The Carrizozo Woman's Club met Friday, Sept. 20th, 8 p. m. at club house, with President Mrs. Ralph Petty, presiding.

A debate was given "Why we should belong to Federation." Affirmatives, Miss Thelma Whites, Mrs. Norman. Negative, Mrs. Turner. Judges, Audience. Members of both sides gave very interesting talks, but the only reason for not belonging to Federation at this time, is a matter of finance.

A paper, "Club Spirit" written by the late Mrs. Blaney was read by Mrs. Mayer.

The hostesses, Mesdames Petty, Shafer, Hodgkin, Brannum, Burns, Norman, served delicious peach cobbler with whipped cream and coffee.

Mrs. B. S. Burns, Press Reporter.

Football Game

The Carrizozo football eleven and the Capitan eleven will meet tonight at Capitan to battle for supremacy. The Carrizozo Grizzlies are not at all fierce, but they intend to win and they want plenty of rooters and fans on the side lines to boost. Likewise the Capitan Tigers aren't as fierce as their name, but they intend to win and want plenty of home enthusiasm. And both teams are good natured and will enjoy the friendly tilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Smith came up Wednesday to visit until Monday.

A number of Roswell business and professional men honored Carrizozo last Wednesday by paying us a good will visit. The ones who called at the News-Outlook found the editress setting type. Safe Laundering
Fine fabrics require a neutral soap for safe laundering. Neutral means that the soap has very little residue of alkali in it. Flake soaps and soap beads are usually this type. They have another advantage, too: their form makes them dissolve readily in water. Soaps containing water softeners are not neutral, so extreme care should be taken if they must be used on fibers affected by alkali. Even cotton and linen are "tendered" somewhat by the use of such soaps.

Ripen with Heat
It is heat and not sunlight that causes a green tomato to ripen. If you wish to ripen them quickly, it's all right to line them up in a sunny window, as long as the temperature of the fruit doesn't get too high. But, actually, light is unessential to the process; at a given temperature they will ripen just as well in the dark.

Whether It's Eddie Dyer's Cardinals or Leo Durocher's Dodgers who will be called on to meet Joe Cronin's Red Sox this fall, there is one basic idea you can keep in mind—neither National league team is going to surrender in advance.

No other teams in baseball have been so well seasoned under fire from April into the final September stretch.

There has been no resting spot for either club — no loafing time or any recess in the day-by-day battle for the top. Both Cardinals and Dodgers by now should have steel-shod nerves under the pressure that has kept both teams hustling to the limit in an all summer dog fight that has been one of the best in many years.

Both Cardinals and Dodgers are loaded with dead-game ball players out to give all they have—such men as Pete Reiser, Pee-wee Reese, Ed Stankey, Dixie Walker, Stan Musial, Marty Marion, Country Slaughter, Whitey Kurovski, Terry Moore and others from both scrappy camps.

Their batting records show no such power as the Red Sox command. Howie Pollet may be their only 20-game winner. But there is more than enough class on either team to give anyone a battle over the sprint route that a world series calls for. While neither Musial nor Walker has been able to turn on Ted Williams' power, both have been outfitting the Red Sox star through the greater part of the year.

The averages tell you that Reiser, in condition, is one of the most valuable ball players baseball can show when you consider his worth at bat, in a pinch, in the field and around the bases.

The averages and the records of the field also prove that Musial is quite likely to out-hit Williams by a rather wide margin; not in the way of home runs, but in league leadership. Musial is one of the finest hitters we've seen in many years. His lifetime average is close to Williams', who has slipped a trifle from .356 to something around .353, which isn't too soggy for several years.

Outside of Musial and Walker, neither Cardinals nor Dodgers has other run-making hitters to match Pesky, Dorr and York, slashing Ted's three aiding musketeers.

Eddie Dyer on Pitching

After all, the pitching can play a star part in any world series, as pitching usually does.

We were talking with Eddie Dyer, the Cardinal manager, about this section of the world series argument.

"In the first place," Dyer said, "the Cardinals haven't yet won the National league pennant this season. The Dodgers are a tough team to catch and shake loose. They don't seem to discourage easily. But if the Cardinals do manage to break in and get a shot at the Red Sox, I have a rather hazy idea our pitching staff can worry them a lot."

"We have some left-handers that Williams and a number of others might not like too well. And if George Mungler can work back to his old form in the next few weeks, we'll have our share of good right-handers to match any staff — and that includes the Red Sox staff."

No one can be sure yet just how good the Red Sox pitching is. There have been too many games where a Red Sox pitcher could dish out a flock of hits and runs, and yet breeze home. We were rather astonished to see that Dave Ferris and Tex Hughson, two Red Sox mainstays, had allowed more hostile hits than any two pitchers in their circuit. Both had been tapped safely well over 200 times, where Spud Chandler had allowed only 151 hits and Hal Newhouser only 173, far below the Ferris-Hughson totals.

The Red Sox have wrecked the American league through a killing margin in runs, base hits and runs batted in. Their stampede has been based on raw power, on attack, not on defense.

Hughson, undoubtedly one of the best pitchers now at work, has had a rather spotty year, being slightly over the 500 mark with a great run-making machine at his back. Ferris has been their star workman, but even the able Ferris has absorbed his share of manhandling more than once.

Red Sox No Cinch Bet

The Red Sox will be favored to win, but anyone who makes them lopsided favorites can be labeled a trifle curious in the cupola. As all around good as the Red Sox are, and they are good enough, up and down the line, they are no invincible, overwhelming force against either of the two fast, game outfits.

The main burden of proof is also on broad Red Sox backs who are expected by too many camp followers to win a four or five game romp.

See Infected Teeth Gateway for Polio

Slips Into Nervous System Through Cavities.

CHICAGO. — Two research men marshalled evidence here to show that the treacherous polio virus was slipping into the nervous system through dental cavities.

Dr. Hans H. Reese and Dr. John G. Frisch of Madison, Wis., said the rich network of nerves feeding infected teeth offered an unguarded gateway to the spinal cord and brain.

Their findings, part of a nationwide attack on the crippling foe, are reported in the Dental Digest.

As supporting data, they demonstrated that Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, cities using fluorine in their water supplies had less polio than other cities in the same states. Fluorine has been hailed as a foe of tooth decay.

At the University of Wisconsin, the research men studied 36 infantile paralysis patients.

Of these, 24, or 66 per cent, had infected teeth.

Of 147 non-polio persons examined in the same age group, only 39, or 26.5 per cent, had infected teeth.

This is their theory on how the virus invasion works:

The food, contaminated by insects carrying the virus, is forced into the tooth cavities under pressure of chewing. The virus is driven into the dental tubules, into the pulp, and then speeded by nerve highways to maiming missions.

In Illinois, the researchers found that of 63 communities adding fluorine to the water, only one person in every 1,992 came down with polio from 1941 through 1945.

Of non-fluoride communities, the average was one in each 1,546 persons.

"The findings in these two groups of Illinois communities showed that the incidence of poliomyelitis was 22.4 per cent less in high-fluoride communities," they reported.

LITCHFIELD, ILL. — Because they were unable to distinguish between a thief and a doctor, three local surgeons were short $500.

The surgeons, Dr. Harold Siler, Dr. Robert Robillot, both of Litchfield, and Dr. J. J. Grandone of Gillespie, were working in the operating room at St. Francis' hospital.

A man with a professional medical air hurried through. He nodded to the doctors. The doctors looked up and nodded back.

When they retired to an anteroom they discovered their wallets had been looted.

United States Mint Is

Behind on War Medals

WASHINGTON. — The nation's heriboned, bemedaled fighting men of World War II have a lot more medals still to come, and it will be several years before the last one is handed out.

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of the mint, said that the mint, which worked feverishly during the war to turn out medals, now has far more orders than ever before.

It will take a year or two to fill present orders for 8,500,000 medals, and more large orders are expected, she said.

Overseas Radio Silenced

Three Days by Sun Spot

NEW YORK. — International radio communication was snarled for three consecutive days by atmospheric conditions resulting from a sun spot "curtain."

Press Wireless, Inc., Mackay Radio, and RCA reported a "total blackout" in communications with Europe. But Press Wireless and Mackay said the sun spot caused only "very slight" interference on their circuit to South America.

The sun spot treated residents of many parts of the country to a brilliant display of Northern Lights.

Hero of World War Wins

Battle of the Subway

NEW YORK. — Aldo P. MacCagle, 26, was one of seven men ordered to ball out by Collin Kelly during the mission on which his famous dive on the battleship Haruna took place.

He said he escaped to Luzon, fought until captured at Corregidor, escaped from Santo Tomas prison, fought with the guerrillas and finally got home for discharge.

Magistrate Alex Pisciotta decided MacCagle's record entitled him to a suspended sentence for smoking in a subway station.

'Boys in Blue' to Return

With Style Troubles

WASHINGTON. — Uncle Sam's army will be the "boys in blue" again in a couple of years or so. Blue winter uniforms to be worn off the post have been authorized for 1948, army officers say. But the army still is mulling over such details as the shade, and whether the coats shall be dark and the pants light or whether both shall be one color.

The United States is not welcomed either by European or Asiatic powers when we are trying to help them set up a regime for social and political world peace. Those powers contend that the handling of affairs in their part of the world is their own business. But when their own mismanagement plunges them into a vortex of war, they one and all send a Macedonian cry for the United States for help to straighten up the mess their greed and incompetency has caused. Next time they call upon us we should have it understood that we will have full say both in Europe and Asia as to terms and conditions of peace.

The United States spent around 300 million dollars on Yugoslavia as a gift in agricultural implements and food. That is a pretty poor return they give, shooting down our air men. If the Slavs were half smart they would welcome our flyers and invite them to land there.

The difficulty with Russia and the Dardanelles is that Russia is not satisfied with the agreement to permit her in the future the free use of the Dardanelles straits. She is insisting that she be permitted to fortify the straits. The moment this is done the Dardanelles are no longer free. They will be under Russian control and may be used by other nations only if and when Russia might permit. On this point the other nations should be firm. It isn't in the interest of world peace to have Dardanelles flanked by Russian forts.

Hear Ye, Hear Ye!

One of the 5,000 United States Marines who died on Iwo Jima was Ben Toland, 24, of Concord, N. H., a Yale junior and an honor student. When another officer was wounded in battle, Lt. Toland voluntarily took command of his platoon, stormed the ridge and gained the objective before he himself was killed. Toland's estate, less than $4,000, was divided by his will as follows:

- Benevolence 5%
- His church 5%
- His college 10%
- His prep school 20%
- The A. F. of L. 10%
- The C. I. O. 10%
- The N. A. A. 20%
- The U. S. Congress 20%

A Goodwill Message

The will was not a document of profound legal verbiage; just a hand-written note from a military man going to battle quite aware that fighters don't always return from such missions. It was no hastily devised instrument. Every detail shows scholarly thought. The author knew he might be giving his life for America's future, and tossed in his possessions as part of the offering.

Not even a cynical critic of the liberty Ben Toland understood and appreciated could detect a tone of bitterness in his harmonious bequests. He met death on February 21 and it is reasonably certain that the will was written at Christmas, far beyond the horizon of merriment but in a spirit of "Godd will toward men." In that holiday gift-hat rings a clear note of victory and hope.

To Save Americanism

As if it were his life's last gift, five per cent went to church and five to a Christmas charity, "The 100 Neglected Cases," sponsored by the New York Times. Toland knew the worth of learning and paid a tribute to two schools that were peculiarly his own, Yale University and St. Paul's of Concord. The will's other four beneficiaries sound a chord of pure patriotism.

Not every service man who paid his life for victory in World War II possessed this young man's grasp of public affairs, but they all wanted the same thing. They wanted to see America the land of opportunity once more. The lieutenant's will expresses all this hope and more, for Toland knew how to save America's freedom: through peace between labor and management.

Paying to Be Heard

This sober young man laid 60% of his earthly holdings on the altar of industrial peace. His mother, yet lived. No doubt, he had personal friends who needed funds. Just the same, his largest single hope beyond his own life-span was to retain the American system of free faith, free speech, free enterprise, popular ballot, unrestricted opportunity and equality under the law.

With 20% he asked Congress to heed the plea of many martyrs, a plea for laws in the interest of all, not just pressure groups. Another 20% calls aloud to the National Association of Manufacturers, a group of small employers such as fill more than two-thirds of America's pay envelopes. Another fifth begs a hearing by the two biggest labor groups, declined to play an important role in America's future.

To those who eagerly await their new Chevrolets...

Here Is the Latest News about Chevrolet Deliveries

Everybody from factory to dealer is doing everything that can be done to speed deliveries to you

We have been informed by the Chevrolet Motor Division that the past month has witnessed only a slight improvement in the rate of production of new Chevrolet passenger cars. As a result, shipments of new cars to dealers for delivery are still far below the level we and the factory had hoped to attain by this time. In fact, through August, Chevrolet's output of cars in 1946 was only 22.6% of the number turned out during the corresponding period of 1941.

We know that Chevrolet is doing everything possible to step up its production totals—to ship more and more cars to us and to its thousands of other dealers throughout America... and we know, too, that we are assured of getting our full proportionate share of the current output and of future production gains.

Disappointing as the total figures have been—and despite the fact that Chevrolet was out of production entirely during the first three months of the year—it is nevertheless true that Chevrolet led all other manufacturers in production of passenger cars during June 1946, and has continued to maintain its lead in total production from that day to this.

We shall continue to make deliveries of new Chevrolets to our customers just as fast as we receive them; we regret delays as deeply as you do; we thank you for your friendly patience and understanding; and we promise you a new high motoring experience when you take delivery of your new Chevrolet, giving BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST!

Keep Your Present Car Alive

Meanwhile, may we suggest that you safeguard your transportation by bringing your car to us for service now and at regular intervals. Let us help you to keep it in good running condition—to maintain its performance, appearance and resale value—until the day when your new Chevrolet comes along.

SET YOUR SIGHTS

It takes planning to achieve a goal

Some young men know what they want and plan for it. Others are still looking for their niche. The new Regular Army can help both.

Perhaps you want to go to college but can't afford it. If you enlist in the Army, you'll get your chance. Honorably discharged after a three-year enlistment, you are eligible for 48 months of education at any college, trade, or business school for which you can qualify. The Government will pay your tuition, laboratory fees, etc., up to $500 per ordinary school year, plus $65 a month living allowance—$90 a month if you have dependents.

If you haven't found your spot, an Army enlistment offers you training in any of 200 trades and skills. You leave the service eligible for further training at the best civilian schools.

You can assure yourself of the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights if you enter the Army on or before October 5, 1946. See your nearest Army Recruiting Station for details.

HIGHLIGHTS OF REGULAR ARMY ENLISTMENT

- Enlistments for 1 1/2, 2 or 3 years. (1-year enlistments permitted for men now in the Army with 6 or more months of service.)
- Enlistment age from 18 to 34 years, inclusive (17 with parents' consent) except for men now in Army, who may reenlist at any age, and former service men depending on length of service.
- A reenlistment bonus of $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service, provided reenlistment is within 3 months after last honorable discharge.
- A furlough for men who reenlist within 20 days. Full details of other furlough privileges can be obtained from Recruiting Officers.
- Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to enlist or reenlist.
- Option to retire at half pay for the rest of your life after 20 years' service—increasing to three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. All previous active federal military service counts toward retirement.
- Choice of branch of service and overseas theater (of those still open) on 3-year enlistments.

Time Flies

Busy in the United States today are two ways of thinking—the high-brows call them "opposing concepts." Orators in both camps sound a lot alike until they get right down to brass tacks, completely away from abstract generalities. Both schools, if you listen with only half an ear to their vocal members, seem to favor advancement of the race and better living conditions.

Most of the people in America are not on either side; not yet. They haven't given the issues enough thought. That's the way with the American people, they keep out of all the arguments they can. They are busy with their own affairs and, if you interrupt them, you must state your business in a few words. Unfortunately it is not possible to state these two creeds briefly and clearly.

Serious Problem

It would not be necessary for a person of average ability to go to college and study a year in order to learn the difference. The problem is not that complicated. On the other hand, I can't cover the case in one newspaper column or in a letter of two or three pages. It's not that simple. Everybody owes it a little serious thought, however, before it is too late.

Nothing was ever more serious to the people of this continent, their children and their grandchildren, than this dispute between "Individualism" and "Collectivism." Those are the names that best describe them. The former may call themselves Democrats or Republicans or Conservatives. The latter may be Nazis, Communists, Fascist or Central Planners. Here, they are revolutionists.

Vital Decisions

Although I imagine somebody is going to call me an alarmist, I'm duty bound as a loyal citizen to say: The American people will know all about this sooner or later. If they give the matter some thought and act quickly, they still may take their choice. Otherwise they will get Collectivism like it came to the unhappy peoples of other lands who are now starving by the hundreds every day.

Here is a fair question: How can anybody identify destructive, alien, revolutionist movements at sight? They wear respectable names, shout for praiseworthy aims and have patriotic slogans. How can we pick them out? The best answer I have ever heard came from J. P. Selberling in an address he delivered in Dallas, Texas, a few months ago. He says observe how they appeal to you!

Catering to What?

When a philosophy appeals to human weakness it is plainly earmarked as destructive. Central Planning, for example, charms nobody but people who believe in super-men and recognize themselves as weaklings. The offer of freedom from fear is a vulgar appeal to cowardice. Freedom from want (silly as it is) was never more than a bait to catch lazy people. Collectivism offers these, which mean mediocrity for everybody.

Individualism offers opportunity, a challenge; no soft stuff like security. Its rewards are for the energetic, not the lazy. Individualism offers personal liberty and individual freedom—freedom in expression, freedom in business and freedom in worship. These appeal to man's noble traits. Individualism offers these, with the highest standards of living for everybody the world has yet known.

FINANCING BUSINESS IS BANK BUSINESS.

Banks long have been the principal source of helpfulness, inspiration and credit to small business. For example, in the last full pre-war year, tabulation of loans by 5,000 banks (only one-third of the country's banks), totaled 24 million loans to business—a total of 39 billion dollars and an average of $1700 per loan.

Lending to small business is truly a big business, and one that banks are best equipped to handle. Today, and in the months and years ahead, when the efforts of small business will be so important in getting our economic machine back on the track, we pledge ourself to give every possible assistance and to make every possible loan to local business concerns. Come in and talk over your problems with us.

Federal Funds Will Aid Building of Hospitals

IF YOU live in one of the more than 1,000 counties in the nation in which there is no hospital, or where there is no adequate hospital, there is a chance, if you and your fellow citizens get together on the proposition, to get a new hospital at reduced rates—with the federal government paying a third of the cost.

For President Truman has signed the Hill-Burton bill, the national hospital construction act which sets up a potential total of $1,125,000,000 for a five-year hospital construction program. But do not get excited and rush down here to Washington in the belief that one of these hospitals can be picked out of a hat.

No Funds Available Now

Only 3 million dollars of this fund, of which the government's share is 375 million dollars at the rate of 75 million dollars a year for five years, has been made available by the 79th congress. This congress was a cautious congress. It considered, and probably rightly, that before any of this money should be made available, surveys should be made to determine how many governmental units could or would put up the necessary two-thirds cash to build a hospital. This survey, they opined, would take no more than 3 million dollars. So that much money is available for use of the local units of government. It will be up to the 80th congress, which convenes January 3 of next year, to put up the money called for in the new law. So it will be some time next year before the money is made available. Probably building construction costs are too high now, anyway.

Sponsors for local hospitals, under the bill, may be states, cities, counties, towns or other public governmental agencies, or private non-profit hospitals. States will share in the federal grants in aid on the basis of their needs, which will be ascertained through the ratio their per capita income bears to the national average. Other factors determining the amount apportioned to each state will be population and value of products.

May Not Benefit Country

So whether this will favor those rural counties where hospitals are so badly needed, or whether it will work to the advantage of the more populous urban communities will depend largely upon responsibility placed in the hands of a non-governmental advisory council. This council is different, however. Most public health services such as nursing, cancer, tuberculosis and other activities are presided over by an advisory council, but they are advisory only. The council in the hospital act has the veto power, not only over some actions of the surgeon-general, who will administer the law, but likely over some state action. President Truman doesn't like this feature of the act and said so when he signed it.

At any rate, in counties where there is need and desire for a hospital, the first action is to determine how much money the local community can raise. A showing that the hospital can be maintained after construction is also necessary. When this information is forthcoming, the next step is to go to your state health office and ask for inclusion in the state program—and the state, if it approves, then makes the application and showing to the surgeon-general of the Public Health service.

Dr. Hoge Will Rule

Actual administration in the surgeon-general's office will be in the hands of Dr. Vane Hoge, who has been with the Public Health service for 18 years. Dr. Hoge is a native of Wayneburg, Pa., and a graduate of Jefferson Medical school in Philadelphia.

Dr. Hoge has had several years experience in clinical work and in research, and for 10 years has specialized in hospital administration, and so has an excellent background as administrator of the new act. While his office expects much increased activity in hospital construction as a result of the federal grant of $1 for $2 of local money, he declared that there was no basis for estimate on the number of new hospitals or additions which may be constructed as a result.

He advised local communities not to wait for the state health agency to come around to visit governmental units wanting a new hospital but urged them to get busy themselves, determine their needs, their potential power to raise the necessary amount for construction and maintenance, and then to go to the state agency themselves.

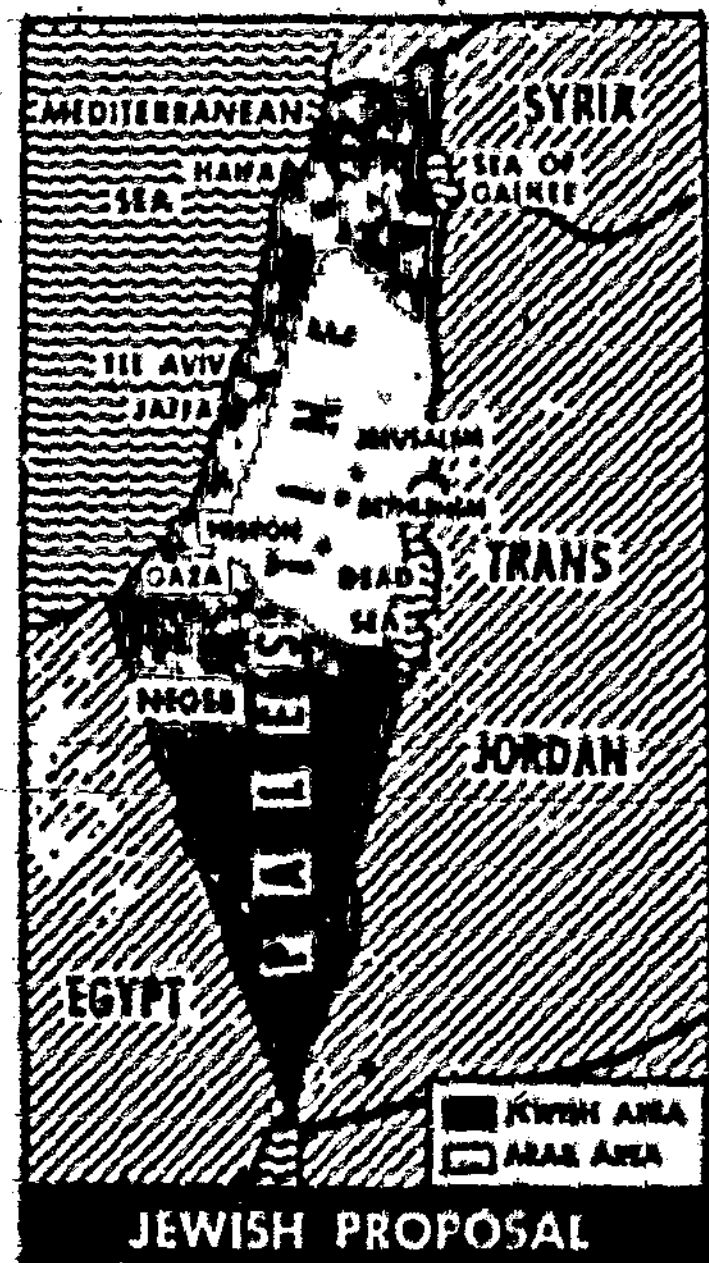

While President Truman declared that the construction of hospitals and related facilities, such as health centers, was essential, he said it was only the first step in the five-point national health program.

BIG FOUR AT PARIS CONFERENCE . . . During the Paris peace conference, representatives of the Big Four hold special sessions to determine policies. French Premier Georges Bidault serves as host to representatives of the United States, Russia and Great Britain; Sen. Tom Connally, Sec. of State James F. Byrnes and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg are shown at extreme right.

THIS STRIKE MET WITH FAVOR . . . No need for these students to wish that the school buses would burn down. The teachers at Norwalk, Conn., went on strike. No teachers, no school. Vacation days can begin again. Hero Rudy Baxa, custodian Norwalk Center Junior high school, tells the students to go home. Sense of resentment for the teachers is that $99,112 be added to the $513,000 school budget for pay raises for the 236 teachers. This is one strike where those who are concerned are willing that it be continued for some time.

PROPOSED PLANS FOR JEWISH ZONE . . . Some 1,500 square miles in Palestine would be granted the Jews under a reported American compromise which President Truman is believed to favor and which has been favored by the Jewish Agency for Palestine. The new plan also would demand Jewish and Arab autonomy in their respective areas. Above at left is the Palestinian division originally proposed by the Anglo-American cabinet committee and backed by Britain. At right is the approximate division under the plan favored by the Jewish agency.

TERMINAL LEAVE SIGN-UP . . . Flood of 10,000 veterans at Los Angeles office to obtain the first terminal leave forms available in Southern California is shown in above photograph. This rush was typical of that to be found in nearly every city in the United States. The forms were printed locally through special arrangement with the war department, and are identical with those issued by the government. Bonds will be issued for amount of pay due.

TITO DEAL EXPOSED

WASHINGTON. — When the full details of the Teheran conference are told, they will show that after Josef Stalin and Winston Churchill finished dividing up the Balkans—one of the worst things FDB let them do—Stalin then sold Churchill on the trigger-happy little dictator who recently caused such a crisis between the United States and Yugoslavia.

Marshal Stalin, at that stage of the Teheran conference, was in expansive mood. He had beaten down Churchill's insistence that the second front against Hitler be staged through the Balkans and had put across an agreement instead that Russia take over Romania and Bulgaria, with Britain getting Greece and Yugoslavia.

So at this point, Stalin gave his friend Churchill some advice. The Adriatic coast of Yugoslavia and the areas in which Britain is especially interested, he said, are Croatian, not Serb. Therefore General Mihailovitch, a Serb, was the wrong man to run Yugoslavia. Instead, Stalin offered Churchill his man Tito, a Croat.

Those are the inside facts on how Churchill happened to take on Tito, and how the United States immediately switched tons of valuable lend-lease equipment to Stalin's puppet-in-disguise.

The finishing touches to this tragic error were applied when Churchill sent his bungling son, Randolph, together with equally bungling Brig. Fitzroy McLean, to serve as liaison officers to Tito. They, in turn, played right into the hands of Stalin's shrewd plan to steal Yugoslavia right out from under the British.

When Dictator Tito fired on U. S. airplanes recently it was not the first time he had shown his teeth. His first snarling display of force came toward the end of the war as relations between himself and the British began to cool.

One night Tito's headquarters were raided by a Nazi airborne division and he barely escaped. It so happened that on this particular night, Randolph Churchill and all other Britishers left Tito's headquarters for the first time in two months.

Tito was beside himself with rage and suspicion, figured the British were out to doublecross him, and shortly thereafter flew to Bari, Italy, then headquarters for refugee Yugoslavs.

As Tito's plane landed, several hundred Yugoslavs armed with tommy guns surrounded it. No British official was allowed anywhere near their chief. Later Tito was invited to dine with Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, British commander in the Mediterranean, and arrived at the dinner with two dozen husky Yugoslav guards, who lined up with tommy guns on both sides of the dining room.

"I say, marshal," remarked General Wilson, "isn't this a most unusual procedure?" "This, general," replied Tito, "is a most unusual war."

Next day he flew to Bucharest, conferred with Russian officials, then returned to Yugoslavia. His cooperation with the British was absolutely dead. He was now openly working for Russia. Meanwhile the United States had poured millions in lend-lease material into Tito's hands.

Shortly after that, when British commandos landed at Split on the Yugoslav coast to try to head off the German army, Tito's men disarmed the British and sent them back to Italy.

BALKANS BREED OUTTHROATS

Today in Yugoslavia, Tito is anything but popular and, if it wasn't for the support of Russia, he would be out on his ear. The Serbs, who formerly ran the country, don't like him, because he is a Croat and they have been put on the sidelines. The Croat people don't particularly like him because they are strong Roman Catholics and he is a Communist. Only people who really like Tito are the Montenegrins, and their leaders adore him—for a very special reason.

The Montenegrins are the born fighters of Yugoslavia. Living in one of the rockiest countries in the world, they have nothing to do but fight—or migrate to America, which they did in large numbers before the war. Almost every third Montenegrin you met in the old days spoke a little broken English and had worked for a time in the steel mills of Pittsburgh or Youngstown.

BALKANIZING AMERICA

Although the mystery is unsolved as to how the grand mull of Jerusalem was permitted to slip out of his comfortable villa in France to Egypt, some highly important additional information has now leaked out about his activities—as a result of U. S. army cross-examination of Nazi prisoners. The cross-examination says that Hitler's plot to Balkanize the United States; also to stir up terror against the Jews. For Hitler the two projects inevitably went hand-in-hand.

TREASURE OF THE SEA

BY George E. Walsh W.W.U. Release

CHAPTER I

Such a small thing as a shrimp may save a man's life by putting new heart into him at a time when his digestive organs have ceased to function for lack of fuel. If the will to live or die is dependent upon a bunch of nerve cells and ganglions, the proper activity of the latter is contingent upon the regular carbonization of commonplace foods.

Dick Jordan had reached the point of semi-starvation and physical exhaustion when lethal forgetfulness seemed the greatest boon to man—to drift off painlessly into a world of dreams and fancies that ends in death. He didn't want to live; he had lost the will to go on and suffer; he craved succor from the torture of wind and sun and waves—and from thirst and hunger!

Clinging to his frail support that had been the toy of the waves for days and nights—he scarcely knew how many—he raised his head for one last look around his narrow undulating horizon before releasing his hold to slip down into the green waters clamoring to receive him. It was the last despairing look of a dying man when the faculties flare up an instant, in full intelligence, before the final collapse.

Then, coming on the crest of a wave, sliding down its slope to meet him, a small island of seaweed thrust its tentacles of air-bladders and greenish fronds about his neck and shoulders, rustling and murmuring against the sides of his raft. Arouned an instant by this unexpected break in the monotony of his horizon the castaway stared at it in stupefied wonder. It was alive with crustaceans and molluscs, those tiny forms of life that cling to algae and make their homes in their branches—squids, snails, slugs, barnacles and arthropods.

A tiny crab floated on the surface. Dick made a grab for it, but missed it. His splash startled from their hiding place a school of shrimp. Catching one of these, he decapitated it and ate it raw. The taste awakened dormant impulses in him. He began fishing warily for the tiny creatures, driving them into the open with one hand and cupping them with the other, or corraling them into a dense mass of seaweed, he would fling them on his float with the algae and scramble for them before they could leap back into the sea.

It became an exciting game, with real food as the prize. Every time he caught one and swallowed it, his appetite craved more, and his sagged brain power rallied to his assistance, giving him the necessary mental alertness and skill for the work.

A Handful of Shrimp Revives Will to Live

It saved his life—the shrimp and the game! By the time he had scavenged the mass of seaweed, robbing it of every form of life that could be called food, his mind was clearer through the functioning of his digestive organs, and the will to live and fight it out flared up again.

But the handful of raw shrimps had, after all, been a mere morsel to a starving man, and the salt of them, which had tasted good at first, was beginning to intensify his thirst. He had been fortunate in securing rain water for the first three days, but the last of it was gone, and the agony of thirst was beginning to add to the tortures of an empty stomach.

"If there was a sail now—" he began, and then stopped. Insanity lay in that direction. He had looked for a sail so long that his eyes were sore and unsteady; he had prayed for it until in a frenzy of disappointment he had anathematized all prayer as silly and misleading; he had hoped and longed for the sight of a ship until he had seen them in his dreams—a dozen of them—sailing around and around him, mocking him, tantalizing him even in his waking moments. There had been strange illusions, mirages of ships and argosies, pictures of islands and headlands, of towns and cities, of people walking their streets. They had come and gone until the befuddled brain was at odds with itself.

"There isn't any sail!" he muttered aloud, closing his teeth. "There are dream sails, mirages of them, but nothing real. They disappeared from the ocean ages ago. I know, for I saw the last of them." He had glimpsed a sail—a real sail—when he thrust his head upward after his meal of shrimp, but he wouldn't believe it—wanted to believe it—but wouldn't.

"It's only in my eye," he added. "I'd get cross-eyed if I tried to look at all the ships I've seen since—since that night."

grim-lipped men, and weak-kneed passengers of both sexes who needed help to get them in the small boats.

Dick himself had helped women and children into the first boats, winning smiles of trust from the latter and glances of frightened approval from the former. There had been a few others of the passengers who actively arrayed themselves alongside the officers to maintain order and system.

One of them was Pettigrew—Hen Pettigrew—whose whole life and training made him immune to fear and excitement. Hen had distinguished himself in that peace, as he always did, and won the approval of the captain.

Early in the confusion they had separated—Hen Pettigrew and Dick Jordan—for the exigency of the moment severed all conventional bonds. Dick had been allowed to go his own way, free as any other passenger; but he knew, or felt, that the other's eyes were on him, watching that he didn't slip into one of the boats filled mostly with women and children. He had an unpleasant sensation that he was still being watched as a criminal. The vigilance of the law never relaxed—not even in the panic of a shipwreck.

"No, not in the same boat," came the unexpected reply.

When all but two of the boats had been cast off, and the sea was full of them, bobbing around like cockle-shells, he and Hen had come face to face—the only two passengers left aboard. Hen had looked at him, and nodded pleasantly. "You've done well, Jordan," were his words. "Which boat do you want to go in?"

Dick was surprised into stammering by the question. Until then there had been no choice. He still considered himself Pettigrew's man; he had not thought of making a break for liberty. Ever since he had left the South American port in Hen's custody he had been a model prisoner, and it seemed slightly dishonorable to take advantage of the disaster to escape.

"Why, the one you chose for me," he answered. "It makes no difference. Is there room for both of us?"

"No, not in the same boat," came the unexpected reply. "That's why I'm giving you a choice. You deserve it—after this."

He waved his hand around to indicate his meaning.

Pettigrew Wishes Dick Good Luck in Future

Jordan was more astonished than ever. Pettigrew was eyeing him as a man, and not as an officer of the law; he even placed a hand familiarly on one shoulder.

"We're just man to man now, Jordan," he added. "We're not going to leave this ship together—can't, you know—captain's orders. You go your way, and I go mine. If you meet again—on shore—I'll pinch you. It's my duty. But just now we're—well," laughing quietly, "friends, I guess. I don't mind calling you that. I wish you good luck! If you reach shore and I don't I wish—"

Dick never knew what he intended to wish, for at that moment the harsh, grating voice of the first mate interrupted, and Jordan tumbled into one boat and Hen Pettigrew into another.

Almost instantly they were separated in the blackness of the night. Dick was free, in truth, then—not on probation. He had the whole world to roam so long as he didn't run afoul of Hen Pettigrew. As they drifted through the darkness of the night, he smiled broadly, while the others sat and moaned or spoke in awed, frightened voices. Would they ever reach land? How far were they from the nearest shore? That was the burden of their conversation.

At first an effort was made to keep the boats together, but this was soon abandoned by the seamen. There was always the danger of collision in a rough sea.

In a couple of hours each boatload was a separate unit, dependent upon the skill and exertion of its own crew for safety, with no knowledge of what was happening to the others. The black pall of night descended upon them, obliterating the rest of the world, and circumscribing for them an existence bounded by the gunwales of the boat. In this narrow space they huddled, awed and terrified as much by the sense of isolation as by the roar of wind and waves.

Jordan was not greatly surprised when the accident he had been anticipating came; it seemed the inevitable climax to their adventure, and unavoidable. A giant wave lifted them clear out of the water and upset the frail craft, rolling it over and over before allowing it to descend into the trough to be trampled upon by the mountain of surging green brine.

After that it was every man for himself. There was no further opportunity for team work or mutual co-operation. Dick Jordan found himself clinging to a few boards that had been in the bottom of the boat. It made an excellent raft for one, but hardly of use for two. In his eagerness to take full possession of it, a fat man climbed upon it, overreaching himself by his greediness.

The slender raft sunk out of sight, and when it finally came to the surface again the fat man was gone. Jordan retrieved it; clung to it; clutched it with both hands, refusing to yield his hold even when the waves rolled it over and over and buried him fathoms deep in the sea.

He had been three days on the raft before the will to live had finally cracked, and then, fortified by the ray food washed up to him by the mass of drifting seaweed, revived, and once more struggled to reassert itself over-exhausted, tortured flesh.

It was a real sail that his red-rimmed eyes saw this time, but he refused to believe it for a long time, laughing at his own inconsistency in hoping and praying that it was not an optical illusion, and declaring in the same breath it could not be anything else. It was not only a real sail that he saw, but it was coming in his direction, bearing down upon him at a speed that quickly dispelled all doubts.

Two-Masted Luger Hoves in Sight

As the boat drew nearer, Dick made out its nondescript character from its sails. A two-masted lugger, quite common in the Caribbean for fishing and coasting, with lumpy hull and mildewed canvas, spotted like the coat of a leopard, it sloped along in the rough seas as if unwillingly propelled by a power that it could not resist.

Long before any one aboard sighted Dick Jordan, he had studied the craft from stem to keel with greedy, anxious eyes, taking in everything from the clumsily bent top-sails to the ill-fitting jib that was forever shifting in the wind.

"Fishermen," he concluded, speaking his thoughts aloud. "I can't be far from land."

A moment later, when the lugger acted as if about to change her course, he raised his free hand and shouted with all the strength he could muster. Even at that distance, it seemed almost miraculous that they heard or saw him; but keen eyes had been scanning the sea closely, looking for just such derelicts. It was their business to pick up flotsam and jetsam of the ocean on the chance of finding a prize.

His cry brought several black faces to the port rail, and Jordan's former conclusion that the lugger was a native fishing craft seemed confirmed by the appearance of the crew. They were swarthy Caribs, an ancient type weakened and diluted by the blood of pure Negroes. A burly half-breed, with the white part of him showing in his straight hair and mottled complexion, seemed to be in command, for the order came from him to heave the lugger up in the wind and lower a boat.

Twenty minutes later Dick sat on the dirty, ill-smelling deck of the vessel, greedily eating and drinking food and liquid that under ordinary circumstances would have repelled him; but nature's cravings had to be satisfied, and it was no time to be critical. The crew formed a half circle around him, with Captain Tucú, the half-breed skipper, and Black Burley, the lugger's mate, in the immediate foreground. They were inspecting him with something more than curiosity—with greed and avariciousness, Dick thought, but he could not exactly translate it in words.

Captain Tucú had an evil, sinister face that in repose was hard and sullen, as if the white blood in him was slowly protesting the injustice of the trick played in mingling negro with it; in action it lighted up with a fierceness of either joy or anger that had an element of the fanatic's.

CLEAR OUT PRINCIPLES WOULD GIVE VOTERS REAL CHOICE

IF THE WISHES of the American people are to be determined, we need a new and more definite political alignment. As party names, Democrat and Republican have become largely meaningless insofar as standing for principles and policies are concerned. It is no longer easy for many voters to distinguish between them.

Presumably the Democratic party stands for what we have known as the New Deal. A portion of those elected on its ticket lean heavily to the left, with a strong tendency toward a mere centralized government; encroachment on what has been considered the rights of the states; a government-planned economy—state socialism. Some portion of the senators and representatives elected on the Republican ticket join that New Deal element of the Democrats.

A considerable number of Democratic senators and representatives do not support New Deal policies. They are in the minority in the party, but with the assistance of the Republicans who are opposed to New Deal ideas and theories, the combination has been able to block much of the New Deal legislative program.

There is no clear cut cleavage between the two parties. So long as such conditions continue the voter has no means of expressing his preference as to the kind of government he wants. He can vote only for candidates; not for principles. When a majority of both parties expresses in definite terms the purposes and policies of the party we could get an accurate counting of hands showing what a majority of the American people want.

The choice must lie between a continuance of our free enterprise profit system; our local self government by states, counties and municipalities; encouragement of our individual ambition as represented by our profit system; our freedom as individuals to plan and do for ourselves, or that form of state socialism that proposes a planned economy; government ownership or direction of much of industry; responsibility of government for the support of the individual; a centralized form of government, and other things that were the purposes of the New Deal.

With such definite, clearly defined policies proposed by each of the two parties the voter can express his choice of principles, rather than, as now, only a choice as between candidates. Under such conditions the party that wins at the polls will have a definite mandate from a majority of the American people.

INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM ENDS UNDER A BUREAUCRACY

FREEDOM FOR THE INDIVIDUAL, as we have known it in America, is compounded of many ingredients. Among these is the right to reside where we wish; the right to work at what most appeals; to say and do those things we wish to say and do insofar as they do not injure others; to plan and build for ourselves as suits our fancy; to work or to play; to have what we may wish without depriving others of the same privilege. Under our kind of freedom each directs his own life to suit his desires. He is limited only by his individual ability to achieve. We cannot have our American kind of freedom under a planned rule of bureaucracy. Under a bureaucratic rule pervading to the state is inevitable whether it be called state socialism, nazism, fascism, communism or any of the many forms of socialism that are based on the state's regulation of the ambition of the individual. We cannot have both state socialism and individual freedom. They do not work together. We must plan for ourselves or accept the planning of a bureaucrat. We cannot stop bureaucracy and reap freedom.

THERE IS in America right now a demand for 10 to 12 million, or more, new automobiles. Manufacturers tell us the price will be 25 per cent higher than present; the car that sold at $3000 will now sell at $4,000. The difference, and more, is the increased cost of labor. Despite that increase the cars will sell as rapidly as they can be produced, but the increased price demonstrates "what goes up must come down" somewhere. Wage increases come down on the heads of all of us. We are the buying public. We pay the wages.

ON TWO RECENT OCCASIONS Stalin has said that the interests of the United States and Russia do not clash, but that the interests of Great Britain and Russia do clash. That clash, Stalin said, could lead to war between Russia and England. Such statements on the part of Stalin are evidently a bid for American support for the expansionist plans of Russia, or at least for this country to keep out of the argument.
