BOY SCOUTS HOLD DISTRICT MEETING

The White Mountain District Committee, Boy Scouts of America, held its Annual District Meeting at the Union High School in Capitán, N. M. Twenty-four men, representing eight out of the ten units in the district, were present. E. G. Hawkins, Captain, was elected District Chairman for 1947 and John Humbert, Captain, was elected Vice Chairman. The group attended a turkey dinner at Pearly Cafe before the meeting. The meeting opened with songs by the group and Troop No. 55 of Capitán conducted a flag ceremony. Annual reports of the District Operating Committee Heads were presented by Ben Roberts, Corona, L. Z. Manire, Carrizozo, Joe Morgan, Carrizozo, E. L. Samons, Mesalero and E. W. White, Ft. Stanton. According to the reports the district had grown from five units to ten and from 97 Scouts to 229 Scouts this year. The district had raised money toward the Eastern New Mexico Area Council budget from 475 dollars last year to $1,083.40 this year.

Mr. Hawkins appointed as heads of the operating committees for the coming year E. A. Knudsen, Capitán, Claude Crane, Buidoso, T. E. Kelley, Carrizozo, W. A. Goertlich, Mesalero, Ben Roberts, Corona and Dr. J. P. Turner, Carrizozo. Joe Morgan, Carrizozo, was appointed as District Commissioner, pending approval of the Executive Board of the Council. Field Robinson, Roswell, inspired the group with stories of his Scoutmastering days. Mr. Robinson told the men that if their combined efforts affected the lives of one boy, all their combined time, effort and money was well spent. Mr. Hawkins complimented the Scoutmasters and Cubmasters on their fine work for the year and urged them to continue their efforts in Citizenship Training and Character Building. Field Scout Executive Joe Ben Hunsaker reported to the meeting on his trip to the Regional Conference in Lubbock this month. Mr. Hunsaker gave the men a "Bill of Rights" for the post war boy.

Scouts Romero, Padilla, Chavez, Ferguson, Dale, and Hickman of Troop No. 55, Capitán, presented two short skits, "Cubbing Leads to Scout-ing." The skit included a very good Cub Induction Ceremony into a Patrol. The next meeting of the Committee will be held in Carrizozo, January 26, 1947. Chairman Hawkins predicted a very promising outlook for Scouting in the White Mountain District for 1947.

Livestock Situation

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards Company December 10, 1946—Cattle receipts at the Los Angeles yards this week dropped off moderately, compared with the preceding week. There was some enlargement in the movement through the 12 leading market centers but the week's total at these points was well below corresponding week a year ago. Trade was mildly irregular, beef steers and heifers generally reflecting little change in values while cows, recently under bearish pressure, reversed their trend, finishing substantially higher than a week earlier. Virtually all grades of cows, from canners up to good beef descriptions, advanced 50c to $1.00 under influence of a strong, active demand. Calves also found a broader outlet at strong to 50c higher prices, medium to choice kinds selling freely at $16 to $18. Bulls were fully steady, slight strength developing on some of the better kinds. A few heat bulls sold at $16 to $17.50, while bulk of medium to good bolognas sold at $13 to $15. Little change featured the steer and feeder deal.

Offerings carried a fairly good showing of medium and good steers. A few loads touched $23.25, with numerous sales ranging $20 to $23. A sprinkling of medium sorts went at 17.50 to 19.50, with commoner kinds down to $16, and below. Quite a few fed heifers sold at $18.50 to $19.50 with one load reaching $19.75 and odd head up to $21. A few best cows sold at $15.50 to $18 with bulk of medium to good cows moving at $12.50 to $15.50. Cutter to medium cows bulked at $9.50 to $12 with canners rising to an $8 to 9.50, a few shells down to $7.50 and below.

Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor
Dear friends all, Christmas is coming our way rapidly. Are we really ready to observe it in the spirit of neighborly Good-Will and Brotherly Love?

A church that does not promote these two attitudes is not a Christian Church.

Please give the Churches of our town a break this year by exposing your life to the swell-tide of Christian love that is on the in-flew at this season. All good church people will be talking, singing and working to this end until the Bethlehem Star shines again. To me the spiritual climate will be Sunday morning Dec. 22nd. There will be a program for all, Sunday night. Same date. Don't be afraid. God's love continues. You are always welcome. We are lonesome without you. Come all the Sundays of the old year and then some more. S. S. at 10 and Worship Service at 11. Everybody welcome.

waters, a sizeable increase in total supplies at 12 major points resulting in a slow and sharply lower trade. Desires aggregated $1 or more with late sales ranging $25.50 down. A few choice grain fed early in the week sold at $27.25 to $27.50 but similar kinds were lacking in late rounds when the market was weakest. Good sows held at $22 to $23 and feeder pigs at $25 to $26.50 indicated a lower drift.

With very few sheep or lambs offered, the market was of a nominal character. Good to choice lambs were quotable to around $22.

"GIFTS FOR YANKS WHO GAVE"

Lincoln County people, together with those of all other communities, are again requested to supply Christmas gifts to the thousands of men and women who are still confined in hospitals as the result of war. Although the shooting is finished, to them the war is not over, and in fact will never end as long as they suffer from wounds and disease. To them the war goes on until they are well and back in normal civilian life.

The American Legion and Auxiliaries are sponsoring the drive for these gifts for hospitalized veterans. Locally, gift boxes will be made up from articles donated. One does not have to be able to donate an entire gift box, all packed and ready for delivery. Individual articles are acceptable and will be made up into gift packages by local workers.

Suggestions for gifts for men include the following: Pin and pencil sets, playing cards, cigarettes, cigarette lighters, billfolds, box cameras, toilet kits, fishing tackle, cigarette cases, writing kits, pipes, leather belts, watch straps, bed lamps, tie pen sets, books, tennis balls, key cases, and many other useful articles. No foods, liquor or safety razor blades are acceptable.

Anyone wishing to donate any of the above-mentioned articles or other suitable articles, is asked to leave them in receptacles which will be found in stores in Carrizozo and Capitán. Those wishing to give money, with which to purchase gifts, should leave it at the same stores. Wrapping and delivery will be taken care of by the Legion Auxillary.

It is important that these gifts all be submitted within the next week or two, if packages are to be wrapped and delivered before Christmas.

Open Diplomacy, Take It Away

The "open conventions openly arrived at" idea begins to look like a mistake. The old style behind-the-door diplomacy may have seemed bad, but it sounded better.

Monkey wrenches weren't half as alarming when they were invisible.

The world thought that if it could make diplomats do their stuff out in the open it would get somewhere, but the goings on at all the peace sessions since have proved double-talk was less disturbing when it wasn't put through amplifiers.

The only difference is that now you get the plots, suspicions and hard feelings in technicolor and the words by international hook-up, all of which leave nothing to illusion. Kicks hope in the pants and makes peace seem like something that can only be attained by television.

Mankind is speaking openly. And he doesn't sound good.

The views of the diplomats are now sprayed into homes everywhere and they are leaving the occupants more troubled and befuddled than if they had been given nothing but sketchy transcripts.

In the so-called days of dark diplomacy we got a weekly summary of what the peacemakers were saying and thinking. It never scared the public as much as play-by-play broadcasts.

There seems to be just as much dirty work at the crossroads as ever. And it is much more disturbing with the added super production and sound effects. We used to be alarmed by occasional rumors. Now we are made doubly apprehensive through being able to see and hear the villains as they still pursue her.

Everything said and done by the United Nations is now on the up and up, and the net result is to indicate that the greatest menace to world peace is speechmaking with no cuts. The last world war saw a peace brought about in fewer languages and no radio assistance. Our impression is that if there had been microphones in those days, the orators would still have been talking.

Open diplomacy is all right if it is not so open that it gets confused with the commercials, the soap operas and the radio auditions.

The idea of having all the cards on the table is swell. But it might be just as well if the interludes when the boys play gin rummy were not broadcast.

The best thing that could happen to all bodies at work on peace would be a general loss of voice by the delegates, coupled with a realization that a better world cannot be developed exclusively through the gas works.

SAME OLD DESIGNS The New York horse show, renamed for the first time since Paul Harvey, drew tremendous crowds. We will say this about horses: They come through without strikes, the models do not change every season and you always know there is no fudge on them on which you can light a cigar.

Another Freedom Gone

Life is getting to be pretty circumscribed. A man can't even call a rattlesnake his own. Ralph Butler, a New York man, had a six foot rattler that was his closest friend and pet. He kept it in his apartment, where he found it quite companionable and, in many ways, far ahead of humans he knew. But there were complaints. And a court has taken the viper away.

We sympathize with Mr. Butler. Personally, we wouldn't want a rattler within 10 miles of us, although they often get much closer. But if a man cottons to them and finds they can be trusted, is it fair to part them? Is it fair to the man? Is it fair to the rattler?

We pause for a reply. Not getting any, we hold that it is pretty tough to force Butler to go out and find his rattlesnake in politics and social life like the rest of us.

Maybe the drop in cotton prices is due to the fact so much of it is now coming out of the automobile upholstery.

"One thousand beauty shop workers called strike." News item. Now for a demonstration of whether anything at all can stop a woman bound for a facial from crossing a picket line. Now a strike of workers in the coat-making industry is threatened. Anything to make it a little tougher on the kitchen.

WITH so many rumors and so many reports concerning salaries ranging from $1,000 to $12,000 for college football players, one begins to wonder what can be done about it.

It has been impossible to get any set facts, since alumni and outside interests are largely responsible for most of the deals and arrangements, and all you run into is quick and often bitter denials. But a Grantland Rice good part of the salary scandal is undoubtedly true.

We put the problem up to one of the ablest and best college presidents, who also has been badly worried over the situation.

"In the first place," he said, "those controlling the rules of college amateurism say no athletes can be paid. But, in permitting scholarships, they violate their own rules, since scholarships are worth from $500 to $1,000.

"I believe that a football player is entitled to a scholarship. I also believe he is entitled to a job that will help to pay his expenses."

"I am completely against any other form of pay for play. If a football player is paid as much as $15 a month for expenses you have not only professionalism but the opening wedge to a professional scandal."

Difficult to Control "Don't you think," I asked, "that college presidents should be responsible for the enforcement of amateur football? They must or should know what is going on."

"Where so many financial arrangements are made by alumni and other outside parties away from the campus, how can the college president know?" he asked. "But at least can be held responsible for seeing that his players are bona fide students who attend proper classes and keep up in their work. If we are given proper rules and regulations to enforce we are in much better shape to meet the situation which undoubtedly is getting out of hand in many places."

I have seen ads in leading newspapers asking for college alumni to subscribe to football funds.

Sectional Strife One of the main reasons the Big Nine has voted to play in the Rose Bowl game is to keep that $100,000 fund from going to southern teams, where, as I was told, "they take this money and then raid the North and East. We'll stop that. Also, we are against teams from the West and North playing southern teams."

This would mean that the South would have to depend on the Cotton Bowl (possibly), the Sugar Bowl and the Orange Bowl, where only the Sugar Bowl can approach the Rose Bowl reward.

The best solution seems to be the Ivy league—which in the main plays only in its own circuit. Yet here, too, close observation reveals certain mutualisms.

The Big Nine and the Southwest hold most of their schedules among themselves. So does the Far West. The South doesn't go away from its borders too often.

Be Prepared Against Hog Cholera Outbreak

The ideal time to vaccinate young pigs for cholera is about two weeks after they have been weaned. There is no "panacea" for hog cholera, once it strikes. The solution is preventive vaccination before an outbreak occurs.

Hog cholera still causes an average annual loss of about 30 million dollars in the United States. Two million dollars, above what is now spent, for hog cholera virus and anti-hog cholera serum would wipe out this loss, if followed by approved methods of sanitation.

It has been thoroughly demonstrated that the proper inoculation of healthy swine with potent hog cholera virus and anti-hog cholera serum will result in a relatively solid and lasting immunity. This is the so-called double treatment—injection of serum in one place, and the virus in another.

Because between 50 and 60 pigs can be vaccinated after weaning age, for the value of one market hog, and as cholera can wipe out an unvaccinated herd over night, no hog raiser can afford to let his herd remain unvaccinated.

KNOW YOUR BREED Southdowns

Southdown ram, good producer of wool and meat.

Southdown sheep are an ideal mutton breed, possessing the ideal proportions and meat of finest texture. They are noted for their fatening qualities, becoming well finished at an early age and at a weight of between 60 and 70 pounds.

They are one of the oldest known breeds, hence have long been established in type. The Southdown often are crossed with other breeds to produce superior lamb carcasses.

Good type mature rams in breeding condition weigh from 155 to 220 pounds and ewes from 135 to 160 pounds.

Southdowns shear from five to eight pounds from a 12 months' wool growth.

Healthy Calves Will Grow to Good Cows

Eight cardinal points to practice in order to bring calves along so that they may develop into good milkers are given by the University of Wisconsin. These sound measures are:

Get rid of germs. Keep germs out of calf's body. Keep calf's resistance high. Clean calf pens every day. Keep feeding utensils clean. Provide fresh air, but no drafts. Disinfect navel soon after birth. Provide nutritious rations daily.

Elimination of Winter Smut in Seed Barley

A large part of barley smut can be eliminated in the 1947 crop by treating the barley seed used for planting this fall, says C. A. Helm, Missouri college of agriculture. Covered smut and black looses smut can be eliminated by seed treatment. The brown looses smut cannot be controlled. Seed may be treated with formalin, copper carbonate or cresol. By eliminating two of the three smuts, losses will be cut.

Water Winchell

Tales of the Town

They were a couple of wild kids, and their marriage was made in heaven—like lightning. It happened over night. . . . Blase Broadway was even stunned by the news. Like impetuous kids they didn't plan very far in advance, and when it came time to locate an apartment, they found themselves out in the cold.

Imposing on the well wishes of friends, they drifted from one family to another. . . . To bystanders it looked like the marriage would wind up on the rocks of Reno. . . . Then a strange thing happened. Her parents, who had disowned her when she wed the guy, suffered a change of hard heart. . . . "Come and live with us," pleaded her mother. Her father still hated the new son-in-law but allowed him to move in. . . . Well, the marriage is OK now, and pretty soon they expect to have an apartment all their own. . . . Seems her mother and father fought nightly over the new son-in-law, and now mom is Reno-bound!

They were both names on Broadway. . . . Then they drifted into other fields. . . . But he was so busy with his New York site spot—and she with her magazine articles—that they began to see less and less of each other. . . . Came the inevitable. They split. . . . Didn't see each other for years. . . . Only recently he heard from her. . . . She was suing him and demanding a sizeable hunk of cash. . . . His hot spot, however, is on the rocks. He is flat broke, and he told her so. . . . New look what happens. Instead of collecting alimony, she is so touched by his pitiful plight that she's sending him a fistful of folding money each week to keep the sheriff from his door.

She is a high-salaried buyer for a department store. Been there for years. Well liked. . . . Came a strike, and all the sales help walked out. . . . The boss asked her if she would pinch-hit as a salesgirl until the strike was settled. . . . As a personal favor she acquiesced. . . . Three days later she walked into the office with swollen eyes that told of sleepless nights. "I'm resigning," she said. "But look," argued the boss, "you've been with us for years; we've paid you well. Certainly you can stick with us through this trouble." . . . "I want to," came the tearful reply, "but for three nights I've been locked out of my home. My husband is a union official, and he refuses to sleep under the same roof with a strike-breaker!"

The town's booking agents are guffawing over this. . . . A much disliked colleague is currently being sued because he borrowed several hundreds from a young assistant, got the guy fired and then refused to pay. . . . Came a letter from the lawyer the other day, and the booking agent furiously wrote back: "I dare you to take me to court over the $40 bucks I owe George. You haven't any proof." . . . And then the chump signed his name! . . . Kheh!kheh!

Although the President has no intention of running again, he will not officially announce it until the final moments, if at all. Because "he wants the final say" on the ticket. He will oppose Wallace for president and James Roosevelt at vice-pres, according to intimates. . . . Political observers say Eleanor Roosevelt is the most popular and respected U. S. delegate to the U. N. . . . 20 million white-shirts, they say, will be released before the Yuletide holidays. . . . Statistics show that three-quarters of all surplus materials being offered do not exist as presented. Mostly all conversion. . . . The best golfers in the land rate Bing Crosby as a three-handicap man. Walt'll Bob Hope reads that!

Stage Entrances: Burlesque will celebrate its 54th anniversary by having a poll to determine the 10 best comics in burlesk. The winner will be honored with a gold party-ness. . . . Russell Patterson (the illustrator) and Doug Heris are looking for a beautiful Negro girl to "enter in the 1947 Miss America beauty contest." . . . Ames 'n' Andy call the depression the good old days when there was only a shortage of money. . . . Something to recommend if you're in Miami Beach or nearby: The Community Concert series.

Footlights and Spotlights: A Philly newspaper took a street poll. It learned that three out of four queried passersby were on some sort of buyers' strike. . . . The U. S. treasury is out to clip the wings of B-way angels & their income tax halos aren't on straight. . . . Several of the Broadway "Coney" spots have taken a beating. They may shave their prices on most machines. . . . Political experts claim the GOP has come back to life. Or it may be the Reps just look alive, when compared with the Demays.

What Unionism Means?

Let's try to look at the labor management scene from a longer view than appears in each of these recurrent crises.

What is the essential and ultimate aim of unionism? It is, we believe, not merely economic, but spiritual. It involves the universal desire for human dignity. It isn't dollars alone, or bread alone. It is part and parcel of the long crusade which dethroned the tyrant kings and created democracy.

Through unionization, the industrial worker has achieved economic improvement.

He has changed bosses. But has he gained the self-respect to which he aspires? He has merely substituted the union boss for the factory boss.

In this struggle, though he suspects that he has been cheated of his fundamental desire, though he realizes increasingly that he has traded one master for another, he is not yet ready to withdraw his loyalties from a cause which promised to achieve his need for both economic progress and human dignity.

New union legislation to be sound, should not seek to curb unionism, but to support it and to purge it of the autocrats who have perverted its aims.

FINANCING BUSINESS IS BANK BUSINESS.

Banks long have been the principal source of helpfulness, inspiration and credit to small business. For example, in the last full pre-war year, tabulation of loans by 5,000 banks (only one-third of the country's banks), totaled 24 million loans to business—a total of 39 billion dollars and an average of $1700 per loan.

Lending to small business is truly a big business, and one that banks are best equipped to handle. Today, and in the months and years ahead, when the efforts of small business will be so important in getting our economic machine back on the track, we pledge ourselves to give every possible assistance and to make every possible loan to local business concerns. Come in and talk over your problems with us.

SPORT NEWS

By Arthur Holguin

The fifth game of the season was played at Carrizozo on Dec. 6, against Alamogordo.

The Alamogordo boys, were somewhat bigger than our boys, especially in height, but that didn't seem to matter, because we won the game by a score of 41 to 32.

The Carrizozo boys played very good ball that night, and everybody was satisfied.

One of the Coach's wishes was fulfilled that night, of having three high point men instead of one. G. W. Chapman made 12 points, Bill Gallacher 9, and Lorenzo Morales 8. The rest were distributed among the other players.

Alamo's usual high point man, No. 25, Lee, was held scoreless, so you can see that the local boys were playing ball.

The game was played in the absence of our Coach Mr. Philip Heick (he is now a proud papa of a baby girl) Mr. Omer Spurlock, Principal, supervised the team during the absence of our Coach.

After the game was over, Mr. Heick was notified of the results by phone which made him very happy indeed, now he had a baby girl, and the first game won.

Curious Japanese Query Red Cross Girl About Women of America

How curious are Japanese women about American women?

A Red Cross worker on the island of Kyushu said these are the questions Japanese women most often ask her:

Do all American women wear slacks?

Do you carry your baby on your back?

Are all American women able to drive jeeps?

How do you like Hollywood?

Have you ever been in the movies?

Do you wear two-piece bathing suits?

Do you have your hair set twice a week?

Do you collect match box covers?

Another point of curiosity, the Red Cross worker said, is size.

"The Japanese girls slide up to me and measure their heights against mine by sweeping motions of their hands. They want to see if I were as tall as they thought, or if they were short."

Rural Areas Most Affected By Shortage of Teachers

"RED" SKELTON, radio comedian, recently remarked that he now knows that the reason his grade school teacher looked that way was because she was just hungry. While this may not be literally true, the recent report of Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching bears out the statement of the radio entertainer in that it describes the school teachers of the country as generally "the forgotten" people whose ability to carry on irrespective of work load, living costs and other worrisome factors is taken for granted.

The report asserts that one of the serious defects in the public education system is the apparent country-wide neglect of "the central figure in the educational process—the teacher."

There is no denying that the serious shortage of school teachers in the nation today is hampering and lowering educational standards in our public school system. According to Dr. Frank Hubbard, director of research of National Education Association in Washington, there was a shortage of approximately 109,000 qualified school teachers last year and the shortage for the ensuing year will be approximately the same number.

This shortage is revealed by the number of emergency certificates for teaching which have been granted. Such temporary paper means that the bearer is not qualified for a regular certificate, measured by the standards of the state.

Shifts of Population

Shortages of school teachers are worst in those states where influx of wartime population and extremely high birth rates have brought about tremendous population increases. According to Dr. Hubbard, this migration of population has moved toward the "rim" of the country to the west and east coasts, to Louisiana and the Great Lakes regions, and hence the school teacher shortage is worse in these sections, particularly in California. California educators declare they need 4,000 new teachers each year for the next 10 years to meet their educational needs.

Dr. Hubbard declares the causes underlying this shortage in qualified teachers are cumulative over the years and conditions are worse in small towns and rural areas than in the larger cities.

Teachers migrate from the smaller schools and smaller communities to larger schools and larger communities, drawn by more attractive salaries and better living conditions and more economic opportunities. And so rural schools drawing upon unqualified teachers to fill the gaps, have considerably lower standards today than in prewar years.

Higher Pay, More Prestige

Immediate and necessary remedies to cure the shortage and to prevent a further breakdown in educational standards, according to Dr. Hubbard, include:

1. Immediate steps to make salaries attractive enough to prevent further losses of competent teachers. This is coming gradually with about a 30 per cent increase in school teachers' salaries since 1941;
2. Make salaries decent enough to attract young people into the teaching profession and to prevent them from going into other lines of work to earn a decent living;
3. Streamlining of teacher educational institutions to make life and study in these institutions more attractive to students;
4. A program of recruitment in high schools and colleges to prove to newcomers there are real opportunities in the teaching profession;
5. A broad and long-range program of raising the general prestige of the teaching profession, particularly in the matter of public thinking toward school teachers;
6. Eliminate many subordinate problems such as housing, poor school construction, inadequate school equipment and facilities and overclass classes.

The teacher shortage in rural schools is alarming to educators and an attempt was made during the 75th congress to provide for federal appropriations to assist local communities to provide better salaries. The measure failed passage, however, largely due to opposition to "federal control" which might follow use of federal money. City schools are feeling the shortage only in specialized lines and enrollment in city schools likely will be checked the coming year with population moving to the suburbs and rural areas.

MORE DANGER FOR THE HUNTED . . . A radically new type shot-shell with an expanding cup wad that completely seals the entire force of the powder behind the shot pellets has been introduced for limited use by hunters for the first time. Upper left shows leakage of old type. Upper right, the new type shows no leakage. These photos were made at 1000 yards—1000ths of a second. Center, shows the new expanding wad preceded by filler wads dropping away as the short charge heads for target. Lower photo shows how the speed pictures were taken.

FDR BRITISH MEMORIAL . . . A model in clay of the late President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the work of St. William Reid, to be model of memorial to be placed in Grosvenor Square, London.

PLAN ATOMIC EDUCATION . . . Prof. Albert Einstein and seven other leading scientists are pictured as they met to formulate a joint appeal for public subscription of one billion dollars to finance educational research on the control implications of atomic energy. Left to right: Albert E. A. S. Wray, Professor Einstein and Song Hoosh, from right: L. R. Howard, Hans A. Bethe, T. E. Hogness and P. M. S. Debye. Details were worked out by the group to promote atomic energy.

FIVE-GOAL MAN . . . Certain traditions were shattered as Japan adopted democratic forms, but the tradition of polo dress seems to continue indicated by the attire worn by the modern world, as shown by this polo player at Tokyo.

Washington MERRY GO ROUND
DREW REASON

MORE DUPLICATION

WASHINGTON.—President Truman is a sincere, hard-plugging advocate of unified armed services, but he should persuade his army to obey the policy of its commander-in-chief.

At present the army is building a special wing to Walter Reed hospital at 12th and Dahlia streets in Washington which will exactly duplicate the navy's.

This wing is to take care of the President of the United States. Simultaneously, the navy also has a special wing at its Bethesda Naval hospital reserved for the President. It is all set to take care of him at any time. However, medical officers have changed in the White House and a navy doctor isn't in command any more. The army now runs the show.

Roosevelt, always partial to the navy, appointed Adm. Ross McIntire White House physician. But Truman, who served in the army, selected Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham as White House physician.

And of course an army doctor does not like to practice in a naval hospital. Therefore the army medical corps, wanting to avoid the humbug of sending the President to a naval hospital, authorized a new wing to the Walter Reed Army hospital. Thus, at the expense of thousands of feet of scarce lumber, tons of strategic metal and several thousand bricks, the special wing for the President is being built.

U. S. VS. U.S.S.R. DEMOCRACY

Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes has been telling the following story about the difference between democracy in Russia and the United States.

"An American soldier," he relates, "was talking to a Russian soldier in Berlin. The American said that in his country, he could go to Washington without a permit, get in to see the President and tell him that he doesn't like American foreign policy. 'That's democracy,' said the G.I."

"That's nothing," the Russian soldier replied. "In my country I can go to Moscow, knock on the door of the Kremlin, walk in, wait my turn, see Stalin, bang on the desk and say, 'Mr. Stalin, I don't like Truman's foreign policy either!' And nothing would happen to me. That's real democracy."

SUPPRESSED REPORT

While President Truman and other high government officials continue their enthusiastic support of the new Philippine government of President Roxas, there remain locked in the files of the White House and Attorney Gen. Tom Clark two copies of a report which, if made public, has explosive power nearly as great as that of the suppressed Rogge report.

The Philippine report was written by a special investigator sent to Manila last winter to determine what action should be taken against islanders who had collaborated with Jap occupation authorities. Inside fact is it pins guilt on nearly all the leaders of the present Philippine administration. Documentary evidence of collaborationist records of a large part of the present senate, cabinet and President Roxas, himself is included.

The charges include such criminal acts as aiding the Japs to wipe out patriot guerrillas, conspiring to seize food from famished Filipinos for use by the Jap armies, in addition to the declaration of war against the United States in 1944.

Although the vast majority of the Filipinos hated and resisted the Japs, corruption spread through the top layers of political and industrial leaders. Result was that the justice department investigators recommended that the most important collaborationist clique be tried not in the Philippines, where it would be difficult to find a native court completely free of bias, but in San Francisco.

Reason this recommendation was never acted upon, officials say, was largely Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

UNDER THE DOME

Speaker Sam Rayburn doesn't want the job of minority leader. . . . Southern congressmen are not enthusiastic over continuing the leadership of Massachusetts' John McCormack and they have the votes to put him in or out. . . . One fixture in the capitol regardless of political turnover will be the Rev. James Shea Montgomery, the house chaplain. Appointed by the Republicans in 1921, he was continued by the Democrats.

MERRY GO ROUND

All cabinet members are strengthening their legal staffs, knowing they face the most exhaustive series of congressional investigations in the last 20 years. . . . Retiring Speaker Sam Rayburn tells friends that he will serve in the house only one more term. Sam has been a congressional fixture for 26 years, now wants to retire. . . . Nine members of the new senate are former newspaper men and publishers; three are former teachers. Thirty-four senators are lawyers, the largest group.

DOAN'S PILLS

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN

Outside, the sidewalks were damp and slippery. It was late February. The sky was blurred with an approaching storm. McCale walked up Stuart street slowly, stopping to buy an early morning paper at the corner.

He'd just had some mid-morning coffee with a couple of erstwhile private "eyes" and they'd told him in great detail of how Miss Adelaide Bigelow, of the Bigelows, had been traipsing from office to office for the "right" detective. Just what she needed a detective for, they didn't know, but it looked promising.

To McCale it looked like hokum; besides, he wasn't interested. He did not, at the moment, realize that the first pebble had started to roll, that even then he was being gently prodded into the relentless avalanche of a big case. He stopped for cigarettes at a drug store and stood at the counter idly turning the pages of the newspaper.

B-23s were at home over the Jap mainland, and the American fleet was licking Jap shipping where it hurt. There was a complete blackout planned for the coming weekend. On page ten, Mrs. Atkinson Keye, socialite, was off to Reno again. Business as usual. A Mrs. Mulligan of Roxbury had given birth to her twelfth child. And, wait a minute, under a misty photograph of a very debby deb, the caption: "Lydia Dentice of Marlborough street and Magnolia, one of the bride's attendants at the wedding next Saturday of Veronica Perkins Bigelow to Curtin Vallancourt."

So that's all it was. A society wedding. He laughed soundlessly as he thought of Leach and Garrity making a big story over some old blue-blood who was, no doubt, looking for a couple of dicks presentable enough to mingle with a crowd of gilt-edged guests, while they kept a sharp eye on the wedding presents. He did not have to be much of a sleuth to figure that one out. He chuckled at the mental picture of either of his so-called pals straining to look "to the manner born" in such a situation.

How McCale Became a Private Detective
As he folded the paper, his eye caught a word or two in the gossip column, "After Dark." It read: "At the Latin Quarter last night Curt Vallancourt, the handsome lad who is to middle-aid it with Veronica Bigelow next week, waited in vain for her to appear. He ended his vigil by lapping up Zombies with Shari Lynn, the "torchy" singer from the floor show. We didn't know they knew each other."

McCale frowned at the last allusion. Too bad these keyhole lads had to spice everything up so. McCale's office and living quarters combined were on St. James street, a bit far up town for that sort of thing. They were in a block of old, brownstone houses, the last that remained in that vicinity. Here, while they lasted anyway, McCale was able to cling to the illusion that he was a cut above the average detective. He admitted that it was probably psychological—a complex with him. His background, surely, was worse than most. Born in the scummiest part of Chicago, he had been brought up among thieves and mobsters. At fourteen, he knew all the answers. To himself, he often admitted that he had a criminal turn of mind, but some peculiar twist had saved him from putting it into practice. It may have been the interest glimmer or craving for something finer than the obviously brief splash made by the racketeer, on top today, shot full of holes tomorrow. But at sixteen he went into the world to find out if there was any good in it. Somehow he discovered that he had a love for books and a real aptitude for learning. He worked his way through a Midwestern college. He took summer courses here, there, and wherever he heard of something that might interest him. And he was interested in many things.

He woke one morning knowing that detection would be his career. Then he took a course in criminology at a famous university, sat in at lectures at police colleges, talked himself into a job with a run-down detective agency. After that, he had set himself up as a private investigator. Cynical over police methods as he found them in practice, sick to death of the strike-breaking jobs, the divorce work, the undercover bribery, the questionable ethics of many of the men masquerading as honest investigators, it was the only thing for him to do. Only a few clients had come his way. But it was worth it.

whole face in a most disarming way. The dominant feature of the complete picture of Duke McCale seemed to be a nerveless quiet, but often there would come a fine Italian-like gesture, fleet as an arrow, that bespoke the coiled guarded energy of a coiled spring.

He was nearly at his own doorstep when he noticed it. An antique limousine, broad in the beam and high in the tonneau, was drawn to the curb before his door.

McCale opened the waiting-room door and stepped inside. The room was empty. The faded carpet and real leather chairs stared at him blankly. The wine velvet draperies were pulled back to let in what daylight there was. There were fresh yellow flowers in a squat white bowl on his secretary's desk, but she wasn't there.

He was thinking that it looked very quiet, very nice, not like a detective's waiting room at all, when Ann Marriot came in. She closed the door of the inner office, giving him a warning look.

Ann Marriot was the type of girl you might pass by at a first meeting, but when you know her better,

"Miss Bigelow?" His sharp eyes took her in at a glance. You became aware of her attractiveness. Her features were nice—gray eyes set far apart; a straight, but not too small nose, and a good-sized mouth. She ran to intelligence and tweeds and her ash-blond hair always imparted the fragrance of carnations. McCale caught a whiff of it now, as she handed him an engraved calling card.

It read: Adelaide Perkins Bigelow.

Wealthy Old Lady Appears Troubled

"Miss Bigelow is waiting in your office," said Ann.

"Why in there?" McCale asked, lowering his voice.

"Well," she answered, flushing slightly, "it's nice in there. There's a fire in the grate and the big chair and books and things."

"Ah, I see. You are duly impressed by the royal presence."

"Not at all," she rather snapped. "She's quite nice. Did it occur to you I might want to impress her?"

McCale smiled. "Bless you, my child," he said as he went in.

There was a fire burning briskly in the fireplace, throwing light and shadow on the simple decorations—the big chair with its accompanying side table, well-filled bookcases lining the walls. The lamp on the desk was lit, for it was darker in this room.

smiled and everything was quite all right.

"It isn't that at all." She was just as candid. "You're quite nice-looking, really. It's just that all the detectives I've ever seen—that is, as heard about—are rather big and brutal-looking—and tough."

McCale wanted to answer that, all things considered, he was probably just as tough—that he just wasn't big. But he didn't.

She seemed, for a moment, at a loss to begin. The old eyes searched his anxiously, and were withdrawn, as if the brain behind them was confused and helpless. He knew that there was desperation there, that it was difficult for her to play a part, but that she had determined to play it. He waited, and the silence in the room lengthened. He saw that she was still searching for an integrity behind the flash of his exterior. He saw the light go out of her eyes and realized with chagrin that she would not tell him what was gnawing at her mind, that she had decided to risk acquiring his aid only in part.

"My niece is to be married next week, Mr. McCale. Perhaps you have heard of her?"

"Yes, indeed. Veronica Bigelow. Her pictures are very lovely." He'd never seen one!

"She brightened considerably. "She is lovely. My favorite niece, Mr. McCale. She'll be very wealthy. You, my brother's child. The wedding, of course, will be at Trinity, but the reception is to take place at the family's town house. There are a great many beautiful and priceless gifts on display. They will have to be guarded night and day."

Guarding Gifts Pays Well

"The police," ventured McCale. "Pshaw! The police." She became more assertive. "We don't want plainclothes men all over the house. They'd stick out like sore thumbs. I want someone quiet and unobtrusive—just—just someone—"

The old voice faltered and trailed off.

McCale looked at her attentively. "Of course, I'm quiet and unobtrusive and inclined to be helpful." She dropped her eyes. "I—I think you're the man I want."

"It doesn't exactly take brains to watch over a table of wedding presents."

"I know that. But if something were stolen, if something did happen, you'd have to investigate, wouldn't you?"

McCale glimpsed then, for an instant, the whirlpool of events to come. There was something in that remark alone that piqued his curiosity.

He made up his mind. "That will be twenty-five dollars a day," he said, and added meaningfully, "for guarding the wedding gifts."

"But she would not rise to his bait. She searched a moment in a large black bag that hung from one arm. A hundred-dollar bill crackled as she put it on his desk.

"A retainer," she said.

"One moment, Miss Marriot will give you a receipt."

"Never mind. It isn't at all necessary. Will you come to tea this afternoon, at five?"

"To tea?"

"Yes. Please do." The tired old eyes pleaded with him. "The family—you should know them by sight—and there might be something to talk over—some arrangements you might want to make."

"Why, yes," he agreed, sudden intuition quickening in his mind. She seemed relieved; turned to go.

"One moment, Miss Bigelow. You'll want me to assume responsibility—when?"

"Oh, right away." That look had come back into her face again. "Immediately."

"But the wedding is—"

"I know. I'd feel safer"—she caught herself—"that the gifts would be safe if you were to take charge today. They keep arriving—more and more—most valuable, some of them."

TRUMAN AVOIDED MAKING ERROR THAT WILSON DID

IN THE RECENT congressional elections President Truman took no part except to cast his vote, as every citizen should. He made no appeal to the voters of the nation, or of any state, including Missouri. His action recalled an incident in the administration of President Wilson in 1918, just before close of World War I.

Before and during that conflict the Democratic party controlled congress, as the same party has for the past several years. Just before the 1918 elections President Wilson appealed to voters of the nation to return a Democratic congress that his administration might not be hampered in the work of reconversion. Despite that appeal, the election resulted in a Republican landslide, and for the last two years of his administration the President was faced with a Republican congress.

That appeal on the part of President Wilson was made at the request of several members of his cabinet. It was a member of the cabinet who had not joined in that request who told me the sequel, "off the record" at that time. At the first cabinet meeting following the election the President entered the cabinet room without his usual cheery salutation to those gathered around the cabinet table. He walked to a window eye-looking the White House grounds and, speaking to no one, he said, in a quiet voice:

"I accepted the advice of friends, and doing so led me into political error."

He then turned, took his place at the head of the table, and the meeting proceeded without comment of any kind on his statement or the result of the election. His statement was accepted as a rebuke to those advisers who had induced him to make that last-minute appeal, which did not prove effective.

TRAVEL UNCOMFORTABLE, DIFFICULT AT PRESENT

NOW IS A GOOD TIME to stay at home. There have been in the past, and will be in the future, times when traveling will be enjoyable. Such a time is not now. Unless you make train reservations far in advance, you will sleep in an upper berth, and consider yourself fortunate to have that. After a long search you may find a hotel that will accommodate you with a room for from one to a maximum of five nights. More likely you will sleep in a cot in a hallway, or in a chair in the lobby, provided the management does not throw you out. The one privilege you may have is to dream of the comforts you left at home; of the pleasant room, the comfortable bed, the pleasure of human companionship. All forms of transportation are crowded to the extreme limit, and then some. The hotel problem is worse, even, than that of transportation. Now is the best possible time to stay at home where you can enjoy home comforts.

That less than three million of America's G.I.s applied for, and have drawn, compensation under the so-called G.I. Bill of Rights is a tribute to our fighting men. More than 18 million have preferred taking a job or living at government expense. The three million does not include any sick or disabled.

MANUFACTURERS CONSTANTLY IMPROVING THEIR GOODS.

THE MAN ON THE FARM and the man on the street are realizing more than they did in the past the importance to themselves of the expenditures industry makes for laboratory and technological experiments, for improved machines and general expansion. This, briefly, is how it works: General Motors, for example, sets aside 2 1/2 cents out of each sales dollar, to be used for engineering and other experiments, improved machinery, production expansion, etc. John Doak buys a new General Motors car, 1948 model, for $1,000. Of John's $1,000, $25 goes into that experiment and expansion fund. Because of the expenditure from that fund the car John buys in 1948 for his $1,000, as compared with the same make of car of 20 years ago, has a value of $5,000. It has been profitable for John to have General Motors spend money on experiments and expansion. It meant a $5,000 value for his $1,000.

AN ILLINOIS farmer acquaintance tells me that each time the government told him to curtail production on a farm product, he accepted the advice in reverse, and produced more of that product. A year ago he was told to produce less hogs. He produced more. The result was he had a large drove of fat hogs ready for market when meat controls were abolished, and for them he received a fair price. That was not the first time he had profited by not accepting the advice of the planners at Washington.

The Honorable Refers but To High Public Officials

No American is supposed to be addressed or referred to by the title "The Honorable" unless he is among the "high public" officials whose importance automatically confers the privilege upon them in the Style Manual of the Department of State, says Collier's. However, members of congress bestow it widely, recent issues of the Congressional Record showing the title used in reference to such individuals as small-town politicians, lawyers and newspaper men.

Why Bert Won First Prize

Folks weren't surprised when Bert Childers won first prize for his corn at the county fair. Yet the judges admit it wasn't just because Bert had the finest ears of corn. He knew how to display them: neatly arranged, with the husks cleanly trimmed, and the booth white and spotless.

"Trimming" sure make a difference no matter what you're offering—as Andy Botkin, keeper of the Garden Tavern, well knows. Andy doesn't just sell good beer. He sells it in a place that's clean and attractive... in nice surroundings that belong with the enjoyment of a wholesome beverage of moderation.

And Andy, of course, is a whole-hearted supporter of "Self Regulation." That's the system by which the Brewer and tavern keepers themselves make sure that taverns selling beer are clean and orderly.

From where I sit, people like Andy also rate a "first prize." Not just for the quality of the product—but for the "trimmings" too.

A frantic mechanic named Crocket,
 Got so mad at his car he could hock it,
 But his wife, she said, "Nix!"
 "It just needs '66"
 Now it starts every time like a rocket!

For Rocket Starts... Get Phillips 66 Gasoline

Phillips regulates "66" gasoline to your seasonal driving conditions—that's why you get those quick starts on cold mornings! That's why your car will warm up faster than it does with low volatility gasoline.

We draw out our vast reserves of high-test natural gasoline to give you more highly volatile elements in your fuel as the weather gets colder.

Try Phillips 66. See if this "controlled volatility" doesn't give you quicker starts and easier warm-ups in cold weather. Drive in at the next orange-and-black "66" sign!

AS THE SEASONAL TEMPERATURE GOES DOWN... PHILLIPS 66 VOLATILITY GOES UP!
