The new housing project, to be known as Highland Square Homes, is situated on more than 44 acres north of Highland avenue and east of Mt. Vernon avenue. The property, divided into lots 55 by 140 feet.

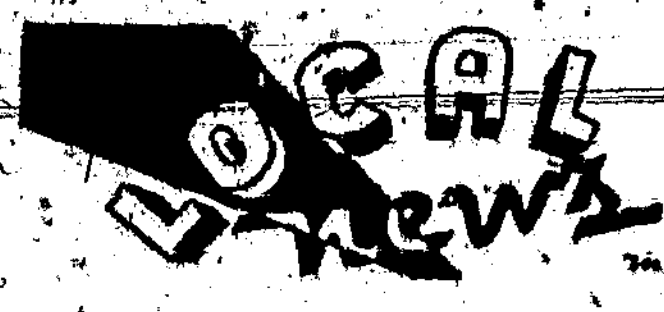

Work on the three-bedroom houses, each of which will have floor space of 122 square feet will begin next week.

The acreage was purchased by the Bixler Construction Co. from Mary C. Mann, widow of Charles Mann, well known realtor.

Built for sale, the dwellings offer many advantages to the prospective home owner, President Raehn said. Eight basic floor plans are available, and each house will have three bedrooms, an entry hall, fireplace, floor furnace with thermostat control, bathtub and wall shower, tile in the kitchen and bathroom, cedar shingle roof, and a 20 by 20 detached garage. The houses will sell for between $10,000 and $11,000, Mr. Raehn said. The above news item was clipped from the San Bernardino Sun, and was sent by Mr. W. O. ### Flying Farmers Here In Two Day Meet

The skies over Carrizozo were filled last Saturday afternoon and Sunday with planes of the Flying Farmers of New Mexico who gathered here for their first annual meeting, held at Southern Pacific Hotel.

On Saturday night a party was staged at Carrizozo Country Club for the visitors and the committee in charge is to be commended on the splendid job of entertaining the group, as they expended tremendous effort to assure the success of the evening.

The business meeting was held on Sunday morning at the Southern Pacific Hotel with President Nolin Lovelace presiding. Address of welcome was given by Mr. Vernon Petty in behalf of the city in the absence of Mayor Frank English, State C. A. A. Inspector, Mr. Al Meyers of Albuquerque answered various questions on flying problems of the rancher or farmer.

Other speakers on the program were E. C. Boykin, and Dr. Varney of the Extension Service of State College, Charles Boyd of Santa Fe, and Frank Hines of Hobbs.

New officers elected were: President, Morgan Nelson of Roswell; Vice-President, Wallace Lockmiller, of Clovis; Secretary, Jack Collins, Artesia; Directors, Willis Lovelace, W. C. Bradshaw, Roy Shafer and Forest Hedgecock.

RAINBOW GIRLS HAVE THANKSGIVING BARN-DANCE

The Rainbow Girls of the Carrizozo Chapter started the Thanksgiving vacation with quite a loud bang by having an old-time barn dance.

The Woman's Club building was cleverly made to give the appearance of a barn with bales of hay furnishing seats, and with old lanterns, strings of peppers, saddles, etc., hanging from the walls.

All the "Daisy Maes" brought their coppers in a box or a sack. Cakes were also served.

We worked off our extra pounds by dancing to good old "ho-down" music, stopping only long enough to witness two pie eating contests and apple bobbing. At the final outcome of the pie eating contests it was decided that C. A. Branum and Billy Galloway were best with the largest mouths.

As well as having records to dance by we were fortunate in having Darrow Turner play the piano and Charles Bunch play the guitar.

Everyone enjoyed the party immensely and hope that we may soon have another similar good time.

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson

SCRIPTURE: I John 4-5; II John; Acts 4:1-13.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 8:1-11.

Proof of a Christian
Lesson for November 30, 1947

OPEN your Bible to I John 4-5; Second John; and Acts 4:1-13, and you will have the Scripture background for Sunday's lesson. Add to the above passages Romans 8:1-11, as devotional reading, and you will be thinking of the unimpeachable proofs of a Christian.

Two men are brought before us as examples of Christian discipleship.

Peter and John had been preaching Christ to the people in Jerusalem, and they were arrested and brought before the Sanhedrin. The rulers and priests scolded them, asking by what power or name they had done this. Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, answered them: "Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole. . . . Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." And then follows the verse that reveals the proof that these humble fishermen were really Christians: "Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus."

The Lord Is My Helper

IN HEBREWS 13:6, we find this revealing statement: "The Lord is my helper; I will not fear." The more we study the words of John in Sunday's lesson—words that remind us again and again that God is love, that we love him because he first loved us, that when we love him we are made strong in serving him, the clearer we come to understand the incident in Acts 4:1-13, when Peter and John stood boldly before the Sanhedrin, impressing the court with the fact that they had been with Jesus.

They were not afraid because they were conscious of the presence and power of God. The Psalmist put it aptly when he said, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want."

When We Walk With God

THE incontestable proof of a Christian is the manner of life he reveals when he walks with God. "And this is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, that, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it," II John 6. When we walk with God, in the light of his word, what a glory he sheds on our way!

A group of men sat in the University Club in Boston, discussing religion. Someone asked Professor William James to define Christianity.

"I will not attempt a definition of Christianity, but I can give you an illustration." And he pointed to Phillips Brooks. There was no argument. Phillips Brooks was proof positive that Christianity is something vital and practical and real and effective in everyday life.

Who Is a Christian?

WE COME now to the question which always emerges when we think along this line—Who is a Christian? Look now at I John 4:15-21. I quote some of these revealing words:

"Whoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God. And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us, God is love; and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him."

We are not certified as Christians by any man-made creed, nor by any ritual or ceremony. We are certified as Christians by the direct access which every soul may have with God, through Jesus Christ our Great High Priest forever.

Church membership does not make us Christians. Baptism does not make us Christians.

Anyone may become a Christian, provided he or she is willing to renounce their "old" ways and, repenting of sin, believe on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour and Redeemer. Christ is the Author and the Finisher of our salvation. There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.

"Whoever will may come."

THE FICTION CORNER

THE BARGAIN

By MRS. W. E. ABBOTT

Emma Haines wakened with difficulty from her early morning sleep. That noise! What was it? It was like water swirling rapidly down a drain. Her brain cleared, and she heaved her great bulk out of bed. Only one thing sounded like that!

The outlay pig belonging to Ed Slatterly was raiding her garden again. Probably wanted more of her prize watermelons. She'd show her! Hastily she thrust her feet into slippers, put a house dress over her nightgown, and started for the door.

There she was, the demure! She'd know that bony, stubborn figure anywhere. "Get out of there, you ornery creature!" Emma picked up the nearest stone and threw it with all her strength at the skinny sow.

"She's against everything I've ever seen in nature," complained Emma. "Eats watermelons, of all things! Of all the truck I have in my garden, those melons are the things I prize most. And doesn't that cursed pig know that? She makes for the melons every time."

Seth didn't say much. After all, he was more than ordinarily fond of pigs. All pigs. He loved to raise them, see them grow large and contented from good feeding. Anyone had only to look at his fifty fat hogs to know Seth enjoyed caring for them.

Emma sighed. "I'd go over to see Slatterly today, if I didn't have so much to do. I'll try to go tomorrow. It's simply got to stop! Those trashy swamp folk will have to learn to keep their stock to home!"

It was three days before Emma found time to visit the Slatterlys. It was two miles back to their shack at the edge of the swamp, but Emma was a hearty fifty-year-old woman, and she loved the walk through the fields and wood lots. Several of the Slatterly children were playing around the cabin. They were handsome children, in spite of their dirty, unkempt appearance.

"Where's your Dad?" said Emma shortly to the oldest boy. "Paw!" yelled the boy.

Ed Slatterly appeared at the door of a shed behind the house. He was a small, wizened man. Emma had never seen him when he wasn't chewing tobacco. She walked towards him. Over his shoulder she looked inside the shed. There hung a butchered pig.

"Oh," she said. "That your pig, Ed?" "Yes, Ma'am," he replied. "I was simin' to give you a piece of that meat."

Emma softened. She walked inside and looked at the meat. It looked good. "Watermelons must make good hog feed," muttered Emma to herself.

"Ma'am?" said Ed Slatterly. "I said that would be nice," replied Emma. "We'd love having some fresh meat. It's very kind of you."

With the help of one of the boys, Ed took the pig down from the hook and cut off one of the hams for Emma.

"That's too much," she said firmly. "No, Ma'am," he said. "I have a lot of young 'uns, and they eat hearty, but the weather is warm."

"Get out of there, you ornery creature!" Emma picked up the nearest stone and threw it with all her strength at the skinny sow.

Most won't keep too long. You take it right along home."

"That's mighty fine of you, Ed Slatterly," said Emma. Her conscience was beginning to hurt.

Emma carried the ham all the way home and put it in the refrigerator to cool. Meat was expensive, and the thought of a roast of fresh ham roused her happy.

She was at peace with the world when she went to bed that night. Early the next morning she woke up in confusion. That peculiar sound again. Water, going rapidly round and round in a drain. No! It couldn't be! She sat up. There wasn't another pig anywhere that sounded quite like that.

She bounded out of bed and hit the floor with a thud. Slippers, the house dress over her nightgown, the flying trip to the garden. She rubbed her eyes. It was Slatterly's sow! There couldn't be two such pigs in all the world.

Dazedly she picked up a stone to throw at the creature. "Emma," Seth's voice was calling from the bedroom window.

"Leave her be, I'll be down." A moment later he appeared in the yard, his overalls drawn hastily over his pajamas. He looked sheepish. "It's all right, Emma," he said. "That's our pig now."

"Ours!" cried Emma. "Oh, no, not that!" Seth ran his hands nervously through his hair. "You see, I just couldn't bear seeing that hog looking the way she did, all run down and thin and neglected. So I traded one of our pigs to Slatterly for her. That gave them meat, and I thought I could maybe fatten her up."

Emma stared at him open-mouthed. "Although I gotta admit, she is an outlay," said Seth. "May have to get rid of her after all."

"May have to!" cried Emma. "May have to, indeed! What about my watermelons? You certainly will have to!"

Seth grinned and wiggled his toes in the grass like a small boy. "Whatever you say, Emma," he

Don't Forget to Compliment Them

One of the most effective salesmen I have ever known accomplishes his near miracles in business, not by any intellectual system, but by following one of the simplest of all plans I know for impressing others favorably. He compliments his customers. They like it so much they buy from him. They also form an attachment to him which makes it next to impossible for a competitor to come in and make sales.

When you compliment a person, it shows that you are interested in him and want to please him. In you that person sees a reflection of his own desires. And that's what makes us like others—a reflection of the things we like most in ourselves.

Of course I am not recommending flattery. When a compliment degenerates, it becomes mere flattery. It is not a boon but a handicap to friendship. You can't trust flattery. We feel we can trust compliments.

This salesman I am telling you about never makes the mistake of flattering his customers. "What I try to do with every man is find out what he wants to hear about himself," he explained. "I never compliment him upon things that are obvious—that others compliment him upon. About those things he gets tired of hearing. But all of us yearn to have somebody tell us about some other excellence of ours—one that isn't quite so obvious."

That is a shrewd observation on human nature. I remember reading how bored John D. Rockefeller was when complimented upon his business success. He wanted to hear something else. The thing he wanted to hear was praise about his household economies. And Andrew Carnegie wasn't nearly so proud of having given away so many millions of dollars as he was of his ability as a public speaker.

The point I am making is that if you want your compliments to do the most good you have to ferret out little things which the other person would like to hear somebody say about him. The next thing my salesman friend does is to make his compliments ring true. He isn't fulsome about them ever. He is truthful. He can go into any company and be liked and popular because in any company he finds something nice to compliment everybody upon.

Firestone CHAMPION GROUND GRIPS CHOICE of CHAMPIONS IN ALL THREE 1947 NATIONAL PLOWING MATCHES

CHAMPION Plowmen know that the performance of their tractor tires can "make" or "break" them in a plowing match. They must have tires that take hold and pull—on soft ground—on hard ground—on sod—on stubble. They must have tires that take a full, clean bite, a center bite—tires that plow right through—under all conditions.

That's why winners in the three big national matches this fall (Big Rock, Wheatland, Illinois and Webster City, Iowa), plowed on Firestone Tires. They, like most other contestants in these big events, could not afford to gamble with a "broken center" tire that might let them down by clogging up with trash, slipping and spinning.

Firestone Champion Ground Grips will perform for you on every job just like they perform for champion plowmen. They will always take you through. And they will take you through faster, without slipping. That means time and money saved.

Specify Firestone Champions when you order a new tractor or when you buy replacements for your present tractor. See your nearest Firestone Dealer or Store today.

BACKWARD GLANCES

40 YEARS AGO
1907 Captain News

President Theodore Roosevelt's message to congress, while one of the longest ever sent by a president contained not a solitary word relative to statehood for New Mexico in any form, notwithstanding all his promises and bombastic utterances in the past. But, then, he has seldom made a statement that he did not go back on within twenty-four hours. His next promise to New Mexico will be due early in the coming campaign, and may be written in a single word—Mañana.

The coal mines at Coalora are liable to close down at any time. They have been dangerous for some time, cave-ins occurring almost weekly, and the miners seem to think that the roof will drop down with a clack one of these days, and they don't want to be caught below when the avalanche happens. The mines comprise about four miles of underground workings, the deepest shaft is 2,100 feet, the next deepest is 1900 feet, and a number of shafts of lesser depth. Up to a few years ago, or previous to the opening of the Dawson coal field, the Coalora mines supplied the demand in the southwest, besides Mexico. Between three and four hundred miners were employed there, whose monthly wages ran from $110. to $150. per month. Coalora was a lively camp at that time, and of considerable benefit to the business of Capitan, being only a mile and half distant.

Marshall Plan Complexities Involve Vast Field of Work

By BAUKHAGE

News Analysis and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—There never was a better example of the difficulties encountered in a democratic government than those which are being faced as the specially-called short session of the 80th congress carries on its debate today.

I doubt if any parliamentary body in the world, or any despotic ruler, for that matter, ever faced a problem more complicated in detail, wider in its scope, or more important in its potential results than the Marshall program for aiding Europe.

Since the idea of the Marshall plan was first broached, I have had

Baukhage

16 European countries sat down in the state department to carry on their daily, and sometimes nightly, seminars with the representatives of our government.

These discussions went through three phases. The first phase was a careful expansion of details lacking in the formal report drawn up by the Paris conference.

You would be surprised at the number and scope of those details, many of which had to await special memoranda from technical experts in the countries involved. For instance, we can imagine a conversation something like this:

"Just a moment," one of the American officials says, with his pencil poised over the pad in front of him, "you say that it will be impossible to increase the output of the mines in Country X without additional mining machinery. You gave us the figures for the total equipment estimated, but I wish you would describe specifically the types and the quantity you need."

If the foreign expert had the statistics with him, they were checked, and the discussion of that particular item ended. If not, the next point was taken up, awaiting the detailed figures which had to be cabled from Country X.

However, that phase was concluded without any serious casualties. In fact, I understand it gradually blended into the third phase, which was a two-sided discussion, bringing out exactly how the Paris report was formulated. Whether, for instance, it was a synthetic combination of various separate viewpoints and separate plans, or whether the parts were fitted together with due relation to each other so that they could be taken apart and put together again. The Americans took it apart and, we were told, it went together all right.

As I say, this was a two-sided discussion, and I understand that it developed a common appraisal of the plan. In other words, when it was completed, either American criticism had been satisfied, or the European viewpoint had been sufficiently altered to achieve harmonious agreement.

In setting forth their views, certain "main factors" were emphasized by the Europeans. In the first place, in normal times, Western Europe traditionally imported more goods from the western hemisphere than they exported to us. However, this imbalance was compensated for by the trade between the Far East and Western Europe. This trade furnished Western Europe with sufficient dollars to make up part of the difference.

Secondly, in normal times, particularly in the case of Great Britain, there was the factor of "invisible income." This "invisible income" was made up, in part, of investments held by individual Britons and the British government, of the income in commissions and other fees which the British and other nations earned as a clearing-house of merchandise, through the use of shipping facilities and many other services which it was convenient and practical for European nations to provide for the world. But this "invisible income" has largely disappeared now.

We asked one of the European representatives what had happened to it. The partial answer, of course, was obvious: With world trade at a standstill, many of the services no longer are being provided. And as to the personal holdings, one European representative said: "Before the war, I owned 100 shares of A. T. & T., and 20 shares of General Motors. But they had to go long before the war was over—the interruption of my earning power, high taxes and so on."

over the possibility of a resumption of this Eastern-Western trade.

In the course of this meeting and several others, we have had a chance to learn many more details of this complicated plan and its evolution that possibly can be reported here. And yet these meetings could reveal only tiny fragments of the tremendous amount of research, analysis, study and discussion which was reduced to a few salient points, and presented to committees of congress in Secretary of State Marshall's final report.

Secretary Marshall, himself, had to go through a long period of briefing. In his last news conference before he met with congressional committee members, he had, as he put it, "immense ground to cover."

Marshall Target Of Press Critics

I mentioned Secretary of State Marshall and his last news conference before meeting with the congressional committees. There has been growing criticism of Mr. Marshall here in Washington. It took form after the conference and has appeared in editorials.

One Washington editorialist complained that Marshall won't talk, that the newsmen at the conference drew a blank because Marshall was uncommunicative. The Wedemeyer question came up, for example. Marshall would say nothing. He added, not petulantly, but in a tone that forbade further questioning: "Furthermore, I don't feel obliged to report on every conversation I have with the President."

That was quite true. He doesn't and shouldn't. Any secretary of state who did feel obliged to import all information exchanged with the chief would not long hold his job.

But in a democracy, if you are an official, you have to live in a goldfish bowl. The editorialist quoted the late Clinton Gilbert on Secretary of State, later Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. Gilbert, speaking of Hughes, said: "He talks to the country daily. He takes the people into his confidence, telling all that can be told, and as soon as it can be told. He makes no step without carrying the country with him . . . that is democratic control of foreign relations."

Marshall and the Press

Well, that is not State Secretary Marshall's way.

Many of the traits that make a man a splendid leader of armies, a strategist, likewise make it impossible for him to cater to a public which reacts only to emotions—not as arguer plate reacts to shellfire. You cannot land a million men or a foreign besethead, nor feed and clothe and care for them so they can carry out their gigantic mission, with a glib tongue, a charming smile or a keen sense of publicity that gets your campaign on the first pages.

Secretary of State Marshall is a great planner and an excellent executor of plans. It is up to someone else to "sell" those plans.

NEWS REVIEW

Aid Deadline Requested; U. S. Corn Yield Down

DEADLINE:

December 1

Apparently feeling that congressional approval of his request for $97 million dollars in stop-gap aid for France, Italy and Austria was assured, U. S. Secretary of State George Marshall sounded a new keynote—speed.

He suggested to the house foreign affairs committee that a deadline of December 1 be established for emergency relief to the three hard-pressed nations, and looked ahead to an early March deadline for his four-year, 20-billion-dollar plan for eventual European recovery.

State department witnesses backed up Marshall's plea for speed. They testified present funds would carry France and Italy only through December, beyond which looms the brink of chaos and confusion—political, moral and economic—unless additional help is rushed across the sea.

Also testifying before the house foreign group, Lewis Douglas, U. S. ambassador to England, offered a brief, pointed summary of the whole issue of immediate foreign aid: There can be no guarantee that the aid program will succeed, but it would be more risky to deny European financial help and watch despair and pandemonium spread across the continent.

Finally, it was the opinion of Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman that emergency European relief "can be substantially met," despite supply problems in this country.

China, Too

Virtually forgotten under the press of urgent affairs in Europe is the problem of China—ravaged, still contorted in war, constantly backsliding into greater political and economic corruption.

As a modicum of aid and comfort to that Eastern nation, Secretary Marshall has proposed a 300-million-dollar aid program to be administered in conjunction with the European phase of the Marshall plan.

At the same time, Marshall held to his stand that the suppressed report of Lt. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer on conditions in China would not be made public. He intimated that it drew such a dismal picture that to release the report would be harmful both to the U. S. and China.

CORN DOWN:

Semi-Finals

There was a smattering of bad news in the agriculture department's semi-final crop report of the year. It had to do with corn and winter wheat.

The 1947 U. S. corn crop now stands at an estimated 2,447,422,000 bushels, a decrease of 11,252,000 bushels from a forecast made a month ago. That is slightly below the 10-year (1935-45) average of 2,639,102,000, and far under last year's record yield of more than 3.2 billion bushels.

Hopes for another bumper wheat crop next year received a thorough dampening with the department's announcement that about 25 per cent of the intended winter wheat acreage in the important great plains

Gown of the Year

This is an artist's conception (front elevation) of the wedding gown worn by Princess Elizabeth on November 24 for her marriage to Lt. Phillip Mountbatten. On the right is one of the bridesmaids' dresses. The wedding gown, upon which such adjectives as glorious, 'exquisite and ethereal have been lavished, was of ivory duchess satin, strategically embellished with seed pearls, crystal and hand-embroidered designs based on paintings by Botticelli. area had not been seeded by November 1 because of dry weather. Simultaneously it appeared that meat production had started a downward trend, impelled by the reduced corn crop and higher feed prices.

Department of agriculture spokesmen estimated that there will be a cattle population of only 77 million on January 1, 1948—5.6 million below the all-time high of 82.6 million on January 1, 1945. As a result, consumers will be eating less beef, pork and poultry next year—there just won't be as much to go around.

RED ACTION:

Riots, Terror

Communist-borne trouble and terror was on the increase in France and Italy.

Spreading paralysis gripped the French port city of Marseille as workers responded to a general strike call by Communist labor leaders after a day of rioting in which one person was fatally wounded and six others seriously hurt.

In Milan, Italy, Communists sacked an anti-Red newspaper plant and attacked a police station in the course of rioting which gripped the city in a state of near terror. They demanded the immediate suppression of newspapers "which incite people to hate and vengeance," the suppression of "organizations of Fascist character" and the arrest at once of "all persons suspected for their activity against the republic."

In both Marseille and Milan, the Communists seized upon relatively unimportant incidents and managed to magnify them to a point where they could incite violence.

Wild Animals Put Bite on India

Do you pity the poor American pedestrian who figures to get his limps from being booted in the debris by a rampaging motorist when he crosses the street? Think nothing of it.

In India red-faced monkeys, savage tigers, wild elephants, prowling bears and poisonous snakes kill more than a billion persons every year.

Like the traffic menace in the United States, this situation at least has attracted the attention of the central and provincial governments in India. They have declared the monkeys which invade the Hindu city of Benares and bite pilgrimages worshipping to death "one of the greatest menaces of our time from the animal kingdom."

Although a handsome bounty is paid for every monkey's head—$10 for a male and $6 for a female—efforts to end the monkey menace are up against strong religious sentiment. Hindus consider the monkeys sacred.

Yet, in Benares, children are being pushed from temple steps to their death by wild monkeys almost daily. Last year monkeys killed 107 persons there.

And there are other hazards which nature in the raw holds for the Indians. Wild elephants in the province of Assam, to the north, and Mysore, to the south, move in great groups, rampaging villages, destroying crops and leaving behind a grim toll of human lives.

On the slopes of the Himalaya mountains black bears killed more than 2,000 persons in 1946 alone. Special anti-bear squads now have been organized to combat this terror.

Just 100 miles from the great metropolis of Bombay, in western India, can be heard the chilling growl of the man-eating tiger. Every year 200,000 Indians fall prey to them.

Most dreaded of all, however, is the hooded, glossy king cobra and the smaller brethren. There are an estimated 40 million snakes in India—one for every 10 human beings. And every year they kill 400,000 people.

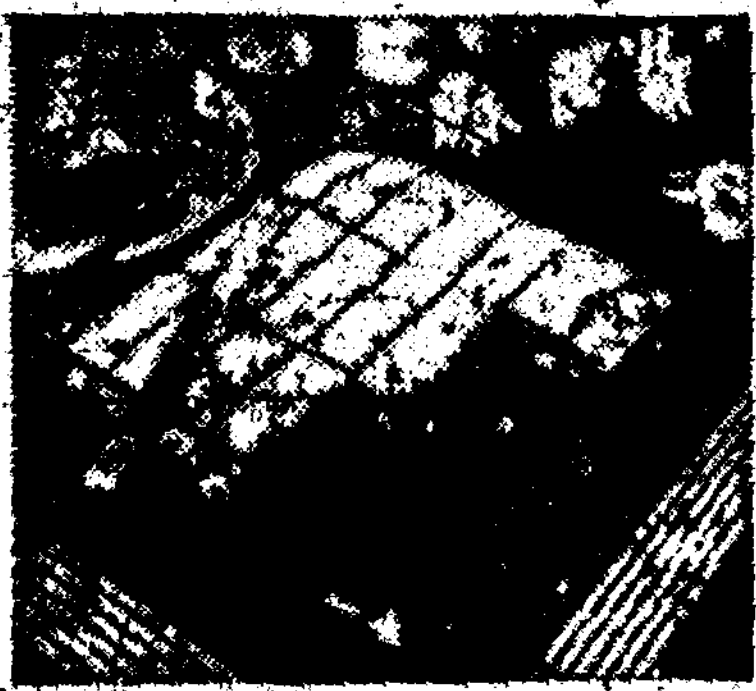

Civilization has quite a ways to go at that.

Plan on Baking

Holiday Sweets Well in Advance

Peanut bars are easy to make and easy to serve. They are ideal for snack fare for the youngsters, as well as family get-togethers during the holidays.

It won't be long now before the holidays are with us, and that means the children will be home with their constant demands on the cookie jar. It means, too, there will be plenty of entertaining, perhaps not of the elaborate variety, but evenings in front of the cozy warmth of the fireplace, when there should be a simple cookie or cake to serve.

Wise cooks will plan to do a lot of their holiday-baking early. Some of the cookies and confections can be made early, and they will taste so much the better for it. Then, too, most women like to make such things as pudding and fruit cake before the holidays so as to relieve the strain on the kitchen later on.

If you're making fruit cake or pudding, chop the fruits the day before and prepare your molds. Then the making of the recipe will be easy and there is less chance for error.

A VOICE FROM THE COUNTRY

Complex Economy Threatens Small Business Enterprise

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on current problems by Louis Bromfield, one of America's leading writers.)

By LOUIS BROMFIELD
 Released by WNU Features.

There are times when it seems that the pattern of our agricultural and business life appears not to have kept pace with the development of industry and technology.

The old frontier of the general farm is one case in point. Another is the field of distribution of all goods, but notably of food, and the small enterprise, either retail or industrial. Like the old-fashioned general farm, the small business enterprise has in the past been a great bulwark of American independence and character, and frequently of our economy as well.

The question is whether our present complicated and complex industrialized economy any longer can afford these remnants of another day, and whether the proprietors of the general farm and the small business enterprise can survive much longer the economic strain placed upon them. Tied in with the problems of both is the question of distribution.

notoriously expensive and inefficient, and in the actual process of painfully adjusting itself.

It is not only that the world has shrunk immensely in our time but also that the United States has shrunk with it. The problem of adjusting wages and purchasing power to the prices of all commodities has become the most urgent one now confronting the free enterprise system. Size, specialization and efficiency all have their bearing upon living costs, and notably upon food prices.

The old-fashioned general farm is an inefficient unit in our highly complex interrelated production economy. So, too, is the small retail enterprise competing with the efficiency, buying and distributing power of the vast, well-integrated chain stores, super-markets and cooperatives.

The economic pressures of our century are all toward bigness, efficiency and low-cost production and distribution, exactly as the rewards of the automobile industry have gone to mass-production, assembly-line big companies which produced a commodity of high quality for a low price. In the problem of food costs this efficiency begins at the farm, extends through the old field of distribution to the retail outlet.

Cycle of High Costs.
 The high cost of food begins on the farm through inefficiency and low production per acre, which produces high costs per man hour and per commodity unit. It continues through the field of distribution which involves handling — many times — commission merchants, market rigging, and at times a spread of price between producer and consumer of several hundred per cent.

The point is that small retailers as well as the great chain stores or cooperatives are a link in this chain, but that the small retailer is largely at the mercy of market rigging, commission merchants, expensive small-lot distribution and multiple distribution agencies (that is, the great wholesale buyers and commission merchants, the local wholesale distributors, et cetera — each of whom takes a cut eventually paid for by the consumer or in losses by the small retail proprietor).

At the same time, the small retailer is a victim of the economic squeeze created by the ability of the chain stores, super-markets and cooperatives to set low prices because of smaller purchase and distribution cost. Rarely, save in deluxe areas like New York's Madison Avenue, can the small unit retailer set a price higher in his community than that of the bigger organizations, although his costs may be much greater.

The economic tendency and pressures today are certainly all in the direction of low costs, high efficiency and the bigness which creates them. The consumer is concerned almost wholly with the goal of buying the best quality for the lowest price. Certainly super-markets, chain stores and cooperatives are growing and will continue to do so, taxed or tax-free in the case of big cooperatives, for even with taxes they still can sell at lower prices than the small independent operator.

Dollar Value Paramount.
 All of this, of course, raises the grave question of monopolies, if not nation-wide, at least in certain states and areas. Monopoly, in turn, implies government regulation. But at the moment, at least, the con-

Rev. F. J. Johnston, Pastor

I trust that everyone of my constituency had a heart full of thanksgiving on Thanksgiving Day. I am of the opinion that I was the only minister in Capitan on that day. Well, we had a very gratifying attendance at the Thanksgiving Service in our church. Many from the other local churches were present. The attitude of all seemed to be earnest and grateful to God and happy for the privilege of saying thank you to Him.

I heard the first Christmas piece over the radio this morning. Soon we will be hearing plenty of them and I welcome that sweet and wonderful music and story. These songs and carols will bring with them the spirit of Good Will which will climax for 1947 in Christmas Week. My prayer is that by that time every vestige of hatred and malice will have folded up and silently stolen away.

Next Sunday I am minded to preach on "The First Great Commandment" That is: "Love God". Let everybody attend come church next Sunday. God deserves our love and reverent worship will help us increase our love for Him.

SUN CARNIVAL PARADE ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

Applications of Southwest bands to enter the 13th annual Southwestern Sun Carnival are flooding into Carnival Headquarters in El Paso, Howard Slutes, executive manager of the carnival, said.

The bands will not only play in the mammoth Sun Carnival parade, scheduled for the morning of New Year's Day, but are also expected to play for special band programs, an innovation in the six-day celebration.

The Sun Carnival parade, planned earlier this year to take place on Dec. 31st, a day before the annual grid classic, has been changed to New Year's Day, the traditional time, so that more persons from outlying territory of the Southwest may view the spectacle.

A sensational display of fireworks will be fired high into the heavens from Mount Franklin on the night of Dec. 30th to sparkplug a hilarious downtown street dance and costume parade. Elliott Lawrence and his famous band have been booked for the New Year's Eve dance. A side of beef will be given away on New Year's Day to winner of a six day tan contest, and Mayor Dan Ponder, Marfa rancher, has promised to take a jump into the Rio, if the sun fails to shine for day of the annual grid classic.

Other events are in the process of being completed. Slutes said, with particular emphasis being given to coronation of the Sun Queen, Mexico Day on Dec. 28th; and a Southwest invitational tennis tournament, Wings over Jordan, famed Negro choir, will sing Dec. 28, and Donald Dickson, renown tenor, will appear with the El Paso Symphony Orchestra on Dec. 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Freeman of Las Alamos were here last Sunday. While here they attended the meeting of the Flying Farmers held at the Southern Pacific Hotel.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Farming in Hollywood

Dec. Martin's back from California! But when folks drop in to hear about glamorous Hollywood, all Dec can talk about is the Farmer's Market there—where stalls sell everything from meat and vegetables, to pottery and plows.

The man who runs it is mighty careful when he leaves the concessions to. He checks the quality of the merchandise from time to time, the appearance of the stalls, and any that fail to do the Market credit, are eliminated.

"That's really giving the public exactly what it wants!" says Dec. From where I sit, the Brewers deserve an equal bit of praise—for their program of "Self Regulation." They check on places selling beer, make sure they're a credit to the industry and the community... and see that offenders are sprung up or reported to the right authorities.

Like Dec, I'd say: That's really giving the public what it wants.
