Be An "Engineer in Good Eating"--Do Home Canning!

Simple Instructions Based on Science

You may not have a degree as an engineer, Mrs. Housewife, but when you're home canning you're using scientific principles just as surely as a mining, chemical, electrical or other engineer. That is, if you follow glass jar manufacturer's instructions, for they are based upon scientific discoveries made over a period of a century and a half.

Back in Napoleon's time, a Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, set out to find a method of food preservation and win a 12,000-franc prize offered in 1795 by the French government. Napoleon, like Frederick the Great, believed an army travels on its stomach, and the folks at home got hungry and discontented too.

Nicolas won the prize, after 15 years' work, but his methods and equipment have been greatly improved upon. He labored under many handicaps, not knowing a temperature beyond boiling is required for processing some foods and having to design his own glass jars. Not until 1800 did Louis Pasteur establish the fact that microorganisms are responsible for food spoilage. Fourteen years later, an American, A. K. Shriver of Baltimore, invented the "rotort" or "pressure" cooker.

In 1858 John Mason patented the Mason jar with neck designed for receiving a zeroy type cap. The Mason jar with porcelain-lined zinc cap is an old reliable. Mason would probably be astounded by the 1947 cap for sealing the Mason jar. This new style cap is a two-piece metal affair with a Dome lid which has sealing compound on the under side and is tested for seal by pressing on the center of the lid with the finger. Sealing with the Dome lid is made doubly sure by the new type metal band which bears down on the lid at three pressure points.

Also reliable in seal is the lightning type jar with rubber ring, glass lid and wire ball.

Many scientific experiments and jar improvements have perfected procedures for today's home canning and it is upon them that instructions you will find in reliable home canning literature such as the Ball Blue Book are based. Follow these instructions and you become an "Engineer in Good Eating"--much to the benefit of your family's health and increased pleasure at the table provided by delicious home canned foods.

Card Of Thanks

From the bottom of our hearts we wish to thank our loved ones, our neighbors and friends for the many acts of loving kindness shown us when we suffered the great loss of our dear husband, son, and brother, Joe. To all who so loyally came to our aid and to all who so faithfully stood by we give our heartfelt thanks. Each word of solace, each act of kindness and encouragement will linger always in our memories. The many and beautiful flowers testified to the high esteem in which our Joe was held, for them all we are deeply grateful.

D. A. V. To Organize In Lincoln County

It was announced by Paul Pomeo, Commander of the Departments of New Mexico, Disabled American Veterans that plans were well under way to form a Chapter of the D. A. V., (the third largest veterans organization in America,) in Lincoln County. A meeting will be held in Ruidoso Thursday, August 7th in the American Legion Headquarters on Main Street.

Last week, Denver D. Adams, National Service Officer for the DAV in New Mexico, accompanied by Field Robinson, Roswell veteran and Junior Vice Commander of the state DAV, visited Lincoln County and took the first steps to organize a sponsoring committee in the county, which was held in the Capitan High school July 15th.

"Because of its historical background and color, however, we favor naming the town of Lincoln as the home of the chapter", Adams said, "but the meetings can be held in Capitan, Carrizozo, Hondo and Ruidoso or elsewhere in any rotation which the members may desire".

In Ruidoso, a local committee of veterans has been named to contact veterans who are eligible to join the DAV. Justice of the Peace Herbert Smith is Chairman; being assisted by City Clerk Joe Dryden and H. G. Havenhill. In Capitan a similar committee is functioning with Fred Sweet as Chairman and Orlund Wilson and Lloyd Miller members. In the Hondo Valley Dan Storm of Glencoe and Bob Tilton of Riverside are contacting eligible veterans in their communities.

The formation of the new chapter of the DAV is being sponsored and approved by the American Legion and Veteran of Foreign Wars posts in the county.

Veteran Leland Barnes of Carrizozo, who wrote into the state headquarters of the D. A. V. and applied for membership, is heading up the organization work of the new chapter in Carrizozo, and all eligible veterans are urged to contact Mr. Barnes and make known their presence. Some twenty five Lincoln County veterans are already members of the D. A. V., having joined other chapters of the organization located elsewhere. It is planned to transfer these memberships to the Lincoln chapter in the near future and make these veterans charter members of the new chapter.

"The Legion and the V. F. W. can and will help the disabled veterans with their problems, but the D. A. V. is the disabled veterans own organizations—organized by and for them—and we want to stay within our field. If we do, we know we can be of real service." Robinson concluded.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Weaver of Alamogordo were here Sunday visiting Mrs. Julia Sherrill.

Annual Festival Revives Past In Picturesque Mining Town

Stars Still Follow Paths Traversed On 'Gold Circuit'

WNU Staff

CENTRAL CITY, COLO.—The golden tradition which was born 88 years ago in the heart of a mountain wilderness is being revived again this summer with presentation of the twelfth Central City festival. In the famous old stone opera house of this quaint city, tucked in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, Beethoven's dramatic opera "Fidelio" and Flo-tow's romantic "Martha" are being sung by a cast of Metropolitan opera stars. Throughout the festival the picturesque old mining town itself becomes a theater, presenting life as it was when Central City was known as "the richest square mile on earth."

Known as "the summer theater capital of America," Central City annually is host to thousands of visitors during the play festival. Because of increasing interest in the production, the festival this year has been extended to two periods, the first running from July 4 through July 25 and the second performances being scheduled for August 2 through August 27.

Birth of the opera festival is traced back to the 1860s when miners of the little boom town of Central, despite grueling hours with the pick and shovel from daylight to dark, always managed to find time for an hour or so of music and drama of an evening. The prospectors who swarmed over the mountains after John Gregory's lucky gold strike which created Central City in 1859 had only the faithful burro to share their toil.

Save for a few Indian trails, there were no paths, much less wagon roads. So the performers of that bygone day, often world famous singers or actors, covered the "gold circuit" on horseback.

The historic Central City opera house, which was built in 1878 to satisfy the demands of the mining camp's unusual urge for the finer things of life, remains essentially the same today as it was 88 years ago. Not so the roads and trails. Gone is the early toll road up Golden Gate canyon, west of the town of Golden. Today motorists speed up the mountainside on a modern highway, paying no toll charges.

The opera house itself, reputed to have cost $20,000 and to have been paid for in great part in gold dust contributed by the miners, was the finest theater west of the Mississippi river in 1878. Built of native granite with walls four feet thick, the opera house possesses an ample stage, perfect acoustics and seating space for 750 persons. While many music lovers come to Central City simply to listen, others also are curious to view the hand-tinted frescoes of the old theater, its plate glass mirrors and crystal chandeliers. Many another is attracted by the seething, good-humored boom town activities which crowd famous Eureka street.

GOLDEN TRADITION REVIVED . . . The nostalgic days of the past in "the richest square mile on earth" are recalled in the annual Central City, Colo., Festival. The contrast between the present and the past is depicted in the top photo, showing opening night festival guests arriving in an old stage coach. Like a scene from the early days, the old gold prospector and his pack-laden burros (left) wend their way down Eureka street. A carnival atmosphere pervades Central City throughout the festival, with much of the gaiety centering at the historic old Teller House. The Lloyd Shaw dancers (right) are shown in the Teller House gardens.

Since the early days of the old mining town, there never has been a time when music was not the favorite byword of Central City. Early Cornish miners used to sing at their work, their old world melodies rising from the bowels of the earth with an eerie beauty

Early Central City people sponsored church choirs, quartets and even musical "duels," in which Irish ballad singers competed against paid-for German love songs. They paid royally when visiting artists came to town. So it was natural that when the famous opera house passed into possession of University of Denver in 1931, the first thought was to revive the musical glories of the past.

The modern era of Central City opera opened with Lillian Gish in the title role of "Camille" produced by Robert Edmond Jones in 1931. Since then, every year except during the four war years, outstanding productions with world famous artists and producers as well as the dramas and music of the masters have graced the old stage.

NAVEN IN HILLS

Old and New Vie in Vacation Fare

STURGIS, S. D. — Western rodeos and historic re-enactments of the gold rush days of 1876 share the tourist season limelight with such modern attractions as an air fair, horse races, theatrical productions and motorcycle classics in the scenic vacationland of the Black Hills.

Tempering the excitement of lusty celebrations are quiet lakeside resorts and lodges where fishing, hiking, horseback riding and loafing are the most popular pastimes. There are cool, mosquito-free evenings and long, sunny days in which to enjoy the enchantment of the pine-clad region, so steeped in western lore.

Scattered throughout the area are many caverns—enchanting underground wonderlands with their many crystal formations and lakes.

Largest of these is Wind Cave, a national park recently designated as the North American Bison preserve. More than 1,500 bison, the largest free herd in the nation, already roam the national forest and prairie habitat afforded in the Wind Cave and adjacent Custer state park areas.

The summer events, which invariably follow a regular weekly schedule, opened with the traditional Black Hills Roundup at Belle Fourche. Other July events included Wall's anniversary fete, parliament-horse races and the Miss South Dakota pageant at Hot Springs, the Black Hills air-fair at Spearfish and Range Days at Rapid City, with Gold Discovery Days at Custer the week-end of July 25-26 completing the month's activities.

August visitors also will find a varied entertainment fare. Opening the month's activities will be the historic Days of '76 fete at Deadwood, August 1-3, followed by the Jack Pine Gypsy Tour and motorcycle classic at Sturgis, August 9-10; boat races at Sheridan lake, August 17; the Hill City celebration, August 23-24, and the Key City rodeo at Sturgis, August 30-31.

Concluding the summer vacation schedule, Lead, site of the Homestake gold mine, will stage its annual Labor Day fete on September 1.

Located at the gateway to the Pacific Northwest, the Black Hills area is making an all-out effort to cater to vacationists seeking variety in entertainment or simple relaxation on their holidays.

In these highest mountains of the United States east of the Rockies are found the scenic beauty of the famous Needles drive and Cathedral Spires in close proximity to trout streams and quiet canyon resorts.

Here, too, in the vastness of Harney national forest is Mount Rushmore, where Sculptor Gutzon Borglum and his son, Lincoln, blasted and carved the faces of Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson and Theodore Roosevelt, symbolizing four great periods in American history.

Courtesy, service, information and fairness. These four words have been adopted as the canons in South Dakota's treatment of vacation travelers. First enunciated at a series of tourist forums conducted by the Black Hills and Bad Lands association, the tenets for hospitality have been expounded throughout this scenic vacationland.

Charcoal Burner of 1875 Ranks as First Automobile in Nation

BOSTON.—Laurels as the builder of the nation's first automobile go to George A. Long, 86-year-old Back Bay man, in the opinion of Massachusetts Council of Automobile Old-Timers.

The society believes that Long's charcoal burning motor vehicle, constructed at Northfield in 1875, ranks as the oldest automobile. It consisted of a chassis on wooden wheels, with a fifth wheel in front for steering and a solid axle to which the driving wheels were keyed.

Long got his idea for the contraption from an army camp in New Hampshire where he saw a steam boiler and visualized steam as the source of propulsion for his vehicle.

The car was sold to a railroad, which replaced the wooden wheels with train wheels and used the vehicle to carry newspapers to Keene, N. H.

Patents were obtained by Long in 1883 on a two speed, 300 pound "steam road vehicle" which made the first use of the ball bearing steering fork, still used on bicycles.

MILLION ACRES SOYBEANS USED FOR MARGARINE

A report just issued by V. L. Lea of the Commodity Economic Research Department, covering intensive surveys in four leading soybean producing states, shows that in 1945 the total acreage of 1,397,727 was needed to produce the soybeans used for the manufacture of margarine. This is an increase over 1935 of over 1,300,000 acres. The report also shows that in 1945 soybean oil used in the manufacture of margarine amounted to approximately 206,643,000 pounds. (Adv.)

TESTS show that Champion Farmer Renk's Firestone Champion Ground Grips will clean up to 100% more effectively, pull up to 62% more, last up to 91% longer, and roll smoother over highways than any other tractor tires.

Only Firestone Champion Ground Grips are made with connected curved traction bars. The curves . . . and the connections . . . give the bars far greater strength than those on any other tractor tires. They eliminate the excessive bending and wiping and rapid tread wear of broken center tires. The curved bars cut into the soil with a sharp, plowlike action. Mud and trash fall freely from tapered openings between these powerful traction bars. The continuous contact of the connected curved bars with the highway insures a smoother ride.

Like Champion Farmer Renk . . . and other cost-conscious farmers . . . you will get more pulling power and longer life if you specify Firestone Champion Ground Grips for your new tractor . . . or buy Champions for your present tractors.

Purebred Hampshire and Shropshire sheep earn top awards . . . being highest prices. Their hybrid seed corn and certified seed grains are in demand. Soil fertility, through fertilization and an efficient cattle and hog plan, is high. Last year 50 acres of Forfic oats yielded 102 bushels per acre. Farm work is mechanized to the limit. What's Wrong With Profit?

Some folks have the idea that profit is something business takes unfairly and harmfully out of buying and selling and manufacturing. This idea is that whatever a company earns, no matter if it is a fraction of a per cent. of the total sales, this money is extracted unhandedly from the public. If you have ever felt that way, I dare you to take a good, straight look at America's economic picture—and yourself.

You are paid a salary or a wage each week, are you not? You have invented your time, your energy, your brain-power, your muscle-power, your special skills, your training and experience. Do you think each time you get your check, that you have done something harmful to your community? Do you feel that you have cheated America? Chances are that you do not feel that way at all.

Taking Profit

You may be able, after paying all your expenses, to put a little into the bank or insurance. You may be interested in investing a part of your savings in stocks or bonds. If you are like most Americans, you find you can invest in some luxury goods. That is, you put some money into a car, an electric refrigerator, or perhaps a good collection of fishing tackle. You find that there are other things you can put your profit into will help you continue to live and to work.

Business corporations are pretty much like this picture of yourself. Whether General Motors, the corner delicatessen, or yourself—profit is what is left over after all the bills are paid. Profit results from good management, thrift, imagination, and hard work. The big corporation turns some profits back into the company for new plants and new tools. The rest goes to the folks whose buildings, tools, machinery, and money the company has been using.

Way to More Wages

This profit is usually none too much. Compensation of employees in 1945, as estimated by the Department of Commerce, would have gone up only 7.9 per cent if the entire corporation income of the country had been turned into wages. Yet, if this were done, it would mean that millions of people, perhaps including yourself, would fail to receive dividends. Corporations would soon become bankrupt. Jobs would become scarce.

The most important thing is that good profits and good wages go along together. The success of an enterprise, as well as the well-being of everyone who gets income, depends upon profits. When corporations have to accept losses, or even meager profits, wages for everybody go down and jobs become hard to find. It is not just chance that brings these two things, small profits and low wages, in the very same years. They belong together.

All of us want profits. Why then, all the hullabaloo about wanting business enterprises to hand over any profit it makes to employees? To do this would be to cut our own throats. What we really need is more folks with the idea of going into business, making money, and employing people. The need is not more bankrupt corporations, but more profit, more wages, and better living for everybody.

Employment in New Mexico on Upturn

Improved business conditions in the state are reflected by figures released by Benjamin D. Luchini, Chairman-Executive Director of the Employment Security Commission of New Mexico. Commenting on the significant drop in claim load, Luchini said June figures are less than April by over 54 per cent for claims of veterans, while claims of unemployed civilians have dropped approximately 26 per cent since April.

6061 unemployed veterans drew 20,089 checks, totalling $399,182 in April, while figures for June show that 2744 veterans drew 9084 checks, totalling $180,700.00. These checks are paid from Federal funds.

As for unemployed civilians claiming benefits under the provisions of the New Mexico Unemployment Compensation Law, the numbers dropped from 945 claimants drawing 3197 checks, totalling $41,491.00 in April to 682 claimants drawing 2355 checks totalling $30,498.00 during June.

"The fact that initial claims increased in June over May is an indication that compensable claims will not decrease at the usual rate during the summer months. On the basis of past experience," said Luchini.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announces that American business concerns will spend $3,800,000 for plant construction and equipment during the next three months.

Civil Service Exam.

The Civil Service Commission announced that in as much as insufficient applications have been received for the Stenographer-Typist examination for employment in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, the closing date for receipt of application has been extended until August 11, 1947. These positions have a starting salary of $1945 per annum with provisions for advancement on a systematic basis.

Full information concerning these positions as well as application forms may be secured from Roy Harmon, Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners in the local Post Office.

44 ways
To get "Something for Nothing"

The railroads have received 44 "rules" demands from the leaders of the operating unions . . . representing engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen. They say they are seeking only changes in working conditions—NOT a wage increase.

More Money For Less Work

But what kind of rules are being asked for? Twenty-eight of them would compel railroads to pay more money for the same, or less work; 7 would require additional and unnecessary men to do the same work; the rest would bring about changes in operating practices at increased cost.

For Instance:

The Union leaders demand additional train and engine crews on Diesel-powered trains—one full crew for every power unit in the locomotive. A freight train hauled by a 4-unit Diesel would have to carry 4 engineers, 4 firemen, 4 conductors, and at least 8 brakemen, or a total of 20 men instead of 5.

"Made Work"—Sheer Waste

The Union leaders demand that full-length freight trains be cut to about half their length, even though such trains are most efficient for low-cost service to you. This rule would call for twice as many locomotives, would double the number of trains, and make accidents more likely.

Additional equipment, yards, and other facilities required to take care of these short trains would cost hundreds of millions. What the Union leaders really want is to make more jobs.

The Union leaders demand that when a crew in one class of service perform incidental service of another class, they will be paid not less than a day's pay for each class, even though all service is performed as a part of the same day's work. The crew would get at least two days' pay for one day's work.

The Union leaders demand that the present basic day for passenger conductors and trainmen be reduced from 150 to 100 miles, which would have the effect of increasing their pay 50%. Such a run often takes only two or three hours!

You Can't Afford This Waste

Demands like these are against the interests of the whole American people, who depend on railroad service for nearly everything they eat, wear and use.

These rules would cost A BILLION DOLLARS annually—a gigantic waste which neither the railroads nor the country can afford.

Railroad workers are good citizens and good employes, with pride in their calling. Their record during the war was outstanding. We do not believe they fully understand the "featherbed" rules which the Union leaders are demanding. We do not believe they understand the harmful results which these rules would have to the railroad industry, to the millions of men and women dependent on railroads for their livelihood, and to the shipping and consuming public.

The great strength of America is in production—an honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

For only through greater production can we hope to stop the steady upward surge of living costs.

Surely, if ever there was a time in our history when we needed to work, not waste, this is it.

Jane Cupper's "Daring" Bathing Suit

The Cuppers showed me some of the types of their nineteen-ten vacation—plinking on the beach with beer and pretzels, in bathing suits that made them look like they were dressed in street-wear.

Doc was smothered in a long-sleeved pull-over with knee-length shorts, and looking embarrassed as if he thought Jane's costume of a heavy blouse, two copious skirts, and long black stockings was a little daring.

We laughed a lot at those costumes... but come to think of it, as Doc says, we'll probably look just as funny twenty years from now, in what we call our "Modern" clothes. Only thing that won't change in the picture is that incline, wholesome glass of beer.

From where I sit, tolerance that I can wear sensible, decent clothes to give us sun and air and freedom. I'll keep that wholesome picture of a part of the American...

Savings Bonds Report

Residents of Lincoln County invested nearly one-eighth million dollars in U. S. Savings Bonds during the first half of 1947, according to reports received from the Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury department by F. E. Greisen, Chairman of this county's Savings Bonds Committee. The exact figure is $101,416, against $45,145 in the same period of 1946.

Of this total, $62,882.50 was placed in Series E. Bonds, a gain of $19,967.50 over the similar period of 1946.

Lincoln County residents invested 1.4 per cent of the states total in all three series of Savings Bonds in the first half of 1947. By comparison, people of this county bought .8 per cent of the states total during the War and Victory Loan Drives, and .7 per cent in the calendar year of 1946.

Why Throw Minutes Away
 The other day, we heard about an interesting experiment a checking account depositor had made. He had fourteen bills to pay. So he paid each one in person with cash, and kept track of how long it took. He walked to the stores. At some places he had to wait in line; at others he had to wait for change. When he had completed his rounds, he walked home. It had taken him over two hours to do the job. The following month he had sixteen bills to pay. This time he sat at his desk, wrote a check for each one, addressed envelopes and mailed them at the nearest post box. It took him 34 minutes— exactly one-fourth of the time it took him to pay with cash.
 And that is only one of many reasons why a checking account at our bank can be useful to you.

A Wise Polio Precaution: Keep Foods Well Covered!
 Cover food to keep flies away, especially during the polio danger months in summer, is another wise precaution to follow in combatting spread of the disease, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis cautions through its local chapter. The "blue-bottle" fly, particularly, is suspected as a possible factor in transmitting the virus as a result of evidence disclosed by investigations financed by March of Dimes funds.
 The National Foundation also urges that all fresh fruit and vegetables should be washed before use; left-over foods covered properly, and garbage or rubbish placed in containers with lids so that flies cannot get to it.

YOU CAN START CANNING NOW!

There's hardly a day during the growing season of the year when you can't find something to put-up for winter use. Fresh vegetables and fruits are on the way to market. It pays to keep a supply of your favorite jams, caps, lids and rubbers on hand. Then you'll always have them when they're needed. Remember to select clean, sound, fully ripe fruits and young, tender, garden-fresh vegetables. Your canned product can be no better than your raw one! Can the fruits and vegetables as soon as you get them into the kitchen in order to preserve their fresh flavors. It's best to wash and can only a small amount, the amount your canner will hold, at a time. Examine all your jars for nicks which prevent perfect seals. Always use new rubber rings. And do the job right, according to manufacturer's instructions! It's the economical way, and how you'll enjoy the result!

Presidential Veto Poses Problems

Roosevelt Said, 'I Forbid' 631 Times for New Record

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—"I forbid!" said President Truman. He said it 74 times to the 79th congress while Democrats were still in control.

Every American president is permitted to say he forbids, but he has to say it in Latin. The word is "veto." Of course the congress can say "So what?" right back, as they did so emphatically this session in the case of the Taft-Hartley labor act, but they have to say it two-thirds strong, a strength they aren't always able to muster, as history has shown.

Why the founding fathers were so generous with presidential power, which they never conceived as expanding to its modern breadth, we don't quite know. The veto is written down in Roman law, but Latin is a dead language. In England, the crown has a veto power over parliament, but it is almost as dead as Queen Anne, since it hasn't been used since her time.

It seems to have flourished on American soil. In fact— "We ought to call it National Veto Week," House Majority Leader Halleck is reported to have remarked when the third presidential veto in one week of June bounced back into the lap of the 80th congress.

Others studying headlines "President Nixes Tax Cut," "Truman Vetoes Labor Legislation," "Wool Bill Turned Down," shook their heads and opined that Harry S. Truman was the vetoingest president yet.

Nonsense, said capitol old-timers, Harry Truman, according to the record, has been very sparing of his veto, and has a long way to go before he attains the really big-time veto statistics racked up by Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt (who had more time than anybody else to exercise his thumbs-down power), Grover Cleveland (the veto runner-up), and Ulysses S. Grant.

"Why," the old-timers grant, "when FDR was president, it seemed as if we had a veto on something or other almost every day." And the record shows that he said, "I forbid," or achieved the same end by the pocket method in 631 instances. (A "pocket veto" comes about in this way: The president has 10 days, not including Sundays, to act on any bill. Congress sends a bill to him. If congress adjourns before the president's allotted 10 days are up and he still hasn't acted on the bill, it cannot become a law. That is considered a "pocket veto.")

Cleveland, during his two terms in office, used his veto power 584 times, and was overridden only twice. The majority of the Cleveland vetoes were personal pension bills, many based on utterly absurd claims growing out of the Civil War. At first, Cleveland's forthright refusal to permit these myriad, dilapidated treasury raids infuriated Civil War veterans. Later, however, the GAR came to consider him its friend.

Ulysses S. Grant, a poor third to Roosevelt and Cleveland, vetoed 92 bills, was overridden four times. All told, the veto power has been used more than 1,833 times by presidents. George Washington started it off by killing two important acts—one having to do with legislative organization; another which would have reduced the size of the army. He was not overridden. There were eight other presidents who never experienced a veto upset by congress, Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Lincoln, McKinley and Harding.

On the other hand, there were several presidents who scorned the veto entirely: John Adams, Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, Taylor, Fillmore and Garfield. Perhaps because all was harmonious between executive and legislators in those days. Perhaps because, as some students suggest today, a sustained veto is a contradiction of the principle of a majority rule—a rule of a minority of one-third of either-house-plus-one, plus the president who is not supposed to have a vote. (It takes a two-thirds vote to kill a veto.)

Historic Trees Threatened

For years now I have walked back and forth to my labors under a Gothic roof of green, formed by the interlacing elm branches which, since Civil war days, have made my street one of the world's most beautiful avenues. Today there are some rude gaps in the raftered ceiling where huge branches have been ripped away by the wind and storm. But now there is a threat of greater devastation for our and other elm trees, ancient and historical, or merely beautiful, for the dreaded Dutch elm disease has descended upon America—two cases of virulent infection have been discovered within the District of Columbia alone, and no cure is known.

My generation found nothing exotic in the idea of the village smithy under the spreading chestnut tree. Today the smith would have a tough job finding a chestnut tree under which to build his smithy, even if you could find the smith. For, thanks to the infamous chestnut blight, a horseshoemaker tree in this country is now almost as rare as a heron.

Must the elms go that way? I talked this question over with a member of the American Forestry Products Industries, Inc. (a private industrial association). He said: "A recent house action reduced the federal appropriation for the control and research of the European beetle and Dutch elm disease to $31,000. If the cut is approved by the senate, it means the end of the Dutch elm disease laboratory in Morristown, N. J., where the department of agriculture's bureau of entomology and plant quarantine has conducted extensive research into the control and possible prevention of the insect and fungus. An elm, according to official classification, is a "prized shade tree in the northeastern and central United States." But passing over its aesthetic value, consider that its "wood is used for variety of purposes—especially slack cooperage, market and bushel baskets, for heavy crating and for veneers."

But what does an economic care for all that? Consider the White House grounds, for instance. In these quiet 18 acres there are something less than 350 trees comprising some 30 species. The two great magnolias planted close to the rear portico were placed there by Andrew Jackson. Nearly every president planted a tree—there is the Benjamin Franklin oak, the Harding beech, the Coolidge birch, several species set out under Hoover. Maples predominate, but the elms are next, and many have historic memories. Just southeast of the south portico is an elm said to have been planted by John Quincy Adams. There are others planted by Lincoln and McKinley.

Under these trees history lives, but for beauty nothing surpasses the high arched cluster, thick-tapestried in summer, stark but graceful in silhouetted line in winter, which roots my avenue.

A willing and partly defoliated 20-foot American elm severely affected with Dutch elm disease.

The conference, previously boycotted by Russia on the grounds that the Marshall plan will be a foothold for American intervention in the internal affairs of Europe, will attempt to set up a scheme whereby Europe, with the aid of American dollar credits and supplies, will be able to lift itself from its economic morass by its bootstraps.

In addition to Hungary, four other Communist-inspired governments—those of Poland, Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria—also refused the invitations sent out by Great Britain and France. As the deadline for replies approached, Finland and Albania had not yet been heard from.

Higher pay and a more satisfactory home life are the two main lures which have drawn the most bright and capable young career officers from the navy and army into civilian jobs at what is called "an alarming rate" during the past year. In the last 10 months more than 1,700 naval officers have resigned commissions won at Annapolis to take higher paying civilian jobs. During the same period, the army lost only 250 West Point officers via the resignation route, but they are men whom the service can ill afford to spare.

FIRE'S TRAGIC AFTERMATH . . . The tragedy which invariably follows in the wake of fire is typified in this picture of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tate of Chatsworth, Calif., standing in the charred ruins that once was their home. A brush fire that swept the area destroyed many houses, including some under construction.

Mine Pact Draws Fire; New Aid Parley Opens

BETRAYED: Mine Pact. Rep. Fred A. Hartley (Rep., N. J.), co-author of the Taft-Hartley labor act, has charged big business and big labor with betraying the public in negotiating the latest John L. Lewis coal mining contract.

Hartley's attack followed shortly after southern coal operators followed northern and midwestern operators in signing soft coal contracts with the 400,000-member United Mine Workers.

He told the house that "at least one clear violation of the law" was contained in the contracts, referring to the section providing for a "checkoff" from the miners' wages. The Taft-Hartley law, he said, permits a checkoff only for union dues, but the contract calls for a checkoff of initiation fees and union assessments. Hartley added that other sections of the contract "violate the spirit and intent of the law."

Noting that the contract afforded a "prime case history of the evils of industry-wide bargaining," he said that there was evidence of "collusion between the mine operators and the UMW with the intention of violating the law."

R.S.V.P.: Paris Parley. Pro-Communist Hungary turned down its invitation to attend the Paris conference on European reconstruction as 17 other nations lined up to participate in the talks, first step in carrying out the Marshall plan for aiding prostrate Europe.

The conference, previously boycotted by Russia on the grounds that the Marshall plan will be a foothold for American intervention in the internal affairs of Europe, will attempt to set up a scheme whereby Europe, with the aid of American dollar credits and supplies, will be able to lift itself from its economic morass by its bootstraps. In addition to Hungary, four other Communist-inspired governments—those of Poland, Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria—also refused the invitations sent out by Great Britain and France. Princess Elizabeth, 21-year-old heiress presumptive to the throne of England, and Lt. Philip Mountbatten, 25, former Prince Philip of Greece, are formally engaged to be married this autumn, probably in October.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth cleared the road to royal romance by giving unqualified approval to the match and announcing the engagement in a traditional court circular.

Lt. Mountbatten is a second cousin to the king and a great grandson of Queen Victoria. As the husband of Princess Elizabeth, he will be Britain's first prince consort since Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg. He cannot become king, but probably will be given a dukedom shortly before the wedding.

King George is expected to ask parliament to increase Princess Elizabeth's pension and perhaps give her husband a special allowance.

OIL EXPORTS: Supply Russia. A special export license for the shipment of petroleum products to Russia was granted by the department of commerce hours after Representative Welch (Rep., O.), chairman of the house merchant marine committee, demanded the license be refused.

Welch previously had telephoned William C. Foster, undersecretary of commerce, urging him to halt the movement of 248,000 barrels of petroleum being loaded aboard three tankers on the West coast. "Meat animal prices in mid-June were about 50 per cent higher on the average than a year before." The declining wheat prices are expected to continue into August or September. "Because of the very large export demand, however, the price decline will be less than is usual when a very large crop is marketed."

Prices paid by farmers for their needs in June averaged 230 per cent of the 1910-14 average. Prices paid for feed advanced to the highest level since last August. In general, the statement concluded, the index of prices paid by farmers is expected to continue at high levels in the next few months.

INDEX HIGH, TOO Gain Shown in Farm Income. WASHINGTON.—Farm income during the first six months of 1947 was 30 per cent higher than that of the corresponding period last year. It was revealed in the agriculture department's monthly review of farm income. Farmers netted $11,700,000,000 from the sale of their products during that period, with the total increased to about 12 billion dollars through government payments, the report showed. Largest increase was 79 per cent registered in sale of meat animals. Cash receipts from dairy products were up 36 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

Cash receipts from crops were around $3,600,000,000 in the first half, or 29 per cent above the corresponding period last year. Most of this increase was in grains and tobacco. Preliminary estimates for June show that farmers received about two billion dollars from marketings, an increase of 30 per cent from June, 1946. Receipts from livestock and their products were up about 80 per cent on the same basis of comparison. "Demand for meat for domestic consumption and for export continues unusually strong," the agriculture department's statement said.

The FICTION Corner

'TRUST' BY MAURICE GRASHIN

Eddie Martin escaped! The prison siren screamed—guards fine-combed the surrounding country—every law agent in the nation went into action.

Get Eddie Martin! Meanwhile the notorious criminal was riding under the belly of the construction dump truck that had taken him through the prison east gate.

By his fingers and toes he clung to the bottom of the bumping truck until the driver had parked it for the night in the company yard. Only after dark did he venture from his cramped position.

He wormed his way into the truckmen's locker room, and speedily changed his prison clothes for a work outfit. He pulled the cap down over his eyes, wrapped his fist around a heavy iron bar, and was ready to travel.

Via alleys and side streets he reached the city limits. He avoided the highway and headed across the hills. At midnight he reached a creek, and waded across. They'd never get him now. He almost ran the remaining mile to the deserted shack that would give him needed refuge.

As he hurried, he remembered the many times it had given him refuge. When he was a youngster, and his folks lived on the ranch, he and his older brother, Dan, played "cops and robbers." Even at that time he had insisted on being the robber.

But that had happened when he was ten years old and only playing bad man. Now he was the real thing. The government paid five thousand dollars reward for him after his last bank job. It would double that amount to get him back.

He felt quite proud—he had gone far since he was a "play-robber." A short distance from the shed he stopped and listened. Nobody was going to outsmart him. Satisfied that he was alone, he moved to the shack.

The door was locked, the windows boarded just as he left them. With his iron bar he forced the creaky door on its squeaky hinges. Field mice scurried outside, birds flew frantically from the eaves. He bolted the door, and crossed to the rear of the room. On his knees he impatiently brushed aside the cobwebs, and pried loose several floor boards. He reached down, grasped the chain handle of a small trunk, and pulled it to the floor.

First he took out a flashlight, and directed the glare over the other contents of the chest. He laughed loudly, triumphantly. Everything was ship-shape—just as he had planted it three months ago. There was the box with the ten thousand dollars. Here was his gun, wrapped in felt. There were cartridges and stuff to clean the revolver in case it got rusty. And he had a complete change of clothes.

He could not miss! He had brains. That's why, when he got twenty-five thousand bucks from the last stick-up, he had only tried to get away with fifteen—he put the balance in the trunk with the gat and other gear. He had cached them just in case his plans went wrong, and he failed to get out of the country. Well, they did go wrong. He had trusted a guy, and gave him five grand to help his getaway. The "pal" had not only taken his money but squealed on him, and got the reward, too. But now he was in the same spot with the same amount of dough, only this time he could not fall, because he trusted nobody.

Alone in the dark, he got to thinking—and whenever it was dark, and he was alone, he thought of his mother. He liked Mom, not because of what she was to him, but because of the many favors she had done for him. He remembered how she used to battle the neighborhood hoodlums to save him from a beating. She was always looking out for his good.

Yes, sir, Mom was all right.

He stretched out, and fell into a peaceful sleep. Two hours later, he awoke, frightened! He shook with fear as he grabbed his gun.

A voice called hurriedly, "Eddie, Eddie!"

It was his brother. He did not answer. Dan called again, "Eddie, I must see you!"

Eddie let him in, then slammed the door and bolted it. He jabbed the revolver into his brother's ribs. "You're still playing cops and robbers. But you'll never live to collect my reward."

Dan regarded him coldly. "Mom wants to see you."

The savage tenseness faded from Eddie's face. "No kiddin'?" After all that bunk they printed about me!"

"She doesn't know anything about you," answered Dan. "She hasn't been able to read for six years. I made up stories, instead of reading what was there."

"Thanks, Dan, I sure wish I could see her—but it's impossible right now."

"She's very sick."

"Not!"

"It's your last chance to see her alive."

"I'll go."

He changed quickly into his good clothes. He stuffed the gun and cartridges into his pockets, and carried the money container under his arm. At the door he stopped.

"Listen, Dan, even though we're brothers, we never had any love for each other. If this is your trick to turn me in, I'll get you if it's the last thing I do."

Dan shook his head in sympathy. "Don't you trust anybody?"

"Only me—and Mom. Let's go."

In Dan's car they raced for home. Midway they ran into a heavy storm. Rain flooded the windshield faster than the wiper could clear it. Thunder boomed and lightning lit the countryside.

The storm was at its height when they stopped in front of a little white cottage. Dan jumped out of the car and ran to the house. Eddie followed. A flash of lightning, and Eddie turned to see a police car skidding to the curb.

Eddie pushed Dan inside and threw the door shut. He whipped out his gun, and leveled it at his brother.

"I told you I'd get you!"

"But, Eddie," frantically pleaded Dan, "I didn't—"

A crash of thunder drowned out the revolver shots. Dan fell dead. The officers were right outside. Eddie was a caged rat. He yanked open a door. His mother was lying in bed.

"Edward—Edward!" she called weakly.

He glanced at the window—it was blocked by police. He had no chance to escape. He held the gun behind him.

"Hello, Mom," he said.

"I'm so glad you're here," she told him. "Are you all right?"

"Sure, Mom, I'm swell."

She sighed in relief.

"I've had a dreadful feeling you were in danger," she said. "I even telephoned the police to protect you!"

Fire Waste Doubled Since 1941, national waste by fire has nearly doubled. In that year the figure was a little more than 300 million dollars. Last year it was more than 618 million dollars. That difference between the two years is nearly as much as the entire loss in the great conflagration of San Francisco in 1906. At the present rate of increase direct waste by fire will run well over the staggering sum of one billion dollars by 1960.

STANDARD SCHOOL LESSON

Wisdom and Understanding For Our Daily Living

LESSON TEXT FOR JULY 27—Proverbs 1:1-5; 3:13-18; 9:9, 10; James 1:5.

MEMORY SELECTION—Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom and with all thy getting get understanding.—Proverbs 4:7.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. EDUCATION is so widespread in our day, and so eagerly sought after, that one might assume that the world would soon solve its problems through the cultural attainments of its people.

Why this is not true appears clearly in our lesson; for it is wisdom that the world needs, and wisdom is quite different from the understanding or memorizing of a mass of facts.

Wisdom teaches us how to use knowledge effectively for the glory of God. We see in our lesson:

I. The Meaning of Wisdom (Prov. 1:1-5).

PROVERBS are pithy, useful sayings, which gather up the wisdom of a people in easily remembered form. They are highly thought of in all nations, but reached their highest development among the Hebrews, because they rightly insisted that they must be related to God and worship of him.

We learn in this passage that they are given to us that we may "know" that we have both wisdom and instruction. The growth of knowledge is always a prerequisite to growth in grace—learn more about God and his precious Word, and you will have more of his grace upon you.

Knowledge must be coupled with discernment (v. 2), which speaks of going beyond and below the surface meaning. This will not be an abstract love of the scholarly, but a practical application of truth to life (v. 3). Wisdom results in right living and proper dealing with our neighbors.

The one who has come to this place is ready to give (v. 4) help to others, especially to the young or those of "simple" thinking, who have not yet reached the place where they can get hold of such things for themselves.

Notice that the wise man does not stop at that point, but because he is wise he goes on to more and more understandings, to further receiving and giving out of "sound counsels" (v. 5).

Observe next:

II. The Value of Wisdom (Prov. 3:13-18).

THE character of a man shows up in the things he holds to be valuable. Some cannot see beyond gold and silver. Others seek comfort and convenience, and do not wish to be disturbed in their easy ways.

The wise man knows that for real pleasure of the highest type, for peace of mind and heart, for riches that will last and not bring him into either sin or sorrow, there is nothing like the cultivation of understanding and wisdom.

This scripture affords us the opportunity to say a needed word to young people who are being sorely tempted these days to forego their opportunities for an education, and to rush out into the world to make money, more money, yes, the most possible money.

Education seems to be unnecessary, a waste of time and effort. But wait, the years will come and go, and then when it is too late, the realization will come that a golden opportunity was missed, and that doors of usefulness and effectiveness are now closed.

It pays to give time to the cultivation of the mind and of the heart in preparation for life. We are not thinking primarily of the dollars and cents value now, for that is secondary, even though it may be important.

III. The Source of Wisdom (Prov. 9:9, 10; James 1:5).

GOD is the source of wisdom, and it is as a man fears him that he becomes wise. The fear of God is not a matter of fright or terror, but rather a genuine concern that one may do his will and never fail to be obedient to his guidance.

God is always more ready to give than we are to receive. He will not turn us aside, or belittle our efforts; but will, if we ask, give wisdom, and that in no little measure.

Let no man think that he can attain unto true wisdom apart from a right relationship to God. He may have knowledge, but not wisdom. On the other hand, let no man who knows God and serves him go through life lacking wisdom when all he has to do is to ask it of his heavenly Father. Why be poverty-stricken when you can be rich in wisdom and understanding? (Selected by Western Newspaper Union.)

Good Morning!

An American traveling in Italy on behalf of his government stopped at a small inn for the night and instructed the native courier who accompanied him to enter his name in accordance with the local police regulations. Later he asked the servant if he had complied.

"Yes," was the reply. "How did you write my name?" asked the American.

"Well, Signor," was the reply, "I copied it from your portmanteau."

The American could not remember having affixed his name to his luggage, but the next morning he was greeted by the desk clerk with "Good morning, Signor. Warranted Solid Leather."

Capt. Curry seems to be something of a diplomat. He avoided making any rash promises to anybody when in Albuquerque. He went to Roswell to ponder over the situation in New Mexico and to make up his mind as to his course as governor. It is to be hoped that he will give New Mexico a clean administration. That is just what the people want and if Capt. Curry decides on that course he will have the support of the democrats and republicans of the territory alike.
