The following twelve hunters were at the Gallacher ranch this week deer hunting: Dr. Lute Baugh, and Dr. Lewis, Messrs. The last named gentleman is chief of police of Garden City which position he has held the past fifteen years. Nearly all members of the party have killed a deer, as did also Bill Gallacher, Jr. who brought in a 197 pound buck.

Department of Game and Fish

Santa Fe, N. Mex. Nov. 14. (Special)—Due to an error in printing the reverse side of the trapper's license, the following explanation of the fur trapping regulation is given. Season during which it is legal to trap protected fur bearing animals except muskrat is Nov. 1 to Mar. 31. This includes foxes, coons, badgers, weasels, civet cat, ringtail cat and masked ferret. Muskrat season above elevations of 7,500 ft. in Taos, Sandoval and Colfax counties, is Oct. 15 to Mar. 31. Below elevations of 7,500 feet season for muskrat is Jan. 1 to Feb. 28. No open season on mink, marmot, and pika. Beavers may be trapped by land owners, where damage is being done to property, under special permit. No license required to trap or shoot coyotes, bobcats, lions or skunks and there is no closed season on these species.

Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor
Three strikes and out! There have been two stormy Sunday mornings and you missed the Sunday school and worship service on both of these, gentle reader. We are depending on you not to miss the ball next Sunday. If we are going to make any score for the kingdom of God in this world we must play up and play the game. Psychologists tell us that it takes only three times to form a habit. Going to church to worship with others and to receive a message is a Holy Habit. Again, gentle reader, how far have you gone in the other direction? Is the game lost already? I should say not. Let us stay in with Christ and fight this battle to the ninth inning. We cannot lose. Christ said: "I will build my Church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." If you want to be on the winning side, and are not now on other bases join us next Sunday at the Methodist church. The service will be reverent, devotional and inspirational. Everybody welcomed.

Carrizozo Soil Conservation

Mr. Claude Braum was elected to the Soil conservation board to fill the place of Sam Dillard who moved out of the district. Election was held Nov. 5. Several miles of range terraces and contour subsiding have been constructed on the Lewis ranch north of Carrizozo. This was done to stop erosion and spread flood waters over a large area instead of letting them concentrate and cause gullies. A district technician laid out the work and supervised its construction by a private contractor.

A geologist is here to spend a week or ten days to assist landowners within the district in locating wells and water development. This service is furnished without charge to district operators.

Nicholas, Miss Thelma White will preside at the tea table; tea service in serving will be Mrs. Roy Shaffer, and Mrs. Ralph Petty. Mrs. Ira Stephens will preside at the guest book.

Cattle Growers to Meet at Clovis

Albuquerque, Nov. 12. State legislation effecting the livestock industry of New Mexico will highlight business at the Third Quarterly Executive Board meeting of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association at Clovis on December 5 and 6, according to George A. Godfrey, Animas, president. It is expected that more than four hundred leaders of the industry from all parts of the state will attend this meeting.

The state association will probably adopt a legislative policy and program to follow during the 18th session of the New Mexico Legislature which convenes at Santa Fe early in January, Godfrey said.

Speakers who have been invited to appear on the meeting program include C. E. Weymouth, Amarillo, Texas, President of the Texas, and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and A. L. Ward, Dallas, Texas, director of the National Cottonseed Products Association.

Millard Edison, prominent Lovington cattleman and vice-president of the association will serve as chairman of the general resolutions committee during the meeting, Godfrey continued.

Other business which will be considered at this meeting will include the protection of the livestock industry of the west against all possible threats of hoof-and-mouth disease which might emanate from south of the border; livestock tax matters; the protein feed situation and plans for the 33rd Annual Convention of the organization at Albuquerque in March.

Wedding Saturday

Tomorrow morning, November 16th the marriage of Miss Martha Vega to Mr. George Sanchez will be solemnized at the Catholic church.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vega of Carrizozo. She is very pretty and attractive. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Sanchez. Both the young people were home-schooled and educated in Carrizozo. Both belong to prominent and highly respected Spanish American families of the county and are popular. George was in the Navy during the war and spent much of the time on foreign shores. Their parents have issued invitations to the wedding dance which will be given at Community Hall Saturday night with the Corona orchestra in charge of the music.

Joseph Scott Stroope

Joseph Scott Stroope was born January 7, 1886 at Junction, Kimble county, Texas, the seventh child of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Stroope.

When Joe was about three years old the family moved from Texas to Hope, New Mexico. Later they lived in Hagerman and then purchased a ranch near Corona in 1905, where Joe resided until he bought his ranch near Duran.

In 1921 he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Neoma Porter. To this union was born one son, Henry. The mother passed away in July 1924.

In 1937 Joe was married to Mrs. Emma Ware who survives with Henry and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Lucille Ware Meeker; a brother, A. B. Stroope of Cedarvale; one sister, Mrs. Doshia, Melton of Tularosa, New Mexico.

Death claimed Mr. Stroope in an Albuquerque hospital on November 8th, at the age of 60 years, 10 months and 1 day. His life was a busy one; as a man he was known and respected by all his friends and neighbors. He was very kind and was thoughtful of the rights of others.

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church Monday afternoon with the Reverend E. J. Hollis in charge. Burial was in the Corona cemetery.

Contributed.

National Livestock Exposition in San Francisco

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Attention of the livestock industry of the nation will center on San Francisco's $2,500,000 Cow Palace during the ten days from Nov. 15 to 24, when the second Grand National Livestock Exposition, Horse Show and Rodeo will bring together the greatest aggregation of prize beef, dual purpose and dairy cattle and sheep and swine ever to be assembled on the Pacific Coast.

Taking its place with Chicago, Kansas City, Fort Worth and Denver as one of the "Big Five" livestock expositions of the nation, the Grand National will draw from 24 states as far East as Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska as well as Canada.

Its roster of exhibitors, studies with names of the most famous outfits of the country, reads like a "Who's Who" of the industry. Tabulation shows a record breaking total of 2892 entries by over 300 exhibitors. They will battle for $72,500 in cash awards in the livestock division alone.

Upper Hondo Soil Conservation District

Nov. 11, 1946.—Mrs. Ora B. O'Leary recently terraced 5.6 acres on her mountain place. An old field had been abandoned as farming area, had grown up in weeds and sunflowers, and gullies were appearing all over it. Now that the terracing has been completed by district equipment, Mrs. O'Leary stands by with created wheat seed to get the piece back into permanent pasture.

Frank Purcella, on his ranch near Tinnie, has been keeping a close watch on his grass and meat production during the past few drought years. An estimate made in 1945 showed that his ranch produced enough feed to carry about 16 animal units per section. Very obviously during the drought years this amount of forage was not being produced and Mr. Purcella reduced his stock accordingly. Now Mr. Purcella has about 3 head per section and intends to increase his stock only as forage produced warrants and furthermore to do this slowly in order to let the more desirable grasses gain in both density of stand and of vigor.

Fertilizer Industry Says
It Can Meet All Demands

WITH thousands of acres of farm land mined-out of crop-producing minerals due to heavy and constant working during the over-productive war years, this question of fertilizer—or perhaps the question of government or private industry production of fertilizer—is looming ever more important as the basis of spirited controversy in the 80th congress.

Your Home Town Reporter has been learning something about the question under the tutelage of no less an authority than Maurice H. Lockwood, president of the National Fertilizer Association, an organization which claims something like 400 memberships from the some 600 fertilizer plants in the country. Lockwood has been a fertilizer executive for many years, having headed the fertilizer division of the Eastern State Farmers' Exchange, one of about 20 co-operatives which hold membership in the association.

Lockwood's organization, along with the National Plant Food Council, the other national fertilizer organization, is locked in battle with the Farm Bureau and other organizations over further entrance of government in the production of fertilizer, and particularly against the Hill-Burkehead bill and the Flanagan bill, which is definitely and unalterably sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

Lockwood says the fertilizer industry is not opposed to construction of a government pilot plant or to government education and research for benefit of the farmers in the fertilizer field, but they want government to stop there and permit private enterprise to take on the commercial development of fertilizer from that point.

He says the private fertilizer plants have the capacity to manufacture more fertilizer than the farmers can use, that they are manufacturing fertilizer cheaper than ever before with increased plant-food content and that they are making better fertilizer than ever before. And if that is true, then why should government enter the picture?

Why a Government Plant?

It seems to your Home Town Reporter that the answer boils down to, "What is a pilot plant?" and how much fertilizer can the government make and still not enter the commercial field? Also, if the fertilizer industry can and will do all it claims, then why should the American Farm Bureau, an organization of farmers, insist that the government take a hand? They have been traditionally against government ownership and even the authors of the bills are opposed to government ownership.

Congressman John Flanagan (D-Va.), who is chairman of the house agricultural committee, in discussing his bill said: "While I do not believe the government should go into the fertilizer business, I would like to see the government step in and set up fertilizer experimental pilot plants at such points as will serve the different sections of our country, run the plants for the length of time necessary to develop the right kinds of fertilizer needed for our different soils and demonstrate to the farmers the imperative necessity for soil improvement and care and then turn the plants over to private industry."

This is what the fertilizer associations say too. Only they do not agree on how big these pilot plants should be nor how much fertilizer they should make for demonstration purposes. Then they don't like the plan to sell these plants to co-operatives after the government has finished with them on the theory that the purchasers would be "hand-picked" which, of course, is a presumption that there would be something crooked in the sale of the plants.

Some Changes Needed

It seems to this reporter that before the fertilizer industry wins the confidence of the farmer the industry must develop a different method of packaging more plant food in smaller packages. In other words, that when a farmer buys a ton of fertilizer or 500 pounds of fertilizer, he gets that much plant food and not 600 pounds of plant food and 1,400 pounds of filler or "inert matter." Secondly, he must provide different methods of mixing so as to eliminate long freight hauls for which the farmer pays on this heavy tonnage. Thirdly, he must provide better and more accurate labeling so that the farmer knows exactly what he is buying; and there is a move under way now to provide for this more accurate labeling in a bill which will be introduced in the next congress. That the industry eventually can do this is shown in the fact that they have improved the plant food content over the years and still could lower prices.

MEN NOT AT WORK . . . When the members of the National Maritime union go picketing they go to it in a big way, as one can see from this panorama of marching men and picket signs. Several thousand maritime workers paraded from 17th street and Broadway to the offices of the American Merchant Marine Institute at 11 Broadway, New York, where they staged a mass picket line. It lasted two hours. Strike leaders said that the purpose of the demonstration was to bring pressure on ship owners to sign an agreement to end the strike.

DENIES RED AGENT CHARGE . . . Gerhard Eisler is shown in his Seaside, Queens, N. Y., home after denying that he was anyone but a displaced person trying to get home. His wife is shown with him. Eisler has been accused by a former Communist as being the chief Communist agent in the United States. They are awaiting further developments following investigation by the state department of his permission for them to leave the country.

U. S. DELEGATION TO UNITED NATIONS . . . Members of the U. S. delegation attending the United Nations general assembly at the Waldorf Astoria, New York City, talk it over before session. Left to right in the leading row: Rep. Charles A. Eaton, New Jersey; Mr. Blanton Winston, speaker of the former president; Warren E. Austin, Vermont, senior representative; Rep. Sol Bloom, New York, and Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, California.

LIKE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS
WASHINGTON.—The American people are now beginning to realize that the road to peace after war is never easy. Beating our swords back into plowshares sometimes is more difficult than forging the swords of battle.

But one encouraging milestone on the road to peace now is under way in New York where the smaller nations of the allied world, who for months have had to sit and take it from the Big Four, now debate on an almost equal footing. Many may have forgotten it, but this issue of free debate caused a bitter battle at the San Francisco conference. Molotov then wanted to stifle free debate. He proposed that the general assembly of the United Nations not even be permitted to discuss or to criticize decisions of the big powers sitting on the security council.

Australian Foreign Minister Evatt, spokesman for the little powers, opposed. He went further and demanded that the general assembly under the recognized principles of democracy have the power to overrule the security council. He was rebuffed, not only by his own "mother diplomats" from London, but also by the isolationist-grounded senators of the U. S. delegation.

In the end, the general assembly was given the power to debate, discuss, criticize, and recommend—but not to carry out. That is what it is doing at the present sessions.

Behind the iron curtain, public opinion still is tightly controlled. When it is decontrolled, then we need no longer worry about war between the USA and the USSR. Meanwhile, the sessions in New York are like the first struggling but healthy debates of the Continental congress and of the United States congress which grew therefrom. They won't achieve much at the moment, but they should pave the way to great and hopeful things.

HARRY TRUMAN'S PRESS

If Harry Truman could place an ad in the papers, probably it would read something like this:

"Wanted—Good press secretary; willing to work long hours; must be practicing newspaper man, not afraid to say 'no.' Low salary, but private car and plenty of prestige. Call National 1414 or write—H. S. T., 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C."

There are few weaker spots in the White House staff than Truman's press aides. Venerable Charles Ross, the President's secretary, simply isn't filling the bill. Personally one of the finest gentlemen in Washington, Ross is by nature an introvert; doesn't get around much, is a poor spot-news reporter and a complete failure as a press agent.

Newsmen who cover the White House sometimes are genuinely alarmed at Ross' ineptitude. They claim he doesn't read the newspapers regularly, doesn't even keep up with the White House directives. Frequently, White House newsmen have asked about stories which were on the front page of the morning paper, but Ross shows he simply has not read the papers.

EXIT '52-20 CLUB'

The "52-20 club" is folding up for many veterans and Gen. Omar Bradley, the Veterans' administrator, is deeply concerned over their ability to readjust themselves.

The "club" is composed of unemployed vets who receive relief allowances of $20 a week for 52 weeks. The year is now up for many ex-servicemen who have been riding this gravy train, the worthy as well as the idlers. Many more who climbed aboard in the first few months following V-J Day also will be cut off soon.

Of 1,000,000 claimants on the rolls last April, only 48,132 had exhausted all their claims by mid-August. However, between now and the end of the year from 150,000 to 200,000 will join them. Veterans' administration is fearful many will be unable to find jobs.

General Bradley has never liked the "52-20 club," believing it subsidized idleness. Many veterans found it more comfortable to live on the $20-a-week dole than to work for a living, although some, including the disabled, made an earnest effort to find jobs.

Now that the relief train is reaching the end of the line, Bradley fears that they will have a tough time readjusting themselves to a life of industry.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Some people relay reports that they're in the big money, but not Henry Wallace. A report that he was to get $75,000 from the New Republic drew a quick denial. He's getting a little less than his cabinet salary, which was $15,000. . . . Wallace will remain in Washington this winter, then move to New York. He has bought a farm up along the Hudson. . . . Wallace aides didn't want him to become an editor, thought it would put him on the spot once a week.

CHAPTER VIII

When morning dawned they crept on deck, wan, pale and exhausted, but happy. A quick glance around the horizon revealed the presence of no ship. The lugger had disappeared, either driven away by the storm or safe in some harbor to which she had scooted at the eleventh hour.

"I hope she went down in the storm," murmured Rose, smiling wickedly. "No such luck, I'm afraid. Trust old Tucu to save his skin. But if he doesn't return I won't kick."

"Then we must get away. How long—glancing at the top of the forward mast—"would it take to rig up a sail?" She smiled and shook her head.

"I don't know," she replied slowly. "It looks like a cloud on the horizon—or—" "—land?" he interrupted eagerly.

"I hope so," he smiled, following her train of thought, "but we'd better not put too much trust in miracles. If he recovers his senses, it will be a miracle, won't it? Perhaps then," he added, his eyes twinkling, "he can tell us where he hid that treasure."

Treasure Really Exists, Rose Tells Dick

She turned slowly toward him. "You don't believe there was any treasure?" she asked seriously. "Yes," she admitted after a long pause. "It's real, and it's aboard the Betty."

"No," slowly, "he didn't know where it was. I hid it when he lost his mind. I thought it would be safer." Dick stared in dumb admiration. "And you bluffed Tucu? Made him believe no one knew where it was except your father? I never dreamed you knew. You deceived me, too."

you? It's not mine. I have nothing to do with it. "Yes, it belongs partly to you," she replied quickly. "You helped save it, and if we reach land you must have your share."

"I suppose so, but—" "When he stopped she looked at him with twinkling eyes, full of amusement. "Haven't you any curiosity?" she asked finally. "Don't you want to know what the treasure is, and how we got it? Or are you afraid that will look like accepting payment?"

"She was an outlaw," Rose went on, "and she'd been robbing her victims before sending them to the bottom. There was enough prize money aboard to make all the crew satisfied—stolen money, you know. They were pirates, this crew were, for there was the evidence. There were rings and jewels, too. We searched for the submarine's papers, thinking perhaps we might find a clue to the ships from which the loot was taken, so that it could be restored to the owners. But the log couldn't be found, and there was nothing to identify the ships that had been sunk. Father wanted to bring everything of value away, but I couldn't do it. I wouldn't let him touch the blood-stained ones. We left them there with the skeletons of the robbers. Maybe others will find them some day. I don't want them. I never want to see the island again!"

"Nothing but the top of the ocean tower was visible when we discovered her." "They never existed." "Then we'll keep the treasure. Tucu'll never find it. I'll die before I tell him."

"Dick frowned. "Perhaps you'd better buy your freedom with it. He'll do that much for the treasure." "And hold you a prisoner until—" "Never mind that. I can outwit Tucu. I did it once, and I'll do it again. You make him promise he'll put you ashore, and—" "Dick," she interrupted, "don't talk nonsense. If it isn't enough to buy life for both of us, it isn't enough for one. We go ashore together, or we stay here until the end."

Disasters Followed Finding of Treasure

"Did the crew know about the submarine and the treasure?" Dick asked, approaching her side. "No, Father and I kept it to ourselves. We brought the money and gold and other things aboard in a basket, and hid them in the cabin. No one suspected we'd found anything but fresh gulls' eggs. We made five trips, and always brought eggs back with us. When we sailed away we had enough treasure aboard to make us rich—rich enough to buy another schooner and a home ashore."

"She smiled at him, as if to indicate that her idea of riches was moderate, and not of the inordinate, greedy variety. "We could have had more," she added, "if we'd taken the diamonds and rings that—that. But I couldn't touch them!" she broke off passionately. "They were stained with blood, or at least I thought so. Father laughed at me, and said it was the salt that had tarnished them; but it made no difference. I couldn't touch them!"

"No—no—but ever since we had the money aboard disaster has followed us. First, there was the storm that wrecked the schooner; then Father's accident, and then the desertion of the crew. Next Tucu and his pirates came, and—" "I followed next!" "That's the only pleasant thing that's happened since we found the treasure," she replied, frankly looking him in the eyes. "Without you aboard, I think I'd have thrown that treasure overboard long before this, or given it to Tucu. I'm not sure but that would have been the best way out of it."

"She's insured," Rose interrupted, "so we'll not need the money for that." "Your father will need it," Dick replied. "He's made his last trip if—if he doesn't recover his mind." An expression of pain swept across her face; then a little fiercely, with hands clenched, she said: "But he will recover. I feel it! I shan't lose hope—not if we can reach land."

"With money to pay a good doctor he'll recover," Dick replied, smiling encouragingly. "That's where your treasure will prove a blessing. It can't hoodoo you any more." "Are you sure of that?" she interrupted, pointing to the speck on the horizon. "Isn't that the lugger again?"

Dick gave a violent start and followed her hand. The object in the distance was still too vague of outline to determine its character, but either through imagination or distorted optical illusion they thought it to be the San Miguel returning to finish the work Captain Tucu had planned.

"Isn't it?" Rose repeated after a long pause. "I don't know," Dick murmured. "It looks so, but we may be mistaken. If it is—" "—we'll take a raft and leave the schooner," she finished for him. "I'll never stay aboard if Tucu comes." "What good will that do?" He'll overtake us on the raft. We couldn't escape."

"The truth of this, borne in upon her mind, made her silent and thoughtful. After a while her face brightened. "We may buy Tucu off," she said eagerly. "He'll let us go if we give him that treasure. That's all he wants." "That and the mythical jewels from the steamer," smiled Dick.

"She watched him anxiously, and then sighed. "I see," she murmured, "one wouldn't be sufficient. He'd want both." "Tucu's greedy." "And you couldn't find the jewels?" "They never existed." "Then we'll keep the treasure. Tucu'll never find it. I'll die before I tell him."

Something Appears On the Horizon

"They watched it with puzzled eyes, thankful that it did not approach, but disappointed that it did not vanish entirely. "It's the lugger," Dick remarked once, "she's been crippled by the storm, and is drifting before the wind."

"Then we have an equal chance to get away," replied Rose eagerly, "if she's no better off than we are." "Captain Tucu has a crew to help him patch up his sails and rigging," he interrupted, smiling. "We couldn't beat him at that."

"I don't believe it's the lugger after all," she said irrelevantly, shading her eyes. "It looks to me more like—like—" "—land?" he asked. "Yes, but not the mainland—an island." "Not your island where the submarine was wrecked?" "No," shuddering. "At least I hope not." "If it's an island, we ought to try to get to it. We'll start rigging up that jib. The wind's freshening, and it's blowing in the right direction." "Yes, we're drifting toward it. That's why we see it more distinctly. If it was the lugger it would drift as fast as we do." "That's right. It is nearer, and it must be land." They glanced into each other's eyes, hope dawning in them for the first time since the storm, giving a radiant expression to their features that was contagious. Dick spoke first. "It's land, Rose, and we'll reach it before Tucu can come back and find us. I told you that treasure was no longer a hoodoo. It's going to bring us good luck."

LOOKING AHEAD GEORGE S. BENSON President - Harding College State, Arkansas

Let's Review Education, or the lack of it, gets blamed for about all the world's ills. It is pretty generally agreed that the peoples of Earth need teaching, or perhaps re-teaching.

Some commentators crusade for penetrating study in narrow fields of learning while others whoop-it-up for wider browsing ranges. Both philosophies can be run to extremes. Over done, specialization gets people in ruts while versatility, gone wild, leads men's minds to wool-gathering.

What to Study Schooling actually does not help people much unless it makes better neighbors of them. It should, by all means, train them to engage in activities with other people, for the benefit of all.

George William Curtis once wrote: "While good men sit at home, not knowing that there's anything to be done, nor caring to know, half-persuaded that this republic is the contemptible rule of a mob and secretly longing for some splendid and vigorous despotism, remember that it is not a government mastered by ignorance; it is a government betrayed by intelligence."

Some men have deep learning in fields that do not embrace history, government or economics. Others have gained far-flung knowledge without sensing the duties of citizenship or any obligation toward other people.

Time Fades Facts The notion that a nation may be governed, not by a ruler but by the people themselves, was not new now in Mr. Curtis' time. Our own republic was hardly half as old as now when he began writing for "Harper's Monthly."

Students would not be helped much now by a smattering of mere arts. Neither is there a crying need for more specialization. Consolidating our recent scientific gains and preserving our freedom is our No. 1 problem.

Friendship—Three Thousand Miles Apart

Ever play chess? It's a great game! One of the strongest friendships I know of started with a game of chess—between Dad Hoskins, in our town, and a man named Dalton Barnes, in England.

They've never seen each other, never met. But for the past eight years they've been playing chess by mail together—Dad puzzling over Dalton's latest letter, while he sends a chart of his next move to England.

Dad always thinks best with a mellow glass of beer beside his chessboard. And the Englishman writes him that he does the same. "You know, it's almost as if we shared a glass of beer together, too!" says Dad contentedly.

From where I sit, you can talk about diplomacy and foreign policy, but it's often those little things—like a game of chess or a glass of beer—that can make for tolerance and understanding . . . between people of all nations . . . between neighbors here at home!

President—Harding College

Eat Cake

Today's acute housing shortage was in plain view ten years ago. Experts in the business of building and equipping homes were writing articles and making speeches back in the 1930's forecasting what they called the building boom of the 1940's. They supported their predictions with sound reasoning and leaders in many equipment lines arranged to meet the demand.

A quick look at census figures, years before Pearl Harbor, would have convinced almost anybody that an unusually big share (say 20%) of the U. S. population would reach an age to be married between 1940 and 1946. Patently, this would call for more places to live and, true to form under free enterprise, business men began getting ready quietly to serve this market, but war interfered.

Plans Not Executed

Wars always frustrate plans, and few were revised more in World War II than those of the building trades. Priorities on materials, general shortage of labor and the compelling urge for victory changed most things but the predicted need for more housing came right on schedule. It is even bigger than experts estimated ten years ago because war retarded building and accelerated marrying.

Plans made before the war for meeting this expected peak demand are still workable plans. If industry were free today as it was then, people who want homes would be getting them a great deal faster. I believe Herbert U. Nelson of the National Association of Real Estate Boards has proved that Washington bureaucracy is chiefly to blame for today's housing shortage.

Facts to Remember

It's an old story that America has housing a plenty, and it was always true until right lately. France, England and other European countries that have endured regulation of home building since World War I have been hit of housing meanwhile. Bureaucracy got a firm grip on American building during World War II and now hates to let go. shortage or no shortage.

The O.P.A. is the sorest burden on the toe of our progress. Here is an illustration: Manufacturers of six doors got caught behind increased manufacturing costs and asked O.P.A. for permission to raise prices 75¢ per door. It was refused. Result: No doors by mass production. Carpenters can build doors where they hang them, of course, at much loss of time and at several times normal cost.

Industry Is Ready

A similar man-made muddle built a bottleneck in window sash. There's almost no end to the roster of crippling rules in this one industry. Miles Colean, a thoroughly respected Washington economist, says that industries producing building materials are fully reconverted, full capacity restored. Still the most productive nation of history is handicapped and can't house itself. Why? A price-fixing agency, while proclaiming its loyalty to the people, has refused many small strategic upward revisions, thus halting production. Consumers do without things or pay amazing prices for makeshifts. It savors of the Marie Antoinette school of thought. On being informed that by reason of her extravagance her subjects had no bread, she said "Let them eat cake."

To enhance an impressive list of manufacturing "firsts," Chevrolet now engages in another pioneering venture as the first motor car manufacturer to sponsor a regular commercial television show. Admittedly an exploratory venture to evaluate the possibilities of television as an advertising medium, these broadcasts were the first employing live talent to be sponsored by any automobile producer. Four weekly shows were staged by Chevrolet and broadcast through the facilities of the American Broadcasting Company's television network. The shows were telecast at the Dumont Studios in New York for the three stations currently teamed in the ABC television network. Shown above is a scene from the second of the series, a half-hour program titled "Roads to Romance."

HOTELS for LIVESTOCK

The central livestock market is as American as the "hot dog." No other country has the like of it. European sellers and buyers haggle over individual animals. In South America most of the dealing is done right on the estancias, where the livestock is raised. But here in the leading livestock nation of the world, for 75 years central markets have played a big part in the job of moving meat toward dinner tables of the United States.

When a carload of livestock rolls off the prairies or out of the mountains into one of the 65 or more great central markets, the animals are "greeted" and "registered" at the unloading dock, much as travelers are received and registered in hotels. From there they are sent to their "rooms"—the pens assigned to the commission man to whom the owner has shipped his animals. There these hogs, cattle, calves and lambs are rested and given food and drink.

Just as hotels compete for guests, so these central markets compete with each other for the business of accommodating the 88 million head of livestock which come in each year. Thousands of livestock buyers and order buyers bid against each other and the sale is made to the highest bidder. With 26,000 meat packers and other commercial slaughterers active in livestock buying, it is easy to see that the American livestock marketing system is the most competitive in the world.

These "livestock hotels" are a separate branch of the livestock-meat industry. They are privately owned. Swift & Company does not own a single share of any stockyards company.

Thanksgiving

In this Thanksgiving month, the people of our nation—and of many other nations—owe a debt of gratitude to the ranchers and farmers of America. All through the war, in spite of its tremendous requirements, our people ate well. And in spite of sharing with the earth's hungry, our people are still eating well. Today, to be sure, not all the meat they would like to have... but plenty of nutritious food to keep them well and strong. That is because for long years millions of farm and ranch men, women and children have kept the food supply up, working harder than ever before, overcoming shortages of help and machinery and many other obstacles. Yes, Americans may well offer thanks this month to all those who produce our food.

FERTILITY OF RANGE BEEF CATTLE

by A. L. Baker and J. E. Queenberry
United States Department of Agriculture

Cows in the western ranch states drop from a 40 to a 70 percent calf crop with an average of 63 percent. This means that for every 100 cows the average rancher can expect to get only 63 calves.

However, the following recommendations, based on a study made, should aid the rancher in increasing his production:

1. Cows should be identified by proper markings so that shy breeders can be culled from the herd at an early age. Good producing cows may be kept until at least ten years of age without loss of fertility.

SPREAD

When visiting with livestock producers on farms or ranches, or at meetings, the subject of "spread" often comes up for discussion. Then I give them an explanation of the difference between the price they get for livestock and the price we meat packers receive for the meat we sell.

To me it is a source of continual surprise that the spread is not greater than it is. During my years of experience in the livestock-meat industry, here is what I have learned about spread. We at Swift & Company have been paying farmers and ranchers approximately 76¢ on the average, out of every dollar we receive from those to whom we sell, for all products we process and handle, including hides, glands, and all by-products. That leaves us 24¢ to cover the cost of processing and marketing.

Out of the 24¢ comes the cost of buying livestock and other agricultural products. The cost of preparation and refrigeration. The cost of loading them into cars and trucks. The cost of transporting them to our branch houses or to retailers. The cost of branch house operation and of selling and delivering the products to the retail dealers. In addition, we have taxes to pay; plus insurance and all the other necessary costs of doing business. When all these expenses have been paid, we make a profit, which over a period of years has averaged a fraction of a cent a pound on the 6 1/2 billion pounds of products we handle annually.

There is no other business in the country that does so much for so little.

F. M. Simpson

Agricultural Research Department

2. Cows that fail to produce calves in two successive years should be culled from the herd.
3. Where practical, it is advisable to test bulls for semen quality before breeding season in order to eliminate the partly sterile bulls.
4. There is an advantage in using bulls four years old or over, of proven breeding ability.
5. The establishment of small breeding pastures capable of maintaining herds of about 30 cows is recommended as a means of increasing the calf crop.
6. Even some larger ranches would do well to record to pasture breeding if they could thus obtain even the 6 percent raise in calf crop obtained in this U.S.D.A. study.

Saga Bill Sox

... to be a success at farming, you have to dig in.
... if you want to realize that castle in the air, you had better get down to earth first.

Things Are NOT Always as They Seem

The mechanical device pictured above shoots the ball marked A and at the same instant drops the ball marked B straight down. It certainly looks as if B will hit the ground first, since ball A has so much farther to go. But the fact is that they will both strike the ground at precisely the same instant.

In our business, too, things are not always as they seem. On September 1, 1946, the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture reported that in the entire country there were 350 million pounds of meat stocks in cold storage. That is a lot of pounds. But actually it is the lowest on record for that date... and compares with 625 million a year ago and a 631-million average for 1941-1945. Here in America we eat about 60 million pounds of meat a day, so the September 1 supply of meat in cold storage was barely enough to feed us for seven days.

By GRANTLAND RICE

IT IS my belief that after 1946, Army and Navy will fade out of the football picture, as far as winners are concerned.

Sure, they had all the best of it in 1944 and 1945. But 1946 will be different, as Navy already has found out and Army is finding out.

It must be admitted that Army and Navy had the breaks in the two war years of 1944 and 1945. But when the war ended, it was a new story. After 1946 every one knows Army and Navy won't have a chance against the inducements offered all over the map. Army and Navy can't match these lures.

By inducements I mean something more than scholarships. I mean direct pay, which may range from $5,000 to $10,000 a season, more or less. This is important to the poorer kids who seem to make the better football players.

Star football players no longer are going to schools where there is strict discipline and no financial help. They are an integral part of the United States—the cash comes first.

This applies to both coaches and players. Unfortunately, the world-wrecking war also tore a heavy gash into sportsmanship, the old idea of a "fair field and no favor, may the best man win."

Sportsmanship is now a word you find in the dictionary.

Football's Top Target

When you've piled up a long string of consecutive victories over a period of two and a half seasons, you know what you are in football.

You are the top target of the year, the one they all want to knock over, especially the one who will get there first with the blackjack or the club.

Week after week, they were all after Army. First it was Villanova, then Oklahoma, Cornell and Michigan. Then came Columbia, Duke, West-Virginia, and the crucial test with Notre Dame, Pennsylvania and the Navy clash will end the fray.

Most of the others run two, three and four deep. Army runs less than two deep. Notre Dame runs deeper than all the others, three and four deep.

But they still can play only 11 men at a time. This is something of a fallacy in this modern game, where they wear out quicker than they ever did in the old days. Maybe the pace is faster. Maybe they are not as rugged as they used to be. Who knows?

Army's Red Blaik, a fine coach and an old friend from many years, never thought he could go through this 1946 schedule unbeaten.

The Way of the Mob

(By Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Eddie Arcore)

All you who get the cheering And the plaudits from the mob, Who shrink because they bawl you Out upon some off-day job, Who scowl because they call you names

That no one likes to hear, Who keep the walkin' ringin' from The hoarse hoot to the cheer, Who build you up and knock you down,

From here to kingdom come, Remember as the game goes on— They never boo a bum.

I've heard them hiss Hans Wagner And I've heard them snarl at Cobb, I've heard them holler "Take him out,"

With Matty on the job, I've heard them curse when Ruth struck out—

Or Speaker missed a play, For 40 years I've heard them ride The heroes of their day.

I've heard their roaring welcome Switch to something worse than hum, But Eddie, Ted and Joe, get this— They never boo a bum.

Ted Williams could never hit his earlier stride after Labor Day.

A good point was made in suggesting that Ted was letting too many near strikes—balls an inch or so away from the plate—slip by through his unerring judgment of balls and strikes.

This could be true, since it is difficult to get your awing moving in the split fraction of a second needed in following a pitch that far.

Ted is a great swinger, but even the greatest need a little more time to get the bat under way with full power back of the motion.

A pitch two inches off the plate is just as easy to hit as one over the corner. But any way you look at it, Williams dropped a bundle of prestige since the slump overtook him back in early September. It carried right on to the end of the season, and the world series. The best sound particularly bitter in his ears, it is reported. Well, that's the way in sports—and in life.

Corner Shelf and Colorful Cookie Box

THERE is magic in the flowing curves of this bracket shelf. Place it at eye-level in a corner of a small room and you have a feeling that the corner has melted away and the walls pushed back to add space.

The shelf is ten inches deep and fifteen wide. It will hold a number of small things or you can make a wooden cookie box for it like the one shown here.

Pattern No. 201 gives an actual-size cutting guide and directions for making the corner bracket shelf, also directions and large diagrams for making the box and a stencil pattern for decorating it in these quiet cookie-baking "Proletarian" days. To get these three patterns in one, send 15c with name and address direct to:

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To revive blanket nap after laundering, hang the blanket up over the shower rod or towel rack nearest the bath tub. Fill tub with hot water. Nap will fluff up.

When melting honey that has crystallized, be sure to loosen the jar lid before you put the jar into the hot water. Tightly closed jars may burst.

Used orange nets make excellent dishcloths. When washed, thoroughly, rinsed and dried, they are soft, absorbent and scour well.

In lubricating locks: Take a discarded throat or nasal atomizer. Fill it with very light machine oil and spray the working parts lightly. Applied in this manner there is small likelihood of the oil gumming. While you have the side plate removed notice how the parts have been worn by use and wear.

If you must set a dish directly on the ice in the ice box, place a jar rubber underneath it. This will prevent its sliding.

Keep a record on paper of what happens when your child is sick. Such a record will be of great help to the doctor. On it write the child's temperature and the time it was taken, the number of times he vomited, and when body elimination took place.

Disaster fighters

Few Americans realize that the protection of thousands of lives and billions of dollars' worth of property rests in the hands of the peacetime Regular Army.

Army Engineers are constantly at work along our great rivers, building dams and levees, dredging channels and using the latest scientific methods to control flood waters. And when the rivers burst their bonds, those same Engineers are ready to battle night and day, raising sandbag barriers and rescuing flood victims.

Many of the nation's finest young men are joining the Regular Army, knowing that they will have an opportunity to work with the most modern equipment and do a constructive job, of utmost value to their country.

Woman's World Remnants, Old Clothes, Yield Goods for Youngsters' Coats

By Etta Haley

WHEN mothers look at clothing prices for their youngsters, I can well imagine that they see drastic things happening to their clothing budgets. How lucky then is the woman who can sew and make use of fine woolen remnants or grown-up clothing for coats, suits, jackets and skirts for the youngsters.

Some mothers feel that it makes too much of a dent in their finances to buy for the children, especially since they seem to sprout by leaps and bounds and soon outgrow their clothing. This is just another good reason for taking up sewing for them if you haven't done so already.

There are any number of ways in which home-sewn garments can be made so they are adjustable as the child outgrows them, and these features cannot often be found in ready-made garments unless they are of the more expensive variety.

The easiest patterns to adjust for length, for example, are those which have straight simple lines. There are no hard-to-manage belts which make letting out or down difficult. Another way in which these garments can be made to last longer is to make cuffs on coats and jackets that can help in adjusting the garment—as it is outgrown. Bands may be stitched down the front of the garment to be let out, also.

Recent Adult Garments To Fit Children

In making clothes for children from grown-ups' clothes, it's never a wise idea just to shorten them, and take in the seams. Children frequently do not look nice in garments handled like this and they are very conscious of their appearance and the remarks their friends make about their clothing.

Adult's woolen garments make . . .

The only way to make proper alterations is to rip the garment apart at the seams, then recut according to a pattern. Even this may not be sufficient to make the garments look nice, so it's wise to fit them just as you would in a garment for yourself and make the necessary changes so they will look as though they were actually made for the child.

Boy's garments should look neat and well tailored, and they should be smartly masculine no matter how young the boy is. Avoid feminine touches on them. Never make them look even slightly old as this will give them a rather grotesque appearance.

In making over mother's woolen coats or dresses for daughter, select only the appropriate materials. They should match the girl in coloring and be attractive to her skin texture. Dresses can be made youthful-looking for the girls with very youthful lingerie touches like pique or lace collars, pockets anduffed sleeves.

Attractive garments for children.

Good workmanship is essential in sewing for children as their garments are exposed to lots of hard-wear. They require frequent laundering or cleaning, and the stitching and other detail must be sturdy to withstand this type of wear.

Garments should be made as comfortable as possible so the children can be at ease in work and play. Another consideration is extremely important, especially in making garments for the younger child who is learning how to be independent by dressing himself.

Print for Trimming

Among the suits shown by Gunther is this very useful costume in navy blue lightweight wool combined with a navy and white silk print. The print lines the jacket and makes extra-buck cuffs. The blouse is high-necked, short-sleeved, and has a separate sash which swatches the hips. It is knotted at one side.

Place Buttons Where Youngster Can Use Them

Little girls may look very quaint in dresses that button at the back, but this means that mother will have to stop whatever she is doing in order to help with the dressing. If buttons are worked into the front of the garment that is easy to reach, as at the neck, or as in a princess style, little daughter can be relied on to finish her own dressing problem, thus leaving mother free for her own work, and also helping create a sense of independence in the little girl.

Zippers are again available, and they are excellent for children's clothing as they are easy to operate. Show the youngsters that they must be slipped up or down easily, or they will have too good a time with them and, perhaps, even put them out of commission.

Don't make buttons and button-holes too small, or the youngster will have difficulty with them. Buttons, snaps, and other fasteners, should at all times be large enough to fit into the child's hands easily so that they won't slip away as soon as he is about to fasten them.

Have the Right Tools

Successful home sewing calls for the right tools in the right place so that work can be done efficiently. Keep your tools in your sewing box, and don't borrow equipment from it and then forget to return it.

Have sharp cutting shears eight to nine inches long. Longer shears will make your cutting work easier. Medium scissors, about five to six inches long, are nice for shaping work and small scissors are nice for close work.

Pinking shears are thrifty if you make a lot of children's things and undergarments. They save work finishing seams.

Have an adequate supply of pins, for only by doing a lot of pinning can you do accurate work. Keep them in a box and return them to it after using. Don't leave them around for the youngsters.

There's a needle and thread for every kind of sewing. If you aren't quite sure, there's a center or store near your home where they will give you help on your particular problem.

Have an assortment of hooks and eyes and fasteners, thumbles and tape measures at your back and call. Bindings and beltings are a big help, as are tailor's chalk and elastic.

Fashion Forecast

Rounded toques are popular too in the millinery world. This type of hat looks like a rounded pincushion and may be made in many different fabrics.

It doesn't matter whether you wear your hair long or short this season, say the hairdressers, as long as your hairline is clear and well-defined. Use a brush to get that well-colored look.

Save your flowers for dressy evening hats, and make them as feminine and fluffy as you please.

Designers for women's apparel are very ingenious. You'll be seeing such things as umbrellas made with compact and coin compartments in the handles, and gloves with cuffs that have mirrors in them. That's making the job of grooming an easy one!

It Was Tried

Soon after V-E Day, Col. Edward D. Churchill, surgical consultant of the Allied Mediterranean forces, toured six German military hospital areas and reported his findings. The report is most significant in the light of efforts to make medicine the servant of politics in America. Comments on the report are here reprinted by permission of COLLIERS, the National Weekly.

"As we all know, American doctors' care of wounded in this war has been and continues phenomenal as regards its record-breaking percentages of cures and its development of new techniques and remedies. There was considerable expectation that the German doctors . . . would have some pretty phenomenal achievements of their own to report . . . but Colonel Churchill did not find them.

A Generation Behind

"His over-all conclusion . . . was that German handling of wounded was about 20 years behind the American procedure. Going into details, he reported that German army doctors as a rule just casually passed up badly wounded men on the assumption that they were going to die anyway, whereas our doctors fight to the last gasp for every wounded man's life, and frequently win. . . .

"As for professional pride in pulling off near-miracles of cure or amputation, such pride just was not in the bulk of German military physicians and surgeons. . . . They were victims of apathy and lack of ambition which would enrage a typical American doctor. This is a sad backslide from Germany's proud position as world leader in medicine and surgery in the pre-Hitler days.

How Did It Happen?

"Are there any lessons in it for us? It began to happen soon after Hitler saddled his brand of totalitarianism on Germany. It seems reasonable to conclude that it happened because Hitler saddled Nazi totalitarianism on Germany. . . . In Nazi philosophy, your race and politics matter far more than your brains and talents.

You might be a brilliant physician or surgeon or research scientist, but if you were a Jew or an anti-Nazi of any description, you had to get out of Germany if you could, . . . go to a concentration camp if you couldn't get out. Thus Hitler and his crew decimated German science. Their master race convictions, too, led logically to . . . the use, in some concentration camps, of humans of "inferior" breed as guinea pigs for . . . laboratory experiments.

Medicine vs. Politics

"Ruled by the politicians and browbeaten by Nazi gangsters, German medicine (on the strength of Colonel Churchill's findings, at any rate) withered and, in due time, the German armed forces paid, in . . . bigger death totals than they need have suffered." Here is the sound conclusion reached by Collier's, a conclusion in which America's best doctors concur:

"The lesson in the German experience seems clear enough. . . . There is no substitute for a free, bold and inquisitive medical profession or for generously financed and expertly staffed medical research, carried on year-in and year-out. It is devotedly to be hoped that the lesson of the German medical collapse will not be lost on us."

An Allegory

In the midst of a forest there was a shrewd mouse-trap manufacturer who turned out a dependable item. His was a home industry. Son Joe worked hard for long hours making steel springs by hand. Mother kept the books and wrote the letters. Dad did the assembly work and finishing. There were no sales problems. Customers already had beaten a path to his door—and formed a waiting line.

But there was beeping in the line. Deliveries were slow and service was bad. Finally one day, in a stack of third-class mail, Mom found an advertisement for spring-winding machines. It was very timely because Joe's work-bench was the bottle-neck. Nobody else could make springs and he was always rushed to keep up with Dad. So Dad bought Joe a spring-winding machine.

Industrial Ureast

Turning out a better trap than ever, and a lot more per day, business was fine. Prosperity came. Dad was flush, declared Saturday afternoons off, and raised pay all the way around. About the time the general good feeling was at its height, Joe married a cute little communistic viewpoint. Then it was that the rodent extermination industry started to undergo complete reorganization.

The little c.v. convinced Joe that he ought to have a half interest in the business, and there wasn't much Dad could do about it. After the 50-50 partnership was formed, the c.v. started telling Mom off right regularly, making quips about faked accounts, and gifts from buyers, to shock the E.T.C. Mom had to keep books with the c.v. looking over her shoulder, eating an apple.

Industrial Strife

At length the junior partner made bold to demand a spot on the payroll for the c.v., at Mom's pay with authority to watch Mom and keep her honest. That was the day the spring-winding machine broke down. Repairing it seemed quite useless to Dad, what with a shop full of headaches, padded payrolls, no profits, and all departments working at cross purposes. He'd just quit!

Retiring from active duty (but retaining an interest) Dad pulled out and took Mom on a fishing trip. New people had to be hired at top scale to operate the finishing department and run the office. Joe missed a few payments on the new spring-winding machine he'd bought on credit after junking the old one. Now nobody but little c.v. could think up a way out of the dilemma.

Such a Brilliance

Here was the solution c.v. worked out: Raise wages again, all along the line, and boost the price of traps. Even Joe favored it, and he was general manager now. It was done. The very next buyer showed an unpleasant reaction. Word drifted back along the line of buyers which melted down to a third of its average length. Joe ran after the customers but didn't catch many.

That was Friday. Early Monday morning a man of few words came in a truck with some unpaid installment notes. He took the spring-winding machine away, leaving the whole crew wondering where to go to look for a job. Some say the machine was offered to Dad, cheap, but he was not interested. By this time, old crafty Dad was busy with research on an odorless electronic, destined, in due time, to put mouse-traps off the market entirely.
