OUR WASHINGTON REPORTER

By L. B. Bloch

Washington, August 27--Arrival of V-J Day precipitated a spontaneous celebration such as this city has never seen before. Crowds filled the streets shortly after President Truman's announcement shortly after 7 P. M. Tuesday. Not only the end of a war but also the beginning of an era was being ushered in. Even the youngest and least thoughtful could not help feeling that the world of yesterday is no more. Perfection of the atom bomb, 300-miles per hour plane travel and other modern wonders underlined the word final which everyone saw written across the bottom of the page which started in the early 1900's.

At least that is the explanation given by one thoughtful celebrant who were able to get to talk. For the most part, the milling mass of humanity just shouted, blew papers or banged away on other noisemakers.

Pennsylvania Avenue, around the White House was jammed solid. Weibie-Talkie raiders interviewed soldiers and sailors, girls were throwing their arms around the necks of men in uniform, police sought vainly to open a path for traffic, street car bells clanged in mad abandon. Then someone came along carrying a big flag and crowds started to follow. Soon a parade was in progress. It was more nearly a post-football game snake-dance of victory.

Fourteenth Street, around F and G was so crowded that literally no one could move more than an inch at any time. It was a mad scene.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete O'Rear and son left Monday for their home in Hereford, Arizona, after a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Duncan.

Cattle Growers Meet

Albuquerque, Aug. 27--Problems of utmost concern to cattlemen of New Mexico will be discussed and dealt with at the third Quarterly Executive Board Meeting of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association to be held at Albuquerque on Sunday night, September 9th and Monday, September 10th, E. G. Hayward, Cimarron, President of the Association announced today. Advance hotel reservations indicate that approximately 150 cattlemen representing all parts of the state will attend the meeting.

At the present time the outlook for adequate protein feed for livestock in New Mexico this winter is very critical, Hayward said. This is due to the late crop of range grass general in the state which will make poor winter feed, and because the national production of protein feed such as cottonseed and soybean cake appears to be in short supply. New Mexico normally produces only about 10% of the protein winter livestock feed used in the state each year, Hayward added.

The Forest Service has proposed several new changes in their rules and regulations governing livestock grazing on the National Forest. Some of these proposed changes appear to be contrary to the judgment of livestock producers in the state and will necessitate considerable study on the part of forest range users and association members. Recommendations will be made to the Forest Service at the September meeting, Hayward said.

Government and livestock industry plans to remove the Federal subsidy payments from the meat industry before the middle of next year must be given careful consideration by livestock producers, Hayward said, if a serious breakdown in livestock prices is to be avoided next year.

The association office has approximately 250 applications for membership pending approval of the Executive Board. Approval of these members will bring the associations membership up to the 3000 mark.

Announcement

The following announcement ran in last week's paper, but we are running it again this week for our new readers:

On August 10th, 1932 I bought the Lincoln County News from the John A. Haley estate. Now, August 25, 1945, thirteen years and fifteen days later, I have bought the Carrizozo Outlook; the name, good will, circulation, printing plant, and all equipment, to take possession tomorrow, Saturday, September 1st, 1945. I will move all of above into the News office building.

Mr. Burke and family are preparing to move to Oregon. I, with a great many other friends in Lincoln County will regret their departure.

From now on the paper will be known as the Lincoln County News-Outlook. The policy will be changed to a more or less independent paper. Both Mr. Burke and I have always made it a rule to accept advertising from all political parties and this rule will continue. We hope to be able to give you a better and more interesting paper as soon as help is available. For a long time, my daughter, Mrs. Homphill and I haven't had any help, but since the war is over things will be easier along that line, I am sure.

To all those friends who have been so faithful and loyal to the Lincoln County News through good times and bad, I say thank you; I extend a welcome to the friends, both--new and old--to be added tomorrow when the papers are merged into one. I hope you will like the News Outlook and we already like you.

We shall try in every way to serve everybody conscientiously and fairly. We invite a continuance of your patronage and good will.

Most sincerely,
Mrs. Era Bradley Smith,

School For The Deaf Will Open at Santa Fe

The New Mexico School for the Deaf, at Santa Fe, will open for its 57th Session on September 4, 1945. Deaf and hard-of-hearing children from all over the state will come to Santa Fe to begin their school year on that date. Children entering the school for the first time will be admitted on September 19th.

Parents desiring information concerning admission of children should communicate with the Superintendent, New Mexico School for the Deaf, 1060 Cerrillos Road, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Editorial

We have spent part of this week getting some of the Outlook equipment into this office, and what with working at both places we haven't had a great deal of time to write some things we had planned to write about Carrizozo and Lincoln County; but we do want to thank the many people who have congratulated us upon the purchase of the Outlook and for their enthusiastic commendation. We have also received a number of letters of congratulation and we appreciate them, too.

Carrizozo is small and one paper is about all the town can afford, even in more prosperous times. In August Mr. Burke offered to sell me the paper, and I bought it without any hesitation.

Carrizozo is a very desirable place in which to live--if you like a small town, and most of us do--with the exception of the spring winds the climate is ideal; the people are friendly and courteous, the good people who are always glad to do anyone a favor, and that you are always pleased to accommodate.

As for the town improvements, they have been so steady, and so gradual that we seldom notice them, but when former residents visit here ("old timers", we call them) they are pleasantly surprised. For instance, when Mr. R. T. Cribb, a resident here in 1921 visited Carrizozo the last week in August, he spoke of our paved streets, water system, electric lights, etc., and could scarcely realize this was the same town.

We have it from good authority that Carrizozo is on the up grade and that more improvements are in store. In our next issue we hope to tell our readers of some of the things the future holds for us. If not next week, shortly thereafter.

For our part a steady quiet growth is much more desirable than a boom which usually proves disappointing and disastrous after a brief prosperity.

Now one paper, nor forty papers, can help a town and county to prosper unless there is real cooperation of the citizens with each other, and with the paper. We believe we have this unity of purpose throughout the county. We are very sure that Lincoln County is the best county in the state (and we have been practically all over the state) and the best is none too good for her citizen.

Rev. R. T. Cribb Here

The Rev. R. T. Cribb and daughter, Orpha Louise, who is now Mrs. C. E. Brewton, her two sons, Wilbur, 4 and Jerry, 2, were visitors in Carrizozo Thursday and Friday of last week. Rev. Cribb was the bookkeeper for the Carrizozo Trading Co. for several years, from 1914 through 1920. He left Carrizozo in March 1921 and entered the Methodist ministry of the North Arkansas Conference, after being licensed to preach by the Carrizozo Church, then under the pastorate of the Rev. A. C. Douglas, now District Superintendent of the Pecos District. Rev. Cribb is pastor of the Tatum, New Mexico Methodist Church, he returned to New Mexico in August 1936. His visit to Carrizozo last week was the first in 24 years. Many old timers were still in evidence, and the renewing of old friendship was greatly enjoyed by Mr. Cribb.

Mrs. Cribb, who was very gifted, wrote a number of poems. She passed away in 1921. Their daughter, Mrs. C. E. Brewton, was born in Carrizozo, and was only four when her mother died. Although so small when she left Carrizozo with her father in 1921 she greatly enjoyed her visit here. She now lives in Gainesville, Florida, with her two sons. Her husband, C. E. Brewton is serving in the Coast Guard on the East Coast. Mrs. Brewton left for her home Tuesday of this week.

The Rev. Cribb's second wife was Bessie Ruth Heartail of Arkansas; and they have two sons, and two daughters. The older son, Heartail, 21 is serving with the 13th Air Force in the Philippines, the other son Lambuth, 19 is with the 96th Division on Okinawa. The older daughter Evangelina and young son David, are living at Tatum, her husband being in the Marine service. The younger daughter, Martha will be a Junior in High School this fall.

Discontinuing Gas Rationing

Discontinuance of gasoline rationing and changed conditions created by the war's end, taking some of the burden off the railroads, said Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Director of the Office of Defense Transportation, made possible the following revocations and relaxations of war time regulations governing transportation:

Cancellation of the program requiring commercial motor vehicle operators to obtain certificates of war necessity from ODT.

Revocation of the order requiring extra ODT approval to increase or extend new commercial motor vehicle services.

Removal of the 35 mile-an-hour speed limit.

Stressing caution in speeding cars no longer capable of high speed operation--to avoid increased accidents and wear on tires and parts--not yet easy to replace.

Removal of restriction on transportation of race horses and show animals.

Removal of the ban on holding of State and Regional Fairs.

Relaxation of restrictions of group travel for business purposes and on operations of travel agencies in connection with such travel.

Relaxation of the convention ban to the extent of permitting out-of-town attendance of not more than 150 persons instead of 50 persons.

Removal of all ODT restrictions governing the overland bulk movement of petroleum and petroleum products.

"These relaxations," he declared, "must not be construed as an invitation to travel. If they are to remain in effect--and other relaxations be permitted--people must still use trains, buses and planes only when necessary. Rail transportation will continue difficult for some time. New civilian passenger equipment will not be available until 1946. Soldiers returning from battlefields must be transported, whatever restrictions are required."

HOLLIS-DAY

At 1:30 p. m. last Sunday, September 2nd, a wedding took place at the home of the Rev. O. L. Oldham, when Wilma Hollis of Colorado City, Texas and 1st Lt. Dean D. Day of Los Angeles, California, met here and were married. Lt. Day was accompanied by his best man, Lt. Raymond R. Boxburger of Russell, Kansas, a pilot of the 8th air force, recently home from England.

The bride was accompanied by her bridesmaid Christine Nye of El Paso, Texas.

Lt. Day was bombardier in the 8th air force in England and just recently returned from overseas. They will reside at El Monte, Calif.

Revival at Baptist Church

On Sunday September 16th we are to begin a two weeks revival. Services each day, 10 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. Reverend Eural Lawson, pastor of First Baptist Church Alamogordo, will do the preaching, and Mr. Earl Cleveland educational director of First Baptist Church Silver City will have charge of the music.

We are looking forward to a well filled house throughout the meeting. Good preaching and good singing. A real revival. We want you to come and take part and feel like it is your meeting.

O. L. Oldham, Pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Wilson are at home after spending some time at Espinola. Mr. Wilson was employed in war work at a near by town.

The importance of the development of irrigation to New Mexico is highlighted by the fact that 50% of the 34,000 farms in the State are under irrigation.

Although New Mexico ranks fourth in area among 48 states, it has the smallest water area of any state in the Union. Vast arid and semi-arid districts require irrigation for abundant activity.

Top for Toy Chest Is a Folding Table

STENCILING the scalloped borders, bright stars and topsyturvy letters on this toy chest is sure to put you in gay spirits. The chest itself is easy to make from scraps of plywood and it has a number of special features that will please Mother as well as the youngsters.

The rope handles and wooden wheels make it possible to move a complete assortment of toys to any convenient spot. Then all comes the lid: folding legs are opened up, and Little Miss Muffit has a table just the right height for play. When Mother wants to move, toys and all are trundled along until it is time for pandas and dolls to be tucked away under the star-spangled top for another night.

NOTE—Pattern is available to readers showing how to make this chest and folding table top. Also illustrated directions for decoration with stencils which require no special skill for perfect results. Color guide is included. Ask for Pattern 233 and enclose 15c with name and address. Send to:

By BABE RUTH
(As Told to Ben Epstein,
Sports Writer.)

I'm for the Kids!

The government, national and municipal, is throwing the kids of America a curve!

Don't get me wrong. The old Babe hasn't fallen for one of those phonyisms. I like my United States the way they started it. The guys who wrote the Constitution were no bushers. They won a pennant their first time out and this country has been in first place ever since. That's class, no morning glory record. The kind that knocked off the Nazis with their hidden ball tricks and likewise sky-hiked the Japs to their ancestors.

With Eisenhower, Halsey and MacArthur hitting in the clean-up spots, the World Series is a cinch. That's why you and I are proud of our 48 States setup. Three hundred plus hitters from top to bottom supported by a double play combo, sound catching and fast outfield that knows how to handle sneak attacks. I'm no military expert but in war, as in baseball, you must be strong down the middle.

What has all this got to do with the Government taking a potshot, perhaps innocently, at the kids? Simply this: It has completely forgotten them.

Yep, I know the diamonds are still there and nobody is bothering the kids. That's the trouble. No one is bothered over the fact that they are playing with broom sticks and balls made out of a synthetic something. This is the situation in New York and, no doubt, the same in other cities. It's both depressing and alarming. Not only to the future of baseball and other sports, but more important the moral and physical welfare of our future citizens.

SAWDUST FILLED BASEBALLS

I know materials that ordinarily go into the making of sports athletic equipment were necessary for guns, chips, planes, etc. I say they could be made without let up and take heat off the kids. It's up to the law makers. How? Simply by freezing the many so-called "essentials." It seems to me that some of the manufacturers continue to make useless gadgets for the grown-ups who "understand." Personally, I would sacrifice my shoes if I thought it meant the elimination of sawdust now stuffing what is now called a baseball.

If it's one thing I know, it's the make-up of the average kid. I've buddied with thousands of 'em from coast to coast, but let's keep home runs out of the column. Their language is playing games with equipment made out of durable stuff. With such baseballs, gloves and bladders unavailable, he gradually drifts to the corners where he figures it's more interesting. Have you noticed the rise in juvenile delinquency lately?

Right now, the only playable baseballs, good for an inning or more, are being manufactured for the professionals. I suppose that Organized Baseball is doing the best it can. All balls fouled into the stands are donated to members of the armed forces. I endorse that idea. Certainly the soldiers and sailors need recreation. But that brings me right back to where I started: What about the kids?

What about the kids and future of baseball? The kids, mind you, are the life blood of the game. And if the game doesn't come to the aid of the kids, baseball will strangle itself with its own hands. Today, major league competition is a Class D standard. The majority of players who return from the service will be passee.

Comebacks for them is a rough assignment. The gap is big. Hank Greenberg is gamely trying to beat the rap and you can see from his batting average the going is tough—almost too tough. But gritty service guys like Hank should make it.

Night play, which I tagged as an out-and-out mockery of baseball in this same space last year, just about rubs out the lid for keeps. Sensible parents will put him to bed where he belongs but won't improve his baseball education. Meanwhile the owners are favoring father schedules under the arcs, which also makes CENTS. Occasional games under the lights, say, between 7 and 14 per season, is okay for the sake of novelty. If the owners play every night except Sunday—how are they going to replenish when the present crop of Class Ds run out?

The reason I grabbed a chance to manage the Eastern teams in the Esquire all-American boys game is because I will be able to be with them for a week—seven days with a gang of kids. I plan to cram in as much teaching as I can. You'd be surprised how little some of them know about inside baseball. For example. At a baseball school in Florida some Springs ago I thought I had discovered another second baseman on the order of Charley Gehringer. That is, I did until I realized he didn't know he was supposed to cover second base.

Contour Cultivation Grows on U. S. Farms

Bigger Yields Result From Soil Protection

Expansion of contour cultivation under the Agricultural Adjustment agency program has been rapid during the war years. Assistance for contour practices was given on a record total of 29,217,000 acres last year, including contouring intertilled crops, contouring drilled crops, contour listing, furrowing, chiseling, and subsoiling, and contour strip cropping.

This method of farming "around the slope" instead of up and down the hill cuts down erosion by preventing water from carrying off the soil. It increases acre-yield of crops, maintains their quality by holding the fertile topsoil in place, and increases the moisture content of the land. Combined with other better farming practices, it has been found to add to their effectiveness.

States in the north central area more than tripled their acreage of contour drilled crops and almost doubled their acreage of contour intertilled crops, reports show. Three southern states—Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas—raised their acreage of small grain and other drilled crops on the contour by about 50 per cent.

Studies have brought out that when contouring cuts the speed of the water run-off in half, for example, its capacity for carrying soil drops about 75 per cent.

Some startling increases in acre yield have been reported in specific areas as a direct result of the conservation of moisture, soil and plant nutrients through contouring. An increase of 23 bushels more corn an acre in one Iowa area, 6.2 bushels of soybeans per acre in Illinois, 44 more bushels of potatoes per acre in New York, an increase of four bushels of wheat per acre in the Great Plains, and 29 pounds more cotton per contoured acre in Texas.

Postwar Machinery Haymaker

The haymaker cuts the hay and passes it directly from the mower cutter bar by means of a pickup attachment to a pair of rollers to crack the stems.

The haymaker, designed by John Bean Manufacturing company, has a seven-foot cut, with mower built into the machine, operated from the power takeoff by any full two-plov tractor. Has hydraulic lift and reduces the time of drying at least 50 per cent.

Ideal Leather Punch

Belt Punch Made of Cartridge Shell.

By using the size rifle cartridge shell desired, leather punches may be made. Holes cut in the side of the shell enable the emptying of leather without trouble.

Treat Pullet Ills

Pullet flocks often are affected by a strange malady known as Pullet Disease, or Blue Comb. Individual birds may show darkened combs, labored breathing, inactivity and sleepiness and the legs have a dry withered appearance. Rutgers university recommends for an emergency treatment that 2 tablespoonfuls of muriate of potash be placed in each gallon of drinking water. To prevent the disease 1½ pounds can be added to 100 pounds of mash.

Advance Fall Millinery Shows Reveal Exciting Style Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HIGHT, built, rounded lines, thick edges completely transform hat silhouettes for fall. The new bulky brims and tall crowns, come draped or shirred to look imposing, give an entirely different and more important look than last year's flat tops. Berets look rounded and sort of inflated, pillboxes have grown so tall and boxy that only seeing is believing, visor brims take on high balloon-like crowns, the entire bespeaking a "more hat" vogue.

While the new-type hats are flattering with every hair style, most of them will be found particularly adaptable to the popular "up" hairdo. In fact, they have been especially tuned to accommodate up-swept hair with topknot curl and other soft arrangements.

One of the favorites for immediate wear is the new off-face roller after the manner of the hat pictured below to the right. This most likable and shapely little felt requires little trimming to "show it off." In this instance a pert ribbon cocardé is held in place with two button-like ornaments.

The cossack style centered in the group is one of the best sellers in the initial fall showings. It is the sort that will declare the "new look" at a glance. The band of ribbon ending in a decorative arrangement of loops and ends is most attractive. It will look stunning with your fall suit or your smart belted-in shortie coat.

Another highlight of the season is the hat with a tiny roll brim surmounted with an imposing balloon draped crown as shown below to the left in the group. This is one of the new-style shapes that is so self-glamorous it requires little or no trimming. Many of the new hats are just like that, so shapely that interest centers about contour more than anything else. The word "success" is written all over this sensationally new-looking felt.

However, the prospects are for most elaborately trimmed millinery for late fall and winter wear. Hats will be gorgeously be-feathered and lavishly garnished with ribbons, embroidery and glitter-glamour decor. Fur will be played up in trimming accents, and for the entire hat in every possible way. Even now hats are being shown with a flash of fur trim that tucks most effectively into the autumn scene. As a forerunner of the big vogue for fur that is on its way, you will find fetching little models as the hat shown above to the left. Its swath of silver fox pompons not only gives it style distinction, but it will be found the answer to what type hat to wear with the handsome silver fox scarf to complete a patrician ensemble.

A very effective use of ostrich is seen in the lovely off-face hat pictured above to the right. This charming use of ostrich as a halo about the upturned face-framing brim is but a forerunner of that which is to be this fall in way of extravagantly beautiful ostrich.

One of the new trends that makes for charming millinery is seen in the cunning bonnet types that are showing up in the new fall collections. These include endless versions, from girlish little flat scoops to wide face-framing brims with high crowns. Rumor has it that before the season is over we will be wearing quaint little bonnets that tie under the chin with pretty bows of ribbon or lace.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

New Fall Costume

Here is a costume that carries that new fall look. For dramatic gesture, it takes on stunning red lizard trapunto detail in a manner that bespeaks high style distinction. The one-piece dress under-seath has a black satin top.

Velvet in Comeback Combined With Wool

We haven't been seeing so much of velvet in the past several seasons, but this season it is staging a real comeback. Velvet in combination with wool is featured smartly in the new collections. The coat with velvet sleeves has high fashion rank. Dresses with velvet yokes are very smart also suits the jackets of which half velvet and half wool. Velvet tunic suits for restaurant wear present a most intriguing theme. They have deep armhole sleeves and a softly belted waistline. Some velvet hats are seen in the new collections with soft plumage or jeweled ornament.

Poncho Blouses Are Chic, And Easy to Launder, Too

Write "poncho blouse" on your shopping list. The poncho blouse is a real "must have" for the girl that wants a simple easy-to-laundry blouse to wear with her suit or to complete her chic blouse-and-skirt costume. The poncho blouse is a one-piece affair that has a pretty neckline and that takes a minimum of material to make and beat of all it opens out flat for easy ironing. You slip it over the head (it has no under-arm seams) but the trick is that the front part fastens at the back and the back section is brought to the front by way of short each ends which tie at the front waistline. Excellent patterns are easily available for the poncho blouse, or you can get charming styles all made up ready to wear.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

"Hard Sponge," a new synthetic rubber product developed by B. F. Goodrich, combines great strength with extreme lightness. Experiments point to its possible use in airplane wings.

A type of vine recently discovered in China, which attaches itself to trees and other objects, has been found to yield latex (natural rubber). Stems grow to 50 feet in length and yield about a pound of latex.

Inner tubes made with a special type of synthetic rubber hold air much longer than tubes made of natural rubber.

Put FRAM Oil Filters on All Three!

HERE'S how to save a lot of long, costly repairs... lengthen the life of your car, truck, tractor or stationary engine. Just install Fram oil filters!

WHY EVERY ENGINE NEEDS FRAM
During normal operation, dirt, dust, grit and other abrasives are sucked into engines. At the same time carbon and sludge are formed within the engines. Unless filtered out, the dirt and carbon grind away moving parts, while the sticky sludge clogs oil channels to hamper lubrication and increase wear. But with a Fram, these impurities are filtered out, to keep motor oil visually clean! That's why millions of Fram filters and cartridges are used by our armed forces—why Fram is standard equipment on more than 75 famous car, truck, tractor, bus, marine and stationary engines. Experts agree on Fram!

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
Remember, a Fram oil filter must satisfy you, or you get your money back. If your equipment is already filter-equipped, Fram replacement cartridges can be put in present filters to step up performance. Remember, Fram oil filters are easy to install and cartridges may be changed in a jiffy. So see your dealer today! Find out "How's Your Oil Filter?" The Dipstick tells the story!

VICTORY AND THE Telephone WAITING LIST

American arms have won a glorious victory. Our Soldiers, Sailors and Marines have defeated the enemy in the air, on the land and on the seven seas.

They have teamed up with Industry, Labor and Science to preserve the American way of life we cherish.

And now must come the adjustment inevitable after almost four years of total war.

Now that the war is won we are determined to bring telephone service as quickly as humanly possible to the 60,000 persons in the Mountain States territory now waiting.

Telephone manufacturing plants have been devoted almost completely to war purposes during these years of crisis.

Reconverting them to the manufacture of civilian telephone equipment is a tremendous job which will take many months.

Then when all the telephone facilities we need are pouring out of the factories, before us will be the biggest job this Company has ever faced—installing the needed telephones, the equipment in the telephone offices, and the wires and cables used in furnishing telephone service.

We are glad that the employees of this Company in the armed forces will be returning to us to help in this big job.

Assistance to Veterans

Veterans returning home from the wars will find that laws have been enacted for their benefit, and also agencies functioning through which they can obtain assistance with their problems.

A meeting was conducted in Carrizozo, Thursday, August 9, by representatives of the War Manpower Commission, Selective Service System, and Veterans Administration. The purpose of the meeting was to coordinate the efforts of the various agencies so each would understand the assistance that could be given to the veterans by each agency. Other persons attending the meeting were representatives of the American Legion, of Carrizozo and Captain; the American Legion Auxiliary, of Carrizozo; Extension Service; Local Selective Service Board; U S. Employment Service; Welfare Department; and other interested individuals.

The meeting was conducted by Col. Hood and Capt. Hale, of the State Selective Service. System Mr. Tadlock, of the War Manpower Commission, of Albuquerque explained the procedure his agency followed in assisting veterans to find employment. He directed veterans to contact the U. S. Employment Office, at Alamogordo for further information.

Lt. Carter, of the Veterans Administration explained the G. I. Bill of Rights, which included a discussion on pensions, hospitalization, education, loans, and insurance.

In September, the first water is expected to reach the Tucumcari Irrigation Project. This program, under the direction of the Bureau of Reclamation, will eventually cover 45,000 acres.

Irrigation of another half-million acres of rich farm land in New Mexico, added to the 540,000 acres now irrigated, would be but one of several far-reaching benefits which could be realized in the postwar era.

EL PASO— International Mining Day will be celebrated November 2 and 3 in El Paso.

The mining committee of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the annual celebration, has decided to advance the date so as not to interfere with the opening of the hunting season in New Mexico.

The committee also began to poll mining machinery corporations throughout the country, asking whether they would care to participate in a mining exhibit which would be held in conjunction with International Mining Day.

Eugene M. Thomas, Dean of Engineering of the Texas College of Mines, is the general chairman for International Mining Day of 1945.

Nearly 500 registered for the 1944 celebration. International Mining Day is a get-together for mining men of New Mexico, Texas, Arizona, Colorado and Mexico. Although the program is primarily social, culminating with the famous Sourdough Supper, one business meeting is held at which leaders in the mining industry speak. The El Paso Metals Section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers also has a program in conjunction with International Mining Day.

The Carlsbad Section of the AIME is expected to participate in this year's program.

Marine Corps Needs Volunteers

U. S. Marine Corps will accept 100 applicants from 17-year old men, according to the El Paso Marine Office. Men who are anxious for immediate service can leave at once for their "Boot Training" at Parris Island, S. C. Those interested should write or apply to U. S. Marine Recruiting Office, 905 Mills Building, El Paso, Texas.

LUXURY FOODS EASILY CANNED AT HOME

As long as there is a war and for some time thereafter, luxury items in the food line will be scarce, costly or non-existent. Commonplace items become luxuries when a nation suffers shortages of labor, machinery, trucks, and trains for producing and delivering nonessential material for civilian use.

But, we have the word of Gladys Kimbrough, editor of the famous Ball Blue Book of canning recipes, that no home pantry need be shy of a variety of luxury items, many of which are easily canned at home!

We agree with Miss Kimbrough when she says, "It is a shameful and unnecessary disappointment when one cannot find mushrooms for the sauce after saving up enough points for a steak." Of course, there is no point in being caught short on mushrooms, but remember you won't have any use for the steak if you go out and collect any and everything which might be a mushroom. Some of those toadstools are poisonous.

Home canned eggplant is delicious when seasoned with onion, pepper, butter and perhaps a dash of tomato sauce; the mixture blended with egg and bread crumbs and baked. Some of the crumbs should come out on top where they will brown nicely.

Miss Kimbrough does the eggplant dish and a similar one with home canned summer squash by rule of thumb. However, the recipe she gave us to put at the end of this story is very, very exact because home canning is not rule-of-thumb business. Those of you who like them and live near where they grow might as well have all the artichokes you want. Canning them is no trick at all when you have a good recipe and follow it.

Cranberries were reasonably plentiful in the market the week before last Thanksgiving Day—but did you try to find them a month later? Well, maybe this year you will remember that home canned cranberry sauce is just about the easiest of anything to can. What's more, it has a wonderful flavor and goes as well with chicken in May as with turkey in December.

Make Red Pepper Jam
Yes, we know this isn't cranberry season, but you need not wait that long if you have a yen for something tart, sweet and red to add a touch of glamour to an otherwise drab meal. That something is Red Pepper Jam. When you make it, be sure to use meaty red sweet peppers. Those with thin walls and bitter flavor will not serve the purpose.

Whether the item you plan to can is necessity or luxury, please, for your own sake, pay careful attention to the selection and use of jars. It is false economy to use anything but regular home canning jars. Most of those used by commercial packers are very thin and intended to be discarded when emptied. They must be light weight in order to keep down shipping cost. Compare the weight of a salad dressing jar with a milk bottle and you will see what we mean. A regular home canning jar doesn't need to be as heavy as a milk bottle because it does not receive such hard use but it must be heavy enough to stand up under home canning conditions.

COMMUNITY SPIRIT ENCOURAGES GROWTH FOR THE COMMUNITY, whose people wish it to grow and prosper, no one thing is more essential than community spirit. The future of any town lies in the hands of all of its people, not in the hands of a few "Georges" only. Each citizen must put his shoulder to the wheel of progress, and do his or her part in pushing it forward.

In the promotion of a community's interests there must be a leader, some one, or group or institution, that proposes forward-looking steps. To be successful that leader must have influence. The logical leader in most instances is that community institution, the home town newspaper. If it is the right kind of a newspaper it has influence. It can be, and is in a position to mold public opinion. It reaches the community audience, and what it proposes should become a subject of discussion through its columns.

No newspaper editor is always right. His proposals may be, and as a rule are, in line with community progress, but there may be those who object to what the editor has proposed. If he is conducting "the right kind of a newspaper" he welcomes to the discussion those who are against as well as those who are for, and prints the letters from both as a means of community discussion. Those whose letters to the editor approve do so in a spirit of helpfulness. They display their willingness to do their part for what they believe is a worthy community enterprise. They are not willing to sit back and let "George" carry the load. Those who disapprove do so because they do not believe the proposal would serve the best interests of the community, and they are fearful of the influence of the newspaper, and realize its opportunity to mold public opinion. Both those who approve and those who disapprove display that community spirit so essential to progress.

The community that is lacking in leadership, or where there is not a willingness on the part of the citizens to discuss proposed betterments, is a good place to "be from." It means a dying town in which the great majority of the citizens are but drones in the hive, who are unwilling to show their colors, or to carry their part of the load.

The newspaper that does not have influence, or the one that is published in a place in which community spirit is not alive, and cannot be aroused, will, in time, find a place in the newspaper cemetery. The newspaper with influence can be, and is, the institution best fitted for community leadership, but if it cannot arouse and maintain recognition of that leadership, demonstrated by the response of the people to its proposals, it will fall in accomplishing much for the community it wishes to serve.

I LISTENED to a conversation between a state and a city official on the subject of taxes. The city official was insisting on an increase in the state sales tax, with a refund to the city or town of what the increase produced in each city or town. To such a proposition the state official objected. It was the old, old story of an effort to pass the tax buck.

If the state levied that increase the state official would pay the vote price, while the city would collect, indirectly, the dollar revenue. It represents an evil from which the American people have long suffered.

Our officials attempt to hide their own spendings behind an indirect tax levy. If each governing body had to directly account for what it spends we might have a greater effort at economy. That is true of federal as well as local government.

IN A SMALL TOWN in a central state three men secured a corporation state charter for a manufacturing concern capitalized at $2,500. They applied to the local bank for a loan of the $2,500 their charter called for as capital assets. The bank could not see an incorporation charter as ample security for such a loan, and the men were referred to the small business organization of the federal government. They secured the loan. That is a sample of how we, as taxpayers, are financing new industries. These three men have nothing to lose, but they may gain. The taxpayer does the gambling.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CONSTITUTIONAL government is to provide orderly processes that enable the people, as individuals, to do for themselves. When we encourage mendacity, we destroy that purpose.

The last congress did not vote a raise in the salaries of its members. That would not fit in with the people's demands for economy. It merely voted to provide more places for the family on the government payroll.

Production of Civilian Radios Gets Under Way

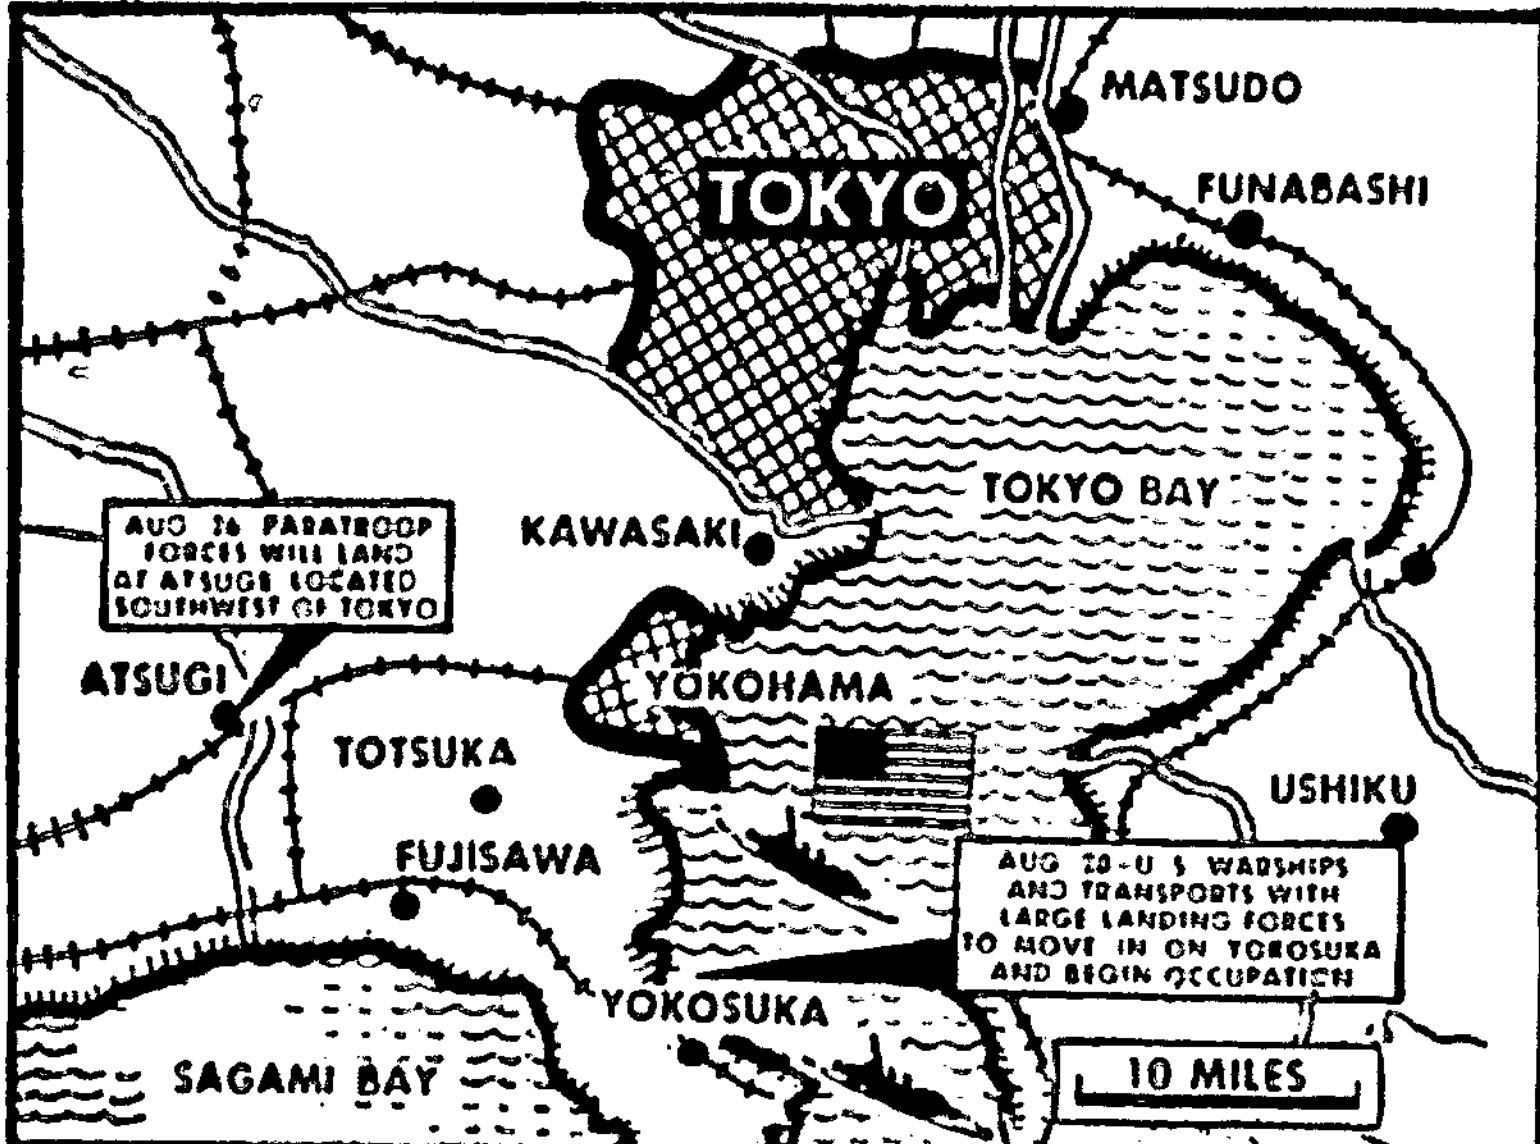

Production of radios for civilian sale has started in full force. One of the first radio production lines in the country is pictured at a Plymouth, Ind., plant. The capacity of the plant will shortly be 2,000 sets a day. This will aid materially in making radio sets available for almost every need. Production has speeded up beyond earlier reports with every indication that the market will shortly be well supplied.

TREASURY'S COMPLEX TAX PROBLEMS
(Ed. Note—In Drew Pearson's absence, Fred M. Vinson, secretary of the treasury, contributes a guest column on one of the most important problems of the treasury—tax evasion.)

Drew Pearson has offered me his Washington Merry-Go-Round column to present any subject of interest to the treasury department and to the American people. I know of no subject of more immediate concern than the treasury's campaign against tax evasion.

—Here, in a nutshell, is the situation the treasury faces:

In 1940 there were 4,999,999 individual taxpayers. Today there are more than 50,000,000. In an effort to handle the vastly increased task of processing returns and collecting taxes the personnel of the bureau of internal revenue was increased from about 22,000 to about 50,000.

With the manpower or shortage the bureau could not expect to increase its forces proportionately with the number of taxpayers. And in many respects bureau employees found their work increased out of proportion to the number of returns. Under the withholding program, a large part of the work formerly done by the taxpayer is now done in the bureau. The processing of wartime tax relief provisions also threw much additional work upon the bureau. Under these conditions the normal investigative work of the bureau inevitably suffered.

The bureau has always proceeded upon the theory that the average American is honest, and that a small but efficient force could deal with the dishonest. But millions of us are now taxpayers and the honest must be protected against those among us who, tempted by war-swollen incomes and shortages in civilian goods and services, would cheat the rest of us. No city, however small, can afford to be without a police force. And no city, which has experienced a population increase of more than tenfold in a five-year period, would think of trying to get along without enlarging its law enforcement groups.

That is why the treasury is building up its investigative forces. Our object is to recruit and train 5,000 men.

This will be no Gestapo. It will be a taxpayers' law enforcement group protecting the government's interest in taxes, and at the same time protecting the honest taxpayer against the black market operator, the racketeer and every other kind of tax evader. And it will be good business, too. We expect to collect $20 for every one spent.

When taxes are evaded the honest taxpayer loses, since every dollar evaded increases by that much the burden borne by other taxpayers. In many cases, the honest taxpayer has especial reason to welcome the tax-evasion campaign. A reputable furrier or jeweler, for instance, could not continue in business if a next-door competitor should be permitted to sell furs or jewelry without collecting excise taxes. Any business firm which cheats the government by failing to pay for the services which government provides is engaged in dishonest competition, just as much as if it cheated the landlord out of his rent or workers out of their pay. Taxes are high, but they must be collected fairly. And so long as any substantial portion of the taxes due remains uncollected, it operates to defer the reduction of tax rates.

Much more than expedience directs this tax-evasion campaign. Fundamental morality is involved. The man who evades taxes picks his neighbor's pocket. And in these times, when we are asking so much from the men in uniform, any pocket-picking at their expense becomes unthinkable. As President Truman has said:

"We are not fighting this war to make millionaires, and certainly we are not going to allow the black-market operators or any other racketeers to be in a favored class, when the men in the armed forces, and our citizens generally, are sacrificing so heavily."
My readers may say, "All right. Tax evasion is indefensible. How bad is it? What are you doing about it?"

The answers to the two questions go together. The treasury is gathering, from many sources, information that will give the entire picture of tax evasion. That same information will serve as evidence to bring tax evaders to justice. The treasury is enlarging its investigative forces, as I have noted, to handle a tremendous backlog of fraud cases, accumulated during recent years and the cases now piling in.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

THE STORY THIS FAR: American troops, taking part in the invasion of Italy, arrived at the seaport town of Adano. Major Victor Joppolo, from Brooklyn, New York, was in charge as the Amgot officer. With him was Sergeant Leonard Borth, to serve as M.P. in charge of security. The Major immediately began to interview the citizens of Adano, in order to determine their needs. He was determined that nothing would be left undone which would improve their conditions and make their lives more pleasant. With Borth, Major Joppolo inspected the former Nazi headquarters, which he was to use as his office. He spent his first hours getting acquainted.

CHAPTER II

Major Joppolo said: "Do not bow. There is no need to grovel here. I am only a Major. Borth here is a Sergeant. Are you a man?"

Little Zito was getting very mixed up. "No sir," he said cautiously. Then he saw by the Major's expression that he should have said yes, and he did.

The Major said: "You may greet me by shaking my hand. You will greet Sergeant Borth in the same way."

Borth said, and his expression showed that he was teasing the Italian: "First I will find out if he's a dangerous Fascist."

Little Zito did not know whether to laugh or cry. He was frightened but he was also flattered by these men. He said: "I will never lie to you, Mister Major. I am anti-Fascist, Mister Sergeant. I will be usher here."

Major Joppolo said: "Be here at seven o'clock each morning."

"Seven o'clock," said Zito.

A brief burst of machine gun and rifle fire echoed from distant streets. Zito cringed.

Borth said: "You are perhaps a man but you are also frightened."

Major Joppolo said: "Has it been bad here?"

Zito started jabbering about the bombardments and the air raids. "We are very hungry," he said when he had cooled down a little. "For three days we have not had bread. All the important ones ran away and left me here to guard the Palazzo. The stink of dead is very bad, especially in the Piazza San Angelo. Some people are sick because the drivers of the water carts have not had the courage to get water for several days, because of the planes along the roads. We do not believe in victory. And our bell is gone."

Major Joppolo said: "Your bell?"

Zito said: "Our bell which was seven hundred years old. Muscolini took it. It rang with a good tone each quarter hour. Muscolini took it to make rifle barrels or something. The town was very angry. Everyone begged the Monsignor, who is the uncle of the Mayor, to offer some church bells instead. But the Monsignor is uncle of the Mayor, he is not the sort to denigrate churches, he says. It meant we lost our bell. And only two weeks before you came. Why did you not come sooner?"

"Where was this bell?"

"Right here," Zito pointed over his head. "The whole building tingled when it rang."

Major Joppolo said to Borth: "I saw the framework for the bell up on the tower, did you?" Then he added to Zito: "That is your reason for wanting us to have come sooner, is it?"

Zito was careful. "Partly," he said.

Now Major Joppolo said in English more or less to himself: "It's a nice picture, I wonder how old it is, maybe it's by somebody famous."

The Major went to the desk, pulled out the high-backed chair and sat in it, carefully putting his feet on the scrolwork footstool.

Borth said: "How does it feel, Duce?"

The Major said: "There is so much to do, I hardly know where to begin."

Borth said: "I know what I must do. I've got to find the offices of the Fascist Party, to see if I can find more records. May I take the Mister Usher and look for the Fascist?"

"Go ahead, Borth," the Major said.

When the two had left, Major Joppolo opened his brief case and took out some papers. He put them in a neat pile on the desk in front of him and began to read:

"INSTRUCTIONS TO CIVIL AFFAIRS OFFICERS. First day: Enter the city with the first column. Cooperate with C.I.C. in placing guards and seizing records. Place all food warehouses, enemy food dumps, wholesale food concerns, and other major food stocks under guard. Secure an estimate from local food distributors of the number of days of food supplies which are on hand or available. Make a report through channels on food situation in your area. See that the following establishments are placed under guard or protection: foundries, machine shops, electrical works, chemical plants, flour mills, breweries, cement plants, refrigeration plants, ice plants, warehouses, olive oil refineries, sulphur refineries, tannery mills, soap manufacturing plants, and any other important establishments. Locate and make available to port authorities all known local pilots.

And he read: "Don't make yourself cheap. Always be accessible to the public. Don't play favorites. Speak Italian whenever possible. Don't lose your temper. When plans fall down, improvise."

That was the one he wanted. When plans fall down, improvise.

The door opened. A man came in whose appearance was vaguely familiar to Major Joppolo. The Major realized later that he had seen, not this man, but several who looked just like him, in bad American movies. He was the type of the second-rate Italian gangster, the small fellow in the gang who always stood behind the boss and who always took the rap. He had the bald head, the weak mouth. He had a scar across his cheek. His eye was furtive and he had the appearance of being willing but in need of instructions.

"I could do a good job for you."

He said in English: "You pull up a flag. War's a finish here in Adano, huh?"

The Major said: "Yes, who are you?"

The Italian said: "I'm from a Cleveland, Ohio. I been here a three year. You got a work for me?"

Major Joppolo said: "What's your name?"

The Italian said: "Ribaldo Giuseppe. In a Cleveland, call a me Joe."

Major Joppolo said: "What can you do?"

Ribaldo said: "I'm a good American. I'm a hate these Fascisti. I could do a good a job for you."

Major Joppolo said: "If you're such a good American, why did you leave the States?"

Ribaldo said: "I'm a kick out."

"Why?"

"I'm a no passport."

"How'd you get in, then?"

"I got a plenty friends in a Cleveland and a Buffalo."

"What did you do in the States?"

"Oh, I work a here, work a there."

Major Joppolo was pleased with Ribaldo for not trying to lie about his illegal entry and repatriation. He said: "Okay, I'll hire you. You will be my interpreter."

"You don't speak Italian?"

"Yes, but there'll be other Americans here who don't, and I may need you for other things, too. Do you know these people well, do you know who's for us Americans and who's against us?"

"Sure, a boss, I help a you plenty."

"All right, what did you say your name was?"

"Ribaldo Giuseppe, just a Joe for you."

"No, we're in Italy, I'll call you Giuseppe here. Just two things now, Giuseppe. You've got to be honest with me; if you're not, you'll be in bad trouble. The other is, don't expect me to do you any favors I wouldn't do for anyone else, see?"

"Oh sure, a boss. You don't a worry."

"Now tell me, what does this town need the most?"

"Please, Giuseppe."

Giuseppe hurried down the long room and opened the door. Two men almost tumbled in. Both were well dressed, and had neckties on. One of them was quite old. The other was very fat and looked forty. They hurried down the room, and each seemed anxious not to let the other get ahead of him.

The old one said in English, with a careful British accent: "My name is Cacopardo, at your service, Major. I am eighty-two. I own most of the sulphurs in this place. Here Cacopardo is sulphur and sulphur is Cacopardo. I wish to give you advice whenever you need of it."

The fat one, who seemed annoyed with Cacopardo for speaking first, said in English: "Craxi, my name. I have a telegram."

Major Joppolo said: "What can I do for you gentlemen?"

Cacopardo said: "Advices."

Craxi said: "Telegram."

Cacopardo said: "The Americans coming to Italian countryside need some advices." The old man looked straight at Giuseppe the interpreter and added: "I wish to advise you to be careful, in Adano are many men who were illegal in America, some men too who were condemned to the electrical chair in Brooklyn of New York."

Major Joppolo, seeing Giuseppe's embarrassment, said: "Giuseppe, I want to speak to the priest of the town. Will you get him for me?"

Giuseppe said: "Which priest, a boss?"

Cacopardo said: "In Adano are thirteen churches, Major, and in come, like San Angelo and San Sebastiano, are two or three priests."

Major Joppolo said: "Which church is best?"

Cacopardo said: "In churches ought not to be good and bad, but San Angelo is best, because Father Penoccechio is best of all."

Major Joppolo said to Giuseppe: "Get him for me, will you?"

"Yes, a boss," Giuseppe said, and left.

When he had left, Major Joppolo said to Cacopardo: "Is this Giuseppe fellow not to be trusted?"

Cacopardo bowed and said: "I mention only the electrical chair, I am not one to name the names."

Major Joppolo spoke sharply: "You said you came to advise me. I must know about this Giuseppe. Is he to be trusted or not?"

The old man bowed again and said: "Giuseppe is a harmless one."

The fat Craxi was growing very annoyed that Cacopardo was getting all the attention. He said: "I have a telegram. Please to deliver."

Major Joppolo said: "This isn't a telegraph office. There's a war going on. Do you think we have nothing better to do than deliver telegrams?"

Craxi was apologetic. "I am anti-Fascist. I have a telegram. You are the one who can deliver it." And he pulled out from his pocket a piece of ruled paper, folded four ways and planned shut with a safety pin. He handed the paper to the Major, who put it down on his desk, to the disappointment of Craxi.

The Major said: "You say you've come to advise me. Then tell me, what does this town need the most right now?"

Cacopardo said: "It needs a bell more than anything."

Craxi said: "Foolishness, a bell. More than anything, to eat is necessary."

Cacopardo said: "The town needs its bell back. You can always eat."

Craxi, who had been rather slighted in the conversation anyhow, now became quite angry. "You can always eat, you Cacopardo," he said.

"You have a million lire, you sulphur. You can eat, but not all the people here can eat." And he turned to the Major: "To eat here is most necessary, more necessary than any bell."

Cacopardo broke into furious Italian: "Fat one, you think only of your stomach. The spirit is more important than the stomach. The bell was of our spirit. It was of our history. It was hung on the tower by Pietro of Aragona. It was designed by the sculptor Lucio de Anj of Modica."

Craxi said in Italian: "People who are very hungry have a ringing in their ears. They have no need of bells."

Cacopardo said: "By this bell the people were warned of the invasion of Roberto King of Naples, and he was driven back."

Craxi said: "People with malaria also have a ringing in their ears."

Cacopardo said: "The bell warned the people when Admiral Targout brought his French and his Turks to this place in 1553 and burned many homes and churches, and all that was left in the Church of Our Mother was the little silver crucifix which you will see now in the Church of San Angelo."

The Major said in Italian: "We have no time for this recital. I wish to know what things are pressing and must be taken care of at once."

Craxi said: "I have spoken. Food is the first thing."

Cacopardo said: "The bell must be taken care of at once." The bell did not want us of this invasion, or we would have been in the streets with towers to welcome you."

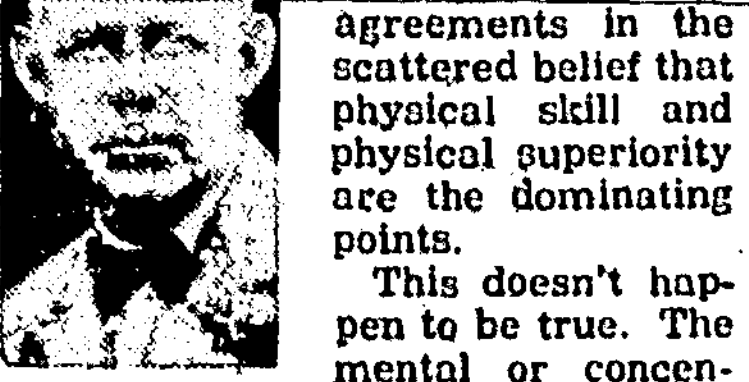

"I open 'em up, a boss?" Giuseppe was at least eager.

A SHORT time back we opened a discussion on the importance of concentration and other mental aids on the side of winning competition. This piece seems to have developed a number of repercussions and disagreements in the scattered belief that physical skill and physical superiority are the dominating points.

This doesn't happen to be true. The mental or concentrative side is still more important than the physical side. What good is a pitcher with blinding speed who can't locate the plate, who has no change of pace, who doesn't know the weakness of opposing batters?

When Lefty Grove first came along with the Athletics, I recall watching him strike out six of the first nine Yankees who faced him, and then have his West Virginia ears pinned back by the fifth inning as he headed for the cooling shower. Grove only became a great pitcher when he learned how to pitch.

Such students of golf as Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour and others have all told me that they rate the mental or emotional side of golf at 70 per cent—the physical side at 30 per cent.

Many years ago on a knoll at Oatmount, one of the great courses when not spoiled by plow share traps and ice greens. I happened to be standing with Bill Fownes, an able critic of what it takes to win a big tournament. There were nine survivors left, with only nine holes to play in this particular National Open. They were all in a seething mass.

Blowing Up on Last Hole

"This should be a great scramble," I said to Fownes.

"I don't think so," Fownes said. "There are only two men from the nine left who can concentrate through 18 holes. They are Tommy Armour and Harry Cooper." They ran 1-2. The others blew up completely.

If Sammy Sneed had only had the ability to concentrate on his play on Jones, Hagen and Nelson have done, he would have been a sensation. I've seen Sammy in his prime throw away a U. S. Open and $3,500 in cash in a Los Angeles Open by taking two 8's on two final holes where a ten handicap player would have had two 5's. The brain was still the major factor. After all, it was the brain or many brains that developed the atomic bomb.

Brains in sport have nothing to do with any intellectual trend. Fine lawyers, able writers, smart bankers, leading physicians can be extremely dumb on the competitive side of sport. Clowns or illiterates, such as Rube Waddell and Joe Jackson, can be and have been smart baseball people.

Rube Waddell was completely dumb until you handed him a glove and a baseball. Then he became baseball smart. Joe Jackson could neither read nor write, but he was a different human being when you handed him a bat—"the big black bat his brave song sang"—or sent him to the outfield with a glove.

"Only One Play to Make"

I asked Larry Lajotte once if he had ever pulled a bender in a ball game. "How can you pull a bender," he said. "There's always only one place to throw a ball—always only one play to make."

Fred Merkle of the Giants was known as "Bonehead Merkle," but intellectually he was far and away the smartest member of McGraw's old squad, and this included Christy Mathewson. Merkle was a keen student of Kant, Schopenhauer, Plato, pragmatic, and unpragmatic philosophers, but his competitive reflexes were slow and out of line.

Smart competitors in sport can be very dumb people in other lines of living. They can be among the dumbest. Just consider the millions prize fighters have made, only to finish broke and hungry and forgotten in their poverty.

There are those who are only equipped to make a living out of professional sport. They are taking the hard way. For one simple reason—the time they have is short. On a general average they are fading out at 30. They are gone at 40. Then, at what is supposed to be the prime of life, they are through. Only a few smart ones have mapped out an extended trail on beyond.

What the Public Wants

Attendance figures prove again that baseball's big public is more interested in a close scramble, in keener, closer competition than it is in looking at stars.

The quality of baseball played has been a rather deep dip from other years. But the quality of competition has been far higher. Through the first half of the race no manager and no quivering fan in the stands ever knew a ball game was over until the fact man was out.

PUTTING A RIVER TO WORK

Third of a series of feature articles
(Our Washington Reporter has been able to obtain advance copy of a book soon to be published by the Department of Interior, telling the story of the Missouri River and the plans for its development. These plans, are of tremendous interest to the entire country. This paper is fortunate in being able to give its readers the first published account of this vast Government project.)

The Missouri River is going to take on a job, a job serving the people it offer has abused.

In the upper and middle parts of the basin, the river and its tributaries will send water to irrigate more than 5,000,000 moisture-starved acres, as many acres as in all of New Jersey. The flow will generate electricity for the use of people in cities and on farms, for agriculture and industry—more hydroelectric energy than the basin area now uses.

In its lower basin, the Missouri will be confined in a dependable navigation channel. With dams curbing its tributaries and its own upper reaches and with levees lining its banks from Sioux City, Iowa, to its mouth, the Missouri no longer will be a recurring threat to the billion dollars' worth of lower basin property. It will not again inundate the 4,500,000 acres flooded in 1943-44.

Congress has authorized transformation of this dangerous and relatively undeveloped river system into a servant of thrifty agriculture and industry. The Missouri Basin Plan, which now is being readied as rapidly as appropriations allow, is an example of how—after the war—science will contribute to the continuing struggle for economic security and for natural growth.

The plan for the control of the Missouri River System is a giant engineering project. It calls for the creation of approximately 100 new reservoirs with a combined capacity of about 63,000,000 acre feet—equivalent to a foot of water over every acre in Wyoming—exclusive of reservoirs on the lower Missouri and its tributaries in the State of Missouri.

With this water, which now does much harm and comparatively little good, will be irrigated more than 150 units covering 4,700,000 parcher acres in North Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, South Dakota, Wyoming, Kansas and Colorado. An additional half million acres, now inadequately watered, will receive new supplies from the Missouri System.

With this water in short, the Nation will expand its agricultural frontier. It will provide power needed for postwar living. Floods, which year after year have inundated farms and cities, will be stopped.

This, and more, the Missouri waters will do when they are put to work for the Nation.

Man cannot prevent droughts, but by using a river effectively, he can effect their destruction and waste. Rivers are subject to floods, but by controlling them, man can prevent flood damage. He can end for all time this accusation which one magazine writer has made against the Missouri: "It is frequently guilty of desertion, non-support and misconduct: it pulls out, leaving wife and kiddies to starve, and goes around smashing other people's houses."

NOTICE
S. P. Vidal, collector of Internal Revenue for the District of New Mexico has called attention of the taxpaying public in his district that the 20 per cent tax on furs, toilet preparations, luggage and jewelry is still in effect. Through erroneous information and rumors, the source of which is unknown, numerous inquiries have been directed to the Internal revenue office relative to this matter. The New Mexico collector stressed the fact that no changes in federal taxation have yet been officially announced and when changes are enacted by congress they will be announced.

Mr John E Hall of the firm of Brenton & Hall, who resides in Albuquerque spent Tuesday here on business.

Mrs. Ralph Pruet of Tucson, Ariz., is a guest to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Carl Freeman for a few days. Mrs. Pruet is considering moving back to Carrizozo to live

Mr and Mrs. Julian Taylor of Las Cruces were guests of the C. A. Snow and Elmer Eaker families over the week end, returning Las Cruces Monday. While there they enjoyed a trip to the mountains with their hosts

Overseas Mailing
Postal Requirements

When you are making up a Christmas box—early, to meet overseas mailing requirements—for that man in Europe or in the Pacific, remember the women in service, too.

Although thousands of WACS spent last December overseas, for many, aiding in the redeployment of troops and working with occupation forces, the coming Christmas will be their first on foreign soil. Remembrances from home will mean much to them.

In order to make sure that when your Wac overseas receives her Christmas package, it is just like you want her to have it—undamaged, on time follow the War department's postal recommendations.

These four points are particularly important:

Wrap packages securely to withstand rough treatment
Address parcels legibly, using complete army address.

Mail packages between September 15 and October 15, only.

Choose gifts wisely; don't send impractical or unnecessary gifts

For further information about overseas mailing, see your postmaster.
