Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor

I hope to put out a Bulletin soon that carries the picture of a cross and the Pauline message, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory". I trust that no one will take offense at me or at Paul on this account. Here's a story. A good sister of a colored Methodist Church was rushed to the hospital for an emergency operation. It happened to be a Catholic hospital (God Bless the Catholic hospital) When the patient had been prepared and was being wheeled into the operating room one of the attendant sisters stepped up beside her and put a small crucifix into her hand saying, "Hold this it may be a comfort to you." But later they heard the colored sister pray as she clung to the crucifix, "Dear Jesus, don't be fooled by this little gadget, I'm still a Methodist!" But Methodism is not a different kind of religion. It is merely the name given to a certain group who try to apply the salt of the same gospel in a certain way. But rather all followers of the Christ are Christians. It the denomination of your choice is not represented in this town we cordially invite you to worship with us.

Sermon Topic for Sunday at 11 a. m. "If I Take the Wings of the Morning?" Please Come.

Japs Get Ideas From Cartoons

Learn Their Rights, Power Of Voting From Simple, Colored Posters.

TOKYO.—Baffled by the Japanese people's inability to comprehend that their votes now will run a country once throttled by royalty, war-makers and industrial barons, General MacArthur's government experts are trying to explain it with cartoons. Allied artists have cut Emperor Hirohito down to a new size, exploited women's rights, wiped out the men who whispered advice from behind the throne and plunked the factory owner down at the bargaining table with his workers.

These colored posters—as simple as a child's picture book—will be displayed throughout the four big home islands in an effort to explain to the people that from now on it is their duty to take advantage of all the rights democracy and a new constitution have brought them.

Americans charged with reshaping Japan's government wipe favored brows and hope the people will understand what it is all about. They hope that at least the basic ideas will sink in so the nation's 70-odd millions will know their rights and duties under the new constitution.

Cartoons Click.

At a press conference, Japanese newsmen listened dutily as the constitution, fair elections and political systems were explained. But when the cartoons were trotted out they came to life and chuckled and giggled appreciatively as their rights were explained in picture. That gave hope it would be the same everywhere in the country.

A good example of the cartoons, all of which are of the "before" and "after" type, is one showing the relation of the emperor, the nobility, and a man and a woman who constitute "the people."

In the "before" cartoon the emperor was a large figure on a big wooden pedestal. The nobility was a bit smaller and on a smaller block. Still more shrunken was the man on a tiny pedestal. The woman was a tiny figure on no pedestal at all.

The "after" cartoon shows a truck hauling away the pedestals and all figures, even the woman, are the same size. Incidentally, the man and the woman are smiling—but not the emperor and the nobility. They look sort of glum.

Accounting Required. Another shows how the emperor, ministers and elder statesmen made the laws and controlled the people at the bottom of the heap.

"After" depicts the people electing the diet, which makes laws to control the emperor and the ministers who govern "for" the people.

The big figure of the industrialist towering over the ant-like figures working in his factories changes to an owner sitting down to bargain with the workers. Depositors whose taxes were shown running down a chute into the hands of militarists who never accounted for them are shown under the "new order." Now their payments go into channels where strict accounting is necessary.

The Japanese newsmen laughed heartily at a cartoon which, first, showed one policeman holding a citizen while another policeman searched his home. The "after" showed the same policeman appearing before a judge asking for a required warrant for search.

The newsmen roared when a government section spokesman remarked drily: "They used to push people around—now they're just directing traffic."

"Matchbox" Camera Helped Allies Behind Foo Lines. ROCHESTER, N. Y.—A tiny "matchbox" camera which would fit in a man's hand, and a "vest-pocket darkroom" aided Allied agents to snap photographs behind enemy lines during World War II, Eastman Kodak company report.

One thousand of the cameras were produced for the Office of Strategic Services and underground forces in enemy-held territory.

Designed at request of OSS, the cameras were made to resemble a box of safety matches—from which they got their name. The half-inch square pictures could be enlarged many times.

The miniature "darkroom" with its chemicals in pill form enabled an agent to develop film in a small glass with a single jigger of solution.

On a film two feet in length the camera made 30 exposures. The angle of the lens permitted photographs to be shot "from the hip."

Girl Banks at Hair Nets; Denied Unemployed Benefits. HARRISBURG, PA.—A waitress who claimed a hair net detracted from her appearance is not entitled to unemployment compensation in Pennsylvania.

The unemployment compensation board of review upheld a referee's decision refusing jobless benefits to Helen D. Katschen, Smithville, Pa. The proprietor of the restaurant where Miss Katschen worked furnished hair nets to all waitresses "because of previous complaints by customers who had found hair in the food."

Came Out in Wash

While out walking in San Francisco one day, William J. Burns, the noted detective, encountered a drunken man.

"Ain't you Mr. Burns?" the drunk asked.

"Yes, I am," answered Burns. "That's what I thought. Know who I am?"

"No, I do not." "I'm the husband of your washerwoman."

"Well, what of it?" inquired Burns. His apparent scorn brought a sneer to the man's lips, and he said:

"Thought you detectives knew everything. Tell you something else you don't know. I'm wearin' one of your white shirts!"

Prevent Cannibalism By Good Management

Keeping Chicks Active Is Real Secret of Success

By W. J. DEYDEN

Chicks will seldom be cannibalistic if provided with proper brooder and range space, correct temperature and air control and a balanced ration, properly fed. They must be kept alert and active. Only the mistreated, sluggish chick will turn to cannibalism.

While the chicks must be comfortable, the temperature should be reduced gradually.

Use a good starting mash. There is no substitute for the best for starting baby chicks. Give them all they will eat at all times and provide plenty of eating troughs. When the chicks are four to five weeks old they may be given grain, and made to scratch for it.

Baby chicks must be managed right to prevent cannibalism.

A good range and shelter should be provided. Pasture such as bluegrass, alfalfa or lespedeza will lower the feed cost and make the chickens take on economical gain. Swiss chard, kale, Chinese cabbage or rape may be planted and the leaves pulled and fed to the chicks. Alfalfa, clover or other grasses may be chopped and fed fresh, or alfalfa leaf meal utilized to aid in proper health and growth.

BUILD FERTILITY

Careless handling of manure causes serious losses of fertilizer and organic matter needed to help increase crop yields and rebuild soil structure.

One hundred tons of manure contains 25 tons of organic matter, 1,000 pounds of nitrogen, 200 pounds of phosphorus and 500 pounds of potash, one-half of it in the liquid part. Piled outside and exposed to rain and weather for several months, this 100 tons may shrink to 50 tons and lose half its fertility and organic matter. Losses may be reduced by using enough bedding to soak up all liquid manure, cleaning stalls frequently and hauling manure directly to fields, or storing carefully.

Baby Rides Tractor

Those who have youngsters who like to ride the tractor will be interested in this improved baby seat designed by A. J. Matfus for the Lincoln foundation contest.

The seat consists of two auto leaf springs, pieces of one-inch round from 2 1/2 inches long for stationary steering column and an obsolete steering wheel. The main leaves were bent in the forge and holes were punched to conform to the cultivator fittings and to give shock absorbing effect. The footrest was welded to the spring leaves. All work was done with 1/4 inch mild steel electrodes.

Thick Stand Helps in Boosting Corn Yield

Farmers who would boost their yields of corn should plant thicker stands than they ordinarily do, advises University of Kentucky. Improved soil and the use of hybrid corn seed makes it possible for most farmers to have thicker stands. About 10,000 stalks can be grown on better-than-average land, and 12,000 to 14,000 stalks on very fertile land with good moisture-holding capacity.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for May 11

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

BEING LOYAL TO TRUE RELIGION

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 18:20, 21, 30-32. MEMORY SELECTION—Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again.—1 Kings 18: 37.

God meets the challenge of unbelief and sin through the ages in its different forms. In the days of Elijah it was the awful power of the false religion of Baal which threw its pall of heathenish immorality over the people.

The prophet was God's man of courage in a day of unbelief and sin. To be courageous means to steadily meet perils of which one is deeply conscious, doing so because of the call of duty. Courage holds a deeper and nobler meaning than bravery, carrying with it the idea of moral strength and, in the case of the Christian, faith in God as one devoted to his cause.

The account of the conflict with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel is a dramatic and instructive story. It shows that when God's man meets God's enemy there is an open, above-board, honest victory.

I. Nothing Hidden (vv. 20-21, 30). The appeal to Israel cut no corners and made no compromises. They must choose between the true God and the false Baal. They could not hold to both or halt between two opinions. The same is true today of our relationship to Jesus Christ.

The direct challenge at Mount Carmel follows the same pattern of out-in-the-open dealing with the problem.

Men whose deeds are evil love darkness rather than light. God does not have to work in the dark. All of his workings are in the open sunlight. Everyone is welcome to "come near" and see what is done. Elijah knew God and he acted like God's man. What a tragedy it is that not all of God's servants have followed his example. If we had the open and above-board dealings of Elijah in the affairs of our churches, we might see more of the fire and power of his ministry.

Certain it is that the administration of church affairs which has to be carried out in hidden corners by whispered conversations and by secret manipulations behind the scenes is not God's work at all, it is the work of man.

II. No Favors Asked (vv. 33-35). Elijah rebuilt the altar himself. He asked no help of the unbelieving prophets of Baal or of apostate Israel. How old-fashioned he seems in this day when so much stress is laid on a false unity of the faith, and there is so much solicitation and acceptance by the church of the help of unbelievers in financing the supposed work of God.

Note also that Elijah invited his enemies to make the answer to his prayer more difficult by pouring water on the sacrifice. This was not an act of bravado; it was for the purpose of demonstrating that there was no fraud. He was willing that the enemies of the truth should make the demonstration more difficult if that would be to God's glory.

There is a delightful old-fashioned flavor about that act, too, in these days when men are frequently willing to compromise with unbelief and even with sin, in order that the work of the church may be carried on without too much difficulty. Here again we have an explanation of the lack of spiritual power in our times.

The victory which came was a glorious testimony to the living reality and the infinite power of God. It left

III. No Glory to Man (vv. 36-37, 38-39).

A man of bravery usually wants recognition for himself, while the courageous man asks only that the cause for which he fights shall be successful.

Elijah had long since demonstrated that he was absolutely fearless, and sought no favor or glory (read the entire story). Now in the tenseness of this moment, he carefully rebuilds the altar of the true God (v. 30), makes it a testimony of unity to a divided Israel (v. 31), and he does it all in the name of the Lord (v. 23).

His prayer (vv. 35, 37) is a profound simple expression of a complete faith in the true God and his power, on the part of a man who recognized himself as being only the divine servant. He made no plea that God would vindicate him or his ministry, but he did plead that the name of the Lord should be honored in the midst of an unbelieving people.

"The fire of the Lord fell." The lying prophets of heathenism were routed. Many recognized Jehovah as the true God. While Israel did not long remember the lesson learned here, the story has continued as a testimony that will strengthen the people of God as long as time continues.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS

Make the Most of Your Strawberries! (See recipe below.)

Strawberry Favorites

Those luscious ripe red berries of which we are so fond have a mighty short season, but today's recipes should help you make the most of them. Eat what you can get now, but put up the red ripe strawberries so you can enjoy them next winter.

If you want to have fresh strawberries all the year around for very special occasions, you may want to freeze them, if you are fortunate enough to have a freezing unit. Otherwise, can them whole, or put them up as marmalade, jam or jelly.

If the berries seem a bit expensive, you can stretch them by using fruits that go well with them in jams, such as pineapple or rhubarb. Budget your canning sugar now, too, so you'll have enough for all your needs of the season.

Strawberry Marmalade. (Makes 12 8-ounce glasses)
2 oranges
2 lemons
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 quart strawberries
7 cups sugar
1/2 bottle fruit pectin

Remove rind from oranges and lemons. Cut off white membranes. Force rinds through food chopper. Add water and soda, and bring to boiling point. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add orange and lemon pulp with juices. Simmer for 20 minutes. Add crushed strawberries. Measure 4 cups of prepared fruit; add sugar. Bring to boiling and boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in fruit pectin. Let stand 5 minutes. Skim and seal in hot, sterile glasses.

Another strawberry favorite for the season is jelly, but in this recipe the precious fruit is extended with young, strawberry-pink rhubarb.

Strawberry-Rhubarb Jelly. (Makes 12 8-ounce glasses)
4 cups juice
3 cups granulated sugar
3 ounces liquid pectin

To prepare fruit, cut about 1 pound of fully ripe rhubarb into one-inch pieces and put through food chopper. Crush thoroughly and force through the food chopper 1 quart of strawberries. Combine fruit and place in jelly bag to extract the juice. Measure sugar and fruit juice into saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over high heat and add liquid pectin at once, stirring constantly. Bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from heat and skim. Pour into sterile glasses and cover with paraffin at once.

Strawberry Jam is an old favorite with hot biscuits on every special occasion. If you can spare the three pounds of sugar necessary to make 10 glasses of this delicacy, then here are the directions:

Strawberry Jam. (Makes 10 8-ounce glasses)
4 cups prepared berries
3 pounds (7 cups) sugar
1/2 of 8-ounce bottle liquid pectin

To prepare fruit, place 2 quarts of fully ripe berries through a food chopper; or, crush completely, one layer at a time. Measure sugar and fruit into saucepan, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from

To dry lettuce after it has been washed, place in a small cloth bag and shake it thoroughly. The bag will absorb the water but the shaking will not bruise the lettuce leaves.

To assure even browning of pancakes on the griddle, rub the griddle with a small bag of salt. This eliminates smoking and simplifies cleaning as well.

heat and stir in liquid pectin. Stir and skim fruit by turns for 5 minutes. Pour into sterile glasses and cover at once with paraffin.

Strawberry-Pineapple Jam. Combine equal parts of strawberries and shredded pineapple with sugar equal in weight to the fruit. Boil until thick and clear, as for jam. Pour into sterile jars and seal at once. If your taste turns to cool, refreshing desserts that make use of strawberries immediately, then you'll want to hang onto these two which take it easy on the sugar supply. Both of these may be made easily in an automatic refrigerator tray.

Strawberry Ice. (Serves 4)
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 cup cold water

1 quart washed, hulled strawberries
Cook sugar, corn syrup and water until mixture spins a thread, or until thermometer registers 220 degrees. Mash strawberries, and add to syrup; mix well and chill. Turn into freezing tray and let freeze until firm, stirring the mixture once or twice with a fork.

Strawberry Sherbet. (Serves 4)
1 1/2 cups strawberries
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup canned sweetened condensed milk

2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Press measured berries through a sieve. Add milk and lemon juice, then chill. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into freezing tray and chill in automatic refrigerator until frozen around the edges. Turn mixture into bowl and beat thoroughly with egg beater. Return to tray and freeze until firm.

If you are lucky enough to have one of the crank freezers, then you'll want to make a share of strawberry ice cream for the week-end. Truly there is nothing more tasty and delicious than the pale pink ice cream made with crushed, fully ripe berries. Serve it plain in all its splendor and you won't need a thing to go with it. Do be sure to have enough for seconds, because there's nothing better than homemade, crank freezer type, strawberry ice cream.

Strawberry Ice Cream. (Makes 1 1/2 quarts)
1 1/2 cups milk, scalded
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
Dash of salt
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
1/2 cup corn syrup (light)
1 1/2 cups heavy cream
1 quart washed, hulled strawberries
1/2 cup sugar

Stir milk into eggs in top of double boiler. Cook until mixture coats the spoon. Stir in vanilla, salt, 6 tablespoons sugar and corn syrup; Cool, then add cream. Mash strawberries and add to them 1/2 cup sugar. Fold in custard mixture. Freeze in a two quart freezer, using 8 parts of crushed ice to one part of salt.

Never cook soups with herbs for a long period of time, as the herbs lose their delicate flavors. Sprinkle the herbs in the soup just a few minutes before serving to get the most out of them.

To save heat and keep the kitchen clean, use pots and pans that fit neatly over burners so that all heat will be utilized.

About Bank Auto Loans
People ask, "Why is it to my advantage to finance my car with an Auto Loan?" Here is how our plan works; don't you agree it's the best way?
You pick your car, find out the trade-in allowance you get from your dealer and the amount of cash you will need for the balance. Then simply add the cost of having your present car insurance policy changed to cover your new car (or getting new insurance) and arrange a low cost loan with us for the total amount.
To see if you will save money (and we believe you will) compare the cost of other financing plans with similar transaction here. And remember that with a Bank Auto Loan it is a local transaction all the way through. Figure it out for yourself—then decide.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh,
"Service with a Smile"
Motorists are mighty glad to patronize Ed's Service Station. The driveway's always cleanly swept, the pumps kept nicely painted, and the office and rest rooms neat and sparkling. And Ed himself is "Service with a Smile."
It's not only Ed's idea. The company that supplies Ed's oil and gasoline insists on certain standards—not just in the upkeep of the station, but in the courteous service that Ed renders.
It's like the brewers' program of Self-Regulation. Through bulletins, meetings and personal visits, the brewers encourage retailers of beer to maintain clean, law-abiding taverns. Those that don't toe the line are reported to the authorities.
From where I sit, it's just common business sense to see that the product which you sell is handled by responsible, courteous people through attractive outlets. It wins the good will and the gratitude of the community.

Autos For Vets
Veterans of World War II who have lost, or lost the use of, one or both legs above the ankle, are still eligible for an automobile at government expense, according to Mister Kinsall, contact representative for the Veterans Administration in Roswell. However, veterans are reminded that the deadline for application and approval of autos is June 30, Mr. Kinsall said.
To date, 95 New Mexico veterans have applied for these automobiles, and of this number 68 have been certified as eligible. Veterans may apply for either jeeps, trucks or tractors instead of cars, if they wish, so long as the cost of any of these vehicles is not more than $1600.
Veterans are urged to visit or write Mr. Kinsall at his office, room 203, city hall, Roswell. Mr. Kinsall also visits Carrizozo each 2nd and 4th Thursday of every month. When writing to the V A Contact Office, veterans are urged to include their full name, latest complete address, service serial number and date of birth.

200,000 4-H Club Members Get Special Training

More than 200,000 4-H Club members have received special training in soil conservation during the last three years, according to the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. Last year, 43 states and Puerto Rico made that activity a part of their 4-H program.

The Club members' training includes, among many other soil conservation practices, contour farming, strip cropping, terracing, soil testing, establishing permanent pastures, adding waterways and planting shelter belts and windbreaks. The activity is conducted under the direction of the Federal and State Extension Services.

Merit awards for top ranking 4-H soil conservation records on county, state, sectional and national levels are again offered in 1947 by Firestone. Awards include gold medals for county winners and $50.00 U. S. Savings Bonds for the six highest entrants in each state. In addition, 16 selected state winners receive a sectional award, which is a trip to the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. Eight of the sectional winners are chosen for national honors, each receiving a $200.00 college scholarship.

Last year's state and sectional winners in New Mexico was Robert C. deBaca of Newkirk. County winners were named in Bernalillo, Dona Ana, Quay, Sierra and Socorro counties.

Complete information concerning this activity will be furnished by county extension agents.

Social Security Regulation Changes

Adoption by certain near relatives will no longer bar a child from receiving monthly social security benefits. This change was made in the 1946 amendment to the Social Security Act, according to a statement made today by Perry A. Webb, manager of the Roswell office of the Social Security Administration. Under previous provisions of the law, a child's monthly payments were stopped upon the child's adoption. Under the amendments, the child may continue to receive his monthly payments if he is adopted by a step-parent, aunt or uncle. Any children whose benefits have been terminated because of an adoption by a relative in one of these classes may begin getting his monthly benefits again provided a new application is filed. This is true if the child is still under 18 years of age and is otherwise eligible. Relatives should get in touch with the nearest Social Security Administration field office.

Another change eliminating the school attendance requirement for eligibility for social security benefits was also made. Under previous provision was repealed by the 1946 amendments. While school attendance is desirable, the Social Security Administration found this provision to be unworkable in actual practice. Children may now receive their monthly benefits up to age 18, regardless of whether they are in attendance at school.

Profit, $50—But Houses Are Built

Hammer's Cheerful Song Assures Homes for Vets

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

(This is the third of a series describing how America is helping to solve one of America's biggest problems—the GI's No. 1 headache—the housing shortage).

WASHINGTON.—Have you been in York, Pa., lately? It's a little town of 50,000 population in southern Pennsylvania with a hinterland of rich farm country, of the famous Pennsylvania Dutch, where tables groan with seven-sweet-and-seven-sour dishes, as good victuals as you'll find though you wonder the world between hors d'oeuvres and baked Alaska from pole to pole and back again.

York is a busy place, a place of bustling industries whose products are known from coast to coast. It is also a town which can lift its eyes from the plowshare and the forge to think, simply and soundly, about caring for its own. It's a town of ingenuity.

Walk out to the Midland avenue section with me. You come upon a batch of clapboard houses — they line both sides of the street for a whole block — in various stages of completion. One group of workmen is finishing the grading on lots; another hauls plaster into a house; still others un-load door frames across the street, and put the finishing touches to the roof of a house being built for a veteran.

Go a little farther downtown and you come to the Elm street houses— neat, obviously new, two-bedroom bungalows which have just been sold to veterans for $5,250 each.

On the other side of town, in Park Village, you can drive for blocks through winding streets flanked by new houses, partly completed houses, excavations for houses, and everywhere the cheerful song of the hammer and the saw, the lap of pouring concrete, the thud of the pick in the deep soil.

When the lights go on at night, you will notice that a great many of the old-fashioned, three-story row houses in downtown York are lighted from top to bottom. You'd guess that a lot of people were living in those houses. You'd be right. The buildings have been converted into small apartments.

It looks as though York is getting itself pretty well housed. A glance at the figures confirms just how well the town is doing. In 1946 York built 613 new houses—100 per cent more houses than were ever built in any previous year of the city's history. In addition, Yorkites added 481 new dwelling units by converting old houses into apartments.

Of course, this didn't just happen. It was made to happen by a great many local people determined that York's veterans would have a place to live.

The big drive got under way last year when a survey showed that one out of every three York veterans was living doubled up with friends or relatives in dilapidated old buildings in need of major repairs, or in trailers without standard plumbing facilities. That's the way it was in York a year ago when Mayor John L. Snyder appointed an 18-member emergency housing committee.

The committee's decision was that York should be able to provide 1,200 new units in 1946; another 1,800 this year. They called a meeting of every one concerned with housing, asked each builder to stand up and tell the group how many of the needed houses he would build in 1946—until the pledges met the quota.

Shortages of materials were a serious threat to this undertaking, but York builders had accepted their quotas and were determined to build houses. When they couldn't find the scarce materials near home, they went to Buffalo, to Ohio, to Hagerstown, Md.

Members of the housing committee pitched in with enthusiasm. One of them came back from a Sunday drive with two kegs of nails in his car—bought on the spot when he discovered a little country hardware store that had some. Someone else found a millwork concern in a nearby town which had some door frames for sale.

To keep prices down, local builders voluntarily cut profits. One went so far as to take a profit of only $50 per house on a large group of veterans' houses.

Because converting to apartments is quicker and takes less materials, York also undertook a campaign in this direction, aided by the Chamber of Commerce, the local housing expediter, banks, press and radio.

In 1945—a year when shortages brought building programs in many communities to a dead stop—York built twice as many houses as had been produced there in any previous year. York's goal for 1947 is 1,800 new living units. The folk in York aren't promising anything—they aren't talking about what they're going to do. But in the first four months of the year—with the building season just getting under way—they've filed over 1,100 applications to build houses.

SCHOOL AT NORTHERNMOST OUTPOST . . . There seems to be no evading the traditional "three R's." These little Eskimo residents of Point Barrow, northernmost outpost of the United States, are learning them at the Point Barrow school (background) from American teachers. Point Barrow, a little village covered by snow the year around, is the center of extensive oil explorations started by the navy in 1944.

NEWS REVIEW

Big 4 Parley Is Failure; Wheat Pact Is Delayed

MOSCOW CONFERENCE: Little Accomplished

After seven weeks of wrangling, the foreign ministers' conference at Moscow ended in a state banquet. Results of the parley were extremely disappointing, even to those whose expectations had been small. It had been hoped that a treaty for Austria would be worked out, but even preliminary agreements could not be reached. The more important matter of the German treaty suffered the same fate, as expected.

Secretary of State Marshall bluntly blamed the Russians for obstructing the negotiations. He charged that the Soviet delegation had "widened rather than narrowed our differences."

Principal points of controversy were the definition of German and Austrian assets which the Russians want as reparations and the disarmament and demilitarization plan, known as the "four nation treaty."

Almost the only proposition accepted was one, introduced by Russian Foreign Minister Molotov, that all German prisoners of war in Allied hands be returned to Germany by December 31, 1948.

Failure to complete the Austrian treaty means that occupation troops of the four powers will remain in Austria for several more months.

WAR GRAFT: Garson Case Again

A new move in the drawn-out war contracts graft case of Representative May and the Garson brothers will be May's testimony in his own defense. His lawyer, Sawyer Smith, told the court that it is untrue that the 71-year-old Kentucky politician profited from deals between the Garson munitions plants and Cumberland Lumber company. "Andrew J. May will take the stand and explain to you how every dollar of that money was spent, and how not one cent went to Andrew J. May," the lawyer asserted.

On trial with May are Henry and Murray Garson, head of the war materials syndicates, and Joseph Freeman, the Garson agent in Washington. The government contends that May received $5,000 outright from the Garsons and two checks for $1,000 each for "interfering with war departmentals" in behalf of the companies.

New evidence turned up by the FBI, according to the prosecutor, is the typewriter used in preparing the false invoices of the lumber company, through which it is alleged May received the bribes.

WHEAT AGREEMENT: British Won't Sign

There will be no world-wide agreement of wheat-producing countries on prices and marketing procedures in the near future. This seems certain as the International Wheat conference in London has broken up on British refusal to sign the proposed plan. Negotiations have been in progress for many weeks in an attempt to formulate a five-year price and marketing schedule.

Sir Herbert Broadley, British delegate, explained his reason for rejecting the draft was that the price scheme in it would not enable the price of wheat to fall quickly enough to a reasonable level. "The United Kingdom cannot afford to pay excessive prices for its imports," he said. "The world must face much lower prices for wheat than those ruling at present, but we want to see those prices achieved in a manner which protects the producer against hardship and enables necessary switches to be made without disaster."

Delegates from Canada, Australia and India followed the British lead. Leslie Wheeler, U. S. delegate, urged immediate acceptance of the draft. Brazil's delegate seconded him. This move was rejected. Wheeler then asked that the proposal be sent to the International wheat council, which will be held in Washington, and that countries not now adhering be invited to join. The conference accepted this request.

NO RENT BOOST: House Kills 10% Plan

The house banking committee, reversing its previous stand, voted down a proposal for a 10 per cent blanket increase in rents. It approved and sent on for action a bill continuing controls until December 31. The senate banking committee already has voted unanimously against any raise, and the senate's bill would continue control until March 1, 1948.

The vote in the house committee was 14 to 10. As outlined by Representative Wolcott, chairman, the house bill provides:

Continuance of rent control just about as it is now until December 31, with the President having authority by proclamation to keep ceilings in effect until next March 1 if he deems it necessary.

A new provision whereby tenants and landlords may voluntarily enter lease contracts for up to 15 per cent increases in rent, provided these leases do not expire before December 31, 1948.

School Boys Learn Constitution

On a 140-acre fruit farm a couple of miles from Olcott Beach where I used to go swimming and the name of which was taken by one of the sweet singers of the last generation (some of you remember Chauncey Olcott of "My Wild Irish Rose")—anyhow on that farm a young boy strained with the pruning knife; stretched to pluck the fuzzy, Niagara county peaches.

That was scarcely a decade ago. On a bright March day, this same fellow—now 17—came into my office. Since he was a graduate of a Buffalo school, he had something in common despite the gulf of the years. We had something else in common, too. I also had once won a prize in oratory.

Mina had to do with a gentleman named Spartacus when I was a Mantua Park high school entrant. His was a far more timely topic—the Constitution of the United States. His name is Edward Smith and he's a graduate of St. Joseph's on Main street in Buffalo.

Smith is one of the four national winners of the American Legion's oratorical contest held each year to stimulate American high school boys to study and understand the Constitution. Never was such an understanding needed more.

Winning was no cinch. Two hundred thousand boys from every state entered this year. Smith—(there weren't too many "Smiths" in this contest, he told me) had to face nine different critical audiences—one in his school; one in the city of Buffalo; one in Erie county; one in the district; one in the zone; one in the state; one in the region; one in the section, and then the final heat—the national contest at Charleston, W. Va.

Smith's theme was that Americans must not be too complacent about the dangers of Communism; that our Constitution in itself is not protection for our form of government—that its duties and privileges must constantly be exercised by every citizen. He held me, incidentally, that Communism in relation to the Constitution was quite a popular subject among the year's student orators.

Edward Smith of Buffalo, a winner in the American Legion oratorical contest based on the Constitution, is being quizzed by Baukhage, also an ex-Buffalo schoolboy, on the Bill of Rights.

WARNS OF SURPLUSES

Strong Farm Program Urged

WASHINGTON.—Expanded consumption and adjusted production are the major points of a strong farm program recommended by Edward A. O'Neal, president of American Farm Bureau federation, in testifying before the house agriculture committee.

"It would be folly to assume that we will not have burdensome surpluses of farm produce again that may wreck farm prices," O'Neal warned.

In endorsing reciprocal trade principles, the farm leader declared that "agriculture more than ever needs an expanded volume of foreign trade to absorb its output."

Although denouncing the farm legislation since the early '30s as "the greatest cooperative endeavor between farmers and the government," O'Neal criticized "a tendency to develop centralized control of these programs from Washington." Instead, he urged transfer of larger authority to state extension services as a means of effecting savings in costs and providing greater service to the masses of farmers.

O'Neal informed the house committee, which is considering a long-range farm policy, that his organization has not come to final conclusions on the subject, but he read this statement:

"We recognize the desirability of full agricultural production, but agriculture cannot maintain full production if industry is going to maintain rigidly high prices by cutting down production and applying monopolistic controls, or if labor is going to insist upon maintaining rigidly high wage rates and to continue such increases in wages without regard to productivity, and to enforce such rates with scarcity policies which discourage consumption and throw people out of work and onto relief rolls.

"It is this approach which leads to economic chaos.

"Farmers believe in an economy of abundance and stand ready to join with industry and labor to achieve maximum production and maximum employment through price policies and wage policies which are geared to a maximum level of consumption."

W-N-U SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page, his assistant, Madame Madeleine Kinross, a young widow who owns the timberland, is trying to persuade Mark to cancel his lease. Her lawyer, Horace Broussac, makes Mark several cash offers to get out, the last a sum of $15,000. Broussac tells Mark that he intends to marry Madame Kinross. Mark, who has fallen in love with her himself, determines to stay. Later he goes to Madeleine, and asks her to marry him. Mark interrupts the steady conversation and Broussac leaves, having threats at Mark. Madeleine and Mark talk of love.

had lived, he would return." "He will return!" cried the girl desperately. "Monsieur, will you protect me against Horace Broussac? Will you save me from him?" "I will," said Mark.

"I cannot marry. I am not free to marry, neither Horace nor you. But we are no longer enemies. And I care no longer what Horace Broussac does with my lands—because whatever may happen, I love you!"

The last log of lumber had passed through the mill along the flume, and into the hold of the second of the waiting schooners. These had departed for Quebec. Soon there would be an additional ten thousand dollars to Mark's credit—not much, but enough to enable him to face the long period before the lumber would come whirling down the St. Victor again, and to make a few improvements on his lease.

Leaving Nat to take charge of the mill and the bookkeeping, he started to repair the corduroys over the swampy districts, and the drags along which the felled trees were drawn to the skids at the edge of the gorge. All day long the sounds of axe and hammer rang through the trees.

Mark had picked out one particular tract that he meant to log the coming winter. It lay on high ground, well back from the river, near the natural bridge that connected the mainland with the light-house peninsula. Wide swaths would

With this idea in mind, Mark followed his men down to the flat terrain in the evening, and had supper with Nat Page at the mill, now again empty and silent.

Madame Gingras, the wife of the mill superintendent, served them, making quite a little fuss over Mark. Phmp little Madame Gingras was a motherly soul, and liked to put forth her best efforts to please the young bachelor who had taken over the mill. Mark didn't dream that his romance with Madeleine was already the chief subject of conversation in the settlement.

Mark was a man to be filled up with beef stew and strawberry pie. But he wasn't one of St. Victor. He was an American who would presently be gone, leaving St. Victor to itself and its own secrets, and it was too bad about the seigneur's wife. Nevertheless, Madame Gingras mothered the two men, beaming in approval when Mark praised her pastry.

"Not much for me to do here, Mark," said Nat Page, as they smoked their pipes together. "I'd like to join you up in the woods."

"I'm going to ask you to take charge of the corduroy gangs," said Mark. "They're apt to be a bit slipshod unless they've got an American working over them."

"Just as you say. We've certainly made a fine start. I think we're going to put it over, Mark."

"I know we are." "I don't trust that Broussac, though. He's up to some more mischief. I can sense it, from the way people look at me, every time I go into St. Victor."

"I've wondered what his game is," said Mark. "Of course he couldn't tell Nat about Madeleine. I thought he had another lessee in the field, but now I think he simply wants to get us out of St. Victor."

"He'll have his work cut out," grinned Nat. "The tax is eating out of our hands."

They talked a little longer, Mark had a look at the books, and then departed into town to see Father Lacombe.

The cure lived with an old house-keeper in the house next to the big stone church. He was sitting in his study beside the stove, reading, his scutane closely buttoned about him.

"And what can I do for you, Monsieur?" he asked. "I've come to have a talk with you, Father."

Father Lacombe Speaks Mysteriously

The cure put his book away and scrutinized Mark thoughtfully. Mark was fully conscious of the slight feeling of antagonism between them, the result of their last meeting.

"I'm not a member of your church, but I thought perhaps you would have a private and confidential talk with me. I think it is desirable."

"My son," said the cure kindly, "everybody is a member of my church, even though he may not be aware of it. What is it that you wished to speak to me about?"

"I love the wife of the late seigneur. I think she loves me, or might come to love me," said Mark frankly.

He could see that this was no news to Father Lacombe, who leaned forward, his finely chiseled face scrutinizing his visitor's.

"She thinks—you are aware of it, of course—she thinks that her husband, the late seigneur, did not die on that ice-foe," said Mark. "I want to know the truth. At least, I want to know what you know."

Father Lacombe looked disturbed. "Monsieur Darrell, you do not belong to St. Victor. I have advised you to return your lease to Monsieur Broussac. You have no right—I say you have no right to question me about our own affairs."

"So the seigneur didn't die?" asked Mark. "Where is he, then? Is it fair to make a mystery out of nothing?"

"I have not said that the seigneur is alive. I do not propose to discuss the matter, Mr. Darrell. But I will say this much—Madame Kinross is not for you. Put her out of your mind. Forget this business."

"Pardon me if I am abrupt, Monsieur," the cure continued, rising and beginning to pace up and down the room. "If you understood what it means to be a parish priest, to have so many souls, human souls dependent upon me, to try to reconcile them with their consciences—"

"I think I can understand that," said Mark. "But the question I asked you is a simple one. I have gathered that something happened to the seigneur. That he was perhaps rescued from the ice. That he is being cared for somewhere—"

"Monsieur Darrell, I have told you that Madame Kinross is not for you. I have advised you to accept Monsieur Broussac's terms, and go. We are the habitants. We belong here. We try to live good lives, to make our peace with God. I will not answer your questions. I say simply that Madame Kinross is not for you. Now, Monsieur, draw your own conclusions!"

CHAPTER VI

"These three say that my husband was lost in the fog when he was on the ice-foe, killing the seals. They say he drifted away. But they whisper and mutter together. There is something that they have not told me. I know that he is alive, being cared for somewhere, and that some day he will return. And meanwhile it is my duty to take care of the seignory."

"And Broussac?" asked Mark. "He is a distant relative of my husband's. I trusted him. Now he demands that I shall marry him. I do not love him; and anyway, how could I marry him when my husband is alive?"

She came closer to Mark; he put his hands upon her shoulders and she swayed toward him.

"I never loved the seigneur. I married him half-an-hour before the fleet sailed for the sealing-grounds, to protect the little property that my father had left. He was the lighthouse-keeper then. I never loved the seigneur, but he was un homme galant. There was not a girl within fifty miles of St. Victor but was in love with him. He was the sort of man a woman loves, Monsieur Darrell, because he was so rash, heedless, careless, as if the things of the world were all his toy."

"He had begged me to marry him since I was thirteen years old. I did not love him, but I was fascinated by him. And, if I married him, my father's little property would remain secure."

"Father Lacombe married us half-an-hour before the sealing fleet sailed for Newfoundland, and I have not seen him since. They say he died. If he had died, I should feel it here." She struck her breast again.

"My cousin Horace Broussac managed the estate. He lost a great deal of money—I do not know how—and he was forced to make you a lessee of the mill and those three thousand arpents. Later, he made some money for me in the market. And so I want you to go, because I must protect the seignory of my husband. Will you go?"

"Madame, you have signed a lease with me. Your request is not fair to me, or my backers."

"But Horace wants to marry me." She was speaking like a frightened child. "He told me that I must marry him, and that the seignory must be intact. How can I marry him when my husband is still alive? I was a child when I married him, to save my father's property. I am afraid of him. I am afraid of being his wife. But he is my husband, and he is still alive."

Madeleine Admits Her Love for Mark

"They know it, those old men. That is why they mutter. That is why old Andre hates you so. They know something that they have not told me—Andre, and Alphonse Vitard, and Hector Mackintosh, who sailed on the same boat with him. Yes, and Monsieur Lacombe, the cure, knows it too. They know that my husband is not dead. And Horace Broussac demands that I marry him."

Mark drew Madeleine into his arms, but only as he might have caressed a frightened child. "I love you," he said simply. He saw her big gray eyes looking at him in terror and fascination. He knew this woman was his for the taking.

"Darling, your husband is not alive," he said. "You have lived in a dream about him. And that marriage was never a marriage. You were a child then. That marriage has cursed your life, and it was no marriage."

"Oh yes, it was a marriage," she answered. "I am the wife of the seigneur of St. Victor." A little proudly. "You don't know what a man he is. He can bend any woman to his will. There is not a man in St. Victor who would dare to cross him. He can tear a pack of cards in two with his fingers. And he is just a child who has never grown up. Do you not see that it is my duty to protect his seignory for him? Because he is not dead, and he is coming back."

She swayed at Mark's arms, and then suddenly she gave her lips to his. "Yes, I love you," she said. "I loved you from the first. You knew that, didn't you? And I am a married woman, and I must tell Father Lacombe that I have sinned in loving you. And he tells me that the seigneur is dead, when I know he is not dead."

"Madeleine," said Mark, "Madeleine, darling, your husband died on the ice-foe five years ago. If he

"I'd like to join you in the woods."

have to be cut in the underbrush to bring the fallen trees to the sawyer's camp beside the gorge, but the proceeds promised to be profitable. Broussac's efforts in the past had been decidedly unwoodsmanlike. He had been cutting timber here and there promiscuously, with the idea of a quick profit.

Mark decided to take up his headquarters here. He had a shack built in the thick of a heavily timbered belt where the land rose to join the natural bridge. There, after his men had departed for their homes, he would spend the evening, thinking—always thinking of Madeleine.

A Conference With The Parish Priest

"I cannot marry. I am not free to marry, neither Horace nor you," she had said to him. Was there anything to that idea of hers that the seigneur had somehow survived, five years after he was reported drowned at sea?

He couldn't believe it—and yet it was a fixed and dominating idea in the girl's mind. She had kissed that idea of hers stood between them, and probably would always stand.

She had told him that the reason why the three men hated him—Andre, Mackintosh and Vitard—was because they knew the seigneur was alive. They resented his presence there. So old old St. Victor, as if it foresaw the love affair that was destined to spring from it.

In the night, brooding, Mark would see the one-two, one-two of the lighthouse flashes, and when the fogs choked the Gulf, he would hear the steady, throbbing note of the foghorn. Years seemed to have gone by since that night when Nat and he had been cast ashore in the storm. And Mark hadn't seen Madeleine again. He knew that she did not want to see him.

Then what of Broussac? What of his schemes to marry her? Madeleine had asked Mark to protect her against Broussac and he had promised to do so. How was it to be done?

Thinking the matter over, Mark came to the conclusion that the key to the situation lay in Father Lacombe. A parish priest knows everything. If the seigneur was really alive, Father Lacombe would know. And he would know exactly what had happened when the ice-foe, carrying Kinross, was detached from the main vessel and carried him away into the fog.

DWARFING A GIANT... Despite its 300-foot drop (almost double that of Niagara) the Lower Falls in Yellowstone National park appear small in comparison with the surroundings in Yellowstone canyons.

'SEE AMERICA FIRST'

National Parks Are Major Lure to Vacation Throgs

Vacation-hungry Americans are on the move. Tourist trails once again are jammed as the American public, with its vacation lanes unshackled of wartime restrictions, attempts to cram a full quota of fun and frolic, rest and relaxation, adventure and sight-seeing into the short vacation span of a few weeks.

The upsurge in vacation travel is noted in all forms of land, sea and air transportation. Trains and buses are crowded; airlines are booked with reservations; passenger vessels and even tramp steamers are unable to accommodate all those bent on sea-faring jaunts.

With transportation, food and hotel accommodations in Europe still insecure in the war's aftermath, most Americans still are content, as they were last year, to heed the old slogan of "See America First."

The nation's principal attraction for vacationists is the national park system, embracing 169 separate areas in all parts of the United States.

Last year the park system attracted a record-shattering 21,600,000 visitors, half a million more than in any previous year.

On the basis of attendance so far, Newton B. Drury, director of the National Park service, which administers the system, predicts that 1947 will set another new record. "What's more," says the park chief, "we hope to be able to take better care of our visitors than we did last year, when our park staffs had nowhere near recovered from the reductions of wartime."

Concessioners who operate the hotels, lodges, stores and transportation system in the parks also were short-handed last year, Drury points out, but he adds that "they probably will be in better shape this year."

AS HAS BEEN the case for many years, one of the most popular travel objectives of the American vacationer will be Yellowstone National park in Wyoming, Montana and Idaho. Yellowstone is the oldest park in the entire system; it is, in fact, the oldest national park in the world, having celebrated the 75th anniversary of its founding on March 1 of this year.

Containing approximately 2,213,000 acres, it is noted for its geysers and hot springs, of which it has more than any other area in the world. Old Faithful, spouting its steaming waters high into the air at intervals of about an hour, day and night, summer and winter, has become a virtual symbol of Yellowstone.

Yet Yellowstone would be a great national park if there weren't a geyser or hot spring. While the two great falls of the Yellowstone and the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone with its vividly colored walls combine to form its most spectacular scenic feature, the park abounds in natural beauty. Yellowstone lake, with its hundred miles of shoreline and its eastern border of lofty peaks; scores of towering waterfalls; Obsidian cliff, of black glass; high and sweeping upland valleys and vast expanses of little-known wilderness—these merely suggest the variety of the scenery its possessors.

No other national park is as widely known for its wildlife. Yellowstone played an important part in restoration of the American bison, after it had come close to extinction, and there are hundreds of them in the park today. In quiet streams and marshes, the traveler is likely at any time to come across moose, elk, antelope, bighorn sheep, grizzly

Hyde Park Visitors Cause Damage

WASHINGTON.—Half a million visitors have worn such a path through Franklin D. Roosevelt's Hyde Park, N. Y., home, now a national historic site, that a bit of bracing and carpeting has become necessary, the National Park service reports. Furthermore, according to the park service, there has been "some wear and tear" on the grounds and lawns have been ruined.

The New Book of Everyday Etiquette

Introductions

DO YOU get tongue-tied and flustered when you have to make introductions? It's easy to avoid embarrassment when you know the rules.

In introducing a man and a woman, speak the woman's name first unless she is very old or very distinguished. If the people are both the same sex, present the younger to the older. As "Hello, this is Janet Smith" and "Mrs. Lane, do you know Miss Young?"

Worried about your table manners? Note-writing got you down? Our Reader Service booklet No. 48 covers these and other phases of every-day etiquette. Send 25 cents (cash) for "The Book of Everyday Etiquette" to Weekly Newspaper Service, 343 W. 17th St., New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address, booklet title and No. 48.

Household Hints

Store felt hats, well cleaned and aired, covered with paper in a dry place. Dampness may cause mildew.

A little vinegar added to the water in which table glasses are rinsed will make them shine—and shine.

Make it a habit to turn the handles of saucepans toward the back of the stove, so that they are out of reach of little children.

While doing close work with a flashlight it often becomes necessary to use both hands. So if there is nothing nearby on which to rest the flashlight, a simple expedient is to insert it in your shirt collar.

Freshly pressed shirts hung on clothes hangers until time to wear should have plenty of free space between them, especially in warm damp weather.

Pushing a child in its carriage provides a form of outdoor rest, but should never take the place of a child's real nap.
