NUMBER 52

Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Lesnett Passes Away

Another one of Lincoln County's best loved and most highly regarded pioneers, Mrs. Annie E. Lesnett, passed away last Monday at her home after an illness of several months. Mrs. Lesnett came to New Mexico in 1876. She was married to Mr. Frank W. Lesnett, a prominent ranchman who lived near Roswell, and they reared their family at Roswell and Lincoln. She was a devout Christian, having been a member of the Catholic Church since girlhood, and had always lived up to the teachings of her church. Mrs. Lesnett was a devoted mother, a good neighbor, and a loyal friend. She had lived in Lincoln County during the Lincoln County War and could tell many interesting stories of the hardships with which pioneer women of the time had to contend. She knew "Billy the Kid" personally and could tell incidents of his life at Lincoln.

Mrs. Lesnett enjoyed a wide acquaintance in the county and also in Chavez County, counting her friends by her acquaintances.

In 1929 Mrs. Lesnett decided to move from Roswell to Carrizozo in order to be nearer her children. She bought a home here and lead a very active life until within a few days before her death. On last July third she was eighty-eight.

Mrs. Lesnett was born July 3, 1855, in Chicago, Illinois. In 1871 at the age of sixteen she saw the disastrous Chicago fire; at the age of twenty-one she came to New Mexico, where she witnessed Indian wars, and cattle feuds, with all their attending tragedies, but like all other women of her time, she never let those things spoil her outlook nor disturb her Christian faith. Her philosophy of life showed a fair and constructive understanding of all conditions, whether pleasant or otherwise.

Mrs. Lesnett is survived by one son, Mr. Milton E. Lesnett of Carrizozo; three daughters, Mrs. Edith Crawford, Carrizozo; Mrs. George Dingwall and Mrs. Allan E. Orme Johnson of El Paso; by six grandchildren, Lesnet Anderson, U. S. Army; Mrs. Wayne Hamilton, El Paso; Mrs. F. B. Lindwood of Kansas City; by Mrs. Bruce Groves of San Diego, Calif.; Mrs. James Barnett of Carlsbad; Mrs. Geo. Joseph of Oakland, Calif., and by one great grandchild, Ralph Ray Joseph of Oakland.

Requiem High Mass was sung by the Rev. Fr. Salvatore Di Giovanni at the Santa Rita Catholic Church at nine o'clock last Wednesday morning, followed by interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Palbearers were Messrs. Albert Schari, Roy Shafer, Wm. S. Norman, Doyle Rentfrow, Allie F. Stover and Wm. W. Gallacher.

A tribute of beautiful floral offerings were placed upon her grave by the following flower girls:

Misses A. J. Schari, W.S. Norman, Wm. Gallacher, Doyle Rentfrow, R. E. Shafer and R. E. Lemon.

Bliss Reception Center. Henry Griego failed to pass the Wasserman test and was rejected by the Selective Board. Ramon Chavez was another local boy making the trip.

And Now-- Chaplain Howden

Wednesday's El Paso Times contained the official notice from the War Department of the death of Chaplain Frederick B. Howden in a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines. Mr. Howden was a chaplain of the famous 200th Coast Artillery. Almost everyone in Lincoln County knew and admired him.

Maybe it isn't Christianity, but "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," is the way we feel about this. We soft hearted Americans treat the interned Japanese princes! They are feeding on the fat of the land, while our boys are half starved and left to die of malaria and yellow fever in their dirty, filthy prison camps—young, handsome boys who left with glad hearts, and high hopes to defend their country, and who have had to go through this living hell, looking and waiting for help that never came.

How they must hate their smirking, grinning, hideous little captors, with their notions of being a superior race.

How long, O Church of Calvary's God—how long must the wicked triumph?

Engagement Announced

On June 20th, 1943, the engagement of Ethleen Mary Grotzinger of Gardens, California, to Charles N. Pruitt of Capitan, New Mexico, was announced at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Grotzinger. The bride-to-be is a student of the University of California at Los Angeles, and is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority and of the Birdie Baldwin Cookrill "All Girls Choir" of Los Angeles.

The prospective groom is a member of the United States Navy Medical Corps, and is a pharmacist's mate 3/c and is a son of Mrs. Pearl Pruitt of Capitan. He was educated in St. Michael's school in Santa Fe and also attended school in Cleveland, Ohio. He has open action in the Pacific and in India. At present he is connected with the Pacific Fleet Amphibian Unit.

A miniature ship which was made by the prospective bride's father was placed in the center of the table and christened "Charles" for Charles and Ethleen. Streamers of red, white and blue extended from the ship to each plate and held in place by toy sailora. When streamers were severed from the ship, at the end were "capsules," which when opened contained a candy pill and a prescription with the names of the couple thereon. The engagement ring was presented to Miss Grotzinger by Pruitt in the presence of thirty guests.

All were wearing formal summer dresses in pastel shades; the bride-to-be was gowned in light blue with a corsage of white roses. Members of Mr. Pruitt's family present at the party were his aunt and uncle.

Dempsey Asks Exchange Of Prisoners

(El Paso Times)

With two more New Mexico soldiers dead in Japanese prison camps, according to the Associated Press Tuesday, Gov. John J. Dempsey telephoned Secretary of State Cordell Hull urging that something be done about returning American prisoners.

"I explained our situation fully to Mr. Hull," the governor said, "Even not considering New Mexico's small population, we had as many, or more, men in the Philippines at the time of the surrender as any other state.

"I am very much alarmed about the heavy death rate of our prisoners in Japanese camps, as reported daily by the press. Mr. Hull wanted to know whether all these reports were authentic, and I said they were, coming usually from next of kin who have received notifications from the War Department.

"Mr. Hull spoke very sharply about the difficulties of dealing with a nation such as Japan. He told me that Switzerland now is our representative, but appeared interested in my suggestion that efforts be made through Russia.

"I am eager to do anything we can to get our boys out of the Japanese camps. Perhaps some agreement could be reached for an exchange. As far as I am concerned, it would be fine if they would take all the Japanese held in this country."

Mr. Hull gave no definite assurance, Governor Dempsey said, but expressed extreme sympathy with the request that all avenues be explored, at least with the aim of effecting the return of ill prisoners.

Governor Dempsey said he was ready to send a representative to Washington immediately if that aid the effort to negotiate some kind of an agreement. The representative probably would be Brig. Gen. Russell C. Charlton.

One-Half Million Dollars Short

Mr. Felix Ramsey, chairman of the War Savings Staff, received a telegram from Mr. Vidal, State Administrator, that the June sales of War Bonds for the county were $13,500. The State fell short of its quota $350,000, and in addition the lower quota, $150,000, creates a deficiency of one-half million dollars for the state. The administrator states that "continued retreats would spell defeat" and requests redoubled efforts in promoting bond sales.

A. C. Climer

Mr. A. C. Climer, age 70 passed away at Douglas, Arizona, last Sunday, May 11, after an illness of about five years. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and several grandchildren.

Probate Judge Paulino Aldaz returned this week, after spending some time shearing sheep for the Lupe Gabaldon's shearing outfit.

Mrs. Pearl Stearna and Mrs. Grace Comroy of Nogal were business visitors here yesterday.

From now on reservations must be made in advance for coach space on the Southern Pacific.

Mrs. A. Mathews has moved from Capitan to Roswell and wishes her News sent there.

CHAVEZ TO GO TO MEXICO

Senator Dennis Chavez of New Mexico, will be in El Paso Saturday enroute to Mexico City, where he will discuss Inter-American Highway plans with President Avila Camacho of Mexico.

He plans to travel north for a checkup on the Alaskan end of the road after his visit in Mexico. With Senator Chavez will be Clyde Oden, president of the Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce and Louis Ruffin, chairman of the Albuquerque Highway Committee.

The party will leave El Paso Saturday for Chihuahua with Mayor Bermudez of Juarez. In Chihuahua, they will attend a meeting of highway executives with Gov. Alfredo Chavez of Chihuahua.

Rapkoeh Appointed Assistant District Attorney

The many friends of T. B. Rapkoeh, local attorney, were interested in the announcement Wednesday morning in the El Paso Times of his appointment to the position of assistant district attorney. The appointment was made Tuesday by District Attorney William T. Scoggin, Jr.

Mr. Rapkoeh has made his home here for seventeen years and was assistant district attorney for J. B. Nowell six years.

Mr. Scoggin succeeded M. A. Threest as district attorney. The latter was recently appointed by Governor J. J. Dempsey as Judge of the Supreme Bench at Santa Fe.—Las Cruces Citizen.

In N. Africa With the British Eighth:

(By George Latt, Staff News Service war correspondent, who is back after 31 months' continuous action under fire, first in the London blitz, then in the eastward British retreat and the triumphant westward Rommel-rout to Bizerte with Montgomery's Eighth Army. He lived in the desert for a year and a half, was wounded three times and frequently cited for valor.)

It gets really hot in the Western Desert—130 degrees and no shade being quite common during the Summer season. But it is no more uncomfortable than New York at 95 degrees. In the desert it's just heat; in New York it's humidity. The American fliers and British "Tommys" wear lightweight clothing for comfort, but the Arab wraps up in heavy woolen blankets and half-dozen flannel nightshirts "to keep out the heat." Everyone's uncomfortable.

The Boche and Glinzos are scrupulous observers of international law as regards rendering useless the frequent wells in the desert. Instead of poisoning the vital water supply, which is prohibited by agreement, they pollute wells as they retreat by killing a camel, sheep or goat and tossing the carcass into the well. Makes water temporarily unfit for human or animal consumption, but doesn't permanently destroy the spring. Several times during the Eighth Army's 2,600-mile chase after Rommel this was the only water we had; we drank it by holding the nose, retained it a few moments and then did a rolling-of-the-ship act. But managed to gain just enough moisture to keep going. When forced to abandon huge hog-heads of wine at Tobruk, the running Italians poured just long enough to pour a gallon of gasoline into each barrel. So we used the wine in the radiators of our desert cars and drank the water originally intended for the radiators.

Mail deliveries to the boys out there vary, in my own experience, from one week to eight months. Through the U. S. Army Post Office I have received airmail letters from New York to Tripoli in seven days. Through the regular steamer-mail via Cairo and the civilian delivery coput, a Christmas package from Sherman Billingsley was delivered to me in July. It contained six not-too-acute needles—for which an Arab offered to exchange a wife or a camel—and 100 books of Stork Club matches, which are priceless out in the blue. In Tunisia, where the stork is considered a bird of favorable omen, Sherman's match-books were highly acceptable gifts and valuable articles of barter in our dealings with the Senussi, Taurug and Berber chiefs. The rate of exchange was one book of matches for one egg, one book of matches for one curraway chicken, one book of matches for one meal.

Certain Bedouin tribes and also the famous Indian Ghurkas of Montgomery's Eighth Army never draw their knives from the scabbards unless the blade draws blood. To expose the naked blade without "blooding" it makes the weapon lose face. So when a Bedouin or Ghurka takes his knife out to show to a pal, he cuts his own finger to draw a drop of blood before returning it to its sheath.

In New York when a dame wants to give a guy a brush-off she tells him her name is Miss Trout and gives him the phone number of the Aquarium as hers. In Cairo and Alexandria, under similar circumstances, she gives him the phone number of the Egyptian Army Barracks and tells him to ask for Yamenick Tolata (in Arabic, right-by-threes, or "squads right").

The Arab in the cities of North Africa is dirty beyond civilized belief. The Bedouin of the desert, however, is meticulously clean, although he may die of old age without ever having had a bath in water. The desert Arab scrubs himself many times daily with fine, dry sand; at least seven times daily, as he must cleanse himself thoroughly before each of the seven required daily prayers to Allah.

Throughout North Africa the common tongue is Arabic. But dialects differ so widely that natives of one region can't understand the speech of other regions. But written Arabic is the same throughout, as all literate Arabs learn to write from the Koran. So, while an Arab can't always talk to a stranger, if both can write they can get along fine by scratching tracings in the sand.

Ordinary dry tea leaves are the most valued article of barter between the troops in the desert and the Arabs. A pound of tea is worth about 25 in the desert region of Egypt, Libya, Cyrenaica and Tripolitania. Sugar is second in the Arabs' choice; hashheesh (prohibited by law) third. When I first arrived in the African Desert, the normal rate of exchange was 75 eggs for a canteen cup of dry tea. As more and more soldiers poured into North Africa, the rate dropped to "one cup of tea, one egg."

Should Improve
"What are you doing at the university?"
"Taking medicine."
"Feeling better?"

Could Be
"I'm something of a mind reader. I can tell at a glance just what a person is thinking of."
"But don't you find it embarrassing?"

Only Half of It
Nervous Employer—Thomas, I wish you wouldn't whistle at your work.
Office Boy—I ain't working, sir. I'm only whistling.

A woman when launching her first ship was a little nervous. She turned to the shipyard manager, standing beside her, and asked: "How hard do I have to hit it to knock it into the water?"

Contradicting
Doctor (after administering treatment to patient)—How did you come to take that stuff? Didn't you read the sign on the bottle, which plainly said "Poison?"
Dumb Dan—Sure, but I didn't believe it.
Doctor—Why not?
Dumb Dan—"Cause right underneath it said "Lye."

Strategy
Chloe—I hate that sailor.
Zoe—Why? I thought he was cute.
Chloe—I wrote him the love letter and he said to return my photograph, or I'd complain to the captain, and he sent back 15 and said to give mine out because he'd forgot what I looked like.

If you know a Navy man, don't ever call him a "job"—sailors consider the name an insult. You can get on the right side of him though if you offer him a Camel—or better yet, send him a carton. Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in the Navy (Army, Marines, Coast Guard, too, for that matter) based on actual sales records from the service men's stores. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Ordinary Glass Can Now Be Broken as Desired

Ordinary glass is now made so that it will break in any desired manner, says Collier's. For instance, pitchers, jars and other containers for the home are manufactured so that they will break in large pieces, lessening the danger of glass fragments getting into food.

Some glass ceilings, like those in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, are constructed to shatter in powder form to eliminate the danger of injury from falling pieces.

Mrs. Era S. Smith, Editor and Publisher

State Fair, Sept. 26 to Oct. 3

Albuquerque, N. Mex., July 15 - Leon H. Harms manager of the New Mexico State Fair, issued an appeal today to farmers, 4-H and PFA members, victory gardeners and other food producers to save choice products for display at the annual State Fair, September 26 through October 3, while the harvest season is at its peak. In past years the State Fair has offered only two cash awards for farm and garden products; home arts and home science displays. With the demand for food production and conservation the most urgent in the state's history, the Fair management wishes to give every encouragement to the individual competitive displays. To that end substantial increases in the total of cash premiums for individual entries have been made in all departments of farm crop and home economic competitions. First, second and third cash premiums in these departments will be offered in the forthcoming premium book, which will be ready for distribution on August 1st.

"We are bringing this matter to the attention of farmers, home gardeners and the women of the state now," Harms said, "so that those desiring to enter these contests may save their best products. The prizes being offered are worth competing for; and a maximum of such competition will go far to aid the Fair's first objective, which is to encourage better food production throughout New Mexico by means of these competitive displays. All those interested and desiring copies of the 1943 premium book are invited to write the New Mexico State Fair, P. O. Box 1693, Albuquerque. It will be mailed immediately on completion, on or about August 1st, without cost. The book of more than 200 pages is practically a solid volume of lists of cash awards to producers of farm and garden crops, live stock and home prepared food and clothing."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Free the Seas

Before we win the final battle with Hitler's Nazis all navy men are agreed we must win the battle of the Atlantic; that is to free the coasts of the German U-boats. A year ago we were building 64 cruisers and nearly 200 destroyers or just about enough for a two ocean navy.

Now we have come to realize that this war is to the finish, "winner take all," and our Government is building a two ocean navy.

What is why we are being asked to increase our subscriptions for War Bonds. What is why we must do it.

U. S. Treasury Department

Smilin' Jack says—

"You know, it's well of the folks at home to buy War Bonds the way they're doing. I understand everybody is going to be signed up for 10% of their pay by New Year's!"

Electric Fence Saves on Material and Labor

One of the most practical as well as material saving farm devices is the electric fence, according to J. T. Stovall of the New Mexico Extension Service.

At a time when there is a premium on all metal products such as wire, staples, nails, etc., it is not only patriotic but good business to put up electric fences.

The cost of an electric fence for cattle is considerably less per mile than for a permanent structure, while one for hogs will run only a fraction of the cost and is just as effective as the woven wire type. Electric fences, if properly cared for, will last indefinitely with the replacement of the dry cell batteries.

For low cost of construction and labor effort, the electric fence cannot be equalled. A single strand of light, smooth wire thirty inches from the ground is sufficient for cattle and, if hog proofing is desired, the second wire placed eight to ten inches from the ground will do the trick. Light posts or heavy stakes with insulators can be driven into the ground for holding the wire and only about one-fourth, or less, time is required to erect the electric fence in comparison to the conventional type.

With the desire for increased production, need for utilizing more fully all pasture and grazing, the shortage of labor and farm help, the electric fence could become one of the most economical items of the farm.

Big Farm and Ranch Scrap Drive Is Launched

A major, region-wide Farm and Ranch Scrap Drive was launched May 1 throughout the five states of the mountain region with the announced objective of "building the biggest possible pile of scrap in every agricultural community in the West." The drive is being sponsored and promoted by farm and ranch trade publications and rural press in the same way that the urban daily press sponsored the huge and tremendously successful public scrap campaign last fall. In firing the opening gun for the campaign, L.J. Tedhunter regional salvage manager for WPB warned: "If we don't get this heavy farm and ranch scrap in the fight, steel mills may have to close down furnaces next winter."

Gold Panning is Lure for Service Men at Medford

Medford, Ore. Something new was added in the way of entertainment for service men recently when the Bandbox USO Club proffered among its attractions the chance to dig real sure 'nough gold. Those who wish to do so--and most of its guests do--are sent to nearby "diggings," given a shovel and a pan, shown the process of "washing for gold" and left to their own devices. All find gold, even though much of it is just "tracings," with an occasional small nugget.

USO Seeking Ways to Serve Women in Uniform

Problems of the four women's branches of the service--the WACs, WAVES, SPARs and Marines--came up for special consideration at the June meeting of the Committee on women and girls. At the invitation of Mrs. Pearl Case Blough, USO director of services to women and girls, headquarters of each of the uniformed women's groups sent special representatives to discuss ways and means of adopting USO services and supplying special facilities for them as required. USO has four clubs for women in uniform and plans further additions.

Ninety-six cents out of every dollar goes for War expenditures. The other four cents goes for Government expenses "as the President's plan would."

THE HOG THAT WILL NEVER GO TO MARKET

It's a hog you don't see in this country. Landrace is the breed, a wonderful bacon hog developed in Denmark.

The Danes were just about the very best farmers in the world. They were a thrifty people. Through their farm cooperatives they produced and marketed livestock and farm products of the finest quality.

Successful and happy were these farmers--until one day the Germans came. They took the hog. They took all hogs. They took the butter and the cheese--and the cooperatives too. Like vultures, they picked Denmark to the bone.

Remember this story as you market your livestock, crops and other farm produce. Remember it and put every dollar you can into U. S. War Bonds--every dollar you can.

Every dollar in Bonds that you can for your country and for yourself. Your Government needs that money now and you yourself are making a sound investment.

The bonds never depreciate in value. You got a third more than the original cost of the Bonds in ten years. You can always cash the Bonds after sixty days if you need the money. Buy now -- at your bank or post office.

4-H Legions Helping Produce More Meat to Feed A Fighter in '43

"Produce to the limit, and conserve to the bone. Every extra pound of meat on the hoof... every extra bushel of feed produced this year will mean another step toward Victory".

The foregoing is the motto of the nation's 4-H "livestock brigade" enrolled in the National 4-H Meat Animal Production activity. The chief objectives of this vital enterprise are to learn to raise and fatten farm animals in line with wartime conditions, using homegrown feeds and balanced rations. The activity looms large in the 4-H program to "Feed a Fighter in '43".

As incentives to achieve outstanding records in this activity, merit awards are provided by Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer and chairman of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. These awards include medals to county winners, gold watches to State champions, trips to the national 4-H Club Congress in Chicago to the top ranking participant in each of the four extensions, and a $200 college scholarship to each of three national winners.

The activity is being conducted, along with other wartime projects of production and conservation, under the direction of the U. S.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five major officers who are all part of the Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), executive commander; Lieut. E. F. Kelly, second-in-command; and Lieut. Arthur Alvert and George W. Cox Jr. Manila has fallen, and we have lost our naval base at Cavite. Lieut. Kelly has told how he spent New Year's Eve in the hospital on Corregidor, while Lieut. Bulkeley was discussing with the Admiral a plan of escape to China. Lieut. Bulkeley is telling about a night raid two of the PT boats made against the Japs. Lieut. Bulkeley rode in the 31 boat.

CHAPTER VI

"So we separated, expecting to meet at dawn. It was the last I ever saw of the 31 boat. But here's what happened to our 34 boat in Subic. First, remember it was darker than hell, and the shore line was loaded with Jap field guns. None of us had ventured in there since the Japs took over. We had got in just a little way when a Jap searchlight spotted us and blinked out a dot-dash challenge, asking who we were. Since we didn't know the Jap code reply, naturally we didn't answer, but changed course, veering away. But the Japs were getting suspicious by now, and from over by Hiline Point a single field piece opened up. None of it fell near us—maybe they were shooting at DeLong in the 31 boat.

"When we were about abreast of Sucto light another light came on to challenge us—this time from a ship—maybe that cruiser. We changed course to go over and have a look, but she was small fry—not worth a torpedo—the hell with her—we were headed for Binanga and the cruiser.

"By one o'clock we were off the north entrance to Port Binanga, where we were to meet DeLong in the 31 boat and go in together for the attack, and when he didn't show up, I began to be afraid something might have happened, yet I couldn't be sure.

"But there was nothing to do but go on in alone. To make the creek, we cut the speed down to eight knots, skirted Chiquita Island, rounded Binanga Point, and entered the little bay on two engines at killing speed. Everything was quiet, no firing down here, and then we saw her ahead in the dark not five hundred yards away. Creeping up on her, we had just reached two torpedoes when a searchlight came on and in dot-dash code she asked who we were.

"We answered, all right—with two torpedoes—but they had hardly been fired when I gave our boat hard rudder and started away. It isn't safe for an MTB to stay near a cruiser. One torpedo hit home with a bang of a thud—we heard it over our shoulders. Looking back, we saw the red fire rising, and presently two more explosions which might have been her magazines.

"But we had no time for staring, for we were into plenty trouble. One of these torpedoes had failed to clear its tube and was stuck there, just at the entrance, and was making what we call a 'hot run,' its propellers buzzing like hell, compressed air hissing so you couldn't hear yourself think. But worst of all, a torpedo is adjusted so that it won't fire until its propeller has made a certain number of revolutions—I shouldn't give it exactly, but let's say it is three hundred. After that, the torpedo is cocked like a rifle, and an eight-pound blow on its nose would set it off—blowing us all to glory.

"So what to do? Somehow that torpedo propeller had to be stopped and stopped quick, or else a good hard wave slap on the torpedo's nose would blow us all to splinters. And at this point our torpedoman, Martino, used his head fast. He ran to the head and swiped a handful of toilet paper. He jumped astride that wobbling, hissing torpedo like it was a horse, and, with the toilet paper, jammed the vanes of the propeller, stopping it.

"We'd stopped for all this, but we couldn't afford to wait long. The cruiser's fire was lighting up the bay behind us. Ahead, all over Subic, hell was breaking loose. So we started up, gave her everything we had to get through that fire.

"With three motors roaring, and us skipping around in that rough water with everything wide-open, I guess we made considerable commotion. Anyway the Japanese radio in Tokyo, reporting the attack next day, said the Americans had a new secret weapon—a monster that roared, flapped its wings, and fired torpedoes in all directions. It was only us, of course, but we felt flattered. We got the hell out of there, and that was all there was to it.

"Well," said Kelly, "MacArthur wouldn't quite agree. He gave you the D.S.C. for what you'd done."

"But DeLong has the real story," insisted Bulkeley. "I pulled up outside the mine field off Corregidor to wait for him. Neither of us could go in until it got light, because otherwise the army on shore, hearing us in the dark out there, would think it was Japs and set off the mine field. But when the sky got light and I saw my boat was alone, I realized DeLong was in trouble. And since he's now a prisoner of the Japanese—if he's alive—we'd better tell his story for him.

"After we parted company at the entrance to Subic Bay, he started around its northern rim as we'd planned. But just before midnight he developed engine trouble—the saboteur's wax had clogged his strainers. He cleaned them and had just got under way when more trouble developed—the cooling system went haywire. They stopped, and were drifting as they repaired it when there was an ominous grinding sound under the boat—they were aground on a reef in Subic Bay.

"They rocked the boat, and finally started the engines to get themselves unstuck. But the noise now attracted the Japs, and a 3-inch gun on Hiline Point opened up on them—splashes coming nearer and nearer. They worked frantically, finally burned out all reverse gears so that the engines were useless. DeLong gave orders to abandon ship. They wrapped mattresses in a tarpaulin to make a raft, and all got aboard but DeLong, who stayed to chop holes in the gas tanks and blow a hole in the boat's bottom with a hand grenade before he jumped. That was the end of the 31. Then he couldn't find the raft in the darkness, and being afraid to call out, swam to the beach.

"The raft had shoved off with all twelve aboard at three o'clock.

"He waited on the sands until dawn. Then, in the gray half-light, he picked up the tracks of nine men. He followed these until they led into a clump of bushes, where he found most of his crew. They explained they had stayed with the raft until dawn was about to break. Fearing sunrise would expose them to the Japanese, they had decided to risk a swim to the beach, where they could hide. But Ensign Plant and two men, who couldn't swim very well, decided to stay. What became of them the nine didn't know, and no one knows for sure to this day.

"But the first thing DeLong did was to post lookouts, and all day they stayed in that clump, with an eye on the Jap observation planes which flew over them in relays, watching a hot little skirmish between the Americans and the Japanese on the far shore of the bay. At one point the Japs were falling back, and there seemed to be a chance that they could make a run for it in daylight, rejoining the American lines. But never was it quite possible, and in the meantime they had spotted a couple of bancas, native boats, farther down the beach.

"Two men who were sent out to investigate, crawling on their bellies through the grass, returned to report the bancas were in fair condition. So when the sun had set they crawled to them and started getting them in shape. For rowing they had two paddles, a couple of oars, and a board. They had to work fast and quietly, for the Japs were all around them—just as they were launching the bancas they heard Japanese voices not two hundred yards away.

"But a heavy wind came up, and at nine o'clock at night, both boats capsized. They righted them, but the shovels and the board were lost, and they now had only one paddle for each banca. Yet with these they continued to fight the head wind until three in the morning, when they were so exhausted that they decided to try the shore. So DeLong landed on what he hoped was Napo Point. They picked their way through the barbed-wire entanglement on the beach, and then found themselves up against a steep cliff.

"They kept very quiet until dawn, not knowing whether daylight would find them surrounded by Americans or Japanese. But when it became light, the first thing they saw was a Philippine sentry.

"Hey, Joe—got a cigarette and a match?" they called out. And an hour later they were telling their story to Captain Cockburn, in the Ninety-second American Infantry's field headquarters tent. The nine were back with us at Sisman Cove the next evening.

"That afternoon Bulkeley came over to tell me the story of the engagement. When he was through, 'Kelly,' he said, 'we need you.' 'Let's get ahead of that doctor,' I said, 'and you tell him that.' This time it worked. The hole in my finger was still almost three inches long and about an inch wide, with some of the tendon exposed (but in a month it was healed, except that I can't move my finger joints). I had to promise them faithfully I would show up every other day for treatment, but the point of it was I got out of that place.

"Two days later I took the 34 boat out on my first patrol from Corregidor up along Bataan toward Subic Bay—Bulkeley, who as squadron commander rode all boats on patrol, of course was with me. It was a calm night—and chilly. Sweaters were comfortable over our khakis, although in the daytime we wore only shorts or trunks.

"Everything was going well, in fact it was monotonous. But when we were about twenty-five miles up the coast, hell suddenly started popping. Our own batteries were shooting at us. Bulkeley explained to me that was the main excitement these days—to keep from being sunk by your own side—and calmly altered course to get out of their range, which we could tell by the light of their tracer bullets.

"Half the time those dumb darts don't know friend from foe," he explained.

"Five minutes later we saw a dim light, low in the water, and headed toward it. Was it a Jap landing barge, trying to get ashore behind General Wainwright's lines? Then it occurred to us that it might be Ensign Plant and the two other men of DeLong's boat who had disappeared in Subic Bay. They might have stolen a boat and now be headed home—we couldn't take chances. So without firing we drew nearer, watching the light.

"Presently it began to blink—dots and dashes, all right, but no message that we could read. Bulkeley ordered general quarters as a precaution, and the men were crouching behind their machine guns. It was about twenty-five yards away now—a queer-shaped boat, low in the water—and suddenly its light went out.

"Bulkeley stood up with the megaphone. 'Boat ahoy!' he called. He got a quick answer. Br-r-r-r-r-r! They opened on him with machine guns. It looked like a fire hose of tracer bullets headed for our cockpit, and now they speeded up, trying to head for shore. But we were pouring the fire back at them.

"Now we could see it was a Jap landing barge, packed with men. It had armor on the bow and the stern, and kept twisting and turning, trying to keep those thick steel plates pointed toward us. Of course our maneuver was to come in from the side, and let them have it where they couldn't take it.

"All this had been going on for about thirty seconds when I heard a cry of pain from behind. It was Ensign Chandler. 'I've been hit,' he said. A Jap bullet had gone through both of his ankles. We pulled him out of the cockpit and laid him down on the canopy, meanwhile circling the Japs and pouring the steel down into their vulnerable sides. We could see we were getting them. The barge sank lower and lower in the water and presently gurgled under, while we pulled off to lick our own wounds, give first aid to Chandler, and locate any other boats in the vicinity. Surely the Japs wouldn't attempt a landing with a single barge. All we got, though, was more fire from our own shore guns—a swarm of tracers and then 3-inchers began whistling over—one of them landing two hundred yards away. But we didn't mind. The army seemed to enjoy it, and it wasn't hurting us.

"We fooled around until almost dawn and were headed for home—we couldn't have got Chandler through the mine fields to the hospital until sunrise anyway, when Bulkeley happened to glance back. 'Through the half-light he could see, bobbing in the swell, another low-lying flat craft. Should we go back? You're damned right we should,' the men said—to get even for Chandler by sinking some more. 'As we got closer, sure enough, it was another landing boat, this time apparently leaving the coast of Bataan, and we opened up on her with everything we had from four hundred yards away.

"But their return fire was curiously light and spasmodic. So we closed to about ten yards. Their fire had stopped, but their boat wouldn't. Our bullets would hit its armor and engines—you could see the tracers bounce off and ricochet one hundred feet into the air, but still it kept going. Suddenly a tracer hit its fuel tanks—up they went in a blaze, the motor stopped, and now the boat was only drifting. But even as we pulled alongside, those Japs, nifty devils, gave her hard rudder and tried to ram us.

Life of Mower Can Be Prolonged

It Is Wise to Repair And Oil Machine Early

Mower breakdowns during hay harvesting are expensive in labor, time and farm crop losses, and new mowers are increasingly hard to get. But old mowers will give many years of good service if given proper care.

A frequent cause of poor work is misalignment of the cutter bar. With the mower tongue end raised 30 inches, stretch a cord tightly across the top center of the Pitman bar past the end of the cutter bar. The outer end of the cutter bar, as measured at the knife rivets, should be ahead of the string a fourth of an inch for every foot length of cutter bar. This setting is called the "lead" and is necessary to give alignment of the cutting parts in heavy grass. Some mowers provide an eccentric bushing adjustment at the cutter bar hinge pin; in others the worn hinge pins will have to be replaced.

Make sure that the knife sections register in the center of the guards at the extremes of the Pitman bar stroke. Failure in this causes pulled grass and heavy cutting. Incorrect Pitman length, hinge pin wear or improper lead are the cause for poor register.

The back of the knife is held by wearing plates while the knife clips reach over the bar and hold the front edge of the knife down against the guard or shear plates. When the wear plates or clips become worn, the knife does not make close contact, thus causing heavy draft and uneven cutting. Wear plates can be moved ahead to take up the wear by loosening the guard bolts and driving the plate forward. Knife clips can be driven down with a hammer. Do this with the knife pulled back from under the clip and use the knife end as a measure of clip tightness. With all clips properly adjusted, the knife should slide back and forth by hand but there should be no play. Severe wear of the knife head ball joint will cause broken knives and chattering of the knife head rivets. A new knife head is usually necessary for correction.

Worn out guard or shear plates can be replaced without removing the guards. A guard anvil will be found extremely useful here. Discarding guards because of worn shear plates is a waste of precious metal.

For adjustments peculiar to a particular mower, see the mower instruction book.

Vaccinating Calves For Bang's Disease

"Many farmers have heard of the good results obtained from calfhood vaccination for Bang's disease, and immediately want to apply it to the older animals in their herds as well," states the report from the American Foundation for Animal Health. "This presents an entirely different problem. Sometimes older vaccinated animals do not 'clear up,' and later on when herds are tested it becomes difficult to distinguish them from natural reactors. The question of which animals should be vaccinated and when, are matters to be determined by a veterinarian. "Calfhood vaccination has been a great aid in clearing up Bang's disease in individual herds, but our job today is to eradicate it completely. That is why we must pursue the cow-testing program on an area basis until all major farming sections have been cleared. More than 400 counties have already been certified, and this number will be greatly increased before the war is over. When Bang's disease has been finally wiped out it will mean many millions in additional profits to American farmers."

Extra sugar for canning will probably be made available again this summer, but sugar for jams, preserves and jellies should be accumulated right now from your regular sugar ration.

Speaking Sports

JOE KIRKWOOD, the Australian whose trick golf shots have awed galleries from one end of the country to the other, recently was asked to name the hardest shot in golf. Kirkwood didn't hesitate: "A straight ball."

Almost any spectator who watches Kirkwood perform his trick shots becomes convinced that there isn't a shot he can't make. The things he does with a golf ball are almost beyond belief. But he never has won a tournament of major importance. His explanation for this fact is both simple and logical.

"I've got so many ways of making a shot that I can't concentrate on any one way in tournament play. The fellows who play orthodox golf have a set way for playing every shot and that's a great advantage.

"I've used trick shots in tournaments. Once I hooked a ball around a tree at San Antonio, and a monument was later erected in memory of the shot.

"Another time, while playing with Bobby Jones, I landed in a bunker on the far side of the green, and the only way that I could recover without wasting a stroke was to play the ball backward over my head onto the green. And that's what I did."

The Straight Ball

Kirkwood has the answer to the question of the straight ball:

"It's easy enough to call a low slice, or a high hook, a pull or a fade, but I never feel quite sure when I call for a straight ball. That's the one shot where everything must be perfect, and it rarely is."

In a recent newspaper piece, H. G. Saldinger, top-notch Detroit sportswriter, told of a series of unusual shots.

Ben Hogan, the pride of Texas, was bottling last summer that he could sink 50 straight putts from 10 feet out. He made the bet several times and collected every bet he made. But until you know how, don't try to imitate him.

Hogan laid down the flag on the practice green with one end on the edge of the cup. He placed his foot on the staff and rolled it back and forth. The trough-like indentation made by the flag staff wasn't noticed by the gallery surrounding the green, but it was there nevertheless. When he started putting all the balls stayed in the path and rolled into the cup.

Unlucky shots have played all too important roles in determining the outcome of more than one important tournament.

Ed Dudley was eliminated from the Professional Golfers' association championship last year when his ball connected with the head of a spectator.

It was back in the 1938 National Open at Denver that Ray Anslay took 19 strokes on one hole. His ball landed in a fast creek and he tried to back it out.

Snead's Nightmare

In 1930 Sam Snead topped away the national championship at Philadelphia. He took a terrible 8 on the last hole of the National Open when a par 6 would have won for him.

Johnny Revolta missed his chance in the Land of the Sky Open at Asheville when he six-putted a green. That should make John J. Dub feel considerably better.

Jim Turnesa ran into bad luck while playing the 17th hole of the 1942 PGA tournament at Atlantic City. His tee shot landed on a bottle, broke the bottle, and forced him to take eight strokes on a par 4 hole.

Sam Snead hasn't been noted for his good luck. He lost the final round of the PGA tournament at Hershey, Pa., to Byron Nelson, even though he fired a blistering 63, five under par, at Nelson.

The Nelson-Snead match was squared at the end of 33 holes. Both poured long tee shots off the 417-yard 10th—the 34th hole for them. Byron pitched his next stiff. It hit into the green one foot from the cup for a sure birdie three. It was the best shot he made in 229 holes of tournament play. Snead, on in two, rapped a 25-footer into the cup and it bounced out, hanging on the lip. That was the break of the match, for they halved the next two.

SPORTS SHORTS

Ed Babe Phelps, Phillies' catcher, led three different leagues in hitting during his first three seasons in professional baseball.

After Count Fleet won the Kentucky Derby, his owners upped his insurance policy from $100,000 to $200,000.

Seven of Detroit's first 21 games were overtimes. The Tigers won four and lost three.

Frank Hayes, catcher from the Browns, has taken a job in an eastern shipyard.

Try adding a few drops of lemon juice to rice the next time you cook it. It makes the rice beautifully white and keeps the grains whole.

Keep linens white by packing them in an old pillow case which has been soaked in bluing until it is a deep indigo.

Red and yellow paints mixed together give you orange; red and blue, purple; yellow and blue, green. White paint added to any of these colors will lighten them.

Cleaning is hard on the hands, so equip yourself with extra rubber gloves and wear them every time you do this kind of work. Rub some cold cream under your nails before starting work—you will be delighted to see how quickly you can clean your nails after a good bath.

Green peppers used for salads are better if first parboiled. Boil the peppers for five minutes, pour off the water, then place the peppers in refrigerator until ready to use.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Recapped tires will render satisfactory service—if the tire carcass is in good condition, good workmanship is exercised, inflation rules are observed and speed is kept to 35 mph. Have your tires recapped at a reliable shop.

Scientists have developed the fact that when a car is driven at 50 mph there is a centrifugal force of two tons trying to pull the tires apart.

That our standard of living is affected in many ways by the shortage of rubber will be appreciated when it is known that normally about 80,000 items were made with rubber.

S. P. COACH SPACE MUST BE RESERVED IN ADVANCE

for trips on or after FRIDAY, JULY 16

- ★ You will need a reservation for coach trips on S.P. trains on and after July 16.
- ★ We cannot make coach reservations by telephone.
- ★ No coach reservations will be made unless you have a ticket.

Many of our trains are overcrowded, with people standing in coaches and sleeping in the aisles. Frequently trains leave people waiting at stations because there is no room for them. Obviously something must be done to correct the situation.

Coach reservations will be made for definite trains, but not for specific cars or seats. This means that you will usually find a seat but there will be times when people will have to stand because of emergencies.

We cannot make coach reservations by telephone because of the load on telephone lines, and no coach reservations will be made unless you have a ticket. You must get your ticket and reservations at an S.P. ticket office. If you now have a ticket you will have to make a reservation.

Unless your trip is really necessary—PLEASE DON'T TRAVEL!

Must Endorse Gasoline Coupons

Motorists who are now receiving their new gasoline ration books must endorse all of the coupons in their books immediately, the state Office of Price Administration said today. The endorsement consists of writing their current automobile license numbers on the face of the coupons instead of on back of coupons as previously.

The new A ration books become valid July 22, and motorists who have not already done so are urged to apply for the new books at once on application forms which they may obtain from any official tire inspector.

Immediate endorsements are required under a new OPA amendment, both as a convenience to the public and to help OPA investigators in checking misuse of ration coupons falling into the hands of persons not entitled to them.

The new requirement also means greater protection to the motorist whose book is lost or stolen, since the finder or thief will not be able to pass off the coupons as his own by writing in his own license number.
