Miss Betty Vega and Mr. Daniel Lueras Have Church Wedding

A social event of importance was the Vega-Lueras nuptials at Santa Rita Catholic Church last Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Betty Vega and Mr. Daniel Lueras were united in marriage with the Rev. Fr. Salvatore Giovanni as officiant.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Leandro Vega. The ring service was used. Her wedding gown was white and she wore a long white veil.

Matrons of honor were the bride's friend, Mrs. Estolmo Sanchez, and a sister of the bride, Mrs. Joe S. Herrera, both of whom wore pink dresses made formal.

The groom's attendants were: Messrs. Estolmo Sanchez and Joe S. Herrera, who wore black suits.

The flower girls were: Misses Nena Sanchez, Natalie Sanchez, Rosie Madrid, Isabel Ventura, Josephine Gallegos and Martha Vega, all of whom were wearing light blue dresses.

The wedding party marched to and from the church to the music of the Corona orchestra. Mrs. Ben S. Burns played the Wedding March, as the party entered the church, and "I Love You Truly" was played softly after the Wedding March.

The wedding party arrived at the Vega home where the wedding dinner was served at high noon to fifty guests. The Corona orchestra played throughout the meal and until 3 p.m. Then when the wedding supper was served, the orchestra played again. The dance was held at Community Hall from 8 p.m. on and the Corona orchestra played again for the 200 couples who had accepted the dance invitation.

The couple received many exquisite wedding presents.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leandro Vega, who are in business here. She is a beautiful girl, a graduate of Carrizozo High School, Class of 1946.

The groom is a veteran of World War II, and was overseas many months. He is an employee of the State Highway Department. They will make their home in Carrizozo.

TULAROSA COUPLE EXCHANGED VOWS

Miss Clara Ellen Pfingsten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bingham, became the bride of Mr. Del Worth Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Simpson, in an impressive ceremony held at 2 P. M., Tuesday in the Baptist Church at Tularosa, the Rev. L. A. Blair officiating.

Large baskets of colorful spring flowers decorated the church.

As guests assembled Miss Frances Craig, niece of the bridegroom, rendered four violin solos accompanied at the piano by his brother, Bill Craig. She played, "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," "Believe me," "Londonderry Air," and "I Love You Truly." Miss Craig also played the bridal airs.

Miss Pfingsten, given in marriage by her father, Tom Bingham, wore a suit of aqua marine with matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Miss Eileen Cozzens, close friend of the bride since early childhood, was her sole attendant. Miss Cozzens wore a deep sea blue suit with white accessories and white carnation corsage.

Jesse Ray Simpson, brother of the groom, was best man.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Bingham wore a black frock lavishly trimmed with blue eyelet. Her hat was black with white flowers and her corsage was of sweet peas. Mrs. Simpson wore a pink crepe dress, white hat with pink floral crown and veil. Her corsage was of sweet peas.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. Mrs. C. H. Craig cut the three tiered cake, Mrs. A. J. Pruett presided at the punch bowl, Mrs. A. L. Miles, Grandmother of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Relatives and out of town guests included: Messrs. and Madames Tom A. Bingham, W. R. Simpson, C. L. Robinson, Joe McGuire and son, Tommy, Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Blair, Mrs. A. J. Pruett and son, Bryan Roy and Ted, Mrs. V. H. Harvey and sons Dale and Albert, Mrs. A. L. Miles, Mrs. C. H. Craig and daughter, Frances and son, Bill, Misses Eileen Cozzens and Billie Jean Joyce, Messrs. Edward Pfingsten, T. F. Smith, Jesse Ray Simpson and Ernest Simpson. The couple are honeymooning in Colorado.

The bride was reared in Lincoln County and has many friends who extend congratulations.

ROBERT ESHOM

Mr. Robert Eshom of Capitan passed away last Friday morning at an early hour after an illness of less than a week. He became seriously ill at his ranch home near Capitan, Sunday May 31st. He was sent to the Fort Stanton Marine hospital at once where he received best of medical attention, but to no avail.

Mr. Eshom, who was about 40 came to New Mexico from Missouri when quite young. He was married to Miss Maudie Fritz of Hondo, and they made their home in Carrizozo for several years while he was employed by the State Highway Department.

Mr. Eshom was upright and sincere. He was a thoughtful husband, a good father and his family and friends are deeply grieved by his untimely death.

In addition to his widow, Mrs. Maudie Eshom he is survived by one son, Robert Eshom, Jr., and by a sister, Mrs. Nell of Ruidoso and a brother who resides in Pampa, Texas, all of whom were at his bedside.

Several from Carrizozo attended his funeral Saturday afternoon. Interment was at Fritz Springs Cemetery, near Hondo.

Senator L. P. Hall, Mr. Harry Stratley of Ancho, were business visitors from Ancho this week.

Mrs. R. S. Conley of Duran, has been ordered by her physician to go to Arizona for her health. Mrs. Conley at present is with her daughter, Mrs. Jay McPherson at Bisbee, Junction, Arizona.

Mrs. H. W. McMillan was seriously ill last Saturday and Sunday, but has improved very much.

Appreciation

I want to thank the voters of Lincoln County for their votes and support in my race for sheriff in the Primary election. I intend to live up to the high confidence expressed by the majority given me.

Respectfully,
Nick S. Vega.

Ex-Wacs Needed

The United States Army is in need of Ex-WAC personnel to do specific technician jobs. Enlistments are now being accepted for women who have previously been members of the Women's Army Corps.

Women without previous WAC service are not being accepted. Enlistments are being made in grades appropriate to previous grades and training.

The Regular Army Recruiting Station is making these enlistments.

The Army needs these women, and is asking them to return to service.

Jordan-McVeigh Marriage Ceremony Held June 8th at Freeman Ranch

Miss Elizabeth Margaret Jordan of Carrizozo became the bride of Mr. William J. McVeigh, III of Audobon, New Jersey, last Saturday, June 8th at 5:30 p.m., with the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. John J. Loudin, pastor of the local Methodist Church. The wedding was solemnized at the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Freeman in the presence of 60 guests.

The bride wore a blue suit with white accessories and carried a white Bible, which was borrowed from Mrs. Carl A. Freeman. For something old she carried a silk handkerchief which had been given her by the late Mrs. Frank J. Sager, and which was brought to Mrs. Sager from Paris during World War I. She wore the traditional blue garter and a silver dime in her shoe.

Miss Betty Lou Ward, bridesmaid, wore a blue suit and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Charles Snow, cousin of the bride was best man.

The bride's brother, Mr. Johnnie Jordan of Santa Fe, gave her in marriage. Little Patricia Jordan, niece of the bride was flower girl and Carl A. Freeman, Jr., was ring bearer.

Miss Veda Lou Branum, accompanied by Miss Mary Loudin sang three songs, closing with, "I Love You Truly."

Preceded by the attendants, the couple entered to the strains of Lohegrin's Wedding March, meeting before a bower of green and white, with improvised altar, where Mr. Loudin was standing. Many lighted candles gave a soft glow to the solemn occasion.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Mae Jordan. She is attractive and popular. She was graduated from the Carrizozo High School in 1945 and had been employed by the bank since her graduation.

The groom is the son of Mrs. John R. Engle of Audobon, New Jersey. He was a member of the United States Army Air Forces, serving in England for two years. In civilian life he is stock manager and assistant bookkeeper for a large auto-parts firm.

Mr. and Mrs. McVeigh will reside in Audobon, New Jersey, where the groom has his home.

A reception was given immediately following the ceremony. Mrs. I. W. Pettegrew presided at the punch bowl.

A crystal bowl of pink carnations, flanked by tall white tapers in crystal candelabra formed a lovely centerpiece. A beautiful three tiered wedding cake was served.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. John R. Engle, mother of the groom, of Audobon, New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Pettegrew, parents of Mrs. Freeman, and daughter, Mary Ellen of Las Cruces; Mr. and Mrs. John Jordan and daughters Patricia and Cecile of Santa Fe; Mr. and Mrs. Howell Grimes and Mrs. Williams, a niece of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. George Miller of Olmstead, Ohio were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nickels at their Jake Springs ranch this week. Mrs. Miller is a sister of Mr. Nickels. They were enroute California to spend some time.

Mrs. William Nickels and babies of Wilmette, Illinois arrived this week and are guests at the Nickels ranch. Bill intends to come in a few days and they may spend the summer.

Invitation Golf Tourney

Wally Harden, well-known southwestern golfer, will be the professional in charge of the sporty Cloudercroft Lodge this summer. He announces that the 1946 Fourth of July Cloudercroft Invitation Tournament will start June 30th and run through July 4th. Qualifying rounds can be played either Sunday or Monday, June 30th or July 1st. This is one of most popular tournaments held in the southwest during the summer months, and with wars over, an extra large and enthusiastic list of players is anticipated, according to Harden. Several fine exhibition matches, in connection with the tournament, are planned. Harden also announces that later in summer, another tournament exclusively for women will be held. The exact date of this feminine competition has not been determined.

FINANCING BUSINESS IS BANK BUSINESS

Banks long have been the principal source of business, inspiration and credit to small business. For example, in the last full pre-war year, total loans of banks by 5,000 banks (only one-third of the country's banks), totaled 24 million loans to business—a total of 20 billion dollars and an average of $1700 per loan.

Lending to small business is truly a big business, and one that banks are best equipped to handle. Today, and in the months and years ahead, when the effects of small business will be as important in getting our country's economy back on the track, we should consider to give every dollar of our money to small business.

OVERNIGHT GUEST

BEN AMES WILLIAMS

CHAPTER I

Adam Bruce decided it was time for lunch, sought the hotel. He gave his order, and while he waited, two people came into the dining room and stood just inside the door. A gray-haired man, round without being fat, apple-checked, with a mild blue eye and a curious suggestion of physical readiness in his walk. Beside him a woman, not so old as he, with a certain formidable sobriety in her countenance that was belied by the warmth in her eyes.

Adam rose, stepped toward them, said in quick pleasure: "Hello, Tope!"

The old man turned, smiled broadly and clasped him by the hand. "Why, hullo, Adam!—Mrs. Tope, this is Adam Bruce, an old friend of mine."

"Sit down with me," Adam urged. They obeyed, and Bruce looked inquiringly at Mrs. Tope. "I didn't know you were married, Inspector."

"Oh, yes, over a year ago." And the old man told Mrs. Tope: "Adam here was a youngster on the force while I was on the Homicide squad. He spoiled a first-rate policeman to become a second-rate lawyer."

Bruce grinned. "You're behind the times, Inspector! I'm a policeman again." Tope looked surprised; and the younger man explained: "I passed the bar exams, but no one seemed to need a lawyer. So I went to work in the bank commissioner's office for a while, and now I've hooked up with Washington—Department of Justice."

"Your outfit has done some good jobs lately," Tope said approvingly. "Anything happening up here?"

Adam said casually: "No, I'm on vacation." And under Tope's inquiring eye he added: "I used to live up this way, when I was a boy. Been home on a visit. I'm leaving on the midnight train. I often wish we had you with us, Inspector. We need a man who can see the hole in a doughnut. . . Which way are you heading?"

"North, I think. We're just gyping. I plan to do some fishing as we go. We may hit Canada by and by."

Bruce nodded. "Every little brook up this way had trout in it when I was a boy," he said. "I haven't tried them lately." And he asked: "Where do you expect to stay tonight?"

"We may camp out. Or we may try a hotel, if one attracts us. Or a roadside camp."

"There's a good camp about forty miles from here, between Ridgcomb and Middletown village. I was there only last night," Adam said eagerly. "A place called Dewain's Mill. You'd like it!"

"We might take a look at it," Tope agreed.

"A girl named Bee Dewain runs it," Adam explained. "She's a cantankerous, stubborn young woman; but if you're careful not to mention my name, she may take you in!"

He fell Mrs. Tope's eye upon him, and was conscious that his ears were red; but after lunch, when he came out to see them continue on their way, he suggested again: "If you do stop at Dewain's Mill, tell that young hussy I sent her my love!"

When they were gone, Adam paid calls here and there, at police headquarters, the post office, the drug-store. There was a wealth of time upon his hands. A little past six o'clock, he returned to the hotel to dine; and while he was at table, a bell-boy came calling his name. Adam shut himself into the telephone booth and heard a familiar voice.

"Adam?"

"Yes," Adam replied, wandering faintly at this call.

"This is Tope."

"Yes, sure. What's up?"

"I'm phoning from that place you recommended, Dewain's Mill. Adam, you'd better come up here."

"What's the matter?"

"Rather not talk over the phone, but you—"

"Miss Dewain all right?"

"Yes, of course. Do you know the place up here?"

"Sure. Ned Quill—he's a state reaper—is an old friend of mine."

"On your way here," Tope directed, "get word to your friend the reaper to meet you—without anyone seeing him—at the cabin called Faraway. You hire that cabin for the night. I'll see you there."

"But Tope, I'm due in New York tomorrow."

"You've a job to do here," Tope urged. "Good-by!"

And Adam heard the receiver click as Tope hung up. The young man stared at the instrument for a moment in a perplexed and indecisive fashion; but—here was at least a prospect for seeing Bee again, and he had not used to be one to cry "without cause."

Adam sent a wire to his chief, excusing his absence. Staying to breakfast, he retrieved his bag from the locker, hired a car and driver, and started north along the coast.

When they left Middletown after that chance encounter with young Adam Bruce, Mrs. Tope saw that her husband was silent, and she asked:

"What are you thinking?"

"I was wondering why we happened to run into Adam."

"Just an accident?"

"Call it that. But—accidents have a trick of fitting into a pattern by and by. As if some one had planned them." And he added: "It struck me that Adam had something besides a vacation on his mind."

"I wondered whether Miss Dewain is as cantankerous and stubborn as he pretends."

He chuckled. "You're looking for romance! But I'm wondering what fetched a Department of Justice man into these hills?"

It was obviously impossible, as yet, to answer this question. As they went on, the hills were bolder; the valleys deep, the streams swift and silver. They passed big estates, and great houses.

The little car required gas, and when they came to Ridgcomb, Chet's Place invited their patronage. A lean, dry man as old as Tope, with shrewd twinkling eyes, came out to serve them. Mrs. Tope and he'd fly 'em up and back. But he took a dive into Long Island Sound, long about daylight Saturday morning." He added resentfully: "I'll have Bob's ma to support, I guess. It ain't likely he'd saved anything." He shut the hood.

Mrs. Tope said quietly: "Shall we go on?" So the inspector climbed in beside her, but as they moved away he protested:

"Don't you hurry me all the time, ma'am! I like to get the flavor of the country as I go along. I like to talk to folks." And he said inquiringly: "You acted kind of mad!"

"I was," she admitted. "When he spoke of Mr. Holdom." "Know him, do you?"

"I know who he is." Mrs. Tope, before her marriage, had been the effective head of the Jervis Trust, with an active interest in business and finance; and she explained: "He's the floor specialist in the Ledforge stocks, and he's a crook!"

Slowly they drove on, stopping now and then to look across the hills and down the deep bright valleys. They ascended a steep grade, and at the top she checked the car. Tope looked to see why she slowed down, and discovered beside the road a large white-painted sign, on which black letters cried invitingly:

COME IN AND MILL AROUND!

He chuckled, and a moment later saw by the brook the gray weathered structure of an old mill, neat and in repair. An arched entrance and a gravel drive offered admission.

Mrs. Tope said: "This must be the place your young friend Adam Bruce told us about. It looks clean. Shall we try it?"

"I'd like to try that brook below the road," he admitted, so she turned in and stopped by the Mill door.

Tope surveyed the surroundings with that quick interest any new scene always provoked in him. The Mill was on their left. Beyond it by the stream side there was a turfed terrace, an open hearth, picnic tables. A gray-haired man sat on one of these tables and played a violin; and a girl stood near by, her shoulders against the trunk of a tree, watching him and listening. A State Trooper in uniform bestrode his silent motorcycle—to which a side car was attached—in the drive near them, and his eyes were on the girl.

Beyond, the millpond was visible, and a spring-board; and two small boys so much alike that they were clearly twins were diving, swimming ashore, climbing on the board and diving again, chasing each other like squirrels in a cage. A bald-headed little man in a bathing suit sat with his feet in the water; and an ample, comely woman with knitting in her hands, seated on a boulder near by, turned an interested eye on the car and the newcomers. Small cabins were scattered among the trees.

The scene was peaceful, but abruptly its peace was shattered. The trooper kicked his motorcycle into life with a series of explosions of entirely unnecessary violence, and he wheeled his machine, darted past the little car, turned into the highroad and raced away. The girl looked after him with amused eyes, and so saw these old people in their car, and came toward them.

"Have you room for two lodgers?" Mrs. Tope asked.

"Oh, yes, plenty," she assured them. "There's hardly anyone here. Not many people travel these days."

Tope remarked: "That policeman don't really enjoy the violin!"

The girl laughed softly. "Ned's not very musical," she agreed. "But it was rotten of him to start his motorcycle right in the middle of Mr. Wade's fiddling. I shall tell him so!"

"Do back, will he?"

"Oh, he always comes back!"

Mrs. Tope looked around with an appreciative glance. "You run this place?"

The girl said readily: "Oh, yes, I'm Bee Dewain. Mrs. Priddy cooks for us, and she's been famous for her biscuits and waffles ever since I was a child. Earl—he's Mrs. Priddy's husband—does the chores, and rakes the drives, and cleans the cabins. But I keep the books and generally run things."

"How's the fishing?" Tope inquired.

"Earl Priddy brings in a good mess, now and then."

Mrs. Tope asked: "May we choose our cabin?"

"They're all just alike, inside, only those up there on the knoll are nearer the road of course, with cars going by."

"I shouldn't like that," Mrs. Tope decided.

"Then why don't you take Faraway?" Bee advised. "It's new this year, and it's clear out of sight up in the woods, so if you want to be really quiet. . . No one has ever spent even one night in Faraway. It was only finished about two weeks ago. You'll be the very first ones."

She stepped up on the running board. "Just go straight ahead, she directed.

and he'd fly 'em up and back. But he took a dive into Long Island Sound, long about daylight Saturday morning." He added resentfully: "I'll have Bob's ma to support, I guess. It ain't likely he'd saved anything." He shut the hood.

The scene was peaceful, but abruptly its peace was shattered. The trooper kicked his motorcycle into life with a series of explosions of entirely unnecessary violence, and he wheeled his machine, darted past the little car, turned into the highroad and raced away. The girl looked after him with amused eyes, and so saw these old people in their car, and came toward them.

"Have you room for two lodgers?" Mrs. Tope asked.

"Oh, yes, plenty," she assured them. "There's hardly anyone here. Not many people travel these days."

Tope remarked: "That policeman don't really enjoy the violin!"

The girl laughed softly. "Ned's not very musical," she agreed. "But it was rotten of him to start his motorcycle right in the middle of Mr. Wade's fiddling. I shall tell him so!"

"Do back, will he?"

"Oh, he always comes back!"

Mrs. Tope looked around with an appreciative glance. "You run this place?"

The girl said readily: "Oh, yes, I'm Bee Dewain. Mrs. Priddy cooks for us, and she's been famous for her biscuits and waffles ever since I was a child. Earl—he's Mrs. Priddy's husband—does the chores, and rakes the drives, and cleans the cabins. But I keep the books and generally run things."

"How's the fishing?" Tope inquired.

"Earl Priddy brings in a good mess, now and then."

Mrs. Tope asked: "May we choose our cabin?"

"They're all just alike, inside, only those up there on the knoll are nearer the road of course, with cars going by."

"I shouldn't like that," Mrs. Tope decided.

"Then why don't you take Faraway?" Bee advised. "It's new this year, and it's clear out of sight up in the woods, so if you want to be really quiet. . . No one has ever spent even one night in Faraway. It was only finished about two weeks ago. You'll be the very first ones."

She stepped up on the running board. "Just go straight ahead, she directed.

and he'd fly 'em up and back. But he took a dive into Long Island Sound, long about daylight Saturday morning." He added resentfully: "I'll have Bob's ma to support, I guess. It ain't likely he'd saved anything." He shut the hood.

Mrs. Tope said quietly: "Shall we go on?" So the inspector climbed in beside her, but as they moved away he protested:

"Don't you hurry me all the time, ma'am! I like to get the flavor of the country as I go along. I like to talk to folks." And he said inquiringly: "You acted kind of mad!"

"I was," she admitted. "When he spoke of Mr. Holdom." "Know him, do you?"

"I know who he is." Mrs. Tope, before her marriage, had been the effective head of the Jervis Trust, with an active interest in business and finance; and she explained: "He's the floor specialist in the Ledforge stocks, and he's a crook!"

Slowly they drove on, stopping now and then to look across the hills and down the deep bright valleys. They ascended a steep grade, and at the top she checked the car. Tope looked to see why she slowed down, and discovered beside the road a large white-painted sign, on which black letters cried invitingly:

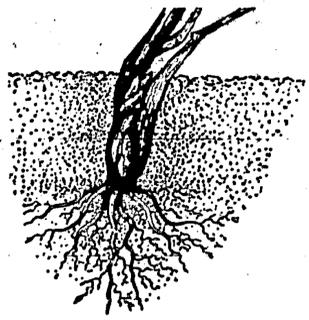

COME IN AND MILL AROUND!

Hessian Fly Always Troublesome Factor

Proper Sowing Dates Protects Winter Wheat

By W. J. Dryden
Until recently little damage has resulted to spring wheat from the hessian fly. With winter wheat it has been another question. In the past two years several states have reported outbreaks.

Hessian fly maggots beneath leaf sheath in the soil.

among spring wheat. After a succession of cool seasons with good rainfall several outbreaks were reported. At the North Dakota experiment station it was found that the Mida variety of wheat showed a high degree of resistance to the hessian fly. The Mida was not immune to the hessian fly, but its resistance was strong enough to make loss negligible.

Kansas State college found that the Pawnee is highly resistant to the hessian fly in that district. Other strains have been developed in other states.

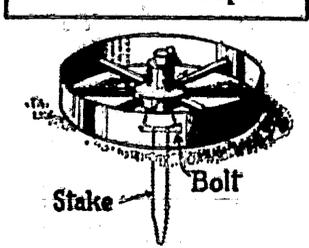

With winter wheat, the USDA has determined the fly injury may be avoided by safe sowing dates. These dates range from September 16 in the latitude of central Michigan to October 27 in that of central Georgia. The exact safe date in any locality may be determined from state agricultural specialists.

Portable Saw Aids Pasture Expansion

Converting waste brush and timberland into profitable green pastures is an important job being performed by new portable power saws developed in the southwest as an aid to farmers whose land is covered by undesirable undergrowth. In field operation the cutting blade is horizontal. For cutting logs to length, the blade can be raised to a vertical position. The Kraft Foods company are assisting farmers by making the portable saw available on a loan basis. By this plan they hope to assist dairy farmers to produce more milk on available acreage.

Wheel Foot Scraper

This type of foot scraper utilizing an old wheel with a somewhat broad rim. The wheel is slipped over one end of a round stake, which has in turn been driven into the ground. About two inches from the top end of the stake a hole should be bored and a bolt thrust through to keep the wheel off the ground, allowing it to rotate and always present a clean edge.

Vitamin Deficiency May Cause Pink Eye

Lack of vitamin A, brought about by long periods of drought or lack of green feeds often causes keratitis, or pink eye, to occur in range and pasture cattle. The condition may also be caused by injury to the eye which becomes infected with the normal staphylococci and diptheroid. Treatment suggested include white eye ointments and antiseptics. The cattle should be kept away from dust during treatment.

IT MIGHT seem strange to say that a manager whose ball club has been doing very well indeed could be even close to the border line of a predicament, much less the brink of an abyss. But for ter-

years Boston, always a great baseball town with a great baseball tradition, has been dreaming of recovering some of its lost glory. There were the winning days of Jimmie Collins, Bill Carrigan and others, who carried the Red Sox banner high. But in spite of the millions Tom Yawkey has fed into his purchases and pay roll, the Red Sox thus far have been on the outside peering in.

Now Cronin has his team winging away at a record clip. He has come through with the hitting and the pitching for which only the most rabid fan ever could hope. Outside of Ted Williams, Johnny Pesky and Bobby Doerr, no one could figure that so many Red Sox would hit so well. No one could figure Mickey Harris winning six straight, with able support from Tex Hughson, Joe Dobson and Dave Ferriss.

Can't Hold the Pace

Joe Cronin's predicament is this: no one can expect so many of his men to continue to blast the ball with such deadly effect; and no one can figure that Mickey Harris can continue to hold such winning form, although Mickey is a much improved pitcher over past seasons before the war, when he failed to break even.

If the Red Sox had broken from the wire at a steady clip, there would have been no such excitement as reigns in Boston today. As it now stands, any Red Sox slump, which is certain to occur later on after such early speed, is bound to cause a reaction up Boston way.

There is the chance, of course, that the Red Sox today have what the old Yankees once carried when they almost wrecked the league, practically closing out the season in late July or early August. It could happen. After all, Cronin's hired men have shown power at bat and power in the pitcher's box, which are the two main spots of the game. However, an early rush to the front can lead to much brooding later on. It is still my contention that the Tigers have the best pitching staff in baseball, followed by the Cardinals. But Red Sox pitching, in addition to being an improvement over what it looked to be earlier, also has run-making and fielding support that will bag many a ball game through the summer ahead. However, Boston's long-suppressed supporters should understand that it is still a long way to October.

Chasing the Cardinals

My good friend Eddie Dyer, once a star halfback in Texas, is shocked over the fact that his team is still called a 3-5 shot against the field.

"We have a good, sound ball club," Eddie says, "but no team to that good—not even the Red Sox, today. Too many things can happen in a ball game. Too many things can happen to your best men. There are other good teams in this league, teams much improved over last season. This includes the Dodgers, Braves, Reds and the Giants. Both Cubs and Pirates will soon begin picking up speed. After all, the weather has made this an uncertain spring as far as any rating goes. I don't believe many people understand what such players as Reese, Reiser and Herman mean to the Dodgers. They are all winning ballplayers."

One of Eddie Dyer's greatest thrills so far has been the fine showing of Terry Moore, not only a great ballplayer but a fine man to have on any club. After being away from action for some time in the army, Terry has been hitting far above his prewar punch; and Terry is no longer a kid. When you look at such ballplayers as Musial, Martin, Kuzrowski, Moore and others—plus the Cardinal pitching staff—whether or not you are a Giant, Dodger, Cub or Brave fan, this is the club to be watched once they have squared away from the summer festivities. It might also be suggested that Billy Southworth has turned in a fine job with the Boston Braves, a club supposed to be planted in the second division. The Braves may finish there, but they are a big improvement over the Braves of other years. They are a hustling outfit, as Billy Southworth's teams always have been.

This can be baseball's greatest attendance year, with many thousands to spare, if the two pennant races remain reasonably close, for it isn't any too easy to keep the peeped fan keyed up when his home club is outclassed and far out of the race. The danger spots here are the Red Sox and the Cardinals, but both can run into more severe competition than one might look for. Both Messers. Cronin and Dyer confirm this observation. Few horse races ever are won in the first quarter; this also goes for a pennant race.

A Prancing Steed For That Small Boy

AN OLD broomstick, a piece of scrap lumber, a pattern that gives you actual-size outlines, and presto, you have a dashing, prancing horse. If you are a little more ambitious, the same pattern gives actual-size pattern outlines for all parts of the toddler bike shown here. If you do not have a jig saw to cut the saddle and wheels, just outline them on the material and take it to your nearest woodworker to be cut. He can cut the head in a few minutes too. The pattern shows every step in assembling and gives a complete list of materials for both toys.

NOTE: Pattern for the Broomstick Horse and Toddler Bike is 15c postpaid. Send order direct to:

Cattle Sterility
Hereditarily plays a larger part in bovine sterility than has previously been suspected, experiments by the University of California have shown. Five Jersey bulls and one Holstein produced 20 sterile daughters in their respective herds and all could be accounted for by a specific gene for sterility. While there have been some indications that bulls transmitted sterile factors, this is the first study to isolate and report specific results.

Regulate Cheese-making
The occurrence of epidemics caused by the use of raw milk cheese in a number of places in the United States has resulted in regulations in a number of states specifying that cheese be made from pasteurized milk. An alternative is that the cheese be aged 60 days before use with the idea that any disease-producing bacteria would die before the 60-day holding period was up.

Hard to Grow
Spinach is the hardest of all greens to grow in the home garden. It is very particular about the temperature, richness and acidity of the soil. If it refuses to grow in your garden, even though planted early, work considerable manure into the rows and apply wood ashes or hydrated lime at the rate of a pound per rod of row.

Sunflower Seeds

Inadequate Housing
The National Housing agency recently estimated that 20 per cent of the city housing in the United States is below minimum health and safety requirements. Structural conditions in more than half of this substandard housing are termed a menace to health and safety. More than two-thirds of the substandard housing is reported to be without a private bath and almost two-thirds has no inside private toilet. Almost two-thirds is said to have dangerous or inadequate heating and almost half inadequate daylight or ventilation.

Old Dolls
The little maids of Greece and Rome had dolls with imbrable arms and legs, joined together with animal glue. Their everyday play dolls were made with heads of painted wood or wax, while the body was of leather or fabric. These were dolls which the Greek maid of antiquity sacrificed on her wedding morn to the goddess of marriage. In the catacombs of Rome, graves were found of children and the dolls buried with them had complete sets of trousseaux like real grown-ups.

Salt Lake
The salt lake in Iran, Lake Urmia, is a shallow, shrinking body of water whose western shore is about 3 miles east of Turkey. Lake Urmia normally is about the size of Delaware, although heavy rains and movements of the earth's crust frequently cause its shape and size to change. Fed by mountain streams and having no outlet, it is so salty as the food, it is so saline that fish cannot live in its waters.

Congress Lacks Courage To Solve Our Problems

I WALKED ACROSS the broad, beautiful lawns of Lafayette park with its century-old trees, toward the White House. The fountain playing in the foreground beyond the high iron fence, flowers in bloom, sun bright, peaceful, as traffic rolled leisurely up and down Pennsylvania avenue. I flashed my pass at the gate, and the guard waved me up the paved driveway toward the White House press room.

It wasn't a good press conference. I felt sorry for the President, a little embarrassed. For here he was, heading the world's most powerful nation . . . the world's biggest government . . . the world's only great Democracy and he was, figuratively, wringing his hands.

Why was he wringing his hands? There is only one answer. Because the world's most powerful nation, the world's biggest government and the world's only great Democracy is not united behind him. Our power is being clipped and backed until other nations who stood shoulder to shoulder with us are fearful. Our legislative branch of the government is cringing, supine, and there is not a vestige of leadership apparent on either side of the political fence. What little legislation that is enacted is shot-gun legislation, worse than none.

And our great Democracy, under test at this moment as never before in history . . . watched by the rest of the world . . . is apparently futile, running in circles, seemingly rudderless . . . without unity, tacking this way and that with every gust of a wilful wind.

Selfishness in Saddle

Why? Because personal selfishness is rampant . . . because arrogant labor leaders grasp at moments of national opportunity to seek more power . . . because members of congress are afraid to face facts . . . because farmers refuse to sell grain at parity prices even when their government offers a bonus, to feed starving fellow human beings . . . because ranchers and cattle raisers sell meat to the black market so they can get more than ceiling prices . . . because every mother's son of us will buy from the black market or any place else in our scramble to get what we want when we want it . . . because manufacturers withhold goods from market waiting for inflation prices . . . because industrial and business leaders grab the opportunity created by selfishness of labor leaders to penalize all labor . . . because congress, stung, as John L. Lewis single-handed, defies the government and slows up the reconversion program in his grab for power and money, fiddles and "deliberates" . . . because business men in their mad grab for more money would tear away the last vestige of controls for a shibboleth they have named "free enterprise" and which is not freedom but license—and so we are quarrelling and squabbling and stumbling and staggering . . . and the world which looked toward this nation as the hope of the world . . . the one great, firm rock . . . now gasps with amazement and horror, their hopes rapidly fading.

'And We Jitterbug'

We have wealth, the productive capacity in field and factory, the raw materials, the manpower, the know-how, the consumer demand, the world demand, we have everything including the amputees, the soul weary veterans, the lame and halt-wounded, the hospitalized victims of a world war . . . and we have the ideal for which they fought and a quarter of a million of them died. We have the atomic bomb with which a wavering congress is afraid to deal . . . and all humanity fears a graven man with a gun in his hand . . . and we jitterbug.

We are deadlocked everywhere along every front . . . our secretary of state makes commitments and our congress knocks the props from under him and from under our veterans and members of the armed forces. If congress had deliberately set out to sabotage and hamstring war foreign policy they could have done nothing more injurious than what they did do by voting their own personal selfishness on the selective service bill, responding to election year pressures.

At this particular time in the world's history there is no substitute for strength and this most powerful nation is showing nothing but weakness . . . all brought about by personal selfishness and intolerance.

And when you watch this thing that is going on . . . as it is unfolded here in Washington, it is not a pretty thing to see, nor to contemplate. Are we going to let the rest of the world down . . . are we going to let ourselves down . . . for what is happening is there for all to see . . . it's in your town and on your farm and it's here in Washington.

BREAD LINES BEGINNING TO FORM . . . Not the depression soup lines, but bread lines caused by the rationing of flour to bakeries, has resulted in bread lines in most cities and before the doors of most bakeries. Photo shows a bread line in Detroit. The baker says he has 600 loaves daily, soon to be cut to 450 loaves, but the line-up each morning soon buys up the entire allotment.

HOW ALLIED AIR FORCE WRECKED FRANKFURT . . . Bombs from American and British air forces rained from the skies caused a vast panorama of ruin at Frankfurt, Germany. Photographs show Five Finger Place as it appeared at end of war. Insert shows same location as it appeared on a prewar German post card. Only the little statue is unmarked. Few cities took a more sustained beating than Frankfurt.

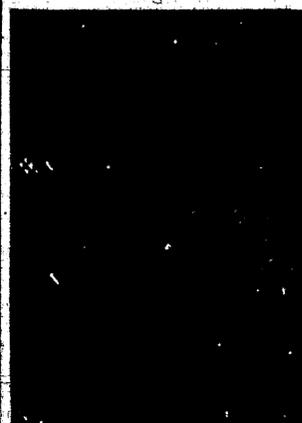

TO BE TOGETHER . . . Courage and devotion dominating one of the truly great love stories of modern times, Maj. Hans G. Hornbostel, San Francisco, veteran of two wars and the "Matan death march," is exerting every effort to enter the Leprosarium at Carville, La., so that he can remain at the side of his wife, who contracted the ravaging disease while in a Japanese prison camp. Major Hornbostel, who is not afflicted with leprosy, is shown with his wife as they talk with Dr. J. C. Geiger, chief of San Francisco health department.

MOON-JUMPING COWS . . . Flying cattle to South America from New York City leads the way to a new modern method of transportation of high quality breeding stock. Valued at $20,000 these Ayrshire dairy cattle are shown in plane, converted into a flying barn. The trip will take about 24 hours. Instead of several days as would be necessary by rail and water. More exports of cattle will follow from the United States to other southern countries.

POSTAL PAY INCREASE . . . Pres. Harry S. Truman as he affixed his signature to the bill giving all postal employees a raise of $400 per year. Postmaster Han-negan witnessed the signing of new postal pay bill.

FAIRWAY TO FURROW . . . Pausing between tournaments on his farm near Denton, Texas, golf champion Byron Nelson relaxes behind the wheel of a tractor. He raises trout, peaches, peaches and chickens.

HOOVER AND REPORTERS

WASHINGTON. — When Herbert Hoover staged a press conference after his talk with President Truman and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, newsmen immediately asked what President Truman had told him.

The former chief executive—who had as rough a time with the press as any United States President in this century—replied with deep feeling:

"There ought to be a law," he said, "against anyone repeating what the President has said to him."

Hoover also refused to answer any questions about administration measures to meet the European emergency, and would not give any opinion when asked if U. S. rationing might be necessary.

ARMY DENTISTS

At long last Maj. Gen. Norman Kirk, who has the reputation for hoarding more medical manpower than any other surgeon general in history, has decided to let a few more doctors slip through his fingers and go back to civilian practice.

He has decreed that all medical corps officers who have served 30 months as of May 1 can be released from the army before June 30.

However, this does not apply to army dentists, who are now getting to be the forgotten men of the U. S. army.

For some strange reason best known to General Kirk, general service doctors can get out of the army after 30 months, but a dentist must remain in 39 months. And today there are hundreds of patriotic dentists who gave up good practices to join the army, now marking time at army posts, unable to get discharged.

Furthermore, the brass hats have permitted the discharge of many younger dentists, while older men have to stay on. Many of the youngsters, educated at army expense, have been declared "essential to civilian practice" and discharged, while older men with families to support, can't get out. This means that younger dentists get their civilian practice firmly established before older men can even begin to look for scarce office space.

HOW TO HANDLE LEWIS

Towering Gov. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, who packs close to 250 pounds and a droll wit, tells this story about a "chat with a prominent Republican" during a recent visit to Washington.

"Why doesn't Truman do something about John L. Lewis," complained the GOP'er, "instead of sitting around on his hands while Lewis ties up production in the entire country?"

"Lewis is a tough man to handle," said Kerr. "What would you suggest that the President do?"

"I could give him plenty of ideas if I had the chance."

"Okay," said Kerr. "I'm going to give you the chance. I'm a close friend of Harry Truman. In fact, I am going to see him tomorrow morning. And I happen to know that right now, more than anything in the world, he wants the answer to this coal strike. So you just sit down and write out the solution and I'll give it to him the first thing in the morning."

The discussion ended right there.

RAIL BITTERNESS

For a long time, bad blood had existed between the trainmen-engineer brotherhoods and the other three—conductors, switchmen and firemen. It has been somewhat like the CIO-AFL row, but the bitterness deepened after the Roosevelt arbitration dispute.

Whitney, at the time, sent a letter to all his trainmen exhorting the other brotherhoods for refusing to arbitrate—a letter which doesn't put him in such a good light today. Among other things, he made up a little poem which read:

"Three blind mice—hear how they talk— They all refuse to arbitrate— They're gambling with their country's fate— Though the hour is getting late— For the three blind mice."

"Were they afraid to trust the President?" Whitney asked his fellow trainmen in the round-robin letter. "Or is it possible that they (the other three brotherhoods) were playing organization politics in the hope that they may strengthen their numerical and financial condition?"

Complete Miniature Circus Has 10,000-Seat Big Top

One of the most complete miniature circuses in hobby history is "Adel Brothers Circus," which was built by Robert Krueger of Omaha shortly before the war, says Collier's.

This model, constructed on a scale of one-half inch to the foot, occupies 450 square feet and contains, for example, a 10,000-seat big top and eight smaller tents, some 400 horses and menagerie animals, 60 exhibition cages, 50 trucks, two band wagons, a steam calliope and 18 ticket booths.

INS foreign news chief J. C. Oestreicher tells about the pompous general who gathered a group of war correspondents and bored them by outlining the broad strategic situation without giving them any worthwhile news. When the general asked for questions, newsboy Johnny Florea promptly double-talked: "That is great, General. But when will your troops take Unterstutzen on the Bleiwels?" ... The general looked uncertainly at his maps. Of course there was no such town. He asked Florea to repeat the query. The reporter did so, emphasizing that Berlin could not possibly be reached unless the Bleiwels was crossed and Unterstutzen captured. Afraid to admit he didn't know something, the general confidently replied: "My men will take it in a few days at the most."

Probably the most bumptious publisher of all was James Watson Webb. During the Civil War he wrote to Lincoln suggesting that he be made a major-general. Lincoln offered him the slightly lower rank of brigadier-general. Webb returned the commission with the words "Respectfully declined—J. W. Webb" written across it.

Some legislators are again whooping up plans to clamp a six-on-newscasters who tell the truth about them. Which isn't anything novel. Years ago, only reporters who were friendly to Congressmen were allowed to enter the Halls of Congress. Henry Clay fought such undemocratic procedures. He pointed out: "Liberty is not the private property of Congress. It is America's heritage. If freedom is only accorded to our friends, then we are the foes of democracy."

When Floyd Gibbons covered China for a news service, he didn't communicate with his home office for many weeks. Finally Gibbons' editor asked another news service to cable their correspondent in China and find out what happened to Floyd. The whimsical newsman cabled his report: "Have located Gibbons in the bar-room of Cathay Hotel in Shanghai. Do you want me to interview him?"

John Barrymore was arrested for speeding in a hick town. At the courthouse he rushed to the phone. "We're only allowing you one call," said the judge, "so you better phone your lawyer." "Lawyer," snapped John. "I'm phoning my press agent."

Inquiring phlegger Sam Mellor stopped a group of ex-G.I.s to ask what they thought of the way Congress is treating returning servicemen. "Do you think," asked the newsman, "that Congress kept its promise and received the vets with open arms?"

"That's the trouble," nifted an ex-G.I. (bandleader Herb Fields). "Congress welcomed us with open arms—instead of open minds."

Just after the last election FDR had an appointment with a visiting Gov. But due to a meeting on war matters, he was detained. "Mr. President," his secretary said, "I guess you know you have kept the Governor of Massachusetts waiting four minutes." "That's not so bad," winked Roosevelt. "I intend to keep the Governor of New York waiting four years."

During the early 1800s America's gazettes were very prim and dull. Editors recoiled in horror at the thought of dealing in personalities. But one New York newspaper blew the lid off this staid attitude—with a bang—by publishing the first interview. An interview with a prostitute!

There has been no satisfactory agreement among scholars or etymologists on the meaning of the word "Zetah"—which appears so often in the Book of Psalms.

Women's World Tight Dress Can Be Altered To Fit Wearer Comfortably

By Erta Haley

A DRESS that fits you, and you alone, is good value. It will give you real pleasure every time you wear it, no matter how inexpensive or expensive it may be. But just what is meant by perfect fit, as we know it today?

A dress that fits easily at the shoulders without straining when you bend or stretch is just right for you. The shoulder seam should lie about one-quarter inch back of the center of the shoulder and be absolutely straight from neckline to sleeve. The sleeve seam should lie at the extreme edge of the shoulder. Now, how should shoulders be padded? If you are square in the shoulders, little or no padding may be necessary. If, however, you are rounded or sloping in the shoulders, one or even two sets of pads may be necessary.

Collars should lie flat without pulling or wrinkling. If there is any tightness in sewing the collar, you can bet on its wrinkling sooner or later, particularly when the dress is washed.

That taut look around the bustline means the dress is too small, and chances are you do not look your best in it. I'll tell you how this can be remedied a little later, but in the meantime, when you buy a dress or pattern, get one that fits well across the bust. It's possible, too, that another style might be more becoming— one with fuller shoulders or more fullness in the bodice.

Waistline, Skirts Sleeves Important

Most dresses you buy will not nestle down on your natural waist line because most of us vary slightly from the average. But just where is the natural waistline? Tie a tape measure or belt around the waistline and you will find out easily. Bend slightly to the front and the tape measure will settle at the correct line. You can also determine the size of the waistline accurately if the zipper blades open and shut easily without straining. Don't try to gather in a too-large waistline with a belt. It looks untidy and you're uncomfortable. It's far better to refit the waistline.

An easy fit over the hips is a big comfort. Sit down when trying on a dress and it it doesn't ride up, you have a well fitting hipline. Length is also important. Most women are wearing their dresses just below the kneecap, but this can be varied slightly as looks best on you. Full skirts should be slightly shorter and snugly fitted skirts can be a trifle shorter than average.

Armholes must be big enough so that you feel at ease in them. When trying a dress, move the arms up and down. There should be no straining.

On long sleeves, look for the elbow easing to come right. This is at the crook of the arm.

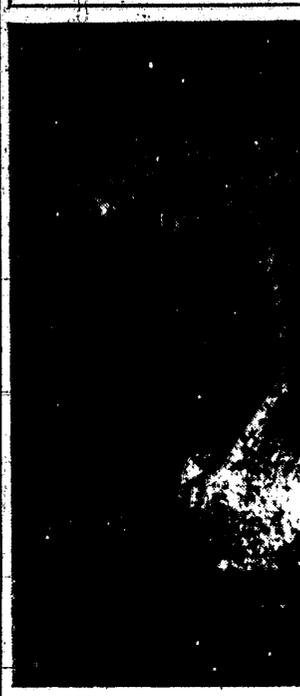

If you have chubby arms, do not wear tight short sleeves with cuffs.

Here's how to make it fit.

These will not only make the arm look larger, but will not be comfortable. If just the bustline is off, pieces may be added underneath the sleeves to ease the fitting, and a boters can be made or purchased to go with the dress. If you have a two-piece dress inwhich you cannot make the skirt fit, you might make a darker skirt to go with the jacket. Dark skirts are very slimming with lighter colored jackets if you are full in the hips.

Torso Jacket

Hattie Carnegie's cosmopolitan suit is made of gray sharkskin and favors the longer torso jacket. Saddle pockets around the hips accentuate the small waist.

If you have a princess type dress or a button-front dress, try contrasting panels down the center or on the sides to add fullness. This is a good way to adjust the dress for the short, full figure. If the waistline is too tight, and the dress too short, with no hemline to let out, consider placing a piece of contrasting colored material at the waistline. This may be set in wide or narrow as necessitated by your problem.

If the neckline is too tight, let the shoulder seam out enough to ease the strain on it. There is usually enough in the seam allowance to take care of this minor problem.

If your sleeves are too short, add crosswise bands below the elbow. Add this detail somewhere else in the dress, too, so that it will look as if it belonged.

If your skirt has stretched from wear, adjust the bagginess at the waistline.

If the skirt is too short, add a band of ruching or ruffles or braid around the hem. Several rows of gay ribbon will also do the trick. Add this detail to the sleeves, too.

Stitching Pointers

Mercerized thread is recommended for most sewing because it is strongest and easiest to use. Select the color of thread by matching closely to fabric.

Use correct needle and thread sizes and test on a piece of material before attempting to stitch the garment.

Fine, sharp-pointed needles are best for pinning. In pinning rayon and taffets, take care not to mark up the fabric from pinning.

Adjust the tension to suit the fabric and test on a scrap before sewing the garment. Generally speaking, a tighter tension is more suitable for sheerer fabrics, a looser tension for heavier fabrics.

Stitch with paper underneath the fabric when working with sheer materials. This provides a firm sewing base and prevents slipping.

When you have completed as many single seams as possible, get out the ironing board and press them out. Seams should be pressed before sewing other parts together.

Press each bit of binding and facing after basting, and sometimes before and after to assure smooth fitting. They will be much easier to machine stitch if the fabric is pressed and seams are straight.

Summer Fashion Notes

Long full peplums and skirt draperies are a high fashion note these days as the fullness over the abdomen movement gathers strength.

It's often been said that most women can wear blue. So, no matter what your type, you'll be seeing plenty of all types of blues, but particularly blues that match the color of skies and seas.

Look for the South American influence in play clothes and gay cottons. They have a real south-of-the-border flavor.

If you have any lace tucked away in the attic, now is the time to take it out. Lace is appearing at the neckline, on sleeve cuffs, pocket trimmings and even hems. This is one of dips fashion is taking into prewar era at the first war.
