Wacs Take Oath of Enlistment

Amid the colorful trappings of a military retreat ceremony, Wacs of the Deming Army Air Field took the oath of enlistment Monday, before Captain Jesse C. Duval of the Trial Judge Advocate Department. The occasion was lent color by the review of Army Air Corps troops in addition to the Wac company.

Now that they are "Army" in all respects, the Wacs are entitled to all the privileges that go with their new status. Henceforth they will be known as sergeants instead of auxiliaries and so on. In addition to this they will be able to avail themselves of soldier "free mail" and will be eligible for National Service Life Insurance.

Grand Jury For Next Term of Court

The District Court Clerk's office has received word from Judge Frenger that he would probably call a Grand Jury for Lincoln County when he convenes the fall term of Court Sept. 6th. Judge Frenger contemplates calling a Grand Jury as there may be some persons who have criminal matters that they would like to take up with a grand jury instead of through preliminary hearing before a Justice of the Peace. Anyone having matters to take up with the grand jury should be ready, when the term of Court convenes.

with me at the Naval Hospital in New Caledonia. Dan and I, along with others were evacuated from Rendova Island because of nervous conditions, and I assure you he was not wounded. I arrived in the States yesterday and Dan should be along very soon. He did not leave when I did. There is no need to worry for all should turn out well. Dan is one fine fellow and has done a great job. He sends all his love.

Sincerely yours,

ON THE HOME FRONT

THE upper sketch shows a combination living and bed room brought up to date with every inch of space used. The cushions (lower left) were replaced with a box-like compartment for bedding. This was made of plywood as shown at the lower right. It was padded across the front and ends with cotton batting, and covered with the couch material tacked in place through a lath strip. Unpainted book cases were bought to go at the ends, and the lid of the bedding compartment was painted to match the book cases.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

GOD GIVES LAWS FOR HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 23:1-9; Galatians 3:23-25; 5:13-14. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

Our God is a God of order. To have order we must have law, hence God gave His people not only the fundamental law of humanity's moral sense of right and wrong, and the Ten Commandments which are the basis of all codes of law, but also those detailed regulations needed for the law's interpretation.

The law of God was not intended to establish a legalistic system of salvation by work, but, as revealed in the New Testament, it was to guide and bring us to Christ, in whom it finds its true fulfillment.

I. The Law Established (Exod. 23:1-9)

At Sinai the Israelites were brought into the presence of God in a dramatic and solemn assembly to hear the words of God from the mountain. These were later written as the Ten Commandments on the tables of stone.

The Ten Commandments are recognized as the foundation on which all legal codes, ancient and modern, are built. They cover man's relation to God and his relation to his fellow man.

The passage in Exodus 23 gives us some of the rules and regulations for daily life which are in a sense an interpretation of the law. This portion gives us an idea of the type of laws provided by God for His people and reveals "the moral flavor of the whole divine legislation."

The thing which impresses us as we read of the divine requirements of justice toward all, of love for one's enemies, of refraining from false witness, of refusing all bribery, is that God's standards are very high.

God's law is good, it is right, of divine quality and perfect purity. It has, however, an even higher purpose than providing direction for life. We learn of that as we hear

II. The Law Described (Gal. 3:23-25)

What was the purpose of the law? It was and is a servant of God to lead the needy sinner to Christ. The word "tutor" in verse 24 does not refer to one who teaches, but the servant who saw to it that the school boy, possibly a bit reluctant, arrived at his destination.

The law convicts of sin and makes it evident to the repentant one that he needs divine help if he is ever to meet its demands. The law really puts a man in prison (kept in ward, v. 23), and makes him look to Christ to set him free.

When one trusts Christ he comes into the place of a son. He enters upon a spiritual maturity which makes it no longer necessary to have a tutor directing and disciplining him. He has entered into a new relationship by faith, and is a child of God.

Does this mean that the law has been set aside or abrogated? Not at all. Jesus Himself said, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law... I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill" (Matt. 5:17). This is our third point.

III. The Law Fulfilled (Gal. 5:13, 14)

Paul had warned against the folly of legalism. In Christ men are free from a slavish bondage to the law. But men, desiring to substitute license for liberty, were using the grace of God as an excuse for self-indulgence and sin.

Christ has set aside all the ceremonial requirements of the law, for He became the perfect, once-for-all sacrifice for sin, which was infinitely superior to all the offerings of the Old Testament law. He thus fulfilled the type of the offerings.

The moral requirements of the law were gathered up in Him, and in Him we have only one law to fulfill, the law of love. Obedience to that law meets all the moral requirements of the Old Testament law.

Liberty to the Christian is not a freedom to do as he pleases, not "an occasion to the flesh" that may live in selfishness and sin. We are free only to be bound by the blessed law of love.

The tablets of stone were (and still are) important. Their laws have never been set aside or withdrawn. But in Christ God has done what He spoke of through Jeremiah the prophet, He has put His law in the Christian's inner being, and has written it in his heart. (Jer. 31:33).

Sheer Gowns, Finger-Tip Veils Rate High Fashion for Brides

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE hottest spot in all fashion-dom these days is the specialty shop or department that caters to a bride-to-be clientele.

To have or not to have a picture wedding gown in gleaming satin or lace, or an exquisite white cheer styled with a traditional train of infinite grace, along with all the little necessities of an entrancing veil, a bonny bouquet together with an important jewel (gift of the fairy prince of her dreams); that's the problem that confronts many a bride-to-be during the present challenging wartime period.

It is surprising, as any experts who are making trousseaus their theme, how the urge persists for traditional white gowns of the dream-come-true type, and it's the cummerby sheers, rayons and cottons that are in the spotlight. Some of the most beguiling are of other treated or plain organicas, effective eyelot embroidery, starched chiffon or dainty marquisette.

The inspiring thing about these 100 per cent lovely white sheers is they give maximum beauty at minimum cost. The fact that they tune to wartime budgeting and that they are made of materials not included in wartime rulings adds greatly to their lure.

As a demonstration of sheer loveliness, note the enchanting wedding gowns illustrated, each of which is a New York creation. The gown to the right pays tribute to the incomparable loveliness of organica. In this dream gown made of frosted organica that has a white-on-white floral pattern running all over it, you see sweet simplicity combined with ultra chic.

Apron-Like Effect

A styling which has been that well received it is being continued in the new fall collections especially in back-to-school fashions is that which simulates an apron effect with ruffling, or with print borderings or with lace or eyelot embroidery edging used just as you see in this picture. This fair maiden is having lots of fun gardening in her pretty a gingham frock as ever one might hope to see. It's by a New York designer and it is a "last word" in chic. Dainty white eyelot bariato trims the full front in apron-like effect, and spruces the shoulders and neck.

Wrap Around.

DOUBLE featured pattern—a neat, well-liked frock plus a wrap-around slip. The perforations in the pattern do the trick.

Pattern No. 8345 is in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 42 and 44. Size 18 dress takes 6 1/2 yards 3 1/2-inch material, slip 3 1/2 yards. 0 yards ric rae.

Little Chap Won His Bet With Both Thumbs Down

Green, who was the local athletic champion, had been holding forth at great length. None of the club regulars could do anything about it. But presently one of the visitors looked up.

"I'll bet," he said cheerfully, "910 that I can wheel something in a wheelbarrow from one street lamp to the next, and you can't wheel it back!"

Green looked him over—not a very hefty sort of fellow. What-over the stranger could do he could.

"Taken," he said. A wheelbarrow was borrowed. The stranger rubbed his hands, picked up the handles. "Get in, old man," he said.

The Self You Live With

A self is not something you are endowed with at birth. It is something you are continually creating as you live your day-by-day life.

"Ye must be born anew" is as true in modern psychology as in traditional theology. Every recentment that you encourage, every grudge, every dependency, every unaid conceit—and on the other hand every self-mastery, every high ferititude, every facing of naked truth—makes either for breaking down the self or for building it up.

For mental self-command—the habit of constructive thought-direction—is more important for a wholesome life than physical soundness.—Winifred Rhoades.

Junior Miss Will Choose Peasant Prints for School

When young girls go back to school this fall they will take along with them such cheerful items as aprons made of gaily colorful peasant patterned cottons, picturing flaxen haired peasant girls dancing in dinnal skirts and laced-up-front fitted girdles, or perhaps printed with Alpine edelweiss. They will also take a jumper dress of corduroy or wool, decorated with cutout felt flowers in gayest Tyrolean mood. Tucked away in their wardrobe trunk will be slippers of peasant print, some tied with cotton string. A felt coat with matching bag in multi-color felt simply cannot be counted out.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

Pattern No. 8345 is in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 42 and 44. Size 18 dress takes 6 1/2 yards 3 1/2-inch material, slip 3 1/2 yards. 0 yards ric rae.

Pattern No. 8462 is in sizes 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 years. Size 3 requires 1 1/2 yards 3 1/2-inch material.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers. Send your order to:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Scientists have found that rubber is the only substance that can be stretched tremendously and resume approximately its original form. Too much stretching, such as in underinflated tires, causes "fatigue"—and deterioration.

The first manufacture of rubber footwear outside the United States took place in 1856 in Scotland.

If gasoline consumption is a gauge of the war, more miles are run in July and August than any other months. Of the gas used in 1941, 9.5% was consumed in August and 9.4% in July. February was the low month, with 6.4% of the year's total.

New Mexico State Fair

At its regular session in Albuquerque, July 23, the New Mexico State Fair Commission, in completing plans for the 1943 Fair, September 26 through October 3, approved appropriations for the largest cash premiums for livestock and farm competitive displays ever offered in the state. Cash awards for beef and dairy cattle, swine, sheep, goats and poultry were increased materially, as were the awards for farm, orchard and garden crops. These were further increased by contributions from every major national association of registered breeders in the United States.

"The Commission feels," said Chairman H. B. Sollers, "that we must do our utmost to stimulate food production in 1944. We can do it only by improved livestock breeding and better range and farming efforts and methods. The cooperation of the great breeder organizations is not only recognition of the value of the New Mexico Fair, but also of its usefulness in stimulating production next year, when food will be most urgently needed."

The Commission completed plans for all entertainment features at the fair. Contracts were signed with Beutler Brothers, of Elk City, Okla., for six nights of rodeo performances, open to champion riders and ropers of the world; with Dodson's carnival company... a 35-car aggregation of attractions...; and the State Fair's first sheep-shearing contest was arranged for. The second annual "Catch-and-Have-It" calf contest for 4 H and FFA boys and girls was approved. The State Fair Commission again will have direct management of the eight-day race meeting. Veteran racing men were employed to handle all details of the meeting. The State Fair racing stables already are filling up and indications are that both in number and quality of horses the coming meeting will set a new standard.

Twelve thousand-four hundred separate cash premiums are listed for livestock, farm and garden products, home arts and home science displays. Premiums range from 50c to $100.00. The total offering is approximately $200,000. Both in number of premiums and in total cash awards offered, new high records are set.

"Attendance at the recent Amarillo rodeo and that at Las Vegas this week furnished convincing evidence that the people are hungry for amusement and that the rodeo remains the most popular form of outdoor entertainment," Harms said.

The 1943 premium book of 240 pages, with two-color cover, is now being distributed. Men and women, boys and girls throughout New Mexico interested in exhibiting are invited to write to Leon H. Harms, Secretary-Manager, P. O. Box 1693, Albuquerque, for a copy of the book and entry blanks. There is no charge.

Grade school students should have a report card, and a book card to show what grade they are entitled to enter, and not have to wait to get this information from the school they attended last year.

American Legion Phonograph Record Drive

A one-day trip on a train is a hard task. Think of thirty-five days on a transport. Just one record of American music would be worth a month's pay. Let's see that they have those records. The American Legion "more records for our fighting men" campaign will do it. Our men on the battlefield are making great sacrifices that we at home may be safe.

We have our radios, our movies, and our players, but those men on the fronts have nothing unless they can get a few records to play. Send them now to the American Legion. Let's draft every old record in town and county and send it to war.

The Lincoln County News is headquarters for "More Records for our Fighting Men" campaign.

Mobile Salvage Unit To Gather Scrap Metal

The United States Army has taken over the drive for scrap metal and this fact alone should prove to the people the tremendous importance of giving everything you have for salvage. Almost every home has old pieces of iron and other metal lying around that are no good and are very likely just in the way.

The United States Army "Mobile Salvage Unit" arrived in Carrizozo this week. Capt. Ira Harper is in command of the one-hun-ded and thirty soldiers, who will camp in Carrizozo under "field" conditions, which means they will have their own tents and cooking equipment right with them. They will have twenty huge Army trucks and will be prepared to go after any scrap metal, no matter how large and difficult to handle. They will have the equipment to gather any amount of heavy material which the patriotic citizens may donate to the Army for the manufacture of war materials to fight our enemies.

These men who are working at the salvage project are what the Army designates as "Limited Service Men," because they are unfit for active overseas combat, but are serving a desperately needed cause on this side. Some of them have been through battles at Pearl Harbor and Guadalcanal.

All materials donated will be shipped immediately to the refineries and will be promptly used in the creation of tanks, planes and other war materials. All long and heavy materials will be cut into lengths of two feet by torches, so that they can be more easily and effectively handled.

There are no middle men in this scrap drive. The Army receives the ceiling price of $9.00 per ton. The Army officers are very appreciative of generous donations by Judge A. H. Hudspeth, who gave a tremendous amount of mining machinery from White Oaks, and Mr. G. A. Titworth of Capitan, who gave three carloads already in the short lengths, ready to load and of Mr. V. Reil of Carrizozo, who gave 270 automobile bodies.

An old iron pall is equivalent to three bayonets, a worn-out copper kettle can be converted into 84 rounds of ammunition, and a flatiron will make two steel helmets. An old lawnmower is good for 9 three-inch shells, and one worn-out tractor will supply enough metal for 580 machine guns.

The "Salvage Army" arrived in Carrizozo on August 9. They have thirty qualified drivers, two medical men and a headquarters platoon of ten men in the "Army" and all the soldiers are well trained in salvage work. They are on the lookout for old plows, axes, hammers, harrows, hay tedders, old coal stoves, pipes, iron railings, wagon wheels, old bathtubs, faucets, car bodies, tires, etc.

Every citizen is urged to make a systematic search from attic to cellar, garage and barn for vital scrap and it is suggested that it be placed at some point easily seen by the soldiers when they come down the road in their trucks, to facilitate collection, possibly near the garage, barn or mailbox.

If you have anything to donate call the News office, Phone 14, and leave your name for Captain Harper and he will call on you.

N.M. Cattlemen to Meet September 27

Albuquerque, July 29, 1948. The next regular meeting of the Executive Board of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association will be held at Albuquerque, on Monday, September 27th, with a brief preliminary meeting the evening of the 26th, E. G. Hayward, Cimarron, President of the Association announced today. More than 300 leading cattlemen, representing all parts of the state are expected to be in attendance at the meeting, Hayward said.

Principal problems today confronting livestock producers include: the acute shortage of supplemental feed together with a record number of cattle on ranges throughout the state and nation; Government regulations and controls which have in many instances resulted in light marketing of cattle, closing down of local packing plants and small distribution of meat; the Livestock and Meat Industry program to solve our wartime meat problems; transportation problems which will occur during the shipping season in the state, and numerous other like situations which demand considerable thought and action on part of cattlemen throughout the state, Hayward said.

Recalling that the first Quarterly Committee meeting of the Association scheduled to be held in June was postponed because cattlemen were too busy with ranch work and because of transportation difficulties, Hayward stated that it is considered necessary and essential that the September meeting be held in order to discuss and iron out many of the serious problems confronting the industry. All cattlemen in the state are invited to take part in the meeting, Hayward said.

Commenting that the State cattlemen's association office had received nearly 300 new applications for membership to be approved at the September meeting, Hayward said the Association's membership would soon total more than 2,500 members, representing ownership of more than 89 per cent of all cattle in the state.

IS THERE GOLD IN YOUR CELLAR?

Yes, and in Your Attic Too!
Turn Those Things You Don't Want Into Money with a Want Ad

You Might As Well Confess!

Almost everyone likes a mystery—almost everyone enjoys the thrilling excitement of tracking down a criminal with an ace detective. But come are a little ashamed to admit reading mysteries. Well—you need not be. Maybe you didn't know that many college professors, bank presidents, great scientists, captains of industry, even the President of the United States all like their mysteries. In fact, millions of Americans are reading more mysteries today than ever before. Why? Mainly because these fast-paced, easy-reading stories are both relaxing and refreshing. It is for them—and for you—that we are publishing

Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine

Edited by Ellery Queen, famous detective of the radio, the movies, and best-seller books, it is devoted exclusively to the best in detective crime short-story literature. And we mean literature. The fact that a story owes its plot to crime and detection need not prevent its being well written. Short detective fiction that is well written is not too readily available. But we are finding them—in books, in magazines, in the files of famous authors—and by arrangement with other publishers as well as with authors, we reprint in the approved Reader's Digest manner the best detective fiction to be procured. Such masters as Dashiell Hammett, Agatha Christie, Stuart Palmer and Ellery Queen are to be found in it.

But stories are selected on their merits, not on authors' names. Tough and suave, casual and swift, comic and tragic, they are mingled with refreshing variety and stimulating change of pace. Rare gems fit for the most critical, delightful to the most naive. You will find the new magazine well printed—sharp and clear, kind to the eyes. You will find the elegance as the Reader's Digest—convenient to hold, to handle, to slip into your pocket. You will find the cover as pleasing to look at as a book jacket. And you will find the contents the most satisfying quarter's worth of good entertainment you have found in many a day. On sale at all good newsstands—25c a copy.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. E. R. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox. On March 11 Lieut. Bulkeley delivered the squadron their secret orders to General MacArthur's party and some additional personnel to the southern islands where they would be met by transport planes which would carry General MacArthur to his new headquarters. The weather was bad. Lieut. Kelly is speaking.

CHAPTER XI

"Shortly thereafter we were supposed to make a landfall—an island about half a mile square, at which point we must turn in order to make the final landfall which would bring us into port.

"With such a wind and sea, we were probably retarded, but by how much? I had to guess at it. Also the helmsman was having a wrestling match with the wheel—it was all he could do to keep within ten degrees on either side of the compass course—which meant a possible error of twenty degrees. We missed the island entirely in the dark, and from then on until dawn I changed course as I thought necessary. Dawn came at six and we saw land ahead, a point which I thought was the peninsula just west of Cagayan, our destination. I showed it to the Admiral, and he shook his head with satisfaction.

"We were up to top speed now, carbon burned from the motors, and at 8:30 we sighted the light on the point at Cagayan's entrance. We slowed to let the 41 boat lead the way, as it had the channel charts.

"General Sharp, commanding officer of the island of Mindanao, was down to meet us, and as soon as we could see the pier we woke up General MacArthur," said Bulkeley. "He shook the salt water out of his gold general's cap, slipped it on his head—somehow it always lands at a jaunty angle, seems to go with his cane—and looked around with his jaw set—a fine figure of a soldier.

"Then he said to me, 'Bulkeley, I'm giving every officer and man here the Silver Star for gallantry. You've taken me out of the jaws of death, and I won't forget it!'

"Still later that afternoon he told me: 'If the boats never accomplish anything more and were burned now, they'd have earned their keep a thousand times over. If possible, when I get to Melbourne I'll get you and your key men out.'

"We arrived on the thirteenth. Four flying fortresses from Australia were supposed to have met the General. One cracked up on the take-off, two came down in the Australian desert, and the one which finally arrived had supercharger trouble and had to turn around and go back without any passengers, so MacArthur didn't get away until the eighteenth.

"We told the crews to keep quiet, not to let it get out whom we'd brought in, so the Japs wouldn't find out and maybe attack while MacArthur was waiting."

"The afternoon we arrived," said Kelly, "Bulkeley told us what MacArthur had said about getting us out if he could. It was good news, but we weren't exactly excited. For if the air force couldn't get even one serviceable plane up here from Australia to take MacArthur out, what chance had we?"

"Our job, I knew, would be to fight out the war in the southern islands—with torpedoes while we had them, and on land with rifles when they were expended. So better not get our hopes up.

"The boats were to be anchored off the beach, and before I left mine, I told my executive officer to check on the anchor—we were close to the beach and there was a lot of surf pounding the coral. Just to make doubly sure, I went on the forecastle for a last inspection myself. The line seemed taut. I tugged to make sure, and it came loose in my hand.

"Start the engines immediately! They were started in thirty seconds, but five seconds later there was a grinding scrape—one propeller had hit bottom. The other engine conked out, and when we did get it going it was too late, the waves were slapping at us broadside, each breaker driving us farther on the beach.

"I yelled over to the 41 boat to get under way and give us a tow but by the time we'd tied her line onto ours, we were stuck—hard and fast. We worked furiously four hours until the tide had gone out, and by midnight we were solid as concrete, in water so shallow that now there were only three feet of water aft and less than a foot forward. Impossible to get off that night. I went to bed disgusted.

at the coral, the propellers and rudders had chewed into.

"I called the crew into the forward compartment and told them the skipper had left it up to us. I talked about what the old boat had done to date with them in it—sunk five ships and two landing boats. So now, were we going to let this be her end—sit by and watch the surf pound her to pieces? Or were we going to get her off?"

"You're damn right we're going to get her off!" they said, and someone suggested maybe we could hire work gangs of natives to help us, whereupon the whole crowd started pulling money out of their pockets and piling it on the table. They'd had no pay since the start of the war, but since they'd been down here in Mindanao, they'd had shore leave and a chance to play poker with the army. The government could cut the cost of the war by just paying the army and then giving the sailors a chance to play poker with them.

"We hired what men we could, and all of us got to work with them digging out these razor-sharp coral boulders with our naked hands. But there were other boulders fifty yards out. We got some dynamite and worked all one afternoon pounding holes in them and blowing them up. With our money we hired natives driving carabao to pull pieces away, at the rate of one peso for the native and another for the carabao.

"We were about ready now for the test," said Lieutenant Kelly. "Another army tug showed up. We hitched a line onto it, we bridled the wheelhouse of the first tug with a line, and as the tide came in we took soundings. The 34 boat needed five feet of water to float—that

"The water kept gaining on us, but we thought we could hold it until Bulkeley got back with Quizon to the pier, although I knew we could never get her back to Mindanao in that condition. When I saw the lights of the car I figured it was safe to come into the harbor. She was sinking fast then, so we left her in a place where she would drift on the sand and in the morning the army could salvage her machine guns. Then we all climbed aboard the 41 boat with Bulkeley and the Quizon party. You might say that was the end of the 34 boat, and yet it wasn't quite, although she got her last light. Bulkeley was working frantically to keep the quadron together. A few days later he came over, plugged the hole temporarily, and towed her back to Cebu, where we hoisted her on the marine railway for repairs. We burned her just before the Japs came into the town."

"The trip back with Quizon was as rough as I'll ever see," said Bulkeley. "We left at three o'clock with one hundred twenty miles to go before dawn. At four o'clock a big sea landed us a punch in the jaw which knocked two torpedoes loose in their tubes and instantly they started a hot run—a terrific hissing of compressed air, the propellers grinding, it sounded like the end of the world.

"In a situation like that," said Bulkeley, "The logical thing is to get them out by firing an impulse charge—touch off some black powder in the rear of the tube which sends them coasting. But we were having trouble with the mechanism—it took a minute to get this done, and meantime the two aft torpedoes were sticking out of the tubes so far they seemed about to fall, so the two torpedomen, Houlihan and Light, got out on them with their feet, hanging on by their hands to the forward tubes, and tried to kick them loose. They couldn't, but they certainly impressed President Quizon, who, when he got to Australia, gave them the Distinguished Conduct Star of the Philippines for what they did that night, as well as to Ensign Cox and me. And it was a ticklish job for the torpedomen too. Before we blew the torpedoes out, their back ends, where their motors are, turned pink and then bright red from the heat. On a normal run, of course, the surrounding water keeps them cool. But out of the water, they're not nice things to crawl around on.

"All of us got to work digging out those coral boulders."

meant we'd had to dig a two-foot hole under her—had we done it?"

"High tide was nine o'clock at night. At 8:45 the two tugs started a steady pull; she didn't budge. The water churned as we took soundings. As nine approached, we signaled the tugs to give everything they had. At 8:53 the 24 gave a sudden lurch—she was free and would fight once more! But first something had to be done about her back end—rudders, struts, and propellers were a jumble of bent steel.

"Before he left for Del Monte the skipper had told us he'd heard of a little machine shop up the coast at Anaken which might possibly have tools to straighten out steel if by some miracle we got her free. So we begged a tug from an army colonel to tow us up there. We were gone ten days, and I missed one of the high spots of the whole campaign while we were gone."

"It wasn't much," Bulkeley insisted. "Just one of those things where they thank you if you do it, but give you hell if you fail. The army called me in and said that President Quizon was over on Negros Island, and if he could be brought over here, they hoped to get him to Australia by plane. The trip to Negros was risky—seven Jap destroyers were loose in the vicinity. Probably to cut off Quizon's escape. So they weren't going to order it.

"So we left at seven o'clock—I was in the 41 boat and Akers was commanding the 35. Off Apo Island, we sighted one Jap destroyer, but luckily she didn't see us and we could dodge around the island in time. It was one o'clock when we entered Dumaguete—it was pitch-dark; both the town and the harbor were blacked out. We had no chart—I'd never been there before—and when we pulled up to the pier—no President! However, his aide, Major Soriano, was there to meet us. He said three hours ago, after we had already left Mindanao, Quizon had got a telegram from General Wainwright ordering him to cancel the trip—there were so many Jap craft in the neighborhood it was too risky. But Soriano said as long as I was here, maybe we could go over to the President's home—it was about forty-five kilometers away—and he might change his mind. We went ripping over there in Soriano's car at sixty miles an hour. Quizon was up, dressed, and considerably interested. He listened to us, looked me over very carefully—I had a long black beard then, which must have been quite impressive—and finally said he'd go. (Later on when he saw me in Melbourne, shaved, he said he'd never disregarded Wainwright's orders if he'd known he was riding with a mere child of thirty.) Anyway, Quizon and his family were loaded into cars and we were off.

"Meanwhile I'd left Akers on patrol outside the harbor. If a Jap destroyer came nosing around, I didn't want him to cut off our retreat and figured Akers could handle him."

"I was riding back and forth, about two miles offshore in my 35 boat," said Akers, "keeping my eyeballs peeled for any of these seven Jap destroyers, when all of a sudden there was a thud and a splintering noise—we had crashed into a submerged object, a raft with metal on it apparently, which ripped a twenty-foot strip out of our bow. Water came pouring in, and we got busy with buckets and pump—"

"—and kept right on with your patrol—"

"The water kept gaining on us, but we thought we could hold it until Bulkeley got back with Quizon to the pier, although I knew we could never get her back to Mindanao in that condition. When I saw the lights of the car I figured it was safe to come into the harbor. She was sinking fast then, so we left her in a place where she would drift on the sand and in the morning the army could salvage her machine guns. On a normal run, of course, the surrounding water keeps them cool. But out of the water, they're not nice things to crawl around on.

"At first President Quizon didn't understand what was going on, and asked why we were getting ready to fire the two torpedoes. Not wanting to worry him unnecessarily, I said we were just firing them at the enemy, who was near by. When we got him ashore at Oroquieta, I explained that we'd really been in quite a dangerous situation.

"We found a passage through the coral reef outside Oroquieta just at dawn and found General Sharp waiting in his car. In order not to be recognized, Quizon tied a red bandanna over his face below his eyes. But the natives all knew him in spite of it—hats were waving from the sidewalk as he rode off down the street."

"We missed it all," said Kelly, "because we were up there in Anaken trying to repair the crumpled steel in our hind end at that little overzealous garage back among the bamboo which they called a machine shop. Native divers, holding their breath, took off the struts and shafts of the rudders and the propellers. We tried to pound the propellers back into shape with hammers on palm logs, while the proprietor did his best to straighten the rest in his machine shop.

"Finally there was a trial run. She'd make only 12 knots—a fraction of her normal speed—and the vibration was terrible; you'd think someone had packed an earthquake in our lazaret.

Speaking Sports

By Bob McShane

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE Tam O'Shanter golf show of mid-July served as a reminder that the game, despite its moribund condition, is still being played in sections of the country.

Tournament golf has been almost forgotten. No major sport has been hit quite so hard—both from a standpoint of tournament play and membership participation.

The United States Golf association was one of the first sports organizations to chuck the whole thing right after Pearl Harbor. The governing powers decided to put their championships in moth balls for the duration.

No one knows whether the USGA could have made an important contribution to the game. But the organization could have made an attempt. The committee chairman refused to do this.

The Tam O'Shanter was privately promoted. George S. May, a Chicago business man, put up all the money for prizes—and it was no inconsiderable sum. Admissions were paid through the purchase of war stamps. The show cost George May a substantial chunk of money.

Long after the USGA had taken a powder, May did a big job in keeping tournament golf alive. The national organization lost prestige with professionals and amateurs alike when it cancelled its championships at a time when most major sports were doing their best to contribute whatever possible to the nation's morale.

The USGA will have a mammoth post-war reconstruction job on its hands.

The War and Racing

Col. Matt Winn took the far-fetched view when he insisted that horse racing can do a whole lot more for the war program than it has to date.

Racing supplied approximately 3 million dollars in 1942. It is Colonel Winn's contention that the amount should be doubled in '43.

Racing is enjoying the biggest boom in history. Crowds, with pockets—and purses—bulging, are spending unprecedented amounts of money. The conservative element of the turf world is quite concerned about the matter. Quite a few individuals fear a reformer reaction. And their fears may be justified.

Before young Alfred Vanderbilt, former president of Belmont and Pimlico, was given the nod by Uncle Sam, he came up with a revolutionary suggestion. It was his suggestion that racing give everything above operating expenses and a small percentage, to come war fund. The plan, to put it mildly, was looked upon with utter dislike.

Colonel Winn has a suggestion that shouldn't be frowned upon by the most avaricious. The present racing policy calls for a war-day program at each track. On this particular day all the profits are channeled into the war kitty. Colonel Winn believes this should be doubled and that each track give two days' proceeds.

A large segment of the population continues to regard horse racing as a somewhat dubious enterprise, connected rather vaguely with pool halls, checkered vests and broken families. The industry should set an example without waiting for pressure from the outside. Other sports have done considerably more than racing in proportion to total receipts.

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel cigarettes. With men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, actual sales records in their service stores show that Camel is the favorite. It's one of the favorite gifts with service men. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Household Hints

Coal oil will remove adhesive from painted surfaces.

Vinegar eliminates odors. Don't put away a frying pan that smells of onions, fish or some other strong-flavored food. Put some vinegar in the pan and bring to a boil. Then wash as usual.

The best way to dress geese and ducks is to pick off all the feathers possible before scalding them. Have the water boiling, put in one-half pound paraffin, scald the bird well and let cool 15 or 20 minutes. Then the down will come off in large flakes and the bird will be clean and have a better appearance.

A common clothespin, split in half, makes two useful pan scrapers which do not rust or scratch aluminum or enamelware.

If rain splatters dirt upon the windows from the window flower boxes, cover the top of the box lightly with gravel.

To serve plain cake at its best, make only one layer at a baking. Instead of icing the entire top of the cake, put an inch wide band of icing around the edge. Sprinkle the top with chopped nuts.

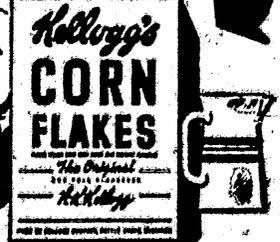

To save yourself these busy days, cut small mats from old felt hats and use them under vases, ornaments, flowers and book ends. They prevent scratching of polished furniture.

Paint will keep indefinitely in good condition if the lid of can is replaced tightly and the can turned upside down. The paint seals it, excluding the air.

star of bronze with a wreath surrounding the small inner star of silver suspended by a moire ribbon of our glorious colors—red, white and blue. It has a safety catch and looks beautiful against the gold satin lining. The box also contained the good conduct medal of red, white and blue enamel, made to wear in a buttonhole. Enclosed is his letter. In his letter he speaks of 'Raymond'; he means my brother, Raymond Davis, who lives in Lincoln County. Following is the letter Mrs. Haskins enclosed:

"Somewhere in Africa—Dear Mother and all: Well, guess I'm O. K. as ever. Glad to hear you are all alright too. I wish they had some of this mud in New Mexico. Am sending you a clipping from general orders. You might be interested in it; Mamas usually are interested, and it is something to be proud of in the measure of a man. Was decorated yesterday by General Eddy, division commander, and the regiment passed in review. 'It was something I shall never forget—3,000 of the finest fighting men on earth parading for a handful of us. Wish you could have been there.

Do you ever hear from Raymond? He waits until he hears from me to write, so his letters are a month or so apart. I like to hear from him; we speak the same language more or less.

I've been on quarters with malaria. That's the third time it has occurred. Guess I won't get rid of it until I leave Africa and I hope that's soon. I hate this hot, fly-ridden, dirty place. (In case you notice any spots on this paper, dear, they have just sprayed me with a flit gun to keep the flies off.) How about that? When I was first in Africa, was in the hospital with a fever of 104 & 5. Was so disgusted. In the hard battle we fought I came through without a scratch, but malaria! Food is bad sometimes. We have had some fresh vegetables, for a change, which were welcome. Bet Kansas is pretty and green now. There isn't a bird, rabbit nor anything in this brown land, but camels, burros, scrub cattle and Arabs. There is nothing to buy here but rotten cognac and wine. What a joint! We see the 'Foreign Legion' quite often. They are a tough bunch. Professional soldiers with no hope and no future. Been playing volley ball and Goshack stuck his finger in my eye. Can't half see. So the boys want to go into the duck business, do they? Tell 'em to have a duck to roast when I get back. Boy, could I go for a duck! "You bring the duck!" Love to hear from home, friends and relatives.

Your Son, Bud Cooper.
