads across the land.

By dividing food into seven groups, the problem of selection is simplified. Each group has enough different kinds of foods in it to allow wide variety in meals. If, during wartime, you find some usual kind of food to be scarce, try new ones, making sure you hit all seven food groups.

Among the foods in Group 1—green and yellow vegetables—are asparagus, beet greens, broccoli, cabbage, chard, collards, dandelion greens, escarole, green peppers, lettuce, mustard greens, oregano, parsley, green peas, snap or string beans, spinach, turnip greens, and watercress. Also carrots, pumpkins, rutabagas, squash, sweet potatoes, wax beans, yams and yellow turnips.

In Group 2 are all the citrus fruits and certain greens—orange, tomatoes, grapefruit, cabbage and salad greens—served raw.

In Group 3—a large one—are potatoes, and other vegetables and fruits. It includes beets, cauliflower, celery, corn, cucumber, egg plant, lima beans, kohlrabi, leeks, mushrooms, onions, parsnips, radishes, cauliflower, turnips, and many others. Fruits included, and not mentioned in Group 2, are all those excepting the citrus, such as apples, berries and plums.

Milk and milk products make up Group 4. In it are buttermilk, cultured milk, evaporated and condensed milk, dry whole and skim milk, cream, all kinds of cheese, and ice cream.

Group 5 is the meat, poultry, fish and egg group. It includes also the protein alternatives, dried beans, peas, nuts, and peanut butter. If your meat points don't last you through the week, switch to some rationed food in this group, to be sure your meals contain enough protein.

Bread, flour and cereals (natural whole grain or enriched or restored) fall into Group 6. Breads and cereals should be of whole grains or enriched with vitamins so essential for health.

Group 7 contains butter and fortified margarine (with vitamin A added).

Farm Notes

As the butterfat of milk tends to scum the rubber parts of milking machines, the milk should be washed off with cold water immediately after milking is finished.

Such breeds of rabbits as New Zealand Whites, Chinchillas, Belgian Hares and Flemish Giants—furnish a quickly grown, wholesome and economical table meat.

Ducks Grounded, Millions Die; Beavers to Rescue

Wild ducks are temporarily "grounded" in late summer of each year, usually in August. At this time of the season the young have not yet learned to use their wings and, in molting, the mature birds have lost their propelling wing feathers.

Some years millions of ducks die during this period when nesting grounds suffer drought and birds are stranded away from water. Beavers often come to the rescue... save thousands of ducks by damming up outlets to lakes or streams.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Numerous Floating Isles; One Traveled 1,000 Miles

Two Brazilian airmen forced down off the coast recently took refuge on a floating island from which they were rescued. Floating islands are frequent in the estuaries of big South American rivers such as the La Plata, Amazon and Orinoco. They were originally parts of low-lying jungle torn away by floods and held together by roots. Sometimes they carry animals and insects as well as vegetation.

Some years ago a floating island two acres in extent was seen drifting in the Gulf Stream off Key West, the southernmost point of Florida. It was thickly covered with bushes, and at one point rose to 30 feet above sea level. That was in May. By the end of August it had passed Cape Cod and was veering towards the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

One month later it was in mid-ocean, northwest of the Azores, but now it was considerably smaller than it had been earlier in the year, and after the end of September was not seen again. Gale, no doubt, had broken it up, yet before its destruction it had voyaged a distance of more than a thousand miles.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Glad we ran into you, Judge. I was just tryin' to get Helen straight on this business about sugar. I wish you'd tell her what you told me last night down at lodge."
 "Glad to, Jim. I told him, Helen, that there's not a single bit of truth to the rumor that the distillers use sugar in making whiskey. They make it exclusively from grain. Only bootleggers use sugar to make whiskey. I read an article in the paper just last week that goes to prove it. It told how a confessed bootlegger in a Federal court testified to the fact that another bootlegger, also on trial, had bought a million pounds of sugar a few years ago.

 "As a matter of fact, Helen, no distiller is making whiskey today and hasn't for many months. All distillers are working night and day producing war alcohol for the government. And they make every drop of it exclusively from grain, too."

Old Trouper Passes Away

Last Saturday night about the hour of 8:30, at the Turner hospital, Mr. Joe Apodaca, aged citizen of Lincoln County, passed away after a lingering illness, which the deceased bore with much fortitude until the last.

A native of Old Mexico, Mr. Apodaca came to this country many years ago, as a musician with "La Compania Mantecón," famed Mexican acrobats of those times. When the shows left these parts, Mr. Apodaca decided to remain and lived here ever since that time.

The aged wife of the manager of the shows, Mrs. Bonifacia Morales, who is 98 years of age, still lives and makes her home in Tucumcari. She was one of the aerialists of the famed troupe and possesses actual photographs to substantiate her claims, which she does with much pride.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon with the Kelley mortuary in charge. Mr. Apodaca had many friends who will miss him. Peace to his ashes.

Notice Speed Violators

The enforcement division of the state Office of Price Administration announced today that a statewide campaign to curb speeding on New Mexico highways was launched Monday, June 28.

State police and other state enforcement officers are being asked to assist OPA investigators in checking speeds of all persons driving over 35 miles per hour.

Heretofore reports of speed violators have been transmitted to local boards, but beginning Monday the legal enforcement division of the state OPA will handle violations. When reports are received, notice will be sent out to the owners of the cars involved, requiring them to appear for hearings at the Albuquerque OPA office.

Under the gasoline rationing regulation, the state OPA director, through a special hearings officer, is empowered to conduct hearings to determine whether or not the holder of a gasoline ration book has violated the 35 mile speed limitation or any other provision of the regulation. If it is found that the owner, or someone else driving the car with his permission, has violated the regulation, an order will be issued to revoke his gasoline rations for such period of time as may be deemed proper by the special hearings officer.

Recent publicity regarding exemption of hand made Indian jewelry from the Federal Retailer's excise taxes is in error. S. P. Vidal, collector of internal revenue announced to-day. The tax imposed by the internal revenue code on the sales of jewelry, etc., attaches to sale at retail of taxable articles. No exemption from the retailer's tax is provided with respect to Indian-made jewelry and all such articles are, therefore, properly subject to the tax when sold at retail.
