County Fruit and Vegetable Survey

Each year the Extension Service assists orchardists with the marketing of their fruit and vegetables. In each fruit and vegetable producing county of the state, the county agent makes a survey and sends to the State Extension Office at State College an estimate of the amount of fruit and vegetables that will be for sale. The Extension Economist then summarizes these reports and they are sent semi monthly to truckers and buyers in adjoining states and serve as a dependable means of advertising the produce for sale in the state.

County Agent Radcliff has completed a survey of the irrigated valleys in Lincoln county, and reports that there will be for sale the following estimated amount of fruits and vegetables: apples, 110,300 bushels; peaches, 4,400 bushels; pears, 10,000 bushels; plums, 3,500 bushels; cabbage, 800 tons; and carrots, 500 tons.

The peaches and plums are ready for market at this time, and the pears and apples will begin to be ready for market about September 1.

Dr. Fisher was in Carrizozo, Aug. 14, to talk to the Woman's Club and arranged for art exhibits and teas during the year. Mrs. Jenkins is art chairman. It was decided to have two exhibits, one Nov. 24 and the second Apr. 20th.

Sgt. Swearingen Marooned by Typhoon

Baguio, P. I., July 25, 1946: Staff Sergeant A. V. Swearingen, Carrizozo, New Mexico, is enjoying an extended furlough as the guest of the Camp John Hay furlough center despite the camp's isolation from the outside world since July 17 due to the typhoon, "Ingrid", which struck Northern Luzon with the worst storm in twenty five years.

Camp John Hay which is situated high in the mountains near Baguio, summer capital and playground of the Philippines, was isolated when the typhoon caused mountainous landslides that covered the only road leading down to Manila.

No casualties or serious damage occurred at the Army rest camp for the Philippines but damage was extensive in nearby Baguio and the death toll has already mounted to seventeen with eight others missing in the immediate area. The camp itself has adequate food supply and recreational facilities unhampered. Air mail service as well as radio connection with Manila has been established. It is expected that the mountain road will open by August 5th permitting furlough personnel to be returned to their units.

Sgt. Swearingen's mother, Mrs. Mary Swearingen lives in Carrizozo. His wife, Mrs. Gayle Swearingen, is living in Artesia, after training at Camp Roberts, California. S-Sgt. Swearingen embarked July 6, 1945 for overseas duty in the Philippines.

He has been awarded the Asiatic-Pacific Ribbon, the Philippine Liberation Ribbon, the Good Conduct Medal and the Victory Medal. S-Sgt. Swearingen is now serving with the Headquarters B Battery, 743rd AAA Gun Battalion.

Mr. Tom Shields who underwent an operation in El Paso at Hotel Diez last week is doing nicely. He will be at home in a few days.

Members of Comet Chapter No. 29, Carrizozo, N. M. are urged to be at Masonic Temple at 10 a. m. Friday August 30th for house cleaning. Bring covered dish. If unable to work send 50c to Mrs. Ula G. Mayer, Sec. Ida C. Goodson, W. M.

S. P. Announces Orders for 1000 More Box Cars

Although Southern Pacific Co. already has ordered within the past 18 months a total of more than 4,000 new freight train cars, the purchase of an additional 1,000 box cars of modern design to help ease the national box car shortage has been announced by President A. T. Mercier. The new cars will be steel sheathed, wood lined, forty-foot and of fifty-ton capacity.

Due to labor and material shortages experienced by car builders, deliveries of cars presently outstanding on order were only commenced in recent weeks and 1,160 have been delivered to August 10. Mercier said: The balance of deliveries is scheduled for completion within the next 90 days.

In addition to these 5,000 cars ordered in the name of the Southern Pacific Company proper, the Pacific Fruit Express Company, in which the Southern Pacific has a one half interest, just recently ordered 5,000 refrigerator cars.

THERE is a pitcher we think is a trifle overlooked. We say that because all the ball players we've talked to lately rank him as the best in either league.

No—his name isn't Bob Feller or Spud Chandler or Tex Hughson. He is a wiry left-hander by the name of Harold Newhouser of the Tigers. Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball in 1944 when he won 29 games. They threw that one out. A war year.

Newhouser

Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball last season when he won 25 games and took over the World series. They threw that one out, also. Another war year.

Wait until the big hitters come back, they said last spring—Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr, Bill Dickey, Charlie Keller, all these and many others. So what happens? Newhouser has been winning six times out of seven.

And Newhouser has been winning these games with a third-place ball club—a ball club that without Newhouser would be in fifth place. Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball in 1944 and 1945. It is our prediction that he also will be the best pitcher in baseball in the current season of 1946.

It's Newhouser, 9 to 1

We decided to make a fuller check on Newhouser in his own league. We took a survey from 10 well-known veterans who know their way around. Nine gave us Newhouser, one gave us Bob Feller.

I asked Bill Dickey what he thought about the matter. The Arkansas quail hunter gave us a slow smile. "I'm already in enough trouble," he said, "without getting into another argument. When I came back to baseball this spring, I heard that Newhouser was just another wartime pitcher.

"Our league happens to be well stocked with fine pitchers. I mean Chandler, Hughson, Ferris, Harris, Trucks, Kramer and a few more. But so far I haven't seen a better pitcher than Newhouser. You know how hard it is to win 20 games. Newhouser has won 34 in the last two years. It wouldn't surprise me to see him win 30 or more this year. "What has he got? About all it takes. A good fast ball. A good curve ball. Good control. A lot of confidence in himself. Determination to win. A good head. Plenty of heart."

Unless something disastrous happens suddenly, it is a pretty safe bet that Hal Newhouser will lead both leagues on the pitching side. It is also a pretty fair bet that he will pass the 25-game mark again and threaten the 30 spot, which few have ever reached.

Two 40-Game Winners

So far as so-called modern baseball goes the only 40-game winners I can recall at the moment happen to be Ed Walsh and Jack Chesbro. Among the 40-or-more game winners, we've had Matty Johnson, Smokey Joe Wood, Dizzy Dean, Grover Alexander, Lefty Grove and possibly one or two others. Only Matty and Alexander have won 30 or more games three times, in the past 40 years. You can let us know if our memory is slipping.

Newhouser has yet to be a 30-game winner. But the wiry Tiger left-hander has the best chance to reach this mark for 1946. He comes so close to being the best pitcher in the game that someone else will need a spur to crowd him back before the stretch run ends in September.

Bob Feller, Spud Chandler and Tex Hughson are all great pitchers. Among the best. But all three will have to put on extra steam to crowd back Newhouser, who has been baseball's best pitcher for three years.

About the Two Leagues

Several querulous letters have come in since the all-star game asking what has happened to the veteran circuit.

"Why is it," one asked, "that the American league should come up with most of the top stars—such men as Ted Williams, Charlie Keller, Bob Feller, Newhouser, Chandler and so many others who apparently outclass most of the National league's best men?"

The sad truth—and for the N. L.—are that the older league this season can match the younger circuit neither in stars, nor in average playing strength. The N. L. has no pitchers to rank with Feller, Newhouser, Chandler, Hughson and others. Outside of Johnny Mize it has no power hitters who can be classed with Williams, Greenberg, Keller, DiMaggio and several more. This was all known before.

It would have taken a Carl Hubbell, a Dizzy Dean, a Matty or an Alexander to remove the noise from A. L. bats this season.

Vicuna, Possessor of Fine Fleece, Is Rarely Tamed

Although the vicuna of Peru possesses the finest fleece known, this animal has never yet been domesticated on a commercial scale, says Collier's. It is too wary and fast-moving to be captured and spends most of its time at 16,000-foot altitudes in the Andes where the air is too cold and rarefied for man. Of the few thousand that have been caught and tamed in infancy, one man owns a flock of 300 from which he shears a total of only 100 pounds of wool a year, or barely enough for ten men's overcoats that have sold for as much as $1,000 apiece.

DOAN'S PILLS

While Walter Winchell is on vacation, Jack Lait, writer of the "Broadway and Elsewhere" column, will appear in this space as guest columnist. Winchell's column will be resumed on his return in September.

Follies of 1946

The dogdays are here. . . . It shouldn't happen to a dachshund. . . . Winchell is on vacation, meaning he can get up at 7 p. m., instead of 6. . . . But the show must go on. . . . So Lait will juggle the dots and juggle the dashes. . . . It's fun. . . . Let's get started!

Unreported incidents in Hollywood, eye-witnessed by my bureau of information, which never sleeps, never drinks, seldom eats: Betty Grable said she would not accompany Harry James east on his six-week tour. Almost as soon as he got off the train, she got on a plane—for New York. . . . Before John Perona flew to Paris, Mary Pickford gave him a solid gold St. Anthony's medal. . . . Bill Cagney begged Howard Hughes to take him up on that test flight and was turned down. . . . A movie company is paying $3,000 to advertise its picture-to-be, "The Egg and I," on an ostrich egg which is being hatched at a farm which raises the big birds in Pasadena. Thousands visit there daily. The deal is that as each party goes through, the mother ostrich is to be shooed off her future offspring, so that gawkers can read the copy. There are seven words painted on the egg, which figures out at a rate of $73.75 per word.

The following acknowledgment is being received by those who order from a large Manhattan auto agency: "We are enclosing herewith accepted copy of your order, subject to further delays due to conditions beyond our control. Delivery should be expected from 15 to 25 months."

Department of Internal Revenue has had an agent in Hollywood checking into the extraordinary number of refunds claimed and gotten by high-salaried movie people. By virtue of an ancient law, the government pays 6 per cent interest on sums paid and held, until refunded. There is virtually no such thing these days as a 6 per cent investment, but anyone who wants to miscount or forget to enter a just and provable claim for allowance can draw 6 per cent on such a sum, plus retrieving it in full. During 1945, the United States paid out $17,000,000 of such interest. In 1944, the amount was $23,000,000. This year, the interest will be only about $4,000,000, as the government is "bep" and rushing the kickbacks. Most of this, of course, is legitimate. But some big money-makers have deliberately used it as a racket.

Howard Hughes, the incredibly rugged individualist, despite his excruciating physical agony and his multifarious mental misgivings, has refused to take one sedative. . . . Even the mildest sleeping-aids and pain-relievers, given patients who stub a toe, he has stubbornly turned down. . . . In fact, he refused to eat or drink, fearing some palliative may have been slipped in. . . . He has lived entirely on orange juice since his injuries, and demands that it be squeezed in his presence, from the fruit, uncut until he sees it halved. . . . Physicians say they never heard of such a case. . . . But who ever heard of a Howard Hughes before?

Father Andrew Cervini, Jesuit missionary, who lost his left foot while a prisoner in a Jap camp, has just finished a book of his experiences. . . . The publishers weighed several titles. . . . Then Jim Harkins came up with, "How about 'One Foot in Heaven'?"

Jane Churchill, the girl-in-the-middle of the Tommy Dorsey-Jon Hall imbroglio, dyed her hair red and is in New York, trying to get a show job. . . . John Galt, the musical director, tells of a young male hit-player in Hollywood, assigned to escort a famous film beauty to a premiere. Next day he grumbled because it was such a terrible picture, he could hardly concentrate on it. . . . "This Is Your FBI," official air program, reveals: "America's annual crime bill is 17 billion dollars; its total education bill—from kindergartens through colleges—is less than four billion dollars."

Lt. Col. Gregory ("Pappy") Boyington has written his own story of his life and adventures, military, matrimonial and miscellaneous, and the script probably will be sold to a wealthy Californian who likes to dabble and gamble. . . . The deal calls for book publication, to be followed by a film based thereon. . . . Bill Cagney is interested in that, and his brother, Jimmy, may play the happy-go-lucky hero. . . . Pappy isn't temperamental, violent, drunk, or anything, personal or professional.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Pretty Table Doilies Easily Made from Odd Scraps of Goods

By Etta Haley

ONE woman whom I know has a charming home with lots of room for entertaining. It seems that no matter how often she has visitors, there are always bridge cloths or freshly laundered doilies for the table. When I asked her how she managed, she showed me a drawer full of placemats and table cloths of assorted sizes.

"My secret is that I never throw away a piece of material if there's any possible use for it," she confided. A partially worn sheet or damaged tablecloth is cut into doilies and matching napkins, embroidered or crocheted on the edge, laundered, starched and well pressed. Then they're ready for the table.

You know it's surprising how many sheets, pillow cases, tablecloths and odd pieces of material can be made into attractive luncheon or breakfast doilies. Or, they can be cut to fit smaller sized tables and used as such. It takes but a little cutting and sewing to convert these pieces of material into something really attractive and useful.

Only suitable fabrics should be used for table linens. This means that the fabric must not be too soft, as like a semi-starched appearance in table linen. It adds neatness and crispness to the setting.

Select, if at all possible, a material that has a rough weave or linen-like finish. Something that is too closely woven is not desirable, as table linens most certainly will spot, and a close, tight weave makes it difficult to remove stains.

For informal table linens, these cottons are good to use: gingham, chambray, percale, unbleached or bleached muslin, organdy and dimity. Some of the rayons are fine too, but steer away from those that you know will not hold their shape.

Directions for Sewing, Cutting

The secret of having table mats or cloths look neat and attractive is to cut them perfectly straight. Pull a thread from the fabric to make sure the edges are straight, then fold and hem carefully. The same applies for napkins.

The edges and corners should lie flat and smooth. It doesn't take much time to baste and press to make sure you are getting everything straight and even, and the time is well worth the extra effort.

The nappy hem is used on our very finest linens. For sheer placemats, you may use a small and very even seam that gives the appearance almost of a rolled hem. A whipping stitch or running hem can be used on the sheer fabrics.

On informal cotton sets, you might like to use a hem of contrasting colored thread, made in even stitches. Remember that hems show up easily once the linen is set on a table and it's important to have good, careful sewing to make it look its very best.

One of the best guides as to what should be used in decoration is to look at the new linens being shown to find what motifs are currently popular. You might like to use appliques in the corners of bright flower designs or South-of-the-Border prints. These add sparkle to break-

Slim Print

Fast and luncheon cloths.

Contrasting colored hems are very popular and are conservative enough even to please the most discriminating hostess. This may be done with a fabric of a different color added to the mat itself; or, it may be in the form of a bias tape used for finishing the edges.

Use Your Ingenuity In Decorations

Feather-stitching is very popular on the very simple doilies, and gay-colored ric rac is always welcome. A simple crochet stitch often adds newness to doilies, and this may be worked out in white or in other colors that combine well with your dishes and accessories.

For formal doilies—such as you might want to use when entertaining—stay with the simple designs like bands, panels or classic designs. A band might be run through the middle, but choose its width carefully so that it does not look like patchwork. Always miter the corners carefully so that the placemat will lie flat on the table.

If your machine has an edge stitcher, it will be easy to insert lace bands to run around the doily. This gives particularly fine effects on the sheer materials like dimity and organdy.

For decorative stitching on the machine, use the durable buttonhole twist or yarn. This washes and irons beautifully and is just the right weight to give an excellent line when stitching. Mark and measure where you want to stitch before starting out on the machine.

If you make good flat-fell seams on your doilies, they can often be used on both sides. They will also launder and wear much better than if you are haphazard in doing the seams.

Table Linen Tips

Unbleached or semi-bleached muslin bleaches quickly in washing and is an economical buy for table linen. Usually this fabric has a rough weave and more stiffness which is desirable in making good table linens.

Single and double damask are often confusing to the new buyer of household linen. This simply means that single damask has fewer threads to the inch than double damask, and thus the former has a more loose weave. It is cheaper and less good quality.

When making or buying a tablecloth, make sure it hangs evenly on all sides; otherwise it will give the table a lop-sided appearance.

Crocheting should be used with care and discrimination. If too coarse, gaudy or over-crocheted, the piece will have a messy appearance in spite of the work put into it. Simple edgings are always in good taste.

If a cigarette hole has burned into a luncheon cloth—particularly if it is near the edge, use an applique flower or fruit design over it, and no one will know the difference.

Fashion Forecast

Color will be the highlighted note of the new fashions. You can expect gay colors, muted colors with bright accents, and colors designed to flatter every coloring.

Bags are in many styles to fit the most fastidious taste. Draped bags are nice for dress-up occasions, and tailored bags with interesting trimmings are good for day-time wear.

Look for natural shantung and nylon fabrics for those smart town wear dresses. They both drape nicely to give good lines in this type of dress.

If you lean towards the practical, select at least one good suit for the coming months. You'll find short-waisted models for the shortie, and longer length jackets for the slender and willowy.

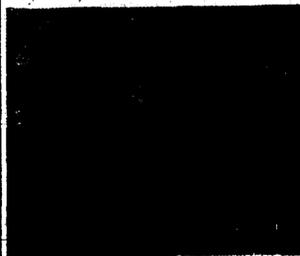

Kudzu Saves Soil And Provides Feed

Increasing Use Seen On American Farms

Erosion gullies, once the bugaboo of farming, are succumbing rapidly to a versatile leguminous vine known as kudzu.

In addition to growing vigorously, with proper management, under many unfavorable soil and moisture conditions, kudzu has the advantage of permanency. The crowns, or root system, will remain over a long period of years without replanting, if the vines are not overgrazed.

Kudzu crowns or roots will produce luxuriant and nutritious forage for hogs and other livestock.

When harvested for hay it has a feeding value as high as that of alfalfa, and also provides a nutritious forage for livestock grazing. It is especially recommended for ravines or other sites that are too badly gullied to be used for cultivated crops. It is equally important on more level acreage where it can be cut for hay as well as acting to conserve the soil.

From Dadeville, Ala., comes the report of an increase of 25 bushels per acre for corn that followed the plowing under of kudzu, or 40 bushels an acre. Most corn yields in that section averaged below 15 bushels.

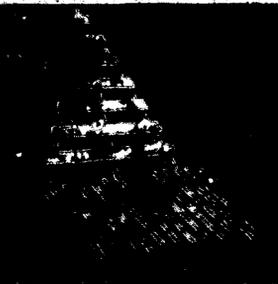

Labor Saving Cart

IDEAL MILK CART

Almost any dairy will find a cart a big labor saver, as well as a sanitary aid. Scales, milk pail, strainer, disinfectant and record books are all included in the cart shown above.

'Gateless' Cattle Gate

Cattle will not cross this "gate" although it is always open. Photo Lincoln Electric Co.

To make this "gate" dig a hole approximately 8 feet wide, 6 feet across, reinforce all sides at top with 4 inch square concrete slabs, embedding ends of six 5-inch channels for cross supports.

Cut 13 lengths of 2 inch pipe and space 4 inches apart. Weld pipe each side to tops of channels using 3/16 inch rod for mild steel.

Controlling Blackleg Disease in Potatoes

Crop rotation and seed treatment are the two most important control measures for blackleg in potatoes, according to R. A. Schroeder of the University of Missouri.

Blackleg is an old potato disease caused by a bacteria that thrives in cool damp weather. If dipped in a good seed disinfectant, there will be little infection when the seed is planted on clean land.

Save Bees From an Insecticide Death

While the dusting and spraying of farm crops must be regulated upon approved practices for each individual crop, in general the use of DDT and other insecticides should be employed before blossoms appear. In general, by following this practice, it is possible to reduce the loss among bees to such a point that it is of no economic importance. Do not spray or use insecticides except upon a given method of procedure.

SEWING CIRCLE PATTERNS

Dropped shoulders accent a trim, neat waist, soft gathers and a bow tie give a dainty feminine air. Certain to win you many compliments.

Cool Nightie ESPECIALLY nice for the slightly larger figure is this neat and delightfully cool night dress. Narrow lace makes a pretty design to match the flattering sweetheart neckline. The back is slit to the waist and there's a narrow belt to tie. Use a colorful all-over print with crisp white trimming.

JUST

Considered It They stood in front of the jeweler's shop. Said she, coaxingly: "Darling, look at that lovely diamond ring." "Yes, dear," he replied; "if ever I have to refuse you a diamond ring, it will be one like that."

A female shopper is a woman who can hurry through a department store aisle 18 inches wide without brushing against the piled up glassware, and then drive home and knock the doors off a 12-foot garage.

Enough Is Enough "Aren't you glad now, said father, 'what you prayed for a baby sister?'" "Yes," replied Tommy, after another glance at the twins. "And aren't you glad I only prayed twice?"

Another Miss "I don't like your heart action," said the doctor to the young man. "But, of course, you've had previous trouble with angina pectoris." The youth heaved a deep sigh. "Yes, doctor, I have," he replied; "but you haven't got her name quite right."

New definition of a pacifist: A man who can take part in a peace conference without getting into a fight.

This One Is Good

Francis X. Bushman was summoned to New York in the early days of the movies to sign a contract with Metro. His press agent, who wanted the matinee idol to receive a substantial salary increase, filled his pockets with two thousand pennies and dropped handfuls of them as he and the actor walked from Grand Central Terminal toward the Metro office. Children, then grownups, followed them to pick up the coins. Metro officials, looking out their windows, judged Bushman's popularity by the vast throng that dogged his footsteps and paid him $1,000 a week without argument.

Coming Exhibit at Fair

Albuquerque, N. M.—The art of canning will have a prominent place in the home Science exhibits at the New Mexico State Fair this year; officials predicted more varied entries in spite of shortages, preliminary arrangements for this department got under way this week. Meats, vegetables and fruits will be exhibited by contestants from all over the state. Since the contest is an open one, all homemakers are urged by the department to set aside examples of their canning for entry.

1946 rules will be similar to those of previous years. All jars must be labeled with the names and addresses of the exhibitors, and items will be judged on selection, color, pack, condition and flavor. Neatness and cleanliness of containers is also an important factor.

FINANCING BUSINESS IS BANK BUSINESS.

Banks long have been the principal source of helpfulness, inspiration and credit to small business. For example, in the last full pre-war year, tabulation of loans by 5,000 banks (only one-third of the country's banks), totaled 24 million loans to business—a total of 39 billion dollars and an average of $1700 per loan.

Lending to small business is truly a big business, and one that banks are best equipped to handle. Today, and in the months and years ahead, when the efforts of small business will be so important in getting our economic machine back on the track, we pledge ourselves to give every possible assistance and to make every possible loan to local business concerns. Come in and talk over your problems with us.

Hawaii Expects to Become The 49th State in 1947

HONOLULU.—Citizens here almost without exception expect statehood for Hawaii as the 49th state in 1947. They believe they deserve it, have earned it, in peace and war, and all factions have composed their differences and are presenting a united front in favor of statehood.

Your Hometown Reporter made a trip over the island of Oahu en route to the atomic bomb tests at Bikini and, in talking to many representative citizens, gained at least an over-all picture of how and why all opposition to statehood in the islands has melted away during the war years.

Lorria Thurston, publisher of the Honolulu Advertiser and an anti-statehood advocate until a few years ago, expressed the main fear in the minds of many citizens over statehood, a fear which has been dispelled. That fear was Jap domination of the islands due to high birth rate among the Japs and their likely un-Americanism. The past few years, however, have shown that the Jap population and birth rate rapidly are declining and the island loyal to the American cause. Not one act of sabotage or any other un-American act was found during the years of war.

Another fear was the effect of statehood upon the sugar industry, mainstay of Hawaiian economic life. With sugar quotas set for three years, however, heads of the industry have come to feel that they will have a better chance for success in favorable laws pertaining to the industry if they can align themselves with the other sugar-growing states of Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida, than by remaining as a territory. Sugar in Hawaii is a 60-million-dollar industry. Next comes the pineapple industry at approximately 50 million dollars, with tourists rated as the third industry and shipping the fourth.

A Serious Drawback

One factor may have to be changed if statehood comes to the islands. That is the present land laws. These land laws have been at once a blessing and a curse to the progress and growth of the islands. They are a result of the land grants made by King Kamehameha when he started out to democratize his kingdom and divide the land among the people. Five per cent of the land was retained as belonging to the king and the royal family. This land today is in the hands of the Bishop estate, and the rentals and proceeds go to support the schools of the territory. One-third of the lands was given to the various tribal chieftains and these lands today make up the large landed estates and can be leased only for a period of 30 years. Another third was set aside as public domain and these lands now are owned by the government of the United States, taken over when Hawaii became a territorial possession. The remaining third was given over to the people and it is only this third of the land which can be bought and owned in fee simple. Hence no race or group ever can obtain control of the lands, a fact which has up to this time been fortunate, with so large a percentage of the population being Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Portuguese and other nationalities. But at the same time this situation has prevented any large influx of white population, since land is at a premium and there can be no large real estate development such as has taken place in this country.

Also surprising to this writer is the fact that there is little acreage left for further agricultural enterprises. Our informant declared that all the land in the islands available for sugar, that is, land from sea level to about 1,500 feet in elevation, is already in pineapples; and the balance of the land above 1,500 feet is in violation government land in woodland for water supply. The timber acts as a "blotter."

Water is most important for the growing of both sugar cane and pineapples, for almost every foot is irrigated from artesian wells. This leaves only small valleys and coastal areas for farming, dairying and ranching and for the cultivation of fruit, bananas, coffee and other products, including various vegetables and small grains.

Population of the islands now exceeds 200,000 and the value of the real estate and resources exceeds that of any other state at the time of admission to the Union with the possible exception of Oklahoma.

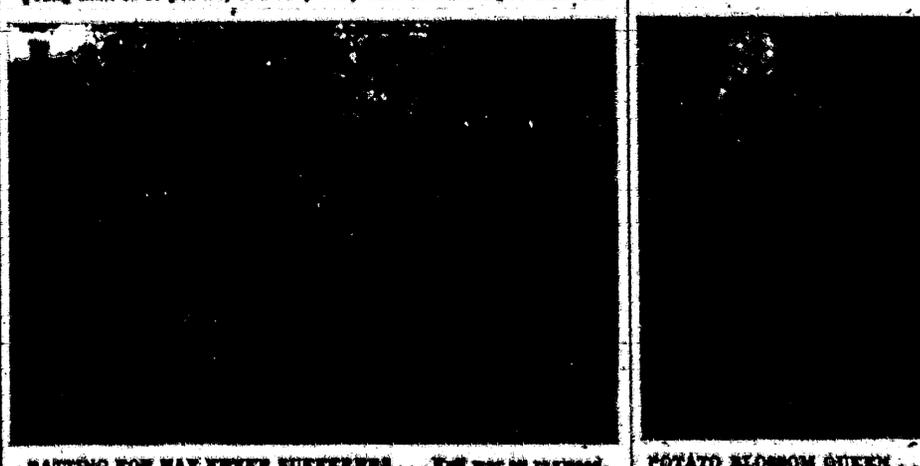

FARMERS TAKE TO AIR . . . More than 500 flying farmers from Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana left their tractors and combines to fly to Lafayette, Ind., to attend the first annual flying farmers' field day at Purdue university, and to prove that the airplane will play an important part in Midwest agriculture. The new group, which has 1,055 members, watched demonstrations.

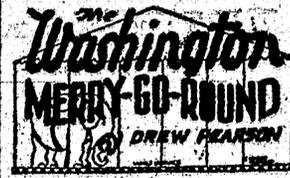

THREE-MAN DECONTROL BOARD . . . Future price control will rest with a three-man price decontrol board. Recently named to the board by President Truman are, left to right: Daniel W. Bell, Washington, D. C., former undersecretary of the treasury; Roy L. Thompson, New Orleans Federal Land Bank president, chairman; and George H. Mead, Dayton, Ohio, former chairman of the industrial advisory board under the NRA and member of advisory board of Office of War Mobilization.

RED-DROPPER BABY—THEN AND NOW . . . When Richard Roseman was born in 1941, he weighed just 24 ounces. Doctors fighting to save the life of the tiny mite fed him with an eye-dropper, as shown at left. He was kept in an incubator. Today, Richard is a strapping young man of 46 pounds, of sturdy body and well-developed muscles.

BATTING FOR MAY FEVER SUFFERERS . . . Full war on ragweed, which is blamed for most of the suffering of hay fever victims, was opened in Brooklyn as a campaign got underway to eradicate the weed in vacant lots. Photo shows city employees spraying a luxuriant growth of the pesty weed with a herbicide, dichlorophenylacetic acid. In six to eight weeks, treated plants die from a 50 per cent solution of spraying. Complete control of ragweed is now possible.

SPECTRE OF ANOTHER WAR EN ROUTE TO PARIS.

Underway in the palace of Luxemburg is the conference on which so many mothers set their hearts, for which so many mothers' sons gave their lives—the conference to win the peace.

Some 13,000,000 men in the American armed forces alone fought four long years—with the hope that it might be the last time human beings would have to go through the terrible ordeal of war.

In the Paris conference comes the climax of their dreams, and already disillusionment has begun to set in. Already the dreams are tinged with nightmare—the spectre of another war.

Here are some of the distressing facts this conference has to face in trying to chart the peace of the world:

- 1. Historians criticized Woodrow Wilson because he was slow in negotiating peace. But he got started two months after the armistice and finished six months later, a total of eight months after the war. In contrast, it is now almost one year after the armistice with Japan and 15 months after the armistice with Germany, yet the final peace conference is only getting started.
2. The longer peace is delayed, the more the Allies fall out; the more the other nations forget their gratitude. So the longer the delay, the harder it is to negotiate a permanent peace.
3. Russia deliberately has endeavored to postpone the peace. This conference could have been held long ago if the Soviet had not said no.

DELAY TACTICS PLANNED

Moscow's delay tactics were by no means accidental. They were carefully planned, and with three motives behind them:
A. The longer peace was delayed the more time Russia got to nail down its hold on the Balkan satellites—Hungary, Austria, Anti-Russian factions had to be stamped out; pro-Russian factions trained to carry on. This could not be done overnight.

B. The more uncertainty and unrest occurred in the non-Soviet-occupied countries—France, Belgium, the Netherlands—the greater the likely growth of Communism.

C. Finally, Moscow did not want the Red armies converging back to Russia. There wasn't food to feed them, and their quick return risked economic, political turnovers.

Thus, ever since V-J Day, Russia has been the greatest obstacle to early peace.

AMERICANS NOT BLAMELESS

In this peace conference, however, not everything is black or white. There is some gray shading in between.
And in real fact, American diplomacy during the early stages of this greatest of all diplomatic endeavors was just as guilty of sabotaging the peace as the Russians—perhaps more so. I say more so, because we pride ourselves on being more advanced, more alert, more idealistic.

Yet actually, our diplomats were just as woefully unprepared for peace as the army and navy were for war at Pearl Harbor. When it should have been ready for the most important peace offensive in history of the world, the state department was caught completely napping.

Congress has spent several months of intensive study to ascertain who was responsible for Pearl Harbor; yet no one has lifted a finger to probe the equally important disaster of our unpreparedness for peace.

If senators probed the files of the state department, or even their own files, significant facts would come to light.

OUT-TRUMAN TRUMAN

Capital observers credit Sen. Jim Mead of New York with a new investigating verve which may out-Truman Truman. Significant new venture in radio: 350 local streetcar and traction companies throughout the U. S. are inaugurating a coast-to-coast radio program. Working under American Transit association, they represent 23 billion annual streetcar riders. No men from the Dallas naval air station were permitted to attend church the other Sunday. Officially speaking, they were not barred from attending church, merely barred from taking a bus into town. Since there was no chaplain at the station, it amounted to the same thing. Lieut. Condr. Laid Johnson issued the order.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Assistant Secretary of State Bill Boston leaves soon on a good-will tour of Latin America. U. S. broadcasters over 10 transmitters to Soviet Russia now are giving the common people of Russia the truth about the news. Maxim Litvinov was considered for Russian ambassador to Argentina. However, Stalin decided Litvinov's appointment would arouse American suspicions. Jim Newman, who piloted the Mulholland hill in Congress, resigns soon.

OVERNIGHT GUEST

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE STORY TOLD BY: ALEX BROWN, FBI operator, Inspector Topo and Mrs. Kell met in the Maine woods. Topo is a man murdered at a time called by Mrs. Kell as the Maine woods. He was believed to be Mrs. Kell's friend who was found in hospital with head injuries. His absence, Kell was certain, admitted that he had killed him. Kell claimed he was looking for his wife. Topo and Brown went out to judge where Kell, another friend of Ledforge's, was staying. They knew by now that the murdered man was not Ledforge. They also knew that a woman and man were present about the time the murder was committed.

CHAPTER XI

"Sure—even if I have to put on a song and dance to keep them amused."

He hurried away, and the old man turned to watch the proceedings here. Adam and Cumberland came beside him.

The wrecking-crew must have worked late last night to accomplish so much. Two pieces of good girth had been cut and trimmed to serve as shears; their butts anchored on the rim of the ledge, against iron bars set in holes drilled in the solid granite; their tips crossed and lashed with chains from which a steel pulley and cable were suspended. The shears were guyed with wire cables carried back and anchored to trees in the fringe of the wood behind. Men were busy tightening the cables, tending the winch, shouting questions and commands.

At the edge of the precipice the foreman, on his hands and knees, watched a man who swam nude in the quarry pool below. The fall from the pulley descended beside this man. He floated on his back, paddling with his hands, and called up: "More slack, Mike! I must get a hitch around the axle!"

"O.K.," said Mike, and waved his hand in signal. The winch creaked; the ropes whirred; the steel fall descended six inches, a foot, two feet deeper into the water.

"I'll try it now," the swimmer decided. "Don't take any strain on it while I'm down."

He made a neat surface dive; his heels gleamed in the sun. He seemed to be out of sight for a long time; but at length Adam saw a pale blur in the gray water, and then the man's head appeared. He rolled on his back, lay breathing deeply for a moment, shouted:

"Take up on it now! I think I've got it! Don't lift—just draw it tight!"

The fall drew taut and stopped; and the swimmer once more descended.

When this time he broke the surface again, he swam a little away from the chain. "Now take it up!" he called. "Till the front end is out of water, so I can see if the hook is set all right!"

The winch revolved, and the fall began to climb laboriously upward. The man swam away a rod or two and waited.

So out of that gray concealing water, wheels appeared, and a fender, a mudguard, the front of a streaming radiator. . . . Adam's heart leaped, driven by an intense excitement. This was, after all, no more than a car which some one had wished to hide; yet its resurrection from that hiding place, where it might have lain forever, had in it something dramatic, almost ominous. It was like the emergence of a monster, slowly, from its lair; slow, lethargic—and ponderous with consequences!

"Hold it!" called the man below. The winch stopped while he swam toward the car. Adam felt some one beside him. Here was Topo, on hands and knees, peering down; the District Attorney just beyond.

"O.K.," shouted the swimmer triumphantly. "You can have it! Take it away!"

He began to swim toward the farther side of the quarry, where his clothes lay on a rock in the sun. Mike Frame waited till the swimmer was well clear before he gave the signal.

And at last it was here just below them. It hung six feet beyond their reach, its bottom toward them. They all stared at the bottom of this car, searching it with eyes absurdly intent, as though it might have some secret to reveal.

And then suddenly Topo stood up; he spoke to Mike, in sharp irritated tones. "What are you going to do with it?" he demanded.

"Eat," said Mike. "Do with it? Why—drag it out of there! That's what you wanted, wasn't it?"

Topo's temper flared. The old man was tired, impatient. "How?" he insisted. "You can't reach out and pick it like an apple, and you've got no way to swing these shears in. You've wasted all this time—and it's so far away now as it ever was! Max, you—"

They abruptly checked himself. His eyes were fixed on the car, hanging now within ten feet of them, six feet out of reach. He moved to one side, approaching the edge of the precipice as closely as possible. The men on the winch continued to wind; the car rose higher. And Topo called sharply:

"Stop! Stop it!"

Mike moved his hand in signal. Max Cumberland came to Topo's side, asked: "What is it, Topo?"

The old man was staring in at lence at the car; and Adam came to see. And then he felt the inside of himself suddenly slip away like wheat out of a bin from which the bottom is removed.

The windows of the coupe were closed, and they were somewhat clouded by a gray deposit of silt accumulated during the days the car had lain here submerged. These windows were, incredibly, not broken; the car must, turning in the air as it fell, have landed on its wheels. The window toward them was that on the car's left side, next to the wheel.

And against the glass of this window, from within, a hand was pressed!

Four slender fingers touched the window, from knuckle to first joint; the backs of four fingers. There was upon one of them a ring, a gold band, a wedding-ring. The hand with the fingers pressed against the glass had moved a little, in a short arc that left a smeared quarter-circle in the silt on the glass. There was in this mark a terrible suggestion that the hand had moved in signal, in a last pitiful appeal!

They could see the rest of this hand dimly, the forearm faintly;

"You promised to tell me if Mrs. Kell was found!"

but nothing else at all save one thing: about the wrist, something like a black cord was knotted; seen even thus dimly, it seemed to have been knotted tightly, to have cut into the soft flesh.

And this was, clearly, a woman's hand and arm.

Cumberland muttered: "Topo, there's someone in the car." Topo nodded. "It's Mrs. Kell," he said briefly. "You'll have to—" He checked, his thoughts absorbing him. "Lower the car again, till it's awash," he directed absently. "Swim out or make a raft or something—get her out of there quick if you can. Send for the ambulance. Take her to the undertaker's. I'll meet you there."

He turned and strode away, Adam beside him; they reached the car and started down the road. They came to where Ned Quill held two cars of newspaper men in restraint. Adam turned off the road, crashing through the underbrush to pass them; and Topo leaned out and shouted:

"Let them go on up, Ned! There's a murdered woman in the car, up there. They've got a right to be on the spot!"

Then as the newspaper cars started up the hill, he bade Adam stop, called Quill.

"Ned," he said. "I'll be in town at the undertaker's. Come up there when you've seen the Tennant girl."

"Right," Quill agreed; and he said: "Doctor Medford's on his way down here. I talked to him on the phone awhile ago."

Topo nodded. "Good. We'll watch for him," he agreed.

They went on. When they turned into the main road, Topo pointed to an approaching car, cried sharply: "Hold up! There's Medford!"

Doctor Medford alighted to speak to them; and his tone was respectful. "You were right, Inspector," he said.

"Found a drug in him, eh?" Topo asked.

"Gas in his lungs," the medical examiner replied. "And doped. Chloral, I think; but morphine too. I'm not an expert on such stuff. We don't have much of it to do, up here. But after you'd told me what to look for—"

Topo nodded. "They're getting a woman—dead—out of the quarry up here, Doctor," he said. "I want to know how she was killed. And if she'd been given chloral, or morphine, I want to know that too. I'll be at Will Benson's."

And a moment later, as they started on, Topo touched Adam's arm. "Pull up at that filling station, Adam," he directed. "There's bound to be a phone there. Call up Ned York. Tell them to find out whether Bob Flint, that young pilot, had been given chloral, or some other knockout drops."

Adam went to obey, and Topo sat deep in thought. His eyes were closed, so that he did not see young Joe Danie at the wheel of a car that presently went racing by.

Adam returned from the telephone. "They'll get it," he said briefly. He put the car in motion, then asked: "Why do you want that, Topo?"

Topo said abstractedly: "I figure he had Flint fly him up here, and back to New York in the morning. He could give Flint a drink of doped whiskey, say. Flint would take off in the plane, pass out after he got into the air, and crash. Then he couldn't testify."

Adam uttered an ejaculation: "That's awful!" "I know it," Topo agreed. "But who, Topo?" Adam insisted. "Who is 'he'?"

Topo said impatiently: "Oh, let me alone, son!" And he said no further word till they came into the borders of North Madderston. Then at last he spoke.

"Go to the jail, Adam," he directed. "We'll get something out of Kell now—enough so we'll know how to go at Holdom."

Adam nodded. "Something happened on their trip up here Friday, all right," he agreed. "But I don't see what it was!"

Topo said briefly: "It was a plant, a game, a play somebody tried to stage."

"How do you figure that?" "Because Holdom told Kell to hit him over the head."

Adam nodded. "That's right." He asked eagerly: "That was to make Holdom look like a victim too? Then you think he—"

Topo said grimly: "I think some one made a sucker out of Holdom. Used him. Holdom's a crook, Adam. Always has been, in little ways. You heard Mat, at the quarry; heard what he said about Ledforge filing charges against Holdom, with the Stock Exchange authorities."

"You figure Holdom was double-crossing Ledforge, and knew he would be found out, and killed the old man?"

Topo said quizzically: "Ledforge filed those charges himself yesterday, Adam. How could he do that if Holdom killed him Friday?"

They reached the jail behind the courthouse; and when barriers had been removed they came to Kell.

They found the big man sitting on the cot in his cell, his head between his hands. He did not look up at the sound of their steps, nor when they paused before his cell door. The guard who had led them thus far knew Adam of old, and at the young man's word led them here; and Topo spoke, gently.

"Kell?" he said. Kell roused, and he came slowly to his feet, the bars between them. He stared; and then he seemed to remember them.

"I know you, sir," he muttered. "You promised to tell me if Mrs. Kell was found."

"Yes, Kell," Topo assented; and he added harshly: "She is found!" "Where is she, sir?"

Topo said pitilessly: "The coupe was in the quarry, Kell. We got it out today. She had been murdered; and tied in it, tied to the wheel, before it was run over the precipice into the quarry."

"Dead?" Kell whispered, holding his breath.

"Yes, dead," said Topo; and the breath came out of Kell in a long sigh, and the big man shivered like a stricken animal. He backed away, his hands up before his face; he slumped down on the cot again. Topo added harshly: "I think you killed her, just as you tried to kill Holdom!"

"I didn't, sir!" he protested. "I didn't!"

"Mr. Holdom says you did!" Topo declared. "You tried to kill him! Because he was chasing your wife, Kell!"

"No, sir, I didn't, sir!" Kell mumbled: "Dead? She's dead?"

"Of course," Topo insisted. "You killed her."

"No, sir. Not!" "Then did Holdom? Was that why you tried to—"

"No, it wasn't Mr. Holdom," Kell answered. "I took him back, left him by the road. But when I came home, she was gone."

And the big man cried suddenly, starting to his feet: "I meant to hit him easy, the way he told me to; but when the wrench started down, I thought about the way he had—bothered her; and I hit harder than I'd meant to."

He caught himself. "Where is she, sir?"

"They're bringing her to town," Topo told him. "What did you do to Mr. Ledforge, Kell? Or did Holdom—"

And Kell cried piteously: "Let me alone, sir! Wait. Let me see her first. I can't believe it. Let me see her. Then I'll tell you anything."

NEITHER MAJOR PARTY HAS A CLEAR-OUT PLATFORM

I TALKED RECENTLY with two representatives of the people in congress. One a Republican, the other a Democrat. Both are candidates for re-election. During their service in congress neither has, at all times, voted with the majority of his party. The Republican told me he differed radically with some of his party leaders; that his views on major issues did not match the views of some other Republicans; that he could not present his views as representing anything more than himself; he could not speak for the party on anything other than a general condemnation of the opposition. He said the party has established no policies. If elected, as he expects to be, it will be because a majority of the voters of the district believe in his ability to best represent them. He will feel under no obligation to support any set of policies because the party has annunciated none.

The Democratic candidate told me much of the same thing. He said that during his two years in the house he had been entirely "on his own" in determining what proposed legislation to support, and what to oppose, for the party, as such, did not prescribe any policies those elected on the Democratic ticket were expected to follow, and there were no policies prescribed for the future. The party label is meaningless as a guide to the voter. The choice is between candidates rather than between parties.

Such are the conditions on the eve of an unusually important national election. The voters have no assurance they will get from either party what they, as individuals, believe is best for the nation. Some Republicans voted to continue OPA; others to kill it. The same situation is found among those elected on the Democratic ticket. What was true of OPA has been true of many other issues.

Not one in a hundred of the voters of a state or district has an acquaintance with, or a personal knowledge of, the candidates on either ticket for either senator or representative. The party label tells them nothing, and the voters must go blindfolded to the polls because the directing leaders of both parties cannot agree on what basic principles the party should endorse. Political fear is at the bottom of it all: fear of offending some minority; fear of losing a few votes.

The basis of our government by the people is the two-party system, but that system becomes valueless when the parties refuse to provide for the voters any statement of the principles for which they stand. The party label does not provide a guide. He can only vote blindly for candidates. The election is not a contest between the Republican and Democratic parties; it is a contest between the Bill Smiths and the Ed Joneses.

SEAS NO LONGER PROTECT US

FROM THE TIME George Washington admonished the young nation to beware of European entanglements to the day when President Wilson asked congress for a declaration of war against Germany, that admonition of Washington's had been the guiding principle of our foreign policy; that plus the Monroe Doctrine. For more than a century we had felt secure behind our ocean barriers, both to the East and West.

Today those ocean barriers do not provide the security they once did. Science has demolished them with rockets, capable of a speed faster than sound, carrying a threat of destruction not only to our long sea coasts, but also to every part of the nation. For the future we must face the possibility of atomic bombs being hurled at us from any part of the world. We cannot again ignore the rest of the world. Isolation no longer can be an American policy. We must do our full part to subvert or control the passions that for centuries have affected Europe. We must have a foreign policy that recognizes new conditions. It should be a policy of world leadership, as we are today the greatest, and no longer the youngest or weakest, of the world nations.

MANAGEMENT insists production is the proper basis of wages; labor says it is profits. Fact is production leads to profits, and profits is the more convenient measuring stick. Wages based on profits will encourage production.

BOTH THE ARMY and navy did a commendable job of demobilizing the men and women of the armed forces. The same kind of a job is needed in the army of civilian clerks employed by both services. While the fighting forces have been demobilized, the desk forces have increased, and still are increasing. These civilian employees doing manual labor have been released, but not those holding desk jobs. They are not asking to be discharged.

Lily pads are buttonhole outlined in green and filled in with running stitch.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Let a child's going to bed be a pleasant experience. Then he won't be as apt to rebel at the idea. Never send him to bed as a form of punishment. Builds up wrong attitude.

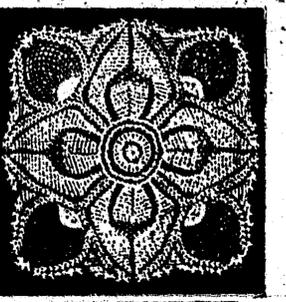

If you wish to mix cheese with other ingredients to be cooked, cut the cheese in small pieces or grate it.

To remove dust from wall paper, wipe with a soft wall brush or soft cloth. Hard rubbing will streak and roughen the paper.

To help restore the original lustre of gilt picture frames rub with a sponge moistened slightly with turpentine.

A noted fashion authority advises—buying a hat last when planning a new ensemble. It is then simpler to make a better selection in regard to color, material and style.

Sandpaper is useful in cleaning suede shoes. After a thorough brushing, go over them lightly with fine sandpaper, then follow with a cloth which has been moistened with vinegar.

Hold the Line
The Office of Price Administration died officially on June 30, 1946. Before it had been inoperative ten days, everybody whose life and work were affected by it knew the nation had sustained no serious loss. Calamities that were supposed to fall upon the consumers of America did not happen. Some prices rose a little; others fell. The law of supply and demand was still working. It had not been on vacation.

In the building industries, among real estate and lumber people, timid home seekers had predicted the wildest of run-away prices because of the unprecedented housing demand. Everything necessary to make prices sky-rocket was present, but the crepe-hangers were disappointed. Industrial leaders went into huddles and resolved for moderation, regardless of pressure from eager buyers.

Returned to Life
The dead bureau was resurrected on July 25 by political pressure. One powerful factor was the influence of thousands of bureaucrats whose easy jobs were all but lost. Lame and weakened by legislative modifications, the OPA lives and has certain functions. But those 25 inactive days proved something: The longer we lived without the OPA the more useless it appeared.

Individuals who want to stay in government, whether they serve any useful purpose there or not, may be expected to keep on trying, during the next few months, to justify a supposed necessity for governmental price-fixing. In reality, increasing production may be depended upon to hold most prices down. A few of some things will advance in spite of anything the OPA can do.

Look for Advances
In subsidized industries, where sharp advances were expected at first, operators are using moderation in making upward revisions. While industrial leaders "hold the price line," channels of trade are filling up steadily with new production and growing stocks hold prices down. Meat is only an example. Livestock hurries to market. Steaks and chops are on the menu again.

There will be exceptions! It is likely that the human race will never be free from opportunists ready to profiteer when there are no restraints and crafty enough to run black-markets when restrictions are in force. Maybe there actually was an unhappy couple in California on July 2; whose condiments advanced in price from 15c to 40c while they were being toasted. Anyway it was a good story.

Good Citizenship
We, the American people, are heirs of a dearly bought liberty. We have an opportunity to prove that we are worthy to inherit it. We can do this by a fair approach to every price problem. Whether we are manufacturers, marketers, or consumers, we have a part to play. We do not need anyone to play the role of dictator. Truly no price was ever fixed successfully by statutory law.

Consumers can keep prices right by shunning racketeers who play their customers for suckers, by patronizing merchants who appreciate their confidence and by refusing to buy unnecessary things. We should be slow to retaliate against price rises that are needed. If workers, especially, will let growing production adjust prices before calling for higher wages, it will go far toward hastening recovery for everybody.
