Mr. and Mrs. Jim Tom and Mr. and Mrs. Colonel Jones exchanged homes this week and the two couples moved July 2nd and 3rd.

Correction

In our paper of June 29th we stated that the Cree ranch had been sold to an eastern firm. We correct that item this week; and say that Messrs. Joe C. Palmer and George W. McCarty were the buyers. As we are supposed to make a correction, equally as prominent as the mistake, we are pleased to go one better and quote Mr. McCarty's letter in which he says: "Joe C. Palmer and I do not think we should be considered as an eastern firm. The fact is that we are almost old-timers in Lincoln County."

Liquidating State Control

When one tries to analyze proposed Federal legislation such as the Wagner-Murray bill (S 1050) one is tempted to give up in confusion.

Under this one bill a political agency in Washington is given the power to tax employers and employees billions of dollars per annum; to grant loans aggregating a billion dollars in the next ten years; to provide grants to state and local governments for public health services; to make grants to states for general assistance of the needy; to provide for the creation of United States Employment Service in the Social Security board; to establish a national social insurance system covering, as the bill says, "any service of whatever nature performed after December 31, 1945," with few exceptions. Apparently the bill would end state unemployment insurance systems.

A new social security tax of 8 per cent on wages up to $3,600 a year would be levied, 4 per cent paid by the employer, and 4 per cent by the employee. This bill by grants and gifts of money to states would make the Federal government dominate the health, welfare and security systems of every state. The people would become wards of the Federal government.

The alleged objectives of the bill are already being brought about in the various states by voluntary action, without Federal compulsion and taxation.

This bill is another big step in a program to reduce the states to the position of mere administrative agencies of the Federal government.

Granting that the motives of the sponsors of the bill are the highest, the effect of this proposed legislative package for the woes and ills of mankind will be disastrous to individual independence in the United States.

Buy War Bonds TODAY For Future Needs

AMERICAN HEROES

By WOODY COWAN

COAST GUARD officers every day are proving how effectively the smaller naval vessels purchased with the help of War Bonds can clear the seas of enemy submarines. Comdr. David H. Bartlett of San Diego, Calif., recently was awarded a Navy medal for maneuvering his Patrol Frigate in such a manner that it brought about the destruction of a Jap undersea attacker. Other commanders of small vessels are doing highly efficient work.

What it took almost 70 years to accomplish with natural rubber, American scientists, engineers, and production men have achieved in 5 years with synthetic rubber; 85 per cent of the overall volume of rubber this country is now using is synthetic.

Take it Out of the Museum

The past June was made the occasion for a united effort to impress upon everyone the importance of the dairy industry and dairy products in completing the war against Japan. The effort in behalf of the dairy industry should not end with June.

Maintaining production under present handicaps is difficult for producers, but throughout the nation they are extending their whole hearted support. Dairy farmers are hoping for a change in rationing and price policies which will encourage the production of dairy products and bring butter back from the museum to the family table.

Mr. R. E. Barry was a business visitor in El Paso the first of the week.

To get sufficient depth of water for large tankers at a port in the Mediterranean war theatre (something the Italians seem to have overlooked when they built some of their oil terminals before the war) American oil men strung a floating pipe line off the end of two docks in one seaport.

Womans Society of Christian Service

On Wednesday, June 27th officers and members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service held a social and business meeting at the home of Mrs. Marshall Atkinson in White Oaks. A number of visitors were present also and the occasion proved to be a red letter day for the society. As had been announced every body met at the home of Mrs. Roy Shafer and all drove to White Oaks together.

The Rev. John J. Lou'tin has been reading a book to the Society; one chapter each meeting, after which a general discussion ensues. At this meeting the subject of the chapter read was "Asia." Due to the war the eyes of the world are centered on Asia at this time, therefore the discussion was lively and many diversified opinions were expressed.

A high light of the day was the wonderful covered dish luncheon so much delicious food and so bountifully served.

Following members and guests were present: Mmes. S. Dewey Stokes, Lillie B. Collier, J. R. Jenkins, Edna Carl, B. L. Stimmel, Carl P. Radcliff, R. E. Lemon, R. E. Shafer, Julia H. Miller, Beatrice Stover, J. Ira Stephens, M. U. Finley, C. L. Robinson, C. E. Degner, and Rev. John Lou'din, Carrizozo; Mrs. L. D. Merchant; Mrs. E. M. The railroads are as much a part of the war effort as the Army and Navy themselves; they are performing a war duty unequalled in magnitude, with insufficient equipment and personnel; and they have, by the sheer brilliance of their performance, prevented an acute transportation crisis from becoming a national disaster.—Chicago Herald American.

TAR AND SHIRTS

Great industrial plants at Pittsburgh and elsewhere in Pennsylvania produce articles needed by other industries throughout the world. This state also leads the nation in its output of coal, tar, pig iron, sandstone, slate and petroleum. It produces shirts, stockings, felt hats, rayon yarn and lace goods in huge quantities. All this output adds to the financial strength of the nation which stands solidly behind your War Bonds.

DODGE CITY

Named for Col. Henry I. Dodge, Dodge City, Kansas, became one of the country's most picturesque cattle centers, the cowboy capital of the southwest. There the Santa Fe and Arkansas River Trails met. Travelers came with stories of Indian attacks on wagon trains. Cowboys drove in herds of thousands of cattle for shipment east on the railroad. Others rested and watered herds of young steers there before going north. The songs of soldiers and hunters mingled with the shouts of cowboys. Fearless, spirited men whose grandsons are now turning back the enemies far overseas founded that city. War Bonds furnish weapons and food for the men fighting today to fulfill their ancestors' dreams.

NEW WHITE HOUSE TEMPO

Harry Truman has now been President of the United States for a little over two months—two of the most historic months in the nation's history...

On the surface there is a new atmosphere in the White House when you walk into it these days. If, for instance, you drop in on White House Secretary Charlie Ross, he is cordial, courteous, but brief...

If you go on in to see Ross's boss, you get in on time. There are few waits. And the little man on the other side of the big, broad, shiny desk listens intently...

Truman gives the impression of having a firm grasp on all domestic problems. He knows them thoroughly—undoubtedly better than Franklin Roosevelt during his latter years...

One of Truman's frequent replies to callers when they urge sanction on some special idea is: "I realize that. But it takes time to do all these things, and seldom have so many important things confronted us all at one time..."

One thing that worries him most is our foreign affairs. The new President frankly realizes it is his main weakness. He does not have Roosevelt's international background...

Truman's method of running the government is that of picking good men and giving them free rein. This is a good system, and we could have had more of it in the past...

Kathleen Norris Says:

From Today On

Hell Syndicate—WNU Features.

With an almost blind husband, a mother-in-law, a small daughter, an English boy, a house to manage, Alice will have her hands full.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IF YOU have not been saving kitchen fats and taking them in tin cans to your butcher, do it—from today on.

If you haven't been setting aside superfluous warm, plain clothing for the next clothing drive, do it—from today on.

If you haven't been investing every spare penny, and come that you cannot spare in this great war to free all peoples and settle all boundaries, then commence to do it—from today on.

If you should not be dieting, or balancing your domestic budget, or writing regularly to your soldier, or taking on a part time job as assistant nurse, then begin to do it—from today on.

One great trouble with us American women, who have known so many years of security and plenty, is that we are apt to think about all these things and a thousand others, "I wish I'd begun that—years ago. Saving dimes. Studying Spanish. Having the children's friends in for simple hospitalities. Walking two miles a day. Look at all the time I've lost! If I'd had any idea how useful it was going to be to me—or how happy it would have made Tom—or what help I could have given that poor child—or how welcome that extra money would be now."

Chance for Fresh Start.

Some lives are spent in this sort of useless regretting. But the smart woman eventually learns that what-over the mistakes and omissions of the past, there is always today. Today may be the beginning of the new time—the time of quiet accomplishment, friendship, study, saving, building.

"I don't write him half often enough!" says the busy woman in the market. She is deciding between frankfurters, salmon, or curried eggs for dinner, the place is full of bustle and gossip and morning light; her heart goes for a moment to the man overseas, then she forgets him again. To can or husband she is apt to write often, but this man is her nephew, or a friend's son, or the casual Christmas guest who begged to visit for an occasional letter.

So she doesn't write, and perhaps presently learns that the chance as far as that particular sailor is concerned, is gone.

What we ought to remember is that today is as powerful, as filled with opportunity, as any yesterday was, and that a few months' concentration on the saving, the diet, the child, the foreign language, is still in our power.

In a letter yesterday I received an illustration of this and can only advise Alice M., who wrote the letter, to start all over again—from today on.

Alice is the wife of a young naval officer, she has a child of three. She writes that she adores her husband, adores her child. She has a comfortable home, and is busy with the usual activities of housework and baby care, Red Cross and canteen. Archie has been away for 15 months.

Last fall Alice met an army man who is married and has grown children; on neither side was there any pretense of great love, or any suggestion of divorce. They were lovers for a brief space; Alice does not excuse or defend this, she merely tells me that for a few weeks of what

START NOW

Yesterday is gone, and tomorrow may never come. Today is the time to begin. If you have been delaying and excusing yourself for a long time about doing something you should—buying bonds, or rolling bandages, or saving fats—right now is the time to start. Don't bother with regrets over the past. Don't make grandiose plans for the distant future. Act today. This is Miss Norris' advice to women on the home front.

Even in a seriously complicated domestic situation, as in the case outlined in this article, the only sensible thing to do is to start over as well as possible. A young wife of a naval officer has been carrying on an affair with a middle-aged major. There was never any real love in this liaison, and it is now ended. Alice now wants to forget it, but she is afraid this unavailing episode will cloud the future. She has just heard that her husband, Archie, is returning from service, almost blind. He is bringing his widowed mother with him, and her adopted son, an English boy. This will mean two children in Alice's household, as she and Archie have a three-year-old daughter.

Miss Norris tells Alice to start today, determined to hold her marriage together, and to try to make everyone as happy as she can. There will be much for everyone to forgive and forget after this tragic war period ends.

now seems to her insanity she and the major met at various times and places and carried on a secret affair. He had now gone to Africa, and her hope is that she will never see or hear from him again. Her shame over this episode is equalled only by her fear that Archie will end their marriage, always so happy and harmonious, and take her child away from her.

Archie is Coming Home.

Now comes the news that Archie is on his way home, almost blind, and that his mother, recently widowed, is about to join the family with her young adopted English son, one of the babies who was evacuated six years ago. Alice writes me in complete distress; must she tell Archie, and how to handle the long deception if she doesn't?

Well, my advice would be to pick up this complicated problem and work it out as if there was no secret to hide—from today on. We're all going to have to forget a lot of everything if this world is to be rebuilt. With an almost-blind husband, probably studying for an entirely new profession, a mother-in-law, a small daughter, an English boy, a house to manage, Alice will have her hands full. If she will go straight ahead, trying to make them all happy, trying to make each day perfect in service and love, she need never tell Archie anything at all, except that she is the wife who loves him, and who is determined to help him to blot out the cruel years that have so scarred him, and create a perfect life together—from today on.

Sources of Vitamin C

Tomatoes and oranges—both rather scarce at present—are not the only source of vitamin C. Fresh raw cabbage and turnips have been found to be just as rich as citrus fruits and tomatoes. The buffalo berry of North Dakota is outstanding in content of this vitamin, while good guava powder is phenomenally rich, with 3 per cent. The Russians and British have made a jam from rose hips. A Russian nut containing 3 per cent is being utilized also.

White Eyelet, Sheers, Organdy, For Exquisite Summer Frocks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE'S a tremendous vogue on for all-white this summer. You'll find in the current collections a veritable snowdrift of white dresses made of beautiful materials, ranging from exquisite filmy sheers, organdy, lawn, dainty voile, and the beloved eyelets to classic pique, linens and various other of the firm-weave whites.

Stroll around to the necessary displays and you will become increasingly conscious that designers are playing up white magic for all it is worth. Your eye will glimpse a vast chowing of white jewelry with emphasis on white earrings. You will find an intriguing showing of white handbags many of which are of the new white washable plastics.

The new white footwear plays up shoe artistry in such thrilling designs, glamorous white shoes become a necessary luxury this summer. The same may be said of white millinery, the supremacy of the white hat in the summer mode is style news of utmost importance. The newest gesture in white headwear is the hat made of phantom-like filmy white sheers or white horse-hair. Then too white flower hats and trims are beguilingly lovely this summer, and you can get the smartest millinery ever in various type white crests. White gloves add their dainty touch to the picture.

In the illustration we are showing a trio of lovely gowns that bring a message of the outstanding importance of white eyeleted do luxe costumes for this summer. You will find the gown to the right made of white eyelet pique will prove a beautiful buy for party wear and for gay summer dances.

The chic cardigan line of the jacket and cap sleeves are bound with pinwale pique. Vary the jacket with a black skirt to show its wartime versatility as a double-duty dress.

The lovely bolero dress of sheer eyelet cotton, centered in the picture, passes all tests for smart summer wear. Doff the jacket and you have a bareback dress for summer dances. Ruffles of pique soften the neckline and add a modish touch to the slim skirt, achieving a chic side effect. The ribbon belt is pale blue grosgrain.

Capes register an exciting style innovation this season. A jaunty little cape makes a star appearance in the versatile cotton pique dress shown to the left. This is a type frock that is a first choice with party girls and forthright brides. The wide ruffle of eyelet pique conceals a row of buttons, making it possible to remove the capelet for dancing.

The vogue for white expresses itself not only in cheer and lovely wash fabrics, but this summer great stress is being placed on perfectly charming dresses and two-piece styles made of white spun rayon, gabardine and wool sheers. These are styled to a nicety with emphasis placed on beautiful trimming detail, such as all-over braiding in matching white on novel pockets, or an all-over embroidered effect. Especially attractive is the handsome toupette design that enhances many of these smart fashions, many of which are in beguiling off-white tones, the new white-wine shade being first in favor.

Popular with the young set is the simple full-skirted white dress that is lavished with colorful embroidery, worked to simulate an apron front. Favored for practical summer wear is the bareback dress with bolero made of nicely tailored linen or chambray, which is noted for its immaculate whiteness.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Narrow Silhouette

An interesting thing about this season's print frocks is that they are styled in such versatile ways introducing new silhouettes that give zest to the mode. A glowing instance of the trend to launch "something new" and strikingly distinctive in styling technique for the summer print is seen in the attractive model pictured. In this gown selected from a collection of mid-summer styles by Chicago Fashion Industries the emphasis is on a narrow silhouette skirt contrasted by a decided tunic flare about the hips. This lovely-lady print frock will be outstanding wherever it goes.

There's News in Hat That's Merely a Brim

Designed especially for summer comfort are the new half-hats made of starched pique. The unique part of it is the hat isn't all there. The crown is missing, and for a good reason. You have all the appearance of wearing a hat, without the discomfort of too much hat on a torrid summer day. These little headpieces are one of the big success fashions of the season because of their practicality as well as their flattering ways. Some are so designed they can be laid out flat for ironing. They certainly keep pace with "the style" being designed in circles, off-face types, Dutch bonnet effects, and other becoming versions. One of the smartest half-hats has no brim at all in front, but at the back there is a down-over-the-hair flange flaring from the fitted headband that shows the influence of the favorite fisherman type.

New Frocks Featuring Braidwork, Embroidery

Braidwork and embroidery is being artfully featured on thin spun rayon dresses also summer jacket suits. The modes are in lovely pastels or even more to be admired—subtle off-whites. Enormous patch pockets, all-over braided in exact tone of the dress, are seen on many a stunning frock. Sometimes the bow tie at the throat also is correspondingly braided. Too lovely for words are frocks of fine chambray, the jackets or bodice tops of which are all-over braided in white.

Broomstick Skirts

One of the biggest fads of the season in the campus group is the broomstick skirt. Girls with an eye to fashion and thrill are making their own this summer. The skirts are usually made of pastel chintz, but any light-weight curtain materials will do. Another trick is to seam two large print squares together, gathering the top into a belt.

Albuquerque, July 5 In connection with the cancellation of the Annual New Mexico State Fair and Race Meet, E G Hayward, Cimarron, President of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association has announced that the state cattlemen organization will promote and make arrangements for continuation of the Annual Junior State Livestock Show and Sale. This event has been held in connection with the state fair for the past six years.

Boys and Girls throughout the state have been feeding calves and other livestock for an entire year in anticipation of the Annual Junior Livestock Sale at Albuquerque," Hayward said. "Many of these youngsters have made heavy investments in feed and livestock on the assurance of the livestock division of the State Fair that a sale would be held. We cannot break faith with these future livestock producers of the state and will therefore see to it that they are given an opportunity to realize a fair profit for their study and labor.

"We will have 4 H Club and Future Farmer boys and girls to continue their livestock feeding program and assure them an outstanding sale in Albuquerque sometime during the announced State Fair week of September 9 thru 16. Definite date will be announced as soon as arrangements can be completed," Hayward said.

Asked if the Junior Livestock Show and Sale was contrary to ODT wartime regulations, Hayward said, the Office of Defense Transportation has not discouraged bona fide junior livestock sale. Government convention and travel ban rules do not apply to any livestock show and sale where all animals are sold through the ring."

Science Points Way To More "Pep"

That between-meal "letdown" feeling can often be avoided. The answer may lie in the kind of food eaten, according to the National Dairy Council.

It has long been known that individuals are more efficient in their work when glucose (blood sugar) is in ample supply. Glucose is at its highest level right after meals and reaches its lowest point just before breakfast. That is one reason why breakfast is such an important meal.

Recently Dr. George W. Thorne of the Harvard Medical School conducted tests to see if any one type of food resulted in maintaining the blood sugar level longer than others. He found that breakfasts rich in protein maintained a more constant quantity of blood sugar than breakfast rich in either carbohydrates or fats. Furthermore, such breakfast resulted in the maintenance of a high level of blood sugar for at least an hour longer than did the other types of diets.

An easily available source of the highest quality proteins will cannot be surpassed. In addition, as scientists point out, it isn't only the quantity of food eaten but the kinds of food eaten which make a vast difference in efficiency. Protein foods—among them milk—provide more "pep" and help overcome mid morning and mid afternoon slumps.

Behind Your Bonds Lies the Might of America

WISCONSIN AT WAR
 When the war started, Wisconsin relaxed its labor standards to permit women to work nights and 17- or 18- hour days in canneries. It reduced strikes from 65 in 1941 with a loss of 321,319 man-days to a very small figure and introduced effective safety measures. It all added up to vastly stepped-up production of food and a greater future for industry in the state. Wisconsin can raise more peas and beans than any other state. It has more dairy cows. It's America's ability to produce—on the farm and in the cities—that really stands behind every War Bond you buy.

$5.00 AUTO USE TAX STAMPS

U. S. Vidal, collector of Internal Revenue for the District of New Mexico, announced today that the new $5.00 Automobile Use Tax Stamps will be placed on sale in all post offices and offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue on Saturday, June 9, 1945. The law requires the owner of every motor vehicle which is used upon the highways to buy this stamp and to display it on the vehicle beginning July 1, 1945.

The law provides both cash and jail penalties for failure to pay this tax. To protect themselves against unnecessary penalties, Collector Vidal advised owners of motor vehicles not to be misled by false rumors alleging that this tax has been repealed.

The stamps will be sold over the counter at all post offices and offices of Internal Revenue Collectors. In addition, Collectors of Internal Revenue will fill mail orders when accompanied by cash, money orders or certified checks. Personal checks cannot be accepted for the purchase of revenue stamps.

The law requires that the stamp be prominently displayed on the motor vehicle on and after July 1, 1945. Where possible, the stamp should be placed on the windshield as recommended by the proper officials of each state.

Motorists will find that the stamps usually will stick better if they dampen the windshield instead of the stamp. They should avoid repeated lampening of the stamp. Motorists who desire to do so may reinforce the stamp with adhesive tape or similar aids.

To protect themselves against loss or theft, Collector Vidal advised motorists to keep a separate record of the serial number which appears on each stamp. Motorists also are asked to write on the back of the stamp the make, model, serial number and State license number of the vehicle.

STB Day

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC (Delayed) - The Marines, as usual, have their own word for it.

While the rest of the Allied world refers to the eventual total defeat of Japan as V J Day, Leathernecks in one unit speak of it as STB Day, reports Sgt. John W. Chapman, Marine Corps combat correspondent.

The initials stand for a time honored rifle range expression in the Corps—"secure the buttocks"—which means that the shooting is over.

WAVE Recruiting Party

Announcement was made today by Lt. J. Forrest Jamison, officer in charge, Navy recruiting in New Mexico, of the planned visit to Albuquerque from July 16 to 20 of a WAVE recruiting party headed by Lieut. (jg) Eleanor B. Siegler. In making the announcement, he told of the urgent need for some 2,000 additional Waves each month for the remainder of the year to fill required complements of Naval Hospitals and other establishments where women personnel are assigned for duty. It is estimated that nearly 50 per cent of new Wave personnel are needed for duty with the Navy Hospital Corps.

Lieut. Jamison explained that the Los Angeles WAVE procurement office will furnish applicants living outside of Albuquerque transportation for the trip there for examination. However, in order for the applicants to be furnished the required papers, they should first file their complete application with one of the Navy Recruiting Stations, located at Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Clovis or Roswell.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

FRED: "Is it true, Judge, that a war can't be won without the use of war-alcohol... the kind the beverage distillers have been producing for the government for over two years?"

OLD JUDGE: "That's right, Fred. It is a basic ingredient in the smokeless powder used in virtually every firearm from a pistol to a 16-inch gun. And, in addition, it plays a more human role. The medical supplies which our military doctors use to alleviate pain, combat infection, save lives are prepared with war-alcohol."

FRED: "No wonder, then, more and more people are recognizing the great contribution our beverage distillers have made to the winning of the war with their double-duty product."

EL PASO—International Mining Day will be celebrated November 2 and 3 in El Paso.

The mining committee of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the annual celebration, has decided to advance the date so as not to interfere with the opening of the hunting season in New Mexico.

The committee also began to poll mining machinery corporations throughout the country, asking whether they would care to participate in a mining exhibit which would be held in conjunction with International Mining Day.

Eugene M. Thomas, Dean of Engineering of the Texas College of Mines, is the general chairman for International Mining Day of 1945.

Nearly 500 registered for the 1944 celebration. International Mining Day is a get-together for mining men of New Mexico, Texas, Arizona, Colorado and Mexico. Although the program is primarily social, culminating with the famous Sourdough Supper, one business meeting is held at which leaders in the mining industry speak. The El Paso Metals Section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers also has a program in conjunction with International Mining Day.

The Caribbea Section of the AIME is expected to participate in this year's program.

In the program offered girls who attend the camp will have an opportunity to acquire the essentials of western horsemanship. Ring trip and trail riding will be taught by a qualified instructor.

The Arts and Crafts program directed by a skilled counselor will offer lessons in weaving, block printing, sketching, drawing, bookbinding, wood-carving and camp craft.

Swimming, which will be a new addition to camping facilities at Camp Mary White this year, will be offered under the supervision of a licensed Red Cross instructor and life saver. Several boats also have been provided for the waterfront activities. Girls will be able to work on their junior life saving certificate.

Included in the dramatic and dancing programs are campfire programs, the planning and executing of "Scouts Own," a Sunday service, square and folk dancing lessons, puppet shows and special day programs.

A special unit for Senior Girls with activities geared to more advanced skills in all forms of camping and outdoor living will be offered during the summer. The last four weeks of camp will offer a special pro-counselor course for High Juniors and Seniors who are interested in doing future camp counselor work.

The staff will include experienced camp people, a dietitian and three cooks, a trained nurse on duty at all times and a nearby doctor on call.

The camp is open to all girls from 10 years of age through High School. It offers the opportunity to spend two totally different and thrilling weeks in a healthy, democratic environment when they are given the feeling of independence yet their health and safety are minutely supervised.

The seasons are June 27-July 11; July 11-July 23, July 23-Aug. 8, Aug. 8-Aug. 22. The fee per session is $20.00 for girls outside of El Paso. Registrations which must be accompanied by a $5.00 deposit are being accepted at 102 County Court House in El Paso.

That American industry has been able to meet this terrific demand for all-important truck tires is due, to a great extent, to companies like Phillips.

But that truck also represents one of the biggest headaches tire men—and oil men—have had to face in this war!

For long before Pearl Harbor, Phillips scientists foresaw the possibilities of butadiene in producing synthetic rubber. As a result, when the blow fell at Pearl Harbor, Phillips great research and production facilities were ready to step into the breach.

Yucco, our synthetic rubber program has had to overcome more than the lack of raw rubber from the Jap-held East Indies. It has had to cope with a fantastic demand for tires for Army trucks and other vehicles.

Today, the Phillips 66 Shield stands for one of America's leading producers of butadiene for synthetic rubber... as well as a great producer of 100 Octane Aviation Fuel, and an almost endless list of newer and better products from petroleum gases and petroleum.

Why is that demand fantastic? Just imagine speeding along roads pitted by shellfire and sprinkled with sharpnel... hub-deep in mud, or rutted in frozen ridges. Under those terrible conditions, tires have become frayed and useless at an appalling rate.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

How Sober Hoskins Got His Name

Everybody kids Sober Hoskins about his name. Of course, they allow that it's appropriate. Sober never drinks anything stronger than a glass of beer. And a harder worker in the fields there never was.

"Shucks," says Sober's dad. "We named Sober 'Sober' just because he looked that way when he was born. Like we called his sister 'Gay,' and his other sister 'Frissy.' And it's had its effect on all of 'em," he adds with a split. (Frissy is the old maid in the Hoskins family.)

From where I sit, there may be something in what Sober's dad says. Naming children after virtues is a fine old American custom. Look at the names of our pioneers and pilgrims: Faith, Pious, Charity, Hope, Ernest.

Maybe we should use such names more often. And one I'd like to add is "Tolerance." If we all had Tolerance for a middle name, and lived up to it, we'd have a better, happier world.

COUNTRY HOMER Cured by CROY

© W.M.U. SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Amos Croy and his wife, when first married, settled on a farm in Missouri, where Homer was born. Sunday means church, company for dinner, and other weighty duties. The Croys attended the Omaha Exposition where Homer saw his first horseless carriage, motion pictures, and "ballet" dancer. Renzo purchased a farm nearby and became a welcome addition to the community. Homer was the first Croy to attend high school and college. Answering a wife he arrived home after his mother passed away. Finishing college he worked for Post-Dispatch, then left for New York to continue his writing work. He had had some success free lance.

CHAPTER XVIII

It was nice to get back to the straight roads, roads which run mile after mile with never a jerk or a bog. Except at the section lines where they're corrected to fit in with the narrowing for the North Pole. First on one side, then on the other, like squares on a checkerboard, were the white houses and red barns. They looked nice. It was certainly a thousand times better than the hodgepodge, helter-skelter way they had things in New York State.

Even in so short a time, the countryside seemed to be changing. At least, I could see things more clearly. Farmers had once been paid to have advertisements painted on their barns; the rate was pitiful, sometimes as low as five dollars; and there for years would be the hideous sign. Sometimes, due to changes, the farmer would put a new door in his barn, or cut a window, and there'd be a gap in the letters, like a missing tooth.

Those signs on barns were disappearing, come were reappearing on billboards. But the effect was not so horrible as I had known in my youth. Some are still there, not so bold or blatant as they were but lingering like December fogs.

And there, when we got to the farm, was Phoebe standing in the door, beaming through her gold-rimmed glasses.

The first thing was for Pa and me to "walk across the farm."

We came to a sunken place.

"That's Dave," said Pa. We stood in silence for a few moments. Then Pa said, "I always liked Dave."

I realized I always had, too.

As we walked along, he gave little clearing signs in his throat, as he always did when he was getting ready to say something important.

"Well, Homer, I've got a piece of news you'll be interested in. Phoebe and I are planning on getting married!" There was a moment of anxious silence. "I thought maybe you'd approve of it. She's always been a second mother to you."

Of course I approved of it and I told him so. "I'm glad to hear you speak that way," he said.

When we got back to the house, Phoebe was in the kitchen. "I guess your father told you?" she said anxiously.

"Yes, and I'm pleased."

"I hoped you would be," she said, as she went on with her work.

The people, I found, were more prosperous. Our back was replaced by a surly with a fringe around its canopy top. People who had once ridden in two-wheeled carts (like the one mother and I had been in when Dave had not kept to the straight and narrow) were now dashing around in buggies. In no time at all, buggies had rubber tires. If a boy with plain legs threw on his buggy asked a girl to "go" with him, his goose was cooked. The day when my father had courted my mother with a lead pencil and a roll of cinnamon bark was gone. And the day when I had walked over to a girl's house and we had popped corn together was gone, too. A boy now had to have a spanking team of horses and a buggy top that would fold back, or he couldn't get to first base. Boys no longer visited with girls in the backs of grocery stores. They had to take the girls into drug stores which had ice cream fountains. The expense was staggering.

I was more of a visitor than I had ever been before. I helped a little, but it was more a gesture than real work. Pa still clung to the idea that maybe I would come back where I belonged. How much was I making? (It was $20 a week.) Well, didn't I think there was a good opportunity on a farm? He never quite said "the." Then he told about a neighbor boy who had gone to Sodala to study telegraphy and had got to gambling and running around with a fast set. Finally his father had to go down and get him.

Pa asked about New York and when I told him about the great crowds and the high buildings, he shook his head, puzzled. Why did I want to subject myself to them? "Did you visit the stockyards, Homer?" When I told him they didn't have stockyards, as we knew them in St. Joseph and Kansas City and Omaha, he was fagged. How did they get their livestock dressed? I told him vaguely it was "shipped in," but his mind about New York was already made up.

He asked exactly what I did and when I told him that, for the most part, I sat around and read pieces that other people had written, he thought I was a pretty hazardous way to earn a living. The old gentleman was right.

The farms were steadily growing larger; the small man was being squeezed out. More and more machinery; a tedder was no longer a curiosity. Newt Kennedy had long ago quit corresponding for the county weekly; nearly everybody took a paper; many of them took a daily paper—not a newspaper but a stockyard daily. The other news could wait till the end of the week. The neighbor women, who had once come to our horse pond in their Mother Hubbards, were now buying bathing suits and going to the 102, or to Big Foot Lake. Even the conversation had changed. Instead of talking about setting hens, people talked about "brooders" and about the news they'd heard on the party line. It was getting harder and harder to have a secret.

There'd been half a dozen hands since Renzo Davis. About all they thought of was getting to town and spending their money, Pa said. Every hand, who pretended to be anybody, had a buggy. Automobiles had about stopped scaring the daylight out of horses. Sometimes Pa could pass a man driving a car with-

For one thing, Pa was getting old, out saying the man ought to be jailed.

Several summers went by, and each time I hurried home, and each time I saw changes. Changes I probably would not have noticed if I had been on the farm all the time. For one thing, Pa was getting old; and Phoebe, too. Phoebe who believed in me almost as much as my mother did. Phoebe with her little turned-up nose and small square face and her slender Indian-straight figure. That is, it had always been straight, but now was beginning to stoop. When she sat down she let her hands rest quietly in her lap, instead of keeping them busy. When she saw a team coming, she couldn't tell whose it was.

It was not long until I was off the Delmeester and the Butterick publications, and a free lance again with all the hazards of a non-salary job. But it was the way my people had always lived; it came natural to me. It seemed logical to Pa, too. Better work for yourself than hire out.

My success as a writer was small, but come way or other I kept going. And this allowed me time on the farm and among the people I knew so well. Finally I wrote a novel, "Boone Stop," which was laid on the old home farm and among our neighbors. It got what I was learning to call a good "press." William Dean Howells wrote that it "struck a new note in American literature." It certainly didn't strike a new note in royalties. It hardly struck a note at all. Just a faint ping. I sent a copy to Pa and in due time, got a letter. "Your book received and will read it at my earliest leisure." He never mentioned it again. But Phoebe said that when company came he worked it into the conversation.

In fact, so far as I know, he never read a book in his life except the Agricultural Year Book. But he was plenty smart. And I've written so many. Sometimes I think he had it on me.

The old poverty days were gone. Pa was rich in comparison to his early days on the farm. No penny-pinching now; no cracks that had to have tallow poured in them. He kept adding to the farm until he had 320 acres.

He built a new house, closer to the road, and left the old house standing in the back yard, the house where I was born; the one I mentioned where the very room had been turned into a henhouse. But the hens are out now. If anyone tore that house down it would certainly break my heart. I like to sit in it, alone, and look at the old things, so far away yet so strangely close. I even know the nailheads. The old clock shelf is still on the wall; the clock shelf under which hung our Hostetter's almanac on the blue string.

Profound changes are hard to see at the time, and so it was now. Profound changes, indeed, had happened to the first wave of pioneers; some, when our section had become settled, had swept on west to new land. New land. Virgin soil. New opportunities. They had gone to western Kansas and western Nebraska and to Wyoming and Montana, responding to the very westward-moving urge that had propelled them into this section. Those who had remained and prospered were moving to "the city." Their sons and daughters were shouldering the farms. The old settlers were retiring, but it was not put so crudely as that. They were moving to the city to allow their children to see what they could do with the farm.

Disease and breakdown was among them, as it always is among the old. You could see them on blustery days, bundled up and sitting in the back seats of the spring-wagons, these men who had sunk the first plows into the buffalo grass, little beads of rheum clinging to their noses. It stirred me and touched me, as it always has, this matter of the old moving into the back seat. Some day I'll be moving there, too. Maybe I can get used to it by that time. Maybe I'll even welcome it. For who knows how he will act, or respond, to anything till the time is upon him?

Age had its heavy hand on my father. He walked more slowly, the hired man had to oil the windmill. But Pa got up just as early a morning, long before daylight, poked up the base-burner, and started the kitchen stove going. Pretty soon Phoebe would be hopping around in the kitchen and the hired man would be pulling on his boots. The party line would ring and Phoebe would move to it, straightening out her apron almost as if she expected company. After a while she would put the receiver back. "The Knabbs are butchering and they're calling the Frank Halls to see if they can bring a cauldin barrel."

"You better call them and tell 'em they can have ours. We've got a good tight barrel." Pa always had tight barrels; he was a good farmer. Phoebe would call two shorts and a long and there would be a busy clicking in the receiver. "They say they'll call later if they need it."

I would be the last one down, the city having just about ruined me. "Good morning," we would say to each other. The hand would come in with the lantern, and pretty soon Phoebe would come to the sitting room door. "I've got the things on." Then we would go to the table and Pa would bend forward his whitening head.

It would be light, soon after breakfast, then Pa and the hand would start out to do the rest of the chores. At first I offered to help, but by this time Pa knew the worst. The city had got me; it'd been years since I'd had a callus.

Pa began to talk about moving to the city where he would "take it easy"—my father who had never taken it easy. Yop, he was going to town and get on the jury! For that was what the other retired farmers were doing. We could see them sitting on the benches in the courthouse yard, with nothing to do, watching the teams go by, hoping to see someone from their neighborhood. At noon they would disappear—gone! home to dinner—then after a time they would come back and again plant themselves on the wooden benches.

And then he did, as most farmers chose to do, bought a house so he could sit on the porch and watch the old neighbors pass. It was south of the water tower—the water tower I had seen so many times as Dave and I had rumbled in to school. There the tower stood, like a sentinel, the first thing I could see as I approached town; and, going home, when I turned and looked back, there it was watching me.

Now came the problem of getting someone to run the farm. No one was good enough. One was a good hog farmer, but weak on cattle; another was a good small grain farmer, but weak on sheep. Another was a hard worker, but drove his team down hill in a gallop. Another didn't have any boys in the family.

At last, he found a man. Appeared promising. "Homer, come day you'll have to look after this yourself. It's a good farm. Don't ever let loose of it."

He delayed moving. The stable wasn't any good. Had to repair it. Cellar needed fixing. Roof must have attention.

Pa left the farm—Pa who had never been farther than Omaha since he had arrived by ox team—and he and Phoebe started city life. But the habits of half a century could not be changed. They got up before daylight. Pa dozed in his chair until Phoebe announced breakfast. Then under the newfangled electric light (which hurt people's eyes) they ate breakfast. He had brought in one horse and now fed him and worked with him, doing in a small way what he had done so long on the farm. He had brought in the buggy, too; the very one he had courted in. But now it was a bit old and rattled a good deal on bridges. He put on new washers, but it still clucked.

Onions

Next to salt, the world's most valuable seasoning is the onion. It has come to be recognized as a leading garden "must."

Alexander found the onion in Egypt. He fed it to his troops in Greece in the belief that it excited martial ardor.

Seed Onions A new hybrid has been produced in California which yields 29 tons to the acre.

In 1837, John Gerard reported that onions were good against the biting of a mad dog, for colds, bites, to grow hair, for burns, or gun wounds. He also said it caused headaches, weakened the eyes, dulled the senses and provoked oversleep.

The volatile oil of onion has been found by Russian scientists to contain a bacteria-killing substance. Onion paste is being used in Russia to heal wounds and guard against infections.

Dehydrated onions have proven a most important item for overseas shipping. French dried onions promise to become more popular as the supply of odorless onions becomes larger.

Feed Needed by Cows

In planning the dairy cows requirement, two tons of good quality legume or mixed legume hay should be harvested per cow, or one ton of good quality legume hay or mixed legume roughage, and three tons of silage per cow.

Twenty bushels of corn and 20 bushels of oats should be harvested for each cow. In addition five bushels of soybeans, when silage is provided, or 2½ bushels where silage is not available.

Household Hints

A dress form does not solve all fitting difficulties. If you have one, use it, though, for locating and checking direction of hem and seam lines.

Household sponges are kept fresh by cooking in salt water after they have been washed.

Use cotton thread to mend leather gloves. Silk thread will cut the leather and pull out again.

Powdered graphite, in lieu of oil, will keep door hinges from squeaking.

To remove the odor of fish from dishes, wash them in a strong hot solution of salt in water, without the addition of soap.

If an electric cord becomes damp, place it on a flat surface and do not use it for several days until it has dried.

If your water bucket springs a leak, don't throw it away. Paint it to match your kitchen and use it for a waste paper can. Paste decorative motifs on it if you like and remove handle or let it remain as desired.

Screws have a habit of disappearing when you need them, and dropping from your fingers when you use them. This can be avoided if you put each screw in a strip of heavy paper. They are not only easy to find, but also are easy to hold in place when you start them with a hammer.

If you treat your new baking tin kindly they will repay you. Before you use them for the first time, rub them all over with lard, then bake in a warm oven for half an hour. In the case of enamel pie dishes, fill them with boiling soda water and allow to get cold. Then wash in hot, soapy water and rinse very thoroughly.

Night Baseball

Although the first major league baseball game under electric lights was not played until 1935 in Cincinnati, the first minor league night game was in 1923 in Independence, Kans., while the first game ever played under lights took place in 1823 in Fort Wayne, Ind.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

The new government tire industry expansion program is geared to produce an additional 21,300 military tires a day, or 6,000,000 more a year.

Foam rubber is expected to replace familiar upholstery construction in automobile seats, saving nearly a foot in the length of the body.

Rubber springs already in use experimentally for automobile springs, and in actual operation on street cars, may speed all wheel transportation and greatly increase riding comfort.

GASOLINE, SWEET GASOLINE!

With Washington deciding to let autoists have more gasoline, millions of Americans are beginning to dream of the day when the country can return to its peacetime slogan—"Fill 'er up!"

This may be a long distance away, but it no longer seems something for the next generation to worry about.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast and in the tourist's heart. As goes the garage so goes the nation.

Secretary Ickes will raise the gas ante from four gallons per A coupon to six. That won't bring back the week-end traffic tie-ups but it will revive those pleasant memories of the days when the gas station attendants rushed out, wiped your windshield, gave you a road map and asked, "How many can you take?"

And when he frequently let a quart overflow from the tank to the ground with a "Damp, ain't it?"

Oh, for those hot dog-eating, way-side-lunch storming, detour crashing beach blitzing, dust-swallowing era when the answer to "Shall we motor over to Aunt Minnie's?" was never "How?" and always "When?"

Oh, for the days when you didn't have to hammer on the windows to find out if the gas station was open!

Ah, the good old times when there was a two-pump gas station in every block and a nozzle in every tank!

It is just as well that the return to full tanks is going to be gradual. A sudden restoration of open gas stations openly arrived at would be too much for normal emotions to endure.

Four years of regarding the pumping station as an arid retreat for the over-optimistic have done things to the American character.

If a fellow got over four gallons at a crack he thought he had struck oil.

And if the gas station proprietor threw in a smile and five drops extra he knew he had hit gusher territory.

No wonder Ickes survived that recent cabinet shake-up. He announced the new gas ration at the hour the President was making the changes. And Harry Truman is nobody's fool. He knew the public would never stand for changing fuel administrators in mid-stream.

Independence

Arkansas and Mississippi both can have splendid public schools without accepting financial aid from anywhere. I am prepared to prove this statement with figures I presented early in May to the Education Committee of the House of Representatives in Washington. Moreover, if these states can do well without help, any of the other states can do likewise. Federal aid is not needed anywhere.

I have singled out Arkansas and Mississippi for good reason. It has bearing on the subject in hand. Measured by a money standard, these two states are lowest on the educational roster. Only one state has less income per person than Arkansas, provided less school money per student and pays its teachers less; that's Mississippi. These are our two low states in the respects named.

There is a Reason

Poor as these two states are on a basis of income per capita, each of them has more net worth than the federal government. Our national debt probably will reach $90 billion dollars before the war is over. Mississippi had a cash surplus of 11 million dollars last year and Arkansas accumulated 45 million during recent years. Arkansas schools are inadequate, due to politics, not poverty.

What the school system in my home state needs is re-organizing, not subsidizing. For example: About a year ago there were 108 school districts with assessed valuations below $10,000. Some districts could not raise $100 a year from local taxes. School districts varied in size from one square mile to 169 square miles.

Why Squander Money?

There is one community in Arkansas which, although it has only 25 students all-told, is made up of six school districts and thus uses six busses to take the 25 students to school and back each day. Transportation costs $300 a month when one bus might easily do the whole job at a cost of $150 a month. The moving of $450 would pay three teachers at the prevailing Arkansas scale.

The problem is local and political. More money for such an inefficient operation probably would tend to aggravate a bad situation and make it even harder to remedy. The federal government spent $30,000 for a WPA survey of Arkansas schools in 1937 and the analysis showed that the state could have a good school system for an outlay of 17 million dollars a year. The outlay was made promptly.

Taxpayers Respond

Arkansas' income per person has more than doubled since 1939, due to new industries and new discoveries of oil and bauxite. More than 20 million dollars were spent for education in Arkansas last year, and a recent legislature raised that figure considerably for the next biennium. Already about 25% more money is being spent on Arkansas schools than the government-supported survey called adequate in 1937.

This however is not enough. Arkansas should have better schools; better financed. Arkansas teachers should be better paid, probably the salary scale ought to be doubled. I'm for it when the system is re-organized and made efficient, but I oppose federal aid. Easy money would sacrifice state sovereignty on the altar of politics when we are able, really, to increase our school revenue as soon and as fast as conditions justify.

Winter is Coming Again

The mines at this time advise the early storing of coal again for the coming winter. We are fortunate in having mine connections which were able last season— by our storing coal thru the summer— to take care of our demands. But the mines can not offer any better service this coming season. So if you are depending upon coal as a fuel, the mines advise to store as much as you can thru the summer months. This is the only assurance of not being out of coal this winter. The mines can not supply us if we wait until the winter is upon us.

PLEASE HELP ME TO HELP YOU, BY GIVING ME YOUR ORDER FOR COAL NOW.
