After spending 26 months in the Aleutian Islands and taking part in ground combat against the Japs, the 159 Infantry returned to the United States for additional training at Camp Swift, Texas, and Camp Callon, California. The unit, originally a California National Guard regiment, was shipped to Europe and attached to the 106th Division early in 1945.

In the Northern France campaign the 159th was among the units which held a ring of steel against the German forces in the French ports of Lorient and St. Nazaire. Cut Staff of W. P. and R. Board

Two employees will be dropped from the Lincoln War Price and Rationing Board Sept. 30, Wm. W. Gallacher, chairman of the local board, announced today.

The cut in staff at the board is in accordance with a general reduction of board personnel throughout the country. The board chairman explained that the reduction has come about because of the reduced rationing program.

OPA officials explain that sufficient staff will be retained at all boards to handle a heavy price control program which will continue and whatever rationing problems may remain.

Price panels, as in the past, will continue to meet to consider complaints of overcharges. Persons, who believe they have been overcharged on any items, should report the matter to their board, so it may be referred to the price panel.

Capitan American Legion Auxilliary

The American Legion Auxilliary of Capitan, James A. Hipp Unit No. 57, held their regular afternoon meeting, Sept 13th, at the home of Mrs. Frances Shaw in Ft. Stanton.

The meeting was called to order by unit president Grace Murphy, all reciting preamble in unison. At this meeting it was decided to postpone the already scheduled bridge party until a later date and have Rummage Sale instead. The sale will be at the Home Cafe building in Capitan, Oct. 6, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. We will have men's overcoats, sweaters, suits, shirts, underwear, socks, shoes, ladies dresses, novel ties, other things too numerous to mention.

Come early, come late, real bargains. The purpose of this sale is to add to our funds to help build the American Legion Home in Capitan. A very good cause and a much needed home. All are interested in just such an institution for this community. We all have some one in the service or one who has been in, so lets all turn out and make this a glorious sale. Everything will be well worth it's cost.

No further business the meeting adjourned.

Delicious refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. Shaw.

One visitor present Margaret Ann Bigger, Publicity Chairman.

Birthday Party

Miss Era Berry was honored at a party given at the Baptist parsonage last Tuesday night following the church service. Thirty-six attended the party and from all reports a gloriously happy evening was spent playing games. The birthday gifts were hidden and three "blood hounds," Rev. Eual Lawson, Mrs. R. E. Hemphill and Miss Betty Lou Ward, assisted in ferreting out the hiding places. After the gifts were all found the same "blood hounds" assisted the honor guest in opening her gifts. The gifts consisted of powder, perfume, handkerchiefs, scarves, sweater, hair bows, candy, stationery, dress material, jewelry and many useful, lovely gifts. After refreshments consisting of birthday cake and cocoa, all joined hands and sang two songs, then Rev. Lawson dismissed with prayer.

The Cold Storage Processing Plant

We have promised a time or two lately to tell something of Lincoln county's progress, and of the advancement and enterprise of our towns. Carrizozo, as the county seat, is entitled to first mention. We know of very few towns as small as this one that can boast of a fifty thousand dollar locker and cold storage plant, all complete and running full time; well, Carrizozo can boast about this very thing.

We had been invited out to view this masterpiece of ingenuity, so last Tuesday we accepted the invitation. Mrs. Gussie Johnson and Mr. Dan Elliott showed us around. First we went into a compartment used for weighing the beef, mutton, etc. where the very accurate scales were demonstrated. Then we were shown the hanging rack where animals and fowls are placed to chill, before freezing; this place was too cool for comfort.

Next we were shown into the locker room. The temperature there was zero--and remains continually at the zero mark. This room contains two hundred large lockers, one hundred and fifty of which are already sold. Entering this frigid zone, we found the zero temperature equally we did not tarry there, but went hopefully to the next compartment. This was an even colder climate than the one just visited and was called the "quick freeze" room. The thermometer was 10 below zero. Some of the more progressive patrons, Dr. Turner, Messrs. Stokes, Whitaker and others are using their cold storage space. Beef, mutton, chicken and various things are already in storage. A window, heavily insulated, can be opened to view the interior of the quick freeze room. A recording thermometer also shows the degree of cold without entering the compartment.

The ice plant which is under construction in connection with the cold storage plant has a capacity for making two tons of ice per day. The coils through which the brine passes supplies two hundred and ten receptacles for ice freezing. Four electric compressors, three of which are already installed, are to be operated by Freone No. 12.

The ice storage room, when completed will preserve seven tons of ice. Another nifty arrangement to be installed in connection with the ice plant is a self-operating "money in the slot" device, where you can drop a dime or quarter or whatever amount of ice you care to buy, and it is automatically ejected on the receipt.

In connection with this marvelous convenience for our people, it is not amiss to mention the Mayor, Hon. Frank A. English, who along with all the other helpers has spent considerable time and anxiety trying to get this plant on a "going" and "paying" basis.

Notice!

Be happy to announce the official opening of our Cold Storage Locker and processing plant Saturday, September 29th. We will have open house all day Saturday.

We cordially invite you to come bring your friends and give our plant a close inspection. Bring your beef, pork, chickens and vegetables, we are ready.

Bring your meat products to us as soon as possible after slaughtering.

GOVERNMENT PLANNING HAS NO PLACE IN PEACE TIME

GOVERNMENT peacetime "planning," of which there is a well-founded fear, could mean only a continuance and extension of what we have had as essential wartime bureaucratic regimentation. Government would tell us what we could produce on farm and in factory, how much, and at what price the products could be sold. Government would fix the maximum temperature of our homes; who our doctor must be, what we might read, when to work, where and at what, and at what wages. It would mean regulation of all the details of living. It would mark the end of ambition, the individuals desire, or opportunity, to get ahead. It would make the people servants of the government, instead of our American way of government as servant of the people.

Germany, Italy, Russia have had government "planning." It meant Nazism, Fascism, Communism. It meant totalitarian government, as it is bound to mean wherever it operates. I do not believe the American fighting man made the sacrifices he was called upon to make, for the purpose of establishing in this country the practices and methods he fought against in Europe and Asia.

The only class who might approve government "planning" is that small minority who are without ambition, who are seeking a way of existence with the least possible effort involved, whose idea is a government that will provide three meals a day, a home and fire. The American fighting man is not of that class. If we are to avoid the catastrophe of government "planning" it will be largely because the fighting man will have the final say.

Those who would institute "planning" as our system of government are not propagandizing their efforts in that direction. They are working under cover in an effort to accomplish by indirect methods what the American people would definitely and emphatically reject if presented openly. With the "planners" it is the accomplishment of a bit here and there during wartime which they had hoped to have had so well embedded when peace arrived as to make the bits permanent.

The American people recognized the necessity for, and submitted to, a surrender of much of their individual freedom during the stress of a war emergency. For them to awaken when the emergency is over, and find themselves benched with a permanent government "planning" system that regulates their thoughts and actions as individuals, would be productive of a revolution, bloody or bloodless as necessity might call for.

SMALL BUSINESS MAKES A BIG INDUSTRIAL NATION

THE REALLY BIG BUSINESSES of America are the 49 corporations, each of which has assets of one billion or more dollars. Of these cover are industrial producing commodities. The seven are: Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Motors, United States Steel, Du Pont, Bethlehem Steel, Socony - Vacuum Oil and Ford Motors. Of the others six are railroads and two, Bell Telephone and Consolidated Edison of New York, are utilities. The other 23 are financial institutions, banks, insurance and trust companies. The seven industrial, though they provide a total of 1,471,123 jobs, and are owned by 1,031,023 stockholders, are but a small part of the total American business.

It is the small business, everything from the peanut stand, the country store, the family farm to the industrial plant with assets in the millions, that makes America tick. The number of small businesses run into the millions. Their total production and sales represent the big, important business of the nation. On business, especially small business, we are all, directly or indirectly, dependent.

"GET DOWN and get under" is becoming more and more an American practice.

CANADA, AUSTRALIA, South Africa, New Zealand, Ireland are all independent nations, they are not a part of England, as Illinois is a part of the United States. They are constitutional monarchies, whose king is also king of England. Each of them maintain their own international relations, make their own laws, have their own currencies, maintain their own armed forces. They have had that status since before World War I. It was fully recognized by the League of Nations.

Only a Slight Difference of Fifty-Three Years

Once in a great while Mother Nature permits herself a whimsical chuckle and turns in a performance that makes us gasp. The old lady gave such a performance on the day that George Thomas Morton was born in Sioux City, Iowa. He is called either "Ike" or "General," for little George looks as if he were a pea out of the same pod that gave us General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower. There is an interval of 53 years between the births of the two "Ikes." George Thomas will soon be two years old.

As raiders they saw action in Solomon campaigns, Emirau, Guam, Okinawa and finally landed on Japan proper with General MacArthur's surrender commission. They have the honor of firing some of the first and last shots.

DREW PEARSON

ARMY CRACKDOWN

The army is determined that returned European war veterans shall no longer appeal to congressmen or newspaper men to hasten their discharge from the army or to protest redeployment to Japan for police duty.

Severe secret orders have just been issued to this effect over the signature of Brig. Gen. A. M. Gurney, chief of staff for Lt. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, commander of the 2nd army. The order, which has been secretly circulated, reads:

"Recently members of a division in the United States scheduled for redeployment to the Pacific area appealed to the press and radio protesting against transfer of the division to the Pacific theater. Action of this nature, if concerted, may subject participants to disciplinary action.

"Incidents such as noted in paragraph 3 above (the paragraph just quoted)," continued the secret order, "will be dealt with drastically by this headquarters and the commander concerned will be summarily relieved."

The division referred to probably was the 95th, stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss., which sent all sorts of appeals to newspaper men and radio commentators against being transferred from Europe to Japan. Apparently the protests worked, for the order to send the 95th to Japan was rescinded.

PRESIDENTIAL POKER

Those who traveled with President Truman on his various trips to Washington state and Potomac found him a delightful and entertaining companion. One story they tell about Truman's trip to the northwest was regarding his salmon fishing off the Washington coast.

While the motor boat was chugging back to shore, Truman and his old senatorial friends, Gov. Mon Wallgren and Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington, played poker. The stakes were low, but the thrifty Truman was trying hard to come out ahead. It was agreed that, no matter who was ahead, the game would stop the minute the boat hit shore.

So the President kept up a line of banter to the Norwegian skipper.

"Slow her down, Christianesen," he said, "I'm behind. I need a little extra time to catch up."

Or again, it was: "Speed her up, Christianesen, I'm ahead now. Let's get to shore before the governor catches up."

Finally, the motor boat touched shore with the President of the United States a few cents ahead. Skipper Christianesen was just as pleased as Truman.

ARMY AND RAILROADS

Even the army's friends in Capitol hill say the brass hats are killing any chance for public support they might have had by their autocratic disregard for civilian needs in such fields as coal mining, steelmaking and railroading.

One of the busiest railroads in the country today is the Southern Pacific, which has handled most of the east-west traffic to the busy port of San Francisco. The S. P. is a single-track line able to carry its huge volume only by scheduling trains at 10-minute intervals round the clock. In order to maintain this schedule, it requires a huge crew of crack trainmen, repair men and other skilled workers. It has done pretty well even in the last year, although there was a recent bottleneck near El Paso which resulted in the holding up of 75 trains.

Southern Pacific officials have been begging the army to release skilled railroad men with the 60 points required for discharge, or to furlough railroad men in this country with less points.

Finally in mid-summer the army agreed to release 4,000 railroad men, with 2,400 of them assigned to the S. P. But then the army began going back on its promise and said it could discharge only 1,200 men. A few weeks ago, the army released 250 men to the Southern Pacific and said no more were available. The joker is that 24,000 men have gone into the armed forces from the S. P. employment roster.

Finally, War Mobilizer Snyder stepped in and forced the army to release 4,000 railroad men, amidst loud squawks from brass hats that this action would destroy morale.

Senators are looking forward to better eating, now that Derwin Darling has come back from two years in the marines to resume management of the senate restaurant. Alleged United States opposition to the Kilgore unemployment compensation bill has cracked open. Forty-seven state administrations were reported opposed, but it now develops that Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Oklahoma, Washington and California are definitely for the bill, with Connecticut and several others about ready to support it.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

W.N.U. FEATURED

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, a seaport in Italy, with Major Victor Joppolo, the Army officer in charge. Sergeant Borin, an M.P., was in charge of security. The Major set out immediately to win the friendship and confidence of the citizens and vowed to replace the town hall, which the Germans had taken. Major Joppolo talked with Father Pavesi, local priest. He promised the priest to attend mass the following morning. When time for mass arrived, the Major was busy in his office and overlooked the appointment, until church bell awoke him to the fact that he was late. He arrived before mass was over, much to the relief of the priest.

CHAPTER V

At this angry moment, Gargano, Chief of the Carabinieri, came up to the line. This man was called by the people The Man With Two Hands, because of his continuous and dramatic gesturing. He was, he seemed to think, an actor, and he could not say two words without gesturing with both hands. He possessed and exercised all the essentially Italian gestures: the two forefingers laid side by side, the circle of thumb and forefinger, the hands up in stop position, the salute to the forehead with palm forward, the fingertips of the two hands placed tip to tip, the fingers linked, the hands flat and downward as if patting sand, the hands up heel to heel and pulled toward the chest, the attitude of prayer, the pointing forefinger of accusation, the V as if for victory or smoking cigarettes, the forefinger on the chin, the rolling of the hands. All, he used them all.

He did not make any arrests. He merely went up to Carmelina, wife of the lazy Patta, and squeezed between her and the door of Zapulla's shop, and stood there. The people could see that he was merely taking his place at the head of the line to wait for bread.

Carmelina, who was annoyed by having had wood-coke thrown at her, said truculently: "Mister Gargano, you were Chief of the Carabinieri under the old regime, and that entitled you to stand at the head of the line. I am not sure that you are still Chief of the Carabinieri."

Gargano said: "I am the Chief," and he made a kind of Fascist salute with both hands.

Carmelina said: "I doubt it. Where is the proof?"

Gargano said: "See my uniform," and he ran his two forefingers from his shoulders to his knees.

Carmelina said: "That is no proof. The Americans do not care how we dress. I could dress as a rabbit and the Americans would not arrest me."

Gargano said: "Woman, stop your shouting, or I will arrest you," and he gripped his own left wrist with his own right hand, signifying arrest.

Carmelina said: "Where is your authority?"

Margherita the formidable wife of Craxi said: "I believe that this man is still Chief, since the Mister Major is keeping many Fascist counsellors in office until they prove themselves bad. But I do not believe that under American law he has the right to go to the head of the line. That is where I think you are right, Carmelina."

Gargano stepped out of the line. "Who questions my right?" he roared, and he pounded one clenched fist on the other clenched fist.

Carmelina, wife of the lazy Patta, standing right beside him, started him by whispering in his ear: "I question it, Two-Hands."

Up to this time Zapulla the baker, standing in the front of his shop, had been torn between the two authorities, the old and the new. But he was so annoyed with Carmelina for having provoked him that he now said: "Arrest her, Mister Chief, if you have any courage."

Up to this time Gargano the Chief, somewhat unsure of his ground, had been trying to think of a way of retiring gracefully. But now his manhood, as well as his authority, was challenged. He moved toward Carmelina and said: "Woman, you are under arrest."

Carmelina shouted: "Keep your two active hands off me, Gargano."

Zapulla said: "Will you let this woman shriek down your courage?"

Gargano clapped his hands on Carmelina. She screamed. All up and down the line women shouted: "Out with the Fascist Chief of Carabinieri. Out with Two-Hands. Out with men who push themselves to the head of a line ahead of women who have been waiting three hours."

Gargano dragged Carmelina off screaming and kicking, and the anti-Gargano, anti-Fascist screams in the line grew louder and louder. Even Mercurio Salvatore, although as a criminal he was more or less an official and should have remained neutral or even taken the side of Gargano, raised his huge voice in a careful shout: "Down with injustice!"

When Gargano pulled Carmelina into Major Joppolo's office, she was still screaming. But the Major jumped to his feet and said sharply: "Silence, shrew," and she fell quiet at once.

"What is this all about?" the Major asked.

Gargano said: "This woman questioned my authority," and he pointed at her with both forefingers.

Carmelina said: "There is more to than that."

Major Joppolo said: "Your authority to do what, Gargano?"

Carmelina shouted: "To push his way to the head of the line in front of Zapulla's bread shop."

Gargano said: "It is a privilege the officials of the town have always enjoyed."

Major Joppolo said: "Is that so?"

Gargano said: "I charge this woman with disturbing the peace and questioning authority." Gargano was shrewd in saying this, for he saw that things were going against him, and now he had put the matter on an official rather than a personal basis. The Major would have to decide the case officially.

The Major decided with a speed which dazzled Gargano. He decided that the woman was right but that he could not say so, because if he did the Chief would never regain his authority, and the Major wanted to keep him in office. Therefore he said: "I sentence this woman to one day in jail, suspended sentence. Let her go, Gargano, and gather all the officials of Adano for me at once."

When Carmelina got outside, she ran straight back to the bread shop. The bread was not ready yet, and the people gave her back her place at the head of the line and shouted to her: "What happened, Carmelina? What did they do to you?"

Carmelina told what had happened and she said: "Did you ever hear of such a light sentence in Adano? I believe in my heart that the Mister Major thought I was right. And what was the meaning of assembling the officials? I believe that he was for me."

In the Major's office, the officials gradually assembled. Some were held-over Fascists, some were new appointments to take the place of Fascists who had fled to the hills. In whispers, and with ample gestures, Gargano described to them the humiliation he had suffered, until Major Joppolo said: "Silence, please."

The officials drew up in a circle around the Major's desk. The Major stood up.

"I want you to be my friends," he said. "As my friends, I will consider it my duty to tell you everything I think, for we do not want Adano to be a town of mysteries and a place of suspicion."

"Adano has been a Fascist town. That is natural, because the country was Fascist, therefore the town was also. But now that the Americans have come, we are going to run the town as a democracy."

"Perhaps you do not know what a democracy is. I will tell you."

"Democracy is this: democracy is that the men of the government are no longer the masters of the people. They are the servants of the people. What makes a man master of another man? It is that he pays him for his work. Who pays the men in the government? The people do, for they pay the taxes out of which you are paid."

"Therefore you are now the servants of the people of Adano. I too am their servant. When I go to buy bread, I shall take my place at the end of the line, and I will wait my turn. You too must behave now as servants, not as masters. You must behave as the servant of the man without shoes just as much as of the baron. If I find that any of you are not giving the type of service that I desire, I shall have to remove you from office."

"Remember: you are servants now. You are servants of the people of Adano. And watch: this thing will make you happier than you have ever been in your lives."

On the ninth morning, General Marvin was driving along the road toward Vicinamare and came to the town of Adano. From time to time along the road his driver had to slow down behind the little Italian two-wheeled carts of the countryside until traffic from the opposite direction had gone by. Then he passed the carts.

As they passed each cart, General Marvin waved his riding crop in such a way as to indicate that the cart should move over. Since there was nothing to move over into except the ditch, which at intervals along the road expanded into tank traps, the carts never did move over. The General grew angrier and angrier.

Now it happened that just as he came to the Fiume Rosso, or Red River, just before Adano, the General's armored car was obliged to slow down for a cart which meandered along right in the center of the road.

The General stood up in his car and shouted in his deep bass voice (you've read about that voice in the supplements; it's famous; one writer said it was like "a foghorn gone articulate"): "Get off the road!"

Unfortunately the driver of the cart was one Errante Gaetano, who earlier that morning had sold three dozen eggs to American soldiers at fourteen times the proper price, had immediately gunk most of his profits in the wine of his friend Mattalano, and was now sleeping a deep and happy sleep on the seat of his cart. At this particular moment, he was dreaming about eating the nicer parts of a fish nine feet long. Naturally he did not pay much attention to the voice of General Marvin, no matter how famous the voice, because he could not hear it.

The driver, a nice boy from Massachusetts, put the heel of his hand on the horn button against his own wish. He was in no hurry, and knew that no matter how fast they went, he would only have to wait when they got wherever they were going.

The mind of Errante did not react to the horn, even though the horn was something urgent called a klaxon. The cart kept right down the middle of the road, inasmuch as Errante's mule was a cautious creature, just as wary of ditches on the right as of ditches on the left. This was a quality in his mule of which Errante Gaetano often boasted to his friends. "Give me none of your lop-sided mules," he would say, "give me a mule with a sense of the middle."

This sense was going to be the undoing of his mule just now, because General Marvin's face was beginning to grow dark, and come veins which have never been described in the supplements began to wriggle and pound on his forehead.

"I've had enough of these carts," the General shouted. He was standing up in the car, waving his riding crop around. "Do they think they're going to stop the invasion with carts?"

Errante slept beautifully. He was coming to the gray part of the fish just under the ribs. It melted in the mouth of his dream. There was, however, a sound of thunder in the distance which made him think perhaps he had better come the fish and finish eating the nice parts after the rain.

General Marvin roared: "Do these Italians think they're going to stop a bunch of tanks with a bunch of wooden carts?"

Colonel Middleton, the General's Chief of Staff, and Lieutenant Byrd, his aide, could see the violence coming. Lieutenant Byrd looked back along the road, but he couldn't see any bunch of tanks. The only thing he could see that was being held up besides the General's armored car was one sheep, or amphibious jeep, which did not seem to be in a hurry.

Here it came. General Marvin shouted: "Throw that cart off the road."

Errante stirred in his sleep. The thunder of his dream was the most beautiful and most continuous thunder he had ever heard.

The six men surrounded the cart. Colonel Middleton reached up to wake Errante, but the General's roars grew louder. "What are you doing?" he bellowed. "I told you to throw the thing off the road."

"We were just going to wake this fellow up and get him off first," Colonel Middleton shouted back, but the shout was weak because he knew what the answer would be.

"Serve him right. Throw him too. Just turn the whole thing over."

There was no protest from any of the six men. The only thing which was said was muttered by Lieutenant Byrd: "The old man hasn't been getting enough sleep lately."

Colonel Middleton went to the head of the mule and guided it to the side of the road. He directed the other five men to take positions on the left side of the cart and to lift together when he gave the signal.

General Marvin roared: "Come on, get it over with. What a bunch of softies. Get it over with."

Colonel Middleton gave the signal. The five men lifted.

In his dream, Errante rose up above the nine-foot fish and soared off into space. The sensation was extremely pleasant.

Future of Cotton

WHAT is going to happen to King Cotton, mainstay of more farmers than any other crop? And more farmers are affected by what happens to cotton than by what happens to any other crop. Up to one-third of all farm residents in the country live on cotton farms and they're the lowest income group in agriculture.

Not only these cotton farmers, but every farmer, every resident of the thousands of home towns from the East to the West coast and from top to bottom of the country, is interested in cotton . . . for cotton in peacetime accounts for four-fifths of our total textile yardage.

According to recent statistics released by Secretary Clinton P. Anderson of the department of agriculture, the gross average farm income of cotton farmers in the 10 years ending in 1942 was only $865 a year, as against more than $2,000 in other parts of the nation.

Why, then, with cotton an all-important crop and selling at prices well above parity should income of these cotton farmers, a third of all farmers, be so much lower than the average of other farmers? The answer is found in the agricultural practices of the South for the past hundred years, and includes (1) a one-crop system of farming, (2) lack of conservation practices which have driven the center of the cotton kingdom from the southeastern states across the Mississippi to the Southwest and (3) cotton surpluses which have in the past demoralized the market.

Tough Competition

While the department of agriculture is not pessimistic over the future of cotton in the immediate post-war years, it is obvious, they point out, that great care will be necessary for cotton to hold its own in an increasingly competitive field.

In the first place cotton production in this country has decreased, whereas foreign production has increased. In 1920 for instance, we produced 13 million of the 21 million bales of cotton produced in the world. In 1940, the last year for world statistics, we produced only 12 out of 29 million bales, and our production in 1943 dropped to 11 million bales. In spite of this drop in production other competitive commodities have soared in common usage replacing cotton. Rayon, nylon, spun glass and other newer developments of textiles are boring into the cotton market. U. S. rayon production 10 years ago amounted to only 10 million pounds, whereas last year rayon had grown to 724 million pounds or the equivalent of 1,700,000 bales of cotton. Paper products entering the market formerly held by cotton . . . towels, tissues, napkins, window shades, plastic and twine, in 1929 was equivalent on a pound-for-pound basis of a million bales of raw cotton.

The Commodity Credit corporation in the department of agriculture is the godfather of the cotton crop and the haven of cotton crop farmers. It is the Commodity Credit corporation which supports the market price for cotton, by buying up surpluses, and providing substitutes for cotton exports. Through August 10, 1945, the CCC had purchased on its Cotton Purchase Program (support price program) 2,465,667 bales of cotton of the 1944 crop at an average price of about 23.31 cents a pound, involving approximately $250,000,000. In addition it had provided a 4-cent per hundred pound subsidy for its export program involving 592,170 bales of the 1944 crop.

Favorable Outlook

Secretary Anderson in a recent address before the New York Cotton Exchange pointed out, however, some favorable factors in behalf of the postwar future of cotton. He pointed out that during the war thousands of cotton farmers had started soil conservation practices and diversified farming; there are constantly being discovered new uses for cotton; the department has just announced discovery of a new cotton fabric which will not mildew nor rot which will be used extensively in yards, threads, packaging and bagging; demand for cotton in other countries will be at a new peak, although world carryover is at an all-time high; in the U. S., despite a cancellation of 60 per cent of war orders for cotton products, stock will be taken up by the tremendous backlog of civilian demands.

"American cotton will face not only large stocks on hand . . . it will face an all the need for better farm practices if it is to hold its place in the world market," Secretary Anderson warned. He said, however, that he is depending on co-operation and American "know-how" and an increased export market to bring cotton "marching home from war."

In this connection it will be interesting for cotton farmers to note that the Commodity Credit corporation has been placed under the new Production and Marketing administration in the new U. S. D. A. set-up.

What One Language Do All Speak?
You know the answer to that one. They all speak the silent language of earth and weather—of crops and stock—of planting time and harvest. For they are farmers—blood brothers the world over.
Today, many of the farmers of other lands aren't doing so well. Their lands have been mined, fought over, ravaged. Their stock has been butchered. Their farm buildings burned. They have no seed to plant the soil.
They desperately need your help.
And you can give your help—through the dollars you give to your Community War Fund.
Those dollars you wring from the soil, and give to a great and worthy cause, help more than the farmers of other lands. They help farmers' sons—and other men's sons—endure the tedium of prison camps. They help provide the blessing of entertainment to service people throughout the world. And they help solve war problems right here in your own community.
The dollars you give to your Community War Fund go farther than any dollars you're apt to put anywhere else. And this year—they need to go farther than ever before. So give again—and generously—won't you?

LOOKING AHEAD

President - Harding College

Vinson
Shortly after Fred Vinson was named Secretary of the Treasury he was quoted in the press as saying "the American people are in the pleasant predicament of having to learn to live 50% better than they have ever lived before." When he made this remark he was talking about a future day, one that had not come then and has not come yet, but a completely possible future day.

Hitler was no longer a menace, when the new Secretary spoke of a 50% higher living standard in America, but Japan still clouded the Pacific. Now that has cleared up also and today's national problem is economic rather than strategic. The strain is no less, but in a different place. We've felt in America as being pre-occupied with the relief of changed hands with a heavy burden.

Load is on Vinson
About a month ago this column carried an outline of Mr. Vinson's tax policies which I frankly consider sound. Now, in view of the changed international picture, it is high time everybody knew more about this generalissimo of post-war finance, czar of economics in the world's most important country. He is a key man on the team that has to win if liberty, civilization and enlightenment survive.

Fred Vinson is 55 years old. Half a century ago he was playing in the yard of the jailhouse in Louisa, Ky. His father was county jailer. The next year he started to school. His coarse hair is half gray now and he has some loose skin under his chin but he is recognized as the "best in his line" and on a job where everybody wishes him well, if that's success.

A Serious Student
Louisa, with some 2,000 inhabitants, is across the Big Sandy river from West Virginia. There young Vinson entered school, there was elected district attorney and from there went to Congress in 1922. At Center College, Danville, Ky., he worked in the library to help pay expenses, took a leading part in athletics and averaged above 85 in grades all through college and law school.

Mr. Vinson is a penetrating thinker. He has years of experience in government and he knows taxes. He is a recognized fiscal expert. That's what put him on the Ways & Means committee and here his ability is still respected. He has been a Federal judge, the successful economic stabilizer of this country, also director of war mobilization and reconversion—the job that's known as "assistant president."

To Make More Jobs
Vinson has many prime qualifications for his present job. And his thoroughness, it came out a time or two in connection with his work as chairman of the tax action of the Ways & Means committee that he knew more than his witnesses themselves about testimony they submitted. Recollection of these incidents naturally tends to keep alive Vinson's influence among congressmen which is a big asset.

It is told that he studied beforehand the financial statements of big corporations whose officials were testifies, and his questioning them proved repeatedly that he knew more about certain aspects of a corporation's business than did its president. This is the man who planned a tax program to create the most jobs, instead of merely raising revenue for the government, something I have been shouting from the rooftops for four years.

Mad Dogs and Wagging Tongues

The county had a "mad dog" scare last week. Phoebe Token's spaniel bit the postman, and he vowed that he was plenty mad about it.

about our soldiers drinking too much around Army camps. It's just not true, as the government found out and told us. Milk and beer are among a soldier's favorite drinks which is why we have the best behaved army in history. But those ugly rumors are bound to hurt morale and cause hard feeling.

Wagging tongues can cause a lot of "mad dog" trouble. Like wagging tongues that gossip

From where I sit, wagging tongues can cause a heap more trouble than mad dogs.

British Coal

England is a coal country; 70% of the island's export tonnage is coal and it goes all over the world. England's 706,000 miners produce 200 million tons of coal a year. These are big figures until you compare England and America. We have only 393,000 miners in the United States but they produce 586 million tons of coal a year—more than five times as much per man as in England.

Coal miners in England draw $27 a week. American coal miners get $52 a week and they earn it. Don't let anybody tell you that American workers are super-men who hit harder and work more hours a day, because it's not true. Don't let anybody tell you that coal veins in the western hemisphere are richer and better and easier to work, because that's not true either.

Modern Machinery
In America miners use power cutters. Automatic loaders put the coal in cars and electric locomotives pull them away. In England men dig coal out with picks and pitch it in cars with shovels. The power that pulls the car to daylight is a scrub mule with a rag over his eyes. That's how they used to mine coal in America when grandpa was a boy.

Getting a ton of English coal to the top of the ground costs $4.30 for labor alone; $1.40 in America. The manpower shortage, incidental to war, ran the price of British coal to $8.50 a ton—twice its pre-war price. American coal advanced only 60c a ton. Hand work is what commands the premium when men are scarce. This economic fact has worked a hardship on the English.

Food and Clothing
England does not raise enough food for her people, nor enough fibre to clothe them. Such necessities are imported by the shipload. In a practical sense, they are bought with coal. Plain to see, with coal costs doubled, things to eat and wear became very dear in England. People blamed the war, of course, but the real trouble was lack of modern coal mining machinery.

With a nation so dependent on coal, why didn't the mine owners equip their properties with modern machinery, get out more coal per man and pay better wages? Answer: Government interference! Tax laws discouraged replacing old machinery. Regulations placed a penalty on efficient methods. The results were three: High prices, low wages, and a ruined export trade.

Might Have Been
Workers in British mines blamed the mine owners. The squeeze that pinched their wages to half the American scale was a political vice. Government regulations and taxes retarded production and choked prosperity. This was so craftily hid from the workers that they shouted loud for nationalization—government ownership. It will come now, with Churchill out and Atlee in.

With most admirable fortitude the English came through fendish abuse to victory. Peace might have brought England prosperity; ability to pay her 12 billion dollars of war debts. With business men free to compete and produce, earn profits and raise wages, it might have been. But socializing all industry will start a long detour off the road to a better England.

On U. S. Colorado

Aboard the USS Colorado in Tokyo Bay (Delayed) Miles P. Williams, 27, pharmacist's mate, second class, USNR, whose wife and children live at Captain, N. M., and whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Williams, live at 2114 Missouri St., San Diego, Calif., steamed into Tokyo Bay aboard this ship to support the occupation of Japan.

The Colorado, whose crew had taken her through ten invasion operations to help bring the final capitulation of Japan, had been near Tokyo before she sailed with American and British warships into Sagami Bay, 18 miles from Tokyo to support the first landings of airborne troops at Atsuga airfield. That operation was in preparation for the arrival of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur to make the occupation official.

The Colorado poured thousands of tons of hot steel into Jap shore installations in the pre-invasion bombardments that gave Allied forces bastions on Japan's outer rim. She helped at Tarawa, the Philippines, Okinawa, and in four years.

From the deck of the battleship may now be seen Fujiyama, the towering volcano that stands as one of Japan's famous landmarks; Tokyo, Yokohama, the Naval base of Yokosuka, and other cities with dead smokestacks and debris from Allied attacks. Nearby lies the Jap battleship Oagato, one of the last remaining enemy fleet units that went down under bombardment by planes from the 3rd fleet.

ABOARD THE USS NEVADA IN THE PACIFIC—Roy M. Yancy, seaman, first class, USNR, Corona, New Mexico, celebrated the surrender of Japan aboard this famous American battleship as she rested at anchor in Leyte Gulf after a 32-day mission into the East China Sea.

The announcement by the Commanding Officer, Captain Homer Louis Grosskopf, USN, of Minneapolis, Minn., that the Japanese had quit, tossed off a demonstration unlike any this veteran ship had ever seen. Sailors tossed their hats in the air and began jiggerbugging to the strains of the ship's band. It was "Holiday Routine" for all hands.

The "Old Imperishable" of the Fleet began this war at Pearl Harbor, went through the Aleutians campaign, fought at Normandy and Southern France, and then joined in the Iwo Jima and Okinawa battles.

AMERICAN HEROES

INVESTMENT in War Bonds has helped win the war and was no sacrifice compared to Pvt. Furman L. Smith's. The brave Central S. C. lad, who has been awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously, stood between two wounded sergeants and 80 advancing Germans with a lone Garand rifle and some clips. From a shallow shell hole he killed 10 of the enemy and littered the field with writhing wounded, in a hopeless stand before a machine gun burst ended his fighting. Your investment in Victory Bonds will care for his Buddies who were wounded in the same battle. U. S. Treasury Department

MRS. DYE MAKES OVERALLS LAST

PITCHER, OKLAHOMA.—Mrs. L. E. Dye has had a lot of experience in washing-overalls for five boys and her husband. She has found out how to make them last longer. Here is what she says in a letter to Faultless Starch.

"I cannot wash without Faultless Starch. You bet I think it will make overalls last longer and look ten times better. I know. We raised five boys, so I know what Faultless Starch means to overalls. Have used it as far back as I can remember and my mother used it, too. I can't say enough for Faultless Starch."

Now there is an important message for anyone who has overalls in her wash. Mrs. Dye says that Faultless Starch makes overalls wear longer (that's mighty important, today) and look "ten times better" (and that's important, too).

HOW TO STARCH OVERALLS

Overalls, work pants, wash shirts—and children's play clothes usually get very, very dirty. Sometimes it takes a lot of rubbing on a scrub-board to take the dirt out. And everyone knows that rubbing wears out clothes as much as washing them does. But when you give them a LIGHT starching with Faultless Starch you save a lot of that rubbing. You see—Faultless Starch penetrates the fabric—so dirt can't grind in so easily. And Faultless Starch dissolves instantly in water and carries most of the dirt right out with it. So when you starch other things, be sure to give overalls, work pants, children's clothes, etc., a very light starching at the same time. You'll notice the difference when you wash them!

SO SMOOTH TO WEAR

The men will really like it, too. The fabric feels smooth and slick—not scratchy and rough. They won't chafe as much around the neck and the arms. It's a wonderful relief to wear smooth, slick work clothes! Try it, this wash-day. And be sure to use Faultless Starch!—Adv.

by GRANTLAND RICE

WHO is the greatest hitter that baseball ever knew? It seemed to us that the best way to round out this argument was to go in a direct line to one who was a master at applying the ash.

Ty Cobb

So I looked up Ty Cobb, author and producer of more than 4,000 base hits. No, Ty didn't name Cobb. He named Shoeless Joe Jackson.

"I'll tell you why Jackson belongs on top," Cobb said. "Back in those years we not only had to swing at a dead ball but also a ball that was doctored in every known way. We had the spit ball, the emery ball, the fuzzed-up ball—a ball that would do a lot of queer things and come at you with odd dips and breaks. So the good hitters of that period had to choke the bat and go in for punch hitting.

"All except Jackson. Joe still took his full swing and he was often up there from .380 to .410. I know I could never have hit above .300 with that type of swing. Only Jackson, old Shoeless Joe, had the eye and the smoothness and the timing to do that.

"I used to wonder why he didn't strike out at least twice a game, taking a full out at a ball that flopped and ducked from the treatment it got, either by emery or thumbnail or saliva.

"Taking nothing away from Babe Ruth, the Babe never had to swing at a slippery or fuzzed-up ball. In those days you could lead the league with 10 or 12 home runs. The trick stuff had ended before Babe moved to the outfield in 1919.

"I've often wondered what Joe Jackson would have hit against the pitching and the livelier ball that came in around 1920. The same might go for Nap Lajoie, another great natural hitter, who didn't have as deep or as full a lach as Jackson used. With the livelier ball Jackson and Lajoie would have had insiders playing back in the outfield to keep out of hospitals. In one of the old-timer's games played in Boston with the lively ball, Lajoie's line drive hit the center field fence, and that was after Lajoie was through."

About Hitting

I asked Ty if he was ever tempted to become a slugger.

"Not with that dead, fuzzed-up ball," he said. "I always believed in playing percentage, and the percentage was all against a free swinger in those days.

"Later on I tried a few times to go out for distance, but by that time I had been around nearly 20 years and it was a little late in life to change my swing or learn new tricks. You can't change the habits of 20 years in anything like a hurry, if you can change them at all. But I remember a series in St. Louis where I decided to take a chance on the slugging side and as I recall it, I picked up five home runs in two games.

"Walter Johnson was the greatest pitcher I ever faced," Ty went on. "except Ed Walsh in 1903 when he won 40 ball games and saved 10 or 12 others. But when you speak of great pitchers, how can anyone overlook Cy Young?"

"Cy had been pitching 15 years before I came to the Tigers, but he was still a great pitcher. He won something like 510 ball games, which is more than most pitchers ever worked in. Cy was a big, burly fellow and he could hide that ball better than anyone I ever saw. He would turn his back to you in the windup and the ball would be on you before you knew what was happening. Cy had fine speed, a good curve ball and perfect control. He could pitch into a tin cup. He was also smart and game.

"The great thing about Walter Johnson was that you knew a fast ball was coming—but it didn't help. You never had to worry about a curve in those days from Walter, or any change of pace. Just speed. Raw speed, blinding speed, too much speed. The answer is that Johnson still holds the shut-out and the strike-out record. With a better hitting, better scoring ball club, Johnson would have had several 40 game seasons on the winning side. Some day look up the records and see how many 1 to 0 games he lost. I can see that long, rubber right arm unwinding now, with the ball on top of you before you could even blink. No wonder a lot of ball players used to get sick on the day Johnson was to pitch."

'Crazy' Stunts

I asked Ty what was the greatest thrill he got out of baseball. "On the bases," he said. "I liked to run and at times try out a few crazy things, such as scoring from first on a single or scoring from second on an outfield fly.

"Every now and then I'd take a crazy chance where I actually had no chance at all. I knew that. But I also knew that a certain amount of crazy running would put more pressure on the defense and maybe start a little hurlyburly."

Better Soil Grows Healthier Livestock

Cattle Prefer Hay From Fertilized Soil

Cattle have sense enough to show farmers whether their pasture land is properly fertilized or not, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee.

"That was demonstrated by a recent experiment reported by Dr. William A. Albrecht, head of the Fertilized hay that pays.

Soils department of the University of Missouri," says the statement.

"The cattle were turned loose in a field in which there were two stacks of hay. The grasses were the same species; the curing was the same. The hay looked and smelled the same. But the cattle ate the stack from the treated area first and ignored the other until later.

"The hay from the stacks was analyzed in a laboratory. Then it was discovered that that stack contained much more calcium and phosphorus—two minerals cattle must have for good health. The good hay came from soil that had been treated with lime and fertilizer. The poor hay came from untreated land.

"This experiment proved once again that better soil grows better food, better livestock and healthier human beings.

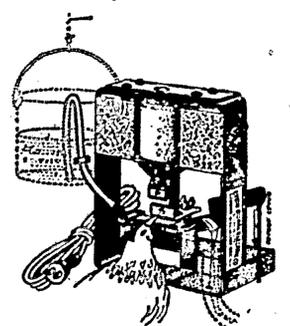

"This soil's capacity to produce meat, grain, vegetables and dairy products high in essential minerals and vitamins is dependent on that soil's supply of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. This capacity can be increased by intelligent soil management including the regular application of mixed fertilizer containing these necessary elements. The fertilizer industry which has demonstrated its ability to provide plant food for winning the wartime food production battle will be fully equipped to help farmers meet all their postwar requirements for soil improvement."

DDT Outdone

An insecticide even deadlier than DDT has been discovered by the Imperial Chemical industries in England. Its chemical designation is gamma isomer of benzene hexachloride, and it is known as gamma-xane.

The new insect slayer has qualities in common with DDT. It is a cold white substance and almost insoluble in water. It decomposed in the presence of lime, but can be sprayed in a kerosene solution or a water emulsion, or used as a dust, if lime is absent. It is not yet available for use in the United States. It is said to be unharmed to human users.

Poultry Debeaker

Following experiments at the University of California, an electric debeaker for poultry has been placed on the market by the Lyon Rural Electric company, San Diego, Calif. It eliminates picking and cannibalism, reduces feed loss and birds' nervousness and increases the quality of birds in general.

Enriched Tomatoes

Tomatoes with 10 times as much vitamin A value as is contained in varieties now offered on the market may be developed, according to Dr. F. P. Zscheile of the University of Chicago.

While rapid strides have been made in the development of varieties, Dr. Zscheile looks for considerable improvement in the post-war era, to such a point that tomatoes may be graded upon their vitamin content.

Pretty Frocks for Dressy Dates Set New High in Chic and Charm

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MORE men at home means calls from wives, sweethearts, sisters, cousins and aunts and adoring mothers too, for dress-up clothes for joyous reunions and social events that are sure to follow. More celebrations at homecomings and more people in a gala mood just naturally calls for one pretty "date" dress after another. Glancing over the new collections, one realizes that our style creators have sensed this demand for dress-up clothes. This season utmost stress is being placed upon the importance of charming "date" frocks that have that air about them that makes one look one's prettiest.

While it is true that fancy again turns to "beautiful black," which this season takes on more beguiling ways than ever for cocktail and date dresses, there is also a definite flair for wool frocks that play up vivid eye-thrilling colors.

Wool dresses that double for campus or dates place emphasis on color as well as a soft styling technique which achieves very interesting and new-looking silhouettes. It seems that college girls are going all out for fine wools this season. Color choices run in two directions. The neutrals in pale beige or various grays make wide appeal. Contrasting these are colors as daring as imagination can picture, some playing up striking contrast, others used in one tone for the entire dress. The newest fashion gesture is to use bright colors with beige or gray wool.

This season satin comes into the picture as ideal for dressy "date" wear. A young style that is convincingly last-minute vintage tops a graceful dirndl skirt of soft black crepe satin with a bodice top of black jersey, cut severely plain, but teamed with the full satin skirt. The effect is very striking. A streamlined bow of the satin at the left waistline adds the perfect accent.

Designers see infinite possibilities for drama and glamour in the now-fashionable contrast sleeve effects that highlight many a charming gown that will go dating this fall and winter. See the lovely model to the left. Note the graceful wing-sleeves that contrast the dark crepe of the dress. This is new-style costume design at its best. The leopard fur at the front of the belt gives smart accent.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

It is just such masterpieces of simplicity as is this frock that proclaim the dawn of a new era in styling technique.

Campus Favorite

The loose-knit classic cardigan is proving a college girl favorite. Versatile, useful and comfortable, it is one of the "hit" fashions of the season. The girls are wearing them with clean-plaid all-around pleated skirts, and they are also good-looking worn with the new slender wrap-around skirts.

Black Satin Frocks Are Topped by Marten Stoles

At fashionable gatherings black satin dresses with marten scarfs or stoles are very much in evidence. With sparkling jewels and a tall important looking hat these de luxe costumes stand out conspicuously as the favorite costume for early fall dress-up wear.

Entire Wardrobe Now Made of Chic Corduroy

It seems as if corduroy is being used for most everything this season from sport and campus clothes to most elegant formals and date dresses. At a recent fashion display, it was demonstrated how beautifully corduroy can be styled for the bride's trousseau. For instance, there was a Victorian gray going-away suit that was simply stunning. The new corduroys come in the most charming colors fancy might picture. The featured shades this season for corduroy are neon pink, Indian turquoise and the lovely Victorian gray. Young fashions were stressed in party coats made of white corduroy. The new French pleat slacks, and clam digger shorts with black jersey tops in corduroy are top fashion this year. With the college girl, the long coat or the shortie type made of corduroy has become a favorite. Smart as can be is the bolero suit made of wide wale corduroy, the stripes rather wide wales, worked horizontally all the way through.

Rich Jewelry Embroidered Right on Dress Is Latest

One of the big success fashions of the season is the dress that has a necklace and bracelet (two on the left long fitted sleeve) embroidered on as an integral part of the dress itself. Cleverest idea ever! And it's going over big. The bracelets are wide and are usually embroidered on one sleeve only. Sequins, pearls and multi-color stones are used together with metal thread stitchery. They give a most opulent look to the simple black frock.

Now it can be told: Workers proudly tell of their sabotage work when rubber plants in France were under Nazi control. They spread soapstone on the piles as they built a fire. Finished product leaked perfect, but in use piles would break, leaving the Nazis flat.

George R. Hyde Dies of Injuries

(Respectfully contributed by Sam Bigger, Capitan, N. Mex.)

In the passing of George R. Hyde, Capitan has lost one of its oldest and best citizens; Lincoln County has lost one of her most respected and popular citizens; one who was liked and admired, not only for his pleasing ways, but for his determination to carry on despite his great physical handicap of being a deaf-mute.

When we people of Capitan heard of his sudden and tragic death, we were shocked and sincerely grieved. He was struck by an automobile, while walking along the highway.

Many of us enjoyed conversation with Mr. Hyde by sign language and also with pencil and paper.

It can be truthfully stated of Mr. Hyde, that he was blessed with an optimistic nature and was ever looking forward to better things to come. Another prominent characteristic was his sympathetic kindness toward those who were entitled to sympathy. He was indeed a friend to everybody. He was plain, unobtrusive, and one compliment we can pay—with which everyone will agree—he attended strictly to his own business.

Capitan New Mexico

George Riley Hyde was born on the 26th of December, 1882, at Hydesport, Miles County, Texas, (a small settlement) which has long since disappeared.

His parents were William H. and Dicy Hyde, but his father died when George was small. In the year 1904 the widowed mother and other members of the family moved to Lincoln County and located about two miles north of the then wee village of Capitan.

Shortly after moving there, George made his first pair of boots which he appropriated to his own use, and of which he was very proud. This was the beginning of his boot and shoe business, in which line he was successful. He remained at their home place until 1909 when he moved to Capitan to start his boot and shoe business on a larger scale. He leased a building from Captain S. T. Gray, the founder of Capitan.

George remained a bachelor until rather late in life, but on Sept. 24th, 1934, he was united in marriage to Miss Martha Rugh of Red Bud, Illinois, an attractive lady several years his junior. To this union, his son was born. His father named him Franklin Garth the Frankin being for our late president, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt was sent a photograph of the boy and in return Mr. Roosevelt sent a letter of congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Hyde, which is a highly treasured memento.

Mr. Hyde's funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Hoop of the Nazarene church at Capitan, Wednesday evening, Sept. 12, 1945 followed by burial in the cemetery near Capitan Gap; his resting place near his mother, who passed on years ago.

His survivors are his widow Mrs. Martha Hyde; his son, Franklin G. Hyde; one sister Mrs. Ethel R. Kaathy, all of Capitan; one nephew, Pvt. Oliver Reed of the U. S. Army, Sheppard Field Texas, and young Mrs. Reed who lives in Carlisle.

The services were largely attended and many heads were bowed in sorrow.

The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

I am erecting a building on Alamogordo Street for the purpose of selling and servicing Radios, Washing Machines, Refrigerators and other Appliances.

The building will not be completed for some time, but I expect to receive these goods as soon as they are available.

If you are in need of these articles I will appreciate your order now for goods to be delivered as soon as factories can make them.

I will continue in the coal and wood business for the present.

I thank you for your patronage in the past and ask for your future patronage in my new business.

Respectfully,
MARVIN BURTON.
