White Mountain District Meeting

The White Mountain District Committee, Boy Scouts of America, held its February meeting in Mesalero Tuesday night with 80 men present. The meeting began with a chicken dinner at the Employee's Club served by the wives of the Mesalero Troop Committee men. Mr. E. C. Hawkins, (Captain) District Chairman, welcomed the group and introduced the guests. The program was then turned over to Mr. D. Botone of Mesalero for the entertainment. Mr. Bond and his Indian Club put on several Indian dances for the group. Mr. John C. Crow Supt. of the Reservation, gave a short history of the Indian Service. Mr. Crow pointed out that before 1900 the Indians were in charge of the U.S. Army much as prisoners of war. During World War I many of the men volunteered for service and made such fine records that in 1924, Congress passed an act conferring citizenship to all Indians born in the United States. In 1934 Congress passed the Indian Re-organization act giving the Indians the right to organize and govern themselves.

During World War II, 7 percent of all Indians in America were in the armed services. The American Legion is now trying to get Congress to pass another bill giving the Indians more privileges. Mr. Crow told the men that Indians do not receive government money just because they are Indians. They are free to leave the Reservation at any time. That the Mesalero tribe takes care of its own Social Security program including the aged, widows, orphans, etc. That there are more Indian languages spoken in the United States than there are different languages spoken in the whole of Europe. A colored movie was then presented to the group showing the activities on the reservation.

At the conclusion of the meeting the group was invited to hold their next meeting in Ruidoso, March 27, 1947. Those present included: Messrs. Botone, Samons, TenHagen, Pellman, Carl, Larose Washington, Martine, Crow, of Mesalero; Messrs. Hawkins, Knudsen, Utterback, Swedlund, Humbert, of Capitan; Messrs. Morgan, Lopez, Kelly, Welsh, Wilson, of Carrizozo; Messrs. White and Byers of Ft. Stanton; Messrs. Crane and Baird of Ruidoso; Messrs. Titeworth, Bryant, Taylor, of Tinnie; Mr. Roberts of Corona; Messrs. Brown and Hunsaker of Roswell.

Baptist Church

Rev. O. L. Oldham, Pastor

Miss Dorothy Outlaw, associate secretary of Baptist Sunday School work of New Mexico spoke at the Baptist church here last Sunday morning. Miss Outlaw is staying through this week teaching a course in Sunday School work, meeting each evening at seven o'clock.

I spoke last Sunday morning on the question, "Where did Jesus go when His body died on the Cross?" I will continue the thought next Sunday 11 A. M. on "Why did Jesus Come Back?" I spoke Sunday night on "The Voice of the Devil, so I will take the opposite next Sunday evening seven o'clock, The Voice of God."

We were happy over our good attendance last Sunday morning and the fine spirit of the service. Come back next Sunday.

Corona Extension Woman's Club

The Corona Extension Club is a part of the State Extension Service. Its general aim is Education for better homes and for better Citizens. This is one of the finest organizations to be found anywhere.

Our motto is a good one: "Push Pull or Get Out of the Way".

Our regular meetings are held the 4th Thursday of each month. Following is a list of the programs planned for this year: March—Planned Spending and Saving; April—Repair of Household Equipment; May—Work Simplification (both men and women); June—Quick Breads; July—Sewing Machine Clinic; August—Joint Meeting of Corona and Hondo Extension Woman's Club at Carrizozo; September—Business Fact Homemakers Should Know; October—Remodeling of Clothing; November—Miscellaneous Ranch and Farm Program (A joint meeting of both men and women.) This program will be arranged by Carl P. Radcliff, County Extension Agent; December—Program Planning for 1948 and Special Christmas Party.

Some of the State Extension Workers who will be with us this year are: Miss Veda Strong, Home Management Specialist; Miss Edith Woodard, Extension Nutritionist; Mrs. Pearle C. Gehl, Extension Clothing Specialist, and probably others.

In addition to the programs mentioned the club sponsors the Hot Lunch Project in the Corona Public School, a food booth at the School Carnival, a food booth and Chuck Wagon Supper at the Annual Community Rodeo, and its various Committees makes reports each meeting on Community welfare, visiting, clothing, cooking, etc. Every meeting will be worthwhile to every member or visitor. All visitors are cordially welcomed.

Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor

I wish that I might say a fitting word this week on behalf of little children. And first dear reader, please give the kids a break. And let it be the very best break that you can give them. This is essentially the attitude of Jesus when He said "Suffer. The little children to come unto me for of such is the Kingdom of heaven."

A lot is being said lately about juvenile delinquency but more could be said about parental delinquency. Our Lord spoke a parable concerning a prodigal youth and I have been forced to think of some prodigal homes, prodigal churches and prodigal towns. GRACE has found a way but there are a lot of couples who have not tried to follow God's way. Promoters of religion have thought deeply on this subject and have studied hard and long. Ministers in all churches can suggest a good program. If you want the joy and fellowship of your home to be eternal God's plan is the only way.

I am specially inviting the parents of children both fathers and mothers for next Sunday but everybody should be interested. Please come.

Topic: "Our Children, God Bless Them".

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sifton, Sr., have purchased the J. F. Petty residence and have moved here from Tularosa.

Southwestern Livestock Show and Rodeo

The Southwestern Livestock Show called all junior exhibitors of fat calves, sheep and swine to send in their entry blanks for participation in the 18th annual exposition, which opens March 25 and continues through March 30. The show is being confined to fat stock and horses this year, and entries on file point to an outstanding array of prize animals to be shown by members of the Future Farmers of America and 4-H Clubs from all over the Southwest. The auction sale will be held March 28th.

Professional exhibitors of Quarter Horses and Palominos will participate this year, and the show will also include a poultry division.

The Southwestern Championship Rodeo will also open on March 25. There will be five evening performances, with one matinee to close the event on March 30. Vern Elliott will again produce the Rodeo, and Cy Taillon will be master of ceremonies.

Opening Rodeo Week will be the Parade de Rancheros, mammoth parade in El Paso, with prizes and trophies to be awarded to participants. Sheriff Allan G. Salby heads the parade committee.

Another feature will be a sponsored cowgirl contest, with a $400 hand-tooled saddle to be awarded to the champion cowgirl. The girls will also compete in a musical chair race in the Rodeo arena. Eva Mae Wilkins 1946 champion cowgirl, is in charge of the cowgirl contest.

W. W. Wilson is Secretary of the Southwestern Livestock Show.

Achievement Tests

Grade placement tests were given to the fifth grade in December, and the results show that the lowest pupil was doing work equal the fourth month of the third grade, while the highest pupil was doing work equal sixth month of the eighth grade, or over five years ahead of the lowest pupil in the class.

There were five pupils a year or more above their grade level, this group has been promoted to the sixth grade. There were eleven that were equal to or above where they should have been for the time of the year. The number in the class was twenty five, the class average was fifth month of the fifth grade, and fifteen of this number below the class average.

A standardized reading test given the same month, showed that sixteen were below the class average.

Lincoln County Singing Convention

The Lincoln County Singing Convention will hold its first meeting since the war at Tinnie Saturday and Sunday March 15 and 16.

Everyone is cordially invited to bring a basket lunch and attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Zumwalt of Lincoln County Motors were business visitors in Albuquerque last Friday.

Born February 22 to Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Payne, a boy, at Mc Bride hospital, Las Cruces. He has been named Bryan Victor.

New Mexico Cattle Growers Convention

Dr. S. O. Fladness, Assistant Chief and acting head of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry of Washington, D. C. will discuss the most recent developments in the Foot and Mouth disease outbreak in Mexico and the threat it presents to the United States, during the 33rd Annual Convention of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association at Albuquerque March 10 and 11, according to George A. Godfrey, Animas, President.

Dr. Fladness will arrive in Albuquerque the evening of March 9th, and will come directly from Washington, D. C. following conferences with the U. S. Mexican Joint Agricultural Commission. Mexican delegates to the Washington conference are Dr. Ignacio de la Torre, Secretary of the Mexican section of the Commission and Oscar Flores, Under Secretary of Mexican Agriculture. The Washington conference is designed to work out the joint Mexican, United States Foot and Mouth Disease control and eradication as provided for in current national legislation. Godfrey said, Dr. Fladness will have the most up-to-date information available on this problem and will be prepared to give an informal discussion and answer questions now confronting livestock producers throughout the nation, Godfrey continued.

Recognized as the foremost United States authority on Foot and Mouth Disease, Dr. Fladness is a practical man who understands the livestock industry from the ground up," Godfrey said. He has stood as a bulwark against the disease entering the United States since his work began with the Bureau of Animal Industry, and is respected by livestock producers throughout the west," Godfrey said.

District Court in Session

Judge J. L. Lawson of Alamogordo, District Attorney W. T. Scoggins, Jr.; Assistant District Attorney, E. E. C. Avez; Court Reporter, Miss Louisa Stansel and Interpreter, Julian Salas of Las Cruces arrived last Sunday for this term of District Court.

National 4-H Dress Revue

"Make and Model Your Own" is the motto of rural girls who are participating in the 1947 National 4-H Dress Revue.

With clothing fabrics now available in greater volume and variety, the youthful seamstresses are designing their "best dress" which they will model in the County 4H Dress Revue. All blue award winners in this event will receive silver medals of honor. Those between 14 and 21 who have completed three years in club work may compete in the State Dress Revue, which will be held later. The state winners will receive, also from the Simplicity Pattern Co., an all-expense trip to the 1947 National 4H Club Congress, (Chicago, next November. Each state winner participating in the National 4-H Dress Revue Presentation at the Club Congress will be given a $25.00 U. S. Savings Bond.

In this activity, which is conducted under the direction of the Extension Service, participants' outfits are judged on style and design, suitability of material to purpose and workmanship, becomingness of color and fit, and coat, Grooming, posture and poise of the participant are also taken into consideration. Complete information may be obtained from county home demonstration agents.

Fire At Ranch Home of Dr. J. P. Turner

At about 8:45 p. m. Wednesday the local volunteer fire department was called to the ranch home of Dr. J. P. Turner.

A large crowd of local citizens were soon at the scene and work of moving furniture from the house was well along when Fire Chief Fay Harkey announced that the fire was under control.

Damage was confined to the roof and upper floor. Firemen worked under pressure to gain control before the flames could be whipped by the high winds and spread. A bucket brigade was formed to augment the hoses and truck equipment.

Visit in Canyon Texas

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley returned last Saturday from a combined pleasure and business trip to Texas points. At Amarillo Mr. Kelley took delivery on a new Ambulance. The latest Hennessey, on an Oldsmobile chassis, powered by an 8-cylinder engine, it is equipped with warning devices for safety measures in traffic.

Enroute home they stopped in Canyon to visit with friends. Mrs. Kelley formerly resided there with her brother and taught music for some time.

The Broadway Lights

The Late Watch: Billboard lists 24 radio programs which cost sponsors a total of $2,800,000 (in free gifts to contestants) in 1945. Only one of the 24 shows is in Hooper's inner circle of the first 15. . . . After six months William Schiller (president of the Polka Dot guild) picked Gink Todd (a Cedar Rapids Girl Friday) to inherit the crown of Chili Williams, his former "trademark." Eyewitnesses say La Todd does more for polka dots than polka dots did for Chili Wms. . . . Oh, Now Looka Here Dept.: A show girl at Vanity Fair calls herself June July. Anything to get into a column. . . . Strange Broadway Romances: A rich playboy bridegroom used to be his mater-in-law's fella. . . . The 75-year-old widder of a millionaire is wooing an author 30 years her junior. Oh, you kid. . . . Casting note: Theatre Inc's new play, "The Big People" means just that. It is hiring actors who are at least six feet two. . . . Tito Guizar's newest way of saying goodnight to a heell, "Hav's a happy drop dead!"

Tris Coffin, whose eyes and ears represent many Americans in the senate press gallery, has a new book due soon, titled: "Missouri Compromise." The title was selected by the publisher because the book is about what happened in Washington since FDR's death. Much of the scene in Washington these last two years, the author emphasizes, "has been sad, tragic and absurd."

Times Square Smalltalk: Local girls shudder when they discuss New York's most terrifying wolf—one of our famed naval war-heroes! Jock Whitney may announce any week his plans to erect the world's most luxurious racetrack in Queens. . . . Very ex-senator R. R. Reynolds is starting a law office in Washington as "a specialist in government departmental practice," whatever that is. . . . Sudden Thaw: The only thing that nobody has tried to fix at Madison Square Garden is the air-conditioning system. . . . Will Spruille Braden replace Gen. Walter Bedell Smith as ambassador to Moscow? These days the post is equivalent to being second top man in the state department. . . . Regarding safety in aviation circles, remember this fact: It took the railroads 65 years to reach the high safety mark the airlines reached in their initial 20.

Midtown Vignette: They told us they brought it from Hollywood, where a swank spot solved the matter of "who pays the check?" . . . This little gadget discourages arguments and it is fun, besides. . . . It is a seawater bottle opener. . . . In the form of a salubrious hand. . . . The index finger is pointed. When the check is presented—you put the thing on the table and spin it. . . . And the person to whom the finger points—pays.

Street Scene: There's a youngster in the window of a peanut shop on Broadway at 45th. His job is to weigh peanuts on a scale. . . . He puts on quite a bit of pan-tomimetry measuring the nuts, described by enchanted passerby as "the nuts!" . . . He really is a Chaplin—in the Harry Langdon manner, if you know your show business, that is. . . . He convulses crowds which clog the sidewalk watching him. . . . For all I know, by the time you read this, he won't be there but on his way to Hollywood. . . . Newest big spender about midtown is a Puerto Rican named Nino. Leaves a trail of big tips (a mile wide) nightly. . . . Ann Sheridan now sleeps on a special glass mattress. Fireproof and no allergy, or something. . . . Lucille Ball spawned her new car because its bright red clashed with her orange hair.

The Intellectuals: Alma Archer, Mirror beauty editor, has a book on what women think of men, due in the spring. The title is: "Ah-Men." . . . Ralph Ingersoll has retired to his farm to write three novels. . . . Clara Luce will reveal the most intimate details in a mag on how she found religion. She also is finishing a new book at her plantation. Appleton will publish. . . . Jean Libman Block has a piece called "Do They Gyp You When You Sell Your Jewelry?" in the Feb. Good Housekeeping. She did the research with borrowed gems. . . . Dr. A. J. Cronin, the author, is applying for U. S. citizenship.

The Washington Ticker: The visit of President Truman South of the Border is more than a salute to the new president of Mexico. It is an out-and-out open bid to strengthen the hand of the Mexican government against communistic infiltration in Central America. . . . Bi-partisan policy soon will be a thing of the past. Mr. Byrnes' stiff policy toward Russia (oddly enough) will become the Republican position—with the new secretary of state (backed by Mr. Truman) relying on a more conciliatory attitude.

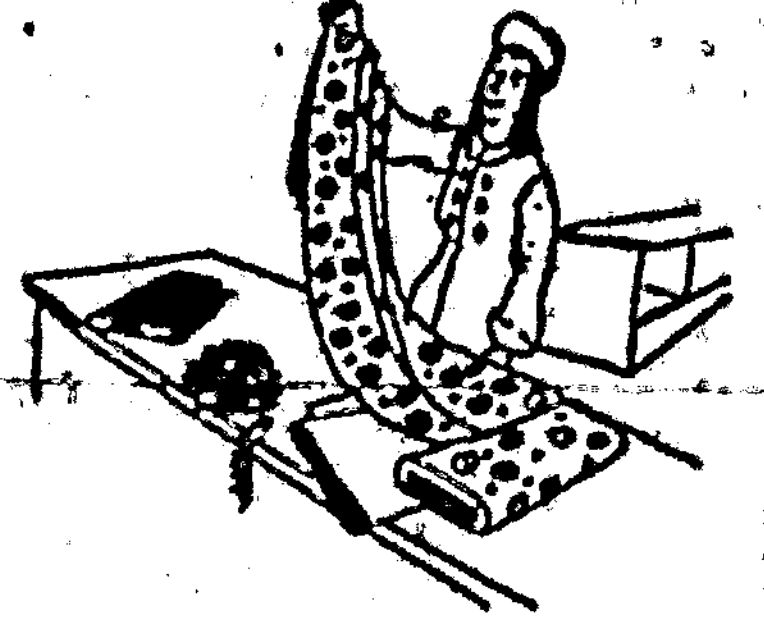

Woman's World Choose Nightgowns and Robes With Eye to Harmonious Color

By Effie Haley

MANY women, no matter how carefully they choose their daytime dresses, choose their own personal lingerie haphazardly. They will have an assortment of gowns or pajamas that look like they came from a table of broken colors and sizes, and their robes or lounging apparel have no color or fabric harmony with the other garments. Fastidious women, on the other hand, choose their personal lingerie with as much care as they do their dresses. They bear in mind the color of their gowns when they choose robes, and they try to have some color harmony in their choice of lingerie.

The latter program does not cost any more than a haphazard one, but it does give you a chance to feel well dressed, and you can never be accused of looking dowdy around the house. Since slips, gowns and robes are still in the luxury class as far as consumer goods are concerned, and because sizes are still a problem with limited selection, it might be a good idea to make your own. You probably have old formal which would make up into attractive negligees, and it's an easy matter to select a matching or harmonizing fabric to make up into a gown. Try to plan at least one good looking set—for reasons of your own personal morale—for Sunday mornings or for the morning that you lounge around the house. You and your family will appreciate the change immensely.

Slip Problems Solved By Home Sewing You've never thought of making your own slips? Well, neither did a lot of other women until they found themselves overcooled with shortsies that simply would not take care of their size and fabric requirements. Now they wouldn't think of buying the finished garment until Select gowns and robes. . . . they can be well fitted and be assured well constructed garments within their budgets. Good needlework makes luxury underwear even if the pattern used is simple. And need I say that well sewed garments will launder perfectly a countless number of times and still look as though they came out new and unworn? You may select sheer cotton or some of the lovely rayons for your slips. Select and fit the pattern of the slip as carefully as you would sew a dress. A little attention to this will repay you well in wearability.

There need never be any seam slippage in slips you make at home. Allow sufficient material to make a good seam, buy fabrics that are tested for strength and durability, and cover seams to prevent raveling. Use a flat fell or French seam which allows no loose edges outside the garment, and the seam slippage problem is easily solved. These slips will outwear most others. Tips on Selecting Gowns For Matching Robes Let's assume that you have an old formal which you are planning to make into a robe. What should the gown be like to harmonize with

To contrast or match each other. the robe? If the robe is of a solid color, the gown to go with this should be in a contrasting but attractive color. If the robe is to be a print, select one of the colors in

Lacy Sleeves

Fashion showings in New York recently brought out something new in sleeves. This picturesque note for spring has the "Lady-Windermere" influence. . . .

If you are making pajamas to contrast with the robe, use the above plan, or if you wish to make the whole set look as though it really belonged together, do this: Choose a good sturdy material for the pajamas in a shade to contrast with the robe, then pipe the sleeves and the opening in the front with some of the same material used in the robe.

Gowns and pajamas are best made in the light or pastel colors, and should be well constructed to permit easy launderability. Remember, too, that these are practical garments above all other considerations, and should be made loose enough to be comfortable for sleeping. Too many fancy gadgets on them prevent comfortable sleeping, and also increase the fussing that must go into their laundering.

If you are making contrasting colored bindings on them you will do well to baste before you actually do the permanent stitching, as there should be no slip-ups which will cause fraying later.

Lace and ruffles are best applied by hand with small, careful stitches. Hide the stitching if you really want the garment professionally turned out.

If you are making a quilted robe, it's possible to buy material already quilted. This is then simply cut out according to a pattern and put together as instructed. The thing to remember here is to have the garment sewed carefully, adjusting the stitching to take care of the heavier material.

You may make your own quilting, if desired, with a special attachment on your machine. Material to put in between the lining and outside covering is now generally available.

Simpler robes for warmer weather may be made of light, sheer cottons such as dotted swiss, organdie and lawn. Allow plenty of room for seams, look for permanent-finish materials, and you will have several years of good wear from these clothes.

Choose Your Style

No matter whether you are choosing daytime or evening clothes, hide your weak points by following these clothes tips given by fashion-wise experts: For narrow or sloping shoulders, select well padded shoulder treatments that give you broadness. The square, padded shoulder line is best.

For broad shoulders, do everything to cut the broad shoulder line and concentrate on raglan or dolman sleeves. Use little padding. Flat chested figures require soft treatment about the neck and bust. The ruffles and soft lace effects are for these girls, and they can be very charming.

For full busted figures use vertical lines and the "V" neck treatment. Contrasting colors from shoulder to waist are very effective also.

Small waistlines may wear high treatments in dresses. Peplums and broad, bright colored belts also are recommended.

For thin or heavy arms, wear soft treatment sleeves. Avoid particularly the too-tight sleeves.

Fashion Forecast

Gowns show body sculpturing, very definitely, and the bustle treatment is still a favorite. Lace, oolwabby woolsens and silk tissue are some of the luxury fabrics which are coming into fashion for the spring and summer. They are really exquisite, and the dresses are designed to show off the fabric at its best.

Berthas, scarves and sashes are in the news again as more fabric is available for designers to play with.

The new sleeves you have on your clothes may be of infinite variety. You may push them up or blouse them, or you may make them bark back to history by putting billow ruffles and lace on them.

Splendid Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen

Saves Big Dollars—No Cooking. Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen, you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. AND it's no trouble—a child could do it. You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Now get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist, and pour it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. There you have a full pint of remarkable medicine for coughs due to cold. It lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it. You'll say it's hard to beat, for real relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

WANT a soft, feminine two-piece frock for spring? Here's an attractive version that will be perfect for special dress-up events. Short sleeves are gently gathered, the nipped-in waist pears your figure smartly. Pattern 1386 is easily followed—our sewing chart guides you step by step.

Pattern No. 1386 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22 and 24. Size 14, short sleeves, 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch.

LOOKING AHEAD by GEORGE S. BENSON President - Harding College Seelye, Arkansas

On Being Vigilant That the price we pay for liberty is eternal vigilance may seem like old stuff to some of us. We are prone to relax after being vigilant for five years during a hard war. Like the next man, we pay more attention to signs of optimism than to those danger signals that are likely to call us to vigilance.

As modern-day Americans, we indicate by our actions and our interests that we are concerned about a lot of things—but perhaps least concerned about playing Paul Revere roles. Let Samuel Adams and John Hancock and Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry and A. Lincoln and all the others stay in their history books. We won our freedom in 1776, and we've kept it since. So why take the trouble to worry about being vigilant in 1947?

Take the Trouble During the war we were told what to be vigilant against, and much of what we were fighting for. Even particular freedoms were enumerated. We knew too, which particular dictators were giving us trouble. But today Hitler is gone. Mussolini's ambitions are dust. It was a lot of trouble, but we paused to finish the job. We were strong enough to do it, and we are still strong.

It is always a lot of trouble to have a mind toward our freedoms. With three-fourths of the world embracing doctrines which oppose our cherished freedoms, and with many of the nations of the world scorning our kind of Republic, we shall have to keep on taking trouble to defend our way of life. This is true, even when we know that our Republic is the best and most prosperous anywhere in the history of civilization.

Defense of the Mind We have called America the melting pot, the place where the cradle of liberty was first rocked, the refuge of all the persecuted of hundreds of brands of minorities. We have been a thrifty people, an active people, a people building a continent—all the while warding off tyrants from abroad and having a care at home for your freedoms and mine.

How is it, then, that we have been caught napping? Have we not, in times of confusion at home and abroad, allowed doctrines to creep in which would chain our minds and shackle our bodies as well? Distorting, misleading, boring from within, state socialism at home and abroad presents to us the kind of course that tyranny has always been to free man. Inroads have been made on some sectors of the American mind.

Constructive Program Did you know that polls have shown that 51 per cent of our people do not know what a balanced budget is? That virtually a third have no conception of the meaning of "free enterprise"? That many of us think it all right to owe a huge national debt to ourselves? That security is something Congress can hand out? That inflation is acceptable because it creates wealth? That there are ways to earn more by doing less? All these things are fallacies. With other fallacies they will shelve, just as surely as any tyrant. We must make our platform freedom. Can there be a more constructive program than that of free men? American entrepreneurs must prepare the defense of their own minds against the invasion of enslaving ideas.

Serving The "Little Customer" The oft heard criticism that banks are not interested in providing service for the "little customer," the one who can't afford to maintain more than a small deposit balance, is answered effectively by data developed by the Country Bank Operations Commission of the American Bankers Association in a cost analysis study of over 4000 small and med-um-sized banks. This study discloses that about one-third of the che-king accounts in these banks have balances less than $100, while almost one-fourth of these accounts have balances of less than $50. Bank service is for every member of the community who can use it to advantage. Large or small we shall be glad to welcome your account at our bank. Start one now.

100th Anniversary of the Birth of Alexander Graham Bell MARCH 3, 1947 He gave the world a new voice

Alexander Graham Bell was a great humanitarian, not only as a teacher of the deaf but in his vision of the benefits the telephone could bring to mankind. His invention of the telephone brought something into the world that had not been there before. Horizons broadened. For the first time people were able to talk to each other even though separated by long distances. A new industry was born, destined to employ hundreds of thousands of men and women, and to be of service to everyone in the land.

Honor America's "Dog Methuselah"

LADDIE BOY, cross-breed dog approaching his 26th birthday and believed to be the oldest dog in America, seems to enjoy the scene as Harry Miller, executive secretary of the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York, presents certificate of honor to his mistress, Mrs. E. C. Baynard of Rocky Mount, N. C., in recognition of the exceptional care she has given him for over a quarter of a century. Dr. L. H. Hicks, veterinarian who took care of Laddie's illnesses in the 20's, looks on approvingly. Laddie, whose age corresponds to that of a human being of 135 years, was discovered in the course of an extensive search for the oldest dog in the U. S. carried on by the Gaines Dog Research Center as part of the 1946 observance of National Dog Week.

New Sugar Allotment

There is good news this week for all consumers and users of sugar, Frederic A. Adams, OPA regional sugar executive, announced in Denver.

By action of the International Emergency Food Council, the United States has been allotted 6,800,000 short tons of sugar, raw value, for consumption in 1947, Adams said. It is probable that of this amount 6,600,000 tons will be allotted for civilian use.

This means:

1— That in all probability housewives will get 40 per cent more sugar in 1947 than they did in 1946. The amount is expected to be 35 pounds, part of which must be saved for canning.

2— That, in addition to the 10 pound sugar stamp which will be validated April 1, OPA expects to validate another 10-pound stamp on July 1, and barring unpredictable disaster will continue the 10-pound program each quarter through the remainder of 1947.

3— All industrial users of sugar except pharmaceutical producers will be increased to 75 per cent of their base from the old figure of 60 per cent. This increase affects the preserve industry, which was at 55 per cent of base and others, which were at 60 per cent. The pharmaceutical industry will continue at 120 per cent.

Housewives again are urged by Adams to cash their No. 53 stamps as early as possible before the expiration date on March 31.

Early use of the stamp, Adams said, will assist merchants, who, if not depositors in ration bank accounts, must turn over the stamps to their sugar suppliers by April 15. Firms having ration bank accounts must deposit the stamp by April 25.

Useless Committees Formed To Provide Chairmanships

SOME weeks ago your Home Town Reporter wrote that this new congress already had been dubbed the "get ready" congress from the fact that its operations were conducted with an eye to the 1948 presidential election campaign, already under way.

If any proof were needed for this statement, the senate of the 80th congress furnished it in generous proportion. By high pressure tactics, in violation of the spirit of the congressional reorganization act and of the procedural rules of the senate itself, it pushed through resolutions calling for creation of new special senate committees on war investigation and small business. Whether these committees are needed or essential to the public welfare is beside the point, and whether or not the regular standing committee of the senate could handle the subject matter to be investigated also is beside the point.

The violations were so flagrant, the connivance so obvious, that stalwart Charles William Tobey of New Hampshire, former governor, congressman, farmer, banker and manufacturer, who is not afraid to say clearly what he sees and thinks, said:

"The country has just witnessed an example of the difference between votes in the interests of clean government and votes to carry out the program of a special group."

'More Lollipops Later'

Then the gentleman from the Granite state proceeded to flay his colleagues for "inefficiency," for "incompetency," for "slap-dash work," for "breaking down the efficiency status," for "running the train off the rails," for "deliberate by-passing of standing committees," for "creation of chairmanships for the faithful and the indication to those who are not first in line that there may be more lollipops for others later."

"I am a Republican," thundered the New Hampshire selen, "and I desire that my party shall be the majority voice in guiding the ship of state, but I do not wish its guidance to be in disregard of our form of government and of the principles vital to the preservation of our form of government. What of party regularly? What benefit accrues to my party now in control of the senate from the creation of these special committees? The party will control all investigations whether they are assigned to special committees or conducted by standing committees... so the party gains nothing from the creation of continuance of special committees. The only gain which accrues to anyone is to some individual who acquires a chairmanship or to some other individual who gets a place on a special committee, confining thereby with some other senator of his own party who has a place on a standing committee empowered by statute to investigate the selfsame subject."

As a matter of fact, both resolutions were rushed to the floor of the senate without assignment to appropriate committees, without hearings, without consideration of the full committee, without a vote of the committee or the filing of a report to the senate, after bargaining with other committees concerning jurisdiction and after refusing an opponent the usual courtesy of a "pair" vote. The GOP steering committee wanted the two special committees, (1) to provide chairmanships for Senators Brewster of Maine and Wherry of Nebraska and (2) as springboards to provide potential issues for the 1948 presidential campaign.

Reports Neglected

There is no question but that small business needs protection, but a senate and house committee on small business has been active approximately five years and their reports are available, but no legislation has been placed before either house or senate as a result of their investigations.

The house and senate have precedent and material for aiding small business without any future investigation if they would but enact suggested legislation to carry out the report and recommendations of the Committee for Economic Development, which is itself composed of small businessmen.

Senator Tobey, who is chairman of the senate banking and currency committee, already has named a sub-committee of his standing committee to investigate small business problems, three of whom are already members of the senate special small business committee. So there will be duplication of effort and jurisdiction and "by that action we make a mockery of the reorganization act," Senator Tobey said.

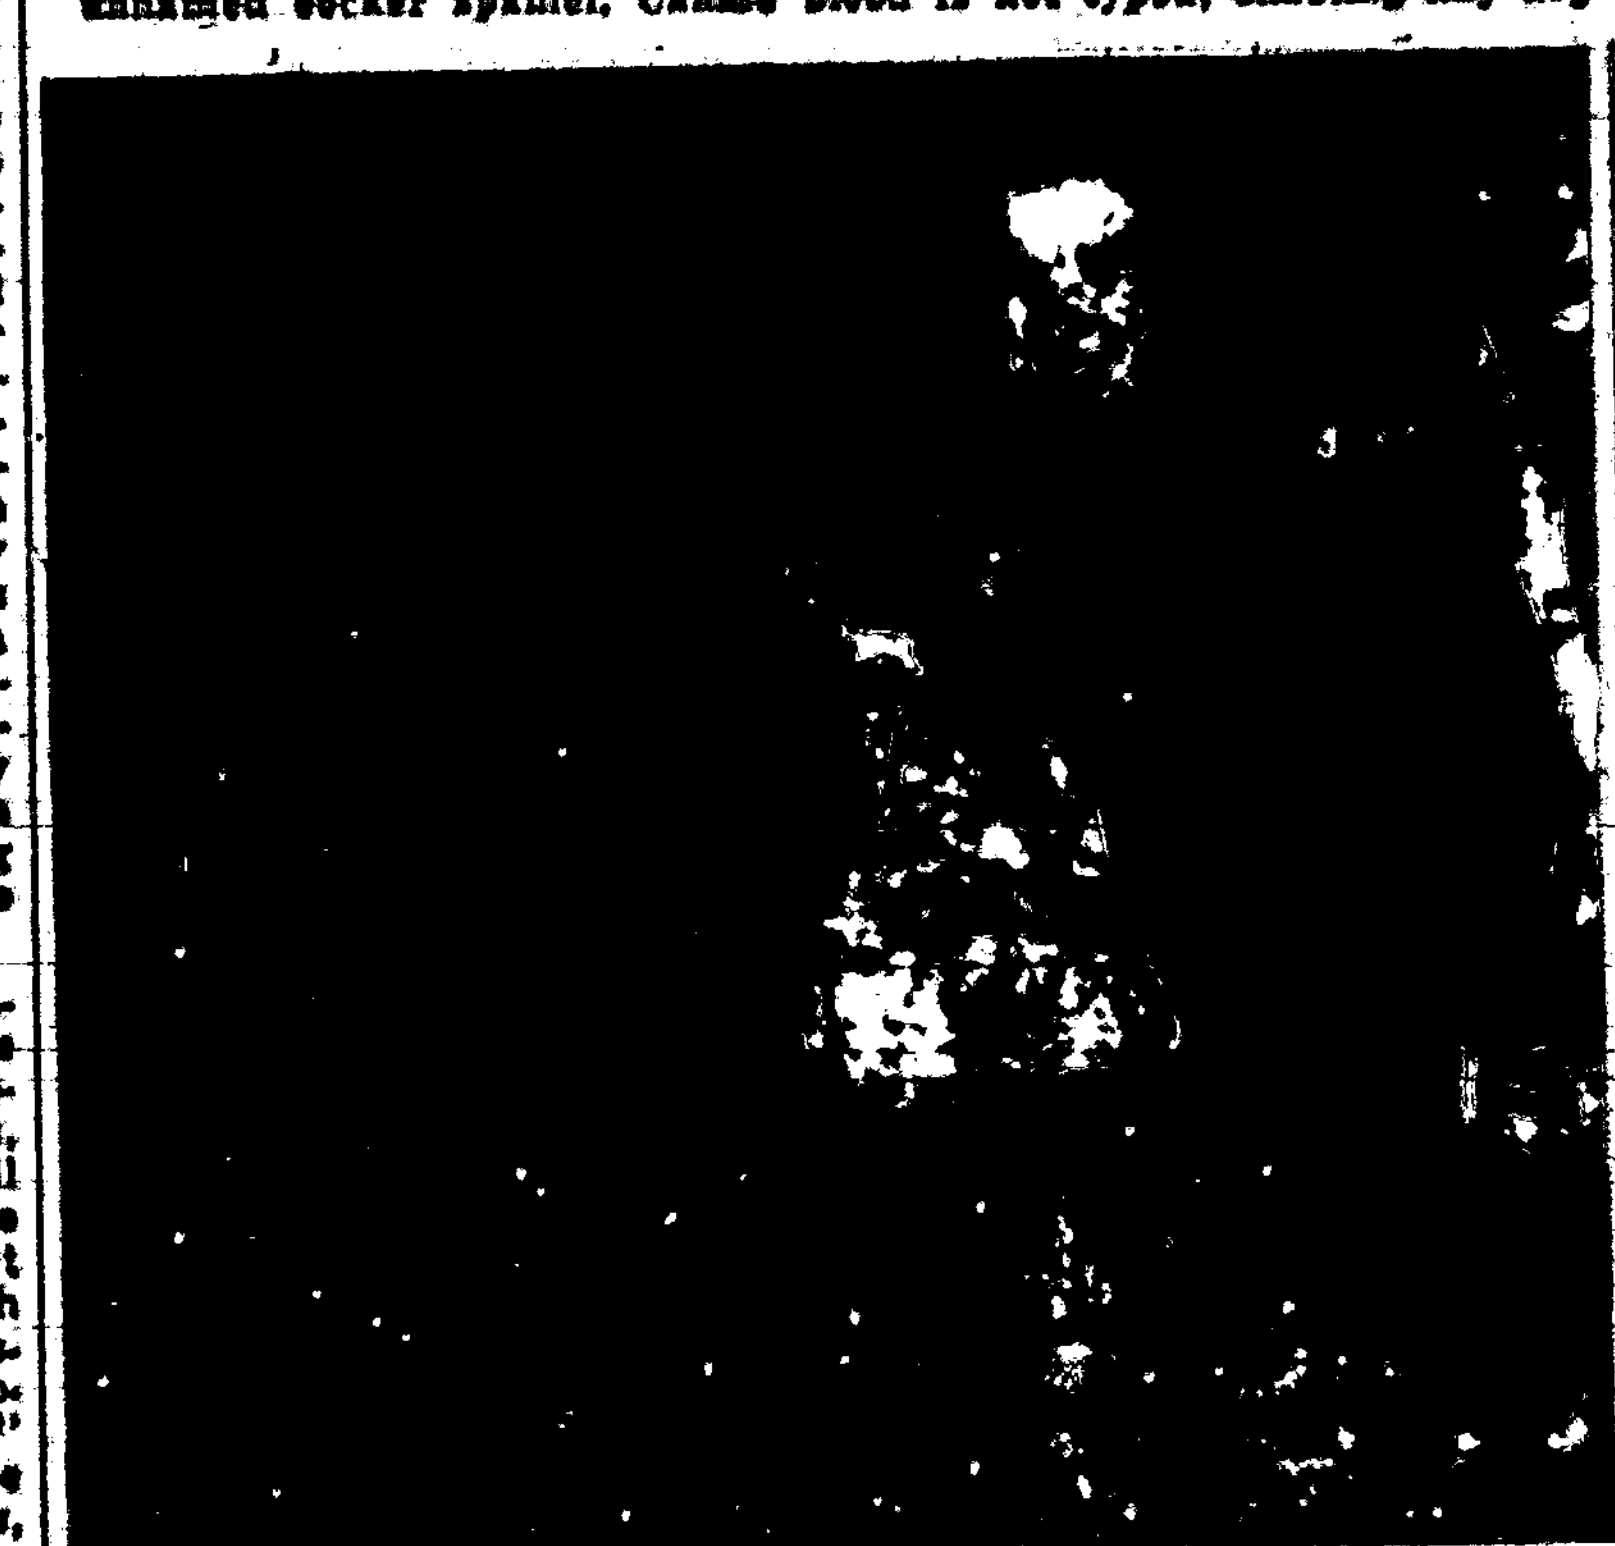

There may be a rash of special committees despite the plain provision to stand by the congressional reorganization act.

FRIGID TRAINING FLIGHT... As part of the army air forces training program, Boeing B-29 superfortresses of the 28th bombardment group are pictured in a practice formation flight over the rugged Alaskan terrain background. Training flights have taken off with the mercury from 25 to 50 below zero as men and machines are put to the toughest tests ever encountered.

DOG RECEIVES TRANSFUSION... Chicago's dog blood bank chalked up another donor when Tess, a large dog with plenty of life-giving fluid to spare, willingly gave up a quart of blood to save the life of a small unnamed cocker spaniel. Canine blood is not typed, enabling any dog to donate blood to another.

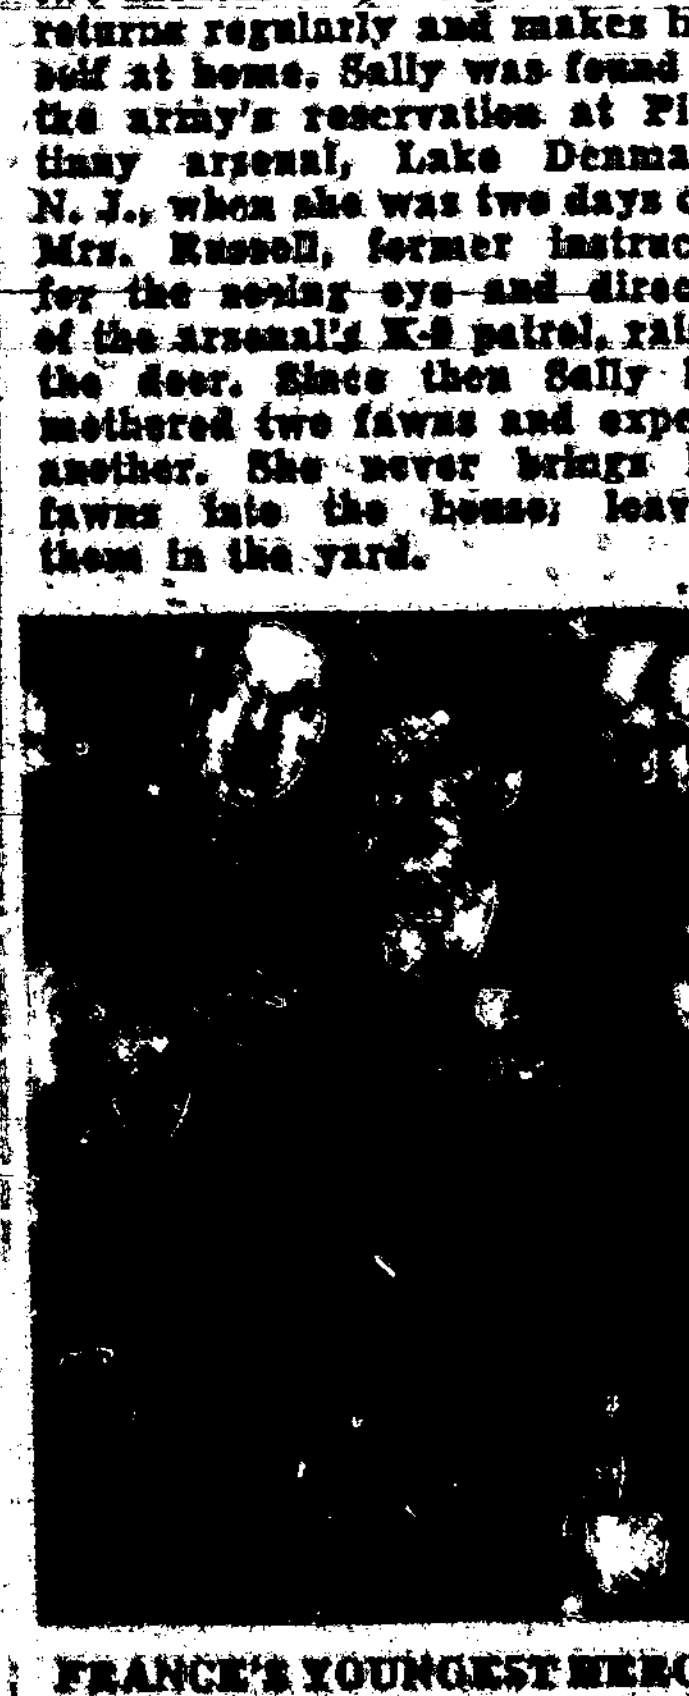

SHE KNOWS HER POTATOES... Miss Yvettie Capps, 18, Van Buren, Mo., has challenged Idaho and other potato producing states to exhibit better Irish spuds than she is shown with at Pittsburgh. Forthright atop a pile of potatoes at the Pittsburgh auction, Maine's potato blossom queen acted as auctioneer. Proceeds were given to the Red Cross. Maine potato producers claim that they not only have the nation's best potatoes but the prettiest potato tubers.

HOW TO FEED FOUR AT A TIME... Mrs. Charles Bonn, mother of Baltimore's baby young quadruplet, shown above taking her first lesson at the hospital nursery. Mrs. Bonn said "It's fun," but she found she needed help to keep all four going successfully without any weaning. The babies are growing splendidly, hospital officials said, and are just about ready to go home.

SALLY COMES HOME... Although Sally, 2-year-old doe, was given her freedom by Mrs. William H. Russell when she was two months old, the grateful deer returns regularly and makes her bed at home. Sally was found on the army's reservation at Pictinny arsenal, Lake Denmark, N. J., when she was two days old. Mrs. Russell, former instructor for the navy's eye and director of the arsenal's K-9 patrol, raised the deer. Since then Sally has mothered two fawns and expects another. She never brings her fawns into the house, leaving them in the yard.

BILBO'S NEXT MOVE
Senator-Elect Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi, now drawing his monthly salary of $1,250 while giving no service to the nation, is sure to get an additional 30 days in which to recuperate—at the expense of the taxpayer, of course.

On January 4, the senate, by unanimous consent, laid Bilbo's contested credentials on the table for a period of 60 days.

This backstage arrangement had been worked out by senate leaders after Bilbo told Dixie colleagues he was "flat broke and in desperate need of hospitalization." Both sides accepted the compromise in order to break a filibuster upon opening the 80th congress.

Bilbo's 60 days "on the table" expires March 5 and he is slated to appear in the senate March 8 to take his oath and seat, something GOP leaders now find it expedient to postpone for at least another 30 days.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, chairman of the senate committee on labor and public welfare, has calculated that at just the time Bilbo is due to appear, the senate will be debating major legislation which he very much wants the senate to pass prior to March 31—the date on which John L. Lewis' strike "truce" expires.

NEW VETERANS HOUSING
Wearied by Truman's housing boondoggle, some war veterans are moving independently to get roofs over their heads. They are organizing cooperatives to purchase housing developments built for defense workers during the war.

Plans for taking over a number of such projects, including the Lake Forest development at Wilmington, N. C., already are near completion. However, the cooperative movement is causing all sorts of trouble because former defense workers must be evicted to make way for occupants by the vet owners.

Federal officials now fear there will be either "marches" on the White House and congress as the coop housing drive gathers steam.

NEW FARM PROGRAM
Some very basic aspects of the postwar agriculture program were laid before President Truman when Albert Goss, president of the National Grange, called at the White House recently.

Goss outlined for the President what he holds to be the four major approaches to the entire question of government-farm relationship and urged him to adopt one of them.

"These are the four courses which have been advocated, boiled down to their essentials," he told the President. "A decision will have to be made soon:

"First, the farmer will plant and sow exactly what the government asks of him, and in return will be guaranteed an income approximating 75 cents an hour for his labor." (Goss did not tell Truman, nor does he admit it widely in Washington, but this is his own analysis of the National Farmers' union program.)

"Second," continued Goss, "the government can let the farmer do as he pleases, planting as much or as little as he desires—a sort of laissez-faire philosophy. And it can pay subsidies where necessary in order to assure him a basic income.

"Third, we keep production down to stipulated levels and place a floor, at 90 per cent parity, under farm prices." (This is essentially the program of the American Farm Bureau federation.)

"Or, four, we can provide a floor under farm prices high enough to prevent disaster, but not so high as to cause large surpluses. This floor would fluctuate according to economic conditions and according to the particular crop. Production would be designed to leave some surplus.

"This fourth plan," concluded Goss, "is the grange plan, Mr. President. We like to talk of a stop-loss floor, which would vary—sometimes above, sometimes below parity. We propose to have planned surpluses of some crops—potatoes, for instance—turned into starch or glucose. And the grange would be prepared to help dispose abroad of anything we found surplus to our domestic needs."

Truman did not commit himself regarding any of these alternative plans. So far his department of agriculture has not yet taken any clear position on them; so all he could do was tell Goss he was tremendously interested in the analysis.

MUSCLE STRAIN? Soretone Liment's Heating Pad Action Gives Quick Relief

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN

Duke McCale, private detective, is investigating the murder of Curt Vallaincourt, who was about to marry Veronica Bigelow, heiress to thirty million dollars. McCale obtains some important clues by questioning Shari Lynn, Vallaincourt's former wife, and Veronica's relatives. She is one of the women seen hurrying away from the murder scene. Karen, wife of Stephen, Veronica's brother, relates some history about Vallaincourt, and how she had to buy back some letters of hers which were being held by Shari Lynn. Stephen saw this transaction at Shari's night club. McCale surmises that the letters must have been old ones.

CHAPTER XIII

"Yes. He accused me late that night, but I'd destroyed the letters, Mr. McCale, and I managed to convince him that I had done an errand for Vicky."
"Ummm. Quick thinking. There are some letters of Victoria's around somewhere, you know."
"Really?" She was disinterested, completely. "Well."
"Those are the things I know." He raised an eyebrow, looked at her intensely, and his voice grew hard. "But this is what I surmise. Let's say it is a hunch I have, so great that it wants only confirmation from you."
"The woman before him might have been carved of ice, but McCale went on."

"The design or plan was to bring Vallaincourt, the irresistible, the magnet, to attract Veronica. He was to marry her and get control of the money, or at least salt away a large portion of it for himself. Then, perhaps, a divorce, and back to Victoria. It probably was Victoria's idea. Then everything would be soft for the foster-Bigelows. They could have their fun, have millions to play with, and no interference from a disapproving brother-in-law, like, for instance, Christopher Storm."

An amused murmur came from her set lips.
"I don't think that you necessarily were a party to the scheme. I suppose you knew about it, but were just too disgusted with your own life to care." He scowled. "But the rest of them. What a rotten deal to put over on a fine old lady and a sensitive young girl! His repugnance to the idea was clearly apparent in his face."

"However." He sat up straight, putting the tips of his fingers together. "Something went wrong somewhere. I rather suspect it was Shari Lynn. Curt probably had to promise he would come back with the spoils in order to get her to divorce him. He also had to make the same promise to Victoria. What a mess when someone, Victoria, no doubt, found the scrap of burned letter in the fireplace. That put the screws in the works. No wonder, in her rage, she took it to Miss Adelaide, sending her searching all over the town for an honest detective."

He was silent for a moment, staring moodily at the disdaintful Karen. "These things I surmise," he reiterated. "Now, what can you tell me?"

"I don't need to tell you anything. You are very acute." Her voice was smooth, flat.

"Thank you." He bowed as though to the Snow Maiden herself. "Except perhaps—"
"Except," she cut it curtly, "it was Veronica who found the piece of letter." She smiled ironically.
"Lord," he reeled as from a blow. "How you all gang up on Veronica!" She moved toward the door. "Christopher, the Golahad, the irreproachable, is upstairs, if you wish to question him." Her voice dripped ice.

"By all means."
Alone, he kicked the brass fender of the fireplace. He was in a vile temper. He had darned a great deal, but all roads led to Rome—or to Veronica, to put it exactly. There was only one solution. Shari Lynn. She must be bribed, or coerced, or frightened into talking. She must talk before this shabby crowd brought their witch's brew to boil.
When Christopher Storm bounded in with his quick, virile stride, McCale turned hurriedly to shake the young man's hand. He looked into the clean-cut face and spoke quickly.

Another Death in The Strange Case

"You're in a hell of a hurry, Storm. You can answer just one question, if you will."
"Gladly." He faced McCale with open, candid eyes.
"How did you happen to give The Nest to the bride and groom?"
For a moment Storm looked rattled, as if the question were far from what he had expected. Then he explained.

"You see, McCale," he said, "I'm an architect. The Nest was a little house for newlyweds. I'd built it for a contest. It's a modern affair, as you know if you've seen the model—all the latest gadgets, sun decks, and stuff."
"Yes, yes," McCale interjected irritably.
"Well, Veronica and I had worked on it together. We were practically engaged and we thought when we did marry, it would be just the place for us." His eyes were "ar-

"Exactly," McCale said. "I understand that."
"Then Curt came along." His voice was bitter.
"Then it was a gesture? A definite, backhanded slap—"

"Not at all. I never would have done a thing like that. I'd had it in for Curt, all right, but after I had a talk with him, just the day before his death, he convinced me he really was in love—that he wanted to make Veronica happy. I—well, in a great big sentimental glow, I decided to deed them The Nest. That's all."
McCale studied him. He said finally, "Yes. That's just about what I'd expect you to do."

The telephone at his elbow rang and he made a motion for Storm to answer it. The young man spoke a few words, then turned to McCale. "For you."
"McCale here," he said, wondering who could be calling him there. "It was Ann. She sounded frightened, urgent."
"Is it all right for me to spill?" she asked.
"Go ahead."

"Duke, I'm down at the drug-store under Shari Lynn's hotel. I went there an hour ago and could not raise her. I thought she was still asleep. I came back just now. The police are there—your friend Donlevy, and the homicide squad."

"A little more of the same mess, eh, my friend?" said Donlevy.

The bellhops won't say a word, but Duke—Duke—does that mean—?"
"Hold everything," McCale said. Ignoring Christopher Storm, he made a grab for his hat.
Shari Lynn lay on her back, a weird, tragic figure in death. Her head was half under the table, as she had fallen, but not too far under to hide the staring eyes and the look of surprise and terror on her face. The patent artifice of her dyed hair accentuated more than ever her age and dissipation.

McCale's eyes were grim as he noted the neat round hole in her chest, the pool of dark blood that had spilled down her side, saturating her gown, soaking the carpet. His eyes swiveled around and away from this horrid grotesquerie to encounter two calm gray ones which contemplated him from the extreme opposite corner of the room. Ann Marriot, trim and unruined in her gray tweeds, sat astride a small theatrical trunk. She was holding the hand of Veronica Bigelow, who sagged, white and haggard looking, in a straight-backed chair. He went over to them, feeling rather than seeing a rising anger in Ann.

Somebody Stole A Picture

She greeted him with a torrent of words, spoken loud enough for everyone in the room to hear.
"This is intolerable, Duke," she exclaimed, biting her lip. "I can't stand it much longer."
"Why did you come back here, then, after you called me?"
"Well, I saw two officers escort Miss Bigelow—Veronica here—into the lobby. I thought: 'Good Lord, what are they up to with that poor girl now?' So I came on up in the same elevator."

McCale smiled his appreciation of her character and his gratitude. "Good girl. But how did you manage to invade the premises?"
"That was too easy. In fact, I was brought in as a prize suspect. Darned if the elevator boy didn't remember he had taken me up an hour before, so, of course, being properly awed by the majesty of the law, he just couldn't help whispering that bit of information at the door. Whereupon I was rushed in with a firm grip on my elbow." She turned to Veronica. "Are you feeling better, Miss Bigelow? Mr. McCale is going to get us out of here."

"I'll do what I can," he said; and there was a genuine concern in him that came as a real surprise. He heard a soft tread behind him and turned to face the lieutenant. "Johnny-on-the-spot as usual, I see." There was a shadow of a smile on Donlevy's lips. "Sorry I had to detain Miss Marriot, but she rather arranged her own entrance, so to speak, together with one of my—over 20—10 is squad."

"Surely you're through with her now?" McCale was devastatingly formal.
"Quite, quite. She could have gone a half hour ago, but when I learned she had phoned you, I thought—that is—Miss Bigelow was a bit under the weather." He disregarded Veronica studiously, his manner to her hard, restrained.

So that's the way the wind blows, McCale thought, and said to Ann, "You run along now. Wait for me at the office." He looked at his watch.
Then he added pointedly to Donlevy, though he faced Ann, "I'll see that Miss Bigelow gets home safely, unless, of course— he turned steely eyes to the lieutenant—"unless you are not willing to remain her in my custody."
"Oh, quite all right," Donlevy said. A cynical grin masked his thoughts. He turned away, drawing McCale with him.

Ann murmured a few cheery words to the girl and went out. At the window, Donlevy spoke with an impatient gesture which took in the whole room. "A little more of the same mess," he said. "Eh, my friend?"
McCale sighed. "Looks like it," he said bitterly. "The worst part of it all is that if I had my wits about me, it might have been prevented."

"What?"
"I was here in this room talking with Miss Lynn about two this morning. I'm convinced by what she said that she knew something. When I came in I had the feeling that she expected someone else."
"A little blackmail, what?" Donlevy's eyes showed their intent interest.
"Yes," McCale began to prow around the room. Everything seemed just the same as it had been. He stopped before the collection of snapshots and photographs he had noticed on the wall the night before. He pointed to a space.

"Someone has removed a picture," he exclaimed.
Donlevy came right over. "I noticed that. But whose picture—that we'll probably never know. You didn't by any chance—"
"No. I looked them over last night, but didn't recognize anyone. What about the rest of the place?"
"Oh, the whole joint has been redressed. Bedroom torn apart. What they were looking for is probably gone."

McCale let his voice drop to a murmur. "Then why in God's name are you determined to pin it on that girl over there?" He indicated Veronica. "Surely—"
Donlevy shrugged. "The motive my friend. The motive always comes back to that. The motive has piled up in the last twenty-four hours."

McCale sounded sullen. He meant only too well how it had piled up. "You satisfied?"
Donlevy wrinkled his brow. "Come now," he said. "You're too romantic, Duke. I've got to be convinced. Besides, some of our cleverest murderers are pretty young women of good American family and background. Then, too, my investigating staff, the D.A.—they're all satisfied. Everyone except you." He smiled. He was very sure of himself and confident.

"Yes, I know. I seem to be unique. You're not arresting her?"
"We can wait for the inquest, I think. And you—?"
"I want the truth, of course," McCale showed his teeth in a dangerous smile. "I'm going on with the investigation, as you know."

Beside McCale, Veronica Bigelow lay back against the seat of the cab, silent. She looked drained of all vitality, a figure of carved gray stone in the terror of her inner thoughts. There was the distilled essence of tragedy in her young face, a face too young to be so harassed, so bewildered. She seemed to have grown up overnight, and the growing had been too sudden, too awful.

Curt Had Planned A Double Cross

McCale spoke to her gently. "I want to help you, Miss Bigelow. Really I do. But first you've got to believe in me. I must probe deeper than the police—maybe hurt you more—but your Aunt Adelaide expects a miracle from me, and so—"
"I know," she opened her eyes. "A few more questions can't matter now. Go ahead."

"I'm taking it for granted that you were nowhere near your home yesterday afternoon at the time of the murder. Right?"
"I wasn't, Mr. McCale." She was intense, earnest. "I can't say where I was at the exact moment, but I didn't kill Curt. I couldn't have. I couldn't kill anybody, least of all Curt."
"Did you love him?"
Her eyes grew big as the question startled her into a consideration of the fact as it was.
"—of course—I suppose I did," she fumbled for words. "It was like going round and round in a great surge of something—something exciting—whenever he was near me. Whenever I thought of him. But it's now—now that I know that it's over, that he's gone forever—dead—that I wonder if it was love. I'm so empty."

Paper Bags Provide Ideal Retail Units

Millions of pounds of potatoes are getting a new ride to market this year. They are riding in new paper bags, made of "wet strength" paper which absorbs moisture without breaking. They're going in 10, 15 and 50 pound quantities which retail stores can sell immediately without further sorting, sacking or handling.

At one time, not so long ago, all grades, sizes and quantities, including culls, were shipped in burlap bags. Merchants had to sort and package the vegetables. Today an ever-growing number of shippers are pre-packaging potatoes in the new paper bags. This means a little more work, but it pays in providing a better-selected, higher quality and more uniform product. The store gets clean, graded potatoes packaged in retail-size bags which can be sold at once.

Wet strength paper was developed before the war but its merchandizing potentialities were not utilized until this year.

KNOW YOUR BREED

Cheviot

By W. J. DRYDEN

Cheviot sheep are one of the oldest purebred varieties in the world. Prolific, hardy, with little oil in their wool, they produce an exceptionally high class of fleeces. The mutton may be classed as among the very best. It contains about the right degree of fatness and is high in grain and flavor.

A beautiful breed, with fleeces from 4 to 5 inches long in one year, and rams clipping between 8 and 10 pounds, it has proven its worth as a general purpose sheep. According to breed standards a mature ram in good flesh should weigh 185 pounds or more and a mature ewe, 140 pounds or more.

GRASSROOTS

MANY COSTS BESIDES LABOR INCLUDED IN SALES PRICE

"LABOR is inclined to consider the difference between what the worker is paid and what the customer is charged as the profit made by a plant. A worker acquaintance said to me he had been shown a bill from the company he worked for to one of its customers. 'The company pays me $1.50 an hour,' he said, 'but they charge their customers $3 an hour for my time. I am entitled to at least a part of that additional $1.50 the company takes as profit.'"

I attempted to show him that $3 charge covered many things other than his time, but did not make much impression. I told him he had to have a place in which to work, and the rent had to be paid by the customer. The tools and equipment with which he worked must be replaced as they were broken or worn out, and the customer provided the money to replace them. I explained to him, as best I could, all the many items of overhead; the salesman who solicited the order, the management who planned the operations, the clerical force, the foreman, the city, state and federal taxes, the insurance, light and power, and many other items, all of which are a part of the final cost. Some portion of all of them in addition to the $1.50 wages he was paid were a part of that $3 an hour charge to the customer. Then, too, those who had provided the funds for the original purchase of the tools and equipment with which he worked, an average of more than $2,000 for every employed worker in the United States, was entitled to some compensation for the use of his money. What he received, if anything, represented the very small margin of what was called profit in that charge of $3 an hour.

Management expects labor to accept its unsupported statements as to the profits a company is making, or at most it expects labor to understand the intricacies of a balance sheet. Undoubtedly labor receives a full and fair share of the receipts of industry, but labor does not know it, will not accept the unsupported statement of management that it is true, and management does not, as it could, prove its case.

In a three way conversation in Chicago several years ago between an industrialist, a banker and myself, the banker said if it were not for the industrialist's wealth, labor would not have a job. I said I knew some of the industrialist's employees, and their conception was that if it were not for their work, the industrialist would not have the wealth; that unless the man of wealth found a way of satisfactorily demonstrating to his employees, something more than merely his word, that the employees were receiving a fair share of the returns from their work, the day would come when the one thousand workers to the one man of wealth would destroy the industrialist, and with his destruction they also would destroy themselves, and also that third party, the consumer, me.

Labor does get a fair share of what the workers produce, but labor must know that in a definite way. When that problem is solved, much of our industrial strife will be over.

WITH each passing year our varied interests become more and more one great national machine. Technology has meshed the gears of industry, of agriculture, of finance, of merchandising and, though the labor bosses do not admit it, of labor. The one thing needed to perfect our production and distribution machine is a governor. That governor must be supplied by statesmanship. If congress capable of regulating the intricacies of that complicated machine that is America of today? We wish to be shown.

LEND-LEASE cost us $30,682,000,000. Of that we passed out to the nation $2,113,188,000 after the last shot was fired, and the last surrender had been signed on the decks of the battleship "Missouri." It is time to start collecting a bill from here and there. Some of our debtors have at least promised to pay something, sometime.

FAMILIARITY breeds contempt. We do not have the same respect for "Harry" that we have for "Mr. President."

THE PEOPLE now are asking, are we to have a few number of bureaucrats, or merely a few breed? What is wanted is a far less number.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Bottles containing liquids will not spill when moving or traveling if the tops are sealed by dipping them in melted paraffin.

For a "slide-along" ethesphib bag get heavy material and sew it on to a coat hanger. Hang it on the clothesline. This eliminates stooping for clothespins.

A kerosene sprinkler occasionally with kerosene gathers more dust.

To keep chairs which are used under furniture from coming loose, dip them in melted paraffin before placing them under the legs of chairs or tables.

The broiler pan cleans easier if removed from the range as soon as the food is cooked, so grease won't continue cooking.

Fats saved from cooking spoil more quickly than does new fat, so keep it cold and use promptly.

Cover a brick with gay material and make a removable slip-cover. You'll have a door-stop heavy enough for holding doors open and attractive enough to fit in your decorating schemes. Cover can be easily washed.

Apple Tree Versus Wheat Field

If you ever visit Job Crowell's farm, he'll take you right out on that back porch of his and show you his apple tree.

"There," says Job, "is nature's noblest creation—fifty years, and hasn't still the finest cider apples in the county!"

Last fall, when a group of us was there, Lud Denny points across the river to his grain fields and says: "There's an even finer sight! Acres and acres of golden grain you can make dozens of appetizing things with—including wholesome, sparkling beer."

Both of them got so eloquent on the subject, that the rest of us worked up quite a thirst for beer and cider. And when the refreshments come, Lud chooses cider, and Job takes the beer!

From where I sit, that's the answer to most disputes. You can talk all you want, but when it comes to tastes and preferences, there's just no argument.

Modern-Mode Styling for Chevrolet

The auto industry's stylists and designers have played the major role in the presentation of new models, since almost every line year has been generally confined to restyling in the modern mode. Here is the new Chevrolet, now in production, distinguished by advanced front-end treatment that incorporates a new and more powerful radiator grille, larger parking lamps, and newly redesigned decorative accents.
