School Notes

Next Thursday is the date for the school report cards. As has been stated before in these columns, the standards of our school are being raised. Those parents who may not be satisfied with the reports are urged to come to the school and offer their cooperation. Get to know the teachers. You will find that they also are sincerely interested in your child. When the school and homes work together, far better results are obtained. When only criticism is offered, the student suffers the most. Let's work together.

Local Faculty Votes not to Attend State Meeting

At a general meeting of the local school faculty it was voted by bare majority of the group not to attend the annual State meeting in Albuquerque October 22nd to 25th. The biggest objection to going was the extra expense to the teachers. It is true that if they should have gone, their time for teaching would end at the M. O. Longley home here have been paid. The students would have had holidays. Although 100% success is not always achieved these meetings are provided and held for the purpose of training and inspiration. All progressive teachers should want to go and communities should be interested in their going. It is true that our county ranks among the lowest in teachers' salaries. It might merit investigation and confideration by interested citizens. Salarica more nearly comparable with other counties can be paid local bank. only by lessening the number of teachers and giving all the work to this smaller faculty. ## Hay Cured in Silos By Electrical Motor Mechanical Method of Saving New Hay Crop

Although the barn mow still is more extensively used today than any other place for the mechanical curing of hay and other forage crops, it lately has been receiving some competition from other farm structures-notably the silo.

Use of silos for curing forage crops is gaining favor with farmers who do not have the space required for installation of necessary equipment in their one-story barns, as well as those who desire to use their mows for other purposes. The accompanying illustration shows a typical sile hay curing installation.

In this latest of many newer farm electrification developments, air enters the hay through vents in the walls and passes into a vertical chamber which extends from top to bottom of the sile. It is exhausted from the structure by means of a fan, located above the entrance. The cost of curing hay electrically by this method with a 5 or 71/2 horsepower motor is about $1 per ton, the same as in the case of mow systems. Tests show that the quality of hay, cured in this way, also equals that cured in the barn, being worth from $3 to $10 more per ton in feeding value than that dried by the sun.

KNOW YOUR BREED Dunloggin Mistress La Princess

A new record price for Holstein-Friesian cows was received at a Cary, Ill., sale, when Dunloggin Mistress La Princess brought $23,-500 to her consignor, Elmwood Farms, Lake Forest, III. She was purchased by Wern Farms, Waukesha, Wis., which later resold her at a private sale to Rehder Bros., Bladbrock, Ia.

Her record of 1,047 pounds of fat and 27,478 pounds milk, 3.8 per cent, made in 365 days, three time daily milking, established a new Illinois Holstein record. She was selected as the Reserve All-American Aged Cow in 1946.

U. S. Farmer Is Best

Through improved breeding methods, the farmer today is raising finer livestock than ever before. Through modern medicines, he has a type of on-the-farm control of disease and epidemic such as never before has been possible. This is the view recently expressed by Dr. Ward L. Beebe, authority on animai health care.

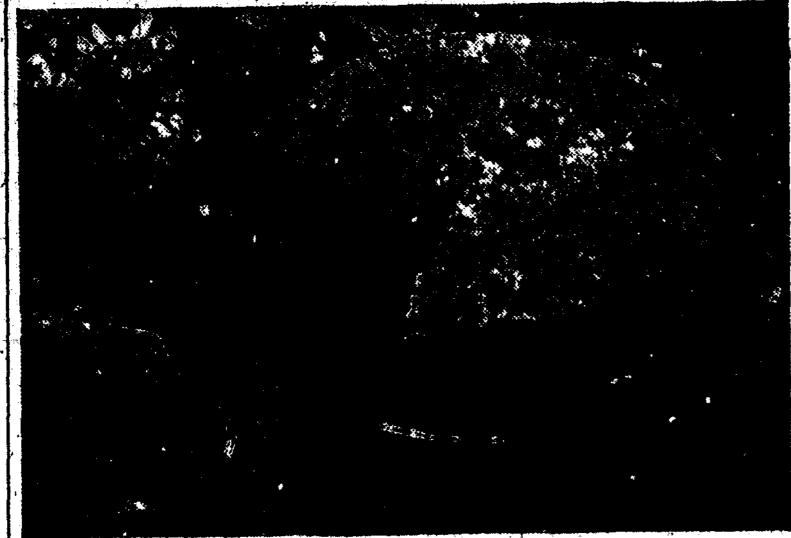

All the more remarkable is the fact that the farmer has accomplished this despite a ratio of only one veterinarian engaged in farm work for more than 25,000 farm animais.

Beet Top Silage Cuts Requirement for Hay

The best feeding practices have demonstrated that by use of beet top silage in the ration, the hay requirements may be reduced by onehalf in the feeding for production of beet, mutton or milk. The succulent value of the slige supplemedia its actual feeding properties

Jenny Lind's Concert Tour Created Greatest Furor

America's greatest furor was that created by Jenny Lind, the Swedish singer, during her concert tour (1850-1852) says Collier's.

Its extent is indicated by a col-lection of Lindiana owned by the New York Historical society which contains, among its thousands of items, scores of the countless articles on which her name and portrait were used as a trademark or decoration, such as bonnets, beds, whiskies, wallpapers and even men's fancy vest but-

SEVENTEEN THOUSAND BOLLARS from 50 acres of single cross hybrid seed comi That was one of the accomplishments last year of Champion Farmer John J. Gannon and his father, Williams P. Gannon, on their 785-acre farm near ¿Valeria, Iowa, Hog sales totalled over 400 head. In a recent month, 16 purebred Guernsey cows, three of them dry, returned $504.78 over feed costs. Seventy head of purebred Aberdeen-Angus cows, and their calves, provide a profitable outlet for roughage. So does a flock of sheep. The Gannons bale 7000 bales of bay annually. Careful pasture management, manure and commercial fertilizers, and a soil conservation program keep the farm highly productive. For economy and efficiency in operating their farm equipment, Champion Farmer Gannon has found it pays to depend on Firestone tires. When he and his father buy new tractors, they specify Firestone Champion Ground Grips. In the photograph, Shells Ann Gannon with her grandfather, William P. From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

"It's Living That Counts"

I stole the title of this column from a magazino artielo that said a whole lot better than I can what farm and country life can mean.

We talk about farm profits, production, research, and mechanical improvements ... but isn't it true. what we really value is the life country living offers us? ... the chance to be close to our families and neighbors ... children sharing in the chores ... working with our own hands at a worthwhile job.

And country pleasures are simple: good talk at day's end, and a glass of mellow beer with friends ... the companionship of man and wife, unruffled by distractions of the city . . . the mutual telerance of one another's tastes-in choosing a friend, or a glass of beer, or a candidate for Governof.

Mind, I'm all for material improvements. But from where I sit, the real goodness of our country. life is that spirit of telerance, moderation, and good fellowship.

History Lives in Washington Statues

Americans Dote on Nation's Monuments to Its Heroes

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—If you haven't anything else to do, just take a seat beside me on this bench for a moment. I think this is one of the nicest "little parks" in the world. It doesn't take its name from the gentleman on the horse right over there in the center, behind the iron pickets. I don't know why. Of course, he is only a replica. The original is in a square in the city he defended from the British—in the "vieux carre" of New Orleans.

He was GENERAL Jackson then. We think of him as President Jackson now. And we make fun of the horse he's sitting on, that prancing steed with his feet planted so firmly in the air ("like a liberal congressman," as one of the old conservatives used to say). It took many pounds of lead in Andy's horse's tail to keep the 'wo of them in balance, they tell me.

But don't think the horse's hind feet are not firmly planted! The one man who tried to move them brought down an avalanche on his head, and gave a President of the United States a real headache.

It happened this way: There is a statue of George Washington tucked off on a circle in neighborhood piece. His name was John Russell Young, and he is now commissioner (mayor) of the District of Columbia. In his piece, he suggested that when Washington was prettied up and returned to public view, he should be placed in the center of Lafayette park. Andy Jackson, Young thought, could be relegated to Washington's former relatively obscure position in Washington Circle. Local officials agreed.

Then the deluge. The stery was widely printed and it seemed that every Democrat in the United States was personally affronted. The presidential secretaries had bales of mail to answer. The climax came when a long-fergoiten Andrew Jackson patriotic and marching club, which appeared to be very much alive and kicking, threatened to descend on Washington in a body. The President had to issue a public statement saying that Andy was safe.

But I didn't intend to run on about Andy. The park is not, as I said. named after him. It's named after that young man you see over there on the southeast corner - looking right across Pennsylvania avenue into the window of the No. 1 guest chamber of the White House. His name is Marquis Marie Joseph Paul Yves Rich Gilbert du Motier de Lafayette. Yes, we're in Lafayette park.

Over there on the northeast cor-ner is another Frenchman, Field Marshal Jean Baptiste Donatien de Vimeur. Comte de Rochambeau. Over there on the northwest, opposite the Decatur House where Commodore Stephen Decatur died after being shot in a duel with a fellow officer (Commodere Barroh) out at Bladensburg, is Baren Friedrich Wilhelm August Heinrich von Steubon, who was as useful to General Washington, in his way, as Lafayette was in his.

Kosciuszko Statue

Stirs Reminiscences

But that brings me to the statue was really going to talk about: Tadeum Andrzeg Bonaventura Kosciusako, standing on the fourth corner of the park across from the house which once belonged to James Madison. Dolly lived there after her husband dled.

The other day, a disputch came in from Warraw which said that the minister of education of the Compannist-dominated Polish government, had ordered there would be no more "salacious chattering jokes and significant amiling" in Polish sokeole and universities.

I got to reminiscing on the air about how I had been told Polish students acted in the days when Poland was divided between Russia, Austria and Germany. Teaching of Polish history was suppressed, and the Russlan secret police then were as brutal (if not quite as emclent) as the Communist police in Poland are today. It seems a Polish teacher in those days occasionally would slip into his lecture some subtle anti-Russian or patriotic remark. There wouldn't be the alightest response from the studenie. The teacher would go right about and then, after a perfectly innocent sentence of some kind, he'd perses (and probably do a little "significant amiliag"). Then the students would takely raise the rect every time I passed by the statue of Kosciuszko, I could hear a faint murmur. I had no doubt it was Kosciuszko telling what he would do today if he could just get down from his

A number of people wrote in about that. They always do when I mention the statues. People are interested in statues even though they 310 suit ever since August, was re-1 busy intersection, was knocked to have gone out of style as monuments, You know, the Du Pont family took the bust of old Admiral September report. Samuel F. Du Pont out of the famous circle named after him, and replaced it with the present beautiful memorial fountain. Some Washingtonians were deeply offended and the national parks service was kept busy for several days answering phone calls and letters from indignant citizens.

In fact about the only complaints the national parks service has been receiving of late years have been concerned with the upkeep of the 77 statues entrusted to its care. Some Washingtonians call up to rebuke the service for the greenish tinge creeping over some of them, like Kosciuszko's. It is bronze and weather turns it green, which most sculptors feel adds to its beauty, so the service doesn't worry too much.

There wasn't much money for the national parks during World War II to pretty up Washington's sintuary. About all the service could manage was a yearly washing of each status (Il lakes abveral men a whole dry for the laundering job). But this year congress gave the service $10,000 for trucking equipment, hoses, masonry repairs, plumbing fixtures for the fountains and other monuments.

URGENT:

George Marshall, U. S. secretary of state, was trying his best to pile up pressure for a special session of congress this autumn to finance immediate interim ald to keep Europe on its feet until Marshall's 20billion-dollar, long-range rehabilitation plan begins functioning. _

Stymled by Republican leaders who were either downright opposed or indifferent to an emergency session before January, Marshall was taking his case to the people, attempting to rally public opinion behind him.

Intolerable cold and hunger are the immediate threats facing Europe, he said. The crisis calls for "urgent consideration."

What would it cost this time? Marshall said that there was as yet no estimate of stop-gap needs, but he didn't deny reports that William L. Clayton, undersecretary of state, had cabled from Europe a request for a special session of congress to vote 2.5 billion dollars for aid now.

The special session was far from assured. If it came to a showdown, GOP leaders probably would oppose Latest estimates also foretold a it openly, and they could, if they legislation.

Painting Cellar Floor

Rubber base paints frequently are used for painting cement floors and basements, because they are resistant to alkali which would adversely affect some other types of paint. Before applying rubber base paints to a cement floor, any old paint should be removed with paint remover, all residue from the paint remover washed off with turpentine or mineral spirits, and the floor thoroughly dried out. A further precaution before painting cement cellar floors, either new or old; is to etch them with muriatic acid solution in the proportion of about one pint of acid to one gallon of water. If the acid solution is used the floor should be well rinsed to remove traces of the acid and then thoroughly dried before painting, Two coats of the rubber base paint then always best. can be applied, being careful that

SCRIPTURE: Ecclesiantes. DEVOTIONAL READING: Ecclesiastes

Worthy Objectives

Lesson for September 28, 1947

THE Book of Ecclesiastes, written by Solomon, B. C. 977, is profitable in the fact that it discloses the findings of a very remarkable man on life. Solomon tells us that he had tried every tempting offer of the world, but found it vanity. "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity," he declares. Solomon is often referred to as the wisest of men.

He does not make

this claim, nor would I suggest it.

Dr. Newton

As a matter of fact, Solomon was a very unwise man in many of the manifestations of his life. He had every advantage, but yielded to selfish pursuits of pleasure when he might have been serving his day and generation by the will of God.

Why do I point to Solomon as an unwise man? From his own testimony—"I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly; I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit. For in much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sor-

Excellent Advice

EVEN so, Solomon was ready, by the time he wrote Ecclesiastes. the time he wrote Ecclesiastes, to give some excellent advice. He had discovered that pomp and ceremony are meaningless—that they turn at last to ashes.

For example, "He (Ged) hath made everything heautiful in its time," chapter 3, verse 11. Solomon had dealt in the artificial. He had worn the most costly robes, lived in the finest palaces, had gardens set up to please any passing whim.

But now that he has come to see the vanity of men, he can at last open his eyes to the beauty which God creates. And now he has become a wise man, indeed. There is beauty everywhere if only we have eyes to see.

Words of Wisdom

THE next section of Sunday's lesson brings us to one of Solomon's greatest confessions. He says, chapter 3, verse 14: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before

We do well to remember that God is, and that he is good, and that he is sovereign. "This is our Father's world." wrote Malthie Babcock. Here is a truth for today. In our dismay over the atomic bomb, we are about to forget that God intended for man to discover atomic energy, and he expected man to have enough moral stamina to use this discovery for his good and God's glory.

Which brings us to the heart of the Preacher's message, chapter 12, verse 13: "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter; fear God. and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man."

COLOMON, by his own testimony, missed much of the finer things of life; but he admonishes the reader to profit by his mistake and seek the best in life. For example, in chapter 2, verse 24, Solomon says: "There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labour,"

Every boy and girl in the world knows the joy of honest work, at least I hope so. Have you grown a beautiful flower? A vegetable garden? Cut a cord of fire wood? Then you know that work is one of the essential ways of seeking the best in life.

Then Solomon comes to the first eight verses of the last chapter—a golden section for memory. It is one of the first passages of Scripture I ever learned. I trust every young person reading this column will commit that passage to memory, if you have not already done so.

Testing Life's Philosophies

COLOMON concludes his confessions with this probing declaration: "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil."

What is he saying? He is reminding us that whatever may be our philosophy of life, such philosophy, together with our commitments thereto, will be tested out under the white light of God's ultimate truth. My conclusion is that I desire but one thing—to find and follow the will of God, which is always right and
