STATE OF NEW MEXICO
(GREAT SEAL)
Office of
THE SECRETARY OF STATE
CERTIFICATE

I, Cecilia Tafuya Cleveland, Secretary of the State of New Mexico, do hereby certify that the attached mimeographed copy of the Proclamation entitled:

"PUBLIC PROCLAMATION CALLING A PRIMARY ELECTION TO BE HELD IN THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO ON THE 6TH DAY OF JUNE, A. D. 1944."

is a true and correct copy of the original proclamation filed by Governor John J. Dempsey in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of New Mexico on the 3rd day of April, 1944.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of New Mexico, at the City of Santa Fe, the Capitol on the 3rd day of April, A. D., Nineteen Hundred and Forty-Four.

CECILIA TAFUYA CLEVELAND,
(Seal) Secretary of State.
PUBLIC PROCLAMATION CALLING A PRIMARY ELECTION TO BE HELD IN THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO ON THE 6TH DAY OF JUNE, A. D. 1944.

WHEREAS, the Primary Election Code of the State of New Mexico, in Section 2 of Chapter 86, Laws of 1943, provides, in part, as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the Governor of the State of New Mexico by public proclamation issued by him and filed with the Secretary of State of the State of New Mexico, on the first Monday in April of each even numbered year, to call a primary election to be held in each county and precinct in the State of New Mexico on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June of such even numbered year, and he shall state in said proclamation the names of the political parties to which the primary shall apply, together with the offices for which each such political party shall nominate candidates, and such proclamation shall also contain the date on or before which the declarations and nominating petitions of candidates for such nominations shall be filed, and the offices wherein such declarations and petitions shall be filed, in order to entitle the candidate for such nomination to have his name printed upon the official ballot of his party at such primary."

WHEREAS, said Primary Election Code provides that said Act shall apply to all political parties for any of whose candidates there was cast at the last preceding general election as many as fifteen per centum (15%) of the total number of votes cast for the candidate for Governor by all parties at such election; and,

WHEREAS, at the last general election, the Democratic and Republican parties were the only political parties for any of whose candidates there was cast as many as fifteen per centum (15%) of the total number of votes cast for the candidate for Governor by all parties at such election; and,

WHEREAS, said Primary Election Code provides that the said Act shall apply to the offices of United States Senator, Representative in Congress, Electors, and to all elective state, district, legislative, county, and precinct officers in the state who are elected at the general election; and,

WHEREAS, said Primary Election Code provides that candidates desiring to participate in the primary for any office must file their declarations of candidacy during the period commencing at 9:00 A. M. on the first Tuesday of April of each even numbered year, and ending at 5:00 P. M. on the third day before the date of said primary; and,

WHEREAS, said Primary Election Code provides that the declaration of candidacy, together with supporting nominating petitions, shall, in the case of precinct and county offices and legislative offices, be filed by one county, be filed with the county clerk of the county wherein the declarant resides; and, in the case of offices filed by the state at large, and districts comprising more than one county, such declarations and petitions shall be filed with the Secretary of State.

NOW THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority and duty in me vested by law, I, John J. Dempsey, Governor of the State of New Mexico, do hereby publicly proclaim as follows:

1. That a primary election be, and the same is hereby called to be held throughout the State of New Mexico, and in each county and precinct thereof on the 6th day of June, A. D., 1944.

2. That the said primary election shall be applicable to the following political parties, to-wit: The Republican Party and the Democratic Party.

3. That said primary election shall be for the purpose of permitting the said Republican and Democratic parties to nominate candidates for the following elective offices:

- STATE WIDE OFFICES

To the Public

For several weeks, the Lincoln County News hasn't had a printer only at times—and then for only two or three days a week.

People would bring ads and news items to the News office, only to find it locked, and then would trudge over to the post-office to inquire where the foreman was.

Mrs. Catherine Hemphill who arrived home from El Paso, Texas Tuesday night will have charge of the front office.

For the GOP Campaign

Former New Jersey Governor Edison is not only an ex-Secretary of the Navy but also a popular song writer. His latest hot number, for which he has provided both words and music, is entitled "Wicky Wacky Woo."

Though we don't know what this title means, it sounds like a preview of the coming GOP campaign. So far, anyway, GOP wooing of voters has been wacky in the extreme.

Edison always was shrewdly subtle. Maybe he, a Democrat, plans to donate this number to the GOP—at the proper moment. Parody possibilities are substantial. For example:

- Wicky Wacky Woo,
- Bricker Wacky Too,
- Martin Isn't Startin',
- Will Dewey Doodle Doo?

We admit this makes no more sense than Mairzy Doats. Neither so far, does the GOP campaign. Philadelphia Record.

Think It Over

What new program has the Republican Party to offer now that it did not have between 1920 and 1932—and you remember what happened then?

Born April 13, 1944 to Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Theodore Hobbie of El Paso, a 7 pound son. His name is Teddy Lynn. Needless to say the parents and grand parents are extremely pleased with the new arrival.

Let We Forget

Two soldiers lay beneath the sod In far away Bataan; Their tangled bodies could not speak

But still their souls began.

You know, Joe I sometimes wonder

If you and I did right, In leaving all we left behind, To get into this fight.

I heard today, now get this straight,

It came by radio, A hundred thousand workers struck

And just to get more dough.

We didn't ask for more money When the Captain said, "Now go And get them darned Jap snipers";

We didn't did we Joe?

I'm awfully tired, I want to rest, But I can't rest now, Joe, When folks at home forget the war

And only think of dough.

American Red Cross News item

COMMUNICATIONS MAIL TO THE FAR EAST EXPEDITED By special arrangement, letters and cards for prisoners of war and civilian internees in Japanese controlled territory are being flown from the United States to Teheran, Iran. From Teheran this mail goes to Russia and then is expected to move by the Trans Siberian Railroad to a point where it can be handed over to the Japanese authorities for censorship and shipment to the camp.

The fact for a part of this route this mail is carried by air does NOT mean that air mail postage must be paid.

It is hoped that the use of this new route will decrease by two or three months the time which has been required for mail mail to reach Japan and that it will increase the likelihood that prisoners will receive the letters sent them.

Annie Stewart Deceased

Miss Annie Stewart of Vaughn, New Mexico passed away March 9, 1944, at the home of her sister in Hagerman.

Miss Stewart was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart, former residents of Lincoln county and was born in this county.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ellen S. Velasco of El Paso, Texas and Mrs. Mollie S. Montano of Hagerman; two brothers who live in Lincoln survive Messrs. Robert Stewart Jr. of Hondo, and Willie Stewart of Corona.

Mrs. Velasco of El Paso was too ill at the time of her sister's death to attend the funeral.

Natives Flee Jap Brutality

People of Netherlands Isles Driven to Jungles to Escape Butchers.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.—Wanton brutality by the Japanese, terror and hunger, have driven whole populations of some of the Netherlands Indies islands into the jungle.

The report was issued by the Netherlands government information service in Australia on the second anniversary of the fall of Java.

The Japanese customarily bayonet, shoot or beat Indonesians to death for the slightest resistance to their attempts to force the men into labor camps or semi-military organizations.

Black markets exist in everything except cotton, which is almost nonexistent, and the island people and even the Japanese soldiers have little to wear.

Allied Prisoners Suffer. Allied war prisoners on the islands are robbed of all personal possessions by Japanese soldiers and their treatment violates all international rules.

Forced labor has been instituted for the whole of the area. Especially in the outlying districts, the men capable of work are driven off like slaves to work in forests and swamps.

The instructions given by a Japanese commander to village chiefs to send immediately a certain group of schooled villagers, close with these words:

"Those who do not come immediately will be fetched by the Japanese soldiers and will be punished. This punishment will consist of (1) light punishment, viz., to be beaten half to death, (2) heavy punishment, viz., to be beheaded."

Even in Java there is a shortage of rice as the result of Japanese rapacity. Before the war, this island had a yearly surplus of 160,000 to 240,000 tons.

The small ration of eight ounces a day is made up of one-third rice, one-third soya beans and one-third washed and dried cassava root, a food with little protein or vitamins.

Word has been received from some islands that even the Japanese garison is short of food because no further supplies are being received.

The Japanese have tried also to win over the Mohammedan population by giving them preference at the expense of the Christians. In some areas, where the Mohammedans are in a minority and education was almost entirely in the hands of missions subsidized by the government, they appear to have had, at first, some measure of success.

British Blast Axis Ships After Foe Wastes Shots

LONDON.—A British submarine recently surprised an enemy convoy and sank one freighter and severely damaged a second, while the enemy escort vessels fired wildly in such panic they failed to score a single hit, the admiralty announced.

The submarine intercepted the convoy, consisting of two ammunition freighters and two escort vessels, and blew up one freighter with its first torpedo.

After the escort vessels ceased firing for lack of ammunition, the submarine returned and torpedoed the second freighter, leaving it badly damaged.

KUNMING, CHINA.—The Japanese in north China are commanding workmen to start digging a new course for the Yellow River, the local army newspaper Sao Tang Pao has reported.

Rotenone Destroys Many Insect Pests

New Insecticide Is Harmless to Man

Among the newer insecticides are those containing rotenone. This valuable product of the roots of species of Derris and Lonchocarpus (commonly called cube or timbo) was imported from the Southwest Pacific and South America, respectively, before the war.

Rotenone is an organic compound toxic to many insects and poisonous to fish, but is not considered harmful to man in dilutions sufficient to kill insects. This makes possible the use of the ground derris or cube root on leafy vegetables.

The most important uses of rotenone root powder are on vegetables, fruits and flowers to control the Mexican bean beetle, cabbage caterpillars, cucumber beetles, the pea aphid, the pea weevil, the apparagus beetle, flea beetles, the cherry fruit-fly, the currant worm, rose slug, the Japanese beetle, spittle bugs on strawberries, and the iris thrips.

The department of agriculture reports that properly packaged and stored ground roots containing rotenone do not deteriorate appreciably for several years.

Imports of rotenone-bearing roots into the United States had reached a total of eight million pounds in 1941, showing a rapid increase over the preceding five-year period.

Other pointers on buying are to purchase only from hatcheries that follow an effective pullorum control program to reduce chick losses; and to buy only from dealers whose chicks do not produce birds with heavy losses from big livers, fowl paralysis, or blindness.

Better Grade Chicks Sell Quickly, Say Experts

Poultrymen who make up their minds early to buy good chicks are the ones who get the birds with the ability to lay eggs, says Prof. L. E. Weaver of the New York State college of agriculture.

While chick buying is somewhat a gamble, the grower who buys from a hatchery that has given him good birds before, has a good chance to get good stock.

Other pointers on buying are to purchase only from hatcheries that follow an effective pullorum control program to reduce chick losses; and to buy only from dealers whose chicks do not produce birds with heavy losses from big livers, fowl paralysis, or blindness.

Rabbiteye Blueberries Rapidly Gaining Favor

Food Processing & Cold Storage Locker Plant

Our municipal power plant is now completing arrangements for the addition of a food processing and cold storage locker plant which will be installed in connection with existing power plant equipment. The specifications will also include about a 2-ton ice maker.

The plant will consist of 250 lockers, 60 percent of which will be reserved for families who are ranchers or farmers or, are otherwise producers of foodstuffs. It is necessary before priorities can be obtained from the WPB to purchase equipment, that 150 lockers be rented in advance. The requirement is merely proof that the plant will be used. Such plants are being encouraged by our government in communities that can qualify, for they are a necessity in our drive for food conservation.

See Mr. R. B. Moore, the enterprising plant manager, for any details you do not understand. He will be glad to explain and attend to the rental of lockers. Mr. Lovelace also will be glad to explain to interested parties.

Save Tin Cans

A plea to housewives to continue preparation and salvage of tin cans in areas where tin can campaigns are authorized by the War Production Board was made today by the regional WPB conservation manager.

Even the tin can collection in some areas isn't exactly what it should be, the urgent war need for the super-critical tin contained in cans has not diminished in the slightest.

The need for tin is greater than ever. Our job now is to perfect collection methods and to salvage every can possible.

Housewives are urged to continue to observe these simple rules: Open both ends of the can Wash thoroughly. Remove paper labels. Flatten the can merely by stepping on it. Deposit in a separate box or container for collection.

Save Deer Skins For War

The State Game Department today again called attention of all big game hunters to the fact that deer and elk hides are urgently needed for military use. General Conservation Order M-310 of the War Production Board froze all deer skin leather for military purposes.

Hunters are urged to channel their deer skins into the trade so that they may be processed and used for the armed forces. State Game Warden Elliott Barker said, "In New Mexico, dry skins of deer and elk may be sold. Practically all hide buyers will accept your deer skin, and it will then be made available for war material. Turn it in to your local dealer."

Communications

Mail to the Far East Expedited. By special arrangement, letters and cards for prisoners of war and civilian internees in Japanese controlled territory are being flown from the United States to Teheran, Iran. From Teheran this mail goes to Russia and then is expected to move by the Trans-Siberian Railroad to a point where it can be handed over to the Japanese authorities for censorship and shipment to the camp.

The fact that for a part of this mail is carried by air does NOT mean that air mail postage must be paid.

It is hoped that the use of this new route will decrease by two or three months the time which has been required for mail to reach Japan and that it will increase the likelihood that prisoners will receive the letters sent them.

Special Ration Coupons

Individuals who require special ration point allotments, such as persons in isolated areas who must buy large quantities of rationed foods at one time, are to be provided with a new type of red and blue food ration coupons, according to OPA. They will be used the same way as stamps, but will be good at any time. Ration coupons may be issued by Local Boards and OPA offices.

Ration Reminders

Shoe Stamp No. 18 will be good for an indefinite period of time. It has been announced over the Radio that 16 points will be required for a pound of butter. Oleomargarine will still require 4 points.

Ration Book No. 4

The red and blue stamps, which are for meat, dairy products and processed foods as at present, will be used in conjunction with red and blue tokens, the latter to be introduced early in 1944, and given by merchants in change. Green stamps will be used on an "interim basis," with blue processed food stamps, in much the same manner as the brown stamps in Book 3 are being used this month in the meat-fat program.

Twelve of the 96 unit stamps, printed in black, are designated for sugar. An equal number are marked for coffee, which is no longer rationed. These and 72 others, marked "spares," will serve for any additional foods rationed, the OPA declared, its purpose being to provide for any contingency, since the new books are expected to serve for two years, as compared to 4 or 5 months for previous books. The cost of printing is about the same, around $1,500,000, it was stated.

NOTICE!

The State of New Mexico is now under the 8th Service Command, Dallas, Texas, and the following Air Raid warning signals are now in force and will be used exclusively here:

- Blue Signal: City Siren. One long for two minutes. Warning for public to be on alert.
 - Red Signal: Short warbling blasts on siren for two minutes. This is a Blackout Signal.
 - White Signal: All clear. Street lights will be turned on.

Let's Face Facts

Policy Being Developed For Bringing Air Service To Many Small Towns By BARROW LYONS

Policies that will determine which of America's 6,331 towns with populations between 1,000 and 5,000 will receive some type of airplane service after the war are now in the making.

Barrow Lyons It would be a good idea to toll your congressman to keep his eye on this development, which so intimately concerns your town and your business.

Only lack of planes and pilots is holding back a tremendous expansion of air traffic, both commercial and private, which will reach every corner of the country when facilities and personnel become available.

By the end of last August, 233 such applications had been filed with CAB. By January 15, the number had increased to 435, and by the end of February there were 577 proposals before the board for new and additional air services.

Of the 577 there were 463 which related to domestic services involving about 500,000 route miles, compared with 45,000 route miles now authorized.

It is clear that the applications before CAB will open a new chapter in air transportation, one that is full of knotty technical and policy problems.

Various Carriers Interested

For instance, some of the existing airlines feel that with their experience and equipment they should be permitted to extend services to cover most of the now unserved towns.

Already CAB Examiners William J. Madden and Albert E. Beitel have made an investigation of the need for local feeder and pick-up air services.

If congress is satisfied with the policies and procedure established by the CAB, no further legislation, except to implement the plan of the CAB with funds, will be required.

It is virtually certain, however, that as soon as the war ends "strawberry trains" of the air will be carrying fresh fruits and vegetables long distances across our land.

One of the organizations giving most thought to this development is the Airline Committee for United States Air Policy, organized to protect the interests of existing air carriers.

The Airline Committee plans all-cargo services, in addition to hauling passengers. Aircraft manufacturers are designing refrigerator planes—flying freight cars to carry tremendous loads great distances.

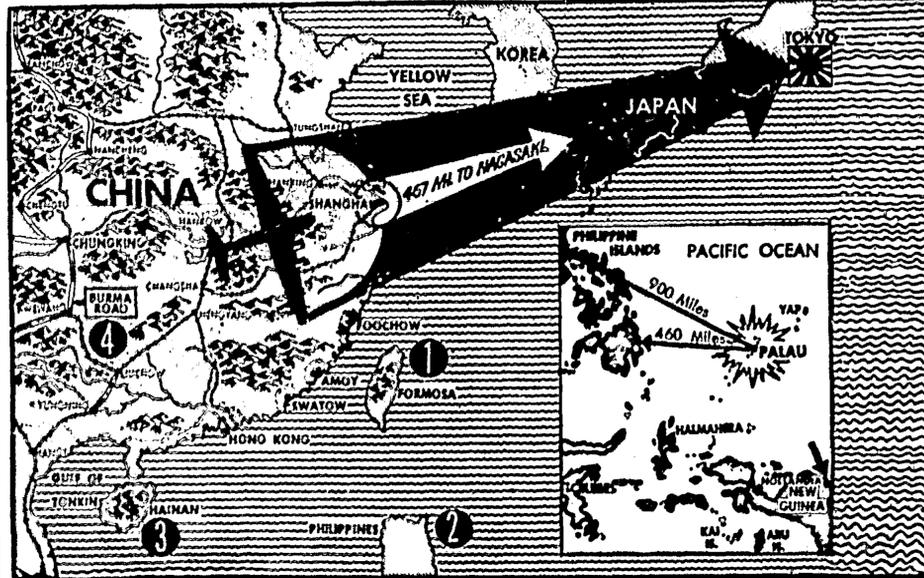

Pick-up mail services by which a plane without stopping collects mail at small stations along local passenger routes, is a type of air service receiving consideration.

Washington, D. C. JOB TO DO IN LONDON

Those close to Secretary of State Hull say he is not happy over the mission to London undertaken by energetic young Undersecretary Ed Stettinius.

However, Stettinius is on the way to turning the mission into something really important. He is scheduled to discuss five important subjects with the British. They are:

- 1. Stabilization of the dollar and pound after the war. 2. A world bank. 3. Stabilization of commodities. 4. Oil and the Near East. 5. The future boundaries of Germany.

This imposing agenda has irked Secretary Hull. Apparently, it was pretty well arranged while he was in Florida. Also, Hull was always jealous of the trips Sumner Welles took to Rio, Rome, London and Berlin.

MORE HORSE LEATHER

Representative Calvin Johnson of Illinois has been badgering the war department and the War Production board to get more harness for farm horses.

In campaigning for more harness, Representative Johnson suddenly bumped into the fact that the army was only just now releasing from its Jeffersonville, Ind., quartermaster depot a total of 30,000 sets of harness.

FREE RADIO TIME

Broadcasters are wondering how many other congressmen will follow the example recently set by Maryland's Senator Millard Tydings.

OIL SUBSIDY

The OPA has now recommended a system of oil subsidies to Economic Stabilizer Vincon ranging from 25 cents to 75 cents a barrel for all low-producing wells.

The plan was secretly worked out by some of the independents but, when the big companies heard about it, they raised such a howl that the little fellows backed out.

However, it looks as if the plan would go through. Pennsylvania wells, which are the deepest, will get the highest subsidy.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The United States is cutting off its nose to spite its face in regard to De Gaulle and the Free French. We are still freezing French funds in order to hamstring De Gaulle.

In Recife, thousands of cheering Brazilians welcomed Mrs. Roosevelt by singing "God Bless America" in Portuguese.

A conspiracy is on to curchre another sizable hunk of the manpower problem out from under Paul McNutt, Undersecretary of War.

Reason for sparse publicity on the First Lady's Latin-American tour was the war department's refusal to let the newswomen who usually cover Mrs. Roosevelt go along.

In Spite of Precautions Habit Will Assert Itself

The bus-conductor had been told off several times by his good wife for the noise he made when coming home after late duty.

"I wish you would try to be more careful when you come home, Jim," she told him. "You wake the baby every time you come in. You're so noisy!"

Jim promised to do his best. After the next spell of late duty he opened the front door without a single creak, and reached the top landing safely.

There and then his old habit overcame him. In a stentorian voice he bellowed: "Have your fares ready, please!"

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes to Puerto Rico on an assignment for her father's paper. Also on the island are Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, now a U. S. Army intelligence officer; Miguel Valera, a Puerto Rican educated in the United States whose orders to report to an army camp were abruptly cancelled; Richard Tausig, an engineer whose identity as a German agent is suspected but not yet proved; and Russell Porter, a young American engineer, and his wife, Sue. When she finds him trailing Mr. Tausig to a rendezvous, Miguel Valera tells Anne he is a U. S. agent, then swears her to secrecy.

CHAPTER XII

Pete Wilcox came out of the Bachelor Officers' Quarters on the road to Morro, above San Juan's most astonishing slum ironically known as La Perla, and walked along toward Headquarters. The fact that by this time everybody on the Post knew he'd had the Provost Marshal and the Insular Police out looking for Anne Heywood when she was over at the Escambron dancing with Miguel Valera didn't particularly bother him. It was damned lucky Valera had run into her. There were too many stories going around, and while most of them weren't true, tropical streets at night were no place for girls.

He stopped at the bend in the wall to let a train of Army trucks go through the old military road along the rim of the hill above the ocean. A woman on the other side was watching him, and without warning of any kind made a dash across between a couple of olive-drab motors. Pete held his breath. The driver swore, jammed on his brakes, and went ahead again.

"Senior Wilcox!"

Pete looked at her in surprise. She wasn't, as far as he knew, either a friend or an agent.

"You know Miss Heywood—American girl? Blonde?"

Pete nodded.

The girl's eyes darkened. He couldn't tell whether she was pleading or angry or both.

"Take her away," she said passionately. "I don't know very good English. She must go back to America. Understand?"

Pete scratched the back of his head. "Yeah. I understand all right. Why?"

The girl dropped her hands in despair.

"I don't know how to say," she cried. "She have to go. Will get hurt."

She broke into a torrential flow of Spanish. Pete stood listening blankly.

"You understand?"

All he had got was that Anne was going around with Miguel Valera, that it was dangerous, that she was warning him so he could make her go back to America.

She turned and hurried across the street, and disappeared round the corner without looking back. Pete stood watching her.

"That," he said aloud, "is a big help."

Pete hung up his own helmet and went to his desk. There was something about the melodramatic business of shooting a rival that was ludicrous, on the whole. Nevertheless the girl had been in dead earnest. It worried him. At the same time it put him on a spot. If he asked for any kind of protection for her after last night they wouldn't even wait till he got out to laugh. And he couldn't very well warn her. Or could he?

He glanced up as a soldier came out of Colonel Fletcher's office with a sheaf of papers. "The Colonel said you'd check these, sir."

"Thank you."

He glanced through them. On the fourth from the top he saw Miguel Valera's name in the second line of translation.

"Tonight at 8:10 o'clock I was in Padilla Street. Miguel Valera y Delgado got out of his car and went into Avenida Juan de Pinzon and waited there. I do not know why, but I saw an American lady come in the street alone. Miguel Valera y Delgado went down the street. I thought the American lady was lost, but when I spoke she was afraid and ran after Miguel Valera y Delgado and followed him in to the door of the stores of the sugar and coffee agents Albert Benoit. It was dark and they were there a long time and came out together. I report this not because I have personal antipathy to Miguel Valera y Delgado or because I wish to injure the good-name of the American lady, but because I have been instructed to tell what I know about Miguel Valera y Delgado by people who believe he is of the anti-American party."

Pete put the paper down. He could get sorer at Anne Heywood, he was thinking, than at anybody else in the world. At the moment, however, he wasn't exactly sore. It was something he couldn't define. She didn't know what she was letting herself in for, of course. Nobody but a Latin, maybe, would so instantly suspect the worst and say it, either directly or by implication. But she was in a Latin country, and it was time she was finding it out.

The phone rang as he was reaching for it. He took up the receiver.

"Captain Wilcox speaking," he said curtly.

"This is Miss Heywood speaking, captain—and wishing to apologize for last night."

Pete caught his breath. Everything inside him melted. It was what her voice always did to him.

"Won't you even speak to me, Pete? I'm horribly sorry," she was saying. "I just wanted to tell you so before I go out. I'm going to the Valera Sugar Central to see them grind the cane."

Anne had been sound asleep when the phone on the table rang noisily. She struggled through the entanglement of cheese-cloth, pulled the handpiece back under and said "Hello."

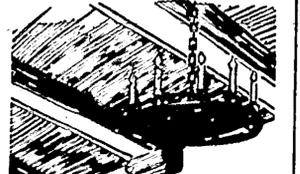

Her heart gave a little leap. It was Miguel.

"Did I wake you?"

"It's a good thing you did. I'm supposed to be going to your sugar mill this morning. Did you know?"

The darkness and the dream had gone. With the brilliant sunlight on the liquid cobalt world through the window she forgot the illusory terror of the night. It no longer had any meaning, as pain has none when it's gone. It was just something she'd dreamed because she'd eaten a lot of the lobster and clams and things all mixed up in saffron-colored oil and rice.

"I heard it last night when I got home," Miguel said. "That's why I called. Why not put it off until tomorrow so I can go along? My father and I have to go to Ponce on the south coast today. I'd like to be along to show you around."

"Tell him Mrs. Russell Porter is downstairs."

"That would be wonderful!" Anne said warmly.

"Good. Then I'll see you tonight. About eight?"

She put the phone back and sat with her feet crossed under her, whistling softly. About eight. That was twelve hours... which wasn't very long, really. She stretched her hands up and made little waves of thin convex ceiling of her cheese-cloth box. Just being alive was marvelous! And she didn't have to be disturbed about going out with Diego Gongoro and Mr. Tausig. It was stupid to worry about things. They always worked out, somehow.

She thought of Pete and glanced at the clock. It was too early to call him yet. She ordered breakfast and got up to take a shower while she waited for it.

At half-past eight the phone rang again.

"That's him now," she thought, going over to the table. But it wasn't. It was Graciela Gongoro. Her voice over the phone was high-pitched, so that it was difficult to understand her English, which was much less fluent than her father's or Don Alvaro's even. Finally Anne made it out. Don Alvaro and Miguel had found, before they left, that they wouldn't be able to get back, perhaps not for several days. Her father had asked her to call and tell Anne they'd decided to go ahead with the trip. They would call for her at eleven o'clock.

For an instant Anne hesitated. Something of the feeling of the dream slipped across her mind, as a frail wisp of mist sifts across a country road early in the morning. It was gone as quickly.

"All right," she said. "I'll be ready."

She put the phone down, picked it up again and asked for Headquarters at Fortress El Morro.

Two hours later she stopped at the desk to get her mail. It wasn't eleven yet, and being Spanish they'd probably be late anyway. She crossed the lobby and sat down to read her mother's letter.

"Darling,—Do you remember Sue Lattimer? I saw her mother at lunch at the Colony yesterday. She says Sue and her husband are down there where you are and that Sue adores it. She's so enthusiastic about the country and the people and her husband's work. Mrs. Lattimer—her name's something else now but I've forgotten it—hasn't ever really forgiven her for marrying. It was somebody Porter, wasn't it? And I gather she thinks Sue is just being perverse in being happy on thirty-five hundred dollars a year. I must say the little I saw of Sue when you were at school together I never thought the child had it in her..."

Anne's eyes fastened on her mother's vigorous scrawl were a little misty suddenly. Poor little Sue—hating it like poison, and too proud and too loyal to Russell to let her mother know it. Anne looked up, not quite sure she was seeing properly. Sue herself was crossing the lobby toward the desk.

"Is Mr. Tausig in? she asked brightly. "Tell him Mrs. Russell Porter is downstairs."

She turned and saw Anne. Her face flushed a little.

"Oh, hello Anne!"

She turned quickly to the telephone operator. "Never mind. Thanks." Her smile as she came over to Anne was too bright to be altogether convincing. "How are you, darling? What an adorable dress, and I love your shoes! I haven't had any really decent clothes since my trousseau wore out. What are you doing? Why don't you come out to the Club and play golf with us, and have lunch?"

"I'm going out to Valera Central to see how they make sugar," Anne said. "Mr. Tausig's going too."

Sue's transparent little girl's face fell. "Oh, really? When will you be back?"

"This afternoon come time, I suppose."

"Why don't you bring him over to our house to tea?"

Sue brightened instantly.

"Not me, angel," Anne replied. "Frankly, I don't like your friend Mr. T. And the less I see of him the better I like him."

"Oh, Anne—you're being perfectly foul!" The tears sprang to her eyes. "He thinks you're splendid... intelligent and beautiful. He said so the other night. And even if you don't like him, couldn't you be nice to him just for us? It's so horribly important. I don't think he's very attractive either, but—"

"Soch," Anne said.

Mr. Tausig was getting out of the elevator. He didn't see them until he got to the desk. Then he turned and came over beaming cordially.

"Good morning, Mrs. Porter." He held out his hand. "I've been trying to find a moment to pay a party call, to thank you for one of the pleasantest evenings I've had for a long time."

He hardly more than noticed Anne. She sat watching Sue being cornflower-eyed and breathlessly eager. She'd hoped Anne would play golf that morning, but it was wonderful, really, having such a marvelous chance to see a sugar mill.

"And if you're not too awfully late getting back, Mr. Tausig, why don't you bring Anne over for tea?"

It seemed to Anne to have the most convincing spontaneity.

"I'm afraid Miss Heywood is too popular to waste much of her time on me," Mr. Tausig replied urbanely. "But I shall certainly come with Miss Heywood, or without her, if I may."

"That would be lovely!" Sue cried.

Mr. Tausig turned to Anne. "And you, Miss Heywood—are you ready for an educational tour of the Island's chief industry?"

It was wonderful, Anne was thinking. Mr. Tausig was a perfect emulsion of paternal kindness and gentleman of all the world. He probably felt that way too, she thought... just as he could stop and pick up a cat and stroke it while he was doing business in a deserted store on an empty street... business that whatever it was was sufficiently nefarious to interest an undercover agent from the War Department in Washington. On second thought she'd tell Miguel about him and Sue. Sue was hell-bent for call it collaboration, she thought. Like a butterfly collaborating with a boa constrictor.

Mr. Tausig could be charming, however, when he put his mind to it. She was aware of that as the big shiny black limousine, with Graciela between them and Diego Gongoro in the folding seat in the middle of the car, sped, it seemed perilously fast, through the narrow curving road, canopied with flamboyant and Indian almonds, toward Central Valera. He was not only charming, he was amazingly well informed. He knew the names of all the trees—the silk-cotton tree, the lignum vitae, the violet tree, the candle-tree, the Tabebuia. He knew all the flowers too, and when they stopped at the market for a moment in Rio Piedras he knew the Jobo and the sour apple, the star apple and the custard apple. He knew the guinea grass in the fields, the different kind of palms and the water hyacinths in the river under a narrow bridge. He knew all about the economic struggle of the Island, the value of cane crops, coffee, pineapple, grapefruit and tobacco.

Graciela, restive under the flow of information that fascinated Anne, stared straight ahead of her, her hands folded in her lap.

Speaking Sports

by Bob McShane

DESPITE the fact that Warren Wright's Pensive and C. V. Whitney's Pukka Gin are getting the big play in the winter book, this is supposed to be one of the widest of wide-open Kentucky Derbies.

The fact that betters are sold on Pensive and Pukka Gin doesn't mean they are the two best horses in the possible field. But it does reflect a confidence that the two will start—an exceedingly important part of winter book betting.

Most Derbies are considered wide open at this stage. The situation isn't peculiar to 1944. There isn't a sure thing in horse racing.

Not long ago Alex Robb of the Thoroughbred Racing association pointed out that a wide-open Derby occasionally produces a sensational horse. This leaves the experts out on a limb because they failed to recognize the early symptoms of greatness.

One of the most extraordinary examples dates back to 1918. Sun Briar, which had been the champion two-year-old, was withdrawn. Exterminator, purchased as a work horse for the champion, was substituted. The reason was simply that Willis Sharpe Kilmer, an eastern sportsman, wanted to see his color flying in the Derby. The race made history. Exterminator won the Derby, then went on to become one of the greatest thoroughbreds in history. His prestige was out-classed only by Man o' War.

Two in a Row

The next year's Derby was along the same line. Comdr. J. K. L. Ross started two horses in the race, Sir Barton and Billy Kelly. He placed his confidence in Billy Kelly, but Sir Barton won it, and it was the first race he ever won. Before the year was over Sir Barton was acclaimed as the first triple-crown winner of the turf. He had won the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont.

Race horses are unpredictable animals. Back in 1922 Morvich completely dominated the pre-Derby dope. The winter book favorite, he had won 11 straight as a two-year-old and far overshadowed the unknown Exterminator and Sir Barton. The Derby ran pretty well to form with Morvich registering an easy win. But that ended Morvich. He never won another race. Nothing in particular seemed to be wrong with him, but he just quit winning races after nabbing 12 in a row.

The odds against winter book favorites are indicated by the fact that only four of them have won the Derby since 1919. They were Morvich, in 1922, Reigh Count in 1923, Gallant Fox in 1930 and Count Fleet in 1935. The other 21 were either beaten or failed to go to the post.

Care of Firearms

Several excellent tips on the care of rifles and shotguns were forthcoming recently from V. J. Tiefenbrunn, firearms expert and ballistics technician of the Western Cartridge company.

Tiefenbrunn had an extra word of caution for farmers and ranchers. Farm-owned rifles and shotguns that are kept ready for quick shots at predators should always be kept clean and coated with a light oil. As lighter oils drain off and have a tendency to evaporate, they should be renewed periodically. And it is a mistake to plug the barrel to keep out dirt. This practice can produce atmospheric rusting due to the condensation of moisture on exterior metal parts or in the barrel. Also, many accidents have resulted from plugged guns—the plugs forgotten.

If the gun is to be stored for the summer he advises the following steps:

1. First, clean the bore of the gun thoroughly, using a bristle brass brush, clean patches and a reputable powder solvent if necessary.

Heavy Grease Coat

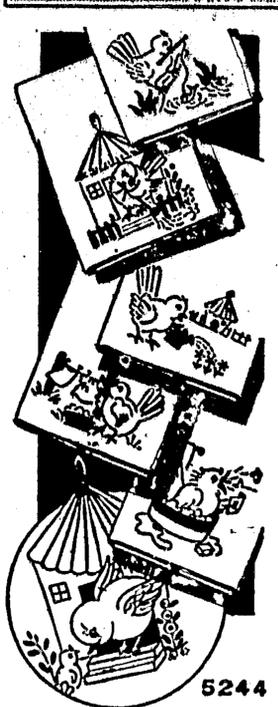

When the bore is clean and dry, coat it thoroughly with grease. As long as the gun is to be stored, use heavy grease or heavy gun oil. Heavy lubricant is better protection against atmospheric rusting. All exposed metal parts should be wiped with a clean cloth saturated with the same type grease.

After the gun has been greased, be sure to snap the trigger before storing it. Never plug the muzzle. Best storage conditions are at ordinary room temperature. Avoid basements, barns, attics or other places subject to damp or extreme temperature changes.

The best way to remove the lubricant at the beginning of the next shooting season is to apply a little elbow grease and swab the inside with clean patches and wipe the outside with a dry rag. Don't shoot until the grease is removed.

"Your gun, like any mechanical device, needs reasonable care and attention to insure its positive and continued operation," says Mr. Tiefenbrunn. "With no new guns in sight, and long periods when farmers as well as hunters must do without ammunition, a little extra care is required today."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The importance of the tire conservation program, effected in 1942, will be appreciated when it is known that the number of passenger car tires rationed and those sold on new cars in 1942 only equaled 8.8 per cent of the passenger car tires shipped for all purposes in 1941.

Neglected small tire tread cuts and bruises can become serious rubber wasters. A small cut, even though it does not go entirely through the fabric, lets in dirt, water and foreign matter. Constant flexing increases the size of the cut until the tire is beyond repair. Prompt repair is a patriotic duty these days.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war stories I like best, Judge, are the ones by the special writers overseas who live right with our troops. They give us a better idea of how our men react to things going on over there and back here at home."

"I agree with you, Sam. I never read one of those stories in the papers or magazines. And there's one thing those writers seem to agree on no matter where they are stationed with our men...and that is that the men who have left their homes and families to go away and fight this war don't want to come back and find that prohibition has been put over on them while they were away...either nationally or locally. They have heard about the attempts being made and they resent it bitterly."

"I agree with them, Judge, even though I don't happen to drink myself. Furthermore, I don't think it's fair for us at home to be making any major changes while 10,000,000 of our fighting men are away and have no chance to express their opinion."
