Father of Freedom

Washington believed so thoroughly in the preservation of individual freedom as a basis for national progress that he dedicated his life toward that end.

Today, all America must be constantly alert against influences that are at work to change the American Way and remove the "free" from free enterprise and free chartered banking.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom."

To the Public
As a rancher, I have a lot of complaint to make against coyotes and other rodents. They didn't stop on the calves and goats. Now they are eating the chickens. The coyotes have been thicker every year since the bounty money has been turned over to the state. Lincoln county has one government trapper. You couldn't expect one man to catch all the rodents in a county as big as this. If each and every county was allowed to handle bounty money, more would go after the rodents for the fur and the money in it. It would be a whole lot better for everybody if the counties had charge of the bounty money.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

W.H.D. FEATURED

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived in Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to replace the bell stolen by the Nazis. Despite orders issued by General Marvin, barring carts from the city, Joppolo recalled the order, to permit food and water to enter the city. Lord Mancini, high British official on the Amgot, approved of Joppolo's plans. The Major found out that the American general was responsible for a troublesome black market. To stop this condition he placed a ceiling on all prices. He also barred troops from the city.

CHAPTER XVII

The Lieutenant said: "Sure he was. It's easy to see he was. And if General Marvin ever lays eyes on this information copy, it'll be just too bad for the Major."

"Yes, sir," said the Technical Sergeant, to be on the safe side.

Lieutenant Butters said: "Here, you file these, I'll take care of the information copy."

"Yes, sir," the Technical Sergeant said, taking the copies.

The Lieutenant said: "That Marvin trimmed me down once for something I didn't do. I never have blood him. I don't know this Major, but I think it would be a shame if he caught a trimming just for this."

"Yes, sir," the Technical Sergeant said. Then he frowned and added: "You aren't going to get me in trouble, are you, sir, like when that letter to Colonel Norris from the P.R.O. got 'lost'?"

"No, don't worry," the Lieutenant said.

But the Technical Sergeant did worry for several days, until he got up the courage to ask the Lieutenant: "Sir, what did you ever do about that information copy I made for General Marvin? You didn't throw it away, did you? Colonel Norris is liable to ask me about it."

"I wish I had thrown it away," Lieutenant Butters said. "I didn't have the guts. I put it in the courier pouch for Algeria. You know how much stuff we've been losing on that run. I thought maybe—"

The Technical Sergeant, relieved of his worry, smiled and said: "It might get lost accidentally on purpose."

Mayor Nasta had just come out from his daily repentance before Sergeant Borth. He walked across the way to the broad sidewalk in front of the Palazzo. Every day knots of people gathered on that sidewalk, some just to pass the time of day, some to air their perennial complaints, some to get in touch with the town's mean little lawyers, whose office was that sidewalk.

Mayor Nasta walked up to one such knot. There were about ten people, and he found that they were discussing the war.

He waited for his chance, and said: "I got some news from the interior yesterday afternoon."

Mercurio Salvatore the crier was so far gone in boldness that he said: "We have no desire for news from the one who is no longer Mayor."

Mayor Nasta remembered the time when he would have put the crier in jail for a whole year for saying something like that, but now he said: "This news came from the son of your friend Afronti, the noisy cartman. The boy deserted on the first day of the invasion and he is now here. Perhaps you know him. He is an honest boy."

The Mayor's policeman was beginning to take hold. "If that is the case," said the lazy Fatta, who was to be found on this stretch of sidewalk every morning, "if that is the case, what did he say that was so interesting?"

"He said that our friends the Germans are mounting a counter-attack."

"There is nothing new in that," said Father Pensavecchio. "They have counterattacked before. They counterattacked near Vicinore and it did them no good. They were thrown back. They will be thrown back again."

"Not this time," said Mayor Nasta. "This time they will employ five fresh divisions. They have the crack 23rd Panzers and the Pilsener Division. These are good troops. This time they will not be thrown back. They intend to push the Americans into the sea."

The lazy Fatta, who had no sense about the news, said: "When will this attack come? I think I will go to the hills."

Mayor Nasta looked very important, as he used to in the old days. "I should not tell you this," he said, "but the attack will begin on the morning of the twenty-third, at four o'clock in the morning. You can expect the Americans to be pushed into the sea between the twenty-fifth and the twenty-eighth."

The impressionable ones were beginning to believe him. Laura Stola, the unmarried one, who stood about on this sidewalk in the belief that she might catch a husband that way, said: "The twenty-third, that is next Wednesday."

But Mercurio Salvatore, who had been treated well by the Americans, refused to believe that they were leaving. "I do not believe it," he said. "The Americans will stop the attack." Even the crier was now willing to believe that there was going to be an attack. All he would not believe was that the Germans would succeed.

Mayor Nasta said: "The Americans will not stop it. The Americans may be friendly, but they are not good fighters."

Margherita, the formidable wife of Craxi, said with a threatening look: "Liar!"

But Mayor Nasta said: "This is not my opinion. This is the opinion of the son of Afronti, the noisy cartman. You know the boy. You know that he is honest. He says that the Americans are timid in battle. He says that our own troops could even beat the Americans."

Mercurio Salvatore, the crier, was reduced to saying: "I do not believe it."

Mayor Nasta said: "It is true. This boy fought in Tunisia. He says that at the place called El Guettar the Americans did not press their attack, he says that they behaved like frightened men and were defeated. The British can fight, perhaps, but not the Americans."

The formidable Margherita said: "It is a dirty lie," but there was no anger in her voice, it was nearly drained of conviction.

This man Nasta was a very persuasive man. He had persuaded himself into office, and he had persuaded the people into fear of him, and now it was easy for him to persuade them to mistrust the Americans.

Mayor Nasta said: "The son of Afronti told me that in the interior and accusations. He made sure that the son of Afronti the noisy cartman had not deserted. He checked with Intelligence at IX Corps to make sure that the Germans were not expected to counter-attack on the twenty-third. He even went so far as to check with Captain Purvis.

When he was ready, Sergeant Borth went to Major Joppolo. "Major," he said, "we've got to put Nasta away."

The Major said: "What's he done?"

"He's been planting rumors against us. I hate to admit it, but he's done it very systematically and very skillfully."

"What kinds of rumors?"

"Oh, all kinds. He has quite a few people thinking that the Germans are going to put on a major counterattack next week. He even has some of them believing that you haven't been doing right by certain young ladies in this town."

Major Joppolo blushed. "That isn't true," he said.

"I know," Borth said. "I checked into it. But they tell me the Mister Major could make time if he wanted to."

"Cut it out," the Major said.

"That's what they tell me," Borth said. "They say these particular girls don't smell of fish, but their old man knows a good fish when he sees it."

"Cut the kidding," the Major said, and that echo was in his voice. He changed the subject quickly. "When are you going to arrest Nasta?"

"In the morning, when he comes in for his daily worship."

"Okay," the Major said. "Let's keep him in the prisoners of war cage for a few days, and not send him to Africa till we've questioned him a bit. I'm sort of glad to have him put away."

The next morning Mayor Nasta was somewhat surprised to see, besides Sergeant Borth in his office, two other men wearing brassards marked M.P. He said, as suavely as ever: "Good morning, Mister Sergeant."

"And what crime would Mayor Nasta like to repent this morning?" Borth asked.

"Is it not the Mister Sergeant's turn to pick a crime?" the Mayor asked.

"Perhaps it is, perhaps it is. Well, let's see. This morning I think Mayor Nasta will repent the crime of not having made good use of his freedom. He will repent the crime of having talked against the Americans."

Mayor Nasta turned pale. Borth stood up.

"He will repent the crime of having invented false rumors, of having told the gullible people here in Adano that the Germans were planning a counterattack for next week."

Mayor Nasta turned his head and looked at the desk. Borth motioned to the M.P.'s to step into it, and they did.

"He will also repent having said slanderous and false things about Major Joppolo. Also he will be very sorry that he lied about the son of the cartman Afronti."

Mayor Nasta was white as a sheet. "Lie! They are lies!" he said.

Borth said: "Mayor Nasta is excitable this morning. And he had grown so calm about his repentances. Why is he excitable this morning?"

Mayor Nasta was excitable because he knew he was caught. "Lies," he shouted. "My enemies have been lying against me."

Borth said: "Is this a lie? Is it a lie that you said yesterday morning, before fifteen people on the sidewalk in front of the Palazzo: 'The Americans are such cowards that they had to be pushed from their transports into landing barges when they came here'? Is it a lie that you said 'And Sergeant Borth repeated word for word ten sentences that Nasta had said, as informers reported them. Sergeant Borth had a very good memory, and he enjoyed deflating this man, and he made a very terrifying show of it for Mayor Nasta.'"

Then Borth said to the two M.P.'s in English: "Take him away, boys. He's getting noisy."

The M.P.'s took Nasta by both arms. Borth said: "I'm going to miss your daily visits, Mayor Nasta. I hope you will come to see me when you get out. I mean if you get out."

Mayor Nasta said stubbornly: "You will be sorry."

The M.P.'s took Nasta away to the prisoner of war cage.

Mayor Nasta did not make a very good start in the cage. The Americans had a forty-year-old, Italian-speaking Top Sergeant in charge of the guard. The first time Mayor Nasta saw the Top Sergeant walking in the enclosure, he rushed up to him and said: "This is a mistake. I should not have been imprisoned. It was all a mistake."

"Is that so?" the Top Sergeant said in a slow, Brooklynese Italian. "You are another mistake? We have several mistakes here. All mistakes here must clean the latrine. You are our newest mistake, so you will have the privilege of cleaning the latrine this week."

SUPPORTERS of the Ivy League policy of no football scholarships or pay, and those who believe in such scholarships and big-time football, are still tangled up in an argument that is now 40 years old. The correct answer is that there is room enough for both but there is no reason why they should meet in competitions that are almost certain to be uneven and unfair.

Football needs badly the restraining influence of the Ivy League and other conference leaders to keep from running completely wild in the scramble for talent all over the map.

But there is also something to the argument that many poorer students would be unable to get a college education except from the rewards that football offers through scholarships and other financial aids.

"Why," one of the leading coaches in the country asked me, "shouldn't a poor boy have the chance to use his football ability to pay his way through college? I have been a football coach for well over 20 years and I could tell you of hundreds of such boys who have received college educations and moved far up in life, who except for football would have had no such chance to improve. Why should so many of these be barred simply because they are poor? It is much easier on the football coach to have this steady pressure of developing a winning team every season removed. Today in many cases, this matter of digging up material is the toughest part of a coach's job. It is much easier to build character than it is to build a winner."

Give Help to Local Boys

"This part of your argument is O.K.," we replied. "But what about this ranging for material 1,000 to 2,000 miles away, scouring the country for prep school or high school stars in a hot competitive race—where many are only given courses they can handle without risking any brain collapse?"

"This," said the veteran coach, "isn't right. Players in the main who draw scholarships or help should be taken from nearby places. But how are you going to stop the alumni from cutting in? Or certain colleges who have smart but well-covered recruiting systems that look after the job? I like to see southern teams made up of southern players, eastern teams of eastern players and western teams of western players. But I don't see how you are going to stop it."

It is for this reason that college conferences or groups are needed to establish certain set standards. Otherwise all competition will be cockeyed. Colleges that don't allow football scholarships have no justice playing against those that do. They are not evenly matched. This also applies to scholarship standards. I could give you any number of examples concerning young stars who tried to enter certain colleges and failed to make the grade. They then entered other colleges with much lower scholastic standards to return and run over the stricter schools.

This is strictly unfair from every angle. Any one can see that. It is for this reason the stricter colleges should play together and let the big timers fight it out among themselves.

The first and main purpose of college should not be sport but education. Sport, however, is a strong and important sideline. There are many who are equipped to handle a much higher form of learning or education than others are. But the main idea is to give both groups a chance to improve—even if many can only work along elementary lines.

It is for this reason that loyalty in the way of scholarships and other help has its place for certain groups that otherwise might be barred from any form of college or educational life.

Room for Ivy League

But this doesn't mean there isn't a major spot for the Ivy League or Eastern conference or any conference that decides to set up certain higher standards and see that these are enforced, as far as they can be enforced in a human world.

Some time back one of our leading educators, who loved football, made this important point, "There is too much 'cock and not enough Socrates' in our college life today. I am afraid there is a danger of our century's athletics going the way they did in ancient Greece, where becoming a thorough abuse.

We are now moving rapidly into a new age where brain is going to be much more important than brawn. This doesn't mean that there isn't still a tremendous need for better physical improvement and development. As a nation, outside of our limited top athletic crust, we are still far shy in the way of physical improvement for the mass, for those who need it most. But this situation isn't going to be helped by giving most of our time and attention to the winning stars, who need it least. After all "A fair field and no favor" is the basis of all true competition.

the Americans behaved themselves very badly. They were generous to us along the coast because they had to have a beachhead, but in the interior they have been different. Negro troops have raped even Italian girls. There has been much looting."

The lazy Fatta said: "I hear that the Americans looted the beautiful house of Quattrocchi right here in Adano. They did much damage."

Mayor Nasta said: "Yes, that is true, I talked with Quattrocchi yesterday."

The formidable Margherita said: "What happened?" This was something close to home, and she considered anything that happened in Adano more or less her personal property, to use no gasp.

Mayor Nasta said: "The American vandals destroyed four hundred and seventy thousand lire worth of stuff in Quattrocchi's house. Heirlooms, paintings, sculpture, glassware. They said that Italian art is degenerate; they did all this because they wish to impose American ideas of art on Italy. That is what Quattrocchi told me the American Major had told him."

Mercurio Salvatore, the crier, said: "That I will not believe. The Mister Major is our friend." The crier was annoyed enough to say this in very nearly his crying voice. He spoke loudly enough to be heard inside the Palazzo.

"Quiet," Mayor Nasta said. "He will hear you and punish you."

"Why should he punish me?" Mercurio cried. "I am defending him."

"He is unpredictable," Mayor Nasta whispered. "You will see. I must be going now," he said, bowing to the circle, as if the fact that it was beginning to grow embarrassed him. "Good day," he said, "do not forget the twenty-third."

Each day when he came out from his repentance before Sergeant Borth, Mayor Nasta would go across to the sidewalk in front of the Palazzo, and he would approach a different group, and he would tell them pretty much the same thing.

Sergeant Borth allowed this to go on for several days, because Sergeant Borth was a careful worker. He waited until he was sure of all his facts. He had his informers trap Mayor Nasta into new exagger-

CROSS TOWN

... And this is the gym!"

A BREAK IN THE CLOUDS

The world has troubles everywhere And turmoil seems unending; The strikes are getting in my hair— New conflicts are impending; But suddenly all life seems gay, In fact my joy seems utter. . . . Last night I heard the waiter say, "Perhaps you'd like more butter!"

The cost-of-living hits the sky. And what I seek is lacking; (It even costs too much to die, Without financial backing.) The bright new world looks extra black; I think the planet's batty. . . . But, ah, the joy within that crack, "Another butter patty!"

For four war years and maybe more My life was sad and dreary; Those sacrifices of the war Were not too easy, dearie; My heart seemed like a ton of lead As peace rows did appal me. But all is well . . . a waiter said, "YA WANT MORE BUTTER, CALL ME!"

Diary of Eva Braun ("Eva Braun left a diary in which she traced her life with Hitler, frequently chiding him as a lover lacking the romantic mood."—News Item.) March 6—This is my birthday. Adolf ignored it beyond sending me a card which said, "Never again will Germany lose the war through the disintegration of its army. I waited all day for him and was very sad. Over and over my heart kept asking me, "Does he want France, Norway, Poland and Belgium more than he wants you?"

March 29—Adolf took me to the opera tonight. He was very sentimental, continually preening my hand and whispering, "What I'll do to those Russians! When he left me he did not shove me headfirst out of the auto as usual, but kissed me and said, "If you're a good girl, I'll give you Denmark and a box of candy." My heart was all aflutter.

April 10—Adolf called me on the phone and was in one of his lovelier moods. He said he had a big surprise for me. I asked him what it was. He said, ever so sweetly, "The army is trying out a new long range cannon."

May 1—This is the first of May. Spring is in the air. The birds are twittering. The trees are in flower. And to cap all this Adolf came to see me and for almost five minutes did not talk about himself! He brought me another gift, a photo of himself inscribed, "To Eva from Uncle Tom. Forward to the mastery of the world!"

June 21—This is the first day of summer. Adolf called with roses and a copy of his last speech. He was very tender. After dinner we sat on the porch. He held my hand in his lap and traced out a new Russian campaign on my forehead with a slate pencil.

August 1—Dinner at the Hotel Vierjahreszeiten with Adolf, the boy friend. He was his old playful self and kept kicking my ankles under the table with his boots and making coy remarks like, "I will never take off this uniform until Germany has conquered all her enemies." What a man!

'The Man Who Broke The Bank' One of the songs of our earliest childhood (we can remember Mom and Pop humming it) was "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo." We supposed the author had crossed the Jordan many years ago, and were surprised to read that its author, a Charles Coburn, just died in London at the age of 93. The number was once a worldwide musical hit, and ran: As I walk along the boulevard With an independent air You can hear the girls declare "He must be a millionaire!" You can hear them sigh and wish to die— You can see them wink the other eye At the man who broke the bank of Monte Carlo.

Twenty thousand quarts of champagne stowed away by Von Ribbentrop in the cellars of the German embassy in London have been impounded "for entertaining purposes." John Bull with a nod in the direction of the trial of the former vice salesman: "Here's looking at you!"

IT COULD ONLY HAPPEN HERE Scene—Front of Paramount theater in Times Square, N. Y. Thousands of bobby-soxers, recognizing Frankie Sinatra in a flash, set up a terrific commotion. On the curb a few moments later, one of them gazes at the enormous replica of the Statue of Liberty directly opposite the theater and asks, "Say, who's that?"

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A little kerosene put into the water when wiping up the kitchen linoleum will help loosen the dirt.

If you are forever wearing out shoe strings, try this method of strengthening them. Stitch up and down each string several times with your sewing machine before using them.

That discouraged-looking wall can be freshened by pressing it between two pieces of brown paper with a warm iron.

When washing, turn clothes with ties or sashes inside out before putting them into the washing machine.

Put a fruit jar rubber under dishes you set directly on ice. The ring will stick to both ice and dish and hold it firmly in place.

Keep spices covered or you'll give their tangy flavor to the cupboard instead of your cookery.

Keep a jar of ground peanuts on hand. They add nutrition and flavor to muffins, waffles, cookies and quick breads. They dress up salads and perk up plain desserts such as cup custard.

OVERLAPPING BUREAUS HANDICAP EFFICIENCY

PRESIDENT TRUMAN asked for the job of reorganizing and streamlining the more than 1,000 departments, bureaus, administrations, corporations and what have you, operated by the federal government.

The duplication of effort that makes of the federal government the sprawling, unwieldy, inefficient, expensive, red tape crumpled, bureaucratic operated, machine it has become, with some three and a half million civilian employees on its payrolls, was demonstrated by a report of Comptroller General Warren to the house of representatives. That report shows there are 39 different bureaus, departments and agencies engaged in loaning government funds; 34 are buying land for the government; 16 are engaged in the preservation of wild life; 65 are gathering government statistics; 75 are muddling transportation problems; 15 are administering federal owned lands; 15 are developing federal financed housing; 23 are engaged in welfare problems; 12 provide community planning; 10 are engaged in government construction.

The report covered many others, but that is enough to indicate the size, and intricacy of the job the President is taking on for the purpose of, at least, reducing the duplication of effort and division of authority. They make government not alone expensive, but impossibly confusing for the people government is maintained to serve.

Created To Make America Over

THE GREATER PORTION of these bureaus and agencies were not the result of war. They were created to do things that had not been done before, to make America over. When one did not work another was started, but the one that failed was not dropped. It was but building one on top of another until the present stupendous government structure was erected.

To reorganize it all; to bring it back to some semblance of order, President Truman cannot think of partisan patronage; he cannot consider or enumerate the effect on the votes of job holders, their families and friends; he cannot consider the special interests of groups or minorities, he must think of the American people as a whole. It is a whole of a job for any man.

THE FROWNED UPON old time burlesque performance at which no lady would ever be seen, was modest as compared with some of our modern popular musical comedy shows, to which the ladies flock.

SHOULD WE GO BACK to a gold standard we would have, at the present government fixed price of gold, only a 63 cent dollar.

THERE ARE SOME FRIENDS to whom you listen, and others to whom you talk.

When Labor Becomes Partner in Industry

IF, AND WHEN, labor is recognized as a partner in production, then what is now paid labor as wages, and as such a part of the cost of production, might be considered as a dividend paid to a partner. Under such conditions both labor payments and interest on capital investment would be dividends. These dividends would not come directly out of the sales dollar, as would all other production costs, but out of the profit dollar. On the basis of wages paid to labor in 1945 that labor dividend would take an average of 62 cents out of each profit dollar. Capital, that supplies the plants and tools of industry, received a dividend from that same dollar of three and one-half cents, and four and one-half cents went to the reserve that provides for the rainy days and for increased facilities from which both labor and capital profit. Under such a system of paying labor dividends instead of wages it would naturally follow that such dividends would fluctuate with the earnings to be divided, as is the case of the dividends paid to capital. It might offer an incentive for greater production for the elimination of "feather bedding," and other present day methods practiced by labor. The less the cost of production the more profits to be divided with labor receiving the greater portion of each profit dollar.

FARMING IS GRADUALLY getting into the field of big business. In time it may become a target for the trust busting activities of the department of justice. The years of the war brought nearly 25,000,000 additional acres into production, but with a drop of 60,000 in the number of operated farms. That is hurting everything from a three acre garden patch up to those of thousands of acres as a farm. During these four years there was a 10 per cent increase in the average size of farms.

DOLLS TO AID SANTA CLAUS . . . Photo shows left to right, Marilyn MacGregor, Warren, Ohio; Betty Reener, Durham, N. C.; Francis Tibbetts, Melrose, Mass., and Elizabeth Peterson, Cornwall, Pa., as they sit among some of the 1,000 dolls that will be delivered to social agencies and through them to poor children confined in hospitals. The dolls were provided by students at Wellesley college, Wellesley, Mass.

TO HAVE AN EARLY CHRISTMAS . . . "Dear Santa," writes pained-wracked three-year-old Marvie Clark, with the aid of his mother, Edna Clark. But Marvie will never know Santa's response, for doctors have told his parents that Marvie cannot live until Christmas.

WINS LAMB AWARD . . . Wayne Diech, 15, Evansville, Ind., with his pen of three Southdown lambs that won the junior championship at Chicago market fat stock show, held during the 24th National 4-H club congress. The average weight of the animals is 110 pounds. The International, replaced this year by the market fat stock show, will take place in 1946. A nation-wide 4-H club program is directed by federal, state and county extension services. The national committee on boys and girls club work is privately supported by voluntary groups of interested citizens.

IS STILL RUNNING . . . Dr. Karl Kobell, newly elected president of Switzerland, did not stop running when he was recently elected to office.

SENSATIONAL FOOTBALLER . . . Herman Wedemeyer, Hawaiian-born halfback of the St. Mary's Gaels, selected as "the most useful player on the Pacific coast." He will play with the Moraga, Calif., team against Oklahoma A & M in the "Coca-Cola" classic at New Orleans.

FRIEND OF ENLISTED MAN

WASHINGTON. — If there were more men in the army like General Eisenhower, this newsman would not be so swamped with soldier mail.

The other day Sgt. Samuel Cohen of Philadelphia, stationed in Berlin, received a cable telling of a serious emergency at home. Physicians advised his return immediately. Two weeks passed and all Cohen got was the usual army run-around. He couldn't get a furlough. Finally, a friend suggested that Cohen call General "Ike" directly.

"What can I lose?" Cohen asked, going to a telephone.

When he asked the G.I. operator for General Eisenhower, the operator asked with no surprise in his voice whether he should ring the general at his home or his office. Since it was then about 10 o'clock in the evening, Cohen said to try the general's home.

An aide to Eisenhower answered and listened to Cohen's story, excused himself for a few minutes, came back to the telephone and said, "Sergeant, if you will call the office of General Clay, perhaps something can be arranged for you.

"You had better wait about 10 minutes before calling General Clay," he added, "to give General Eisenhower a chance to talk with him first."

Ten minutes later, Cohen called General Clay, where an aide said, "Oh, yes, sergeant, we've been expecting your call. Now can you come in at eight o'clock tomorrow morning? We'll see about transportation then."

Cohen took off by air the next day before noon.

TRUMAN TURNS REPORTER

Congressional leaders who met with President Truman recently to discuss serious legislative problems got a chuckle over Truman's story about his curprico flight to see his mother on her 63rd birthday.

Newspapers have already told how Truman called the Kansas City Star to announce his arrival in Grandview, Mo. But in addition, here is what Truman told his congressional leaders really happened: It was Sunday afternoon and the usually bustling city room of the Star was in a lull. Only a skeleton editorial force was on the job, and a young reporter answered the phone.

"This is the President," said Truman.

"Who?" said the reporter.

"This is President Truman."

"The hell it is," exclaimed the newsman, convinced that somebody was pulling a practical joke. "Mister, who are you trying to kid?"

Finally the call was transferred to another writer on the paper, who knew Truman personally and could identify his voice. Highly amused, the President told him the news of his visit.

FOGGY FOREIGN POLICY

Harry Hopkins, now hospitalized in New York, is not improving. Always a living skeleton, Harry kept himself alive because of his love of FDR. Now that FDR is gone, Harry has no more zest for work.

Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida is returning from a three-month tour of Europe to blister the administration's handling of foreign policy. Coming on top of Senator Fulbright's two-listed attack, perhaps somebody around the state department will wake up to the fact that the needs of World War III can be planted right now. . . . The strategic services unit of the war department (it was formerly the "Oh-so-secret" office of Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan) has just set up a very interesting project which will not keep the peace. It is working on a "plan for an order of battle for a war with Russia." The job is under direct supervision of Maj. Raymond Cromwell, former Tokyo correspondent for the Wall Street Journal.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Former Coast Guard Comdr. Joel Fischer was in Germany trying to root out hidden Nazi funds. Cross-examining war criminals, he found them anxious to get American lawyers to act in their defense. When asked his views on the best American lawyers, Fischer, with straight face, replied: "You ought to try to get Clarence Darrow or Perry Mason." Fischer's victims took careful notes, not realizing that Darrow has been dead for more than five years and that Mason is a fictional character in Earle Stanley Gardner's mystery stories.

Government press officials recently beat down a second attempt by War Mobilizer John Snyder to maintain a peacetime censorship over the statements of their bosses. They rejected all censorship schemes flatly during a secret session at the White House, promising to check among themselves to be sure major policy statements of cabinet members and other key officials are not too far apart. . . . Randolph Paul, one of the ablest tax men the U. S. treasury has ever had, is completing a book on taxation, written for popular reading.

HER BOSS LIKES HER WHITE UNIFORMS

HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.—Miss Minnie Belle Poole must have a particular boss. Here is what she wrote in a letter about Faultless Starch:

"I like Faultless Starch best of all because I work where I have to wear white uniforms. So with Faultless Starch I can keep them just like my boss wants them kept. Thanks to Faultless Starch! It is everything its maker says it is."

One of the wonderful things about Faultless Starch is the way it makes white things come out beautifully white, and colored things come out beautifully bright. There is a reason for it. You see, Faultless Starch is made a special way—with special starch and special extra ingredients. It doesn't turn brown under the iron and it doesn't put a film over the cloth. It penetrates the fabric—gives the cloth the "finish" from the inside out, instead of by coating the outside.

EASY—FOR BUSY FOLKS

Another wonderful thing about Faultless Starch is that it makes it EASY for busy people to do beautiful starching and ironing. It takes only a minute to make perfect hot starch with Faultless Starch. Just cream it with a little cool water and add boiling water while stirring—that's all—it's ready to use.

The Big City:

The furry waves of mink-coated first-nighters drowning a theater in luxury. . . . Side-street hotels bruised with age, where misery goes to find company.

Morning stripping the Big Alley of its sparkling fig leaves, while the sun exposes to nude ugliness. . . . Shooting galleries recruiting customers by playing martial music.

Midtown Vignette: George Mann reports about the kindly gentleman on a park bench, who was breaking bread crumbs for the pigeons.

Sounds in the Night: In the Metro-pole: "Waiter, bring me a shirt and soda." . . . At Enduro: "She stays out until the wee hours of the morning."

Manhattan Murals: Placard in an E. 53th St. candy store window: "Welcome—Home, Tony, You Phony!" . . . The 90c packages of Jap souvenir invasion money sold at newsstands in Penn depot.

Nation's Christmas Tree Was Dedicated in 1925

The Nation's Christmas Tree was so dedicated on Christmas Day, 1925.

The tree, one of the Sequoia gigantea, is estimated to be 257 feet tall and is located in General Grant National park, 64 miles east of Fresno, Calif.

"O Come, All Ye Faithful"

Coming from all Churches throughout all the lands, with the hymns most often heard, "O Come, All Ye Faithful," carol singers have become a most vital part of every community's Christmas.

Santa's Toy Outlook

Stuffed animals will be plentiful in Santa's sack, but Dydece, the pre-war favorite that drank from a bottle and had its diapers changed, can't be expected until 1949 for V-J Day came too late to make rubber available for Christmas toys.

Doll furniture such as cradles, beds and high chairs will be available but in limited quantities.

ETERNAL STAR OF BETHLEHEM

The Wise Men may have been the only ones who actually saw the Star of Bethlehem.

According to St. Matthew, when Herod heard that the Wise Men were seeking the Christ Child whose star they had seen in the east, he summoned the chief priests and scribes of the people and demanded of them where it had been predicted that the Christ should be born.

It was written by the prophet—and nothing could prevent it. . . . And after the Wise Men had been directed to Bethlehem by Herod:

HOLD CHRISTMAS IN BETHLEHEM

All Bethlehem turns out on December 24 for the arrival of the Patriarch of Jerusalem—Cardinal of the Holy Land—who each year brings to Bethlehem an ancient edify of the Infant Jesus, which he lays in the manger within the cave where Christ was born.

Dramatically the procession approaches; heralded by a single horseman, his banner streaming aloft. A corps of native police mounted upon fiery Arabian horses follows, and then another single horseman upon a prancing black steed carrying the cross on high; the patriarch in his cardinal and ermine, mitred bishops, clergy in embroidered vestments and white robed acolytes—swinging golden censers—precede the jeweled pavilion of the Holy Child.

The procession enters the Church of the Nativity. The public is not permitted to witness the actual placing of the effigy, as that part of the church—built above the Cave of the Nativity—is under the jurisdiction of the Greek Orthodox church.

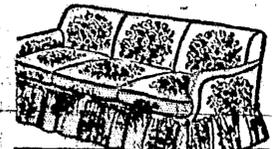

Yule Tree's Start

The Christmas tree business in the United States is believed to have started in 1851, when Mark Carr, a woodman of the Catskills, sold two sledge loads of trees in New York.

Today, almost every region produces Christmas trees although the largest volume comes from the Far West. Frequently, buyers of trees in our cities will observe they are tagged with a notice to the effect that they were harvested according to good forestry practice.
