Bond Sales for July

Washington, D. C., July 1946.

Americans bought $189,057,000 more of U. S. Savings Bonds the first half of July than the first half of June, National Savings Bonds Director Vernon L. Clark reported. Sales surged up 45.7 per cent above the mid-June figure to reach $448,514,000 the best half-month's volume since January, he said.

"This marked increase resulted from the June-July 'Back Your Future' publicity campaign which stressed investment in bonds as security for the future and their purchase as a check against inflation," Mr. Clark said.

GRANTLAND RICE

THIS sporting life may be checked, dizzy and dumb, but it is never wholly dull. One never can tell from what direction the harpoon will be thrown.

Here is a double example. A few weeks ago the Louis-Conn party was to be the season's greatest thriller. At that time the Phillies were the joke of the sporting world. They had been tagged as the eternal occupants of baseball's doghouse. They were supposed to be imbedded in the cement of the cellar. All this seemed reasonable enough as we looked over the chart. Then, with little warning, a cloud no larger than a man's hand or thumb worked into a western twister, while the Louis-Conn fight broke all records as a monumental flop—an all-time record.

About the same time, the lowly Phillies began their upsurge. Within two weeks they stole the glory of baseball. They became more talked about than the Red Sox or the Yankees, than the Dodgers or the Cardinals. They have made the Louis-Conn dull merry-go-round look like a taffy-pulling exhibition. The Phillies have emerged from the grotesque and the underground into the open. They finally see the light of the sun again. They can see the summer dawn and feel the rain.

Challengers Now

Through the combined efforts of owner Bob Carpenter, general manager Herb Pennock and manager Ben Chapman, one of the most liberal and one of the ablest combinations in baseball, the Phillies no longer are baseball's doormat. They no longer belong to the tribe of "God's green footstool." At last they are a real baseball team.

For several weeks now the Phillies have been playing the best ball in the National League. This may be no high tribute, but it is an amazing tribute to a team that has defied the cellar with record-breaking stubbornness for a long time. It should go as a high tribute to Messrs. Carpenter, Pennock and Chapman, who have complied to turn out the best job in baseball for 1944.

The Phillies of 1946 have carried us back to the Boston Braves of 1914. That happens to be some 32 years ago. Around this date the Braves were in last place. George Stallings, the fiery Braves manager from Georgia, was wearing out a suit a week, moving up and down the bench. There have been many hard-living managers in baseball—most of them are—but Stallings holds the record.

Then, around the first of July, the Braves began their move from the bottom.

They had Rabbit Maravalle at short and Johnny Evers at second. Great field—smart brain—big heart—no hit. They had Hank Gowdy, the old sarge, back of the bat. But, above all, they had three great pitchers—Dick Rudolph, George Tyler and Bill James. Day after day, game after game, we saw these three pitchers in the box score—Rudolph, Tyler and James.

This trio proved to us that three pitchers, working every third or fourth day, are all a ball club needs. Working that often a pitcher gets control and confidence. I'm not referring to the sore-arm boys, to the once-a-week pitchers of the modern era, where it takes three or four pitchers to finish a ball game. Rudolph, Tyler and James started and finished their own games, working at least twice a week. They were not pampered as the modern pitchers are, barring such men as Feller, Newhouse and a few others.

From Bottom to Top

So the Braves moved from 8th to 7th place, then to 6th. They moved from 6th into the first division, then headed for the top. They made the top—and they didn't need eight or ten pitchers to carry them along. They needed only three—Rudolph, Tyler and James.

The light-hitting overlooked Braves only murdered the Athletics in four straight games. They, outplayed and outgamed and out-pitched and outhit one of Connie Mack's greatest teams. Hank Gowdy hit over .300 in that series. But the main answer again was Rudolph, Tyler and James, who had been seasoned under fire for over three months, who had been worked often enough to know their trade.

Any pitcher who can't start and finish over 30 games, who can't work in over 300 innings—or 350 innings—isn't much of a pitcher. What baseball needs today is a combination of Rudolph, Tyler and James, who can handle a three-month schedule practically unscathed. Modern pitchers need far more work than they are getting. No set of arms can be that fragile, that delicate, that weak.

If Chapman only had another Stallings, Tyler and James he would bring through this 1946 season. It wouldn't even be a contest.

OVERNIGHT GUEST

BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE STORY THIS TIME: Adam Bruce, FBI operative, on a trip to his old home, ran into his previous boss, Inspector Tope and Mrs. Tope. He sent them out to an auto camp operated by Bee Dewain. Later that night Tope phoned Bruce, asking him to come at once and bring State Trooper Kell. The body of a man, who Mrs. Tope thought was Ledford, head of New England utilities, had been found. A car believed to have been stolen and used in the murder was found in the quarry. Tope expressed belief that Mrs. Kell was dead. In the car, while her husband, former employee of Holdom, had walked away. Holdom was located in hospital, Ledford in New York.

CHAPTER VII

Tope exclaimed in a mild exasperation: "Didn't the doctor know who he was? Holdom must have had letters, labels in his clothes, something. A doctor that will keep an unconscious man for three days without trying to find out who he is and let his people know, needs looking into, Mat!"

"Holdom told his office he'd had a smash-up," Cumberland volunteered.

"Smash-up! Smash-up!" Tope repeated exasperatedly. "That's a lie, Mat! He and Ledford started up here together, with Kell driving. Ledford came back to his office Monday morning with no word of a smash-up! Kell came home with no word of a smash-up! The car showed no signs of a smash-up! It doesn't make sense, Mat!"

"Holdom told his office he'd be there tomorrow," said Cumberland. Tope looked at him. "If he was unconscious in this doctor's hospital, he didn't telephone from New York on Saturday," he said.

"Telephone?" Cumberland echoed. "Some one telephoned!" Tope reminded him irritably. "Telephoned the police at Hildcomb, and said he was Holdom and that his coupe had been stolen!"

"Holdom must know something!" Cumberland said. "I'll send for him, get him up here, as soon as he is able."

Tope nodded. "Of course, I guess you'd better send Dane," he decided. "Dane, as soon as Holdom can travel, bring him up here. He's a material witness, anyway. Make him come."

Dane protested: "No need of my going. Any policeman—"

But Tope urged: "Needs a responsible man with a head on his shoulders, son." He hesitated. "Mat," he apologized, "I'm speaking out of turn. After all, this is your show."

"That's all right," Cumberland insisted. "Joe, you do what Tope says."

Dane insisted stubbornly: "I ought to be here. Keep in touch with things."

Tope touched his arm. "We want to know more about this doctor down there, son," he declared. "Maybe he's one of the gang. You look him over, ask him a few questions, size him up, see what you think of him."

So Dane was flattered into consenting. "Well, that's so," he agreed. "I'd better do that. I'll check up on him, and bring Holdom back. I'll see what I can get out of Holdom on the way."

But Tope objected to this, and with some violence. "Don't you, Dane!" he commanded. "Don't you ask Holdom anything. Just tell him you've got orders to bring him up here. Let him stew in his own juice till we're ready to talk to him. If he's been unconscious since Saturday, there's a lot he doesn't know. By the time you get him back here, maybe we'll know more than we do now, be able to ask him some questions he can't answer."

And he added, remembering: "By the way, Joe, I want you to find out some things for me: Ask Medford about gas from the exhaust, and whether it could get into the rumble seat, and whether this dead man had breathed any of it, and whether he was drugged. And see if you can find out where Mrs. Kell and Ledford went last week-end."

Joe and Cumberland turned toward the door; but there they met Bee Dewain. The girl's face was white and strained; she would have spoken. Tope, with a sudden violence of words, urged Dane and Cumberland toward the car; and only when they were gone did he turn to Bee.

"Now, Miss Dewain," he said gravely. "I judge you've got bad news?"

She nodded. "I telephoned Ed Priest's camp," she said unhappily. "Mr. Eberly's not there. They don't expect him. They haven't heard from him."

Tope whistled softly. "That's where he planned to go?"

"Yes, that's where he always goes. That's where he said he was going."

Tope wagged his head. "Child," he said gently, "I hadn't ought to have asked you to telephone up there. It's just a bad habit of mine, working on a business like this, whenever anyone tells me anything, to check up and see if it's so. I've no notion that Mr. Eberly has anything to do with this. As far as wondering where he is—"

He chuckled, touched her arm. "Don't ever wonder about a fisherman," he joked. "You can't rely on them any more than you can on trout in the brook. . . . Did you think to fetch that letter?"

It was in her hand. "Here it is," she said.

Tope unfolded the single sheet, he looked at the letterhead, then read the scrawled words.

Dear Carl—
How about some fishing this week? Trout ought to take hold. Shall we try the pond? I'll be home sometime Wednesday afternoon. Come about half-past four. That will let us catch the evening rise. You'd better plan to stay the night in case we keep at it till dark. No need of answering this, because if you're not there by four-thirty, I'll go ahead alone.

Here's luck!
Ledy

The old man asked: "Carl is Mr. Eberly's name?"

"Yes."

"Ledford wrote this, eh? That the way he signs himself?"

"Yes." She watched him almost fearfully.

And he returned the letter to her, touched her hand. "Now, don't you —peeped in the window." And she said with a rueful gesture: "I don't know how he knows, but he told Mrs. Priddy the dead man was found in Faraway!"

She added, looking at Adam, her eyes twinkling faintly: "Earl claims he has some important information that he's going to give Joe Dane! So if you and Inspector Tope don't hurry, Joe will be the one to—read the riddle, after all!"

Adam grinned. "Joe couldn't read the alphabet in large type," he told her confidently. "And Earl wouldn't know information if he saw it."

"I'm afraid you're always underrated Joe," she retorted. "But then you don't know much about real criminals. You've spent your time annoying innocent men!"

Mrs. Tope watched them, amused; and Adam protested: "Bee, I never claimed Eberly had committed any crime, done anything wrong. But the bank had to be closed to protect all the depositors. Those Utilities bonds—"

He checked himself, looked at Tope in a startled way. "Inspector! I forgot about that. It was Ledford's stuff that ruined Eberly's bank. Do you suppose Eberly—"

Bee uttered an indignant exclamation: "Adam Bruce, if you try to pretend that Mr. Eberly—"

Adam shook his head; he grinned at her. "No, Bee," he said. "You're a stubborn young hussy, and no one can beat any sense into you; but—"

Eberly's all right, Tope. He threw all his own money into the bank, made every sacrifice possible to help save the depositors." He looked at the girl in sudden concern.

"Bee," he asked, "you don't think it possible that he would—"

"No, no," she whispered. "He's too—"

She was interrupted. The door burst open, violently. Here was Earl Priddy, his eyes wide and goggling with excitement, his hands shaking. He leaped into the room, and banged the door behind him, and set his shoulders against it, his hands outspread to press hard against the panels.

"Sh-h-h!" he whispered. "Sh-h-h!"

Bee said reproachfully: "Earl, you're drunk! Don't be a nuisance! Go out of doors!"

"Not me," said Earl Priddy hotly. "I don't go out there again tonight! No sir, not me."

Some one pushed at the door from without, and he fought to hold it shut. The door bulged, and Adam leaped that way. There was suddenly a weapon in the young man's hand. He thrust Priddy aside, and Earl stumbled and fell, and Adam jerked wide the door, his gun ready, expecting anything.

But he saw only Vade, and Isaac Murrell, and Mrs. Murrell and the twins clustering curiously there, pale and alarmed. They recoiled before Adam's weapon; and Earl, scrambling to his feet, cried:

"Come in! Come in, quick, everybody! Shut the door! Lock it! There's a man in Faraway!"

Half a dozen people had heard Earl's announcement. Tope regretted this; but regret did not impose on him inaction. He said briefly: "Adam!" And with young Bruce beside him, he started up the drive toward Faraway.

There was never in Tope any particular capacity for fear; if he knew danger lay ahead, he was not above taking precautions, for there was no arrogance of folly in this man. But tonight he had—or seemed to have—no feeling that it would be dangerous to surprise the intruder in Faraway. He made haste to come to the cabin; and before Adam could intervene, he had thrown the door open and stepped firmly in.

Night had by this time almost fully fallen, and the interior of the cabin was dark. Yet there was light enough for them to see the bed—that bed under which a body once had been bestowed—all in disorder, with blankets and coverlet and mattress in a heap upon the floor; and a man, with a lighted match in his hand, staring down through the springs at the empty space below.

The man, at their entrance, whirled, and the match went out; but Adam snapped on the lights. Ther. Balsar Vade came up on the porch behind them, and Tope turned and saw him, said curtly:

"Vade, go tell Miss Dewain to call Mat Cumberland. Tell him to come here." He added: "And Vade, don't you come back!"

"Hello, Kell," he said.

The big man twitched as though some secret agony tormented him, but he made no move nor sound.

"What are you doing here?" Tope asked.

The answer came stammeringly. "I—wanted a place to sleep. I'm hunting work, walking—"

Tope looked at the other's shoes, now wet with dew, though they had been faintly dusty. Then Adam touched the Inspector's arm, whispered in his ear. Tope nodded.

"Of course," he assented impatiently. "This is Kell, all right." He faced the mustached man again. "Go on," he said then. "You're out of work, tramping the country, looking for a job; you thought you might steal a night's sleep here. You have no money. Is that your story?"

And when the other did not answer, Tope said: "Adam, turn out his pockets!"

"Sh-h-h!" he whispered, "Sh-h-h!"

worry," he urged again. "Mr. Eberly's all right." And he asked: "Earl Priddy has disappeared, has he?"

Bee answered him in some surprise: "Why, yes. How did you know? Mrs. Priddy wanted him to come and peel potatoes for supper, but he's gone! Just simply vanished into thin air!"

Tope nodded, chuckling: "Earl's out spreading the news," he assured her. "I guess the excitement is due to start," he predicted. "Country folks have tongues like a lot of dominoes. You set one of them wagging, and you wag them all."

"I'll go after him," Bee promised. "Find him, make him be still." She hurried away.

Tope sat down on the edge of the bed. "I'm getting old," he confessed. "Going to catch a nap before supper-time."

He lay down, and Mrs. Tope covered him over and made him comfortable.

As Tope had guessed, Earl Priddy was busy. When Joe had asked for Inspector Tope, Earl was startled into a curiosity that would no longer be denied. An hour later, after various investigations which included a secret survey of Amasa's farmhouse, he came almost at a run to the store in Madderson village. He went directly to the telephone and called the District Attorney's office in North Madderson and asked for Joe Dane. Of Cumberland himself, Earl stood in some awe; but not of Joe Dane.

Joe was not there!

"Well, you tell him Earl Priddy's got some news for him," Earl said vehemently. "Something mighty important about this case out here. He'll know what I mean. You tell him to see me, quick's he can!"

And only then did he turn to recite his tale to the audience that while he phoned had been quick to gather close behind him.

While Earl thus brought the news to Madderson village that there was a dead man in the small back room at Amasa Dewain's, Inspector Tope was still asleep. Mrs. Tope on guard beside him. He did not stir till the supper-bell roused him; and a little later he and Mrs. Tope came down to the Mill. Bee met them apologetically.

"I don't know whether we'll get much supper, or whether it will be fit to eat," she explained. "Earl didn't get back till a little while ago, and Mrs. Priddy had to peel her own potatoes. She may like it out on us!"

Tope guessed: "Priddy probably went to spread the news."

When Bee returned from the kitchen, her eyes were troubled.

"Mrs. Priddy says Earl knows all about it," she confessed. "He saw the dead man up at Uncle Amasa's

In the United States, the first man-made object to pass beyond the stratosphere was a rocket fired secretly at White Sands, New Mexico, on October 25, 1945, says Collier's. Developed by the GALCIT organization of the California Institute of Technology, this rocket, the starting weight of which was 600 pounds, was propelled by liquid fuel to a height of 25,000 feet, or over 44 miles, according to the radar equipment that measured its flight.

The House You Live In
If you are lucky enough to own your own home, you undoubtedly take pride in keeping it attractive, modern and comfortable. You probably have a list of dozens of things you were obliged to postpone during the war and want to do as soon as possible: insulation, a new roof, a plumbing or heating installation, electrical work and masonry jobs. Perhaps you plan to construct a sleeping porch or a sun parlor; build a garage, or a room for games, hobbies or workshop. As materials are available for these purposes, we are ready with home repair and modernization loans to help finance the cost over a period up to 36 months. We'll be glad to see you whenever you care to drop around at the bank and talk with us about the loan that you can use to advantage.

EMPLOYERS ASKED TO LIST JOBS

Mrs. Eunice H. Mobley manager of the United States Employment Service serving Lincoln and Otero Counties announced, "A Job Development campaign is being initiated in this community because of the urgent need for additional job opportunities for veterans and other job applicants."

Lincoln County is served each Friday by this office through an itinerant interviewer, Mr. Julian L. Pierce who is at the American Legion Hall from 10:30 A. M. until 2:30 P. M. Mrs. Mobley further stated, "While job prospects for veterans and other workers are improving as reconversion moves forward, there is still a great need for all employers to list their job openings at the local office. More and more employers in this community are utilizing the facilities of the local employment office. The result is that more new job orders were taken in June than in any previous month since the war ended. But while we are getting more job openings at the local office, we are also getting more job applications. "I know that every employer in this community is anxious to help returning veterans find suitable employment in their home community. The best way for employers to assist veterans to stay in Lincoln County is for them to file job openings as rapidly as they develop at our local office. We will then be in a position to furnish job applicants full information regarding employment opportunities in the community."

"Without the aid of local community organizations and officials, and the newspapers, our objective of making the local office a real community job center where all jobs and all information on jobs are available to job applicants cannot be successful." Mrs. Mobley said that in appealing to employers to cooperate, she wanted to stress the fact that through cooperation with the USES they can obtain their choice of the finest crop of job applicants that have applied for employment in this vicinity.

Long Distance Calling
→ up 28% Since Last Summer

More long distance calls are being handled at the Carrizozo switchboards this summer than ever before in history. The great surges of traffic which seemed so abnormal on VE day and VJ day are being far exceeded every business day now.

The greatest increases have occurred on calls to neighboring towns Roswell, Alamogordo, Ruidoso, Capitan and other New Mexico towns. Some delays are inevitable. We are bending every effort to relieve this situation as rapidly as possible, but serious shortages of facilities delay the needed circuit additions.

Until we can provide adequate facilities we ask your cooperation in avoiding unnecessary long distance calls and in keeping necessary calls as brief as possible.

Urgent Need for National Health Insurance Revealed

WHILE the National Health bill is not expected to be taken up at this session of the congress, its final adoption may have moved nearer because of the amazing and embarrassing testimony which has been given before the senate committee on education and labor during three weeks of hearings.

This measure, known as the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill (S. 1608) is opposed by the American Medical Association as "socialistic," and by others who declare that voluntary health programs will meet the needs of the nation. Nevertheless, its proponents declare otherwise and say that nothing short of passage of the measure will provide for the nation's health needs.

And in an enlightened democracy such as ours where medical and surgical science have made such tremendous strides, where curative and preventive medicine have reached such heights of accomplishment, one can only use the word "disgraceful" after listening to the testimony describing the state of the health of the American people. Here are some of the facts in the testimony:

The bill provides for a health insurance plan for all necessary medical, surgical, hospital and clinical needs, including dental and optical treatment, child and maternal care, at a cost of approximately 3 per cent of income to be paid approximately one-half by individuals and the other half by employers and public funds. Services of physicians of their own choice would be available to all persons and doctors would have the right to come into or remain out of the insurance system and to accept or reject patients as they now do. The bill provides for larger grants of federal money to the states for preventive services and it would expand the G. I. Bill of Rights to provide these services for the veteran and his family for non-service connected illness.

Other testimony was . . . that only about 22 per cent of the people have voluntary insurance against hospital costs, less than 4 per cent for physicians' services, that health insurance plans sponsored by medical societies are operative in less than half the states and only offer limited service at high cost . . . that more than 23,000,000 have some chronic disease or physical impairment . . . that in any 24-hour period, 7,000,000 people are incapacitated by illness or other disability . . . that about 500,000,000 man-days are lost annually due to illness and accidents . . . that 15,000,000 people in 40 per cent of the counties do not have any recognized general hospital . . . that there is no full time public health officer in 40 per cent of the counties . . . that one-half of the deaths of women in child-birth and a third of the infant deaths could be prevented if known measures were fully applied.

Since introduction of the National Health Bill last fall, 13,500 babies and 1,300 mothers died whose lives might have been saved, and each day of delay on the bill we lose 85 more babies and 8 more mothers needlessly. To do anything less than to give children, no matter where they live, a healthy start in life is wasteful of future man and woman power. Letting fathers and mothers struggle unsuccessfully to find what care they can for children is not good enough. Under present conditions, the average family spends 4 per cent of its income for medical care, but over 40 per cent of the total burden of medical costs falls on 10 per cent of the population. People with low incomes have more sickness and need more medical care, yet they receive much less.

Three Cents a Day

Over 40 per cent of young men and women were found unfit for military service, one-sixth had remedial defects and many more were preventable. Doctors and hospitals are located according to wealth of population and not according to health needs of the people. Medical practice in rural areas must be made more attractive. Complete health service including cost of dental care for a child would cost about $3 per year or less than 3 cents a day.

We now have 3,500 pediatricians and need 7,000, we need 35,000 more dentists . . . we have 19,000 public-health nurses and need 50,000 more and need at least 15,000 more graduate nurses . . . we need 1,000 more orthopedists and 5,000 obstetricians and 10,000 additional pediatricians for children. Cost to the nation in man days lost from illness and accidents last year amounts to eight billion dollars. We lag behind other countries in many health records.

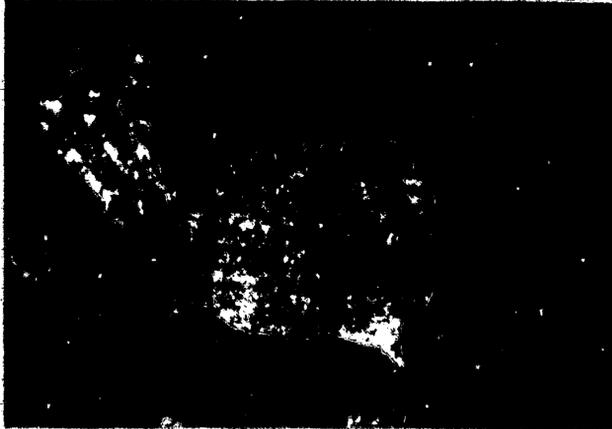

AIRPLANES TO RAILWAYS . . . TWA mainliner, carrying 18 passengers and a crew of 3, shown after emergency crash landing on a railroad right of way shortly after taking off from Chicago airport for New York. None of the passengers was injured, although pilot and stewardess were slightly hurt. The pilot stated that both engines quit shortly after the takeoff, and that he did not have sufficient altitude to glide back to the field.

ELEPHANT WINS LIGHTFOOT CONTEST . . . Orhand one would imagine that the thin, elongated giraffe would be lighter on her feet than the lumbering 10,500-pound elephant. Such is not the case, however. A G. E. vibration meter made the rounds of the circus at Schenectady, N. Y., and came back with some interesting observations. Toby, the elephant, with the exception of the pythons, was the lightest stepper of all, registering 3 mills of vibration per second. The giraffe, left, is shown registering 6 mills of vibration per second.

DREAM TRIP ON 50 CENTS A MONTH . . . How 50 cents a month from the depression-era budgets of six Ontario, Ohio, families grew into a kitty of $3,375 for a nationwide "dream trip" was disclosed with the arrival of the 13 members of the Kitty Kat club in Los Angeles. Eleven years ago the couples were honoring the fair which obtained them to their homes. They began right then to save 50¢ a month for their "dream trip." Group is breakfasting in Los Angeles.

CHAMP . . . Robert Fick, giant star of the University of Minnesota, who topped the performers in the National AAU soccer track and field championships, holding the world's record throw with a toss of 175 feet 3/4 inch.

BIG BUSINESS AND TAXES

WASHINGTON.—Juiciest gravy in the current tax legislation is the continuance of the carry-back of unused excess profits credit. The senate finance committee, always friendly to big business, not only knocked out the excess profits tax last year, but retained carry-back refunds. This permits corporations whose current earnings do not proportionately match their 1936-1939 earnings, to claim adjustments in their 1945 tax payments.

This is one reason some firms didn't worry too much about prolonged strikes. General Motors alone will probably hit the treasury for a refund of $9 million dollars. To head off this drain on the treasury, Rep. Cleveland Bailey of Clarksburg, W. Va., Democrat, introduced a bill last January to repeal the carry-back provisions. On January 23, the house ways and means committee asked the treasury for a report.

Recently impatient Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, Democrat, proposed that congress act independently, without waiting for the treasury report. He pointed out that large credits can be claimed by corporations which actually make more money this year than they did in any of the years from 1936 to 1939, simply because their capital investment is now larger.

Mills charged that many large corporations are taking advantage of this loophole, and as a result the taxpayer foots the bill for the expansion of private industries. He also listed a long series of "abuses and transactions which will no doubt be resorted to in order to create carry-back refunds or tax credits."

KANSAS ATOMIC STRAW

The Eastman Kodak company has been having trouble as a result of the first atomic bomb test in New Mexico—one year ago. Eastman found that, for some mysterious reason, some of its film was turning black before exposure. Finally experts discovered that the film had been packed in straw which came from western Kansas.

After the Los Alamos bomb test, radioactive dust from New Mexico settled on Kansas wheat fields, and is still so powerful that the Kodak company has had to stop using Kansas straw for packing film.

TRUMAN WRITES A VETO

President Truman was convinced that the half-breed price-control bill would not work. The Taft amendment, he especially argued, was absolutely impossible, and he cited a long list of various big manufacturing firms, all of them against OPA, who branded the Taft cost-plus formula as likely to bring chaos to industry.

"I just have to put what I consider the country's welfare first," the President told his congressional leaders. "Let's not fool the country and give them something that won't work."

When they told him that they would not be able to persuade their reluctant colleagues to pass any sort of price-control bill, the President replied:

"If it's this or nothing, then we'll just have to take nothing."

Among other things, the President figured that during the chaotic period sure to follow if the polyglot price-control bill were passed, congress would claim it was his fault for not making the bill work, when, in actual fact, the bill was unworkable. He felt also that if congress did dare to go home without a price-control bill, things would be hotter for them in their districts than in Washington. He also warned that in this case he would call a special session of congress.

WHO WON THE WAR?

It is now getting close to a year since the end of the war with Japan, and yet the strategic bombing survey for Japan has not been made public. Inside reason is a vigorous backstage tug-of-war between the army and navy which boils down to the basic question: "Which of them won the war in the Pacific?"

Civilian members of the survey staff, however, summarize the situation:

- 1. Heaviest damage to Japan was inflicted by U. S. submarines. They had just about shut off all Jap supplies toward the end of the war and Japan was paralyzed.
- 2. Next greatest damage was done by long-range army land-based planes.
- 3. The navy's carrier-based planes were important, but ranked second to the B-29s.

DIPLOMATIC POUCH

It's only been a short time since the war, but two former enemies, Italy and Austria, now earnestly seeking to become democracies, will be proposed by the United States for admission to the United Nations next September. Truman o.k.'d this move last week. . . . Prime Minister De Valera has decided not to apply for Irish membership in the United Nations. . . . The pro-Berlin Mongolian people's republic, however, thinks otherwise about the United Nations.

FIVE-CENT TAX ON COAL INTRODUCES NEW PRINCIPLE

WHEN SECRETARY of the Interior Krug signed, for the government, a "new contract with the Miners' union, he started a new form of tax levy on the American people. That agreement to pay the Miners' union 5 cents on each ton of coal mined, both hard and soft, will be paid, in the end, by the American people, not by the coal operators. It is a new tax. Just as much a tax as is the amount paid to the government on each package of cigarettes purchased. It is but the opening wedge for a similar tax on production and services of all kinds. It puts organized labor on the same basis as a tax levied and collector as is federal, state, county or municipal governments. It is an additional price on coal, just as the internal revenue tax on cigarettes adds to the price of cigarettes and it will prove but the forerunner of similar taxes on food, clothing, housing and everything we purchase.

John Lewis had demanded for his miner's union a tax of 10 cents on each ton of coal mined, or a tax of 7 per cent on the coal operators pay rolls. The operators had refused to consider a tax of any amount on either the coal mined, or on pay rolls. They rightfully insisted such a tax would be detrimental to public interest, and not within the province of the miners to demand or the operators to give. When the mines were seized by the government Secretary Krug compromised at 5 cents a ton. In doing so he sacrificed a principle, and the interests of the American people.

It marks another chapter in government interference in the relations between labor and management. It is a chapter of far-reaching consequences. In that decision political rather than public interest was given first consideration.

It is the principle of the thing that counts, not the 35 to 40 million dollars the miners will collect each year from this new tax on the people. It is but the foot in the door to bring an application of the same kind of a tax on all production. We, the consumers, will soon be paying a multiplicity of this same kind of taxes. Government has created a devouring dragon that will consume us if it is allowed to live.

Under the Constitution it is the duty of congress only to levy federal taxes. This new levy, instigated through Secretary Krug's agreement with John Lewis, is, to all intents, a violation of the Constitution. The way to reach it through the courts is long and devious. Congress should, when it reconvenes, make short work of any such tax by passing legislation that would prohibit all such efforts at establishing new and multitudinous tax levying and tax collecting bodies.

AMERICAN PEOPLE PAYING SEAMEN'S WAGE BOOSTS

A LARGE PROPORTION of the merchant vessels sailing under the American flag are owned by the government, and leased to private operators. All vessels privately owned or leased must comply with the provisions of the seaman's compensation act, enacted by congress some years ago. It provides for minimum wages and working conditions that are far in advance of those prevailing on ships of other nations. To comply with that law American ships could not compete in shipping charges with the ships of other nations. To meet the difference the government pays the ship operators and owners what the public terms a subsidy, but what the operators and owners call an equalization payment. Such payments cover the difference between the wages paid on an American ship and the ships of any foreign nation with which the American ship is in competition. The new agreement with the Seaman's union, perfected by government conciliators, fixes American seamen's wages still further ahead of those paid on foreign ships. It would seem that it is the American taxpayers' money that bought peace to American shipping. It is not hard to be generous when spending the other fellow's dollars.

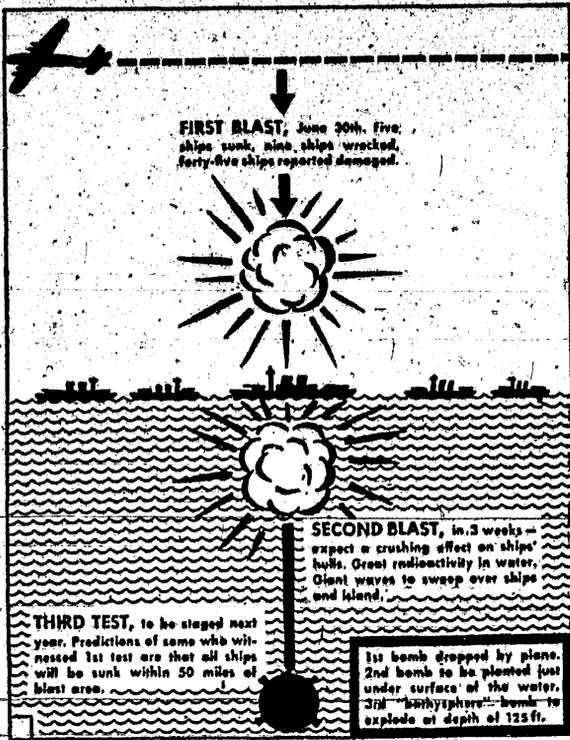

THE GOVERNMENT, in one way or another, has provided help for all who wish to build a home except the farmer. That hard war-working individual and his family can sleep in the barn or the cow pasture.

MOST OF THE STRIKES were not settled by collective bargaining between labor and management. The government stepped into the picture, and largely decided what both sides were to accept. As labor has the greater number of votes, labor got the best of the argument. In the end the public will do the paying.

WHEN PUBLIC OPINION making influence is needed in a worthy cause the best person to see is the editor of the home town newspaper.

ENDLESS ARGUMENTS RAGE

World Awaits Second Test of Atomic Bomb

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Correspondent.

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN OPERATIONS CROSSROADS. — Second or Baker test of the atomic bomb in Bikini lagoon, now tentatively set for July 25, will be like dynamiting fish in a pond.

Lacking will be the glamour of the army air force and precision bombing as the whole thing will be a navy show. The bomb will be submerged some 75 feet beneath the surface in about 30 fathoms of water, 100 feet, and detonated in the midst of the target fleet, which is being regrouped to meet new conditions of the test.

This second test also will lack the drama of the bomb burst and the atomic cloud, which is characteristic of atomic bombs exploded in air. What is likely to happen is that the intense heat will generate steam in the water and the terrific force will expend a part of its energy in a waterpout with a cloud of steam and vapor shooting into the air. Intent of this test is to measure force of atomic energy upon the hull structure of naval ships spaced at various distances from the center of the explosion.

Subs to Submerge.

There will not be the visible damage which was inflicted wholly upon the topsides or superstructures as in the first blast. Since there is to be no ship placed directly above the point of blast, the prediction is being made freely that no capital ships will be sunk, although lighter craft may be capsized. Another feature of the second blast is the placing of submerged submarines in the target fleet, and it will be interesting to note the effect of the bomb force upon the steel hulls of these vessels beneath the water.

Naval scientists predict that force of the underwater blast will create waves of sufficient height, possibly 10 or more feet which will sweep over low-lying Bikini island, although this was also forecast in the first blast and did not materialize. Meantime, endless arguments proceed as to the degree of damage to the ships, the location of the bomb burst, whether the drop from the plane was a "near miss," probable loss of life had the ships been manned with full complement, and comparative efficiency of this first Bikini bomb as compared to the bombs at Alamogordo, Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Precision Bombing.

When it is considered that this bomb was dropped from a height of something like six miles and hit within a 1,000-yard circle, this reporter would consider that pretty good precision bombing.

Adm. T. A. Striberg of the Bureau of Ships, however, declared that insofar as he could judge, every ship damaged by the bomb, with the exception of the Independence, could be put into fighting shape within two or three months.

For the Independence, battered and ripped apart by explosions of her own torpedoes, her ammunition and aviation gasoline and burning for almost two days, it would take about nine months to put her in shape.

Also all ships damaged, with the single exception of the Independence, towed away and anchored far out in the lagoon, likely could have pulled away under their own steam, had they been manned with crews.

Study Effects.

In the meantime, Bikini lagoon has been turned into a vast laboratory of science, chief interest being the effect of the bomb and its subsequent radiological rays upon the live animals placed aboard the ships at various locations likely to be occupied by the men aboard. Amazingly, only about 10 per cent of the animals were killed by the force of the blast. Some are burned and sick and others may become ill from effects of radioactivity. As a matter of fact, a few already have been destroyed by medical doctors, who are studying this phase of atomic energy in an effort to determine how this radioactivity can be used in medicine in treatment of disease.

Persons or animals which receive these powerful rays into their systems are variously affected and the boarding teams upon these ships are preceded by a trained man carrying a "Geiger counter," a small box-like apparatus which registers radioactivity by a ticking noise.

Estimate Losses.

A fleet such as those which composed the target fleet would normally carry approximately 30,000 men. It is reasonable to assume then that approximately 10 per cent, or 3,000 men, would have been killed by the atomic bomb blast and that more would have been injured by radioactivity. Whether much of the damage to ships caused by subsequent fire aboard could have been averted had crews been aboard is a moot question. Some ships captains declare that damage would have been much less had the ship fire-fighting equipment been brought into play, and this seems reasonable in that most of the loss on the Independence was due to fire and explosion and not the bomb blast.

There is no attempt however on the part of naval authorities to minimize the terrible power of this atomic bomb. No other single bomb ever did the damage to a fleet that this one did. Five ships sunk, one completely out of commission and approximately 10 others out of action for two months or longer, and small to negligible damage done to 18 others.

However another atomic bomb likely would not find 73 ships to make up a helpless ghost fleet grouped conveniently like sitting ducks and whether use of the atomic bomb as an offensive weapon of naval warfare upon ships at sea is militarily sound still is a debated question and one which the naval evaluation board will study during the next few weeks or months.

It must be remembered that whatever is said about this second bomb test before the actual test is in the realm of conjecture, and much of the conjecture made prior to the first test did not materialize.

Arkansas May Be Second Target Ship

Target ship, or vessel nearest center of the blast, for the second atomic bomb test may be the average battleship Arkansas, it has been indicated by reliable sources although no definite announcement has been made by Adm. W. H. P. Bligh, commander of operations crossroads and the joint task force. The carrier Saratoga was first slated to be second target ship. An interesting sidelight on fate of the Saratoga, which suffered only negligible damage in the first test, is that her commander, Capt. Donald MacMahon, knowing that she was slated for the second target ship made a wager with a friend in Washington, before bringing the ship to Bikini, that he would take her back to the East coast under her own power. It looks now that he has better than a 50-50 chance of winning his bet.

Plans for the 25th Annual State 4 H Club Encampment are now underway. The date has been set for August 14-20 to be held at the New Mexico A. and M. Campus, State College.
Approximately 250 club members from every county in the state will participate in assembly programs, special demonstrations, discussion groups, and campus tours. The general theme of the Camp will be "Serving as Citizens in Maintaining World Peace." Delegates for Lincoln County will be chosen by local leaders and the County Extension Agent, and will be announced in the near future.

"You can see from these figures," Morgan said, "that Carrizozo is just one of several hundred exchanges in the Mountain States which are badly in need of additional facilities and for which which equipment has been engineered and ordered. Shipment of new equipment from factories continues to be somewhat uncertain, as we have been making progress despite shortages. "Meanwhile," he said "we are doing everything humanly possible to render the best local and long distance service we can under these conditions. For a while longer, we hope unnecessary long distance calls can be avoided. We're anxious to complete many calls as possible as many are essential business calls, emergency calls, calls relating to movement of crops to market, etc. In some cases, despite all we can do, delays are frequent on heavily congested circuits and brevity on all calls will help everyone to get better service"
