Compton, now a radio man 3rd class, enlisted for service with the fleet at the Navy recruiting offices in Roswell on Feb. 27, 1942 and reported to this anti-submarine warfare training center, the only activity of its kind in the country, on Oct. 1, 1942.

Previous to his enlistment, Compton attended Tusamcari High School for two years and Carrizozo High School for one year. He played end for the Carrizozo football team.

YOUR CAR IN WAR TIME

Which service items should be given special attention by the holder of an "A" gasoline ration card to assure enduring, economical operation of his car in war-time?

Which items are of uppermost importance to the "B" and "C" card holders?

Prompted by a noticeable tendency among car owners, particularly "A" card holders, to neglect proper servicing of their vehicles because of reduced usage under gas rationing conditions, Ed Hedner, national director of service for Chevrolet, offers timely advice to all three classes of drivers. "A" card holders, he points out,

18% OF HER PAY GOES INTO WAR BONDS

War Plant Worker Buys Bonds for Warrior Husband

Although she has two children to support on her wages as a power press operator at a war plant, Mrs. Mabel W. puts 18% of her pay every week into War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan.

Mrs. W. thinks of every bond she buys in terms of what it can do for her soldier husband out in Australia. "Already," she says, "I've bought Jim a Garand rifle and a gas mask in War Bonds. I feel I'm helping to bring him back safe and sound!"

You Can Spare 18%!
Maybe you can't save as much as 18% of your salary in War Bonds. But you can stretch yourself a bit more—make a few "sacrifices"—and reach Uncle Sam's goal of 10% for War Bonds every payday! Sign up today with the Payroll Savings Plan where you work!

Dempsey Denounces N. Mex. GOP Politics

Santa Fe, N. M., March 11.—Governor Dempsey renewed his criticism of the "destructive politics" of Republican leaders today, coincident with disclosure of a meeting of prominent GOP members here last night at which, it was learned authoritatively, the proposed tobacco tax and highway debenture measure were subjected to attack.

State Republican Chairman M. W. Hamilton called last night's session "an informal party meeting in which policies and aims of the Republican Party in the state were discussed."

Mr. Monroe Howard was a business visitor here this week.

Pvt. Joe Chavez of Lowery Air Field near Denver is expected to arrive today to be present at the funeral of his brother, Saturnino Chavez.

are most likely to feel their cars need little or no service attention because they are used so little. This he says, is a serious mistake because infrequent operation, at low speeds, in many instances, can be more harmful to vital units than regular operation at normal speeds.

INDUSTRY AND BUSINESS AFTER THE WAR

Every American knows that the manufacture of automobiles has ceased for the duration of the war.

The great automobile industry which in 1940 produced and sold more than 3 1/2 million cars, has been re-tooled to produce airplanes, guns, tanks and munitions of war. Where will these companies get the money necessary to resume the manufacture of automobiles when the war is ended?

The automobile industry happens to be important, and there are thousands of smaller industries which will also face the same problem.

What will the millions of workers do when the demand for war machines stops?

What will happen to the domestic market for farm products when these millions of war workers no longer have jobs?

The stage is set for an even worse depression after World War II than we suffered after World War I unless right now we start to plan about these surpluses.

It is comforting to learn that Congress is now considering some plan to prevent, or at least to ease, any after-the-war depression.

War Profits for Peace-Time Recovery.

The best plan seems to contemplate the dedication of a portion of war profits for the purpose of providing industry with the ready cash on hand to quickly change to peacetime activity and thus lessen the shock to manufacturing and agricultural surpluses when the war is ended.

A Recovery Bond program has been suggested whereby each industry, big and little, will be required to invest at least 10 per cent of its war profits in Recovery Bonds which do not bear interest until the war is ended and which cannot be sold by the purchaser until peace is declared.

Such a plan would build, at the rate of almost a billion dollars a year, a huge recovery reserve to convert war industries to peace production, launch new products and maintain employment. It would place this reserve immediately and automatically in the hands of these businesses and industries with the greatest after-the-war needs.

The moment peace is declared the "time lock" automatically releases this recovery reserve, the bonds become negotiable and begin to draw interest. Purchasers holding them will then treat them like any other Government bonds, to be sold or used to borrow money. There would be no waiting for a post-war Congressional appropriation, no red tape, and no delay in launching the business and industry offensive that may turn threatened depression into untroubled prosperity.

The plan is simple, practical and fair.

During late years science and research have discovered many new uses for present major farm crops and many new crops which can be used in industry. A plan of this character places immediately in the hands of industry the resources which can be used to finance further research, and to plan for the conversion of surplus crops, surplus factory buildings and the employment of war workers in new and useful enterprises whenever this war shall cease and normal peacetime industry, business and agriculture shall be resumed.

This problem deserves the thoughtful consideration of every American. If we can have the assurance of reasonable security in the after-the-war recovery period we can throw ourselves into an all-out effort to win the war and feel that by so doing we have secured "the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS
Gas masks which came into use in warfare for the first time when the Germans used poison and mustard gas in World War I, are much improved today over those used then. The Chemical Warfare Branch of the War Department issues these gas masks to every man in the service. We are taking no chances.

The type pictured here is the "can" and "elephant nose" mask and costs about $2.25 each. The headgear is transparent, made of material resembling cellophane and does not cloud with the breath. You can buy two of these gas masks with the purchase of an $18.75 War Bond. We need thousands of them. Don't fail to give at least ten percent of your income every pay day for War Bonds. Buy them at your bank or postoffice, regularly.

Speaking of Sports

by Bob McShane
Released by Western Newspaper Union

BASEBALL has been—and will continue to be—subject to a lot of unwarranted criticism. Most of this criticism is leveled at the men who are doing the most to keep baseball the nation's number one sport—the stars.

When Joe DiMaggio enlisted he did a lot for the game, even though his action removed one of the brightest stars of the baseball world. He eliminated one of the vulnerable spots—that would have been a wide open target for those who are prone to find fault. Joe is a married man with a family. Like those with the same responsibilities in other professions, he was classified 3-A by his draft board. He was subject to the same regulations as the grocery clerk or the filling station operator. The government asks only that a man go when his draft number comes up.

But DiMaggio didn't feel that he should wait. It was common knowledge that he was drawing more than $42,000 a year for playing a game. He knew he would be forced to take too much criticism, even though his hecklers were wrong. He knew, too, that baseball in general would suffer from the attacks directed against him.

The big boys of baseball can thank Joe for his move. They can point to him when the sharpshooting gets rough. He asked no favors when he voluntarily cut his own salary from $42,000 a year to $30 a month.

There are others. Baseball can point to Ted Williams, Hank Greenberg, Hugh Mulcahy and other stars who either enlisted or went when called without searching for some means of postponement.

Notre Dame Tinge

When Arthur ("Dutch") Bergman was named head coach of the World Champion Washington Redskins, the National Football league began to look more and more like a circuit of Notre Dame alumni.

Two head coaches have been named since the close of the last season — Bergman and Gus Dorais of the Detroit Lions. Both wore Notre Dame men. They bring to four the total of Irish stars who hold top coaching spots in the pro league. The other two men are Hank Anderson of the Chicago Bears and Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers.

It might be remembered, too, that Elmer Layden, president of the league, is a Notre Dame graduate. The first Notre Dame team coached by Knute Rockne included Lambeau and Anderson on its roster. That was in 1918. Bergman was on the team the following year and Dorais returned to the campus that same year to become Rockne's assistant.

Sports in Britain

Sports enthusiasts in America, somewhat bewildered by the conflicting reports regarding baseball, football, racing and other spectator sports, can take heart from news of athletics in England.

Just about every type of sports in Britain has undergone drastic re-arrangement, but continues in almost unaltered variety and popularity. American and Canadian soldiers have introduced softball and basketball to add to boxing, English football, racing, rugby and cricket.

Sports have overcome most obstacles, even the one providing that there shall be no exemptions from military or civilian war service for athletes. The competitors engage in their specialties on short leaves. Their leaves are facilitated officially and professional football—soccer—players still perform, and for pay.

Boxing continues to pack 'em in. Queensberry club, which houses London's weekly matches, usually is filled to its 2,000 capacity. Seats sell for as much as $35.

Cricket crowds are as great as ever. The Army-RAF competition in London attracted 30,000 each day.

Under special rules, player-club contracts are virtually non-existent. A player now can perform for the football team nearest his post, or on any team he can reach. As a result, there has been much borrowing among clubs.

There is a historically interesting story behind the naming of baseball's commissioner—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

It seems that when he was born, his folks couldn't agree on a name. The debate finally became a community problem in Millvale, Ohio, where he was born in 1866. The solution turned out to be simple. His father had been a surgeon in the Union army and had lost a leg in the battle of Kenesaw Mountain, Ga. The family merely decided to perpetuate the memory of the battle in the son.

Farm Curves Aid To Victory Effort

New Land Patterns Making Appearance

Farming on the contour, following the "curve of the land," is helping to win the war for the United Nations.

A revolutionary method, farming on the contour not only is helping produce bigger yields but also it is saving soil and water to insure a continued long-time productive capacity. Cost of production, too, has been cut as much as 70 cents per acre by contour farming because conservation methods save fuel, fertilizer, time, machinery-wear and labor—all essential to a wartime production economy.

Just as Columbus had faith in his belief that the world was not flat and proved it by discovering the continent which now has become the hemisphere of the Americas, men today have proved that the land can be farmed successfully and profitably on the contour. Just as Washington and Jefferson saw in their day a need for soil conservation practices, men of the past half century also have seen the good earth washing and blowing away, and have developed the remedy.

Vernie Marshall of Texas is one of the current group of men who has seen the effects of soil erosion and who has assumed leadership in helping to solve the problem. Long a pioneer of the idea that farmers must act to check soil erosion, Vernie Marshall was largely responsible for enactment of the Soil Conservation Districts law in the Lone Star state. An administrator of the Soil Conservation board he is promoting the cause of conservation farming, and more than 70 districts have been organized in Texas under supervision of the board.

Twelve-year-old son of J. C. Taylor, Coryell county, Texas, helps his father improve the farm. Taylor practices contour cultivation, strip cropping and terracing. Well-vegetated terrace cutlets and reseeded pasture complete the farm conservation program.

"Straight" farming, with the fence rows and up and over the hills and slopes, once was common practice and resulted in immense erosion problems. In 1933 and 1936 there were six million acres of land subject to erosion in the Dust Bowl area.

During the past few years farmers have worked co-operatively together and have established erosion control measures.

Chicken Disease Control

Cecal coccidiosis, a disease particularly destructive to chickens, has been effectively prevented experimentally and may eventually be controlled by the use of a chemical compound developed for this purpose.

Cecal coccidiosis is caused by microscopic organisms known as protozoa which invade and attack the cell lining of the cecal pouches of poultry, causing stunting, weakness, and eventual death.

While several sulphur compounds have shown some promise, tetraethyl thiram monosulfide, when fed experimentally in unadulterated form, appears to be the most satisfactory drug yet tested.

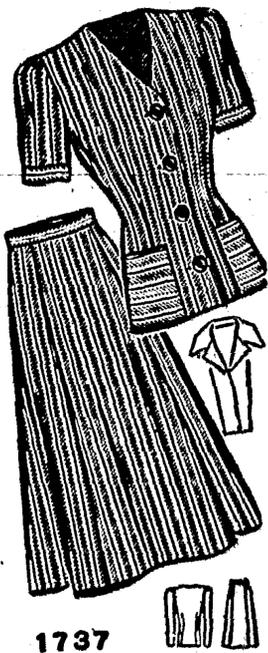

Decision to concentrate further investigation on tetraethyl thiram monosulfide is based on the results of preliminary experiments conducted at the University of Wisconsin.

Farm Notes

To relieve fertilizer manufacturers of distress caused by rising labor and other operating costs, permission was recently granted them to increase prices of mixed fertilizers and of superphosphate.

Cotton is of such great importance in meeting military and civilian demands that the United States is now consuming more than 45,000 bales each day.

Our Prisons Are Doing Part in Defeating Axis

American prisons are now producing millions of dollars worth of war materials, says Collier's. Aircraft engines are being made at San Quentin; phiring for the navy at the Alabama state prison; bomb parts at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa.; and cartridge bolts at the reformatory for women in Alderson, W. Va.

Help your Grocer

Let's Get Behind Him and Make Rationing a Success—Start Now to

use more of the plentiful NON-RATIONED FOODS

THE man who runs your grocery store has a headache these days. For months, in the face of shortages and lack of experienced help, he's been trying to carry on...trying to give you the kind of service you've always expected of him.

Now he has a brand new problem—point rationing. He has to collect the stamps from you as well as the cash.

It's a burden for him—sure—and for you. But he knows and you know that it's got to be done. It's the only fair way of making sure that everybody gets a fair share. That's our way of doing things.

So it's his job—and your job—everybody's job—to make point rationing work...as smoothly, as efficiently as possible. Traffic jams in food stores aren't going to help anybody.

Now there are a number of ways in which you can give this grocer of yours a real hand...in a good, neighborly American way. You can shop early in the day, early in the week. You can shop as frequently as possible—once a week only, if you can manage. You can always make sure to have a shopping list, and to have your "point values" added up before you go to the store.

And you can help yourself as well as your grocer by using the plentiful, non-rationed foods as much as you can, instead of the scarce, rationed foods. Foods such as cereals, fresh fruits and vegetables, home-cooked soups, home-canned fruits and vegetables are not rationed and they deserve an important place in your wartime meals.

Because cereals are one of these abundant un-rationed foods, we here at the Kellogg factory in Battle Creek have been doing everything we possibly can to meet the unprecedented demand for our products. We're sending millions upon millions of packages of crisp Kellogg Cereals to the boys in our armed forces. We're packing Kellogg for troops in the front lines of fighting. Even our machine shop is making gun parts. And we're short of help, too. There are 423 stars on the big service flag hanging in the lobby of the Kellogg building.

- Other ways to help your Grocer...
1. Shop early in the day.
  2. Shop early in the week.
  3. Shop only once or twice a week.
  4. Prepare a shopping list.
  5. Add up total "point" values before going to the store.

But in spite of these wartime difficulties, we've doubled our efforts to be sure that we can supply Kellogg Cereals to the millions of American families who are depending on cereals more than ever.

Always famous for marvelous flavor, every Kellogg Cereal is made of WHOLE GRAIN or is restored to WHOLE GRAIN NUTRITIVE VALUES through the addition of thiamin (vitamin B1), niacin and iron. With milk alone, or with milk and fruit, a bowl of crisp, delicious Kellogg Cereal gives you vitamins, minerals, protein, food-energy in one dish!

And remember this about cereals in your daily meals. They're quick and easy to prepare. No cooking, no pans or skillets to clean up. Even the dishes are easier to wash. Cereals save time—work—fuel—other foods. Used in hamburger, meat-loaves, croquettes, etc., they help you stretch your meat...and they make milk go farther, too.

Think of cereals as one of your best, most nutritious, non-rationed foods and think of Kellogg Cereals as the finest you can buy.

FROM O.P.A. CONSUMER INSTRUCTION SHEET

"EAT MORE CEREALS—There is an abundance of cereals and, as you know, they are mighty economical. They are nourishing and delicious—what's more, cereals can be used to stretch your ration when mixed with vegetables and fruits."

Our Freedom Is Priceless

By JOSEPH E. DAVIES
Former Ambassador to Russia and Belgium.

(Written for the Treasury Department in connection with the Retainers' "SAY YES" campaign to complete the nation's 100,000,000 partially filled War Stamp album.)

What I myself saw in my four years in Europe gave me a new realization of the priceless rights which we here enjoy.

No secret police can in the night whisk us away, never again to be seen by those we love.

None of us can be deprived by any party, state or tyrant of those precious civil liberties which our laws and our courts guarantee.

None of us can be persecuted for practicing the faith which we found at our mother's knee.

None of us can be persecuted, tortured or killed because of the fact that an accident of fate might have made us of the same race as the Nazarene.

No American can be placed by any party or government in a regimented vice which takes from him or her either freedom of economic opportunity or political religious liberty.

What would the millions of unfortunate men, women and children in Europe give to be able to live and enjoy such a way of life?

Well, in this war, those are the things in our lives which are in jeopardy. Our boys are dying to preserve them for us.

Then we can do no less than to "say yes" and fill those war stamp albums. It is our duty and privilege to help the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, in his magnificent effort to do the tremendous job of getting the money to keep our boys supplied with the weapons with which to fight our fight.

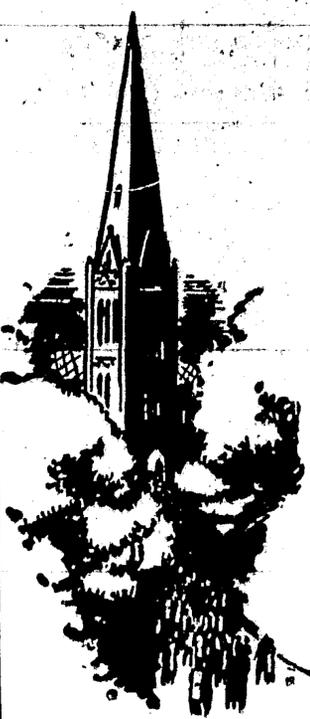

Surely that is little enough for us to do on the home front.

Navy V-5 Cadets

Portales, N. M.—An immediate increase by fifteen in the total number of Navy V-5 cadets taking the primary flight training at Eastern New Mexico college under the War Training Service, C. A. A. has been authorized. The addition, known as an Intermediate Class, will bring to thirty-five the number of V-5 cadets now taking the course at the local college.

"This additional group is, essentially, an advanced one," declared John W. Patterson, ground school supervisor for District 7. "The new class will be taught such subjects as navigation, theory of flight, aeroplane power plants. They already have received 72 hours of ground school. In addition, they will receive instruction in precision flying."

The bringing of this Intermediate Class to the E. N. M. C. campus indicates President Floyd D. Golden, the district supervisor and the instruction staff here have done a good job so far in teaching the V-5 cadets. Mr. Patterson pointed out that the local college is the only primary flight training center in the district to be given this Intermediate Class. Furthermore, there are only six such classes in the seven districts of the Southwest Region, the region being composed of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana.

Barracks and messing facilities at the college were being enlarged this week to provide for the additional cadets, Mr. Golden said.

Tax Returns To Date

Below Estimate

Albuquerque, N. M.—S. P. Vidal, Collector of Internal Revenue, today said that the number of income tax returns filed by individuals is below the number which could reasonably be expected at this time. He again pointed out that an income tax return must be filed by every single person whose gross income from all sources was $500 or more for 1942, and that an income tax return must be filed by every married person living with husband or wife if their combined gross income was $1,200 or more for the year 1942.

The Collector said that possibly the delay in filing returns may be attributed in part to an erroneous impression that legislative proposals before the Congress, commonly known as "pay-as-you-go" plans will relieve taxpayers from filing their income tax returns for 1942, and paying the first quarterly installment on or before March 15. He referred to a recent broadcast in which Secretary Morgenthau, Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Chairman George of the Senate Finance committee made it clear that there is no pending tax plan which will relieve individuals of the necessity of filing income tax returns and paying the first quarterly installment on or before March 15.

War Stamp Sales Over Half Billion Dollars, Album Drive Opens

Appealing Margaret C. Russell of the War Savings Stamp drive is seen from right to left. It pictures retailers' slogan, "SAY YES." A drive is underway for Americans to buy additional War Stamps to fill albums and convert them into War Bonds.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The nation's retailers from the tiniest hamlets to the mighty cities are acting as a spearhead in a great Treasury Department campaign to sell the additional War Savings Stamps needed to fill more than 100,000,000 albums now in the hands of the American people.

According to a report released by the Treasury Department today, sales of War Savings Stamps totaled $669,777,000 for the period from May 1, 1941, through November, 1942.

Stamp sales have risen from less than three million dollars per month when they were first introduced to the public to an average of more than fifty million dollars per month at the present time.

The Treasury slogan, "A half-filled album is like a half-equipped soldier," has been adopted officially by retailers for the campaign.

The importance of the drive is seen in the fact that a War Bond potential of nearly two billion dollars hangs in the balance.

Every War Stamp album, converted into a People's Bond, for which the purchaser pays $18.75 and which matures to $25.00 value when held for 10 years, adds its force to the war effort.

The Treasury Department is counting upon the country's school children to play a powerful role in the success of the SAY YES drive. The volume of stamp and bond sales is at the rate of $200,000,000 for the current school year.

Both are hungry. For both there is not much promise of food. Why? Because they live in Greece.

Because in Greece the Axis took every scrap of food and every source of food—and deliberately left the people, the dogs, and a few useless burros to starve and to die.

Remember the farmer of Greece as you eat your Friday evening supper. Remember him the next day, as you market your produce. Remember—and buy Bonds. All the U. S. War Bonds that you can. Buy Bonds with every cent that you don't actually need to run your farm.

Buying Bonds will not only help win the war, but will provide you with a nest-egg for the future. They are the best investment in the world today. They never sell for less than you paid for them. They increase in value every year. In ten years, they are worth a third more than you paid. And you can cash them any time after sixty days if you need the money. Bessie
 "All right, Bessie," said the boss of the little factory which was making jackets for soldiers. "Did you want to see me about something?"

The thin middle-aged woman stood up from the chair in the outer office and looked earnestly at the boss with her huge, grave gray eyes. "It's about this ten percent pledge," she began.

"Oh, that's all right, Bessie," the boss said. "I'd been meaning to speak to you about that. We don't expect you to pledge ten percent of your pay for War Bonds like the others are doing. We know you have a hard time making ends meet since Jake died. Eleven kids, isn't it? That's quite a lot of mouths to feed. Let's see, you make $25.50 a week including overtime, don't you?"

"Yes, sir, but..."
 The boss smiled. "Don't give it another thought, Bessie. You've got your hands full now. Uncle Sam knows you haven't got a penny to spare. Don't let it worry you. We understand."

The boss turned to go back into his private office. "But what I wanted to say was Bessie raised her voice and the boss looked around. "I wanted to say, would a dollar a week be too little? You see, after we get the living expenses paid, there's just about a dollar a week left. Would they be willing to accept a dollar a week?"

"They'd be more than willing," the boss said quietly. "They'd be proud."
 Bessie looked relieved. "All we have to do is scribble a little," she said. "I'd feel just terrible if we couldn't give something."

Back in the boss's office a representative of the Treasury Department was waiting. The boss shut the door and sat down. "I've just seen the greatest single sacrifice I know of," the boss said. "Listen, if you want to hear what American women are made of..."

Drafting Amendment to Relieve Rationing

Recognizing the hardship worked by rationing regulations upon large segments of New Mexico's population, whose staple diet is made up largely of dried beans, the Washington Office of Price Administration is drafting an amendment to relieve the situation. S. M. Graf, state OPA director, was notified today.

"Washington was advised of the situation under which many persons experience hardship in obtaining or using substitutes for rationed foods", Mr. Graf said.

The amendment will apply to other processed foods, as well as beans, and should bring relief to such persons as prospectors and sheep herders who are unable to supplement rationed foods with fresh, unrationed foods, and to vegetarians whose rations of processed foods are insufficient to sustain good health.

Provision will be made in the amendment under which local rationing boards may act to relieve individual cases. Further details have not yet been learned.

A SERIES OF SPECIAL ARTICLES BY THE LEADING WAR CORRESPONDENTS

Building A Peaceful World

By Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

One of the great lessons we Americans will have to learn if we ever hope to build a better foundation for peace is that human beings the world over have to be approached as human beings and not as members of a race or as adherents of a certain religion—but just as people whom you may like or dislike according to their individual characteristics.

I may be a Chinese, an Arab, a Jew, an Indian, a Negro, a German, a Frenchman, or a Britisher—still I must be evaluated, if I am to be fairly judged, on the basis of being just a human being.

We have never done this in the world before—and we have never had peace in the world thus far.

Freedom From Fear. One of our four freedoms states that we shall have "freedom from fear." Freedom from fear, of course, means that the world over, people will be protected from aggression, people will be protected from persecution because of their race or their religion.

People will be safeguarded from hunger and want, too, by an economy which takes into consideration the basic needs of all the people, the world over.

If that is going to become a reality, then the first thing we have to do is to learn to meet our fellow human beings, recognizing the fact that we will not love all of them, but we will love some, and we must get on with all, regardless of differences of race or creed.

Those who are evil will have to be restrained. We do that in our own countries everywhere.

The Chinese philosopher, Lin Yutang, says in substance, in a recent article, that our moral attitudes the world over are the important factors, not what we know or what we have, but our ability to choose between right and wrong. This may be the basis on which we shall have to develop some of our future cooperation.

Our boys in Africa and in the Solomon Islands deal with natives who haven't yet had a chance to develop a very high type of civilization. These boys are going a step beyond their first contacts in Great Britain and Australia, and wide differences will develop, but the beginning of the development is in Great Britain.

If we can build on the good will which Great Britain has toward us at the moment (largely brought about because, in the trials through which the British have gone, the generosity of the American people has made them grateful) we will be beginning a new era in the world.

Generous, Not Sacrificial. Over here, it is hard to understand just what certain things have meant to Great Britain, because while we have given money which has sent mobile canteens, ambulances, medical supplies, clothing, food, etc., in great quantities to Great Britain, we were only being generous, not sacrificial.

We have sent old clothes, but they wore things we could do without. However, the people who received them over there could not do without them.

A woman in a London crowd, for instance, one day plucked at my sleeve and said, "My little girl would have been cold if it had not been for the warm clothes the children of America sent us."

The British people show their gratitude by wanting to do things for our American soldiers. They realize that our coming into the war is a great help to their own boys who have fought in all parts of the world for the past three years. But their gratitude goes deeper than that; it touches the lives of everyone in that group of islands.

It calls out a traditional feeling which I think is ingrained in the people of the United States and in the people of Great Britain—if we have received something, we want to make a return, at least in good will.

This is a basis on which I believe we can readily and permanently build.

Well, to be really effective, the United Nations will have to build among the people of all the nations an understanding such as is now growing between the people of Great Britain and the people of the United States.

It will be slow, but the building of a peaceful world is not something to be accomplished by the writing of a treaty. It takes time to work out the relationships of men and women, but if we have for peace, it must be done. And I think a good beginning has been made.

Inset: Train of tank cars to speed oil to Eastern seaboard to relieve fuel crisis.

With U. S. Troops in Jungle Outpost on Burma Border

These pictures were taken at a U. S. army air force base in India. At left, a soldier busily packs a bale of supplies, food, and games to help combat the monotony of the boys who man our jungle outposts along the Burma border. The supplies are dropped by parachute. Center: U. S. troops in a trailer-hauling jeep cross a stream. The bridge is constructed of bamboo. Right: Scene inside one of the big army transport planes that does the job of keeping U. S. outposts supplied.

A Senegalese Father Goes to the Front

Except for the color of their skins and the manner in which the mother carries her child, this scene is a duplicate of what goes on at railroad stations all over America and Britain. It took place in Dakar, French West Africa, as a French colonial regiment trained for the Tunisian front. The child seems big enough to start getting around on its own.

Jewish Children Pray for Kin in Nazi Lands

About 5,000 Jewish children from 112 religious schools in Greater New York gathered in solemn assembly of prayer and protest at Maccas temple for the children in Nazi-occupied countries. The Washington Merry-Go-Round

DRYD PEARSON

Washington, D. C. RUSSIAN SOCIALISM WANES. The Russians are doing more than reversing the direction of Nazi military movement. They are also reversing certain important political and social directions.

Americans in Russia now report the reappearance of shoulder insignia on the officers of the Red army—for the first time since the dark days of the Revolution.

In these days, officers who supported the Bolshevik movement tore the epaulets from their uniforms as a mark of democracy. Those who failed to do so were regarded as enemies of the Revolution, and in some extreme cases, mobs attacked them, drove nails through the epaulets into their shoulders.

There is also a change in official awards or decorations, indicating that Bolshevik scorn for heroes of the past is vanishing. Three of the most coveted decorations of the Soviet Union today are the award of "Nevski," who was a 13th century prince, and the awards of "Suvorov" and "Kutuzov," who were Czarist generals at the time of Napoleon.

Also the St. George's cross, which would have been torn from the breast of the wearer a few years ago, has made its reappearance at official functions.

The U. S. public has the impression of modern Russians as dressed in coarse, formless clothing, but reports from the USSR today cite that Red army officers dress with such punctilio as to make American officers look shabby by comparison.

LITTLE AID TO CHINA

Just back from Chungking, General "Hop" Arnold, chief of the air force, gave a glowing report to Secretary of War Stimson regarding Chinese resourcefulness in battling the Japs. He was amazed and full of praise for Chinese ingenuity in repairing planes, landing in cow pastures and conserving fuel.

As far as General Arnold is concerned he would like to send the Chinese a lot more planes—though in the past he has not been too keen about it. (Incidentally, one reason for sending him to China was to win him over to the Chinese cause.)

However, despite Madame Chiang Kai-shek's graceful appearance here, despite Hop Arnold's enthusiasm, despite the President's public statements, China is not going to get anything much in the way of supplies.

Reasons Listed.

Reasons are: (1) the impossibility of opening the Burma road now with the monsoon season only a few weeks off; (2) the absolute necessity of cleaning up Africa and preparing for a drive against Hitler in Europe; (3) Chinese political dissension which requires too many aims for personal armies.

Some war weapons will be flown over the Himalayas, but not much more than in the past.

SECRET RUMI PLAN VOTE

The vote of the house ways and means committee on the Rumi plan was secret, but inside fact is it never had a chance of getting more than five votes.

The flood of mail reaching committee members, at first favorable, turned round and showed conclusively that the country was against cut-right postponement of taxes. Underlying sentiment expressed in the mail was that although high taxes hurt, it was unfair to postpone too much of the war cost to the next generation.

Also the committee became more and more convinced that the Rumi plan was largely cooked up for the benefit of top bracket incomes, and if taxes were forgiven one year, it would mean shifting a much greater burden to lower income groups to make up the deficit.

"This, they concluded, was just what Mr. Rumi's war wealthy clients wanted."

CURE FOR TYPHUS

By way of London has come word that the Germans have evolved a cure for the dread disease typhus. If so, it is a discovery meaning the lives of thousands of men in the eastern front. In 1914 "General Typhus" was responsible for more lives than machine gun fire, and from time to time it has ravaged the Balkans, Russia and eastern Europe ever since.

The German cure was discovered by a Dr. Van Meerdoek and is a combination of stebrin and plasmochin. U. S. Public Health officials have their fingers crossed regarding the cure, but British medical circles seem to be favorably impressed.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Scientists have determined that rubber latex as it drips from the trees is about 40 per cent water. It is not until it has been processed that the balance rubber, mastic, proteins and sugars.

Gooding made water-proof by the use of rubber was being sold in England as early as 1771.

Boats of the sea and the sea coast variety have a special rubber used from ordinary currency in waterproofing the Yankee Indians of Ecuador's Galapagos Islands to seal rubber and from the waters of the Amazon. Next to books, pens and compasses get the "grip" for the Yanks.

The first rubber to be imported into the U. S. was in the form of water bottles. They came direct from the Amazon district.

A full grown Hevea rubber tree averaged 20 to 30 feet in height and its average life is 50 years or more.

MURDER AT PIRATES' HEAD By ISABEL WAITT WNU RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Judy Jason, who is telling the story, receives an anonymous letter enclosing $500 and asking her to bring an abandoned church to be auctioned the next day.

CHAPTER VII

Potter offered to drive as many as could crowd into his car down to the wrecked bridge, and the rest of us started for the inn.

I got a look into nearly every room—not thorough, of course, but a glance in the most likely places.

I followed him down to the kitchen. Aunt Nella began hissing at him right before Lily Kendall, who'd gone out to talk with auntie because she didn't want to be alone.

They'd tossed a coin to see who'd be left behind. Albin Potter was chosen, but he seemed so reluctant to stay alone that the preacher volunteered.

As to the bridge itself, it just wasn't any more, that's all. The old wooden planks had been blown to splinters and washed away by the swirling waters below.

You see, it had to be a time bomb, Victor had explained; or else have one of the cars stop and someone get out and set off the dynamite fuse, or whatever was used. And the cars didn't stop. No one got out.

"But why couldn't someone from Rockville have blown up the bridge right after we crossed?" somebody asked. (I was told about this afterward.)

That, of course, was possible on account of the darkness. Or it might have been one of those at home on the Head that evening—Hugh or Mr. Quincy or Victor Quade or Lily or Aunt Nella or I. I felt I could eliminate my aunt, Mr. Q., Victor Quade and myself. After all, I was only sure of myself!

The general consensus was that either Mr. Brown had blown the bridge after killing Roddy, or vice versa. Only after the identification of that charred, grizzly corpse could one be sure.

Victor said: "Let's try to help one another. Shall we sit on the porch? Judy, go get your uncle."

So I called Uncle Wylie, who came slowly back, looking rather sheepish before his guests, sitting in the hammock, the porch rockers, and even on the steps. Up pointed the minister. Had he, too, gotten cold feet? Said he'd get his field glasses and could see anyone approaching from the inn piazza.

We were still at a standstill. Although so early in the morning, the air was warm. A land breeze had sprung up, which was rapidly dispersing the fog.

At Victor's request I got Aunt Nella to join us.

"You'll only get clam chowder for lunch," she cooled, tucking her blue checkered apron and taking the chair Hugh Norcross brought her. "Go ahead with the third degree. Only I didn't set the fire and neither did Wym's husband. Here's his pipe." Bless her! as Victor would say. She held up an old corncob I'd never seen my uncle smoke in his life.

Wylie Gerry flushed. "That's not the one, my dear. Mine is a little briar. Had it in my pocket when I went to town. Smoked it all the evening down to the plumber's shop with the boys until—" he contemplated his shoes a minute and then looked Quade squarely in the eye.

"Wait a minute," Victor Quade interrupted, reaching into his pocket. "Is this your pipe, Mr. Gerry?"

Uncle Wylie reached for the dirty old thing, then he beamed all over. "Why, yes. Yes, that's it." He stuck it comfortably between his teeth. "Where'd you find it? I've hunted everywhere."

"Down by the fish shed, during the fire. Certain it's yours?"

"Sartin I'm sartin. However it got there."

Aunt Nella gasped and began to bristle all over, but before she could say anything the minister cried: "There! What more do you want? Gerry lay on the bench and his pipe rolled out of his hand and started the fire."

protested. "I ought to know; he was in my car. You ought to know, too, De Witt. You saw him sitting in the car when we rushed into the inn, excited about the explosion."

"If the pipe set the fire, why didn't it get burned?" I asked. "The bench was burned to cinders."

"How could the pipe have set the fire?" Hugh Norcross cut in. "No pipe stays lit that long. Besides, while we were all down there I dropped my cigarette case. Had to light a match to find it. Looked all around that bench and didn't see any pipe."

Victor was looking at him coolly. "So you lit a match?"

"What of it?"

"Nothing. Only you told us you were over by the Lane castle right after dark when Judy and Mr. Quincy spoke to you. Didn't take another stroll in the same direction and light another match later, did you?"

Hugh nearly fell off the railing. "Say, what is this? You've got a nerve insinuating a thing like that in front of all these people. I had a score to settle with Lane, I'll admit, but not the way things have been turning up around here. I'm not a killer. Nor an incendiary."

Bessie got up and linked her arm in his. "I'll just tell you this much, those of you who don't know. Rodney Lane and I were engaged five years ago. We—we broke it off. Hugh thought he treated me rather shabbily, but there was nothing more to it. Roddy didn't even appear to know me the other night, and I certainly thanked my stars he hadn't married me. What I'd like found out is who snatched Hugh's blue silk scarf from my bureau and Mr. Potter's turpentine. I think we've got a maniac, a kleptomaniac and a what do you call 'em—pyromaniac."

For a moment we all sat trying not to look at poor Bessie Norcross, giving us the lowdown on her unhappy past. I felt awfully sorry for her. Pretty tough to go to a place where romance has touched your heart and then come back with it broken to see if it hurts any more.

"Thank you, Miss Norcross. That's what I mean," Victor said, talking rapidly to give the girl a chance to control herself. "By admitting that affair to us—being frank and open about it—you've helped us to understand some otherwise ambiguous remarks. The police may not even have to know about it."

"The police!" Bessie stood twisting her handkerchief to knots. She looked as if she'd have another breakdown any minute. Tall, dark, angular, too thin, she had none of her brother's good looks.

Hugh turned to her. "What Quade means is that, if we all come clean, this murder will OUT. Evidently he thinks it's one of us. Just as some of us think it might be funny HE should turn up when he did."

Victor looked at me. "Guess I'll have to tell them, Judy."

"It might be better, Mr. Quade," Victor came around where he could see us all. "I'm not too flattered none of you recognizes me," he said. "Anyone ever read 'Blood on the Necklace'?" Lily Kendall's opal beads scattered on the porch.

"I have. Gee, it was swell! Why, you ain't—? Now don't tell me!"

"Oz Window Ledge" or "Ghost in the Chasm?" Victor rattled on. "I've heard of them," Bessie said. "And I've read 'em all, Mr. Vidor Quinn, Mr. De Witt spoke up. 'Mighty good reading. A fellow loaned them to me in—Dance?'"

State's Prison, did he mean? His face was purple. Would he explain? I wondered, but he didn't. There was an uncomfortable shuffling till Victor went on suavely:

"You're right. I'm Vidor Quinn, but my real name is Quade. Victor Quade. The other's just a pseudonym. And I am recovering from an attack of rheumatic fever. Therefore the trailer and the rest by the sea. You can verify that much, later. Chose to come on my own name for a little seclusion so I could do another book. Well, you've given me the book."

"You mean you're going to put us all in a book? How thrilling!" Lily squealed.

"I don't know. If I do it would be nothing personal—nothing you'd not wish that your friends might identify you by. A writer can change a story so you wouldn't recognize it as ever having happened to you. But that's not here nor there. Being Vidor Quinn doesn't give me an alibi."

"I'll say it doesn't," Quincy shot at him.

"However," Victor ignored the interruption, "it dyes place me—give the rest of you something to go on."

"How do we know you didn't cook up the whole thing? Get even with Lane and hide behind your vocation?" I was ashamed for Mr. Quincy.

Victor only smiled and showed his fine white teeth at me. "Miss Jason hinted something or other of the kind—"

"I did not," I stammered. "I never really thought—"

"In your eyes, my dear, I told her, as I'll tell you, that when I plan a murder I won't park my car to get away in down in the Rockville garage. I'd just like to say this, as a manufacturer of mystery stories there are certain aspects of this one which are only too apparent. Used them myself in fiction. Now, do you wish me, or shall someone else, act as spokesman so we can clear up some of the muck? Believe me, the police will run the gamut of all your—our lives."

There was a unanimous decision that he should go ahead. Even Mr. Quincy appeared to have less animosity. He banged the rail with his cane.

"I've been hoping, Mr. Quade, if we let you talk you'd give yourself away. Now you've done it, and there's a chance you're O. K. What do you want to know? I'll spill the beans after you show us a few credentials. Can you do it?"

"I don't know," Victor said, fishing in his pocket. He pulled out a billfold, but stuffed it back again. "Guess you've got me. Thought I had a statement from my publisher, but I must have left it at home when I dumped the rest of my pockets. That's a good one. You'll have to take me on faith, mingled with doubt, of course—unless it's in another pocket in the trailer. Shall we go see?" He shrugged. "Personally I can think of a dozen more important—"

"Well, I can't. You come to the Head and hell busts loose. Give Judy and Norcross the keys to your trailer and let 'em look. Only take a jiff." Mr. Quincy tapped the end of each sentence with a cane.

All we needed was direction. No-sinner-could-there-does-stuff, to relieve the tension. The two of us ran up the pasture to the lovely new trailer. I'd never been inside one before. Compot! Why, it had everything. Everything but the publisher's letter. We looked it up again and hurried to report.

"No letter," Norcross said. "Put us on the same spot with me, Mr. Quade."

"Except that he did have a typewriter. And—and there was a sheet of paper in it," I said.

Hugh Norcross said accusingly: "Go on, Miss Jason. Tell what he'd written."

"It said—it said—there was just a title in capitals."

"Yes. And the title was—'Murder on the Bluff!'" Hugh finished for me. "Now was that a coincidence or was that a coincidence?"

Thaddeus Quincy thumped furiously. "Either he's the maniac or it lets him out and he is Vidor Quinn. Mystery story, don't you see? I move we let it lie and go on. Mr. Quade will have to stick around where we can keep an eye on him, anyway. What were the dozen more important things you spoke of a moment or two ago?"

Albin Potter leaned forward, wide-eyed. "May I say something?" He seemed awfully self-conscious, speaking up before us all. "It's about—you'll think me foolish, at a time like this, perhaps—but—don't forget, he took my turpentine. If I'd only discovered it before I went to town I could have bought some more."

I saw Victor give him a half glance, then turn his attention to Bessie Norcross. "The fire does make that hissing turpentine seem more potentous. You—you didn't try to clean that spot off your white coat with a little of Mr. Potter's turpentine, did you, Miss Norcross?"

"What spot?"

Bessie twirled around to look where we were all looking. There, sure enough, was a big, black, greasy-looking smudge, fading away into yellowish rings. "Good grief! How did I get that on there?" She pulled at the offending skirt and murmured regretfully: "My new white coat!"

Hugh stared fixedly at the spot. "That's my doings," he said. "Sorry. 'Fraid I made it worse, Bessie."

In Crimean War There Were 'Horse Marines'

"Horse Marines" is an expression supposed to have originated in England. It means, as you know, stupid or impossible persons. When the present corps of British marines was formed in 1773, officers came from the half-pay lists of all sorts of army units, including cavalry regiments. And the idea of a cavalryman serving on the deck of a ship undoubtedly amused irreverent folk who started the expression.

In the Crimean war a certain Captain Brock actually did mount his marines when he was facing Quassoko.

Rosebud

Rosebud is eight, and the most beautiful shade of caramel fudge. To her loving Mammy and Pappy she is known, on approximately alternate days, as "Angel" and "You devil child". It was on her devil-child days that Rosebud tied the knots in the shirts that Mammy had taken in for washing, and poured the whole of the vanilla bottle into the lamb stew, just, she said later through bitter tears, to "flavor it up some".

On her angel days Rosebud is equally imaginative even if a more restless occupant of the little shack down on Vinegar Hill. Once when Mammy was out doing day work, Rosebud got a wave of cleaning fever and scoured every pot and pan in the kitchen so that they literally glistened. Another day, left alone, she tidied up Mammy's and Pappy's room to such a point of apple-pie order that it was a week before Pappy could find an undershirt.

Rosebud is a great reader of the newspapers. Mammy and Pappy don't take one, but there are plenty of perfectly good newspapers blowing round Vinegar Hill. It was out of one of them that Rosebud got her idea for spending the ten cents the Bunny had put under her pillow the night her tooth came out. After breakfast Rosebud disappeared down the Hill and reappeared soon after with a beautiful ten-cent War Stamp pasted firmly into a brand-new book with neat little squares for more stamps. She displayed her investment to Mammy. "I declare you're an angel child," Mammy said. Rosebud went on sitting on the kitchen floor staring with large brown eyes at the empty square in her book. From time to time she took hold of one or another of her teeth and wiggled it, gently.

Mammy was engaged in a particularly big washing. Rosebud was as quiet as a mouse and Mammy forgot about her until, coming in from the yard with her arms full of dry sheets, she encountered her child with a large hammer in her hand. Scouting the devil in her angel child, Mammy shouted at her, "Rosebud! Come over with that hammer! What you planning on doing?"

But what was done was done. In Rosebud's other hand was another tooth. Her mouth was stretched in a broad if slightly bloody smile. "I ain't doing nothing, Mammy," she said. "I'm just filling up my stamp book." (Story from an actual report in the files of the Treasury Department.)

"I couldn't help overhearing you, Mary, when you asked Jim here why they let the liquor companies use sugar to make whiskey when all the rest of us have to cut down on it. I happen to know the answer to that. "You see, the fact of the matter is, the industry never has used a single pound of sugar to make whiskey. The bootleggers were the only ones who used sugar to make whiskey. On top of that, there's not a single large distillery in the country making whiskey any more. They're all working day and night making war alcohol for the government for gunpowder, synthetic rubber, chemicals, and medical supplies. "Just as I told Ed down at the courthouse this morning, the government simply wouldn't be able to get all this alcohol it needs in time if we didn't have these distilleries available and on the job."
