EVERYBODY INVITED

George H. Simpson

George H. Simpson, born July 28, 1889 in Odessa, Texas, came to Corona when a small boy, arriving before the R. R.

On Nov. 14, 1909 he was united to Miss Grace Sloan in marriage. The Simpson and Sloan families are two of the finest and most beloved pioneer families in this section of the country.

From young manhood Mr. Simpson owned and operated ranches in the vicinity of Corona until 1942 when he sold his Corona holdings and purchased first a ranch at Chavez, N. Mex., near Roswell, and later a large ranch near Ramon and had other property at Lon.

The Ramon Ranch was his headquarters, and it was there he met his death Friday, Oct. 11, 1946, about 4:30 P. M.

At noon that day, he ate a hearty meal, expressing his appreciation of the good food, and intended spending the afternoon taking care of some business, but friends came for him to join them in a coyote hunt. His love for sport induced him to go along. For a time they chased a coyote in the car, then Mr. Simpson got out with his gun in hand and ran after the coyote, on foot, trying to shoot it. Some one else shot the animal. They were all standing talking about what a large wolf it was when he turned, talking, as if he were returning to the car, when suddenly he fell backwards.

They gave him artificial respiration, but his breath came shorter and shorter and further apart, until in about fifteen minutes it stopped altogether.

A Dr. was called who said death was painless, from a heart attack.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Simpson, a son Ralph C. Simpson who served in U.S. Navy during the war, two daughters, Mrs. Elaine Carson of Albuquerque and Miss Mary Simpson, who is a senior in University of New Mexico, who also served in U. S. Army during the war, a mother, Mrs. Mary J. Simpson of Corona, two sisters, Mrs. Seluria Atkinson of Corona and Mrs. Jla Sultmeister of Lamy, N. M., a brother Dan C. Simpson of Hegerman, N. M., and two grandchildren, Charlotte and Calvin Courson.

The funeral services were held Sunday at 3 P. M. from the Ballard Chapel, Roswell, N. M., with the Rev. A. A. Dulaney, pastor of the First Baptist Church conducting the services. The Casket Bearers were: Sterling Martin, Crayton Richards, Claude Meadows, Lewis Merrett, Cliff Ord Switzer, Frank Sultmeister, R. E. P. Warden and George Caraway. Interment was in South Park Cemetery of that city.

Mr. Simpson was a fine citizen, taking an interest in all kinds of social and civic work that benefited his community, especially schools, serving for years on Corona School Board.

He was a kind neighbor, a generous and loyal friend. Every one who knew the family is grieved over this tragedy and their hearts go out to them in this sad hour.

New Frazer Car on Display

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Zumwalt of the Lincoln County Motors held open house last Sunday from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. to display the new Frazer automobile at their show room which was formerly the Outlook building. The car embodies 1947 styling and engineering features designed to provide passenger safety as well as comfort and roadability.

This 100-horsepower motor car has an over-drive which provides fuel economy with quiet, smooth comfort; over drive is optional equipment. One of its safety features is a wide 5-inch wheel rim which provides greater steering safety and stability on curves. The windshield is approximately 100-square inches larger than other makes. Seat cushions are of air foam rubber.

Yes, the Lincoln County Motors have a nice car to display.

ONWARD SCHOOL SALE
NOW ON—PREHM'S.

I want at this time to thank the people of Lincoln County for their support in the 1946 campaign. If I am elected I will devote all of my time during the next two sessions of the Legislature in serving the people of my district as they want to be served and to truly represent them and their will. If I am defeated, I want to thank the opposing party and its candidate for representative for their efforts in making this a clean campaign.

Robert H. Ridge,
Candidate for Representative
30th District, Republican Ticket.

Hondo Soil Conservation

Range utilization checks have almost been completed in the Upper Hondo Soil Conservation District. Ranchers' estimates of normal forage varied from 50 per cent to 100 per cent of normal growth with a majority estimating 75 per cent normal feed production. Results of efforts made by ranches to reduce stocking to balance with forage produced during the past year became very obvious. Some elected to further reduce at this time to let the grass recover. Many requested that additional checks be made in the Spring to evaluate results of estimates on actual feed available at this time. Considerable interest was "brought to the surface" of ranchers attempting to stock only to the feed produced and available.

Carrizozo Methodist Church

F. J. Johnson, Pastor

Hi folks! I'm here! To be the pastor of Trinity. So what? Well that remains to be seen. Most of you have heard the rhyme, "This is the Church, this is the steeple open the door and see all the people." We hope so. Next Sunday in their respective churches. Ours is a constituent part of the great over-all church universal. So we are out to promote the whole and the part. I am praying that we may all be one some glad day but until that day comes, and it won't come of itself, we are compelled to steam ahead as we are. Our differences are not an essential, really.

If I make any errors blame it on my humanity and if I make any wise-cracks blame it on my Irish and not on any malice of intent. We hope you all may like us for the Kingdom of God sake for that is our greatest yearning. Let's get acquainted soon for we are here to dream to drift. Time is short and the need is great. Attend church regularly. We preachers have a God given commission and a message. Church School at 10 A. M. and Worship Service at 11 A. M. Good churches make a good town. There is no other way. Everybody cordially invited. Thank you.

District Sprayer

Bert Pffingsten, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Upper Hondo Soil Conservation announces that the district sprayer will swing into action for any rancher desiring to spray for lice and ticks this Fall. Poison has been ordered to not only take care of this spraying but for the grub spraying next Spring.

Mr. B. F. Pior's ranch in the Upper Hondo District astride the Bonita, near Angus, received considerable treatment this summer with the aid of District equipment. Mr. Pior took active steps to treat old bean field scattered all over his ranch to not only prevent further soil loss but to put them back into production. Excellent stands of crested wheat grass and rye have been obtained on about 90 acres after being terraced. Each of these fields have been "fenced out" of the range and stocking will be carefully supervised until the new grass crop is firmly established. Three additional stock tanks were constructed to permit better control of grazing.

"Down by the Wailing Wall" and we don't mean maybe! Well, last week being about the last of the campaign we were just about snowed under, so we neglected our proof reading, a little, and let some typographical errors slip into Petty's ad. For instance, "shopper" huy by "board" name instead of "brand" etc. We're sorry about it. No one mentioned it to us—but how we do hate those little gremlins that sneak in and blind us until the very last paper is off the press.

Announcement Mr. Jenkins for Sheriff

In this issue we are authorized to announce the candidacy on the Democratic ticket of Mr. Alex J. Jenkins for sheriff of Lincoln County. Mr. Jenkins has lived in Lincoln County all his life, is well known to the people and is highly regarded.

HESTER ANNOUNCES FOR COMMISSIONER

The Lincoln County News-Outlook has been authorized to announce the candidacy of Mr. Corbin Hester for commissioner of the 2nd District on the Republican ticket. Mr. Hester has served as commissioner before and understands the duties of the office.

The American nation will survive as a democracy no matter which party is in power. A senator may have seniority and may be a committee member, but unless he accomplishes something for his constituents a change is not a disadvantage. Gen. Hurley is well known in New Mexico; he is honest, reliable; understands problems not only of the state, but of national and international scope. Brilliant, able, trustworthy and of vast experience. A veteran also. Do you doubt that a veteran will not try to help veterans? No matter where a man is born when he becomes a citizen he is entitled to the privilege of holding office after one year or any number of years if he is capable.

By GRANTLAND RICE

BEFORE the record season just closed, it had always seemed to us that baseball's 154-game schedule should have been cut to 140 games. As a general rule all interest has been withering on the September vine for 12 or 14 of the major league entries. The year 1946 has told a different story in the way of attendance figures, but certainly not enough to justify any 14-game increase to 168 contests as proposed by a few club owners.

Ty Cobb

With the wild rush to sport after the war, this has been an abnormal year. You get the main idea when the Phillies, a tall-end contender, could approach the million mark at home. Most major league clubs play at least 32 exhibition games. The 168-game menu would therefore give ball players 200 games to handle between early March and October. This is more than most ball players can absorb without going stale. Three hours of baseball each day seems easy work. But three hours of hustling competitive sport each afternoon or night is another story.

Even with the 154-game schedule the number of weary, injured, bedraggled ball players is something greater than you might think. Ty Cobb told me once that 154 games was about all any hard-playing hustler could handle.

"In the old days," Ty said, "I wasn't a hold out. I simply didn't need or want all that early training and all of those exhibition games. I hunted all winter and kept my legs in shape. I remember in 1911 I didn't join the Tigers until they reached Evansville, six days before the season opened. That year I hit for .420 and stole 83 bases as I recall it. One answer was that I was still keen and fresh in August and September when a lot of the others were stale and tired."

Danger of Staleness

This seems to make sense. No athlete who has lost his keenness, who has grown stale, can be of much help. The right sort of ball player will keep in shape all winter, through golf or hunting. The spring training and the spring exhibition campaign has been badly overdone. Add 16 extra ball games to the present list and it will mean more baseball than most players could handle—and still retain the badly needed hustle.

Also with the additional 14 games suggested, ball players' salaries should be lifted from 10 to 15 per cent over the 1945 game pay. With the record attendances 1946 has offered, you can look for a rousing scrap on the part of the ball player for a big jump, even at 154 games. But who is going to see that the ball player gets this percentage increase above the demand he might make for the present schedule?

Roughnecks in the Ring

It was James J. Corbett, a great boxer and the smartest fighter the game has ever known in or out of the ring, who first set a rather sour example by being known as "Gentleman Jim."

For the ring is no spot for a gentleman, or anything approaching the same. And Jim Corbett was no gentleman in any ring. He told me this himself. The gentleman has his club or his box at the opera or track, but he is out of place.

It remained for Hughie Keogh, years ago, to tell the true story: "There was no high finance about the game of spelling mag.

When the dear old tab from Boston was the King. When we paid our honest tribute To the other tanks and jugs And the scores with the raw 'uns Was the thing.

"Fighting back adieu to its Traditions long ago, And kissed its grimy hand To sentiment, When they took it to the steam heat From the hall and rain and snow And a champion aspired To be a gent."

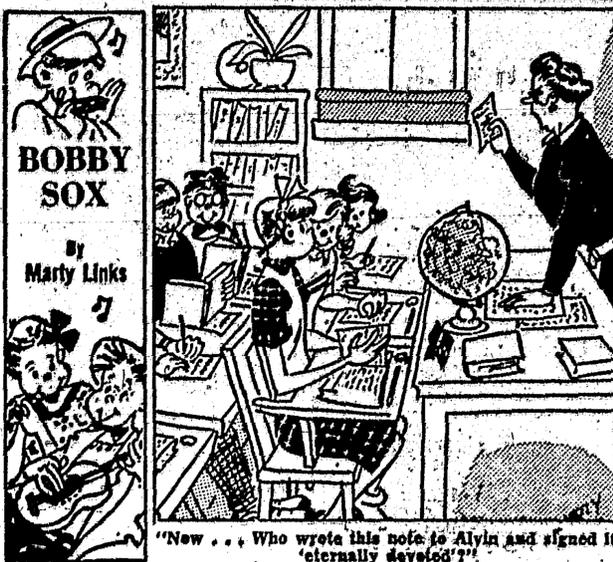

I still recall a story Jim Corbett once told me. Jim was fighting Joe Choynski on a barge.

"I nailed him in the ninth round," Jim said, "and Joe fell to the floor. I stooped and lifted him up. The cheers were terrific. But I lifted him so I could nail him again before he recovered. Then the boys were terrific." Gentleman Jim Corbett also knew his game.

Dempsey the Killer

Jack Dempsey, at heart, was about as close to being a gentleman, outside the ring, as anyone I've known. But only outside the ring. There he was kind, generous, thoughtful and courteous. Inside the ring he was a killer. Anything went. I saw him once giving Max Baer a big lesson.

"You can't do that," Baer said. "I'll get you." "You can get away with it once," Dempsey said. "I have."

Lincoln County News and CARRIZOZO OUTLOOK PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY Entered as second-class matter July 30, 1924, at the Post Office at Carrizozo, New Mexico, under the Act of March 3, 1879. Mrs. Era E. Smith, Editor-Publisher Friday, November 1, 1946

It used to be that Candidates for office promised the people better government, but now they promise them bigger pensions.

In this country the rich can take care of themselves and the government takes care of the poor. But the middle classes, not only hustle for themselves, but make the rich richer—and pay the taxes to support the poor.

Real estate prices have already begun to decline in some of the larger centers, with a 10 to 15 per cent drop.

Where did the expression, "float a loan" start? Maybe it comes from the fact that the fellow seeking the loan is often sunk.

It takes more than verbal boasting to get things done. Some one has to take time from their business and contribute time, and sole leather and muscle to put anything of consequence across.

The lack of interest in the coming election is general except for some local contests. Here in New Mexico the greatest interest is being shown in the race for United States Senator, which race is decidedly spirited. Some one sent me a letter postmarked Santa Fe which contained two long wined editorials according to the sender—"from the New York Herald Tribune, the country's leading Republican newspaper, and not exactly pro-Hurley." The sender omitted to sign, but I presume they are occasional readers of this paper. At any rate, I read every word of both editorials. In the first one, dated Nov. 28th, 1946 I read: "Much of the responsibility is Gen. Hurley's own. . . . the rest of it can be attributed to America's complete lack of an integrated foreign policy, which made it possible for Hurley to follow his own ideas in the Orient. When in school I studied logic and we took a lot of time finding major premises and minor premises from which we drew our conclusions. Taking the editorial statements for premises, I've drawn the conclusion, that Maj. Gen. Hurley is a good statesman to be able to formulate a pattern of his own in the Orient.

FINANCING BUSINESS IS BANK BUSINESS.
Banks long have been the principal source of helpfulness, inspiration and credit to small business. For example, in the last full pre-war year, tabulation of loans by 5,000 banks (only one-third of the country's banks), totaled 24 million loans to business—a total of 39 billion dollars and an average of $1700 per loan.
Lending to small business is truly a big business, and one that banks are best equipped to handle. Today, and in the months and years ahead, when the efforts of small business will be so important in getting our economic machine back on the track, we pledge ourself to give every possible assistance and to make every possible loan to local business concerns. Come in and talk over your problems with us.

More Than a Seven Letter Word

No matter how my feet cross our threshold, the "welcome" on our door mat will never wear out. Making you feel at home here has always been part and parcel of our idea as to how a bank should serve its customers. We'd be poor businessmen if we ever abandoned it. But there's a difference between a welcome that's spoken merely with the lips and one that springs from the heart. Anyone can tell the difference between the two. It's a real old-fashioned, Warmhearted welcome that you can expect to receive when you do business with us. It doesn't measure up to your expectations, we'd certainly appreciate your telling us about it, for that's the only way we can keep our standard of service high. Stop in and see what we mean.

JUDGE MABRY
New Mexico's
Outstanding Citizen
For Governor

Here is a man whose qualifications none can deny, whose 41 year record in our state is an inspiration to every man, woman and child in New Mexico—a man for whom you can vote with complete confidence and trust.

Judge Mabry was born on a farm in Kentucky and homesteaded (and proved) a 160 acre claim in New Mexico. He attended the University of New Mexico, taught school in New Mexico, married a New Mexico teacher, studied law and entered practice.

In 1910, when the constitution of New Mexico was drafted, he was sent from Curry County as the youngest delegate to the historic Constitutional Convention. He was again elected by the people of Curry County to represent them in the first State Senate.

In 1916 he moved to Albuquerque, and in 1936 was elected Judge. In 1938, he was elected to Supreme Court of New Mexico by the tremendous majority of 26,000 votes—a record vote, showing the high esteem in which he has always been held by the people of New Mexico. Judge Mabry served 8 years on the Supreme Court, resigning as Chief Justice to become candidate for Governor.

His election will bring to the office of Governor the able, honest, aggressive, distinguished, qualified and capable executive our State will need so desperately in these changing times.

We urge you to be sure to cast your vote on November 5 for Judge Thomas J. Mabry for Governor and Good Government in New Mexico.

In 1910, at the age of 23, he helped to write the Constitution of New Mexico.

For eight years he served on the Supreme Court of New Mexico, resigning in May, 1946 to become candidate for Governor.

Business Now Served by County Agent System

ONE OF the so-called visionary ideas of Henry Wallace which has just come into practical fruition since he was fired from the post of secretary of commerce and succeeded by W. Averell Harriman is being hailed by small business men as one of the most helpful ever conceived by the department as an aid to small business.

Back in the days when he was secretary of agriculture, Wallace liked the idea of the county agent system. When he became boss of the department of commerce, he "dreamed-up" the idea of adapting the system to business by establishment of a business "county agent" in every county of the nation. If county agents were helpful to farmers as business men, then why wouldn't county agents for small business be helpful to the little business men of the nation, he argued. And he set about to establish just that.

Announcement has lately been made that 33 of the 39 new field offices, planned as a part of Wallace's expanding service for small business at the grassroots, are in operation. The erstwhile secretary, who himself comes within the category of small business men, saw that the huge department of commerce with its tremendous resources for research and technical information was of substantial aid to big business. The machinery, however, was not set up for getting this information down to the small towns and rural sections and into the hands of the small business men of the country. His idea of business county agents was the answer. Now from the office of small business, directly through the new field offices or "county agents," the small business man will get what help he wants on management problems, marketing prospects, questions involving surplus materials, priorities and government contracts, basic facts on trade associations, construction and up-to-date data on the business population, life expectancy of certain enterprises and causes of business failures.

Provide Valuable Data

Under the Wallace plan these field offices were expected to work closely with the local individual business man and also with local chambers of commerce and other trade organizations in an effort to be a real help to the local communities and to bring to small business all the data, information and research on business and industrial subjects too expensive for the small business man to obtain for himself.

What will happen to this new program under the regime of Harriman, who always has been identified with big business with a capital "B," is not known. The chances are it will continue to function. At any rate, Harriman's appointment to succeed Wallace was hailed with delight by the big business interests, as one of their own and "as a mark of proven attainments with unquestioned devotion to American ideals."

Harriman is known as essentially a conservative with the viewpoint of a "chairman of the board," as a synthetic New Dealer, having contributed, it is said, equally to the Roosevelt and Willkie campaign funds. His mentor during the Roosevelt administration was the late Harry Hopkins. One of the old-time reporters here in Washington whose acquaintance with Harriman runs back over the years, declared:

"Main trouble with Harriman is that his zest is short-lived. He often shifts from one enthusiasm to another and he seldom stays put. He will need a good stable under-secretary to carry the heavy chores."

How About Railroad Case?

There is considerable speculation here, too, over what is likely to happen to the government's suit against the group of western railroads charging conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws, which will likely go to trial in Lincoln, Neb., some time this winter. Harriman, now a cabinet member, is a director and chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad, one of the defendants in the case. Until recently he was chairman of committee of directors of all the railroads, to which were referred rate cases and other problems for final settlement.

The government's suit grows out of the so-called agreement between the western railroads to fix and settle their own rates and other problems without first going before the Interstate Commerce commission for permission.

In 1943, in testimony before the Wheeler committee taking evidence on the bill to legalize the rate bureau practice, Harriman sent a statement to be read into the record to the effect that if these agreements constituted conspiracy, then what the railroads need is bigger and better conspiracy.

REDS CONVERT NAZIS
WASHINGTON. — U. S. intelligence officials have sent the White House a highly important report on Soviet operations in Germany showing how the Russians have converted large segments of the old German army to the Communist banner.

Nucleus of the new Red-Nazi army is the old German Liberation committee, organized by the Russians when they captured several thousand Nazis at Stalingrad. Field Marshal Frederick Von Paulus, who surrendered at Stalingrad, was chairman of this committee and appealed by radio to the Nazi army in Germany during the war, urging them to desert Hitler and come over to the Russians.

Today thousands of Von Paulus's men and officers have been put through Russian indoctrination schools designed to sell them on sympathy for the Soviet and are ready to govern the Soviet zone of Germany.

Here are other salient points in the U. S. intelligence report:

1. The Russian zone is now more than twice as efficient as a productive unit as the American zone and three times as productive as the British zone.

2. The Russians are prepared to set up a government of their own in Germany if the Americans and the British set up an autonomous German government in the western part of the Reich. It will be under Von Paulus.

3. The Russians are not retaining Germans for slave labor, as generally expected. They have already sent a million and a half captured Nazis from Russia to the Soviet zone of Germany, where each has completed one year's schooling under Soviet and German Communist instructors. Only a half million Germans still are being used in labor battalions in Russia. These are the leading Nazis whom the Russians know they can't either convert or trust.

The -U. S. intelligence report strongly recommends against an autonomous German government in the Anglo-American zone, as proposed by Secretary Byrnes, and urges instead agreement with the Russians on the control of Germany. It points out that unless agreement is reached, Germany again will be the source of a new world war in the not too distant future.

LA GUARDIA SEES STALIN

When UNRRA Director La Guardia and aides visited Moscow on their recent tour of Europe, the cadre party was eager to see Stalin. The Kremlin invitation, however, permitted only La Guardia and two other UNRRA officials to call on the top Soviet leader.

La Guardia, therefore, suggested to his aide, Joseph Lilly, that he divert the rest of the party by taking them to Lenin's tomb, where the body of the father of the Russian revolution is still perfectly preserved.

Late that night, the party re-assembled, and Lilly eagerly asked La Guardia what he had learned from Stalin. Replied Florence: "I got as much out of Stalin as you did out of Lenin."

NO MONEY FOR FINLAND

Finland has been known to Americans as the little country which always paid its debts. Now, however, the U. S. is getting the reputation among Finns as a country which breaks its financial promises.

What happened is that a year ago Finland sent a trade delegation here to arrange for a 70 million dollar loan from the Export-Import bank. The loan was promised, and on the basis of this promise, the Finns made purchases amounting to 35 million dollars in the United States, with partial commitments for the remaining 35 million dollars.

Part of the deal was that Finland was to secure coal from this country, which in turn would help increase her newspaper production. Many American newspapers made arrangements to buy this extra newspaper.

However, something has caused the state department to reverse itself. The Export-Import bank loan to Finland has been held up.

Actual, although unannounced reason for the reversal is the fact that Finland is now in the Soviet sphere of influence and it's feared that any financial help indirectly would aid Russia. However, there is considerable difference of opinion regarding this.

So far, however, Finns still are waiting.

ADMIRAL HALSEY GETS BORED

Admiral William (Bull) Halsey is beginning to fidget in his new job on the President's super-advisory board of five-star army-navy officers. Since his semi-diplomatic mission to South America, Halsey has had little to do. Privately, the tough little skipper hankers to take that job as vice president of Pan American Airways, which is still open to him. He isn't interested in the extra money. His sparkling temperament craves action, in or out of the navy.

TREASURE OF THE SEA

By George E. Walsh WNUU Release

THE STORY THIS FAR:

The crew of a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean pick up a schooner, which on a raft. Dick goes aboard. He is among some who are getting a schooner. They soon spot a sailing schooner. Only people aboard are demented Captain Bedford and his daughter, Rose. Tom and his pirates attempt to capture the schooner, but Rose turns them back, aided by Dick. During the night Tucu again attacks and captures Rose and Dick. He then begins a fruitless search for the "treasure" supposed to be aboard. Dick talks him into a deal. Tom is anxious to get the treasure and get away. Rose is started when she hears Dick's bargains.

CHAPTER VI

"Don't be sorry until you know what you're sorry for," she interrupted sharply. "I didn't say there was anything of value aboard. What Father says I'm not responsible for. He says a lot of crazy things."

"Then—then—" She waved him to silence as a footstep sounded on the stairs and Captain Tucu pushed his way into the room. He glanced from one prisoner to the other. "Well," he growled, "y'ready to tell?"

"As much as we know, captain," replied Dick quickly. "Neither of us knows where Captain Bedford hid the money. If we had known we'd have left the schooner before you came aboard."

Rose Bedford turned to face the half-breed, her cheeks flushed and angry. There was no fear in her. "If you think I'd tell if I knew where it was hidden," she said defiantly, "you're mistaken. You could never get it out of me."

Her defiance brought the blood into the old pirate's face and the devil in his eyes. He stepped toward her and caught an arm in his powerful grip.

"Y'wouldn't," he snarled. "Y'wouldn't, eh? Well, y'llittle she-devil, I'll show ye. I'll wring it out of ye, an—"

"Hold on, captain," interrupted Dick, "she doesn't know anything about it. Let up on her! You promised not to make war on her. Settle it with me."

"Well, what d'ye know about it?" was the savage retort, as he turned from the girl to him. "Y'tell me or y'll go back in the water where we found ye. Pretty damn quick, too!"

Dick was struggling between a strong desire to twist the man's neck and the need of extra caution in playing his hand skillfully. The latter finally triumphed. He smiled good-naturedly.

"If you dropped me overboard, captain, you'd lose both treasure and those jewels. Now you don't want to do that."

Tucu growled impatiently, expending his wrath by glancing from one to the other with wicked, malevolent eyes. He spat viciously on the floor, and then exploded:

"I'll give y'until tonight—sundown—to find out. If we ain't got the stuff by that time, y'got to find it for us—ye an' that witch! Y'get me? It's got to be found! I don't care how y'do it, so's it's done. If not we'll string the cap'n up by his thumbs 'til he remembers, an' ye an' this girl'll come next. If we can't do any better we'll tie y'up in the cabin an' set the schooner afire. Then ye an' the treasure can go to hell together."

"And the smuggled jewels?" queried Dick, smiling.

Captain Tucu regarded him an instant in silence, and then shook his head. "I ain't sure there ever was any jewels," he said suspiciously. "I may give y'one more chance to prove it. Then—then—ye'll wish y'd died on that raft. It would be much easier, I reckon, than the way ye'll go if y'disappoint me."

"I'll give y'until tonight—sundown—to find out. If we ain't got the stuff by that time, y'got to find it for us—ye an' that witch! Y'get me? It's got to be found! I don't care how y'do it, so's it's done. If not we'll string the cap'n up by his thumbs 'til he remembers, an' ye an' this girl'll come next. If we can't do any better we'll tie y'up in the cabin an' set the schooner afire. Then ye an' the treasure can go to hell together."

"I'll give y'until tonight—sundown—to find out. If we ain't got the stuff by that time, y'got to find it for us—ye an' that witch! Y'get me? It's got to be found! I don't care how y'do it, so's it's done. If not we'll string the cap'n up by his thumbs 'til he remembers, an' ye an' this girl'll come next. If we can't do any better we'll tie y'up in the cabin an' set the schooner afire. Then ye an' the treasure can go to hell together."

Tucu Is Convinced There Is No Treasure

As the search proceeded, and nothing was found, the half-breed's temper grew short and surly. He kept the deck most of the time, his eyes on Dick, who was lashed to the foremast, or on Rose. Captain Bedford had been held a prisoner in the fo'c's'le where he had been subjected to certain third-degree methods of Tucu's invention; but the wandering mind of the demented man was a treacherous thing to depend upon.

In time the old man's very willingness to talk of the hidden treasure disgusted them.

"Hell," muttered Tucu in disgust. "He never had no treasure."

He strode on deck, his eyes blood-shot with anger. Seizing Rose by the arm, he said: "Y've been lyin' ter me. There wasn't no treasure aboard."

"I never said there was," she replied coolly. "You took Father's word for it, and I told you he wasn't responsible for what he said."

Tucu glared at her in silence, his face working in a passion. Then without a word, he dropped her arm and strode toward Dick. "Y'got one more chance," he said ominously. "Y'had 'bout this treasure. Now we'll see if y'were lyin' 'bout them jewels."

"What's wrong, captain?" asked Dick, realizing that something had happened to bring matters to a head. "There ain't no treasure aboard. Y'made up that tale. Now we'll see if y'made up that one 'bout the smuggled gems."

Matters had certainly reached a climax. The crew under Tucu's orders were preparing to return to the lugger. Dick didn't quite understand what it meant until half an hour later two Caribs cut the ropes holding him to the mast. He tried to extract from them some information; but they mutely disregarded him and conducted him to the small boat.

Ten minutes later he was rowed back to the lugger. All except two of the crew were abandoning the schooner. When Tucu and Black Burley came aboard the lugger, Dick's fear for his own safety was secondary to his dread that something terrible was about to happen to Rose.

"Where's Captain Bedford's daughter?" he demanded sharply.

"Where she wanted to be—aboard the schooner," replied Tucu, grinning.

"She's not going with us?"

"No."

"Is she alone?"

"Y've been lyin' ter me."

"She's got two o' my men to keep her company, an' that crazy father," leered the half-breed.

Dick frowned. The sea was rough and choppy, and the wind blowing half a gale. The threatened storm was rapidly approaching. The schooner was in no condition to weather it. Captain Bedford was worse than useless, and the Caribs were indifferent seamen.

"Storm's coming, captain," Dick said finally, "and the schooner will go down in it. Why not take the captain and his daughter off? You don't want them to drown."

"The hell I don't," snapped the other. "I didn't put 'em there, an' I ain't goin' to take 'em off."

"Then will you let me go back to them?"

Tucu grinned. "Y're goin' to show me where them smuggled goods was chucked off the steamer, or y're goin' to feed the fishes."

The man's plan was clear enough now. Convinced there was nothing of great value aboard the schooner, he had abandoned her until after he had found the smuggled gems. Later, if the storm did not send the schooner to the bottom, he could return and salvage her if she was worth it.

The gale was stiffening every minute, and the work of getting under way was hurried. With almost bare poles the lugger would have great difficulty in standing up in the wind and rough sea. A giant wave swept the deck. With a yell Dick tried to save himself, but with his arms tied behind his back he was as helpless as a child. He rolled over and over, and was saved at the last minute by Black Burley, who jerked him back in the nick of time.

Once Again Dick Plunges Into Sea

"Cut these ropes," Dick spluttered, "and give me a chance. Another way like that will finish me."

Captain Tucu nodded to his mate. "Cut 'em an' take him below."

Dick waited his chance. He had definitely decided to trust his life to the sea again and to try to reach the schooner. Better die battling with the elements than sail away with the black pirates. He stood a moment, stretching his limbs, and watching the heaving seas. Another wave, smaller than the first, but big enough to give him an excuse, swept over the bow of the lugger and rolled aft.

When it struck him, he gave another yell, as if calling for help, but instead of resisting the mass of green waters he plunged straight into them and assisted them in carrying him overboard. Black Burley made a grab for him with his long arms, but Dick ducked in time to elude them.

Shaking the brine out of his eyes, he began swimming, holding his head as high out of the water as he could. He made no resistance to the waves, but swam with them, striving to keep on their crests for better observation. A light twinkled out of the darkness, but he wasn't sure whether it came from the lugger or the schooner.

He conserved his strength as much as possible, swimming easily and treading water every time he was swept on the crest of a wave. From this pinnacle he had a wide glimpse of the sea; but the darkness now shut out everything, and neither the lugger nor the schooner was visible.

"I've missed it," he groaned once. "I should have been there before this."

In the midst of his bitter reflections his hand caught something that startled him.

It was a water-soaked rope! His mind nimbly leaped from despair to hope. He clutched eagerly at the mass of slimy ropes that before had been sea monsters and slippery eels. Now they were life lines hung out to help him. Their continued lashing and twisting were pleasant indications that they were real and substantial. He was not dreaming.

He began clawing at them, pulling himself from one mass of rigging to another. When his hands came in contact with a floating spar, and it bobbed up and nearly smashed his face, he laughed in glee instead of cursing. If he could crawl up the wreckage to the schooner's deck he would be safe.

Finally a giant wave carried him clear over the rail and dropped him heavily on the deck where he lay sprawled for some moments, gasping for breath, and groaning from the effects of the terrific struggle. The crests of the surging waves reached him even here, but they no longer had the power to use him as a battering ram.

When he finally raised his head and looked around the wave-swept deck, he had a queer feeling that all his efforts had been in vain. The schooner was abandoned, with him as the only living being aboard.

A little startled by his discovery, he began crawling in the direction of the cabin. If Rose and her father were aboard he would find them there, for the wet, slippery deck was no place for them, and they could not hope to navigate the derelict on such a wild night.

When he reached the head of the companion, a welcome ray of light came through the open door of the cabin, bringing joy and relief to his tortured mind. Rose was below with her father, watching, hoping, and praying or stolidly awaiting their fate.

Dick staggered to his feet and started down the steps; but before he had taken one, sounds of a muffled commotion halted him. Craning his head forward, he listened, peering intently through the murky gloom until his eyes came to a focus on something lying half across the threshold. With a little start of surprise, he recognized the body of one of the two Caribs left behind on the schooner.

Another Ugly Battle For Rose and Dick

A reddish clot of blood in the middle of the forehead told where a bullet had entered and brought his life to a sudden end.

From inside the cabin came the low, shifting sounds of a wordless conflict, with the combatants struggling back and forth in a deadly embrace, their breath coming in short, wheezy gasps.

Dick slipped down the few steps and stood beside the dead Carib. He blinked a moment under the strong light of the swinging cabin lamp before he took in the significance of the scene.

The second Carib had disarmed Rose, and with one powerful hand pinning her against the wall he was trying to encircle her waist with his free arm. With a growl of rage, Dick sprang at the brute, catching him by the neck, and with a jerk wrenched his head back. Then looping an arm around the neck he piled the head backward until he could get a strangle hold on the windpipe.

The Carib was a big, powerful man, with a head as hard as a battering ram, and arms and legs as thick and solid as tree trunks. After the first shock of surprise, he struggled to shake his assailant from his back, grunting and blowing loudly. Dick's strength had been badly spent in the struggle in the water, and as they rolled and twisted over the cabin floor his own breath came in short, labored gasps.

In spite of his advantageous hold, he realized that the Carib might eventually get the better of him. The bull-like neck rose and fell, emitting horrible growling sounds, but his strength showed no signs of weakening. The powerful muscles were working slowly and steadily, while Dick's were rapidly weakening under the strain.

Then, when it seemed as if his last ounce of strength had been used up, and his body antagonized was still fresh and active, a sudden deafening crash shattered the stillness.

PRESENTATION OF COLD FACTS BEST CAMPAIGNING METHOD

IF IT SHOULD ever be my privilege to conduct the election publicity for either party, which it will not be, I would take a tip from the political wisdom and psychological understanding of Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa. I have seen them applied.

More than six months before the convention that nominated Gov. Alfred Landon of Kansas as the Republican candidate for President, Spangler, then vice-chairman of the Republican national committee, opened a western headquarters of the party in Chicago. In December, 1933, he began offering factual information regarding the operations of government to the rural press of the nation. In the material offered there were no vituperative condemnations of the opposing parties. There was nothing that could be considered partisan unless a plain statement of facts about government operation could be considered as such. The rural newspaper editors, always chary of propaganda, did not consider the material anything other than what was claimed for it, a presentation of facts. Close to 6,000 rural editors asked for, and printed the material. That service to the newspaper continued each week up to, and for a week after, the convention in late June.

Early in July the Literary Digest mailed its straw vote cards to several million voters, as it had done in a number of previous Presidential campaigns. These cards were checked by the recipients and returned to the Digest before the middle of July, but the tabulation was not completed, and the result announced, until the first week of October.

That stray vote, taken in early July, indicated the election of Landon. The Digest poll had demonstrated its accuracy through many campaigns. It was equally accurate at the time it was taken in 1933. The political conditions at that time were those created by Harrison Spangler's campaign of government facts. He had molded public opinion with the presentation of those facts at a time when politics as such was not being talked.

Then came the more than three hectic months of the active campaign waged under a new party management. Spangler's factual material was thrown into the discard. In its place were the tirades and recriminations that are usual in political campaigns. Oratorical effort showed charges and counter-charges. Each week saw the Republicans losing votes that Spangler's facts had created. We all knew the final result.

That pre-convention campaign, as conducted by Spangler, would teach me two lessons. First, to give the public unvarnished facts. The people will digest them into opinions. When the facts do not conform to what the people expect or want of government, they will vote for a change. They resent condemnations of one party by the other. They will do their own condemning when the facts call for such action.

Second, I would conduct my fact campaign as far in advance of an election as possible. I would start it immediately after an election, rather than a few weeks before the next one. I could make more votes when the people were not being assailed by campaign oratory, and were in a more reasoning mood. And I would not undo what I had accomplished by indulging in tirades.

A MIMEOGRAPHED NOTE from the income tax collector tells me his office can no longer advise me as to tax payments, made or owed, because of a limited personnel. Senator Byrd's committee reports an increase of 10,544 employees in the treasury department for June, 1944, as compared with June, 1943. There must be a "slow down" working in the treasury when they can no longer do what they formerly did when the department employed 10,544 less people. They still have enough personnel to assess penalties if I forget to pay when payment is due.

THE RED JAWS OF THE TOLSTARIAN Russian bear are snapping at the heels of defenseless Greece, ancient home of wisdom and freedom.

MORE TIME SPENT AT BEING thankful for what we have, and less at regrets for what we do not have, will add to the pleasure of living.

THE ROCKS IN THE SEA OF matrimony would seem to be increasing.

THERE IS AN OLD ADAGE the Republicans might apply to the rift in the cabinet caused by the utterances of ex-Secretary of Commerce Wallace that disagrees with the policies of Secretary of State Byrd.

Senator Dennis Chavez
By Louise H. Coe
Reconversion from a war time to a peacetime economy is not complete, 1944 is not a reality, nothing is certain except that under a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress we stand a better chance to survive than we would if the Republicans win at the polls next Tuesday.

Senator Dennis Chavez should be returned to the United States Senate. He has seniority which has given him place on important committees. He is Chairman of the Roads and Post Office Committee in the Senate. It would be a big loss to New Mexico to lose this place. Senator Chavez is just now in a position to better serve New Mexico and the nation because of his Senatorial training and experience.

Senator Chavez is honest, reliable, informed. He is a true New Mexican. He knows personally about 75 per cent of the people in this state. He knows the problems and the needs of every village, town, city and isolated area in N. M. He knows the problems of this nation and of the world; what's more, he has innate ability, understanding, education and experience necessary to cope with the changing times.

Senator Chavez has two daughters and one son, all born in New Mexico. His sons-in-law and his son were all in the armed forces. His son experienced actual combat in the Pacific. Do you doubt this father of Veterans will not put forth extreme effort for all Veterans? He has never failed. Examine his record.

Voters of Carrizozo and Lincoln, vote for the man that will cooperate with the program that means continuous prosperity for us all. That man is Senator Dennis Chavez, able, distinguished, experienced and qualified in every way deserving to be returned to office. Vote for Dennis Chavez, the Democratic Candidate for United States Senate. (Paid Political Advertisement)

From where I sit by Joe Marsh

Want a Vacation from Marriage?

Alvin Blake went south on his vacation, for some fishing, and left his Missus to enjoy a vacation from the corn-cob pipe, clothes in a heap, and sales on the harmonica.

First few days, Martha enjoyed it—house neat and quiet, top back on the toothpaste, no morning messes from Alvin's midnight snacks (Al's partial to a bit of cheese and beer at bedtime).

Come the end of the week, she began toidget; couldn't even read the Clarion, it looked so unmissed; didn't have any appetite with no body to cook for. She was about to wire Al, when he barges home a week ahead of time, and she almost cries for gratitude. ("Told the same way myself," says Al.)

From where I sit, those differences of habit and opinion—whether they have to do with corn-cob pipes, a glass of beer, or plugging the harmonica, seem mighty trivial when you're separated. And they are, too!
