Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor

I saw in a recent paper that one of El Paso's churches laid the cornerstones for a new educational unit. The pastor of the church led in ceremonial. He was assisted by other church officers and many of the city's institutional leaders were present and gave a hand. Various documents, such as, copies of the city's papers, New Mexico Conference Journal, church advocates, lists of names of church officials and of all contributors to the building fund were placed in the copper box as memorials to rest in that stone until future ages would open it and review the records. Very interesting and fitting, indeed!

I am at present, believe it or not, trying to build here in Carrizozo a great over-all "spiritual temple, a house not made with hands." This project will not fail. It is not given to me to say arbitrarily whose names shall be eternally honored in connection with this work but I could make a reasonable guess. What names do you think should go into the archives of God's spiritual temple? If you want God to say to you at the end of the day: "Well Done" you had better be doing something now. And I don't mean maybe.

Sermon Topic next Sunday: "Jesus Weeps Over Jerusalem" Please Come.

O. T. C. Still Operating

A misapprehension seems to exist in the state of New Mexico as to the continued operation of the OPA office in that State. The OPA Sugar Branch Office in New Mexico has not been closed and has been continuously operating for almost five years, according to Hubert Y. Atherton, Sugar Branch Director. It is located in the Rosenwald Building, in Albuquerque, New Mexico. All persons or business establishments desiring to secure information or transact business having to do with sugar rations or price control of sugar, syrup or rice, should communicate with that office. This arrangement is exactly as it has been in the past. This applies to all individual, all industrial users of sugar, such as bakeries, ice cream plants, bottling works, etc., as well as to all restaurants, hotels and other establishments serving food or refreshments.

Several crates of new sound and projector equipment have been received by the Lyric Theatre which will be installed when delivery of the remainder of the equipment is made.

Spotlight of GRANTLAND RICE

BASEBALL has grown restless. Especially in the spring. This time they will be playing and training as far apart as Hawaii and Cuba. Teams will be shifted all over the spring map.

The Giants move from Miami to Phoenix and travel as far westward as Hawaii. The Cleveland Indians shift from Clearwater, Fla., to Tucson, Ariz. The Yankees tour Cuba and sections of Central and South America before landing at St. Petersburg, Fla. The Dodgers leave Florida for Cuba and other Latin turf. The new slogan ought to be—"Join a ball club and see most of the world." The Cardinals are firmly set at St. Petersburg, the Red Sox at Sarasota and the Tigers at Lake Wales. The Yankees hit St. Petersburg around March 12. The Reds report back to Tampa. Arizona gets its first big league training test with the Giants at Phoenix and the Indians at Tucson, where a warm, dry sun ought to help.

But we like the training idea of the Cardinals, Red Sox and Tigers best. They go directly to one spot, from which point they have only a short traveling range to meet high grade competition.

Smart ball players begin working out their legs before spring training starts through golf or hunting. Ball players could use better legs. Watch a pitcher after he hits a triple. He winds up at third, puffing like a volcano and it often takes him an extra inning or two to retain his pitching form.

The Cardinal System

The St. Louis Cardinals have the best idea of the qualities that go into the making of a good ball player. Their farm system was arranged on the general idea of giving experience to young players who could run and throw. For the past 20 years the average Cardinal could run and he had a good arm. Hard hitters or big hitters who were slow, rarely stayed around. Ball players with bad arms were not wanted, no matter how good they might look otherwise.

The arms of Terry Moore and Country Slaughter in the past have been as deadly as twin rifles—and both were extremely fast on their feet. When a Cardinal starts from first to third he usually makes it. And when some rival starts from first to third he is quite often cut down short of the bag.

Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon were the pair who worked out this selective plan and now Rickey is using it for his Dodgers. Experience is a big factor but a brace of young legs and a young throwing arm are also useful.

Dodgers Are Younger

Eddie Dyer and Durocher are both banking on speed and good arms this season. The Dodgers have this advantage—they are younger. More than one Cardinal star is now deep in the veteran class and speed doesn't increase with the years—not even with a Terry Moore and an Ernie Slaughter.

If Robinson makes good at third, or wherever he is used, his addition will increase Dodger speed.

Teams in the National League hoping to crowd out either Brooklyn or St. Louis will need more speed than they have shown so far. A large number of tall players can get in better condition and stay in better condition than many do. For any daily competition that runs through 154 games demands the best sort of physical condition. This can be obtained much better by sticking as long as possible to one spot, rather than through extensive traveling around.

College and Pro War

There is now an underground, undeclared war between the colleges and pro football which may break into the open any day or any week.

The colleges are charging that the pro leagues are taking away star football players, who have from one to two years left for college football—a direct violation of promises not to take any man who is eligible for the college game.

The pro leagues are charging that college football coaches and college athletic associations are holding players in college, or trying to hold them, long after their classes have graduated.

This argument or feud of course dates back to the war. I happen to know that when the war came along, many southern coaches were something more than mildly upset over the fact that Army and Navy had taken away their best players.

Unless he actually wants to finish a college education above everything else, I can see no reason why a man of 25 or 26, especially those with families, should stay on in college to play football. Under these circumstances, I would say that he is entitled to leave college and get the best pro job available.

GRASSROOTS

NEWFOUNDLAND MIGHT VOTE TO BECOME U. S. TERRITORY

THE FISHER FOLK and such other people as constitute the citizenship of Newfoundland are attempting to make a choice of a future form of government. The problem is that of deciding between the present British commission, appointed by the London government; a return to local self government, surrendered early in this century; annexation to the Canadian dominion; or a request to the United States to take the island in as a territory, with statehood possible some time in the future.

Whatever the final decision of the Newfoundland people may be it must have the approval of the British parliament before it can become effective. There is but small chance the people would ask annexation by the United States; that the British government would approve such a decision if made, or that the American government would accept.

I, as one American, would be opposed to our annexation of Newfoundland, but my reason for such opposition is not one that would have any effect on the decision of congress.

I have been across and all around the big island. I went there seeking the opportunity of catching a Newfoundland land-locked salmon, rated as the king of all fresh water game fish. When I arrived at Port au Basse I found it would cost me $30 a try, but I could get no information regarding a good place to try. I decided to wait before spending that $30 until I could find some lake or stream in which someone could assure me definitely that a salmon had been caught. To find that lake or stream I traveled across the island, 540 miles to St. John's, but without success. Then I sailed around the island, in a bathtub-sized boat, making diligent inquiries at each fishing village at which we stopped.

At no place did I see a salmon or find anyone who would admit having seen one caught. In the interior of the island I did see great herds of caribou, but I am not a hunter; I had no gun; I could not hit the side of a mountain at 50 yards; it was out of season. I was not even tempted to put up the $75 asked for a hunting license. Though I saw the greater part of Newfoundland I did not see a land-locked salmon. I felt the island people had attempted to secure money under false pretenses. It did not work in my case. I saved my $30. Then I went back to an old stamping ground, the Temagami district of Northern Ontario, to look for bass, and caught one.

Despite Newfoundland's vast store of undeveloped mineral wealth; its great forests of pulp wood, needed by American newspapers; its picturesque fishing villages; its magnificent land-locked harbor at St. John's, guarded by American built fortifications, manned by American soldiers; its simple, kindly and hospitable people, I would vote "no" on annexation. Those simple fisher folk would have taken my $30 without providing a land-locked salmon.

I did find scattered around Newfoundland on beautifully colored pebble beaches at every fishing village, many thousands of cod fish being dried by the sun. Seeing them, and the conditions under which they were being cured, caused me to forswear salted cod as an article of diet forever.

INFLATION REDUCES VALUE OF INSURANCE

THERE ARE in the United States more than 71 million people who pay for life insurance policies each year, that loved ones may be provided for should the insured pass away. Their policies call for the payment of a specified number of dollars, which the insurance companies will pay, but the question is: What will those dollars buy? The one thousand dollars Mrs. Jones receives will buy today less than half what the same dollars would have bought only a few years ago, and that buying power is going down constantly. There is no definite value back of each dollar Mrs. Jones will receive. It fluctuates as the purchasing power of the dollar goes down or up. It would disappear entirely should the effort to Russiasize America be accomplished. The concerted voice of those 71 million policy holders would make an impression on congress.

COMPETENT analysts tell us that because of the refusal to unite our armed services under one national defense department we are wasting about one-third of our army and navy expenditures. The reason for the refusal seems to be that the dignity of a few congressional committee chairmen and a few top rank generals and admirals may be preserved.

MANY of our troubles are of our own making.

Herd Improvement by Artificial Breeding

Co-Ops Can Lower Cost By Proper Management

By W. J. DRYDEN

An increasing number of farmers use artificial insemination in order to speed up dairy herd improvement and increase their income. In the urge to expand rapidly, many farmers sometimes have overlooked the importance of technical problems in dairy husbandry, genetics and veterinary medicine.

By joining together within a certain zone, farmers may cooperate in forming an artificial breeding association. This has decided advantages, chief among which is the financial one. To be successful the bulls purchased by the group must be outstanding—better than any one of the individual farmers could afford to maintain. To properly conduct the insemination, the group should have available a qualified veterinarian. He need not be on a full time basis, but should devote sufficient time to check on all breeders as well as perform the actual insemination. If the organization is sufficiently large he could be engaged on a full time basis, devoting part of his time to disease control and preventative work.

Anchored Soil Will Defeat Dust Storms

Farmers in the Great Plains states are heeding a warning that another cycle of dry years may bring back the disastrous dust storms of the early '40s. Paul T. Scott, South Dakota State college, writes in Capper's Farmer.

The farmers propose to beat nature to the draw by anchoring at least a portion of the susceptible acreage with hardy grasses.

Most important discoveries made in the fight against erosion were the adaptation of certain tame grasses and new methods of seed harvest for the Plains natives. Brome grass now has spread over the eastern portion of the Plains states and into the Corn Belt. Crested wheatgrass is proving a near-miracle as a land cover and pasture in the northern part. Mechanical processes have been developed for harvesting and seeding buffalo grass, the grammas and wheat grasses.

Backyard Breeder

Small brooder for backyard poultrymen

This brooder, large enough for 25 to 50 chicks, is recommended by University of Maine. It can be made of wood or corrugated box the size indicated in the illustration, or slightly larger. Chicks can be brooded in the basement up to six or eight weeks.

Home, Farm Lead in National Accidents

With the accident rate skyrocketing and the home and farm leading over air, rail and highway as the scene of most accidents, it is time we settled down to some constructive thinking and acting along safety lines. Most of these accidents would not have happened if someone had been a little more careful, thoughtful or alert, or if the farmer would inspect his equipment before using it.

Rocket Brakes

The jet power of rockets, which has so far been employed almost wholly as a propulsive force, is expected to be used soon in the opposite way—to brake the speed of planes and trains in cases of emergency, says Collier's. Experts estimate that a train which travels 1,500 feet after the air brakes are applied could be brought to a stop in 375 feet, or one fourth the distance, by the additional braking force of forward-firing rockets installed on the locomotive.

Beware Coughs That Hang On

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must take the way it quickly alleviates the cough or you are to have your money back.

Veterans News

Hospital Movies

The best movie programs in the nation, each one tailored especially to fit the needs of each individual audience, are being shown to veteran patients in the VA hospitals at Albuquerque and Fort Bayard. All of the films are sent to the hospitals by major film companies before they are released to the general public and in addition to the regular full-length features, the list includes newsreels, sports films, travelogues and animated cartoons. Thus the hospital is able to offer a lengthy or a short program, depending on the physical condition of the audience.

In addition to the regular showings in the hospital theater which take place three nights a week, special showings are made day and night throughout hospital wards where patients confined to their beds can see the same film shown in the theater. On many occasions, special showings are made for one patient which is probably the most exclusive kind of movie show in the world.

Farm Tractor

Veterans amputees who elect to secure a tractor under their eligibility rights for a car or other conveyance may secure attachments as accessories for the tractor under the same authority. This clarification was made recently by the Veterans Administration, which pointed out that a tool bar for a farm tractor, just as a heater is considered a proper attachment for an automobile. The total price of tractor and attachments, however, must fall within the $1600. limitation set by law.

Hospitalization

Although figures for the nation as a whole show that more veterans are receiving treatment now in VA hospitals and homes than ever before, the VA hospital situation in New Mexico is far from crowded. Gene A. Robens, acting manager for the Albuquerque regional office, announced this week in fact, the peak thus far in veterans hospitalization in this state came in the closing weeks of November, Robens said.

How Long Will Your Car Last?

Until production of automobiles increases in volume, many people will ask themselves questions like these? "How many miles are left in my pre war car?" "Is it worth repairing?" If you need a car for transportation and cannot be assured of early delivery of a new one, talk to the automobile mechanic who has serviced your car regularly. Ask him to estimate what it would cost to put it in safe running order. If you can salvage a year's mileage for $100 to $200, it may be to your advantage to make the repairs, even though you may not recover your expenditure on a future trade-in. Loans to make automobile repairs are available at our bank. If you need one, come in and talk it over with us. No obligation.

Trimming Costs and Taxes Difficult, Congress Finds

A POLL of editors of Home Town newspapers throughout the country, a tremendous force in the nation's economic fabric and who reflect the thinking of some 70 million rural and small town citizens, shows the first thing they want this congress to do is to pass legislation which will stop crippling strikes.

The second thing these editors want is slashing of the cost of government and balancing of the budget. As a matter of fact, the budget is in balance right now. And it is certain that the cost of government will be cut some. Senator George of Georgia, who probably knows more about government finances than any man in either house of congress, says the President's budget of $7 1/4 billion dollars can possibly be shaved by 2 billion dollars. Senator Taft says 5 billion, maybe. Congressman Taber, New York, says 6 1/2 billion, sure. And he says the government can cut off one million employees and not miss them. Perhaps that's true.

There's no question about the need of a reduction in governmental costs, since the government currently is taking too large a proportion of the taxpayer's income. But in the opinion of experts there is no quick, easy way to reduce government expenditures by any across-the-board method, such as a horizontal 20 or 25 per cent cut, as many are suggesting. A look down the budget statement indicates that a huge volume of government outlays are the consequences of legislative policies approved by congress, and however unwise some of these policies may be, they have loaded the government down with financial obligations which must be honored. After 15 years of depression and war the scope of government has so broadened that the public has come more and more to regard the government as a protector of its economic interests.

What Can We Do Without?

So a common sense approach to the problem, it seems to this reporter, would be not a hit or miss slash of various funds, but a careful scrutiny of the entire government set-up to learn what government services the public can and will do without. For certainly any slash in government funds will mean that some service now performed in behalf of the people must go by the boards.

Appropriations for the Export-Import bank, for relief and administrative outlays in occupied countries, for the United Nations, for the International Monetary fund, for FAO and other such items, are commitments which this government has made, with the approval of congress, and which we are honor-bound to keep. These appropriations total some four or five billions of dollars. Shall we slash these?

There is 330 million dollars for the Commodity Credit corporation, allocated to support farm prices for the next two years as the government has pledged itself to do. Shall we cut it 25 per cent?

About cutting personnel the civil service commission says there are now 2,286,800 on the federal payroll. Only about 235,000 of these are in Washington. Of the total, post office has 491,000; Veterans' administration, 176,000; war department, 600,000, and navy, about 400,000. So war, navy, post office and VA employ 70 per cent of the total federal personnel, the other 30 per cent being scattered throughout the scores of other federal agencies. War agencies, except War Assets administration, which are going out of business soon will lay off about 50,000 employees but that's far from a million. General Eisenhower and the secretaries of war and navy say they are operating now on a skeleton force, below security. Shall we cut the post office and Veterans' administration service?

Savings Would Be Offset

Although this congress is economy minded, these same "economy minded" congressmen have introduced new spending measures which if enacted into law would more than offset the 4 1/2 billion dollars which Congressman Taber says can be cut from the budget.

Take aid to states for teachers' salaries. Several bills are in, calling for annual appropriations of 100 million dollars to 300 million dollars. This is more than the entire annual cost of the Internal Revenue bureau and its 40,000 employees, or the administrative cost of Veterans' administration.

So to slash costs and bring the budget into balance, to include debt reduction at a lower level than now, will require some radical revision of legislative rather than administrative policy. What are you willing to do without?

SNOW-BOUND AMERICA . . . Photographs showing snow-bound Milwaukee, where all citizens turned out to clear the roads and walks. Food deliveries were blocked so citizens met on cleared streets in order to receive milk and other food. Also dazed Chicago was digging out; Betty Ford does an abrupt sidown as she skids off the curb, ruining nylons and her dignity.

FUTURE FARMERS VISIT NEW YORK CITY . . . Officers of the Future Farmers of America visited New York City recently and were shown the sights by the Boy Scouts and entertained by officials, industries, business and Secy. of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, who is shown with the officers when he received an invitation to speak at their 1517 convention. Other view shows a New York Scout, one of their guides, pointing out lower Manhattan skyline. The boy officers later visited Chicago and other centers as a reward for their outstanding work.

QUINTS THREATENED . . . The Franco Diligent quint of Buenos Aires have been threatened by kidnapers who demanded $12,500. Mr. and Mrs. Diligent have reported to the police. The family was staying at the resort town of Mar Del Plata when the extortion note was received. The money was to be sent through the mail to general delivery Buenos Aires. Police and government officials have taken over the case and given the quint protection. No evidence was uncovered at post office.

TRIPLETS SAD KIDS . . . Feeling these triplets was a bit of a problem with the photographer placed them in a porcelain tub. The tricky kids had plans they wanted to go and being "sensored" is not to their liking. They are just one week old and are owned by John Brink, Allentown, Pa. Triplets in the great family are very rare, much more expensive than with calves. They are all of average weight with more than the average pop and room for food.

MOST COURAGEOUS ATHLETE . . . Meaty Stratton, former Chicago White Sox pitcher, who lost a leg in a hunting accident and returned to baseball with artificial leg, has been voted most courageous athlete by Philadelphia sports writers.

WIFE'S DYING WISH . . . James W. Richardson, 18, Leavenworth, Ohio, became a house-pipe boy because his G.I. father's dying request was for such an appointment. He is shown with Rep. T. A. Jenkins (Rep., Ohio), who made the appointment possible.

UNEASY OVER FLIGHTS

WASHINGTON.—The spurge of recent air crashes is causing considerable worry to the secret service agents responsible for the life of the President.

The secret service is afraid the day may come when the President's special plane, "The Sacred Cow," also may encounter bad weather or mechanical trouble. They also know something about the President's propensity for taking off, rain or shine, and it keeps them awake at nights thinking about it. When he wants to go some place, he simply goes.

Result is that a quiet campaign is under way inside the secret service to persuade the President to abandon air travel generally. They want him to take the train—as President Roosevelt did on almost all occasions.

FDR enjoyed train travel. It rested him and gave him a chance to get caught up with his correspondence. Truman, however, loves the speed of an airplane. He can get to Kansas City in four hours whereas it would take him two nights and a day by train.

The secret service has never recovered from the scare it received on Christmas, 1945, when Mr. Truman flew home to Independence in weather that had grounded all commercial airlines. However, the President is a hard man to persuade, and his secret service bodyguards are not any too optimistic about the chances of keeping him grounded.

AIR CRASHES

Despite the recent series of air crashes, fact remains that commercial air lines hung up twice as good a safety record in 1946 as in 1945. Although the total number of aircraft fatalities increased, it is important to recall that the airlines flew twice as many passenger miles in '46. This cut the fatality rate in half.

Another factor most people overlook is that the Civil Aeronautics authority, which regulates commercial flying, is operating in the face of a pinch-penny congressional appropriation. CAA worked out a bad-weather instrument-landing system which has now been adopted by every country, including the Russians.

ARMY EDUCATION

Public opinion expert George Gallup proved to the last decimal point that more men would enlist in the army and navy if military authorities had "a system whereby educational training in the service would count toward high school or college diplomas."

The army's information and education branch was glad to hear that they should educate servicemen, but they want to know one thing: Who's going to educate Dr. Gallup? What he apparently doesn't know is that the United States Armed Forces institute makes every conceivable type of study course available to any soldier, sailor, marine or coastguardsman who wants it.

More than 1,000,000 men already have acquired schooling via USAFI. Also, they've got credit for it. In the last year alone, 20,000 servicemen received high school diplomas via the army. These diplomas and USAFI's college courses are accepted for credit by almost every school in the country.

Gallup goes on to make the weird statement that army authorities question the idea of the army's going into the business of general education.

Clearly, none of Gallup's scorekeepers asked the secretary of war or power-packed Gen. "Buck" Latham, head of the army's information and education branch, about this. They not only don't question it, but they do it; sending teachers and books and quizzes and lessons by the thousands all over the world.

BACKSTAGE NAVY LOBBY

White House insiders report that brain trustee Clark Clifford is having a tough time drafting an army-navy merger bill for congress that will both carry out the President's ideas and not offend the brass hats.

President Truman wants it clearly stated in the bill that there will be a secretary of national defense, with full cabinet rank, and three under-secretaries with sub-cabinet rank, representing the army, navy and air forces.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Alert Senator Brewster of Maine, giving colleagues an off-the-record report of his Latin American trip, disclosed that British agents are selling British planes all over Latin America and outselling the USA. They are taking orders for delivery on jet planes which will be far ahead of our transports. In two years, Brewster predicts, the British will force Latin Americans to use British-type instruments for landing, making it hard for Americans to operate on the same fields.

For You To Feel Well
At home every day, I sleep every night, and my kidneys are the kidneys that make the blood. If these people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly receive and filter, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, they would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.
It is a common error that something is wrong. You may suffer from backache, or a headache, or a general feeling of being unwell, or a general feeling of being unwell, or a general feeling of being unwell.
Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine that is the foundation of the kidney and help them to work and prevent waste from the blood. Doan's Pills are the only pills that get Doan's Pills, the only pills that get Doan's Pills, the only pills that get Doan's Pills.

Murder in Plain Sight by GERALD BROWN

Duke McCale, private detective, is investigating the murder of Curt Vallincourt, who was about to marry Veronica Bigelow, heiress to thirty million dollars. McCale obtains some important clues from Shari Lynn, Vallincourt's former wife, and from Victoria, Veronica's sister. Veronica, the No. 1 suspect, is called again to headquarters. McCale questions the members of the family. Stephen, Veronica's brother, tells how he met Vallincourt in Chicago, when he was a student, was running around with the handsome adventurer. It was Victoria who introduced Vallincourt to Veronica. McCale considers this significant. Stephen also reveals that he knew Shari Lynn in Chicago.

CHAPTER XII

"I'd met her. We all met once or twice. But he divorced her, you know." He shut his mouth, and his brooding eyes half closed. He looked at McCale with an expression that said as plainly as words could, "And that's all you'll get from me."

McCale changed the direction of his next questions strategically and said with the suddenness of a catapult, "You were spying on your wife and Curt Vallincourt at The White Abbey night before last, weren't you?" He thought he had exploded a bomb with that, but curiously enough, Bigelow was ready for it.

"No, indeed. I just happened to be there. I saw them talking. What of it? Karen comes and goes as she pleases."

"You didn't, then, suspect her, say, of having an affair, or some secret connection with him—say something she wished to keep from you?"

Bigelow laughed hollowly, the watchfulness gone from him. "Not at all, Mr. McCale." He wretched the mister discafully. "Whatever gave you that absurd idea?"

McCale thought—he has been lying to me now for the last three minutes. These were the questions he was so sure I would ask first, the ones he was not sure he was ready for. And I, like a fool, have gone all around the barn, allowing him to collect himself.

He shrugged. "You haven't a thing to tell me that might help the growing case against Veronica, then?" he asked, a reasonable barb in his question.

"Nothing at all."

Stephen rose, well aware that he had acquitted himself, in his own mind anyway, with some success—that the interview was over. He paused at the door.

"Who is next for the inquisition?" he asked mockingly.

"You might ask your mother to step in for a moment," McCale answered, wrapped in sudden fury.

"Sorry to bother you, Mrs. Bigelow," he said, somewhat disgruntled.

"Oh, no, I mustn't be spared," she sighed. "It's all so sordidly necessary."

"A hard nut to crack" was all McCale made of her.

misunderstood, rejected. "If I'd gone right in, everyone would have known, wouldn't they? I'd have had to say I'd seen Veronica. I couldn't do that—I couldn't."

McCale wondered why, if she couldn't face telling it then, she was able to be so glib about it now.

"I slipped down the other side of the street to the drugstore for cigarettes. I met Stephen there, you know—or don't you?"

"Yes, I have seen the police reports," he said gravely. "Will you send your daughter in please?"

She accepted her dismissal with the air of an actress taking a curtain call.

"You're making your farewell tour," McCale chuckled to himself, his mind busy with her treachery.

You never would have guessed that Victoria had been up most of the previous night. The circles under her eyes were no darker than usual. She slunk in, her mouth the same insolent gash of red.

"A hard nut to crack," was all McCale made of her, as he smiled to himself.

"Too bad you weren't able to find four letters in Vallincourt's apartment last night," he opened.

Teas may be deliciously flavored by adding sprigs of curly mint, apple mint, orange mint, spearmint, or lemon balm.

Do Men Like Women?

Maybe you read that recent article in a national magazine, claiming that American men don't really like the company of women. They just put them up on a pedestal and leave them there.

But I wouldn't say that that was so in our town. Look at any married couple—like the Cuppers. Jane wouldn't nag if Doc spent his evenings "with the boys"—but actually Doc likes nothing better than to stay home by the fire, sharing a glass of beer with Jane, playing cribbage, or just talking.

And when he does go out, for an afternoon of fishing down at Seward's Creek, or for an evening glass of beer at Andy Botkin's Garden Tavern, Jane is almost always with him (except when she's got a spot of baking in the oven).

From where I sit, respect doesn't rule out everyday companionship . . . and never should. They go together—essential parts of a successful marriage.

Surplus Sales To Veterans To Be Simplified

Sales of surplus property to veterans of World War II will be simplified beginning March 1 when the War Assets Administration introduces a national network of regional set-aside lists and makes army, navy or marine corps discharge papers the only instrument necessary for veterans to purchase items set aside for their personal use, it was announced by Regional Director John A. Sheen.

The new regional set-aside lists currently used to channel short supply war surpluses to veterans exclusively but regional list will not contain the items catalogued on the national lists, Sheen explained.

WAA will continue to certify veterans for purchase of surplus property for resale or for business use, Sheen said.
