With The Men—In Service

Capt Ernest Sprinkle, son of Mrs. Ella Sprinkle, of Carrizozo received an award of merit plaque from his commanding officer, Major W. C. Carroll, Jr., of the 3rd Service Command at Hurlburg, Penn in acknowledgment of his untiring devotion to duty and his loyalty to his commanding officer.

Mrs. Ada Edmiston received a message Wednesday that her son, Lt. Harry Edmiston is missing in action in Italy. This message like many others, is fresh cause for gloom.

CHANUTE FIELD, ILL.—First Lt. Joe H. Drake, Box 55, Ancho, N. M., is assigned to an Officers' Communications course at this AAF Training Command station.

Dr. Drake spent one year in Africa where he participated as a combat pilot in 50 bombing missions against the enemy.

The communications course here will run for five months and students are selected on the basis of their experience or technical knowledge. All phases of AAF communications are thoroughly studied, and those completing the course become additionally qualified to act as communications officers.

Dr. Drake will retain his flying status.

Bobby Shafer and Charles Carl, two young Navy men from Carrizozo met on Laysan Island not long ago. Before moving on to the business of war they spent the day together sight seeing and visiting and were pleased to find some one from home.

Special to Lincoln County News. A patrol Jacquin Ortiz arrived this week on a twenty day tour. He will divide his time between Carrizozo and Camp Wolters, Texas.

Special to Lincoln County News. EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER STATION, ENGLAND—Pvt. Al M. Trujillo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Trujillo, of Coyote, New Mexico is a military policeman assigned to the 479th Fighter Group at an Eighth Air Force station in England.

Trujillo acts as perimeter guard. His duties include checking all personnel and vehicles as they enter and leave this airfield at night to which he is assigned.

When an alert is sounded, he becomes a member of a special security detail which checks all buildings and installations on the field to make certain that they are blacked out.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Petra Garcia, was wearing a white wedding dress, made long, with white veil fastened with orange blossoms.

The twelve flower girls were wearing pale blue evening gowns with pink roses in their hair.

The Messrs. Ignacio Torrez and Emilio Gabaldon were the witnesses and therefore sponsors of the wedding dance which was given at Community Hall Saturday evening and attended by about two hundred guests. An orchestra from Roswell furnished the music.

The bride is very attractive and pretty. The groom is an exemplary and industrious young man and is employed by the Southern Pacific Company.

Both belong to prominent Spanish-American families and are popular. Congratulations and good wishes of friends are extended.

LOCAL SOLDIER FIGHTS IN ITALY WITH INFANTRY REGIMENT THAT NEVER RETREATED.

Special to The Lincoln County News.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, ITALY—Rifleman Pvt. Robert G. Gutierrez, of Lincoln, New Mexico, is fighting in Italy with the 361st Infantry Regiment, which spearheaded the advance of Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army from Velletri to the Arno River without having once given ground.

The 361st is part of the 91st "Powder River" Division, currently in the Florence-Bologna drive.

The regiment landed in Italy last May 31; in two days moved into the line and fought its first battle just north of Velletri while attached to the 39th "Texas" Division. The 361st was one of the units that took the Albano Hills and Lake Albano making possible the fall of Rome.

Bypassing Rome, the regiment continued to advance north on Highway 1 and participated in the capture of Tarquinia, which fell June 8, and Montalto, 10 miles further north, which fell on the following day. The 361st then went on to defeat the Germans at Magliano and capture the key terrain feature of Poggio di Meccano on June 17.

The outfit next won a signal victory at Ponte d'Istria, where the unit captured more than 200 Germans. One company of the 361st had crossed the Ombrone river and entered the town; two other companies had flanked the village. A German force counterattacked in the town and was taken by surprise by the flank companies.

The regiment advanced further to take Paganico, Roccastrada, Radicondoli and Casole d'Elsa. It was pulled out of the line for a rest July 4. Rejoining the 91st Division, the 361st attacked again July 14 east of Cetina. It then moved through Orceto, Ponsacco and Pontedera and was the first in Italy to reach the Arno River July 17.

Colonel R. W. Broadbent of Medford, Oregon, veteran of 28 years' service, commands the 361st. He has seen action on the Mexican border and in the First World War and served also in the Philippines and elsewhere in the Orient.

AMERICAN HEROES

In the crushing advance of American Armies in France, T/Sgt. Frank M. Burford, led a small group against a bristling machine-gun strong point, knocking out two emplacements and killing four Nazis. Later another position was routed and two killed. The group pushed on until halted by a Battalion Commander. Sergt. Burford, cited by the Army for gallantry in action, deserves the support that only War Bonds can furnish. Buy War Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

New Year's Wedding.

On January 1st 1945, Miss Margaret Jane Berry became the bride of Mr. Walker H Schoonover, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Schoonover of Claunch. The wedding took place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon with the Rev. L. Evans, pastor of the Claunch Baptist Church officiating, using the solemn ring ceremony.

The bride was attired in a cream colored wool suit trimmed with rose. For something old she carried her mother's wedding handkerchief.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Berry. She was born and reared in Carrizozo and is an attractive and popular junior in High school; she intends to finish school. The groom is a high school student also.

Following the ceremony refreshments were served with the bride cutting the wedding cake in the traditional fashion.

Present at the wedding were the families of both the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Berry, brother and sister-in-law of the bride were here from Escalon, California, for the wedding.

Later in the day the wedding party took group pictures.

AN EDITORIAL FROM STARS AND STRIPES

Every American ought to do at least one hour of combat duty—in infantry style. That's not a practical idea and we know it. But until a man has done a doggie's job he simply doesn't know the score.

He doesn't know how danger punishes the human nervous system. He can't imagine what it's like to creep down a street of empty houses wondering if they are really as empty as they look. Hearing window shades flap and doors creak and expecting the crack of a Karabiner or the burp of a Jerry MG—the last sound on earth.

He doesn't know how much guts it takes to move forward a yard, a foot, an inch. How a second can seem like a year and a minute like eternity.

Until he's lived and fought in the mud and blood, he can't realize what an all-time miracle a doughboy is. To stilet in there day after day after day, and night after night after night.

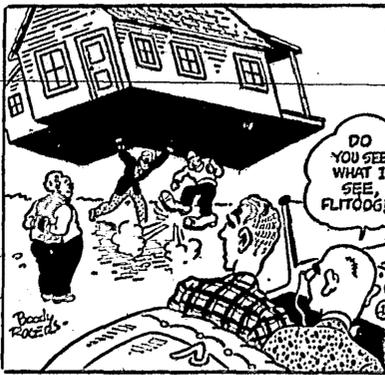

Until then a soldier can't understand what a murderous thing he does when he peddles supplies needed up front.

Until then, War Department officials can't attach enough importance to combat duty in administering its demobilization plan. Nor can they know the inequality of the present system of special pay and privilege for some—with just a few extra dollars a month for the man in the mud.

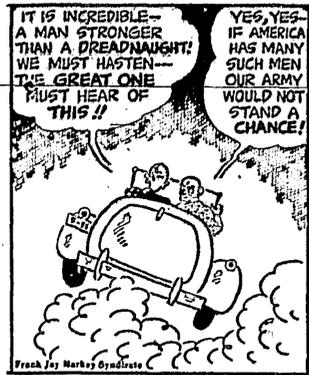

Until then, the nation can't realize—as it cheers the greatest backfield of the greatest team in history—the job being done by the muddy, bloody men of the line.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The popular size tire for bombers is the 56-inch, the making of which takes as much time as the building of seven large truck tires. And an active bomber may need an entire new set of tires each month.

Statisticians have developed the fact that the rubber used by the U. S. in the war up to date averages about 145 pounds per man in uniform. In World War I rubber consumption represented about 32 pounds per man.

Before Morton Downey departed for overseas he was the only entertainer invited to perform before all chiefs of staff in Washington. Gen. Hap Arnold threw it. Tony Martin, the screen star thrush, is now a staff sgt. with the Army in France. Eileen Barton, Sinatra's new canary (and so easy on the ears, too), is making beautiful melodies with an up-and-coming swoon-singer named Tad Bruce. Radio reports a 400 million dollar "take" for 1944. Highest income in radio history. Wendell Corey (he plays the lead opposite star Gertrude Lawrence in her new touring show) had a tiny part as a sergeant in "Follow the Girls." Wonderful little Margaret O'Brien is waiting permish from her movie boss to do her own radio program. Heading a panel of quiz kiddies. According to an OPA bulletin there are 30 billion cigarettes in stores in the U. S. right now.

The Intelligentsia: John B. Kennedy is one of the few news analysts who can take the teletype's prosaic reports and turn them into words that march like armies. He steam-rollered American bigots and left them flatter than their heads. CBS reporter Bill Downs' deft description of captured Nazis: "They have the look of men caught scaling." Criticism over the film, "The 7th Cross" (alleging it portrayed "good" Germans), astonished author Helen Deutsch, who points out that the action in it takes place in 1939 when the underground Germans were trying to purge the nation of the wicked, etc. The good Germans, she adds, included the Manns, Einsteins and other refugees. Pert Lee Carson, the INS girl correspondent covering the war in Europe, inherited the spot vacated by the ailing Richard Trugakis. She's with the 1st Army. Richard was invalided home after more years of war than most men would care to have any part of. Irving Berlin, his own music publisher since Sept. 15th, has already sold 700,000 copies of two songs: "White Christmas" and "Always." The latter is 10 years old.

Quotation Marksmanship: H. G. Wells: Moral indignation is jealousy with a halo. Anon: Snow slowly launders the countryside. The quote recently credited to H. Braun, "Experience is what men call their mistakes," should have been credited to O. Wilde. Then we are informed that Muzet once penned: "Experience is the name men give to their follies or their sorrows." Alan Gale: Was it the Atlantic Charter or just so much Atlantic chatter? Bob Burns' advice to after-dinner speakers: Stand up to be seen, speak up to be heard and shut up to be appreciated. Eggleston: Journalism is organized gossip.

The Wireless: We liked the reunion with Roy Shields' show. This listener hasn't had an opportunity to enjoy it for some time. It remains A-energetic, displaying dilly music trimmed with literary lace continuity. Ethel Barrymore's regular spot on the dial proves radio drama has emerged from the knee-pants stage, despite soft soap operas. Amazing how ordinary dialogue glitters when it comes in contact with Ethel's magical voice. Within three hours one station stabs the air with 23 ringing commercial melodies. One case of that and you turn into Marconi's sworn enemy. Wheezes about shortages skidded into decaived oblivion recently, but the ciggie shortage spoiled it. If you recall the cracks about sugar, coffee, meat, et al, you know all the ciggie.

The Story Tellers: For those wrapped in the illusion that fame comes on a silver platter, Pic mag traces careers of various celebs and proves no one climbs the ladder of success without picking up splinters. In the Atlantic Monthly, W. Lippmann examined the stumbling blocks that might become tombstones for the post-war world. You don't have to wait for tomorrow's events to confirm his warnings—just read today's front pages. Ira Wolfert turns in a vivid job of translating soldiers' emotions with his typewriter via Esquire. A GI's longing for home is something so great "it takes the mind up as with teeth and chokes it and bangs it and rakes it with aching." Drew Pearson gets as much out of tea-leaves as Aladdin got from his lamp. His forecast in Cosmopolitan of Allied diplomatic troubles in 1945 has already come true.

The Magic Lanterns: A cinematic 3-29, "Winged Victory," is zooming into town loaded with dramatic stockbusters exploding emotional dynamite. This is a stirring tribute to America's 4-mile-a-minute-men who have made the skies safe for 48 stars. Long may they fly. "Hollywood Canteen" displays a starring jamboree running the diversion gamut from ah to zing. Listing the film's mighty names is all the praise it needs. They provide the most potent example of amusement since laughs were invented.

May Be Able to Regrow Limbs

Doctor Says Idea Belongs in Realm of Scientific Possibilities.

CHICAGO.—"Regrowth or regeneration of human limbs that have been amputated 'belongs to the realm of scientific possibilities' of the future," Dr. Oscar E. Schotte of Amherst college, declared in an address. "Modern experimental embryology and the study of regeneration have both shown that there is no such thing as an organism which has reached a state of rest, as long as there is still life in it," said Dr. Schotte. "Tissue culture experiments, for instance, have taught us the new consoling fact that our tissues have what it takes to live forever; that, in other words, they are potentially immortal," he pointed out. "Many years of research will have to be spent until we reach a full understanding concerning the intimate mechanism of normal regeneration as it occurs in salamanders, for instance."

Hope For Future. Dr. Schotte said he is a member of a group of those men "who have an unwavering faith in the future of these investigations and who, for years, have always claimed that regeneration of limbs in mammals, and therefore in man, belongs to the realm of scientific possibilities." The experience gained from loss of limb in wars, and in accidents has given, from time immemorial, a tragic confirmation to the notion of the stability of the adult and of the irreversibility of development processes in general, according to Dr. Schotte. Concerning the new, or common water salamander, he said: "If we amputate the leg of a salamander which has essentially the same structures as are exhibited by our own arms and legs, we demand that adult tissues of an animal be made to multiply and to undergo a new series of processes very similar to the ones we know from embryology. Yet, this problem is successfully solved by the animal. This proves, does it not, that the cells of an adult organism are endowed with an unsuspected wealth of properties, the discovery and full exploitation of which is still to be made?"

Tissues Regenerated. Dr. Schotte mentioned that lizards regenerate their tails but not their legs, birds regenerate their feathers, and mammals their hair, nails, hooves and claws. Because we know from human experience that the loss of a leg, arm or a finger is irreparable, Dr. Schotte declared, it has been said that mammals, including man, do not possess the faculty to regenerate. But this is not correct, he asserted. "We do regenerate our tissues and quite effectively so," he pointed out. "Wound healing is, in the scientific sense, a process of regeneration, and we all know how extensive the repair of parts of organs in muscles and particularly in bones can be. Still, while injured muscle regenerates a little, and while a fractured or cut bone must often be prevented by the surgeon from regenerating too well, we do not regenerate complex organs such as an arm."

Marseille Pouring Tons Of Supplies Into France

MARSEILLE.—One of the major victories of the war has been won at this port where, despite destruction by the Germans, thousands of tons of supplies are now pouring through to the western front. In a little more than 10 weeks after the capture of this port with its 2 1/2 miles of quays, huge convoys of ships were moving in and out of the repaired berths, carrying men and large quantities of supplies. As many as 100 ships have been in the harbor at one time. Marseille is definitely one of the big three of the Allied supply circle, along with Cherbourg and Antwerp. It already tops Naples, whose peak was 16,000 tons of supplies daily, according to Col. Hunter Corkeon of Santa Fe, N. M., port commander.

3,000,000 Child Workers Found in U. S. Industry

NEW YORK.—A reversal of the prewar trend away from child labor was reported by the national child labor committee which said "the flood of young children coming into industry has been impossible to check because of existing weaknesses in state laws." The reversal began with the war, the committee said, and "has reduced high school enrollment by 1,000,000 students, turning it back to the 1934 level, and raised the number of employed 14 to 17-year-olds to 3,000,000."

Switching Dog Tags Puts Unhurt on Casualty List

PARIS.—The growing practice of soldiers going into battle wearing someone else's identity discs is giving army authorities concern. "Switching dog tags" started as a superstition of some soldiers that they were less likely to run into danger if they wore a comrade's discs rather than his own. Many uninjured soldiers consequently have been reported erroneously as casualties.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHILDHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 2:1-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest.—Genesis 28:15.

Matthew is the Gospel of the King and His kingdom. It stresses the fulfillment of prophecy in the coming of Christ, the King. After His rejection, it tells us of the Church, "the kingdom in mystery," and of the death of Christ for our sins, His resurrection for our justification, and His glorious coming again.

This then is an important book which we study for the next three months. Teacher and student alike should be enthusiastic and expectant. The genealogy of the King, and the story of His coming to earth as the babe of Bethlehem (both important matters), are covered in chapter 1. In our lesson we find Him as a little child. Observe how man received Him, and how God cared for Him. Without assigning definite verses to our points we note that: 1. Men Received or Rejected Jesus.

It has always been so. Men, then as now, were either for Him or against Him. The world or today is far different from that of the first century, but the difference is all on the outside. Almost breath-taking have been the developments of modern science, but these have not changed the heart of man. He still fears and hates and fights and sins. His attitude toward Christ is unchanged. There are still only two classes of people in the world—those who have received Christ and are saved, and those who have rejected Him and are lost.

1. Men Are Against Christ. How do men show their rejection of God's Son? Just as they did at His birth, by: a. Fear. Herod was afraid lest the coming of this One should result in the loss of his ill-gotten gains. His anger and fear made all Jerusalem afraid.

b. Indifference. When the Wise Men asked where Christ was to be born, the priests and scribes knew exactly where to find the facts in the Holy Scriptures, but having done so, they relapsed into utter indifference. They had no interest in the fulfillment of the prophecy. c. Hatred. Herod poured out the violence of his heart by killing the first-born. He was the first of many who have raged against the Christ in futile anger.

d. Sorrow. The tears of the mothers of Jerusalem but foreshadowed the weeping and wailing which characterize Christ-rejection both in time and eternity. 2. Men Are For Christ. Thanks be to God, there were those in that day who were for Christ and, like those who follow Him today, they showed:

a. Spirituality. Men have marveled that the Magi knew of the birth of Christ. They must have studied the prophecies of the Word and been responsive to the teaching and moving of the Holy Spirit. Can we say as much for ourselves?

b. Interest. Not content to know and to marvel, they shamed the priests of Israel by their persistent interest in this great thing which had come to pass. c. Love. They brought themselves in worship and they brought rich gifts from their treasures. You can give without loving, but you cannot love without giving.

d. Action. They came. They persisted until they found the Christ. Then they listened to God and protected His Son by not returning to Herod. 3. God Protected and Prepared Jesus.

The ruin which sin had brought into the world could only be met by redemption which Christ had come to bring. Some men had already shown their hatred for Jesus and their rejection of Him. But God still ruled, and for the sake of those who received Him (and would receive Him in all the centuries since), He kept the Child Jesus from harm. We find Him:

1. Protecting Jesus. Men may hate and seek to destroy God's Son. Satan may inspire them with ingenuity and cunning. But see how the Eternal One spoke to Joseph in dreams, how He prepared a place of refuge in Egypt and ultimately in Nazareth, where the boy Jesus might increase in wisdom and stature and favor with God and man. 2. Preparing Jesus. God knew of the days of public ministry which were ahead, and above all, of that day when on Golgotha's hill Christ was, in His own body, to prepare salvation for you and for me. God is never taken by surprise. He moves forward to the completion of His plan with the stately tread of eternity.

He took Jesus to Egypt. He brought Him again to Nazareth. In it all He was preparing His Son for the days of ministry which were ahead. All this was in fulfillment of prophecy (see vv. 15, 17). God's Word is always sure.

Pattern No. 8732 comes in sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 16 and 18. Size 12, without sleeves, requires 3 1/2 yards of 33 or 35-inch material; short sleeves, 3 3/4 yards.

Household Hints

Bacon fat and salt pork drippings add to the flavor of kale, turnips and legumes.

Soft, square-shouldered jerseys and crepes are favorites this year. They should be laid away when not in use and not hung from hangers or hooks, because even their own weight will distort them.

In the kitchen where but little space is available, place the trays from under the gas burners atop of the burners. A good place to stack the soiled dishes before washing them.

Pin perfume-soaked dabs of cotton to the hems of garments to lend a subtle fragrance to body and clothes.

As far as possible all windows in a house should have a similar appearance from the outside; if the draperies hang straight, sheer curtains used with them should also hang straight.

Because of the residue of animal fats, which pelt naturally have, some perfumes suffer unpleasant distortions when applied to furs. So, it's a good idea to test out the compatibility of your muskrat or mink with your own perfume before you whooch on a lot of the fragrance.

Capitalism Pioneers, Socialism Copies

If the American people could be moved in a body to Russia for a couple of weeks, and there permitted to observe in actual practice the effect of a totally regulated existence on the lives of Russia's millions the controversy in this country over whether we are to maintain unimpaired the competitive free enterprise system or dilute it with increasing regulations from Washington, would be decisively settled.

William L. White, son of the late William Allen White of Kansas, fortunate enough to have a look at Russia first hand, says: "It takes me a week to figure out that what is missing is competition. Nobody bothers to put up a striking store front or a well arranged window display. The grocery stores are all run by the food trust, the clothing stores by the textile trust. It is a matter of indifference to the government, even in peacetime, whether the public chooses to buy its socks or sausage at one drab government bureau or at a similar one down the street.

"Here competition with the state is outlawed, hence inefficiency is protected. The people accept it because they know nothing better. Occasionally some Russian expert returns from abroad with the news that keen capitalist competition has developed a cheaper, quicker way of doing something. Then, if he can get into the important commissions and overcome the natural inertia of a bureaucracy, the new system is installed throughout the Soviet Union. But almost always capitalism pioneers, while socialism merely copies."

Any merchant in this country who attempted to operate Russian style would be forced out of business by his competitors in a few days. And yet, in spite of the undeniable benefit to consumers of competition, competition is slowly being strangled in the United States by growing restrictions. Industrial News

New Year's day dawned beautifully bright in New Mexico and not too cold. It was hard to realize that on the other side of the world our fighting men are in the midst of the worst and most vicious war of all time. Hard, too, to think of the agony and misery they are undergoing in their fox holes and dugouts. And where no matter which way they turn they have hordes of enemies, both declared and suspicioned, which is something few of them have ever had to face--an enemy whom they must kill or who will kill them.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Dec. 21--"Men who have been honorably discharged from the armed services are now applying to the Universities and Colleges for admission, and present programs are not adapted to the educational background and interests of a very great number of these men," Dr. Edward Eyring, president of Highlands University, said in introducing to the faculty for discussion a plan for meeting the needs of returning service personnel.

"Have we the temerity," he continued in his initial remarks, "to tell the men who fought for democracy that we have no place for them because they do not have a high school diploma? If we do this, we are setting apart in our society the men who most deserve the best that our educational system can offer."

"What we want to do is to take any service man at the point where his education was interrupted and allow him to go on from that point. How many of these men there will be is evidenced by the fact that six out of seven New Mexicans in the Armed Services have not been graduated from high school. Already there are thousands of discharges in the New Mexico area, and only about 100 of these have made use of the government's educational assistance. That is why a plan for these boys is needed now."

BIRD HUNTING SEASON--1944.

Twelve-Year-Old Boy Out To Break Record; Sold $373,300 in Three Previous Campaigns

Twelve-year-old Carl J. Buchler, Jr., is out to break his previous record of bond sales. With the six high school girls shown in the picture he is making the round of New Jersey theatres, community rallies and schools during the Sixth War Loan.

NEWARK, N. J.--With War Bond sales totaling $373,300 to his credit in three previous drives, 12-year-old Carl J. Buchler, Jr., of Verona, N. J., is out to break his previous records during the Sixth War Loan. Accompanied by six attractive high school girls, whom he terms his "Bevy of Bond Boosters," Carl has started a round of schools, clubs, industries and community bond rallies, which will keep him busy throughout the drive. The boy, who is believed to be America's champion school War Bond salesman, is a student at Our Lady of the Lake School in Verona. He started selling War Bonds during the Third War Loan and totaled $5,450 in sales. During the Fourth War Loan he sold $25,450 worth and during the Fifth $270,400. His achievements have brought him a personal letter of commendation from President Roosevelt for a jeep ride and a plane ride in the famed flying fortress, "Hell's Angels," which downed 10 German fighter planes in 40 missions over occupied Europe. Said to be a spellbinder, Carl "cells" his audience thoroughly at every appearance. His achievement is the more remarkable because all sales have been made to individuals and the largest single sale was for $10,000. Nearly all of the bonds he has sold have been in Series E. Equally at home in a factory or a radio station Carl is known as "The Kid Behind the Gun Behind the Gun" and "America's Premier Young War Bond Salesman." The six high school girls who are accompanying him on the present tour of New Jersey circulate through the audience and make actual sales after Carl finishes one of his appealing sales talks.

Next time you hear a Southern Pacific train whistle in the night, think of it as something more than a lonely, haunting sound. It is a reassuring sound--a promise that even while you sleep, the war trains are rolling. It's the confident voice of an industry that's doing the biggest job in its history, and will be in there pitching long after the war is over. Wouldn't you like to know the language of the train whistles? Below we show you:

What S. P. train whistles mean

We haven't room to explain all the whistles, but here are the commonest ones. The "o" stands for a short sound, the dash means a longer sound.

- Warning whistle when train is approaching a highway crossing. When train is running, this means it will stop at next station, which is not a regular stop. If train is standing still, this signal warns that it is about to back up. One long whistle is sounded a mile before train reaches stations, railroad crossings, drawbridges, etc. Signal for brakeman to protect rear of train. Ho must go down the track with necessary flagman's signals. Signal for brakeman to protect front of train. This signal orders brakeman to return from the west. This signal recalls brakeman from the east. This tells other trains that a second section is following. This is the engineer's answer to most signals from other trains. A succession of short sounds is a warning to persons or livestock on the track.

NOTICE

S. P. Vidal, Collector of Internal Revenue, today reminded individual income taxpayers that Congress has changed from December 15, 1944, to January 15, 1945, the final date for filing Declarations of Estimated Income Tax, either original (as in the case of farmers), or amended, and paying of installments of estimated tax for the calendar year 1944.

Among the taxpayers affected by this change in dates are: farmers who exercised their right to defer filing declarations last April 15; others who have already filed 1944 declarations but desire to change their estimates by filing amended declarations; all persons who owe the final installment of 1944 estimated tax.

If a taxpayer who would otherwise be required to file an original or amended Declaration of Estimated tax by January 15, 1945, files his annual income tax return for 1944 (on Form 1040) and pays all taxes due by January 15, his return will serve as both a return and declaration and he need not file the 1944 declaration.

Also, if a taxpayer files his final 1944 return (on Form 1040) and pays the tax due on it by January 15, he need not pay the final installment which otherwise would be due on his estimated tax.

A bill from the Collector for the final installment of 1944 estimated tax may be ignored by a taxpayer who files his annual return (on Form 1040) and pays the tax due on it by January 15.

The New Mexico Collector stated that these changes will enable a taxpayer, if he desires to do so, to wind up all of his 1944 income tax obligations by January 15, but it does not affect the filing of his 1945 declaration which will be due March 15. Also, taxpayers who do not file their final 1944 returns by January 15 must do so by March 15.

MOTOR TRUCKS ON MISSIONS OF MERCY.

Of all the many duties performed by the hundreds of military vehicles produced by GMC Truck & Coach Division of General Motors, none is more important than the transport and care of our war wounded.

The famous GMC 2 1/2-ton, "six by six" truck furnishes the motive power for many of the Army's latest type surgical operating units which travel right behind our advancing forces.

Each unit consists of two tents which can be quickly attached to the sides and back of the truck. The tents are double walled, being lined in white duck to reflect as much light as possible.

The inside of the truck, which is approached from the tent rooms by a short stair, is used for storage of supplies, instrument cabinets and scrub sinks.

According to details disclosed by the War Department, this complete and highly mobile unit provides facilities for 80 to 100 operations in a 24-hour period, many more than with the previous type used.

The versatile GMC amphibious truck or "Duck," one of our most valuable landing vehicles, has also been of great help in the evacuation of seriously wounded soldiers. Able to travel on both land and water, the "Duck" carries casualties direct from the field dressing station to the hospital ship, without stopping to unload or reload at the shore line. On reaching the ship, the "Duck" and its load can be lifted aboard. This adds greatly to the comfort of the wounded, and speeds their delivery to the hospital ships where complete medical attention and equipment are available.

On return trips, the "Duck" often rushes medicines and hospital supplies directly from ship to field hospital or dressing station.

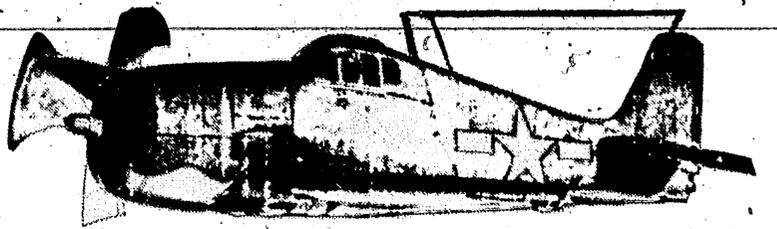

On numerous occasions, GMC trucks have teamed up with Army transport planes to get urgently needed blood plasma, sulpha drugs or other medical supplies to hard working medical personnel.

But for these fast-moving trucks, able to travel up to 50 miles per hour, much of the time gained in flying supplies by air would be lost on the ground.

GMC trucks are many times called into service to supplement regular ambulances. They are often used, too, in the evacuation of civilians from the fighting areas.

The missions of mercy performed by the GMC "Duck" are not limited only to the transport of wounded. These seagoing trucks have, on different occasions, rescued floundering over the sea, saved the crews of floundering tugs, gone to the aid of landing craft damaged by Axis bombs or shellfire.

Much has been written about the important military missions of our Army's various motor vehicles, but very little has been said about the equally important missions of mercy described here. They are a vital part of the daily duties performed by many of the 400,000 and more GMC trucks and "Ducks" which have been sent into war service.

ORATORY AND ITS BEARING ON VOTES

AS I LISTENED to the campaign oratory through the pre-election weeks I wondered what percentage of the votes would be changed by all the wordage, the charges and counter charges, that are a part of all American elections. Now that it is all over and practically forgotten, there is no way of knowing, with any degree of accuracy, what the vote might have been had there been no oratory on either side. My guess would be there would not have been so much as a 3 per cent difference. Practically all voters knew who they were for before the oratory started, and relatively few of them changed.

In the 1928 campaign there was a marked change, amounting to as much as 5 or 6 per cent of the total vote, between the time of the conventions and election day. Both conventions were held in June. During the first week of July the Literary Digest mailed some 10 to 12 million poll cards to the voters of every state. Those cards were checked and returned before the middle of July. They indicated the election of Governor Landon by a small majority of electoral votes.

It was well into September before those cards had been tabulated and the result made public. In the meantime Governor Landon had made speeches from one coast to the other. In practically all of them he approved of the majority of the New Deal policies, but insisted he could do a better job of making them work effectively. Many of those who did not believe in New Deal policies did not vote at all, or voted for President Roosevelt as, what they considered, a choice between two evils. It was Republican, not Democratic, oratory that defeated the Republican candidate, though it later did land the Republican candidate for vice president, the late Frank Knox, in the Democratic cabinet.

It was the result of that election, following the publication of the Literary Digest poll indicating Republican success, that caused the death of that old and well-established publication. It died of Republican oratory.

WHEN THE SHOOTING IS ALL OVER

A FEW MORE MONTHS, possibly a year or a bit over, and the guns in this global war will be stilled; there will be no more bombs to be dropped, no more ship sinkings; no more cities and towns to be destroyed. That will be a joyous day when our war-weary boys can begin coming home. It will also be a happy day for those who have helped to finance the long road to victory by buying, and keeping, government war bonds. There will be new homes to be built, old ones to be remodelled; a new car for the family; that long postponed vacation trip can be made, or any one of many other desired things those bonds will go a long way toward paying for. The privilege of doing these things we want to do will add to our pleasure at the victorious ending of this greatest, most ghastly, of all wars.

TORCHLIGHT PARADE OF ANOTHER DAY

DURING THE LATE unpleasantness on the home front, I noticed in the papers accounts of several torchlight parades conducted as a means of defeating the enemy. They recalled how I, as a small boy, years before I could vote, participated in similar affairs, then a standard of political warfare. Wearing a homemade red cape with white trimmings and a red cap, I carried a dirty, ill-smelling but flaming kerosene torch through the dust or mud of the village streets of Alnsworth, Iowa, in the army of the plumed knight, James G. Blaine. My efforts were of no avail. Blaine was defeated by the Democratic sheriff of Erie county, New York, Grover Cleveland, but the nation did not go to the how-woos as I had expected.

THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS, IF ANY, of the International Monetary Conference held in New Hampshire last summer, met with no enthusiastic approval from any nation represented. It is not an easy job to fix currency values when there is nothing, other than a nation's promise to pay, on which such values can be based. There is needed something, gold for example, to back that promise to pay. Without a uniform standard back of the world currencies there is bound to be a monetary muddle.

THE INCREASING COST of Federal government is not the only increase of which the taxpayer complains. From 1913 to 1943 the cost of state government for each man, woman and child jumped from $3.73 to $31.80. That of the municipalities from $16.63 to $36.00. Those figures are general averages for all of the United States.

Washington Merry-Go-Round by Drew Pearson

Washington, D. C. GERMANY'S FRESH TROOPS Some startling facts have been gathered by Allied war strategists regarding Hitler's ability to throw reserves into the western front. They give one explanation as to why the war against Germany has lasted so much longer than the war planners expected.

It has been estimated that since D-day when Allied troops landed on Normandy, the Germans have lost 1,000,000 men killed, wounded or taken prisoners. This is a terrific loss in a period of six months.

However, despite that heavy loss, war strategists estimate that a greater number of Nazi troops now face the Allies than on D-day. The total of D-day (June 6) was 65 divisions. But today Germany has 75 divisions on the western front.

It is also estimated that Germany's total strength on all fronts is just under 6,000,000 men. This increased strength on the western front has not come from the Russian front. It is known that some divisions have been transferred from the Russian front, but they have been replaced by other troops and the eastern front has been kept at full strength. It is too risky to take chances there.

Therefore, war strategists estimate that the chief increase of strength on the western front has come from the Volksgrenadier divisions. These include boys of around 16 and old men of 48 which Hitler started forming into groups around September 1. There are 19,000 men in a division; they have little training, poor liaison, and are short of arms, especially machine guns. But they fight with considerable ferocity when mixed in with units from the regular army.

German youth has had military training for years, which has been a big help. Reports are that these new troops fight in bursts—furloughing for a while and then are exhausted. They have no stamina.

Another factor which has helped the German high command is the withdrawal of about 20 divisions from the Balkans, thus the shortening of the front line in Holland. Several Finnish divisions also have been thrown into the western front.

However, it remains an encouraging fact that as of today a dwindling percentage of the German army is made up of men of the proper fighting age—from 18 to 30.

TROUBLE IN ITALY

Premier Bonomi of Italy has written President Roosevelt a 100-page letter outlining in great detail many Italian complaints against the British. When and if this is published, it will make come of the Greek troubles with the British look relatively pale.

Among the grievances Bonomi outlined to the White House are the terms of the armistice forced upon Italy by the British—with American acquiescence. The armistice terms have never been published, and one big reason is that the Allies are fearful of public reaction to the frankly imperialistic demands of Churchill.

It calls for the ceding by Italy to the British of the island of Pantelleria, just south of Sicily. This tiny island—only 60 square miles—would make the British a constant military threat to Italy.

Churchill demands it, however, in order to safeguard the "fugular vein" of the British empire, the sea lanes through the Mediterranean to Suez. And considering the difficulty British shipping had going around Africa during the early part of the war, some U. S. leaders think he is right.

The Adriatic port of Trieste will be taken from Italy and made an international free port, and the armistice also provides for relinquishing a part of the Italian broadbasket, the Piedmont, to France.

To sweeten the pill, the Italians were promised that the terms of the armistice would be lightened in proportion to the degree of help they give the Allies in the rest of the war against Hitler.

So complete is the British control that last spring, when Soviet Russia announced recognition of the Badoglio government, Badoglio was advised a few days later that he had no right to deal with any other government, Allied or not. Author of this note was Lieut. Gen. Frank Noel Mason MacFarlane, then deputy president of the Allied control commission for Italy. Result was that although recognition of Italy was announced in Moscow, no ambassador has been sent to Rome, nor has Italy ever been permitted representation in Moscow.

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

WNU RELEASE

THE STORY OF THE FATE of Zorie Corey, who later learned for being so much, is a story of a girl who is not only a heroine but a hero. She is the daughter of the admiral's grandsons. While aboard the steamship Samoa en route to Hawaii a hand is clamped over her mouth and she is scooped up and tossed into the sea. She avoids the propellers and manages to catch a life ring which some sailor had tossed overboard when he saw her fall. Zorie is rescued, and learns on recovering from shock that Steve, her fiancé's brother, was taken aboard in the time she was thrown overboard. The admiral announces that Pearl Harbor has been bombed.

CHAPTER XI

"They can thank God they're not in Honolulu, where civilians aren't allowed out of their houses after dark," Steve said impatiently. "They'll come if you want them to. And I don't really give a damn who comes as long as you get Basil Stromberg. Tell him you've got to discuss the future of the sugar and pineapple industries with this war on, and the difficulties of shipping between Hawaii and the Mainland, with all these Jap submarines around. . . . Three or four other couples to balance the table—but a nice gay crowd."

His deep voice became a rumble. A minute later, Zorie heard a car start. The admiral presently returned along the path he and Steve had taken.

The sudden ferocity with which war had burst upon the Pacific had put all of them under an increasing strain. And Paul was trying too hard to make up for lost time. She was finding his over-zealousness at times trying and she was finding it more and more difficult to keep Steve out of her thoughts. One evening at her stateroom door when Paul had kissed her good night, and had asked her—as he did so often these days—if she still loved him, she had murmured, "Of course I do, Steve."

She was so frightened she turned cold. But her voice must have been too low for him to hear, or his own thoughts too turbulent. He hadn't noticed the slip.

She could not drive Steve out of her mind. And she was still undecided, still torn between her infatuation and her patriotic scruples. She had tried to rationalize it by assuring herself that she could, any time she wished, notify the authorities, and by her knowledge that there was still, in spite of her curb suspicions, nothing she could prove. She dreamed about Steve. Often there were strange dreams in which both he and Paul figured.

If Steve suspected her suffering, he was being very nice about it. It was, she supposed with some bitterness, an old story with Steve—being kind to all the women who made fools of themselves over him. As, for example, Amber Lanning was doing.

Most of all, she didn't want Paul to become aware of it, although she was sure that his renewed ardor was making him blind. She did not want Paul to be hurt. And regardless of where her heart wanted to lead her, her mind was still at the controls. Her mind kept insisting that she would, in a little time, fully recover. By then Paul would be back on an even keel and they would, at an appropriate time, be married.

Of the remainder of the trip on the blacked-out ship, she would unreasonably recall most vividly, not the frantic excitement of the passengers, nor the tension, the alertness, the white war-worn faces of Honolulu under martial law, but her childish jealousy of Steve's attentions to Amber. Amber, with her lack of inhibitions, wasn't making any efforts to conceal the fact that she, too, had gone overboard for Steve.

The war, curiously, affected Zorie scarcely at all. After the first awful feeling, when she learned of the devastation at Pearl Harbor and at the army and naval air base, her self-possession returned. Her new fearlessness was impervious. She wasn't afraid of torpedoes or Japanese bombers and, as she saw neither submarines nor bombers, her fearlessness was not tested. After the first day's attacks on Oahu, the enemy was occupied with Wake, Hong Kong, the Philippines and Singapore. Yet Zorie was certain that, if the enemy returned, she would not be frightened.

Often she came upon Steve and Amber, walking together, playing ping pong, or the horse races, or shuffleboard. They were always laughing, always so absorbed in each other that they were oblivious. She tried not to let Paul see how it affected her—the black fury, the jealousy, the hatred that swept her. After the first day, there was little war news. All the passengers' radios were confiscated and only curt official bulletins from Washington were issued. On the day after the attack on Oahu, two United States destroyers magically appeared and escorted the Samoa on her zigzag course the rest of the way.

Zorie wondered how the war would affect the plans, the status, of Steve, the Lannings and Pierre Savoyard. She had hoped that her problem would be solved by the military authorities. She had expected all of them to be detained for investigation when the ship reached Honolulu.

But they hadn't been. Her own fiery hatred of Japan, of all the Axis powers, had made her problem suddenly acute. Yet she had, despite the intensity of her feelings, done nothing about it. She had rationalized it by telling herself that the blow might kill the admiral. She had decided to talk it over with him, to tell him about all her suspicions, and let him decide what action to take.

She had grown very fond of the peppery old man. Her brightest recollections of that strange voyage had been her work with him. He had no fear of submarines and he was determined to get on with The Book. Once he was reconciled to Zorie's disinterest in his Annapolis pranks and the Battle of Manila Bay—now being fought again with terrible new weapons—he had plunged into the story of the Duncan clan.

He was anxious to get on with it, but he had told Zorie there would be no work today.

Paul found her in the arbor a little before noon and she had lunch with him on a lanai shaded by a Pride of India tree. The centerpiece was an arrangement of translucent spikes of blood-red ginger flowers. She tasted her first baked breadfruit.

As one map they raised their glasses to her.

"I've been thinking things over," Paul said. "You once mentioned that you'd prefer it if I gave up my ambition to be a professor of psychology, and went to the plantation as a cut-cane luno and worked up."

"But, Paul, I didn't say that!" Zorie protested. Or had she?

"Did I ever tell you how we came by Uluwehi E Kai?"

There was suffering in Paul's eyes. He was preparing to be self-sacrificing, noble. To please her. He was telling her the story of Uluwehi E Kai, but she scarcely heard him. She was wishing he would stop being so humble. His over-anxiety to please her had reached a very irritating stage. She scarcely caught the gist of what he was saying.

A Hawaiian queen had once lived here. The admiral had bought Uluwehi from the Hawaiian crown fifty years ago. Until recently it had been part of the Duncan Plantation. On the death of Grandmother Duncan, he had sold the plantation to a syndicate in which he owned a large interest, retaining only Uluwehi. He also had large interests in other sugar and pineapple properties, and in banks and hotels, in steamship and air lines.

"I know you're enchanted with Uluwehi," Paul said. "I'm seeing it as I never saw it before—through your eyes. I know how you'll hate to live anywhere else. So, if you say the word, I'll start in tomorrow as a field luno."

Zorie shook her head with firmness. "No, Paul. I will not interfere in a decision as important as that."

"But you've fallen in love with this place!"

"That has nothing to do with it. Your career comes first!"

His eyes were grayer than green. "If I thought you could go back to Elleryton without hating it—"

"But of course I could, darling!" He was doubtful. He really looked wretched. "I'd rather make any sacrifice to keep you happy."

"No, Paul," Zorie said crisply. "Your future isn't to be worked out on that basis. Decide what you want to do and I'll abide by it."

She had sensed most of this. She had seen herself presiding over this lovely place, modernizing, simplifying some of the rooms, giving lively parties, taking hold and running things, and restoring Uluwehi to its former glory. . . . Of course it appealed to her!

"But is your career here, Paul?" He shook his head tragically. "No. That's just it."

"The instant this book is finished," Zorie said crisply, "we'll go back to Elleryton." She had a sudden glimpse of the twin chimneys of the Fenwick Body Plant and of the social life—Mrs. Folsome, Mrs. McGonigle, Aunt Hannah. "Now let's stop all this silly argument."

He came around to her chair and kissed her on the cheek.

"Thank you, Zorie," he said solemnly. "That was what I wanted you to say. . . . Would you like to be married here?"

Zorie hesitated. Her heart was beating in slow, cold thumps. "Yes, Paul. Of course!"

"It would be a lot of fun," Paul said. "We'd have a luau—an old-fashioned Hawaiian luau. Would you like that?"

"Yes, dear."

"I've been thinking," Paul said, "that we might be married Sunday."

A knife-like pain went through Zorie's heart. Trying to control her voice, she said, "Day after tomorrow?"

"Yes," said Paul. "Why wait? We've been putting it off long enough."

It was true. They had. Rather, Paul had. For more than a year they had been on this vaguely engaged basis. And there hadn't been a day when he hadn't hoped that Paul would decide not to wait.

But that had been in Elleryton. . . . His announcement left her with a feeling of panic. She realized that she hadn't the slightest desire to marry Paul day after tomorrow.

He was fondling her shoulder. "Then," he said, "we'll fly over to Kona for a few days. We'll come back here and stay until the admiral's book is finished. I'll find plenty to do. I want to do some more work on my dissertation."

He was trying to be gay and reckless. But he wasn't convincing Zorie and he wasn't convincing himself. He sensed that something was wrong, but he didn't know what it was.

"Would you like it that way, honey?"

Zorie was gazing at the garden. "This would be a lovely place to be married," she said. She would not try to escape it. She would go through with it. She could not let Paul down.

She wanted to cry. All the time Paul was talking, she'd been seeing Steve at her wedding—Steve watching her with a brother-in-law's detached pride and fondness.

"Well, then, that's settled," Paul said vigorously. "We'll be married Sunday. I'll attend to everything."

She was about to leave her room when one of the maids brought her a lot of white ginger flowers. When she put it on, it fell almost to her waist. If she had needed a completing touch, the chain of glowing fragrant white flowers supplied it.

She asked the maid who had sent it.

"Mr. Duncan."

"Mr. Steve or Mr. Paul?"

"Mr. Steve."

It almost went without saying. With all his ardor, his anxiety to please her, Paul would never think of sending her a lei—especially a white ginger lei.

She went out onto the lanai with its blackout curtains of heavy blue velvet. The admiral, Paul and Steve were already there, but none of the guests had come. The three men were drinking Old-Fashioneds.

They stared at her as she crossed the lanai. As one man they raised their glasses to her. It was almost involuntary. The expression in their eyes was a toast.

She murmured, "Thank you, sir," demurely.

Steve made her an Old-Fashioned. She noticed dry little lines about his mouth and eyes. He looked tired and worried and tense.

She was aware that Paul, in spite of his resolves, disapproved of the frankness of her star sapphire dress. He had betrayed it in his eyes after the admiral had complimented her. It was, she thought, disheartening. Paul did not want her to be radiant. He wanted her to be dull. He had always wanted her to be dull. And when, to please him, she had dressed dully, he had frankly admired women who were colorfully dressed. She wondered why. She wondered what the solution was.

Farm Fire Loss Can Be Greatly Reduced

Prevention Is Real Solution to the Farmer

FARMERS must become better fire fighters, if they are to reduce the nation's staggering farm fire losses.

Preparedness to deal with fire involves first, having available the necessary fire fighting equipment, second, keeping such equipment in operating condition, and third, knowing how to use it effectively.

The investment in a sufficient number of hand and wheeled extinguishers to protect living quarters, barns, tractors and trucks is small when compared to the potential destruction of one good fire. When buying fire fighting equipment, look for the label of the Underwriters' Laboratories which shows that the equipment measures up to standards acceptable to fire safety engineers.

Some one or two persons who can be depended upon to do a conscientious job should be given the responsibility of inspecting fire fighting equipment regularly, recharging extinguishers according to directions.

Seeing to it that every adult on the farm knows how to use the equipment is perhaps the easiest part of the job. Fire fighting, before fire gets to the terrifying stage, is interesting and people like to learn how to master a blaze. In some rural areas, professional fire fighters are invited to stage demonstrations and drills at which farmhands in the entire area may be present.

While the outbreak of fire cannot always be avoided, many fires are due entirely to carelessness or negligence. Most preventable fires on farms are caused by defective chimneys and heating apparatus, flammable wood shingle roofs, spontaneous ignition of rubbish, improper use of electricity, carelessness with matches and cigarettes, flammable liquids, and lightning. Correction of these hazards can be accomplished by proper maintenance of the farm property and by the development of safe habits on the part of all those on the farm.

Corncob's Many Uses
The utilization of corncobs for Micocorb Micorchaums is well known, and has been an outlet for corncobs for many years. There are newer uses, however, which give promise of offering additional profit to the corn grower.

It is now possible and practical to produce gasoline from the corncobs.

The dairy cow will welcome corncob in her ration. It is recommended that the whole corn be ground, however. Ground corn cobs, or those unground, will prove a welcome addition to the litter supply for poultry and stock.

One of the cheapest and newest plastics is one being made from the lowly corncob. This might mean an additional $20 a ton for the corn crop. The conversion of sugars suitable for the manufacture of industrial solvents is being done from corncobs.

Other uses include a flour for cleaning furs, for burnishing metals, for removing oil from tin, sweeping compounds, insulation, ceramics and tile, replacement for cork, absorbent in dynamite and many other uses.

New Tree Planter
A new type of tree planter has made its bow. It can put in three miles of trees set six to eight feet apart in a single hour.

Drawn by a tractor, the planter can be handled by one man who feeds the young trees into a narrow trench dug by a wedge-shaped plow. The planter is used in establishing shelterbelts and windbreaks and works well on ground formerly cultivated of where there is only a light soil.

Nonpartisan Elections

Despite the dominance of political parties in this country, thousands of local public offices are filled today in nonpartisan primaries and elections, says Collier's. California, North Dakota and many other states vote for all judicial and local officers without the use of party designations, while Minnesota and Nebraska also choose members of their legislatures by this system.

Coffee Flavor Good In Cake

Both batter and frosting are made with coffee in new cake recipe.

Coffee, which continues to become more popular as America's favorite hot or iced drink at all hours of the day, is one of the finest flavorings for desserts.
Here is a new, tested layer cake recipe in which coffee is the only liquid used. To make the right amount of proper strength brew for Coffee Layer Cake, use 6 tablespoons of coffee and 1 1/2 cups of water. Brew in a small size coffee maker, if you have one.
Or, boil the water and pour over the coffee which has been placed in a warmed saucpan. Stir, let stand for three minutes and strain. This method will give the required amount of strong coffee for both cake and frosting. In either case, for full-bodied coffee flavor, use vacuum-packed coffee from a glass jar in which freshness is held intact under the resealable lid.
Coffee Layer Cake (Makes two 8-inch layers) 2 c. cake flour, 3/4 t.

baking powder, 1/2 t. salt, 5/8 c. shortening, 1 c. sugar, 3 eggs, 1/2 t. vanilla, 1/2 c. cold strong coffee.
Sift flour, Measuro and salt together with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually, creaming after each addition. Beat in eggs. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly. Add dry ingredients alternately with the coffee to the creamed mixture, stirring just enough to blend thoroughly. Pour into well-greased pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 20 to 25 minutes.
Boiled Coffee Frosting: Combine 1 1/2 c. sugar, 1/4 c. strong coffee and 1/4 c. bottled light syrup in saucpan. Bring slowly to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Continue boiling without stirring to firm half stage (250° F.). Remove from heat. Pour over a stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly until frosting stands in peaks. Add 1/4 t. salt and frost cake.

REVISED RATES FOR WITHHOLDING TAX.

ALBUQUERQUE, Dec. 5—The revised rates for withholding income tax from wages, provided by the Individual Income Tax Act of 1944, apply to all wages PAID by an employer to his employees on and after January 1, 1945, regardless of when the wages were earned, S. P. Vidal, Collector of Internal Revenue, explained today.

Under the new law, for example, any wages earned in December, but not paid to the employee until after January 1 or later, are subject to the new withholding rates.

On the average, about the same amount of tax will be withheld under the new rates as was withheld under the old rates. However, since the rates were revised to adjust each employee's withholding more closely to his annual income tax, in individual cases the withholding may be either more or less than before.

Collector Vidal further explained that the Withholding Receipt, Form W-3 (Rev.), for 1944 to be given by employers to all employees by January 31, 1945, must show all wages actually paid during 1944, together with the amount of income tax withheld during the calendar year.

If any wages earned in December are not paid to the employee until January 1, or later, such wages may not be included on the 1944 Withholding Receipt, he said. Inasmuch as practically all wage earners, who may use these Receipts as their 1944 returns, file returns on the basis of income received during the year, inclusion in the Receipt of any wages not actually paid in 1944 would result in incorrect returns.

The New Mexico Collector stated that inquiries reaching his office indicate widespread misunderstanding of the matters of the above and he hopes it will be cleared up in the minds of those responsible for withholding tax from wages of their employees.
