Just another tragedy of this great war has come home to us.

The death of a neighbor or a friend is always a shock, but it is doubly so when it comes to someone who is youthful, and promising, and who has laid down his life for his country on some far-off shore.

Aubrey will be missed always; kindest thoughts followed him; the love of family and friends attended him; tender memories will live on and on in the hearts of those who knew him and loved him.

Fun for the Whole Family

ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Do you have a large wall space somewhere in your house that looks rather bare? Why not fill it with a group of matched brackets on which you may make an attractive arrangement of bric-a-brac and trailing vines? This sketch shows a set of three brackets in a quaint old-fashioned heart design over a davenport in the living room. The center bracket is fourteen inches wide with one of the matching smaller brackets on each side. The sketch also shows how easy it is to cut out the heart design with a sharp knife after boring holes with a brace and bit. Any school boy who has the use of a coping saw or maybe a jig saw may make these graceful brackets.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared an actual size pattern for all the pieces of this set of wall brackets, with complete directions for cutting, assembling and finishing. The lines of these brackets are so well proportioned that you will be proud to own them. Ask for Pattern No. 263, enclosed in cents, which covers cost and mailing. Address:

CROSS TOWN

"Are they still putting bits of pins in men's shirts? If so I'll buy a few."

Tales of the Big Towns

William Rich of the Time magazine tried for years to convince his colleagues there that Bob Hope would make an interesting profile...

Some of the men from a redistribution center were entertaining at the Latin Quarter the other night...

A group of midtowners were gabbing about charges of "innuendo" over the radio, and a veteran recalled this Jimmy Walker story...

"Why should I make his campaign for him?" he said to a pal. "I won't build him up. It would be fun, though, to ask him one question. What was he doing in Waterbury on July 10, 1927?"

Sid Sheldon reports that a company of boys from the Army Signal Corps were sent to the induction station for overseas physicals. One of them (in the army three years) wandered into the wrong line and wound up being examined with cecetees.

Congress refused to put another heavy tax on horse racing. It imposed 20 per cent tax on night clubs where servicemen get real recreation.

Some Chicago cafe people, however, sent the members of the Ways and Means Committee (and the Senate Finance Comm.) large posters, which burned the legislators to a crisp because they know they are true.

The opposite side shows men in uniform in night clubs enjoying themselves dancing, etc. The caption: "These boys are giving their blood and had no lobby. They pay 30 per cent extra for their fun!"

The Intelligentsia: Tommy Harmon, the hero, will do a book on his war adventures for Crowell... Poet Joseph Auslander's "The Unconquerables" (poetry in epic form) is his best...

After a recent raid in Italy (according to Irv Hoffman) an Army surgeon told the chaplain that one poor fellow was beyond hope. The chaplain leaned over the wounded man and said: "My dear fellow, you are badly hurt. Hear you anything to say or any word for your family?"

British Facing Housing Need

New Homes for 15 Millions To Be Required in First Decade After War.

LONDON.—Fifteen million people in the United Kingdom will need rehousing during the first decade after the war, according to Alfred C. Bossom, leader of the British building mission to North America, which recently returned from the United States.

Mr. Bossom, internationally known architect and member of parliament for Maidstone, Kent, said housing would be one of the greatest of the postwar problems facing Europe's statesmen after the war.

"With huge areas of Europe devastated, millions of people will be exposed to disease and possibly death unless means can be found to provide them with some sort of shelter in the place of their destroyed homes.

"In the United Kingdom alone, the problem is bound to be acute immediately after the war. It is estimated that if every available man in the building trades, was put to work immediately the war ends, it would take 18 months to rebuild and repair houses damaged here by enemy action."

Heavy Damage Cited.

Bossom explained that one out of every four or five houses in the United Kingdom had been destroyed or damaged by bombs. In addition, he said, the authorities would have to cope with two things: (1) Thousands of houses had to be neglected during the war, and would be in need of considerable repairs. (2) One million houses would be needed to replace the normal peacetime building program of the United Kingdom.

3,000,000 Homes Blitzed.

Explaining why so many houses would be needed, Bossom continued: "Approximately 3,000,000 homes have been blitzed to date. Already at the outbreak of war the United Kingdom was short of some half million houses... homes needing to be replaced, etc. Furthermore, our docks and public buildings will have to be rebuilt in many areas. It will take at least ten years to do the job."

Aids to the increased production, utilization and conservation of food figure prominently among recent accomplishments of the U. S. department of agriculture's scientific research workers.

1. Found that sweet potato meal, made from dehydrated sweet potatoes, compares favorably with corn as a feed for steers.

2. Determined that mowing of sagebrush encourages the growth of better species of pasture plants, thus increasing gains of beef cattle.

3. Showed that when hogs are fattened to weights beyond 275 pounds, the rate of gain decreases materially while the feed required per pound of gain increases.

4. Found that hogs can utilize small amounts of hay, about 5 to 10 per cent, in their rations with benefit.

5. Determined that when laying hens were fed grain sorghums (yellow milo and hegar) in a well-balanced diet, the sorghums were equal in value to corn.

6. Established methods for rearing calves satisfactorily with less milk than customary, thus releasing additional milk for human use.

7. Showed that when cows receive all the legume hay and silage they want, they will produce well and economically on a single-grain ration.

8. Demonstrated the efficacy of substitutes for scarce insecticides in controlling the potato leafhopper, pea weevil, tomato fruitworm, Mexican bean beetle, Colorado potato beetle, and plant bugs that feed on seed pods of sugar beets.

9. Made available 35 new varieties of important crop plants developed by plant breeders.

It's customary to pick the Cubs for second place.

Let's Face Facts

Farm Machinery Output At Double 1943 Levels But Remains a Problem By BARROW LYONS

Several senators from farming sections are predicting that the War Food administration is going to have a rude surprise within a few weeks when it discovers that farmers are not planting the acreages expected of them this year — partly because they cannot get farm machinery they need to make up for the shortage of manpower.

Equally positive are officials of the War Production board that there will be enough machinery with which to plant, cultivate and harvest all crops. War Food administration points confidently to early reports of acreage planted and says that if average weather prevails, crops will be adequate for domestic needs — but with less to spare for feeding foreign populations than UNRRA will request.

Here is the argument that WPB gives: Last year only about 40 per cent of the machinery manufactured in the base years — 1940 and 1941 — was produced; but this year about 60 per cent of the base year production is planned. Production is running close to schedule on some items and lagging on others. Harvesting and hay gathering machinery seems to be furthest behind. Harvesting machinery is in much greater demand than the supply. In this field authorized schedules are, on the whole, almost 125 per cent of base period production, but it is not now expected that schedules will be met. How far output will lag depends largely upon labor supply and the demand of the military for critical components.

Scheduled Increases

Combines with width of cut over 10 feet are scheduled for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945, at 110 per cent of base output, those between 9 and 10 feet at 110 per cent and smaller ones at 75 per cent. Schedules for binders are not as great in proportion to base output. But the programs for potato diggers and pickers, beet and vegetable harvesters are much higher.

Furthermore, repair parts may be manufactured in whatever quantities needed. Altogether, the farm machinery industry is programmed to turn out nearly twice the volume of equipment it did last year — but, frankly, the program is not going to be completed.

However, an indication that the situation is not as serious as last year is that the volume of complaints is far less. One WPB official, who last year at this time was receiving from 50 to 60 telephone calls a day from congressmen requesting him to look after constituents, is at present receiving very few urgent requests for farm machinery.

There is one certainty — farmers must give more attention to repair of equipment than ever before. In this country they have hardly begun to take repairs as seriously as farmers in England or in enemy nations. Those who have been to England say the British are far ahead of us in that respect, and reports coming from Germany indicate that a fine job is being done there on the repair problem.

Dealers throughout America, however, have been advised to order repair parts by telegram, and manufacturers to ship by airmail. No red tape or forms are required. All a farmer needs to do is to tell his dealer that he needs the repair parts.

Many Repairs Needed

Recently the results of a survey of repair needs made by the WPB Office of Civilian Requirements was published. It showed that in 1943 owners of 42 per cent of the mowing machines of the country required repairs for their equipment, and that 13 per cent of those needing repairs did not get them; 42 per cent of the owners of combines required repairs, and 8 per cent of those requiring them were not serviced. These were among the worst repair records.

But it is the belief in WPB today that repair troubles should be virtually a thing of the past, and that normal servicing will be obtained.

In Indiana, cooperative repair shops have been established which have been a great aid in obtaining speedy repairs. In a few other states repair shops have been established as part of the agricultural college extension services, and farmers come from all parts of the counties to avail themselves of these facilities.

On the whole, machinery manufacturers are handicapped by labor shortages, lack of motors, chains, malleable iron and castings.

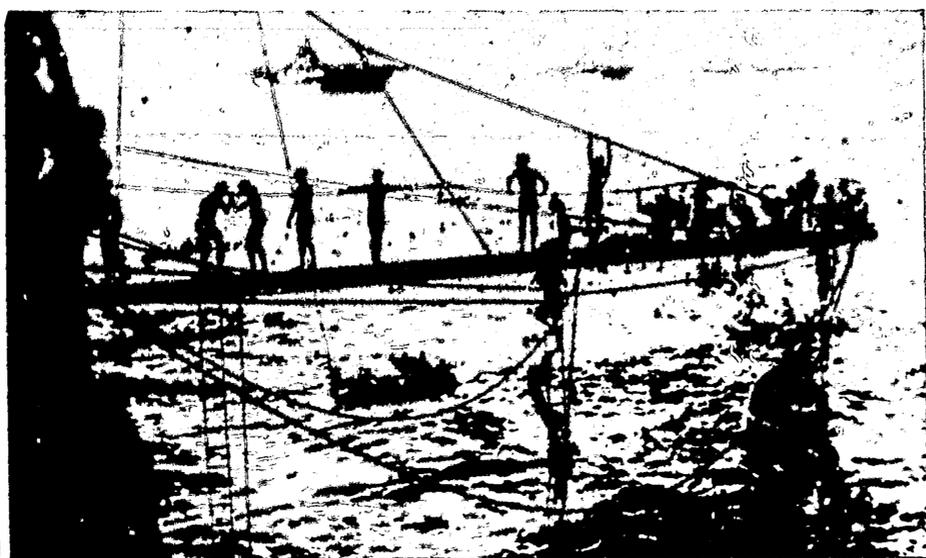

To obtain the best distribution of farm machinery, manufacturers this year were authorized to dispose of 80 per cent of their output where they thought it would do the most good. Twenty per cent was under allocation of the War Food administration to supply in areas where supply appears to be short. The opinion of those responsible for this program is that it has been working fairly well.

Backstage Scenes With 'Prisoners of War'

(1) German prisoners of war have their own band at Fort Dix, N. J. Here they play overture to music staged by other "P of Ws." (2) A scene from the play "Froh und Heltter" (Bright and Gay). Scenery and costumes are the work of the prisoners made from waste material during their spare time. (3) A scene in the kitchen of the prisoners' mess hall showing them preparing the evening meal for their fellow Nazis. These men appear anything but unhappy.

Navy Crewmen Find Antidote for Battle Strain

Once the business of conquering Roi Island was completed, these crewmen of a United States navy aircraft carrier take the antidote for post-battle nervous strain by an invigorating swim in the warm waters of a lagoon to the Marshalls. After the heat of battle a dip is a soothing tonic for the nerves, the men declare.

French and English Generals in Italy

General Jula, commander of the French Expeditionary corps in Italy; General Leese, commander of the Eighth army; and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander in chief of the Allied forces in Italy, are shown engaged in conversation when General Alexander paid a visit to the Eighth's headquarters.

Principal in Sedition Trial

He Missed the Boat

Coastguardsmen heave a line from their destroyer and haul in a mid-Atlantic swimmer who missed his boat—badly! Repatriated seaman Earl N. Phillips tumbled from one ship in a west-bound convoy and was picked up half an hour later by the coast guard.

Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

More U. S. Troops for India? Certain senators, even including some of the President's supporters, are irked over curtailment of the Australian army, simultaneous with British requests that we send more U. S. troops to India.

The British request was made by Field Marshal Sir John Dill, former British Chief of Staff, now liaison officer in Washington. Sir John, personally one of the most charming and popular members of the British embassy, suggested to U. S. war chiefs that, in view of the Jap invasion of India, the United States might send more troops to that area.

The reply he got was: "What about the tremendous army you already have in India?"

Sir John had to admit that this huge British army is spread out through India largely for the purpose of preventing internal revolt.

Senators who have learned about this conversation are all set to do some blasting, should the White House send more U. S. troops to save the British Empire in India. However, they probably won't have to blast, because the President himself is understood to feel strongly on that subject.

KAISER'S NEW PLANE

Very little has been heard of the giant wooden transport plane which Henry Kaiser proposed building more than a year ago. However, the plane is nearing completion—though with no thanks to the navy.

Behind the scenes, the navy has done all it could to block the plane and at one time proposed cancelling the contract. Some insiders attribute this to pressure from the Martin bomber plant, which has already constructed a giant flying boat, Mars, for the navy.

However, the new Kaiser wooden transport plane will be so big that the Mars could almost be carried inside. Its fuselage alone will be big enough to hold a freight car. Its wing spread is 100 yards and it can carry a payload of 60 tons, in addition to gasoline.

At one time, the navy got so insistent that the contract for the plane be cancelled that famous record-holder Howard Hughes, now a partner of Kaiser's, had to plead with the RFC to let him continue. The big flying boat is being financed by RFC funds, and Hughes actually promised to put up a $500,000 performance bond in case of non-fulfillment of contract, plus a guarantee to pay all costs personally beyond a certain date.

The big plane should be finished early in the summer.

Chalk up a score for Congressman Lyndon Johnson of Texas and Economic Czar Fred Vinson in helping the farmer on the price of eggs; also in cutting the profits of dried-egg manufacturers to the tune of several million dollars a week.

It happened through a queer quirk in price ceilings. The price on dried eggs had been fixed by the OPA at 25 cents a pound, but meanwhile the price at which farmers were calling their eggs to the dried-egg processors dropped from around 40 cents a dozen to 20 cents a dozen. Despite this drop in price, the dried-egg processors continued to get the benefit of the high ceiling price, while buying eggs from the farmers at one-half what they did before.

The spread between what the farmers got paid and what the egg processors sold for was so great that the processors were making money at the stupendous rate of $3,000,000 a week — until Texas' Lyndon Johnson stepped in with protests to Judge Vinson. The latter has now upped the price which the farmer gets for his eggs.

RUSSIAN WEARINESS

U. S. officials just back from Russia report a war weariness among the Russian people. This is not to be confused with military strength or weakness. Obviously, the military machine is operating with an efficiency such as never before.

For 25 years, Russia has been torn by war, revolution, or internal strain. Even during days of peace, the severe economic effort deprived the ordinary citizen of many elementary comforts of life.

But now, they see victory around the corner and want it to come quickly. Beyond that, they see security coming from cooperation with the other big powers of the world, giving them the time necessary to build up a state in which, according to the precepts of the Soviet philosophy, the dignity of the individual can be recognized and enjoyed.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Judge Sam Rosenman now occupies the suite of offices vacated by the late Marvin McIntyre, White House secretary. Rosenman formerly had only a tiny cubicle under the eaves... White House intimates suggest that the President probably doesn't intend to fill Mac's place. Instead of three secretaries Steve Early, "Pa" Watson and McIntyre) he will have only two, plus Sam Rosenman as counsel... If EDR intended to run again, he might be more anxious to fill the vacant post.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus acid and other waste matter that causes many of the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination, sometimes wakes that something is wrong. You may suffer aching back, pains, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes to Puerto Rico on an assignment for her father's paper. Also on the island are Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, now a U. S. Army intelligence officer; Miguel Valera, a Puerto Rican educated in the United States who is a secret U. S. agent; Richard Taussig, an engineer whose identity as a German agent is suspected but not yet proved; and Russell Foster, a young American engineer, and his wife, Sue. When Mr. Taussig learns that Anne suspects him he arranges to dispose of her. Pete Wilcox saves Anne, but is jealous of her friendship with Miguel.

CHAPTER XIV

The shiny black limousine drew up under the portico of the Granada Hotel. Mr. Richard Taussig got out. "It's been very pleasant, and most interesting," he said. "Thank you so much. Good-by. Good-by, senorita." It had been a mistake to allow Graciela to call Miss Heywood. Graciela was disconcerted, seething and highly unpredictable. Her father's confidence in his continuing hold over her was to Mr. Taussig's realistic mind stupidly unrealistic.

Mr. Taussig shrugged his shoulders and went into the lobby. As long as it didn't interfere in his plans . . . And there had been enough interference already. He had been trying to figure that out on his way home. It had a little of the smell of Fate to it, the more he thought about it. Perhaps it was just as well . . . if he could figure Wilcox out properly.

He was still thinking about that forty-five minutes later as he came through the iron gridded gateway into the inner courtyard of Albert Benoit, coffee and sugar importers, his green guide book under his arm, his green visored yachting cap on his head. He went up the stone steps to the first-floor gallery. At the top he paused, waiting for Diego Gongoro coming out of the arched tunnel from Juan de Pinzon Street.

"I must frankly admit I was disturbed this morning," Gongoro said casually. "I was afraid our young friend might lose her footing so high above the floor. It would have been most unfortunate."

"Most," Mr. Taussig agreed equally. "However, I was watching her very carefully. Shall we go in?"

"I always admire lineage," Diego Gongoro said irreverently. He waited until the door was closed.

"In view of the flattering attention we have been favored with this morning by a certain member of the Military Intelligence, I wish each department to function without communication with any other, until . . . let us call it X-Day. When that comes, it will be in coordination with the concerted movement throughout the Caribbean area, Central and South American. Until then, Gongoro will continue the organization of personnel for the eventual destruction of all water facilities."

He took out his handkerchief and wiped his dark lenses. The dark man with the black mustache moved suddenly. "I . . . wonder," he said quietly. "I have an exhibit—two exhibits, in fact. I think they will interest you."

He went to a desk in the corner and took a folded piece of paper out of a drawer. "I saw a friend off on the stratorliner for Rio this morning with the information for Bauer. This new filtering station here has caused us no end of trouble. I think the safest thing to do is chop up the pending unit we got last fall."

He came back to the table. "When I returned to the office from the airport, I found this under the stairs in the yard. The cat was playing with it."

He opened the folded paper and took out a small linen handkerchief. It had been white, but it was crumpled and slightly soiled, as if it had been moist.

"It's an expensive trifle. And expensively perfumed. Also monogrammed. The initials are A. C. H." He looked up. "It was not there when we came in last night. I turned my flashlight around the yard, to be quite sure of everything."

The silence in the room lasted for some time. "What is Exhibit B?" Mr. Taussig inquired quietly. "It is a golden hair," Albert Benoit said. "It was caught in the rough plaster on the wall under the stairs, at a height of five feet eight inches. I presume the average heels are about two inches high. In which case the owner of this would be approximately five feet six inches."

court and went out through the tunnelled arch.

Something would have to be done now, and rather quickly, he was thinking. She couldn't have been alone, unless she was braver or a greater fool than he thought she was. And that meant one thing, obviously: that Wilcox had been with her. They must have followed him out of the restaurant, though he'd thought they were both so absorbed in what was obviously a pretty tense quarrel that they weren't aware he'd gone.

He hailed a taxi. "La Granada," he said. That would explain Wilcox's appearance at the Central. In that case, nothing had been said that he had regarded as evidence. It meant that she had talked, however, though what she could say he didn't know. And G 2 was hardly likely to listen to her suspicions in the face of his credentials.

He looked at his watch. The question was whether to go to Mrs. Porter's or let it ride for a while. If Anne Heywood turned up, it would be a waste of time. On the other hand she might not come . . . or he might manage it before she got there. All he needed was half an hour in his own room with the specifications. He could return them after he'd got a microscopic photostat, and no one would know the difference. After that he could look at churches and schools to his heart's content.

"Then you and I can have a comfortable chat," he said.

"I'll go on," he said as he saw the crushed raspberry and cream outline of the Granada through the palms. "I'll give you the address."

He took out his notebook. The magazine Sue Porter had been trying to force herself to read clipped off her lap into the white string rug. She sat perfectly still for a moment; then her face crumpled and she buried her head in the cushions, unable to keep the tears back any longer. He wasn't coming. She'd known it all afternoon. And she shouldn't have phoned. Half a dozen times since five o'clock she'd forced herself not to, but the last time she couldn't help it.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Porter. Mr. Taussig came in an hour ago and left right away. He didn't say when he'd be back." The telephone girl at the Granada had recognized her voice, and Sue could hear her laughing as she put down the phone. Her cheeks were burning. The girl thought she was running after Taussig because she'd phoned so many times and left messages he'd not bothered to reply to. If Russell knew he'd be furious. He didn't get angry often, but when he did he was terrifying.

Sue raised her head and dabbed at her eyes with her moist wadded handkerchief. She'd planned it so carefully. The silver tray with the decanter and glasses on it was out on the kitchen table. The ice cubes would be melted by now and the canapés soggy and unpleasant-looking. And she'd rehearsed it in front of the mirror a hundred times during the day.

She'd be casual and charming. "Why, Mr. Taussig! How awfully nice. I really didn't think you'd have time to come, you're so terribly famous. Do sit down and let me see if I can find something for you to drink. It's been ghastly hot all day, hasn't it?" Then she would say Russell had been called away unexpectedly, and get around to the specifications. She glanced wretchedly out into the dining room where she'd put them on the sideboard, the corners of her mouth trembling.

Suddenly she straightened. There was a step on the porch. She flashed up and around. Mr. Taussig was standing in the door, smiling, his hat in his hand. Sue stared at him. She hadn't heard him come up the stairs or cross the wide veranda.

"My dear Mrs. Porter, I thought you expected me," he said pleasantly.

"Oh, I did, but I . . . I thought you weren't coming." It came out before she realized she was saying it.

"My dear child!"

Mr. Taussig laughed and wiped the perspiration off his broad pallid forehead.

"I'm a business man, and when I come across anyone as promising as your husband I'm hardly likely to miss an opportunity to talk to him."

Sue flushed. "But he's not here—I should have told you," she said quickly. "He had to go to St. Thomas."

She'd planned it so differently. She'd been going to say, "You'll think I'm dreadful not letting you know my husband isn't here. He's frightfully sorry. You see, the Navy's having water trouble and needed somebody really good, so Russell had to fly over to St. Thomas to give them a hand."

Mr. Taussig's disappointment was obvious, but his recovery was more than gallant . . . perhaps because he had known all that before he came.

"Then you and I can have a comfortable chat," he said. He sat down on the sofa where he could keep his eyes on the front steps. "In fact, I think it's probably better. Because—if you don't mind my saying so—the trouble with your husband, my dear girl, is that he hides his light under a bushel. He's too modest. He needs somebody to push him a little. He's so off the beaten track down here that unless he lets people know what he can do, he'll find himself in a rut. Men not half as well equipped as he is will be picking the plums, merely because they're on the spot."

"I know," Sue said eagerly. "That's what I've tried to tell him. But he thinks if he does a good job the company will know it, and—"

"And keep him down here where they won't see him and don't have to pay him what he's worth," Mr. Taussig interrupted calmly. "I know all about that."

He took a cigarette out of his case and lit it thoughtfully.

"Of course I'm interested in him particularly," he said. "I was tremendously impressed by what was said the other evening. And very selfishly, I'd better add, you are, we have a project—a very big one—with a problem not unlike the one you have here. I don't want this to go farther."

He looked appraisingly at her. "How discreet are you, Mrs. Porter?"

"I can be very," Sue answered quickly. She realized she'd been holding her breath, waiting, and that she had to be calm so he wouldn't see how much it meant.

He tapped the ash off his cigarette. "Well, this is it, Mrs. Porter. I heard about the construction down here, though not about your husband. He wasn't mentioned. I've been looking for a man for the last fifteen months. I'm not sure, of course, that you'd be interested. The living conditions won't be easy. I ought to tell you that. That's one of the reasons we want a young man. The colony would only be about twenty-five thousand a year, but the man who went would be known throughout the civilized world. Of course I don't know . . ."

Sue closed her eyes. All the things they could do . . . for themselves and for the children! She held her breath again.

"I'm not sure your problem here can be done, of course," Mr. Taussig went on equably. "If it can, your husband is the man you want. I suppose the thing to do is wait until the job's finished, and see . . . if we can wait."

"But the specifications are all drawn up!" Sue cried. "Russell says they're absolutely perfect! Oh, why don't you just look at them? You could tell, couldn't you?"

Mr. Taussig shook his head skeptically and waited. She jumped up, ran into the dining room and came back. Two bright pink spots burned in her cheeks, her blue eyes were as full of hope as the dawn.

"Just look at them a minute!" She thrust the thick roll of linen prints into his hands. He unrolled them without haste, and studied the top one deliberately. He could hear her breath coming quickly and see the pulse pounding in her throat as she sat there beside him. After a moment he looked up at her with a smile.

"Mrs. Porter, I really wouldn't be surprised if your husband isn't exactly the man we've been hunting from one end of the world to the other," he said simply.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" Sue whispered. "You don't know how I want him to get away from here!"

"Of course I'll have to go through all these, rather carefully," he said. "It's a complicated setup. I wonder . . . No, I don't suppose we could do that."

"Do what?"

"I was just thinking that if I could lay them out on the dining room table," Mr. Taussig said. "I could see them all at once. But someone might come in, and it's better to keep this to ourselves."

FEDERAL OWNERSHIP AFTER THE WAR

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT has invested more than 20 billion dollars in war industrial plants which will be useless for the purpose for which they were erected when the war is over. In many cases these plants are but additions to smaller plants that were in existence before the war. In but few cases have the plants been directly operated by the government but have been under private management.

What will happen to this array of industrial productive capacity is one of the subjects covered by the Bernard Baruch report to the President and being considered by congress. A coterie of bureaucratic heads are urging that the government not only retain ownership, but also that the government operate them on peace-time products in competition with private industry.

These plants are distributed among thousands of communities, and each community in which one is located has a direct interest in the problem of its disposal. There is one illustration left over from World War I that can provide a basis for consideration. Hoboken, N. J., is a waterfront town in the New York harbor area. In it were located the docks of the North German Lloyd steamship company, a German owned corporation. The government seized those docks as alien property. That was more than 25 years ago, and the government still holds them as federal property. During those 25 years the little city of Hoboken has not received one cent of tax revenue from them. Based on the rentals of similar docks in Hoboken those owned by the federal government would have earned under private ownership $223,933 during 1943. From that sum Hoboken would have collected $470,243 in taxes. As it was, Hoboken got nothing and the loss had to be made up by other forms of taxes, paid by the people of the town.

Despite lower rental charges, made possible because of no taxes, the government owned and operated piers have not been used to anywhere near capacity. Ship owners object to the theoretical regulations and the bureaucratic red tape they must wade through to use them. It has resulted in a 75 per cent loss in employment on the government owned piers, and an annual loss of some six million dollars in retail trade in the town.

What has happened in Hoboken through 25 years of government ownership and operation can happen in any community in which the government owns a war plant unless that plant passes into the hands of private owners to be privately operated when the war is over.

Mr. Baruch strongly urges the transfer of these plants to private ownership and operation on a necessity in the preservation of our free enterprise system. The problem is actually in the hands of congress and congress will do what the people emphatically demand.

FARMERS AND AGRICULTURE VIA C.O.D.

AGRICULTURAL department representatives in California, and possibly in other states, are advising farmers to buy fertilizer and take a receipt for the cost and amount, with a promise that the government will refund the cost in 1945 from the agricultural department appropriation of next year. In California, where citrus and other fruit and vegetable ranches represent small acreage, the promise is to refund the cost of sulphur fertilizer to the extent of one ton per acre up to ten acres. For anything beyond ten acres the refund to be 25 per cent of the cost. It remains to be seen what congress will say about it, and that, of course, depends on who is elected to congress in November. It puts aid to the farmers on a C. O. D. basis.

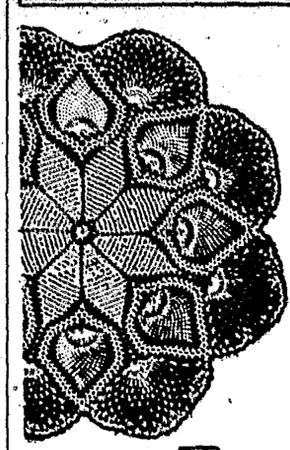

FREIGHT RATES

THE PRESENT FEDERAL TAX on commodity transportation costs is far from equitable for all sections of the nation. Transportation on a bushel of wheat from Montana to the sea coast is much greater than from states further east. The transportation tax on that bushel of Montana wheat is more than on the wheat grown farther east, and the farmer pays that difference in the price he gets for his wheat. Justice Cragmet of the California State Railroad commission proposes a tax on the basis of weight of commodities. All products of any one classification would pay the same tax regardless of the distance transported. That would be equitable for all.

TO, AT THIS TIME, BUY A NEW ATLAS

on the presumption the end of the war will not see new national boundaries is presuming more than can be reasonably expected. There will be new boundary lines in Europe, in Asia, Africa and the islands of the seven seas. We are not an imperialistic nation but when it is all over the American flag will replace the banner of the Rising Sun on many a Pacific isle. Some of the small nations will have disappeared from the map of Europe, colonies in Africa will change.

A worn anklet makes a good cover to pull on over the old wax applicator when it needs freshening. Wrap the applicator first with soft cloth, then the sock is pulled on and it's ready for service.

To avoid losing a handkerchief under a bed pillow in a creak room at night, sew a pocket on one side of the pillowcase.

To keep moths from your knitting yarn, take old tobacco containers and give them a coat of paint and use these cans thus prepared as a parking spot for the knitting yarn.

Take the shine off your clothes with sandpaper. First, sponge the spot with cleaning fluid or with water to which has been added a few drops of ammonia or vinegar. When the fabric is dry, take a small piece of sandpaper and lift the nap by briskly brushing the spot. Don't brush too hard, however, or you may remove the nap entirely.

Johnny Was for Making Most of His Resources

Little Johnny's mother had just presented the family with twins, and the household was in a state of excitement. Father beamed with pride as he took Johnny on one side.

"If you'll tell your teacher about it, I'm sure she will give you a day's holiday," he said.

That afternoon Johnny came home radiant. "I don't have to go to school tomorrow," he announced proudly.

"Did you tell your teacher about the twins?" asked his father.

"No, I just told her I had a baby sister. I'm saving the other for next week."

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A researcher in things rubber reported that in 1858 the trade in rubber products ran between four and five million dollars annually and the industry employed 10,000 workers. Vulcanization had been known less than 25 years then.

The extra members required in the manufacture of heavy tires for military airplanes, tanks, combat vehicles and for civilian trucks, buses and farm tractors mean that the major share of the free-building capacity and facilities available must be devoted to this job, in the opinion of John L. Colyer, B. F. Goodrich president. These are the essential needs from a correct standpoint.

Why a Farmer Should Buy and Keep War Bonds

by Gabriel Lundy
Head, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
South Dakota State College

PATRIOTISM, willingness to combat harmful inflation, and a desire to build up a reserve of post-war buying power will impel the farmer to buy and keep War Bonds.

Farmer loyalty will express itself not only in maximum production of necessary food and fiber for the winning of the war. Farmer loyalty will also express itself in the equally necessary and patriotic duty to invest cash with which the government can purchase both food and war equipment. Fortunately farmers are receiving higher prices and larger incomes. This has enabled many of them to reduce old debts to manageable amounts or to acquire surplus cash for Bond purchases. A sense of responsibility toward the need of the nation for funds with which to carry on the war will urge farmers to purchase War Bonds to the limit of their resources.

Both direct self-interest and patriotism dictate the purchase of Bonds as a means to prevent inflation. During all our large wars we have had high war prices followed by very low prices and depression some years later. During World War I many farmers and others unwisely used the enlarged income to bid up the prices of farm land. As a result the farm mortgage debt was more than doubled. Then when post-war prices dropped very low many farmers became unable to pay, and lost their farms through foreclosure. A repetition of this calamity can be avoided by investing in War Bonds instead of buying land at inflated prices and on credit.

The danger of inflation, however, is not limited to land. It is also important not to bid up the prices of other things. Price inflation and price collapse in every line are harmful. Such harm can be avoided by diverting surplus funds away from the market for scarce commodities and into War Bonds. Financing the war by means of heavier taxes would be more anti-inflationary, but since Congress has decided in favor of Bonds it is our duty and privilege to invest in War Bonds.

Good farm management and self-interest as well as patriotism will urge the farmer to buy and keep War Bonds. If prices fall after this war as they did after our other large wars, the farmer with a reserve in Bonds will be in an ideal economic position. Farm buildings and machinery are wearing out faster during the present war period than during normal times due to difficulties in obtaining needed material and labor for repairs and replacements. Farmers should now be putting money in Bonds to cover these costs. About 10 percent of the total machinery investment and about 4 percent of the total farm building investment should be saved each year to cover wear and depreciation. With lower prices, farm equipment, new buildings and new furniture and household equipment will be at the farmer's disposal for less money after the war than now.

Furthermore, if he holds his Bonds until maturity, his money will be increased by one-fourth. With more money and lower prices, the Bond-investing farmer will then have cash to make his farm work easier and more productive. His money will also yield him more in home comforts, education for the children, or in the purchase of a farm for the son.

The danger of war-induced inflation does not end with the actual fighting. Post-war inflation is fully as threatening. Large-scale conversion of Bonds into cash for the purchase of articles, commodities, etc., before industry has had time to convert fully to peacetime production, will be undesirable. By holding his Bonds longer, the farmer or other Bond-holder will contribute to the elimination of both a wild "boom" and a subsequent depression.

Agriculture and industry are intimately interrelated and interdependent. The government is now industry's big customer. After the war, farmers will be big buyers of industrial products. If the accumulated purchasing power is released gradually, and if income is widely distributed, industry can furnish full and continuous employment. In turn this will give farmers a profitable market for their products. Thus, both patriotism and far-sighted self-interest will induce farmers and others to buy and keep their War Bonds until after peace is achieved.
