VOLUME XVIII--[Carrizozo News, Vol. 32]

CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1944.

NUMBER 25

"WE Pledge Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; one Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

Awarded Silver Star For Gallantry

With the 5th Army, Italy Pfc. Thomas E. Truax, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Truax of Carrizozo, N. M., has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action. The citation reads: "A rifle squad became pinned down by intense fire from an enemy machine gun nest and because of the intervening terrain features, it was impossible to place effective fire on the hostile position. Pvt. Truax volunteered to destroy the gun and arming himself with a rifle, he advanced toward the enemy position covered by rifle fire from the other members of the squad. After killing a German sniper who had been firing at him, he succeeded in circling the machine gun nest and killed all three of its occupants. He then returned to his comrades and assisted in evacuating wounded men. Pvt. Truax's superb courage and devotion to duty reflect great credit to him and to men in the Armed Forces."

Honolulu 62, T. H. Dec. 18, 1943.

Mrs. Era B. Smith, Dear Madam:

I get your paper and really do enjoy reading it. There is a correction I wish to have made. In the issue of Oct. 1, my name was listed as in the armed forces serving overseas. I am employed by the Navy at Pearl Harbor in civil service, and you see, someone may think I am trying to get some undue credit.

I have been here over fifteen months and intend to return to New Mexico next spring, transferring to some other yard on the mainland, if possible. This is a nice place to live, with a wonderful climate, but I do miss the wide open spaces.

Yours truly, Lloyd E. Porter.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Maggie Chavez received Sat's "Order of the Purple Heart." This week she received the medal, a purple heart with his name and situation inscribed on it and suspended by the Stars and Stripes. Above the heart are three stars to denote the three bombing missions in which he participated. She still looks forward to his two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Sgt. Walton Wilson of Camp Carson, Colorado, and Privates Bill Skinner and Vernon Petty of Fort Bliss, Texas, were here for the yuletide with relatives.

Pvt. Cleo Vigil of Lincoln was discharged from the Army in California last week.

Grotzinger--Pruit

On Dec. 21st, 1943, the wedding of Charles Pruit, Pfm. 2/a and Miss Ethleen Grotzinger took place in the Chapel of Friendship at Gardona, Calif. The wedding took place before the altar of the chapel. The altar was banked with Christmas cedar and baskets of white gladioli. Eighteen tapers were lighted by the altar boys who were wearing red and white.

The bride was attended by the groom's sister and some college friends, in navy blue and light blue. They carried gardenias and roses.

Pruit is the son of Mrs. P. A. Pruit of Capitan, N. M. He is a graduate of the Hondo High School and of St. Michael's in Santa Fe. He also attended school in Ohio.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Grotzinger of Gardona. She is a graduate of U. C. L. A. and has a degree in Geology.

The groom is on board the U. S. S. Borgen. He has been at Attu, Kiska and the Gilbert Islands.

Pruit is one of your fine New Mexico boys and I thought you would like to publish an account of his wedding.

Sincerely, Charlie Killie, Lt. (J. G.) U. S. N. R.

1943 Extension Service Report

The program sponsored by the Extension Service in Lincoln Co. in 1943 has been of considerable benefit to the people in the rural areas. The success of the year's program is largely due to the cooperation of the various committees and leaders in the different communities. The Extension Service, as the educational agency of the Department of Agriculture, formulated its program for 1943 in a manner to provide the greatest amount of educational assistance to farmers and ranchers in increasing their 1943 production. Direct assistance was given the County USDA War Board, the Farm Machinery Rationing Committee and War Meat Committee. 1820 personal letters were written and 600 office calls were received in carrying out recommendations of these committees.

Some of the activities of major importance include: 1. Sponsoring of the labor program. Committees were appointed and assistance given them in obtaining available labor for farmers and ranchers. A number of students and adults were directed to farmers and ranchers who were needing laborers.

2. The sponsoring of a scrap metal survey in rural areas, as a result of which 357 tons of scrap iron was reported and its location given to Army officials.

3. Sponsoring of the extension marketing service whereby truckers and buyers in 13 states were kept informed on the kind and amount of produce for sale in Lincoln County.

4. The compilation and submitting of material to state officials to indicate the acute need for supplemental feeds in Lincoln County.

5. Conducting a survey of used machinery in order to assist farmers in locating this equipment.

6. Plotting of farm and ranch homes on a map which was submitted to officials of the Rural Electrification Administration for post-war consideration.

7. Conducting a survey to determine the estimated amount of food preservation supplies needed in the county for 1944.

8. Continued the 4-H registered swine breeding projects by placing an additional 8 registered gilts with 4-H club members.

9. During the year a total of 25 meetings were sponsored on topic pertaining to livestock, poultry, farm labor, farm machinery, gardening, orchards, nutrition, home improvement and clothing. The meetings were attended by 1638 individuals.

10. A summary of other activities reveal that 321 farm and ranch visits were made; 2737 people called at the office; 547 phone calls were received and made; 2,063 agricultural bulletins were distributed; 9000 personal and circular letters were mailed.

Carl P. Radcliff, County Extension Agent.

Mrs. Elsie Reeder of Houston, Texas, left Tuesday for Santa Rosa to visit her sister. She will return to Carrizozo for a short time before returning to Houston.

Mrs. Clara Bell, who was ill of influenza Christmas week, has had a relapse.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Richard are now occupying one of Mrs. Mae Jordan's apartments.

Mrs. G. O. Davis renewed her subscription this week.

Coughing COLDS

Relieve distress
Time-Tested Way

WORKS 2 WAYS AT ONCE

PENETRATES to upper bronchial tubes with soothing medicinal vapors.

STIMULATES chest and back surfaces like a hot poultice.

MILLIONS OF MOTHERS relieve distress of colds this double-action way because it's so effective—no easy 15 min. rub throat, chest, and back with good old Vicks VapoRub at bedtime.

Instantly VapoRub goes to work—2 ways at once, as illustrated above—to relieve coughing, soothe a hot, raw, congested throat, loosen phlegm, and induce restful, refreshing sleep. Often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Cruel, or natural, rubber has been defined as a substance found as liquid latex in many types of trees and plants and being characterized by the physical qualities of stretch, bounce, and impermeability to water.

In 1937 crude rubber was the most important single commodity imported into the United States on a dollar basis. Gross imports then were 499,816 long tons, valued at $178,489,142.

A small test plot of land in a Pacific Coast experimental project last year produced at the rate of 50 pounds of rubber per acre from Russian dandelion.

Notes of a Newspaper Man: "Dear Walter Winchell," affectionately writes Vivian Gardner of Dayton, Ohio. "I noted on the cover flap of Bob Casey's book that you made claim to his famous saying about newspaper men being such interesting people."

A recent issue of Life has an engrossing essay by their correspondent, Corl Mydans, who just returned from Japan. One observation in it deserves repetition: "Despite the Jap propagandist's new respect for America's power, they temper their warnings about it with encouraging news of America's internal problems."

New York Novelle: The current song hit, "Paper Doll," was written in 1923 by Johnny Black. He first played it for a publisher on his pet canary chirped along, perched on Johnny's shoulder.

Many editorialists are pointing about the press relations since at Cairo and Teheran. They have good reason to be irked by the tugging.

Sounds in the Night: At Paris Qui Chante: "She didn't add any weight, she multiplied it!" . . . At Jimmy Dwyer's: "He has a face only a love could mother!" . . . At the Yacht Club: "I never feel my first dive frisks" . . . In Duffy's Tavern: "Aren't you too old to believe in Sinatra Claus?" . . . At Jimmy Kelly's: "Weak? He wears suspenders to hold his shoulders on!" . . . In the Hurricane: "Falling in love is like falling downstairs."

This is why censorship drives newsboys nuts: British gazettes were not allowed to publish stories about the Cairo confab, taken from Reuters, the British news agency, or from the official version—but only from German broadcasts.

Note to those who pod-pod the value of propaganda: The Japs still haven't told their people about the Cairo accord for fear it might weaken their will to fight.

Lace in Its Every Lovely Mood Plays a Most Versatile Role

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE man in uniform loves to see you dressed up for the evening in flattering pretty-pretty gowns. It is a compliment to him as well as to you. To know you think he is worth it, helps a lot in inspiring high purpose and now courage in him to go forth to do and to dare where duty calls.

Fashions for important gala nights are just like that this winter—as beguiling and appealingly lovely as designers can create. Much of the enchantment of the current evening mode centers about the widespread and often unique use of lace, ranging from crisp starched, types to the most fragile crepe and filmy meshes.

Nailhead Glitter

This slim-lined frock for smart dress-up wear is made of sooty black rayon crepe thus offering a perfect background for gilt nailheads scattered in an intriguing allover patterning.

here's a clever idea when you have a dress that needs must do double duty. A bride with vision for the future in way of a wedding gown that she could wear later for various occasions chose a winsome pastel wool frock (for an afternoon ceremony) that was styled with utmost simplicity.

For the woman of affairs who goes places, a lace dress is indispensable. Moelia lace for dinner at eight, as illustrated to the right, has intrigue plus. The effectiveness of brown-tinted lace for evening wear is being played up for all it is worth this season.

Hairdo Trend Is to Low-Front Coiffure

Important changes in hairdos are under way. The low-front coiffure is being adopted by many who forego the gradual exit of the high and formal looking pompadour, in favor of a neat and simple arrangement.

Pleated Skirts Permitted

It was to be expected that the fabric conserving rules would banish pleated skirts from the current fashion picture. However, the good news is that style creators are demonstrating in new types that a skirt can be pleated and yet not exceed government requirements.

See Deer Skins For War

The State Game Department today again called attention of all big game hunters to the fact that deer and elk hides are urgently needed for military use. General Conservation Order M-310 of the War Production Board froze all deer skin leather for military purposes.

Hunters are urged to channel their deer skins into the trade so that they may be processed and used for the armed forces. State Game Warden Elliott Barker said, "In New Mexico, dry skins of deer and elk may be sold. Practically all hide buyers will accept your deer skin, and it will then be made available for war material. Turn it in to your local dealer."

This wartime Holiday Season we advise you to "try the train"

"We're pulling the heaviest loads in history, using every locomotive our railroad owns or can borrow. We're short of trained men, too. To avoid disappointment, better plan on spending Christmas at home."

S. P. Engineer

In normal years the Christmas season is a jolly time on the railroad. Package-laden travelers bound for family reunions fill our trains.

We railroaders have fun carrying people on holiday journeys, and we hate to disappoint a single ticket taker... but this war year we really have no room for pleasure travelers.

Service men on holiday furloughs, relatives traveling to meet them, military personnel in organized groups, business men in war work—these people now have first call on our facilities.

This means that, unless you must travel, you'll be wise NOT to try the train. We hope there'll come a Christmas season when our message can be different!

Save Tin Cans

A plea to housewives to continue preparation and salvage of tin cans in areas where tin can campaigns are authorized by the War Production Board was made today by the regional WPB conservation manager.

Even the tin can collection in some areas isn't exactly what it should be, the urgent war need for the super-critical tin contained in cans has not diminished in the slightest.

The need for tin is greater than ever. Our job now is to perfect collection methods and to salvage every can possible.

Housewives are urged to continue to observe these simple rules: Open both ends of the can. Wash thoroughly. Remove paper labels. Flatten the can merely by stepping on it. Deposit in a separate box or container for collection.

Throughout New Mexico can collections are encouraged by WPB. In many areas, collections are being made by drivers for bottling companies after local salvage committees have gathered the cans at a central point.

Ration Book No. 4

The red and blue stamps, which are for meat, dairy products and processed foods as at present, will be used in conjunction with red and blue tokens, the latter to be introduced early in 1944, and given by merchants in change. Green stamps will be used on an "interim basis," with blue processed food stamps, in much the same manner as the brown stamps in Book 3 are being used this month in the meat-fats program.

Twelve of the 96 unit stamps, printed in black, are designated for sugar. An equal number are marked for coffee, which is no longer rationed. These and 72 others, marked "spares," will serve for any additional foods rationed, the OPA declared, its purpose being to provide for any contingency, since the new books are expected to serve for two years, as compared to 4 or 6 months for previous books. The cost of printing is about the same, around $1,500,000, it was stated.

You Might As Well Confess!

Almost everyone likes a mystery—almost everyone enjoys the thrilling excitement of tracking down a criminal with an ace detective. But come on a little ashamed to admit reading mysteries. Well—you need not be. Maybe you didn't know that many college professors, bank presidents, great scientists, captains of industry, even the President of the United States all like their mysteries. In fact, millions of Americans are reading more mysteries today than ever before. Why? Mainly because these fast-paced, easy-reading stories are both relaxing and refreshing. It is for them—and for you—that we are publishing

Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine

Edited by Ellery Queen, famous detective of the radio, the movies, and best-seller books, it is devoted exclusively to the best in detective crime short-story literature. And we mean literature. The fact that a story owes its plot to crime and detection need not prevent its being well written. Short detective fiction that is well written is not too readily available. But we are finding them—in books, in magazines, in the files of famous authors—and by arrangement with other publishers as well as with authors, we reprint in the approved Reader's Digest manner the best detective fiction to be procured. Such masters as Dashiell, Hammett, Agatha Christie, Stuart Palmer and Ellery Queen are to be found in it. But stories are selected on their merits, not on authors' names. Tough and suave, casual and swift, comic and tragic, they are mingled with refreshing variety and stimulating change of pace. Rare gems, fit for the most critical, delightful to the most naive. You will find the new magazine well printed—sharp and clear, kind to the eyes. You will find the same as the Reader's Digest—convenient to hold, to handle, to slip into your pocket. You will find the cover as pleasing to look at as a book jacket. And you will find the contents the most satisfying quarter's worth of good entertainment you have found in many a day. On sale at all good newsstands —35c a copy.

Last Words
Last words of dying persons are the utterances of a delirium. Why then are they so treasured? asks Dr. J. Shelton Horsley in an article in Hygeia Magazine. The melodramatic picture of relatives hovering over a deathbed is based on the wrong conception. Last words are of no value when they come from a mind numbed by approaching death. It is better to remember the words spoken while the person was in a healthy mental and physical state.

Dismal Italy

By Frank Cervoni

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangements with Collier's Weekly)

Already the words "sunny Italy" have for the American doughboys of this war the same hollow sound that "La Belle France" had for their fathers in the last one. In terms of rain, mud and misery, Italy has become the France of this war—France, however, without Paris, for the only major city the Allies have captured thus far in Naples, a dark, sad city.

The next big town on the road to victory, Rome, promises only more waterless water closets, and children crying for biscuits and sourballs, and black-market prices spiraling out of an inflation partly influenced by the arbitrary Allied pegging of the lira at one hundred to the dollar, and partly out of an ancient Italian aptitude for gypping foreigners. And nowhere from here to Rome and beyond, is there even a faint promise of a hot bath.

Win and Go Home.

Ever since they volunteered or were drafted, two thoughts have been uppermost in the minds of the men variously known as doughboys, doughfeet, jeeps, dogfaces and G.I. Joes. The first is to whip the pants off the Germans; and second, but not secondarily, to return home to double features, hamburgers, beer, baseball, girls, families, friends, and Sunday clothes. A year in North Africa, Sicily, and more particularly, Italy, has accentuated those American desires.

That isn't so completely true among these more highly organized intellects known as officers. Among them, I have found many who believe that America's responsibilities go beyond mere victory. But it's overwhelmingly true among the common soldiers (and I have talked with hundreds of them in and out of battle) in the militarily stagnant Middle East and on the active fronts in Italy. Here they cry, with one voice: "Let's get it over with and let's go home. Let's leave Africa to the Arabs, Sicily to the dogs and Italy to the wops."

Their state of mind is attributable to the fact that, in the broader sense, they don't know what they are fighting for, and anything beyond the necessity of defeating Germany will be one for the gentlemen in striped pants to contend with when they gather around the green baize tables to draft plans for the postwar world. In even the most inarticulate Britons, I have found yearnings, however vague, for the creation of world order wherein there shall be peace and justice, and work for all people, an organized that opportunities for tyrants again to raise their heads will be reduced to a safe minimum.

Britons Fight Professionally.

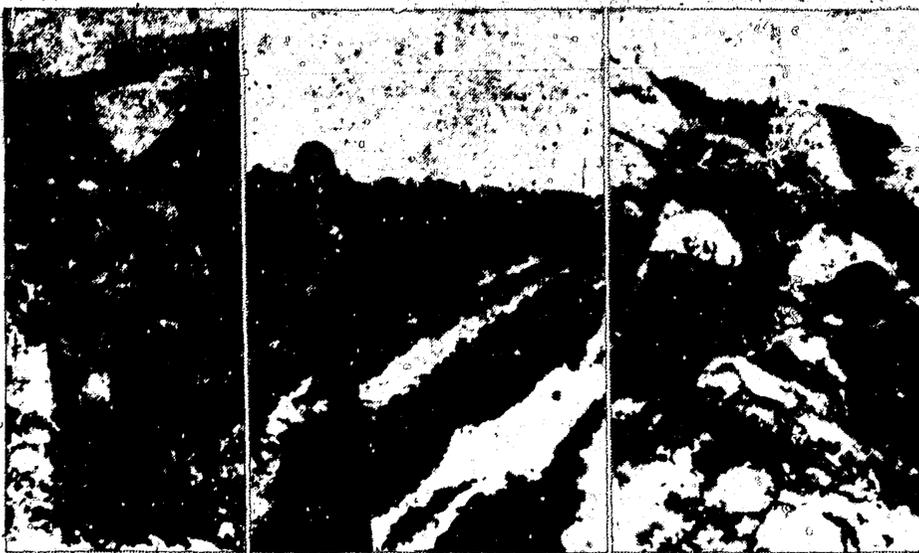

Here on a front which is roughly half British and half American, it is possible to compare the British attitude toward war and its end, with the American. The British seem to understand war and to fight it almost daily and certainly professionally. They seem to know that war and politics are inseparable. The Americans fight much as they play football—intensely and enthusiastically, but with the sole idea of winning. There's nothing gay about Americans in battle. They fight dutifully, doggedly, bravely, but animated solely by the desire to win.

The Englishman knows he's not going to find the same old England when he returns to Limehouse and Leicester Square, and he's not at all sorry, but rather glad. The American doesn't want anything changed. To him social progress or change of any kind is synonymous with Communism, and he wants no part of Communism, preferring, as one doughboy put it, to stand in the blood and muck of the battlefield after he had crossed the Volturno: "At least, under cut wop, every guy got the same chance of being President. Yeah, sure, it's dog eat dog, but you've got an even chance of being the dog that wins."

None of this is cabled in the spirit of viewing with alarm, but merely to set down what constitutes a major problem confronting the architects of peace, a problem which is drawing closer now with every hard-earned mile of conquered or liberated Europe. The problem is simply what to do about "I wanna go home."

The mentality of the American soldier and how to fit what that state of mind implies—Isolationism—into, for example, the Wilkie world is the problem. Unfortunately, although the defeat of Germany is assured, Doughfoot or Dogface won't be able to go home as soon as he would like, or, worse still, as quickly as citizens in the United States widely believe.

FARM LAND BOOM

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard will soon trot up to Capitol Hill with a proposed bill in his pocket to put an end to the farm land boom. He is keenly worried about speculation in farm properties, has made a couple of speeches on that subject, but has not disclosed the full extent of the penalties he will propose to stop land speculation.

His bill carries a tax of 80 per cent on profits from the sale of farms held less than two years. In other words, if a farm is bought and then sold again in a few months, the deal is obviously for speculation, not for farm production, and the profit would be practically confiscated by the proposed tax.

Farm sales are so heavy that, if the present trend continues, they will surpass those of 1919-20, which was a record year. Iowa farm land, for example, is bringing $225 an acre.

Wickard has evidence indicating that the men engaged in this speculative buying are not farmers, and most of them are not even residents of farm areas. They are investment houses and insurance companies, who have money lying around loose and think they can make a killing, as they did in World War I.

The record of their speculation in that period is still written black on the pages of farm history. It is seen every time AAA makes benefit payments, for the largest checks in many states go, not to individual farmers, but to insurance companies and banks which have bought land or taken it over by foreclosing mortgages.

Wickard is prepared for opposition to his bill. However, the opposition will come, not from farm elements, but from the speculators, and also from Wall street brokers who fear that the next move might be a capital-gains tax on stock-market operations.

ELK HILLS BOILS

Latest developments in the Elk Hills oil controversy are known only to those who can see the inner workings of the cabinet.

Attorney General Biddle was expected to denounce the navy's contract with Standard Oil of California as illegal. The reason he didn't is that two cabinet colleagues got next to him and changed his tune.

Exports in the justice department have declared the contract definitely illegal, and passed their findings along to Biddle. Biddle, in turn, was expected to tell the house naval affairs committee the same thing, with the result that congress would undoubtedly recommend condemnation. Thus, Standard of California would relinquish all the property to the government.

But when Biddle appeared before the committee, he pulled his punches. Instead of declaring the contract illegal, he merely stated that he had "grave doubts" about it.

The committee was expecting a forthright statement. Even its chairman, Congressman Vinson of Georgia, who is very close to navy officials, privately favors condemnation.

Secret of what happened is this. Two cabinet colleagues got hold of Biddle's coat-tails. One was Secretary of the Navy Knox, who was responsible for the contract in the first place; the other was Harold Ickes, whose Petroleum administration is headed by a Standard Oil of California executive.

The fight is not over. Look for fireworks in public hearings before the committee next month.

SUBSIDY ISSUE POSTPONED

The 8-0 vote by which the Bankhead anti-subsidy bill was defeated in the senate banking and currency committee came as a surprise to insiders.

When they first took it up behind closed doors, most members of the committee figured that the bill would be reported out favorably and that Roosevelt would suffer a resounding defeat on subsidies. As it turned out, the deciding vote for subsidies was cast by Republican Senator Joseph Ball of Minnesota, whom Bankhead supporters considered in their anti-subsidy camp.

Terrific pressure had been exerted on Ball by some of the big dairy interests in his state. However, the young Minnesotan is a fearless statesman who believes in putting the interests of the nation and of the majority of the people over special or state interests. He not only voted against the inflationary Bankhead bill, but also against the Taft compromise which was backed by a lopsided vote.

BLACK SOMBRETO

by CLIFFORD KNIGHT

Elsa Chatfield is disheartened by her Aunt Kitty, who died of an overdose of morphine. Hunt Rogers and Barry Madison go to Mazatlan, Mexico, to solve what they believe to be Aunt Kitty's murder. On arriving, they find Elsa's party has preceded them by plane. While in Mazatlan James Chesebro is murdered, and while on fishing Eliza's father, Sam, meets death from the event of a mania when his chair breaks and he topples into the sea. In re-enacting the scene of the Chesebro murder one Pedro Mendeza Dwight Nichols as "the man," but Dwight is not held. They return to the launch and strike something ominous alongside the wharf and decide to investigate.

CHAPTER XVI

"Easy! Steady! Steady!" Rogers was leaning far out over the side, peering at the water. "Hold it!" The engine stopped and he floated quietly. Rogers continued to peer into the murky water. Something was there. My throat was dry; I felt an uncomfortable sensation at the pit of my stomach. Nevertheless I managed to say, matter-of-factly, I thought, "What is it, Hunt—a log?"

"No," he said. It seemed hours before he spoke again and then he said what I was expecting, yet dreaded to hear him say. "It's Rumble."

I awakened with a start the next morning to find that Rogers was gone. Down was breaking over the mountains. I dressed and went out on deck to discover that Rogers had gone ashore.

Rogers was on the wharf when I was landed there. He appeared fresh and vigorous as if he had had a long, unbroken night's sleep. To my inquiry he remarked, "There were several things I thought of, Barry, and it was best to get an early start."

Down below us in the water, a dark head burst upward to the surface and brown arms thrashed about. Rogers, leaning over the wharf's edge, shouted in Spanish, "Anything?"

"No, sir. I dive in a moment." A few seconds later the head disappeared, a pair of feet kicked vigorously and the surface smoothed out.

"What's it all about?" I demanded. "What's he diving for?"

"I've hired him to do the job, Barry. Rumble, I imagine, either fell or was thrown off the wharf. He had checked out of the hotel. Where in his luggage? Why wasn't his bag found on the wharf? And what does it mean if we should find it in the water?"

The diver burst to the surface below, this time farther along the wharf, gasping for breath.

"Anything?" shouted Rogers. "No, sir. But I think I see something. I should take the end of the rope this time."

Rogers picked up a coil of rope lying at his side, carried it to a point directly above the man, and dropped an end over. The diver seized it and disappeared, while we waited with heightened interest. Finally the rope was tugged vigorously from under the water, and Rogers began to pull up. The diver came thrashing to the surface.

"It is what you are seeking, sir. I think," he called up. "Pull."

Rogers drew up the weighted line rapidly, and a moment later there came to the surface a cooked, battered traveling bag, from which gushed tiny streams. He lifted it onto the wharf where it rested dabbly oozing salt water.

"And now, sir," shouted the diver, "I go down again for the other thing."

"What other thing?" I asked. "This probably was all the luggage Rumble had."

"There was just this bag, according to the hotel porter."

"Then what are you looking for now?"

"The weapon—if Rumble was murdered. Just to be forehanded, Barry. I don't know what the investigation will reveal, but if it is murder, why not look for the weapon hereabouts? Rumble went off the wharf probably at this point."

"There it is, sir," shouted the diver. "The only thing I find."

The object fell at our feet, a blackened, stained knife with a heavy blade, such a knife as a fisherman would use for cutting bait. Rogers picked it up, turning it about in the sunlight, handling it gingerly.

Rogers paid off the diver, and I picked up the still dripping bag and we set off for police headquarters.

Lombardo was in his office when we arrived. He greeted us with an engaging smile, his eyes sparkling, his stiff, black little mustache like something carved of ebony.

"Senor Rumble," he said, "probably did not drown, as was suggested."

"Not? What then?"

"There is a stab wound, gentlemen, under the left shoulder blade, sufficient in my opinion, to have caused death."

Rogers drew from his pocket the dark, stained knife which the diver had tossed upon the wharf. It was dry by now, and it lay sinister and eyeballing on the desk where Rogers placed it.

"Such a knife as this, Doctor?" he asked.

Lombardo and Cruz stared at it for some moments, then Cruz said, "Yes, such a knife as that made the wound."

"Where did you find it, senor?" Lombardo inquired, picking it up.

Rogers explained how it had come into his hands. An exchange of glances went around the circle.

"Do you know whose knife it is, senor?"

"No, sir." Lombardo laid the knife aside when both Dwight and I likewise had disclaimed any knowledge of its ownership. He reached for the package Doctor Cruz had placed on the desk and with thick brown fingers snapped the cord.

A few seconds later the head disappeared.

"These are articles removed from the pockets of the dead man's clothing," observed Doctor Cruz.

"The man was not robbed, do you think?"

"I believe not," Rogers answered. "The last time any of us saw him alive was at the hotel bar. He opened the billfold at that time, and while I paid no particular attention, senor, I should judge that he had approximately the same amount of money in it as you found there just now."

"So we do not look for a thief as the murderer of Senor Rumble," Lombardo commented. He turned back to the little heap of Rumble's earthly possessions spread before him. There was a watch which had stopped at the hour 9:03.

Lombardo picked up the watch, noting the position of the hands.

"This, then, gentlemen," he remarked, "indicated the time Senor Rumble died. But not whether morning or evening. Your American watches—" He shrugged his shoulders.

"It's impossible—the hour of nine, nine, night before last," said Rogers quickly. "The time was close upon ten o'clock when we last saw him alive at the hotel. He checked out, I understand, half an hour or so later and disappeared."

"Ah, so?" said Lombardo, discarding the watch. "Where was he bound? He must have been going somewhere, because the diver finds the bag in the water under the wharf. I assume that first Senor Rumble is stabbed and thrown from the wharf, and next the murderer throws over the bag to make his disappearance complete."

"I believe you're correct, Senor Lombardo," said Rogers. "The only place he could have been going was to Senor Nichols' yacht. Senor Nichols had invited him to come aboard with his luggage—night before last, to accompany the party on its fishing expedition."

"I understand, senor. And while waiting on the wharf to be conveyed to the yacht, he was set upon and killed."

"Exactly."

"Now, then," Lombardo continued, developing his questions logically, "You were all on shore that night, were you not?"

"With the exception," said Dwight, "of my wife and Senora Chatfield, who remained on board."

the wharf about ten-thirty o'clock. The launch was waiting, and we went out to the Orizaba immediately.

"And then?" Lombardo looked at Dwight.

"Sam Chatfield's daughter Eliza, and I went down to the wharf together," Dwight replied.

"What was that time, senor?"

"We left the hotel at eleven-forty-five," Dwight answered, screwing up his eyes in an effort to recall the exact hour.

"Are these all who were going aboard? Was Senor Barton one of you?"

"Oh, yes—Reed Barton," Dwight said. "Reed was waiting with his bag on the wharf when we arrived."

"He went ahead of you, then?"

"Yes. He'd gone around to his hotel to get his things together for the fishing cruise, and it was arranged that he meet us at the wharf."

"Ah, so?" said Lombardo, his sensitive eyebrows lifting slightly. "Perhaps Senor Reed Barton should explain."

"I don't know what time it was," Reed Barton replied to Lombardo's question. He had come to headquarters in response to a telephoned request which found him at his hotel.

"Miss Chatfield said that she was beginning to tire, and didn't I think I'd better go get my things and meet them down at the wharf. We were dancing, you know, at the Belmar. She would go down with her father, and it wasn't necessary for me to go back to the Belmar for her."

"What time do you think it was?" pressed Lombardo.

"What's time, Senor Lombardo, when there are no appointments to keep?"

"Was there anyone else, senor, on the wharf when you were?" asked Lombardo.

"Not a soul, until the rest of the party came down."

"Was the launch waiting?"

"No, sir; it arrived from the yacht a few minutes before my friends reached the wharf."

Lombardo lifted his eyebrows, pursed his thick lips and seemed to stare beyond the walls of his office. Reed Barton's gaze, which had been fixed during the questioning upon the chief, dropped to the varied assortment of objects on the desk. I saw it come to rest upon the ugly weapon that presumably had slain Rumble.

"What are you doing with my fishing knife, senor?" he asked, leaning forward to pick it up.

"Ah, so? It is your knife?" asked Lombardo craftily.

"Yes." He turned it about in his fingers, searching for marks of identification. "Yes, it's mine. How do you happen to have it?" He looked at Lombardo, and, before the latter had time to answer, the realization broke over him. "Oh, I see! So that's all my little killed Rumble!"

"Yes, senor," said Lombardo grimly. "You admit it's yours. It seems the only thing I can do now, senor, is to lock you up again."

"But I didn't kill him," protested Reed Barton, the color going from his face. "I swear I didn't. I don't understand about the knife, though, even if it is mine."

Rogers suddenly got to his feet, dominating the rest of us who still sat about the desk.

"Senor Lombardo," he said sharply, "if I give you my word that Reed Barton will submit to arrest at any time you desire within the next day or two, will you let him go free now?"

"It is an unusual request, senor," began Lombardo.

"There are several things that yet need investigation. I promise you the name of the murderer—or the person of Reed Barton."

Lombardo shrugged his shoulders. He glanced at Doctor Cruz. There was the merest flicker in the hard eyes of the medico legista behind the screen of cigarette smoke. Lombardo stood up.

"Okay," he said. "It was a long day crowded with activity. The sequence of tragic events over the past few days served to drive us for mutual comfort into a compact group. First Chesebro, then Sam Chatfield, and now George Rumble. The mere fact that Rumble, the aristocrat as well as social misfit among us, had been one in our sequence of tragedy, lifted him with all his faults to a permanent place in our hearts. He had become one of the tragic elect."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS BUSY WITH HIS MINISTRY OF LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:32-43. GOLDEN TEXT—I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh, when no man can work—John 9:4.

Jesus said that He "must work the works of him that sent him" (John 9:4). And so we find Him going straightway about His Father's business. It is a good example He has set for us.

What He did and how He did it will give us many lessons which we may apply to our service. We cannot do exactly what He did, but in His power we may do mighty works. We find our Lord doing four important things—

I. Healing (vv. 32-34). We will do well to include verses 29-31 in our thinking, for there we find our Lord tenderly sharing the sorrow of the home of a friend. One can picture the anxious hush that hovered over the home as distressed relatives and friends sought to alleviate the suffering of the one with a fever. They knew the possibility of a serious outcome of the illness. Many of us have gone through that dark valley. All at once there was new hope, and soon there was joy. Jesus had come and had brought healing. Many of us have also had that blessed experience.

Christianity is not a selfish faith, if it follows its Lord. We see in verses 32 to 34 that all the city came to His door with the diseased and demon-possessed, and He healed them all.

The account of the kindly and intelligent care of the sick is written large on the pages of the history of the Christian church. We do not have His divine touch of immediate healing, but we may have His compassion which served the multitude with tenderness and kindness.

II. Praying (vv. 35-37). The Son of God sought out a place and a time for prayer communion with His Father. How often we who profess to follow Him fail to pray at all. Certainly we need the grace and power that prayer can bring far more than Jesus did. But, we say, we are so busy. So was He. We are tired. So was He. People will not let us alone. They also followed Him. We make excuses, but we have no real reasons for our unfortunate delinquency.

All men were seeking Him (v. 37), but still He took the needed time to pray. It has been said that "if you are too busy to pray, you are busier than God ever intended you to be."

When His disciples wanted Him, they had to look for Him in the place of prayer. Christian workers and pastors, do people find us there?

III. Preaching (vv. 38, 39). Jesus said, "Let us go . . . that I may preach . . . for therefore came I forth." It bears repetition that while Jesus did many miracles (and not for a moment would we detract from their worth and glory), yet He repeatedly, by word and act, emphasized the importance of preaching.

Foolish though it may seem to the natural man (1 Cor. 1:10-23), preaching the gospel in the power of the Holy Spirit is now, as it has been through the centuries, God's chosen means of accomplishing His purpose. What a pity that churches and pastors are forsaking it for book reviews, dramas, capital hours, forums, and what not!

God gave us a revival of great, humble, and fearless preaching of the Word!

IV. Cleansing (vv. 40-45). There is a case in which the cleansing of the leper was another act of healing, but leprosy is such a striking type of sin that the incident calls for special consideration.

Leprosy is like sin in that it is a destructive malady that pursues its insidious way without revealing its true nature until it is far advanced. It renders a man unclean, loathsome to himself and dangerous to others. At least such it was in the days of our Lord.

Was there then no hope for the leper? Yes; Jesus had come. The smitten man cried out, "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." And Jesus said, "I will . . . and he was cleansed."

So may the sinner be cleansed, for "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Rom. 10:13). He will not turn the vilest of men away, for He came "to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10).

There is another important lesson here. The man who was cleansed disobeyed the instructions of Jesus (v. 44), with the result that the Lord's ministry in that place was greatly limited.

We should obey the commands of God without question, and without any deviation from them. Disobedience, even though it be by reason of great joy and enthusiasm, results in confusion. Our Lord knows exactly what should be done in a particular place at a certain time. When He guides, we should conform—for our own good and His glory.

PEAKING OF SPORTS

By Bob McShane

SONJA HENIE, whose ice shows have thrilled millions, still is breaking records. It is likely that she will set an all-time mark for any performance by playing to 340,000 customers in the 20-day run at the Chicago Stadium.

And the petite skater has another record—one of which she is equally proud. To date she has sent four leading men to the armed forces. Stewart Raeburn, her first leading waltz performer, is a major in the Canadian army. Harrison Thompson is overseas with the signal corps, Gene Turner is in the air corps and Gerry Steffen is with the ski troopers. The latter performer is the son of the old lightweight champion, Willie Ritchie. It should be reported, too, that Dan Topping, her husband, is in active service.

The 1933-34 Henie ice extravaganza has 60 girls and 30 boys. A year ago there were 38 men in the show, but 34 of that original group are now in the armed forces. Most of the boys in the show are less than 17 years, and in some instances it is necessary for the girls to dress and serve in boys' roles.

SONJA HENIE

Probably the most widely known woman athlete in history, Sonja's career has been remarkably successful. Through her ice shows millions of people have seen her in person. Millions more—in many parts of the world—have seen her in pictures.

The records show she had her share of disappointments before victory came her way. At the tender age of 10, Sonja competed in her first world championship, finishing last although she already was Norway's best. In 1924 she competed in her first Olympic championship, finishing eighth.

In the 1926 world's championship at Stockholm she was runner-up to Helmar Szabo, figure skater from Vienna. The following year Sonja replaced Szabo as champion after the latter had held the title four consecutive years. She was 13 when she won her first world's title and only 16 when she won her first Olympic crown at Oslo in 1928.

Sonja declares that the closest competition she ever had was during the 1930 Olympics at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, when she faced 23 of the world's ranking skaters from 12 countries. She finished the school figure competition with a narrow three-point margin over Cecilia Colledge, an exceptionally talented English star. A brilliant performance in the free skating enabled Sonja to beat Miss Colledge by the scant margin of 424.5 points to 410.1.

Royal Welcome

A week later she competed in the tenth world's championship in Paris, where 10,000 spectators jammed the indoor sports palace to see the twinkling Norwegian star skate to an easy victory over her 15 rivals.

King Haakon VII of Norway witnessed her 1928 victory and became one of her most ardent "fans." It was through him that she was made Knight of the Order of St. Olaf—one of the few women ever to be honored in such manner.

Spills are an inevitable part of ice skating—and Sonja has had her share of them. Her most embarrassing tumbles were taken during a performance before King George and Queen Mary of England. Badly flustered, she fell three times. It is an episode she would just as soon forget.

SPORTS SHORTS

Old Luckman has worn the same football suit from the time he joined the Chicago Bears in 1930.

Two yearlings that brought the top prices in history—Now Broom at $75,000 and Hustle On at $70,000—were complete failures as race horses.

Bill Boughman, Iowa center, played 478 out of a possible 480 minutes this year.

Boyer, a race horse purchased for $100, has earned $95,000 to date for his owner, Tom Heard.

HOUSEHOLD TINTS

Tests show that cookies baked on glistening new tins required an oven 25 degrees hotter than those baked on darkened tins.

Store glass jars of foods in dark places to preserve the color.

Put the old dust mop in the wash to thoroughly remove the oil, then slip the top back on the handle. It is now ready to use in cleaning the walls and ceilings.

To keep irons from sticking when ironing starched pieces, keep a piece of green cedar on the board to rub the iron over before ironing.

Cream a little butter or margarine with prepared mustard. Brush on a slice of cold cooked ham and let heat quickly in the oven. Serve with pan-fried sweet potatoes and cauliflower.

Keep your electric cord away from heat and water. Do not run them under rugs or any place where they will get unnecessary wear or where people can trip over them.

GRANDMA AND COLDS' COUGHS Also rubbed on medicated mutton suet—then covered with a warm flannel. Today, mother uses Penetro, modern medication in a base containing old-fashioned mutton suet. Double action inside, vapors soothe stuffy nose—outside, warms like comforting plaster. For colds' muscle aches, demand Penetro.

Doughnuts As Invitations

Doughnuts serve as wedding invitations in some parts of Macedonia. Families of the bride and bridegroom have young boys distribute doughnuts to the townspeople.

John Audubon

Early in the 19th century a storekeeper and gristmill operator at Henderson, Kentucky, took to studying birds as an antidote for ennui and added much to man's knowledge of ornithology. His name is a byword to this day. It is John James Audubon.

Only the knowledge of despotism, destruction, killing, maiming brings one to the surface of Nautilus. It has no place for gentle souls; only Himmlers, Schleichers, von Papens, Heydrichs.
