To Observe "Soil and Souls Sunday"

Rev. F. J. Johnston has announced that the eleven o'clock service at the Canitan Methodist church will be devoted to the observance of "Soils and Souls Sunday," June 29th.

The setting aside of one Sunday each year as a special day for remembering our God given responsibilities as "Stewards of the Soil" was first observed throughout the Southwest last year. Farm and ranch magazines cooperating with the local pastors throughout this part of the nation, has been instrumental in the establishment of this observance, both through its editorial support and the personal actions of its editor, A. B. Kennerly.

As a result of these combined efforts, "Soils and Souls Sunday" was designated by proclamation of several governors of the Southwestern States, and churches throughout this entire area participated individually. Even wider observance this year has been evidenced.

All members and friends of the Methodist Church are urged to be present at the 11 A. M. service next Sunday. Rev. F. J. Johnston will bring a special sermon in keeping with the occasion and an inspiring program has been arranged.

Rev. Johnston assures that he will preach in the Central Park if the City Hall will not accommodate the crowd. Everybody invited.

Space Reservations Coming In Early

Early requests for exhibit space at this year's New Mexico State Fair, Sept. 28 Oct. 5, indicate a record showing of new merchandise and manufactured products, according to Leon H. Harms, Fair manager. Demand for space, especially for ranch and farm machinery and equipment and new home appliances and conveniences is especially heavy, Harms states.

"Space in our industrial hall is being reserved so rapidly that its capacity will soon have been reached," Harms said. "It is the only building available for indoors displays of merchandise and exhibitors who wish space in the building should contact the Fair management at once."

"We have plenty of out-door display space surrounding the various exhibit buildings, but more desirable locations are being snapped up rapidly. Reservations made thus far assure this year's Fair the largest industrial and merchandise we have ever had both in number of exhibitors and variety of products. We are especially gratified at reservations being made for new products in ranch and farm machinery and equipment and new lines of home appliances."

Girl Scouts Honor Fathers at Banquet

Carrizozo Girl Scout troops No. 14 and No. 2 and Brownie Troop No. 8 honored their fathers at a banquet Friday evening, June 20, at the Woman's Club Building.

The Girl Scouts spent the afternoon setting and decorating the tables with summer flowers. Covers were laid for 40.

Before the banquet, a short program was given. The flag ceremony was held with the fathers participating. Scout Dorothy Moore gave a reading, Elaine Schultz sang "Always", dedicated to the dads.

The girls sat beside their fathers at the tables. Each one was called upon to introduce herself and her dad. Each girl was a little awed, and perhaps thrilled to take her own father out to dinner without the rest of the family along and perhaps that is the way some of the fathers felt. Not to be outdone, some of the Scouts whose fathers were out of town scurried around and found substitutes.

The menu was made up by the Senior Scouts and the kitchen crew were leaders and troop committee women.

From the way the fathers ate everybody had a scouting good time.

Discovered Chocolate

The Aztec Indians discovered chocolate. They used the cacao bean, from which chocolate is made, for money. Because of this, only the upper class Aztecs could afford to use it as a beverage. Chocolate was introduced into Europe by the Spaniards who learned its use from the Mexicans when Cortez invaded that country in 1519.

Gracious Invitations

WHEN writing to invite a friend for a visit, be definite. Tell her the time for arrival and how long you expect her visit to last.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Serve Simply; Keep Cool (See recipe below.)

Refreshing Meals

One of the biggest problems which we homemakers will be facing these warm days is that of keeping cool and at the same time serving refreshing foods to the family.

My own rules for keeping cool on these hot days include the following which you might find it helpful to adopt: Select foods which may be served chilled, or those which cook quickly; and another, choose foods that are colorful as they stimulate wilted appetites.

Never choose foods which are fussy and that take long to prepare. Mother can exert much better influence at mealtime if she appears cool and collected, and this is possible only if she has used as many shortcuts as possible.

For your main dish select food to be either broiled or chilled. Two raw vegetables in a salad are preferred to two cooked ones if you want to keep cool. And, as for dessert, try ice cream or fresh fruit and berries, thus cutting preparation time to a minimum.

Majestic Salmon Loaf.
(Serves 6)
2 cups canned salmon
2 packages lime gelatin
1/2 cup vinegar
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 1/2 cups cold water
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups finely shredded cabbage.
3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Place flaked salmon in bottom of loaf pan or mold. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water, vinegar, lemon juice and salt. Pour half of the warm gelatin over the salmon and chill. When set, fill mold with alternating layers of shredded cabbage and sliced eggs. Cover with remaining gelatin, chill until set. Unmold on crisp lettuce; garnish with potato chips, sliced cucumbers and lemon.

These broiled lamb steaks don't take long to cook, so they will be a boon to the hot weather homemaker. The potatoes may be cooked ahead of time (or use leftovers) and broiled along with the meat to heat and become golden brown. Carrots are a colorful addition to the menu, and you may use the canned variety to save cooking time. Dress them up by melting butter and adding a small amount of mint jelly to it, and pour over the carrots before serving.

Broiled Lamb Steaks.
(Serves 6)
6 shoulder lamb steaks, cut 1 inch thick
3 tablespoons olive oil
6 tablespoons lemon juice
1 minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
Mix olive oil and lemon juice. Add onion and salt and marinate lamb steaks in this mixture for two hours before broiling. Preheat broiling oven. Place steaks on rack three inches from heat. Turn oven regulator on high. When one side is nicely browned, season with salt and pepper and turn. When second side is browned, season and serve immediately. Allow 6 to 8 minutes for each side.

LYNN SAYS:
Here are Tips For Picnics

Fried chicken which may be eaten with the fingers is an excellent food for picnics. Wrap each piece individually in waxed paper, place light meat on one side of the basket, dark meat on the other side, and then dole it out.

Meat loaf is another good main dish for picnics. It is easy to carry in the loaf pan in which it was baked.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Crisp Rolls with Butter
Sliced Tomatoes
Peach Shortcake Beverage
*Recipe given.

Another quick, broiled entree which I know your family will enjoy is hamburger. This may be served with potato salad and tomato stuffed with cole slaw.

Toasted Deviled Hamburgers.
(Serves 3)
1 pound ground round steak
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon pepper
3 slices bread

Combine above ingredients and spread on slices of bread. Broil for 8 minutes at moderate heat and serve immediately.

Cheese Hamburgers.
(Serves 4 to 5)
3/4 pound chuck or round steak, ground
1/2 cup corn flakes
1 1/4 cups milk
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup catsup
2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/4 pound grated American cheese

Combine beef, 1/4 cup milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt and the pepper and catsup. Form into six patties and saute in 1 tablespoon of fat. Melt remaining fat in saucepan. Stir in flour and mustard, then remaining milk and salt. When smooth, add cheese and cook until it has melted. Arrange hamburgers in a baking dish and pour sauce over them. Bake in a slow oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

If your choice of main dish is a salad, select a good protein food like eggs or chicken. Here are suggestions:

Egg Salad Bowl.
(Serves 6)
1 clove garlic, optional
1 small head of lettuce
1 bunch watercress
1 cucumber, sliced
1 bunch radishes, sliced
1/2 cup celery, sliced
3 hard-cooked eggs
French Dressing.

Rub inside of large bowl with garlic. Break lettuce into chunks. Add all other ingredients to bowl and toss together lightly with French dressing (just enough to hold together). If a more hearty salad is desired, serve topped with strips of cheese, cold tongue or ham.

Chicken Salad I. Mix together the following: 1 cup diced, cooked chicken, 1 cup diced, cooked tongue, 1/2 cup chopped celery, 1/2 cup sliced, stuffed olives, and 1/4 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Chicken Salad II. Toss together the following: 2 cups diced, cooked chicken, 1 cup minced celery, 1 chopped green pepper. Marinate in French dressing. Drain and mix with mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce cups with pineapple spears.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Good accompaniments for the fried chicken lunch: Pineapple cole slaw, small cherry tomatoes, pickles or olives, fruit salad made of large pieces of fruit, or ambrosia.

Make hamburgers of a larger size when going on a picnic as appetites are bound to be big. To make cheeseburgers, take along some wrapped slices of American cheese, and when the "burgers" are almost done, place cheese on top and remove from fire just after it has melted.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD E. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE TRAGIC END OF A NATION

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 25:1-12. MEMORY SELECTION—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Proverbs 14:34.

The end of the road! Down, down, down went Judah in its sinful refusal to keep God's Word, and ultimately came the final day of reckoning. It always does! The catastrophe which had long been approaching had arrived—at last.

The fall of a capital city, which carries with it the empire, is a world-shaking event. The fall of Rome shattered the world for a thousand years. The fall of Berlin and Tokyo are within the memory of all of us, and the results are seen in a disordered world.

The destruction of Jerusalem, which our lesson presents, was even more serious; for it was not only a national tragedy, but also one with deep religious significance.

The wicked king Jehoiakim was succeeded by his son Jehoiachin, a mere boy who reigned only three months. He gave way to Nebuchadnezzar, who appointed as his successor his uncle Zedekiah.

It is in the verses just preceding our lesson that we learn that Zedekiah turned against Babylon in an act of

I. Rebellion (v. 1).
Zedekiah ignored his oath of allegiance (II Chron. 36:13), for which he was condemned by Ezekiel as a traitor (Ezek. 17:13-18). Zedekiah has well been called the vanishing point in a diminishing line of kings. It was an evil thing he did (II Kings 24:19), and one which showed his conceit, vanity and rashness.

True it was that he only followed what he had learned from his predecessors, but that is never a good excuse for a man foolishly to turn against God's will.

Observe that God was not just a disinterested spectator, and yet he had come to the place where he let Judah go down to its own awful doom. The worst thing that can happen to a man or a nation is to be let alone by God!

Zedekiah's act of folly quickly brought

II. Retribution (vv. 2-10).
Jeremiah urged Zedekiah to surrender (see Jer. 37, 38) in order to save Jerusalem and himself, but he refused, and the city was besieged. The king's refusal to hear God's prophet and his turning to Egypt for help speak to us of the manner in which unrepentant sinners reject God's mercy and then seek help at the hopeless cisterns of this world (Jer. 2:13).

The king tried to flee, but was taken captive. Then came the siege of Jerusalem. For one and one-half years the enemy gradually closed in, while famine and distress grew apace in the city. Jeremiah went through this entire period sharing his people's trouble. The book of Lamentations is the record of this eyewitness.

Sin does its terrible work. Even as it can take a great city and turn it into a plague spot marked by cruelty, suffering and death, even so it can bring forth its inevitable and unspeakable results in the life of the individual who persists in resisting the voice of God.

Note also that the sin of Zedekiah brought quick judgment, not only on himself, but upon his innocent children (v. 7), and on many in the besieged city who were equally guiltless of wrongdoing. It is again a picture of what sin does today in the homes and communities of our nation.

III. Removal (vv. 11, 12).
The fall of Jerusalem prepared the way for the closing scene of the immediate history of the nation as the people went into captivity. It also ended for the time being the history of the city that had once so proudly held a position of privilege and power, but was now brought down by its sin and rebellion against God.

We say rightly that history repeats itself. We see that any nation that lifts itself up in pride and forgets God will inevitably perish. We ask ourselves where our beloved country stands. As we consider its debauchery and drunkenness, its disregard of moral standards, its indifference to the things of God, we feel that instead of pointing a finger of scorn at Judah, we ought to be on our faces before God in penitence and shame.

Let us not assume that we hold a place of favor with God, which exempts us from the certainty of judgment. Israel was his chosen, and they still are, for his promises of ultimate blessing to them have never been withdrawn. But their sin brought certain punishment, and the same is true today not only of the nation but of the individual.

The Sunday school lessons will take up the history of Israel again at this point in April, 1948, when we consider the captivity and the partial return of the people to their land.

National 4-H Sheep Shearing Contest

New Mexico will take part in a nation-wide 4-H sheep shearing contest just announced by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. The state contest will be conducted under the direction of the New Mexico Extension Service.

4-H Club members between 14 and 21 years of age working under the supervision of the Extension Service, who have had some years of experience in caring for, handling or shearing sheep during the current year, may participate.

Participation in any other national 4-H awards program will not bar a member from this contest.

As incentives for outstanding sheep shearing achievements, awards are provided by the Sunbeam Corporation on state and national levels. A championship belt with especially designed 4-H buckle will be awarded to the state winner. National awards comprise $200.00 and $100.00 college scholarships to the first and second place winners. Red ribbon group winners will each receive a $25.00 U. S. Saving Bond.

Preliminary national sheep shearing eliminations will be held Dec. 2 and 3 at the 1947 International Livestock Exposition in Chicago to determine who are to take part in the final on Dec. 5.

Capitan Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor

Methodist ministers are appointed by the year and so we heard our names read out in connection with God's work at this place for 1947-48. We are by now comfortably settled in the parsonage home and are indeed thankful for a fighting change to serve God and try to lift the spiritual life of this neighborhood.

Our people here are in the midst of building a fine church edifice and when it is finished it will be an outstanding memorial to the faith and courage of this small congregation. We gratefully acknowledge the generous help and cooperation of many who are not members of our church. Our hearts are open to new acquaintances and fellowships.

Come in to see us. We will be glad to have you in our constituency when-ever you are in the area. We can help. All our services are now being held in the City Hall. Sunday School at 10 A. M. Worship and preaching at 11 A. M. every Sunday. Youth Fellowship at the Parsonage next Sunday at 6:30 P. M. Let us have a good program followed by games and refreshments. Bring a friend.

KEEP PET ON LEASH, AVOID RABIES SCARE

For want of a leash a "rabies epidemic" is born.

Thus the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City, sums up what is probably the least-comprehended fact about rabies. It explains it as follows:

If every dog-owner kept his pet on a leash at all times, there would be no possibility of his straying away. If he did not stray away, there would be no opportunity for him to get into trouble by fighting with other dogs or snapping at strangers who might attempt to pet or tease him. If he did not snap at strangers, the cry of "Mad Dog!" would not likely be raised, there would be no excitement or hysteria culminating in a "rabies epidemic" and the summary execution of many animals.

According to the Center, true rabies is a relatively uncommon disease. In a typical year, in the entire United States, only 7,000 dogs are affected. Rabies is no more prevalent in summer than in winter but you hear more about rabies in summer because men and animals mingle more freely outdoors in hot weather. A really rabid dog flies forward aimlessly but does not attack unless provoked or annoyed. Preventive rabies vaccines are available at veterinarians, though their effectiveness is still a matter of debate.

News Notes From University Of N. M.

Lack of meeting rooms has one University of New Mexico club up in the air-but literally.

The University of New Mexico Aeronautical Association, a non-profit flying fraternity, has already purchased one Piper Cub and is making plans for financing another one, aiming at eventually having a plane for each 10 member.

According to Association President William P. Burt, University student, present plans are to limit membership to 30. Organized for pleasure flying, the club also offers instructions in basic and advanced training.

President J. P. Wernette, of the University of New Mexico, has received an invitation to be a guest on the Pacific cruise of the U. S. S. Iowa, scheduled for this summer, Capt. Joel Newson, commandant of the University Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps has announced.

The cruise, which will serve as a training hatch for freshman and sophomore members of the NROTC. Will leave San Francisco July 19 for Honolulu and Hilo, returning to the mainland Aug. 22 after target practice off San Clemente.

Besides President Wernette, Capt. Newson said, several state governors have been asked to participate in the cruise. Dr. Wernette will accept the invitation if his schedule permits, he indicated.

 Services last Sunday were well attended, with 20 at Sunday School and several others coming in for the preaching service. Interest in these services seem to be increasing. Come and help us in making them better.
 The message for Sunday morning will be: "Man's Greatest Possession." This is a message which should be of interest to all. You are invited to come.
 Sunday night, June 29, we will begin a series of Bible studies which will be held each night during next week. We believe that each person should know more about God's word, and thereby know more about God, his son Jesus, and the plain teachings of the Bible on Salvation and other subjects. We offer these studies, in the hope that it will increase the interest in Bible study.
 The meetings will be non-denominational. Questions will be welcomed, and will be answered the following night at a period given for this purpose.
 Services will begin at 7:45 o'clock. Plan now to attend. Come and help us have 10 in attendance.

Ford Motor Company
West Coast Supplies
 Ford Motor Company's plan for obtaining $50,000,000 more supplies and parts on the Pacific Coast annually is progressing. L. C. Dissar, the company's West Coast purchasing representative, said asserting he is "more than satisfied" with results obtained thus far.
 "However," Mr. Dissar added, this is not a project which can be accomplished overnight and it requires much long-range planning before the ultimate objective can be obtained.
 The plan would raise total West Coast procurement by Ford to $85 million annually.
 Supporting Mr. Dissar's views, Albert J. Browning, vice-president and director of purchases for the Company, said at Dearborn that it takes approximately nine months after blueprints have been approved on an item for the company before production is actually begun by the supplier.
 "We are greatly encouraged by the success of our program on the Pacific Coast and have encountered nothing but the finest cooperation from manufacturers in that area," he asserted.
 More than 3,000 manufacturers expressed interest in becoming suppliers for the Ford and Lincoln-Mercury plants in Richmond, Long Beach and Los Angeles and applied for blueprints.

Little Garvis Tubbs, youngest son of Mrs. Earline Tubbs, suffered a fractured collar bone when he fell from a horse last Thursday.

Now! LIFE INSURANCE
EXPERTS PROVE THAT FORD TRUCKS LAST
up to 19.6% LONGER

NOW, for the first time, the methods used by life insurance companies in computing rates have been used to figure out life-expectancy tables for Ford Trucks.
4,967,000 Trucks Studied ... Wolfe, Corcoran and Linder, leading New York life insurance actuaries, assembled the records of all trucks of the five sales leaders registered from 1933 through 1941 ... 4,967,000 trucks in all. Then they prepared truck life-expectancy tables in the same way they prepare human life-expectancy tables for life insurance companies.
Ford Trucks On Top!
 The result? Ford Trucks Last Longer! Up to 19.6% longer than the other 4 sales leaders! Why? Because Ford Trucks are built stronger. They're built to last longer! See us today. You'll see why it'll pay you to place your order for a Ford!

Certified Proof

What Longer Truck Life Means to You ... Why It Pays to Wait for a New Ford Truck!

It stands to reason the longer you use a truck, the less it costs to own. That's why Ford Trucks are the top truck value. And, logically, Ford longevity means lower maintenance costs ... less time in the shop. Any way you figure, you'll get more for your money with a Ford ... because Ford trucks last longer.

The life-expectancy of a Ford Truck is:
 13.1% longer than that of Truck "B"
 3.2% longer than that of Truck "C"
 7.6% longer than that of Truck "D"
 19.6% longer than that of Truck "E"

OFFICIAL ACTUARIAL CERTIFICATE
 Based on the application of sound and accepted actuarial methods to the actual experience as measured by truck registrations, we hereby certify that, in our opinion, the accompanying table fairly presents the relative life-expectancy of the trucks involved.

A Public Relations Job
America's biggest public relations assignment, perhaps the most significant of this kind in the history of the world, is gaining momentum. It's off to a good start. You may call it industrial statesmanship, if you want to, or you may call it selling the American way of life. What it amounts to is an all-out effort on the part of each one of us to demonstrate the faith we have in our economic system. So doing, we shall weather any present or future crisis.

There must be no tongue-in-cheek when we assert that never has any other system given a people so much; nor has any other system a brighter future. We Americans are not generally an emotional people. We can read history without weeping. Europeans think of us as more "practical" and less idealistic. At any rate, we have been so busy that we have largely overlooked our selling job, until time is later than we thought.

Selling Ourselves
An industrialist recently indulged in a bit of analysis: "The simple fact that our American-style processes of finance, production, distribution and selling actually produce more for more people than does any other set of processes ever devised by man, has never been planted deeply in the minds of our people—at least not to the extent that it becomes an ever present and active part of the public consciousness."

I am afraid this is too true. If we had actually sold ourselves on America through the years, we would never have seen the phenomenon of certain of our public figures playing peek-a-boo with the Communists. There would be genuine appreciation of the accomplishments and potentialities of America in every university chair in the land.

Campaign of Truth
Against so many rampant, fanatical destroyers, a clean and constant campaign of truth, well organized and supported, can be effective. Against the doubters and the cynics, this great public relations program must be tied in with all-out effort to produce goods for the American people, through an economy of abundance. Without good works, your theory falls flat. Only first understand the system, if you please, then it's easier to make it work.

Too many somehow have decided that business, in this "capitalistic" country, is altogether bad. These folks have not considered, however, how many cherished things they would have to give up if they got rid of "capitalism." Without private initiative in business and industry, in labor, and in professional life, we would sink to the level of some of our critics.

We take a lot of things for granted. Yet we have a job to do. If we are businessmen, let us not only sell the product we make, but let us sell the product as a symbol of the freedom under which it is made. If we are workmen, let us consider our jobs as by-products of the freedom under which we live. And no matter what we are, let us know that this sweet land of liberty offers us a freedom of opportunity as individuals that we can find nowhere else on this planet.

Why Throw Minutes Away
 The other day, we heard about an interesting experiment a checking account depositor had made. He had fourteen bills to pay. So he paid each one in person with cash, and kept track of how long it took. He walked to the stores. At some places he had to wait in line; at others he had to wait for change. When he had completed his rounds, he walked home. It had taken him over two hours to do the job. The following month he had sixteen bills to pay. This time he he sat at his desk, wrote a check for each one, addressed envelopes and mailed them at the nearest post-box. It took him 34 minutes—exactly one-fourth of the time it took him to pay with cash.
 And that is only one of many reasons why a checking account at our bank can be useful to you.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Black Sheep, Red Sheep
 One of Thad Phibb's sheep broke into his toolhouse Saturday, tipped over a can of paint Thad was saving for his barn, and turned itself a bright red in the process.
 Thad was pretty sore at first, until he saw how the other sheep in the pasture were giving the red one the go-by... as if they knew it had stepped out of line and needed discipline.
 From where I sit, seems like the course of nature—this self-discipline within the herd. Works that way with human beings, in society or business... like the Brewer's Program of Self-Regulation.
 When any black (or red) sheep turns up... that is, when any tavern keeper fails to keep his place right up to standard, clean and orderly and law abiding, the Brewers themselves see to it that the tavern keeper is warned—with the possibility of action by the authorities. That's why there are mighty few "off-color sheep" among the folks who sell beer.

Navy Vignettes
 During World War II the Navy grew from a peacetime organization of 425,000 men to a hard-hitting force of more than 4,000,000. It would be senseless to allow the excellent training and experience that these men acquired go to waste. The Navy's Reserve program is designed to add to the knowledge and experience gained in wartime by keeping abreast of the many new discoveries and developments in the field in which they were trained.
 In this area of great scientific development, which is expected to alter the whole concept of naval warfare, it is improbable that a man who was a radar operator on a destroyer during World War II would be qualified to handle this job ten years hence.
 The post-war Navy is very substantially a sea-air Navy. The active striking forces today consist essentially of two carrier tasks... the Atlantic and the Pacific. Each of these task fleets has six carriers with their air groups. Also, supporting surface craft, combat and auxiliary, which consists of cruisers, destroyers, supply ships repair ships, and tankers in numbers sufficient to maintain the fleets during sustained operations in any part of the oceans. To these air-sea forces, there are available when necessary, amphibious forces including Marines prepared to take and hold sites for bases from which the heavier bombers of the Army Air Forces may reach an enemy.

Capitol Hill Hears Earnest Request

Senate Chaplain Marshall Offers Challenging Prayer

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — Many words spoken beneath the high-arched dome of the capitol become first page news. But seldom quoted are the words which appear beginning with the third paragraph of the first page of the Congressional Record. However twice recently they were quoted — a n d widely. They were preceded by two first paragraphs which for the past 10 years have varied only as to the proper names and hour mentioned therein:—

"The senate met at 11 o'clock a. m., on the expiration of the recess."

"The chaplain, Rev. Peter Marshall, D. D., offered the following prayer:—"

"(Then came "paragraph three," including the part of the prayer offered for that day that appealed to me):

"Forbid it, Lord, that we should walk through thy beautiful world with unseeing eyes. Forgive us, our Father, for taking our good things for granted, so that we are in danger of losing the fine art of appreciation. With such dire need in every other part of the world, make us so grateful for the bounties we enjoy that we shall try, by Thy help, to deserve them more. Where we are wrong, make us willing to change, and where we are right, make us easy to live with."

I repeated that last paragraph on my broadcast because one of my associates had called it to my attention that morning. Since then I have been getting letters from all over the country asking for copies of that prayer. Earlier (though I had not noticed the item) Time magazine had carried a story about Chaplain Marshall, and Newsweek magazine had quoted part of another prayer:

"Help us to do our very best this day and be content with today's troubles, so that we shall not borrow the troubles of tomorrow. Save us from the sin of worrying, lest stomach ulcers be the badge of our lack of faith. Amen."

I think my choice is a fairer sample of Marshalliana. But both selections reveal one characteristic of the doctor's utterances, which perhaps is a reason for his popularity. He is able to reduce religion to the simplest and most understandable terms—his similes (like those of his Teacher) are taken out of our daily life.

Peter Marshall is an interesting person as well as a popular preacher.

Immigrant Boy Fulfills Ambition

Dr. Marshall's personal history is reminiscent of early Horatio Alger. He came to this country from a foreign land because he believed America was the land of opportunity. But his story is unique in this: He came, not with the dream of "making his fortune," but to fulfill an ambition for neither wealth nor power, but simply to get a theological education.

He was born in Coatsville in Lanarkshire, Scotland. His father died when he was little, and Marshall was raised by his mother and stepfather, who sent him to public school and later to a technical institution. On graduation, he took a position in a tube-manufacturing concern.

But he wanted to be a minister, and he decided it would be easier to obtain an education for this calling in the United States. He came to this country in his early twenties; found work in New Jersey, but soon had an opportunity to go to Alabama where he joined the business department of the Birmingham News. With the help of some friends who became interested in this pleasant Scottish boy with the intriguing burr and the inspired goal, he was able to enter Columbia Theological seminary, from which he was graduated in 1931.

He held two pastorates in Georgia, and made the acquaintance of the young lady who is now his wife. In 1937, he was called to the historic "Church of the Presidents" in Washington, a church which has numbered among its worshippers John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, William Henry Harrison, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, Millard Fillmore, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, whose pew, left as it was when he used it, is a shrine for tourists.

Dr. Marshall was elected chaplain of the senate on January 4 of this year, and it might be well to record a bit of recent history as a background to his selection.

Dr. Ze Barney Phillips was chaplain of the senate for 15 years—from 1927 to 1942. When he died, many senators had favorite candidates for his job. They "auditioned" them, just like radio announcers—although the ministers didn't know they were being auditioned, and no senator would admit such a thing.

From among the candidates, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Methodist, emerged victorious, gossips say, because he delivered the shortest prayer. Later on Dr. Harris' prayers became longer, a common phenomenon among senate chaplains according to some of the old timers in congress. What they don't add is that in the speech-making body in the country, the affliction may be contagious.

Traditionally, filling of the chaplain's post is a majority party prerogative, and so when the Republican 80th congress convened, after disposing of the question of Senator

The Rev. Peter Marshall, D.D., senate chaplain, offered a prayer that probed deep into the consciousness of the nation's busy, harassed legislators.

Bilbo's qualifications, Senator Wherry arose to offer a resolution that Dr. Marshall be elected chaplain of the senate.

But Wherry's proposal touched off an argument occupying nine close-typed columns in the Congressional Record. (No chaplain would dare deliver a sermon THAT long.)

Democratic Sen. Alben Barkley maintained that Dr. Harris had done a fine job and should be retained. He added that politics should not be permitted to touch the office of senate chaplain. He opined that Republicans were "offering a very poor example for the time when the Democrats resume control of the body two years from now." (1944—1945)

Republican Senator Bridges was shocked at the implication that politics might be involved. Why, he protested, he didn't even know Dr. Marshall's politics.

But the Republicans had their majority, Dr. Marshall got the job, and as far as I can learn, nobody has regretted the choice.

There are some Washingtonians who have read and listened to this Scottish boy whom America has awarded for achievement in a calling in which there are often few earthly awards, who feel that his presence in the Lincoln church is quite as "appropriate" as his appointment as chaplain of the senate. They feel that if the ghost of the Great Emancipator ever slips into his old pew of a Sunday, he smiles in approval of the simple, earthy truisms, not too unlike his own, which come down from one pulpit in that friendly Scottish burr, with the same terse impact with which they echo from the rostrum of the senate.

SLIM CHANCE

Survey Indicates No Depression

WASHINGTON. — Chances of a depression in the near future appear slim, in the opinion of a committee of congressmen studying the nation's economy.

In its report, the joint senate-house economic committee disclosed that most of the 583 persons who answered a survey expect a "mild recession" this fall. The committee concluded, however, that "answers to the economic questions do not give any real support to the theory that we are nearing a depression."

The survey showed "general

THREE YEARS AFTER DESTRUCTION . . . It has been just three years since American and Allied troops stormed the beaches of Normandy on D-Day to begin the invasion of Europe. Streets like this one in Caen, France, raged with bullets and mortar shells, and it would have been impossible, then for a little girl to walk along the sidewalk carrying bread for the family's dinner. But now the war looks far away.

NEWS REVIEW

Shipping Crisis Impends; Predict High Feed Prices

Fears of a minor crisis in railway shipping in mid-July have been expressed by federal transportation experts in view of an apparent slowdown in freight car construction.

Contributing factors are mounting industrial production coupled with increasingly heavy wheat export movements, and officials predict that the "minor crisis" could swiftly develop into a major transportation block unless steps are taken to ease the traffic slowdown or prevent it from occurring.

With fate of the now financially embarrassed Office of Defense Transportation still undecided, the Interstate Commerce commission has been requested to assume full responsibility for continuing orders requiring full loading of boxcars in the event that congress does not extend the life of ODT beyond its June 30 expiration date.

Meantime, ODT has sent investigators to freight car building companies to probe reports that allocated steel tonnages have not gone entirely into the 10,000-a-month car construction program.

Reports for the first half of May indicated that only 1,751 freight cars were built, 81 short of the number constructed during the corresponding period in April.

Explanation offered by the car builders is that inadequate steel supplies and strikes within the industry have been responsible for the grave decline in freight car construction. That view, however, is discounted by federal officials who point out that the government forced the steel industry to provide the necessary 200,000 tons of steel for the 10,000-a-month goal.

FEED PRICES: To Stay Up

Prospects for the 1947 feed crops will be an important influence on feed prices, according to a department of agriculture report.

The very strong foreign demand for grain is expected to continue to support prices through 1947 and into 1948; although if production of feed is as large as in recent years, feed prices probably will decline, at least seasonally, in the last half of 1947.

Corn prices this summer, the report predicted, will average higher than the June, 1946, ceilings, but lower than in the summer of 1946 after price controls lapsed.

The department's survey went on to reveal that reports in early May indicated that approximately 832 million bushels of 1946 corn would be marketed this season. That figure would be 50 per cent greater than the 1939-42 average and 14 per cent above the previous record sales from the 1944 crop. Farm sales of other feed grains from 1946 crops also ran generally larger.

SWINGBACK: Braden Quits

Spruille Braden, longtime advocate of and principal force behind this country's hard-headed attitude toward Fascist-inclined Argentina, has resigned as assistant secretary of state in charge of Latin-American affairs.

To succeed him in that post, President Truman was expected to nominate Norman Armour of New Jersey, top-flight career diplomat. Armour previously served as American envoy in the Argentine and is well known and liked there. Latin-American reaction to his appointment was expected to be highly favorable.

Acceptance of Braden's resignation by President Truman was generally regarded as a strong implication that the United States is ready to swing back to a policy of appeasement in Latin America. It was anticipated that the changed attitude would take the form of "just a little appeasement" of Latin-American Fascist dictators, particularly Juan D. Peron, president of Argentina.

Braden, long a foe of Peron and his methods, told Mr. Truman in a letter that personal responsibilities compelled him to return to private business.

Departure of Braden from the state department followed closely on the heels of his being overruled by the administration on two basic issues in inter-American relations: Supplying of arms to Latin-American nations and formation of a military alliance with other republics in the western hemispheres.

Tasmanian Devil Mean and Sulky; Impossible to Tame

The Tasmanian devil is a short, black hunched animal common to Australia. The Tasmanian devil is so called because it is among the meanest and sulkiest of animals, and taming it is absolutely impossible. However, one scientist has discovered the Tasmanian devil is always covered with fleas—and believes the animal's disposition could be improved if somebody only worked up enough courage to give it a bath.

The FICTION Corner

PERFECT STRANGER

By JACK MOSHER

It was as if every word he spoke was scraped from the walls of his stomach, left some mark.

THE first thing Cella Brandon noticed about him was the way he sat. As if, she thought, studying the man at the corner table across the top of her menu, he had been propped up in his chair and was likely, at any minute, to go sliding off on the floor.

"Does he come in often?" "Yes-a, Miss," said her waiter. "Every night this-a week, he come. But he does not eat. He just-a sits and sits."

Cella examined her and more closely. Saw that his skin was stretched altogether too tightly across his high cheekbones for him to be in good health.

And his hair was greying much too rapidly, and his clothes were much too shabby for Garibaldi's, which was on 52nd just around the corner from the theatre district—a place where only the famous could afford to be shabby and where the really shabby rarely came.

This Week's Best Fiction

"Perhaps," she said, "he hasn't the price of a meal."

"Then why does he come?" "The waiter's attitude," Cella felt, was a coldly commercial one. The way most folks with something to sell looked upon those who had no money to buy. And determined to put the waiter in his place, she said, "I thought his face was familiar. Yes, of course! It's Freddy Malone. Tell him," she said, "that I'd like him to join me."

"Yes-a, Miss!" For a moment after the waiter had delivered this invitation uncertainty marked the man's lean features. There was a frightened expression in his deep-set eyes as they met hers. But when Cella countered with just the right degree of warmth in her own—the degree one would extend to a man friend not seen in many years yet warmly remembered—he rose and came toward her table.

He walked unsteadily and she wondered if he might be intoxicated. If that explained his propped-up appearance of a moment ago. Then he was alongside, bowing just a little from the waist, and she was saying, "It's so good to see you again, Fred."

"Yes, isn't it," he said. "Thanks for asking me over." His tones-made her feel that he was hungry. It was as if every word he spoke was scraped from the walls of his stomach, left some mark. And now that he was closer she could not mistake the suffering which lined his face. It was the kind that comes to those who find themselves alone in the world's largest city when dark closes in.

More than food, she felt certain, was needed here. He needed good cheer. Someone to talk with. To make the joke with. To cry with. Someone who would supply the things people needed so badly here in New York during the long lonesome months of waiting for a break that sometimes never came.

"How about a coke?" she said. "A pepper-upper, as they say." He turned to the waiter, chuckling miraculously.

"A pepper-upper," he ordered, "for the lady." Then, when the waiter had gone off and leaning closer across the white tablecloth, "Look! It's nice of you. Having me like this, I mean. But I can't accept."

"Forget it," Cella said, trying her utmost to spare him. "I don't know about you, but I'm hungry. Let's concentrate on dinner."

"Yes, of course. The dinner." "How about some sea food?" "Not for me." He made a wry face. "I've just come from there. Maybe you took notice of my roll."

"I wondered what it was." "It's THE genuine article," he assured her. "A Clyde-Mallory Line freighter just brought me back from the Far East. . . . You see," he hurried on as if he had just so much time in which to tell it, "I struck it tough in Singapore. Went out there to work for a big oil company. It wasn't so big, because it folded a few weeks after I arrived. I was on the beach three months, broke to the wide, before I got this chance to work my way home."

"Forget that now," Cella said, judging from his tones that every word must be an effort for him. "This Spaghetti Italiane sounds mighty good to me."

"But I can't forget," he insisted. "And I think you should hear me out. Have you ever," he demanded, while Cella could find not a word with which to check him, "known what it is to be hungry, to starve?"

"Did you ever go for days with nothing but what black servants hand out at kitchen doors? Do you know what it feels like to be—"

"I can well imagine," Cella interrupted, more firmly this time. "I've heard New York is no different than Singapore if it comes to that. But let's get on with ordering now, eh?"

"Yes, of course. Ordering." He sounded the least bit let down. As if he were offended by her apparent lack of interest in his story.

But he bucked up as the meal progressed from soup through Spaghetti Italiane with meat sauce, as only Garibaldi's can make it, to dessert. He grew quite genial and mellow, in fact.

"I must see more of you," he said. "You do me good."

"We do each other good, you mean." "THAT'S IT!" He was as enthusiastic as a school boy attending his first grown-up date.

"I could get a job in Mexico. There's a fellow—"

"But why not try here in New York?" "In an office?" "Not necessarily."

"Then what?" "Had you ever thought of acting," Cella said as the waiter returned with a small silver tray containing a half dollar and three thin dimes. "You know what they say? If you can't make a go of anything else you're sure to click on the stage. And it seems to me," she added, making a fine show of waving the waiter and the eighty cents away, "that with the experience you've had knocking around the world you could put a lot of punch into playing acting."

He smiled broadly. "Maybe you're right. In fact, I know you're right."

"What do you mean?" "Simply," he told her, "that I AM stago. I've just been putting on an act here. Rehearsing for my new play. . . . I need a girl to play opposite me. She's rich as all get out. Money doesn't mean a thing to her. . . . That's exactly the kind of girl you are in real life. So how about coming around in the morning to sign a contract? I'm Noel Howard."

"Noel Howard?" Cella didn't spare the name mentioned with awe around casting offices where she had spent months trying to get a small part in his new production—in any production. "Then, listen you!" she flung at him. "How about buying me another dinner right now? I couldn't eat a bit of that one for thinking I'd spent my last five dollars. . . ."

What to Do With An Inferior Complex

You may think that you alone are in possession of an inferiority complex, but nine out of ten persons also have one.

Probably most inferiority complexes start in babyhood. There you were, small and weak and helpless and inarticulate, and you looked up. Above you, you saw a creature towering, your mother or father, strong, self-reliant, able, while you were so weak and dependent. Right then and there you acquired the beginning of an inferiority complex, and as you grew older, your complex became stronger.

Some psychologists, rather than see in the inferiority complex a personality handicap, actually look upon one as a good thing. They have, indeed, dubbed it the "golden complex," because as one of their number explains, "A personality complex is the spark that disturbs the cloud."

What he meant was that our personality complex makes us conscious of our shortcomings, causes us to set up resolutions to improve, to compensate for our inadequacies, and as we develop, we develop our mental and physical strengths. We really become somebody because of our complexes, don't you see?

What should you do right away with yours? Analyze to see where it started and when. And then go about getting rid of it for good.
