VOLUME XX No. 16--(Carrizozo News, Vol. 40) CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1945 Outlook Vol. 36--No. 80

Receives 200 Books From State Library

Mrs. Lucille Patterson has received a new assortment of 200 books, from the State Extension Library, which are free at the County Library. Because the majority of the borrowers last quarter were juvenile readers the writer requested a greater percent of children's books for this quarter. A good percent of the books on hand are for children beginning to read. There are books to thrill both big and little children. Some are in Spanish for pre school children.

Requests have been made for certain books. The State Extension Library at Santa Fe has 15,000 volumes. Most any popular book may be had just by paying the postage both ways. The best way is to send a dollar to the library at Santa Fe for postage from Santa Fe thus eliminating unnecessary correspondence. No general catalog is sent from Santa Fe but a list of books recently added to the library, may be sent at the County Library.

Contributed.

Mr. Ben S. Burts has been in El Paso several days for treatment. He is doing very nicely.

Mrs. Paula Freeman and Carl, Jr., have gone to Las Cruces to spend the Thanksgiving holidays.

A radio message this morning announces the death of Mrs. Ernie Pyle of Albuquerque, widow of the late nationally known war correspondent.

Charles Carl in Pacific

H. Charles Carl, aviation motor machinist's mate, first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Carl of Carrizozo took part in the occupation of Japan with the crew of the escort carrier USS Makin Island.

While taking part in several of the major Pacific operations, including Okinawa, Iwo Jima, and the liberation of the Philippines, the Makin Island remained undamaged in battle. Her planes and guns were credited with shooting down 22 enemy aircraft and destroying 16 on the ground.

The escort carrier also assisted in sinking two destroyers, an oiler, and numerous small craft, while otherwise performing her major assignment of knocking out pill boxes, troop concentrations and installations in the Jap islands she attacked in the western Pacific.

Lucky Deer Hunters

When we boasted in last week's paper we would name all the lucky deer hunters, we made a mistake. We haven't the names of half of them. In former years when a gun was presented to the hunter bringing in the biggest buck, it was quite easy, because they had to register in order to be able to win; but now with no prizes in the offing they just don't worry about getting their names in the paper. Lucky ladies were Mrs. Paul Wilson and Mrs. C. E. May.

A few are named here: Messrs. Albert Snow, sons Charles and Glen, Dr. W. C. Snow; Messrs. Fay Harkey, Ralph Petty, Bill Gallacher, Albert Roberts, Jones, Slim Wilson, Jess Garrison, James Duncan, Carrizozo; Champ Ferguson, Brazel Hartley, Miles Williams, Capitan; R. L. Huffmyer, White Oaks, and a lot of others who did not bother to inform us of their prowess in pursuit of big game.

Quite a few are bear hunting this week.

Cpl. Ernie Prehm has returned to Bruyn's General hospital in Santa Fe for a final check up before his honorable discharge from the army. Ernie was a member of New Mexico's 200th Coast Artillery, a fighting organization that will go down in history, so long as history is written. After the fall of Bataan he survived the atrocious Death March with all its abominable cruelties and the crushing humiliations of a Jap prison camp and lived to tell the story; like many another one, he will never tell the story, he will just try to forget.

Speaking of the 200th Coast Artillery reminds me of then Chaplain, Captain Howden. He wrote me a letter from Fort Bliss asking me to send the News to the 200th, I did. Later he wrote me from somewhere in the Pacific area requesting me not to fail to send the Lincoln County News every week, that several of the men were from Lincoln county. I did not fail; I read between the lines; they were depressed and blue. But what I did not know at that time was that "mailed in conformity with" etc, had to be either stamped or written on the wrapper. So the 200th may not have received a copy of the News. The 200th walked arm in arm with danger and death stalked in their wake.

Captain Howden did not come home. Many, many more will never come home. It matters not where they sleep, they are at rest.

Ruidoso to Incorporate

It seems the "eyes" were in the majority and Lincoln county is to have another incorporated village. Mr. Albert Vaughn of Ruidoso was in town Wednesday arranging with the commissioners and others for an election to be held Tuesday, December 11th. On page 8 of this paper will be found the particulars.

Ruidoso residents have been planning for incorporation for a long time. Success for any plan means work, persistence and grit. Evidently there were a few residents of the town who persevere long enough and success crowned their efforts.

Ruidoso is beautifully located. The village is overshadowed by towering mountains and the scenery is magnificent. It is a summer resort patronized not only by south westerners, but by people from Chicago, New York and other eastern cities.

It is located in a prosperous stock raising and agricultural district. The mountain apples raised near there are the best on earth (Washington apples not excepted).

Last, but not least, Ruidoso has some substantial and enterprising business men, some of whom will be elected December 11th to fill the office of mayor, city council and clerk.

It took two more days, but he "brought home the venison".

VICTORY LOAN. If you happen to look over various accounts of football games around the map you will run into stories of constant fumbling. This is partly due to the shape of the modern football which is fashioned largely for a passing attack. It is built more like a short javelin than anything else, being narrow and pointed. A fumble, recovered by the other side, usually costs from 40 to 50 yards. The shape of the ball is at least a big part of the epidemic.

Sportlight OF GRANTLAND RICE

WHETHER or not he is the greatest, Harry Gilmer of Alabama is beyond any argument the most amazing back that football can show today.

Doc Blanchard, army's brilliant back, weighs 205 pounds and can run the 100 in 10 flat.

Glenn Davis, another army brilliant, 180 pounds, is the fastest man in football.

Harry Gilmer, barely 10 years old, weighs 150 pounds and he has no such speed as either Blanchard or Davis can show.

And yet I saw him pounce and run Alabama into 26 points against Duke last winter, while tackling all over the field.

This fall he threw three touchdown passes against a strong L. S. U. team to carry Alabama into a 20 to 7 victory over the team that wrecked Georgia. He then panned and ran Tennessee dizzy to win by 25 to 7.

Gilmer has already proved himself to be one of the best passers of all time. I'd rank him as the greatest passer in football today, college or pro. But the most amazing part of this 150-pound kid is that he is one of the best all-over-the-field tacklers you'll see in many years.

That he is a fine ball carrier who is not only elusive, but who can hold his feet with a 100-pound back. Also that he is one of the most accurate kickers in the game today.

Batters Big Linesmen

Against Tennessee he kicked out of bounds on the Volunteers' 4-yard line. The play was called back. On his second shot Gilmer again kicked out on the 4-yard line. Also against the big forward walls of L. S. U. and Tennessee he drove his way through the lines as well as he cut around the flanks, carrying 200-pounders for 4 and 6 extra yards.

How often do you see a star passer, a fine ball carrier and a good kicker starring in a defensive role? After the Duke-Sugar Bowl game last winter I ran into Tom Davis, Duke's fast, 100-pound back.

"Gilmer?" he said. "He is no 100-pounder. He must have called me 10 times today, and I thought he was going to tear me apart." But 183 to 103 is Gilmer's weight, with which he does the job of four men.

For example, in three big games against Duke, L. S. U. and Tennessee, he was largely responsible for the 77 points Alabama scored.

Gilmer's three main ingredients are poise, timing and chill. The Alabama star has thin shoulders, a rather thin chest, but he also has a pair of powerful legs and two big, strong hands.

Knocking on wood for the sake of Frank Thomas, he is also as durable as hickory. He can handle a heavy battering without slowing down. The kid is as cold as an iceberg. You never see him rattled or hurried. He has a pair of blue-gray eyes that get the picture before him in a flash—even when he is in mid-air throwing a pass. Handling the ball from center on a running or a passing play, he always seems to be taking his time, and yet he gets the ball away or starts his run without any waste of time.

Coolness and Timing

Frank Thomas tells me that no brooch of the game ever upset him in the least. "I've never seen any one," Thomas says, "who knows better exactly what to do under all conditions. He can whip a bullet pass as though it were a ball, or give you a 50-yard arm throw of the Luckman type. And he rarely misses his target. If he ever made a single bad or wild pass, I never saw it. But it is his coolness, his timing, his durability that makes his skill stand out. He throws his shorter passes with a wrist flip that can't be intercepted. And he can also nail a receiver 50 yards away, after leaving his feet for the jump."

While Gilmer has been a leading factor in carrying Alabama to victory, he isn't the only football player of Frank Thomas has on his squad. Big Mancha, one of the best centers in football, heads a strong, fast charging line. Tew and Hodges are two hard running backs. This is the best team Alabama has sent into action in some years, and Alabama has had more than her share of winning games and winning years. Also such stars as Don Hutson, Foulky Hubert, Mack Brown, Howell, Harry Cain, Jenkins, Whitmore and now Gilmer and Mancha.

Fumbling All Around

If you happen to look over various accounts of football games around the map you will run into stories of constant fumbling. This is partly due to the shape of the modern football which is fashioned largely for a passing attack. It is built more like a short javelin than anything else, being narrow and pointed. A fumble, recovered by the other side, usually costs from 40 to 50 yards. The shape of the ball is at least a big part of the epidemic.

Sea School Stays At Sheepshead Bay

Maritime Service Will Give Training Courses.

WASHINGTON.—The maritime service training station at Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, largest merchant marine training school in the world, will become a permanent installation, Capt. H. H. Dreany, assistant commandant of the United States Maritime Service, said here.

The station will provide one-month refresher and upgrading courses for unlicensed merchant marine personnel.

Established in 1942 to train civilians in merchant marine entry-ratings, Sheepshead Bay is to be one of five permanent installations which will maintain "a trained and efficient citizen personnel" for the post-war merchant fleet, according to Captain Dreany.

Fleet Will Need 100,000 Men. Vice Adm. Emory S. Land, head of the Maritime Service, has anticipated a post-war merchant fleet of 17,500,000 tons, and Captain Dreany said such a fleet would require 100,000 unlicensed personnel.

Men entering the merchant marine probably will be trained at the St. Petersburg, Fla., maritime school, he said. The merchant marine academy at Kings Point, L. I., planned as a four-year "Annapolis" for merchant marine officers, will supply about one-fourth of the licensed personnel. Other officer candidates coming up will be trained at Fort T. A. Bull, New London, Conn., and Alameda, Calif.

During the war, 10,000 men were trained at one time at the 70-acre Sheepshead Bay station. There are seven barracks, each housing 1,500 men, and a ship's company barracks housing 624. At present, about 4,000 men are in training there. Captain Dreany said the maritime service will continue the present program for the duration of the shipping emergency.

Find Common Cold Is Shortened by Penicillin

CHICAGO.—Highly concentrated solutions of penicillin inhaled as a mist have brought complete relief to persons suffering from several respiratory infections, a medical investigator reported in the current journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Herbert N. Vermilye of Forest Hills, N. Y., said in the publication that he had used the treatment successfully on more than 250 patients afflicted with inflammation of the lungs, tonsillitis, sinus trouble, sore throat, and bacterial conjunctivitis.

A form of the drug known as aerosol penicillin, he said, inhaled through a mouthpiece or oxygen mask, has shortened the duration of colds by halting secondary infections.

Screams Rout Prowler As Rifle and Dog Fail

VINCENNES, IND.—Mrs. George Wilton felt secure at night when her husband was away from home, because she had a quick-action automatic rifle and a fierce watch-dog.

But when a man entered her home one evening, both dog and gun failed. The dog, she discovered, was found asleep. And when she pulled the trigger of the gun on the intruder advanced toward her, the hammer struck an empty barrel.

Mrs. Wilton relied on a couple of blood-curdling screams to arouse her father next door, and the intruder fled.

Japs Pay Yanks $1.33 a Package for Cigarettes

TOKYO.—A growing black market in sweeping Japan despite orders by American and Japanese authorities prohibiting the purchase or barter of goods brought into the country by United States troops.

Japanese merchants are paying soldiers 20 yen (about $1.33) for a package of American cigarettes, and reselling them to tobacco-starved Japanese for as much as 40 yen.

Japanese business men will pay 10 yen (about 60 cents) for a small package of sugar and 20 yen for a can of hash stew.

Kissing Autoist Fined $30 in Fatal Accident

GREENWICH, CONN.—Pvt. Stanley Hordicki, 24-year-old Stamford soldier, who Coroner Theodore Steiber found was kissing a girl in his car when the vehicle struck and killed Mrs. Caroline Dorecki, 53, of Port Chester, N. Y., on July 15, was fined $30 in court on a charge of negligent homicide.

Hordicki returned from his camp in Texas to stand trial and Judge L. Paul Burke said he took that fact into consideration in imposing a light penalty.

Jap Newspaper Predicts 4 Million Unemployed

TOKYO, JAPAN.—The newspaper Asahi estimated that Japan would have 4,700,000 unemployed after demobilization of servicemen and war workers and repatriation of overseas Japanese.

The government, Asahi said, is planning an ordinance to give first preference in employment to the demobilized men, and restricting jobs which may be held by women.

about RUBBER

Twenty-five years ago passenger cars used only three to five pounds of rubber, not counting tires. Today the average car contains fifty pounds of rubber products.

More than half of all the estimated 100 million automobile wheels in America are now rolling on synthetic rubber.

Stanley University is experimenting with a new type of seed with a view to growing rubber in some of the arid regions of China.

New automobiles built this year will be delivered without spare tires.

"NONE SO GOOD," SAYS MRS. CARL STOWE

SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI. — Mrs. Carl Stowe finally got around to writing to Faultless Starch. Here is what she says:

"I've intended to write for a long time, but just kept putting it off. I just wanted to say I have used Faultless a long time. I have tried other starches but none so good as Faultless. It is more economical and does not blow out of the clothes. Then they iron so much easier. I sure am sold on Faultless and I just wanted to tell you so."

That is a wonderful letter, isn't it. Mrs. Stowe has tried other starches and she says "none so good as Faultless."

DOES NOT BLOW OUT

One thing she says in her letter may be very interesting to you. She says that Faultless Starch does not blow out. Now you probably have had the experience of getting your wash all done, starched and on the line—only to find when you go to iron that the wind has whipped all the starch out! And you have to starch all over again—put them on the line—and iron a day later!

Now, you don't HAVE to go through that . . . not if you use Faultless Starch!

You see, Faultless Starch is made a special way so that the starch penetrates into the fabric. It doesn't just stick to the outside. As a result, the wind doesn't blow it out—and a freeze won't freeze it out!

Think what a lot of time and work that one thing can save you some busy week!

But that isn't the only wonderful thing about Faultless Starch! It takes only a minute to make perfect hot starch—WITHOUT COOKING! And, it contains ironing-aids that keep the iron from sticking—NO "STICKEY" IRON! It's so easy to do smooth, beautiful ironing.

So try Faultless Starch, and you'll never go back to the old, hard-work way of starching.—Adv.

Unions More Powerful Now Than in 1919

HISTORY is repeating itself in the labor field. Following World War I there was a wave of strikes which involved, in 1919, approximately four million workers, or almost 21 per cent of the entire industrial working force.

Today, while less than 200,000 men are now on strike, it is estimated that before the end of the year or shortly thereafter there may be about three million strikers or about 11 per cent of the total workers. The difference is that in 1919 unions were not as tightly organized, they did not have as many rights, there was no collective bargaining. Unions were financially unable to carry the load of a long strike in those days.

Now unions are highly organized, have more members, their treasuries are bulging, and they are able to hire the best economists, publicity men and research organizations on a par with Big Business. In addition, they have favorable laws on their side and a bank for their funds. They are conducting a highly organized propaganda or publicity campaign, smart and effective. Among these campaigns is one designed to woo the farmers.

The "Economic Outlook," a monthly publication of the department of research and education of the CIO in Washington, in its current issue, is entirely devoted to propaganda cooking to bridge the gap between the farmer and the city worker.

"Six out of seven Americans who work for a living are in overalls," the article says, "and five of the seven work for wages; one of the seven works at farming. These men and women and their families form most of the 'public.' These are the people who make up the bulk of the consuming class. The dollars they earn and spend make America's economic machine tick."

Issue Must Be Settled

"Now that the war is over, men in overalls have a fight on their hands to make America a full production country in peace as well as in war. Not all Americans agree. The time is here when that issue must be settled. Wage earners are the first to join the issue, for unemployment is growing. It's a struggle for life, for the right to work, for the right to raise a family by decent living standards. And unless these men in overalls win the battle for full production, full employment and full wages now, it won't be long before farmers in overalls are engaged in a life and death struggle for good markets at parity prices. For all men in overalls are in the same boat, they ride the waves of prosperity together, they sink to depression together. If wage earners are making money, so are farmers. If men walk the streets looking for work, men on farms burn wheat, dump milk, leave cotton unpicked. That's depression, and Main street suffers while Wall street trembles."

"Studies by the U. S. federal trade commission indicate that factory labor cost of farm machinery is only a small part of the total price charged to farmers. For example, a three-bottom tractor plow for which farmers paid $153.50 had a manufacturing labor cost of only $11.17. For a cream separator, which had about the highest manufacturing cost of any agricultural implement, the cost was $100.04 and only $14.66 went to the wage earners who produced it. On that cream separator, the manufacturer's profits ran to 19 per cent and the retailer's margin to 23 per cent of the selling price."

Unions Are Like Co-Ops

"Just as farmers have the right to organize co-ops to get fair prices, so city workers have the right to organize unions to get fair wages and working conditions. Nearly half of all farmers, 2,730,000 in 1942-43, are organized in 7,523 selling co-ops. There are also 10,300 buying co-ops with 1,520,000 farmer members. More than one-third of wage and salaried workers, over 16 million, are organized in labor unions. Labor, like agriculture, deals with organized business. Labor, like agriculture, has organized to get a fair deal."

"When AAA crop control programs were in effect, co-operating farmers didn't like to have non-co-operators ride free. Those who didn't co-operate got lower loans, and with marketing quotas paid penalties on sales. It was the closest shop in agriculture. Unions don't like free riders either."

"Business got government privilege long ago. It secured the right to organize corporations. It also got subsidies from the government, including high tariffs, franchises and many other forms of privilege."

"Agriculture first won the right to bargain collectively for fair prices through tax-exempt co-ops. Then in the 1930s labor won the right to bargain collectively through unions. In the 1930s also, agriculture won the right to parity prices, corresponding to minimum wages, and to control production, corresponding to maximum hours."

Principals of Labor-Management Meeting at Capital

Labor and management opened parley in Washington in an effort to steer the country on a path of peaceful reconversion. Shown here, left to right, seated: Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace; Justice Walter P. Stacey of Raleigh, N. C., who presided; Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach. Standing, left to right: William Green, president of AFL; Eric Johnston, president of U. S. Chamber of Commerce; Ira Mosier, president of National Association of Manufacturers, and Phillip Murray, president of CIO.

BARUCH PREDICTS INFLATION WASHINGTON. — Elder Statesman Bernie Baruch revealed some interesting figures on inflation recently in an off-the-record session with 14 younger congressmen at his Shoreham hotel apartment. Baruch's prediction was that the nation was hell-bent for inflation—and soon.

Piecemeal increases in wages, profits and the cost of living have been uneven, Baruch said, with wages lagging behind. For that reason he no longer favored his prewar idea of a freeze on both prices and wages. Our only hope, said the elder statesman, is that we can weather the next six to nine months without running into serious inflation. If we do that, our chances of a strong recovery from the war boom are good.

"The huge pent-up demand for products which we will see during the next nine months is a very serious threat," said Baruch, stressing the importance of holding prices down.

He amazed his listeners by saying that he is completely opposed to tax reduction of any nature at this time. "Not only does the government lose needed revenue, but it is an unhealthy thing for our general economy," argued Baruch.

Rep. Andy Biemiller of Milwaukee asked what Baruch thought of the statement by General Motors' president C. E. Wilson that if wages are raised 30 per cent, prices must go up 30 per cent. Baruch talked at some length on the general question of rising prices, but gave no direct answer. Finally, Biemiller repeated his question.

WAGE NOT PRICE INCREASE

"Isn't it true that industry can give a 30 per cent wage increase without having to raise prices more than about 7 1/2 per cent?" Biemiller persisted. "You are approximately right," Baruch agreed. "I believe the figure you may have heard is actually 8 1/2 per cent."

Baruch also told his guests that he felt we were making a mistake in speeding manpower demobilization. "With the world in its present situation," he said, "it seems to me it would be wiser to proceed slowly with demobilization, in order that we not weaken ourselves at a time when power is apparently still an important thing."

He agreed also with an idea proposed by one of his guests, Ectes Kefauver of Chattanooga, to have cabinet members and other high officials appear on the floor of congress where they can be questioned by congressmen. Such a practice would make for much greater cooperation between the executive and legislative departments, Baruch said.

CHURCHILL IN DEFEAT

Winston Churchill recently told friends how he felt after his defeat in the British elections. The first few days after his defeat were terrible, Churchill confessed. The very next morning he arose and fretted because there were no diplomatic cables to read. Through the war, his first morning chore was to read the top-secret military and diplomatic cables from all over the empire; and he paced up and down intermittently for days, fretting because there were no cables coming in and because, though he felt things were going wrong, there was no one to whom he could send cables to straighten things out.

"Finally I went down to the south of France," Churchill confessed. "They treated me well there. I painted several pictures and they fed me some wonderful food. But still I couldn't get over this idea of no cables coming in and no cables going out. Each morning I fretted when I read the papers. But finally one morning I felt better. It suddenly dawned on me that I wasn't prime minister any more and it wasn't my worry, and I've felt better ever since."

Church Built of Paper Has Stood for 50 Years

One would probably think that a building made of paper would not last long, yet St. Owen's church, at Downham-in-the-Isle, England, is made of brown paper and has been standing 50 years. Still in good condition, the building, also used as a school, was built of compressed brown paper with strands of wire interspersed. Architects come to see the church regularly, and an official said he believes the building will last another 50 years.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Army officer in charge. Sergeant Rosa was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to replace the town hall stolen by the Nazis. Despite orders issued by General Middleton, barring entry from the city, Major Joppolo recalled the order, to permit food and water to enter the city. M. Cacopardo came to the Major asking for permission to see General Marvin, and deliver information on important German troop movements. He was given his pass and set out for the General's headquarters. He was determined to aid the Americans against the Nazis.

CHAPTER XIII

"Oh," said the sentry, "why didn't you say you had a pass? Sure, the General's here." And he shouted: "The Old Man's in, ain't he, Buck?"

"Yeah, I think His Nibs came in about half an hour ago."

"Yeah, he's in," the sentry said. "What you want to see him about?"

Cacopardo pulled out the tissue paper. "I can tell you where are the Germans," he said.

"Right up there," the sentry said, pointing up the driveway to the main door of the villa. "Right in that there door."

The jeep drove up to the main door. There was another sentry there. When Cacopardo tried to go in, the sentry put his bayoneted rifle across the path. Cacopardo jumped back, alarmed. "I am an enemy," he said. "I have the paper to see General Marvin," and he stretched out the pass. Cacopardo learned quickly, for a man his age.

The sentry took the pass. "Brother, I doubt if you can see the General right now," he said. "He don't like to see no one in the mornings. You stand here a minute." The sentry called the corporal of the guard.

The corporal of the guard came right back. "This way, brother," he said.

He led Cacopardo to a man at a desk.

"Name," the man said gloomily. "Cacopardo."

"Is that a first name, or a last name?" the sour man said.

"That is the name of my family," Cacopardo said.

"How you spell that?" Cacopardo spelled it out. The man wrote laboriously: Cacopardo.

"First name," the unhappy man said.

"Matteo."

"You got to spell those Dogo names."

Cacopardo spelled it and the man misspelled it.

"Who you want to see?"

"General Marvin."

"You haven't got a chance of seeing him," the man said. "There's a war going on, Dogo. What you want to see the General about?"

Cacopardo reached in his pocket for the tissue paper. "I can show you where are the Germans," he said.

"You'll have to talk with G-two about that," the man said, and he pointed with his pencil. "First door on the right, where it says Colonel Henderson."

Cacopardo went to the door marked Colonel Henderson, and he knocked.

"Walk in," a voice shouted.

"General Marvin?" Cacopardo asked.

"Upstairs, upstairs," the impatient voice, which belonged to a full colonel, said. Cacopardo started out.

"Say, wait a minute."

Cacopardo turned around. The colonel said: "Who are you, anyway?"

"Cacopardo Matteo, I was sent to see General Marvin."

"General Marvin doesn't like Italians," the colonel said. "What do you want to see him about? You better not ask him for any favors, he'll kick you out, personally, himself."

Cacopardo reached in his pocket for the tissue paper. "I can show you where are the Germans," he said.

"You've got no business taking that kind of thing to General Marvin. What do you think we have a G-two section for around here? You can just show that to me."

"I was sent to see General Marvin. That is the one I am going to see."

After an argument with Colonel Henderson, Cacopardo was sent upstairs under guard, was stopped and questioned by a sentry at the head of the stairs, was sent downstairs because he did not have a proper Division pass, was given a pass, was taken upstairs again, was questioned as to age, religion, political beliefs and sex by a sergeant, was interviewed by a staff officer who doubted whether the General would be free to see him, was referred to Colonel Middleton, the General's Chief of Staff, was questioned by Colonel Middleton's secretary, who thought the Colonel was busy, was finally admitted to Colonel Middleton, who, after an argument, agreed to see whether the General would see Cacopardo, which he doubted.

At the moment, General Marvin was playing mumble-peg with Lieutenant Byrd, his aide. They had found that a certain mahogany table took the knife beautifully. The General had just reached the double door of the kitchen.

Colonel Middleton walked in just as the General let the knife go off his forehead. The surprise of Colonel Middleton's entrance was just enough to throw the General off his aim, and the knife clattered on the table and did not stick in. This annoyed the General.

"Haven't I told you to knock, Middleton?"

"Yes, sir. There's an old Italian here wants to see you."

"Middleton, what's the matter with you? Didn't I tell you I didn't want to see any more Italians?"

"Yes, sir. But this one seems to be above the average. He was sent to you by one of our people. He says he has some information you would want."

"Well, show him in. What are you standing there for? Show him in."

And so Cacopardo was finally brought into the presence of the General. By this time he was just as angry as the General, and being some twenty years the General's senior, he considered it his privilege to vent his anger first.

He found perfect expression for his anger in what he saw on the surface of the mahogany table.

"You are a barbarian," he said.

This was not a very good way for old Cacopardo to begin with General Marvin, especially since he had two strikes against him to begin with: he had caught the General in a bad mood, and he was Italian.

"A what?" the General bellowed in his famous voice.

"I said, you are a barbarian. How dare you chop and pick at the surface of my friend Salatiello's table?"

For the sake of argument, it would have made no difference whatsoever

"You are a barbarian," he said.

If General Marvin had known that Salatiello had been thirteen years dead, the General could not possibly have been more outraged. He bellowed at the walls, "who is this wop, anyhow?"

"That table was made circa 1770, when your country had not even begun to exist, barbarian. It was carved by Vincenzo di Lucca of Parma. I cannot calculate the value of that table. You are a pig to chop and pick at it."

The General shouted: "Take this crazy wop out of here."

Colonel Middleton and Lieutenant Byrd rushed into the room. They grabbed old Cacopardo, and started to push him out.

"Wait!" the General roared. "Who sent that idiot here, Middleton?"

"I don't know, sir, it was some Major."

"You don't know? It's your business to know."

Colonel Middleton asked Cacopardo: "Who was it who sent you here?"

"My friend Major Joppolo, who is not a barbarian."

Colonel Middleton said: "What unit is this Major from?"

"Adano, from Adano," old Cacopardo said. "From my home, Adano."

"Adano," the General shouted.

"There's something about that place. What is it about Adano, Middleton? What is it?"

"The cart, General," Colonel Middleton said. Colonel Middleton would never forget Adano as long as he lived.

"The cart? What cart? Don't talk in riddles, Middleton. What cart?"

"The cart that we threw off the road, sir. The mule we shot, sir."

General Marvin remembered, and the memory turned his face a shade darker. "So that's the Major who sent you," he roared. "What was that name again? I want to remember that name."

"Joppolo," Middleton said.

General Marvin shouted: "Joppolo. Write that down, Middleton, remember that name. That Major's a wop, too. I remember now, he's a wop himself, isn't he, Middleton?"

In the interests of justice, Colonel Middleton said: "I don't remember, sir."

General Marvin shouted: "Well, I do. Now throw this crazy Italian out of here, and if you let any more Italians in here, Middleton, I'll break you back to a second lieutenant."

"Yes, sir," Colonel Middleton said. As they started to run him out, Cacopardo said: "But I have information. I can tell you where are the Germans. It is important. The Germans, the Germans."

But the General was much too far gone in rage. Cacopardo was taken out and sent home. He couldn't get anyone, not even the sentry at the front gate, to listen to a description of the German positions before Fiumara.

Behind Major Joppolo's back, Captain Purvis was very critical of him. To his face, the Captain was cordial, even friendly.

The two men now had, besides their mere community of tongue, another thing to draw them together: they both knew the same girls. In a foreign land, that is enough to make Damon and Pythias out of two sworn enemies.

One day at lunch they talked about the girls. They talked as American men do talk about girls when they are abroad.

The Captain said: "That younger one, that Francesca, she sure is nice."

"Just a matter of taste," the Major said.

"Yeah," the Captain said. "What do you say we go up there tonight and see 'em?"

"Let's do that," the Major said. "That would be fun." Then he wondered why he had reacted so quickly and so happily to the Captain's suggestion. The Captain's attitude toward the girls disgusted the Major. The Captain regarded the girls as trash; he seemed to think of them as something to buy and sell, like Italian watermelon and grapes and red wine. The Major refused to believe that he was falling into this way of thinking.

And so it happened that the two dissimilar men went that evening to the house at O Via Vittorio Emanuele with very similar feelings of excitement and anticipation.

Major Joppolo and Captain Purvis caught the family of Tomacino by surprise that evening. The fat Rosa was sitting on the living room floor plucking a chicken, and there were feathers all over the room. The radio was on, and the two little daughters of the doctor who was in Rome were sitting by it, also on the floor. Francesca and Tina were in brightly colored pajamas, lying on the floor side by side, reading together a cheap Italian romance called "Un Cuore in Tre." Tomacino, who opened the front door, grimly led the two Americans into the room without any advance notice.

Everyone jumped up, the little girls squealing, fat Rosa calling the name of the Lord in English, and the big girls shouting greetings to the Americans.

The family of Tomacino and their guests spent the next five minutes on their hands and knees plucking the chicken feathers. When that was done Rosa said to Tomacino: "Sad one, put the girls to bed." Tomacino led the little ones out without gentleness. Rosa retired to the kitchen with the feathers and the bird, to finish her job.

As soon as the two officers and the two girls in pajamas were left alone, Tina said: "Mister Major, I want to talk with you," and she stretched out her hand for his and led him into her bedroom. Captain Purvis's sister shouts followed them this time: "Hey, don't desert me. I can't talk to this lovely thing. Where you going?" And he subsided, and settled down for an evening of desperate sign language.

Tina sat down on her bed and the Major sat down on a chair by a wooden dressing table.

"I want to ask you something, Mister Major," Tina said.

"Yes?" the Major said. He did not know what to expect, but he expected it would please him, whatever it was.

"How long do you think the war will last? Here on Italian soil, I mean."

The Major found that he was not pleased. "That's a very serious question," he said. "Let's not talk about war. That's all I have all day long, war, war, war."

"But I have a special reason for wanting to know," Tina said. "How long do you think it will last?"

"How should I know?" the Major asked. His voice was a little testy. "If I knew that, I would have to know a lot more about our plans for the campaign, and if I knew the plans, I would know military secrets, and I couldn't tell you secrets if I knew them."

"But you can guess, Mister Major."

"All right, I guess two more months."

"And how long do you think it will be after these two months before our Italian prisoners of war are released?"

Major Joppolo got the point very quickly, and it did not please him in the least. "You have a sweet heart who has been captured?"

ing the way is Altek Clarkson of Massca, Ill.

His 45 by 30 foot dairy barn has a noncombustible floor and is of such sanitary construction that quality milk can be produced with little effort. The ground floor is protected from fire by a mow floor of three-ply, 1 1/2 inches thick, laminated gypsum board and a gypsum wallboard ceiling.

The studs are covered on the outside with noncombustible gypsum sheathing and fireproof composition shingles, and on the inside with fireproof wallboard.

Clarkson's use of laminated gypsum board for flooring is something new in barn construction. The purpose of the construction is to assure him that a fire would not quickly spread to the cattle quarters, and that ample time would be given to remove the cows to safety.

Tomatoes of 1946

Tomatoes, already rating high in vitamin content, being second only to oranges in vitamin C, will be "enriched" with vitamin A, following work at University of Chicago.

Tomato canneries will be put to use. Oil being extracted from the seeds, canneries will provide an extracted ether soluble fraction of 12.4 per cent.

By treating plants with the fumes of a growth-promoting acid, naphthalenic, seedless tomatoes may be produced.

The skins of tomatoes are being used for the valuable resin they contain. An improved method of dehydrating tomatoes promises to make them of commercial importance.

Creep-Fed Pigs Grow Bigger in Less Time

When pigs on rye pasture were creep-fed, 5.6 per cent more of the pigs survived to weaning age than when they were forced to eat with the sows, experiments at the University of Illinois reveal.

The average daily gains of the pigs are greater under the creep-feeding method. The difference noted of .05 pound per pig a day is of doubtful significance, but the total gain for 100 pigs would amount to 5 pounds in favor of those fed in the creep. If fed for 40 days, the 100 creep-fed pigs would show a difference of 240 pounds more pork up to weaning time.

Farm Fire Losses

Fire extinguishers are again available for the farmer. Where fires in wood, paper, cloth or hay break out, suitable types of extinguishers are the pump tank, soda acid, foam, gas cartridge, or loaded stream types.

Soda acid and foam extinguishers must be kept where they will not be exposed to freezing temperatures, or else be housed in suitably heated cabinets, and they require annual recharging.

Save your car your truck yourself

Farm folks know you can't trust winter weather. You have to be prepared for blizzards at any time. Highways that are clear today may be dangerous slideways tomorrow with fresh fallen snow hiding treacherous patches of ice. That's why WEED TIRE CHAINS are found on millions of farm cars and trucks.

This would be a bad winter in which to lose the use of your car or truck through a skid crash, for new vehicles are still scarce. So are new tires and good recaps. Better look after your tire chains right away. For when your wheels spin in snow or on ice, the heat quickly damages your tires.

Pay-Cut

Last year at this time I enjoyed the acquaintance of a business man whose salary was $50,000 a year. I looked upon him with a great deal of admiration and respect for several reasons. He earned what he has with hard work and know-how. His employees, numbering above ten thousand, call him Uncle Frank. He lives in a small town and helps a lot of people in a quiet way. Last week somebody showed me a page of a pocket-size magazine published for the employees of his company and I read with grave interest that his pay had been cut. That was news by anybody's standard; most people are getting raises in pay these days. What's more, this man's pay-cut is big. It amounts to more in a year than most men manage to accumulate in a whole lifetime.

His Own Words

"I insisted that the board of directors reduce my annual salary from $50,000 to one dollar," the signed statement said, "I have not been receiving not anywhere near $50,000 a year for working. . . . Only $309.30 was left for my use out of my 1944 wages. . . . Why should I permit the company to pay out $50,000 a year to benefit me by only $309.30?"

Let me make haste to say that I am not sorry for Uncle Frank. He will be all right; he has some other money. I am not worried about his employees either. The faithful workers among them will be able to retire in dignified comfort. My only concern is over men who, next year or the next, may hunt jobs and not find them; jobs Uncle Frank would like to offer but can't.

Inside Figures

Here is another enlightening passage from his statement: "Perhaps you wonder why my net realization from wages has been so small. The answer lies in the extremely high income tax rates which apply to my wages, added as they are to my other income, and to the fact that I must pay not only federal income taxes but also state income taxes."

This man is not the only big-company official in the country who has cut a lousy income to less than 10 cents a month. Why do they do it? Because their big salaries benefit them so little and cost their firms so much. My young friend who started last fall to work his way through college, running a steam dishwasher four hours a day, realized more net from his salary than this $30,000 executive.

Who Is Injured?

Men who cut off big salaries have other income. That's why their tax rates are so high. That's why they can afford to spurn a salary. But if they must decline the proceeds of their own invested earnings, one thing is sure: They will not invest further earnings to start new ventures or expand old ones. Investments in business are not safe, never have been. Any investment is a risk.

Men with money invest it only when they believe, to the best of their judgment, that it will pay reasonable returns. Now they are sure of only one thing: Nearly everything an investment earns will be taxed away from them. Will they invest in new enterprises? No. Then where will our returning service men find work? Unless present tax laws are changed soon, they will find it on a huge W. P. A. to the disgrace of our free America.
