Poultry Meeting

In a series of poultry meetings held at Corona, Nogal, and Glencoe, Mr. E. L. Anderson, Extension Poultry Specialist, urged poultrymen to plan to have their pullets into production by early September for the greatest profit from egg production. A 21 year summary of the prices of eggs compiled by the New Mexico A. M. College shows that egg prices are always highest from September through January.

During the meetings Mr. Anderson pointed out that while most hatcheries were reliable, generally speaking, it was better to secure baby chicks from hatcheries operating under the National Poultry Improvement Plan. This means that all chicks sold meet federal inspection requirements.

Diseases, feeding, housing, and other poultry problems were also discussed at the meetings. A list of hatcheries, and bulletins pertaining to the poultry industry may be obtained from the county agent's office.

Ace Hooper

Mr. Ace Hooper, well known in Carrizozo and vicinity passed away in Plainview Texas. Mr. Hooper was a brother-in-law of Messrs. John W. Harkey Carrizozo and C. C. Harkey of Silver City, who attended the funeral services.

Cattle Growers Convention

Thomas E. Wilson, Chairman of the Board of Wilson and Company, Chicago, will appear as one of the principal speakers during the 38rd Annual Convention of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association at Albuquerque, March 10 and 11, according to George A. Godfrey, Animas, President.

Wilson has been a leader in the meat packing industry of the nation for the past thirty years and is recognized as one of the foremost authorities in the nation on agriculture and meat production, Godfrey said. He has served as Chairman of the National Live Stock and Meat Board and President of the American Meat Institute.

Wilson owns the huge HOK ranch at Cuchillo in Sierra county where he spends considerable time during vacation periods. He is well known among livestock producers of the state.

Advance hotel reservations already made at Albuquerque during convention dates indicate that more than 2500 state cattlemen plan to attend the annual round-up, Godfrey said. Because of the extreme concern of livestock producers throughout the southwest over the threat of Hoof and Mouth disease, the meeting is expected to be the most important in history of the industry in New Mexico.

Ammie R. Elkins son of Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Elkins, box 467, enlisted for Army Air Forces.

Bill Guilles son of Mrs. Yesabel Guilles box 385, enlisted Army unassigned.

Capitan Player In Starting Line-Up

Adding injury to insult, the recent disastrous three-game road trip into Arizona sent the University of New Mexico cagers home with Quentin Underwood, first string guard out of this weekend's play with a knee injury.

The injury came at Flagstaff, in the first of three games whose loss tumbled the Lobos from second place into a tie for third on the Border Conference.

Replacing Underwood in the lineup against West Texas State Teachers in a game in Carlsbad gym here Friday night will be Ergeal Brown, a fast improving freshman guard from Capitan.

Injury to Bill Townsend, other half of the fast-stepping Lobo guard team, gave Merle Korte, freshman guard from Tilton, Iowa, a chance to show well against Arizona, according to Coach Woody Clements. Townsend's injury will not keep him out of action entirely in the games against West Texas and Texas Tech, Clements believes, but the hard-driving Korte is expected to spend two busy evenings taking some of the load off the Huntington, Calif., ballhawk.

Starting for Friday night's game will probably be Kay Hafen and L. C. Cozzens at forwards, Brown and Townsend at guards, and Ned Wallace at center.

I. O. O. F., Rebekah Social

A large crowd of Oddfellows Rebekahs their families and friends gathered last Saturday for the social.

The evening was spent at games and dancing. Music was furnished by Messrs. Joe Morgan and Orville Luttrell.

Refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee were served. The committee was Messrs. V. O. Elkins, R. C. Withers and Friday Sherrill.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sproles was released from the Turner hospital the first of the week.

Highway 54 Association Meeting

State Commander American Legion Pays Visits Here

Last night a large crowd of American Legion members, Veterans of Foreign Wars and ex-service men attended the regular meeting of the American Legion at which State Commander, Reed Mulkey and State Adjutant Charles H. Restow were official visitors.

A number of important questions were answered by the State officials in their addresses to the assembly.

A social hour followed at which refreshments were served by members of the Auxillary.

Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor

A bright little girl who had been to Sunday School that morning but was anxious to get at her play after lunch was asked by her father just what she had learned at Sunday School that day. She answered, "Well, our teacher told us a lot about God and about Jesus and about the Bible but there would be no use of my repeating it to you for you couldn't understand it any how." Probably she should have said wouldn't understand it.

When I was a pastor in El Paso some years ago a certain lawyer wrote me a letter in which he said that he never went to church but that he had his intelligence insulted. I believe that Jesus answered all their questions and every good minister tries not to insult any man's intelligence. Don't ask the aggie teacher. He might be prejudiced but come to church next Sunday.

Sermon Topic: "How Much Then Is a Man Better Than a Sheep?" Mat. 12:12 A special invitation is extended to all the males of the flock. Thank you Men.

Shaw-Holland

Mr. William C. Shaw of Capitan and Miss Mary E. Holland of Hollywood, N. Mex. were united in marriage of the Baptist parsonage, Saturday morning February the 8th. Rev. O. L. Oldham performed the ring ceremony.

The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and a few close friends.

Internal Revenue Collectors to be Here

The Internal Revenue Service will have two deputy collectors in Carrizozo at the Courthouse on February 19, to assist taxpayers in filing their 1946 income tax returns. All persons who have had gross income of $500 or more are required to file returns. Persons who have worked for wages and have had tax withheld should file regardless of the amount of income. The original withholding receipts from employers should be secured before the return is filed.

Thomas J. Spiller of the Sandia Lumber Company in Albuquerque visited his mother and sister Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickels and Mrs. Lela Spiller last week-end.

The meeting of the National Highway 54 Association will convene in Alamogordo today for a two day business session. Representatives from Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico will be in attendance.

A Santa Fe Trailways bus will leave Wichita, Kansas and pick up delegates in each city along the route. There were a number of private cars and an estimated 150 interested people came thru here yesterday. They passed under the large sign "Welcome to Carrizozo Highway 54 Boosters", erected by the Business Men's Club. The group was scheduled to make a rest stop here but they went on through.

Carrizozo's delegation headed by New Mexico's Highway 54 Association President, Dr. J. P. Turner will attend the business sessions today and Saturday. Mr. J. H. Fulmer President of Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce will attend.

This meeting will be attended by representatives from practically every city and town along Highway 54 from Wichita, Kansas to El Paso, Texas and all are working towards the 'black-topping finish' of this important avenue, which upon completion will provide the shortest all weather route from coast to coast.

Sanders Electric

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Sanders came up from Alamogordo last Monday and plan to reside in Carrizozo.

Mr. Sanders is an electrician and is at present affiliated with the Gillis Electric and Appliance Company of Alamogordo. House wiring, fire ure installation, trouble shooting and electrical contracting are his specialties.

Mr. J. E. Nelson was a business visitor from Nogal last Monday and reported a slight snow fall in that region over the week-end.

GRANTLAND

WHEN billions, not mere millions, begin to pour into sport, you have a sure sign that the danger spot is ahead. Record-breaking crowds in college football have been a big factor in college professionalism, which has reached an all-time high. The tidal wave of gold, coming with a record boom also has broken all betting marks in both college and professional sport.

The wonder is that more scandals haven't crashed the headlines. This will happen unless sport in general gets stronger guard-railings than it has drawn to date—with harsher penalties attached.

Just as pro football was coming to the finish of one of its greatest years, the Giant scandal developed and members of the Cleveland Browns, facing a championship play-off, got involved in a drunken brawl with police. In both New York and Cleveland, police were kept busy with pro football players for various reasons.

Merel Hayes was barred from the Giant-Bear game and Capt. Jim Daniels of the Browns was barred from the Brown-Yankee contest in Cleveland.

Rumors are not always true—but they at least demand closer watching than many of them have drawn. In the reign of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, I happen to know that the old Judge was not only respected but also actually feared by anyone even lightly involved. I don't think anyone in sport today is afraid in any way of anyone directing sport.

Too Much Temptation

The Judge suspended Buck Weaver for life because Weaver, who hadn't taken a dime, had failed to report the fact that I met them at some race track. They were afraid the judge might hear about it.

Any ball player caught playing around with a bookmaker or any type of gambler would have been up before the judge for rugged punishment in a rush.

Sport, financially, has gotten too big. Too much money is involved. Discipline has gone haywire. There has been too much temptation for the weak to resist, knowing the golden doubloons that are rolling around.

Too many, high in sport, have been asleep too long. The receipts have been too good. The dream has been too pleasant. They have refused to heed "the rumble of a distant drum."

The great majority of athletes are honest. Yet too many are undisciplined and too many out of condition. We have no sympathy for grown athletes who say they have been tricked or fooled by gamblers.

Any athlete, who after the first suggestion of a crooked proposition doesn't go directly to his coach, has no place in any game. It may come to the point that any athlete under any form of suspicion may have to be watched. Certainly any jockey, football, baseball or basketball player, to mention only a few entries, seen in company with any gambler needs watching.

Only a Few Crooks

As some philosopher once said "Rubes can think up more crooked things than crooks can invent."

In my opinion the great bulk of sport is clean. But among so many involved, there are sure to be a few who are either crooked or weak. And it takes only a few of these to upset the works. This is why the game today, college and pro, needs eternal vigilance and harsher penalties.

The average person you meet will tell you that college football players should be paid, considering the big money college athletes associations take in. This may be O. K. but don't call them amateurs. For they are not. They are only fake professionals.

I recall some years ago running across Dixie Dean when Ole Dix looked worried.

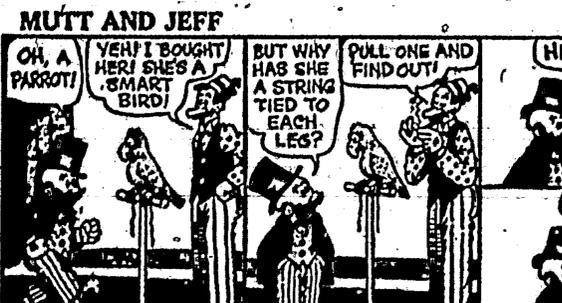

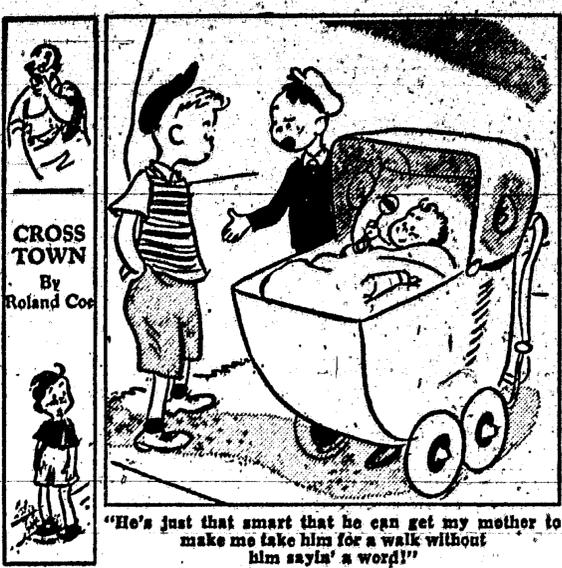

"I've just been called before Judge Landis," he said. "I haven't been doing anything. But I'm still scared."

That's the type of rulership sport needs today—an iron hand plus every known way of finding out what is going on. To take anything for granted is the surest way of wading into heavy trouble.

The Babe Still Tops

When Babe Ruth entered a New York hospital some time ago, an entire nation was shocked to hear that he was seriously ill. News of his recovery has lifted the pall.

In his day and time, the Babe has signed more autographs than any other member of the human race. No one can say how many thousands of baseballs he has signed. Babe lost count years ago. He was so popular that he had to seek some form of self-protection.

Would Risk It

The smiling, confident young man entered a New York bank. He stepped up to the manager's desk. "Good day, sir," he announced. "Has your bank ever been of a highly intelligent, college-trained man?"

The manager poised a pencil over a form. "Your name?"

"Gradwell Lasserman."

"Experience?"

"Just out of college."

"What kind of a position are you seeking?" asked the manager.

"Well," mused the young man, "I want something in the executive line. A vice-presidency, for example."

The manager put down his pencil. "I'm really very sorry," he said, sarcastically, "but we have twelve vice-presidents."

The young man waved a hand. "Oh, that's all right," he stated, happily. "I'm not superstitious!"

The Broadway Express

The Stage Door: Craig Reynolds, first actor to enlist (and the first to get hit with a Purple Heart), gets so few roles these days he has to take odd jobs to balance the budget. Salaries are rolling back. The $300 a week comedians again are being offered $200, instead of the wartime bribe paychecks—and accepting them. . . . Profit on "The Jolson Story" now is figured "in excess of five million bucks." . . . The dog in "Lovely Me" has been ordered to move from his boarding house because he comes in too late (after curtain time) and wakes up the other dogs. . . . The role of the fencing champ (he appears only in the first act) of "Cyrano" is so strenuous he has to alternate with another. . . . And you have troubles? Two days after Helen Walker's producer announced she would dance "for the first time" in her next role, she was badly fractured in a crash.

Midtown Vignette: Norman Cordon is the 6'4" basso of the Met. He is also the top male singer in the revived "Street Scene." . . . Norman believes in direct action. . . . He was dining in a midtown spot when a clunk at the next table splattered FDR and boosted Hitler. . . . Cordon went over, grabbed the nuisance in his arms, carried him to the street and dumped him into the gutter, saying: "You're spoiling my dinner, Adol!"

The Press Box: Georgia offered a striking illustration of the methods used by Fascists to take advantage of confusion and strong-arm their way to power—completely disregarding the laws. Governor Arnall, deserves support for refusing to be pushed around by the Tammany hoodlums. The actions of those muscle-men gave America a chilling example of fascism in action. . . . A Bavaria gazette observed so many generals and admirals are getting top jobs, Washington is no place for a felt hat. . . . After giving the news from Dixie the once-over, you'd never think the Emancipation Proclamation was signed 84 years ago. . . . The Jersey Journal solved the mystery of the "J. S." on the new FDR dime after checking with the government. They do not stand for Joe Stalin. They are the initials of John Sinnock, chief of the Philly mint.

Character Study: He under pays his help but overtips the waiter. . . . He takes cabs to avoid subway crowds but wrestles through choked theater lobbies for a few puffs on a ciggie. . . . He greets every corse line in a show with a censorious comment but thinks a guy is a celebrity when he has more wifely than children.

The Late Watch: Those stratosphere salaries paid H'wood stars are coming down fast. Drop in box office receipts, curtailed production, etc., have studios pruning costly player rosters. Many stars, however, are willing to take a shave. Supply and demand, you know. . . . Sonora will market 20 million new black label platters at 39 cents retail. That's 20 to 40 p.c. under current market and is the first price break in this field since Dec. 7, 1941. . . . Tropical Park track reports attendance was up 50,000 but the "take" is down 10 per cent. . . . The police have notified all night clubs they must be closed and empty at 4 a. m. This is very funny considering most joints are empty much earlier.

New York Novelette: Justin McCarthy, the young lone-wolf stick-up feel (who was collar'd recently), is well known to Broadway habitués. . . . He sold several of them plenty of "shares" in an electronic and helicopter firm which flopped. . . . Most of his suckers are no little milked with Justin because "he didn't at least apologize" with some of the loot he got away with—sticking up night club patrons in their cars—as they waited for lights to change. . . . He almost talked a famed radio star into starting a manufacturing company with him. . . . One of his stock victims was ready to tell the gendarmes about him six months ago (which would have ended his career of crime before it started), but Justin talked him out of it. . . . The irony of it: Had he gone to the boss, then the form would have been short. Now he may spend his life in jail.

Treman's admiration for Sec'y of State Marshall amounts to hero worship. He is said to have referred to Marshall as "the greatest living American." . . . Alan Ladd doesn't know when he's a wall off; just bought a coast night club. . . . Despite the slump everywhere, gambling houses across the river report a 15 per cent uptake. . . . Bookies are blowing their tops because too many females are coming into their racket. . . . Mrs. FDR shaking hands with a passerby admiral near the Sherry-Retherland hotel.

Woman's World

Add Gay, Fresh Dashes of Color By Fashioning Own Lampshades

By Eritta Haley

If you've had your heat on just long enough to notice the permanent film of soot that has gathered over many of your furnishings, then it's time to freshen up the house. Some special offenders frequently are the lampshades.

No homemaker, whether she is fastidious or just plain neat, ever will permit a soiled lampshade in her home. Naturally there are some which simply will not respond to cleaning after a certain stage has been reached, or they have become so faded and weary that nothing short of drastic means will solve the problem.

Making lampshades at home is really a simple problem. You have the frame, and the rest is just a matter of choosing the right fabric for your room, and fitting it. Now, don't let this last be your stumbling block, because it's really easier than fitting a dress. You can pick up the lampshade and just go at it easily, using your pins generously to tack the new lampshade on, and then stitching it on.

And, of course, you always can use paper or fabric and paste this on over the lampshade you now have on the frame, and it's as easy as doing up paper dolls. The main requisite is keeping the work mathematically precise in measurements, and then, using your neatest technique in pasting or sewing after fitting.

Wrapping or Wallpaper May Be Used for Covering

We have all at one time or another run into wrapping papers or wallpapers which we thought would be the perfect choice for a lampshade, but somehow we never were quite able to figure out how to put them to use. Here's a foolproof plan for making these shades fit.

To make a pattern for the shade, lay some large pieces of brown wrapping paper or newspaper on the floor. Paint the edges of the lamp frame white, and while the paint is still wet, roll the frame across the newspaper.

Make certain that you turn the shade evenly, particularly if the shade is not round. The wet paint leaves a mark on the paper that can be used as a guide for cutting either paper or material lampshade.

Cut the pattern as soon as the paint dries, leaving enough at the edge so that the shade cover can be joined properly. The paper shade then may be attached to the frame and held with paper clips while you stitch the top and the bottom by overcasting or by sewing on a braiding.

Never throw away the top or bottom rings from old shades as these can be used to make fabric shades.

If you want to make a pleated paper shade, this will have to be cut in a circular shape before pleating. Fitting properly in this case is of the utmost importance. Here again, use the pattern trick described above and make sure the pattern fits before you actually cut the shade itself.

By making your own lampshades.

Fabric-Lined Shades Require Different Technique

Fabric shades should be stretched tight on the frame you use for them, but before you actually place the fabric on the frame, you must

Flannel Dress

This dress and jacket costume by a New York designer uses pink flannel for the dress with a simply styled high neck and short sleeves and a stitched yoke effect on the bodice. It is belted in the same pink and black wool used for the jacket printed with Peruvian charms.

wind seam binding or a bias of the same fabric as the shade around the wires of the frame.

Another decision you must make before actually covering with fabric and cutting the shade is whether or not you want the edges finished with a double fold, decorative ribbon, fringe or braid. This will make a difference in the size of the shade itself, and you may not have fabric to waste in trimming off later.

Always assemble everything before you start to work, as the job requires concentration, and you cannot stop and look for something when you are trying to do a good job of fitting.

Fabric shades may be lined or unlined depending upon the kind of material used. If you stretch the fabric to the shade, it must always be lined. Select the lining fabric carefully as this is right next to the light, which will give any fabric a rosy glow.

As you stretch the fabric over the shade pin it carefully to both top and bottom. Make certain the fabric really stretches and use a bias cut. Pin and re-pin the shade several times until you are certain that the fabric lays smooth as silk on the frame. Then overcast the fabric to the frame as you would with a paper shade and trim as desired.

For lampshades with petticoat ruffles, use any of the dainty organdies or various printed fabrics. These in many cases may be unlined, but it's a good idea to test the fabric against the light so you will know what to expect when you have the shade made.

The ruffle which you are using must be cut three times as large as the circumference around the shade. Pleat or gather this and join the ends.

Heavier fabrics such as drapery and alpcover material also may be used for lampshades, but these are best made like the paper shades, more tailored and trim. Do not attempt to put ruffles on them.

Trim Your Fabrics

If you're doing some trimming about the household, you'd be surprised how easy it is when you have the know-how. In making pompons for hats or dresses or other purposes, use embroidery twist (thread), novelty knitting thread or yarn. Cut two circles on cardboard with a hole in the center of each. Thread needle and pass around the holes and around cardboard until a thick layer is formed all the way around. The thicker the layer, the fluffier the pompon. Cut the thread between the two cardboard, remove them, holding threads firmly in the center and tie a thread to secure them at that point. Clip edges of thread.

To make fringe, buy it by the yard or ravel threads from the material you are using. Cover the top of the fringe with tiny braiding or overcast it. Then comb to make it straight.

Fashion Flashes

You may have your gloves long or short depending upon your preference. Gauntlets with wide cuffs are especially smart for suits. Gay little shorties as well as all lengths of the longer gloves are used for formal wear. Some of them may even be the fingerless mitts which haven't been seen since ladies used fans exclusively.

Sandals of transparent plastic look especially lovely with a gracefully draped lame gown. If you're very feminine, wreath yourself in white silk marquisette with a modified hoop skirt and even a bustle. If you're dramatic and very smart, choose a simpler gown in a stunning color that gives you long, flowing lines.

SEWING CIRCLE PATTERNS

Films Grossing Millions

Since the production of the film "The Birth of a Nation" in 1914, the U. S. motion picture industry has made more than 33 other films which have grossed or are expected to gross more than $4,000,000 in domestic rentals; and 27 of these pictures were released in the past five years.

THROW AWAY HARSH LAXATIVES!

Millions Have Ended Constipation with Healthful Fresh Fruit Drink

Don't form the habit of depending on harsh, griping laxatives until you've tried this easy, healthful way millions now use to keep regular.

It's fresh lemon juice and water taken first thing in the morning—just as soon as you get up, the juice of one Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water. Taken thus, on an empty stomach, it stimulates normal bowel action, day after day, for most people.

And lemons are actively good for you. They're among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply vitamins B<sub>1</sub> and P, aid digestion and help alkalize the system.

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

Mrs. Lester Greer of Fort Star-ton was a business visitor in Alamogordo and Carrizozo last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Frye and baby have returned from Alamogordo after a three weeks stay.

To keep pace with the growth of the Mountain States, we increased our forces by 3800 in 1946. Today 16,000 telephone men and women are at work in the Mountain States area, more than twice the number in 1940. We needed more people because of the tremendous demand for telephone service. Over $20,000,000 was spent for gross additions in 1946, and in the next few years estimated requirements total some $110,000,000 more. The additional money needed to provide service improvements cannot come from "war profits" because we made none. It must come from the savings of people who naturally want a safe investment.

Change in Sugar Ration

Spare stamp 58, currently valid for five pounds of sugar, will expire March 31 instead of April 30, Frederic A. Adams, OPA regional sugar executive, announced. The new stamp, valid on April 1, will be for ten pounds of sugar instead of the usual five.

"It is necessary to make it clear to housewives that the ten-pound stamps will include their canning ration," Mr. Adams said.
"Beginning with the April 1 stamp, all sugar stamps from then on will be for ten pounds. There will be no special canning sugar stamps issued this year."

Mr. Adams pointed out that the change in rationing was necessary to avoid the printing of new ration books. He stated that there were only four stamps left in Ration Book Four after spare stamp 58 is used. The four remaining stamps, at the rate of five pounds each, are not adequate to provide consumers with their proper ration. The stamp value, therefore, has been doubled to avoid the substantial expense

The Livestock Situation

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards February 10, 1947 — Cattle trading continued to show a rather slow listless tone this week, with any change in prices on the shady side but the hog market exhibited independent strength. All grades and classes of cattle moved slowly during the first half of the trading period, reflecting the drugginess in retail trade but with considerable shrinkage in supplies in late sessions the market showed a tendency toward firmness and the final week-end clearance was better than for two or three weeks, which may pave the way for some reaction in prices in the near future if receipts continue to run within light to moderate limits.

Top for the week was $23.75 on a load of good to near choice 1265 lb. heaves. Anther town of around 1100 lb. weights took second money, $23.50. Other than these two loads there was little in the steer line to command better than $22 and a spread of $19 to $21.50 covered most transactions in the fed steer line. Some plainer kinds sold at $17 to $18.50 and a few common Mexicans down to $16 and under. Very few cows landed above $14.50 while a spread of $11.50 to $14 took bulk of the medium to low good types of cows. Most fairly bred kinds sold at $12.50 and below. Quite a few common cows earned $10 to $11 while extra bulked at $9 to $9.75. Canners bid mostly to a range of $7.50 to $8.50, a few shelly sorts down to $7 and below. A few best fat heifers sold at $19 to $20, with medium kinds downward to $16 and below. The edge was off the bull market and most sales were 50 or more under recent high marks. Good beef bull sold largely at $16 to $16.50 with most sausage grades going at $13 to $15.50, a few common kinds down to $11 and below. Light receipts limited trading in replacement stock but with little fresh change in prices. Calf supplies were sharply curtailed and the market showed a slightly firmer tone with sales of best offering up to $20 to $21.

The hog market showed considerable activity and prices advanced 50c to 75c over the previous week's close, choice butchers rising to $25.50 with most of the crop selling at $24 to $25, a sprinkling of heavies down to $23 and below. Sows cleared at $17.50 to $20 and a few feeder pigs found outlet at $23 to $28.

Sheep and lambs were scarce and values were nominally steady. One deck of 84 lb. Nevada lambs sold at $22 but choice grade woolskins were quotable to $23 or better.

Mr. W. C. Hendren and Dr. L. E. Johnson of the U. S. Marine Hospital at Fort Stanton were in town on Tuesday.

No Price Increase

Nicholas Dreystadt, general manager of Chevrolet Motor Division General Motors Corporation, flatly denied the statement appearing in a Detroit afternoon newspaper that Chevrolet prices are to be increased. "The story in the Detroit newspaper stating that Chevrolet prices are to be raised is absolutely erroneous." He also stressed the fact that Chevrolet's prices, as compared with 1941, had risen a relatively modest amount a percentage less than any other manufacturer in the low price field.

Check for $981,660,783

On rural routes everywhere in America, on snowy highways of the north, on sunny by-ways of the south, live the 6,500,000 ranch and farm families who produce America's supply of food. It's a big supply, too, the greatest in the world. From your farms and ranches in 1946 came livestock, dairy and poultry products and crops to the value of about twenty-three billion dollars, according to the latest available government estimates. Meat animals and dairy and poultry products accounted for about 60 percent of the total farm cash income, current estimates reveal. Agriculture, the nation's most essential industry, is "big business" in every corner of the phrase.

Of all your cash income last year, $981,660,783 came from Swift & Company in payments for livestock and other agricultural raw materials. We purchased your livestock and other products and converted them into millions of pounds of quality meats, valuable by-products, other foods and products. Part of the money you received from Swift came from our meat packing plants, dairy and poultry plants and buying stations. Another portion of the money paid out by us was for soybeans, cottonseed, peanuts and other raw materials.

Swift provides a wide, ready, year 'round market for your livestock and other products—and out of every dollar we receive in a year from sales, we return, on the average, 75¢ to you. Last year, 1.3¢ out of each dollar of sales was profit. Part of this amount was paid out as dividends to the 63,365 shareholders as a return on their investment. Part was retained in the business for future needs.

Returns for Savings. It is not the investment of a few rich people that has built Swift & Company, but the pooled savings of 63,365 people. Among them you'll find farmers, ranchers, lawyers, doctors, mechanics, business people—folks from every walk of life... including 20,941 women.

The savings these shareholders have invested in Swift & Company provide the plants and facilities—the tools with which we handle your products. The return for their thriftiness comes to them as dividends paid out of the company's profit. In 1946 that dividend amounted to $1.00 a share.

Soda Mill Sex... What's wrong with people is not their ignorance, but the number of things they know that aren't so.

For People... By People

We at Swift & Company think of our business as being owned by 63,365 people, the shareholders and their families, and operated by 60,000 employees. We provide essential services for agricultural producers and many other large groups of people. Employment is created for other thousands who work for railroads, trucking firms, livestock commission houses, stockyards companies, and the suppliers who furnish us salt, sugar, boxes, barrels, machinery and a thousand-and-one other things. A part of the business of thousands upon thousands of retailers everywhere in the nation is in purveying Swift's quality meats and other products to millions of American families.

In return for all the effort that made these services possible, the folks who work for Swift earned $104,919,000 in wages and salaries in 1946. This sum is 8.7% of the total remaining after all bills except taxes were paid, and is ten times more than the company's total net profit.

FEED VALUES ARE SOIL VALUES
by Wm. A. Albrecht
University of Missouri

Recently a farmer friend of mine told me, "I've moved to another farm where I get bigger yields in all my feed crops. But even though I shovel much more corn and pitch a lot more hay, I can't get my calves to market as early. I'm just not growing as much meat per acre."

This man doesn't realize that feed bulk is no indication of feed value. Livestock will not gain more on larger rations unless the feed value of any crop is derived from the basic plant food elements found in the soil. The crop must first build up the woody structure that makes up its bulk. Then, if soil conditions are right, the plant will store up a supply of the raw materials of protein, vitamins, and mineral compounds. Thus, whether a crop offers anything more than bulk and fattening power depends on the condition of the soil on which it grows. Livestock may be fed great quantities of feedstuffs produced on poor soils and still fail to gain weight. It is soil that has been guarded against erosion, fertilized properly, and carefully managed, that grows nutritious crops. Such soil will produce crops that give better feeding results and make more meat per acre.

"WHERE DID THAT $1,303,364,155 GO?"

During 1946 Swift & Company received $1,303,364,155 from the sale of its products and by-products. By the end of the year the Company had earned a net profit of $16,394,739, which is slightly less than 1.3¢ on each dollar of sales.

What happened to the rest of that money?

Well, the largest part was paid to farmers and ranchers who sold us livestock and other agricultural products. They got $981,660,783 or 75¢ out of the average sales dollar we received for products sold, including all by-products such as hides, wool, soybean meal, etc.

The next largest portion of our sales dollar went to all Swift employees. Their share of the dollar was 12.6¢.

Fuel, paper, salt, sugar and other supplies took 4.8¢ out of the average dollar.

Transportation took 2¢ (Most travels, on the average, over 1,000 miles from producer to consumer.)

Taxes took another 1¢. All other expenses, including depreciation, interest and miscellaneous business costs, amounted to 3.3¢.

All these costs taken out of the sales dollar left 1.3¢. This was Swift & Company's net profit in 1946—a profit of only 1/4¢ on each pound of the millions of pounds of products and by-products handled.

Uncle Sam Says

One of my nephews, Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury Edward H. Foley, made a few remarks the other day which are worth the attention and action of all my other nephews and nieces. In talking about buying Savings Bonds through the payroll savings plan, he said: "Workers are doing themselves a favor when they increase their take-home savings. The man who has saved up a reserve has a sense of security which the man who lives from hand to mouth can never know. He gets more out of life. He can take today as it comes, rather than spend it worrying about tomorrow." The same reasoning applies not only to Americans on somebody's payroll but to the millions of men and women who earn their living as doctors, lawyers and independent business men who can arrange for regular purchases of Savings Bonds at their banks.

But ladies and gentlemen, there will simply have to be more irrigation projects to populate these wide open New Mexico deserts.

Some guy, Rear Admiral Clyde W. Smith (USN Retired) looked around for a postwar business. He finally went into the soft drink manufacturing business. All these could be made here in New Mexico with very small capital—nuff sed for you GI boys who are hunting new business.

Monopolistic Practices
Threaten Free Economy

FOLLOWING closely upon the heels of a house sub-committee report concerning the evils of monopoly and concentrated economic power, President Truman, in his message to the State of the Union to the 80th congress, held the correction of these evils in our system of free enterprise as second only in importance to curbing the power of labor unions.

Soon after the senate reconvened, Senator Wayne Morse (Rep., Ore.) introduced his "anti-monopoly act of 1947" making it unlawful for business firms to form a monopoly and prohibiting them from joining international cartels and providing a $3,000,000 annual appropriation for the justice department to enforce provisions of the proposed law. Senator Morse was joined in introduction of the measure by Aiken (Rep., Vt.); Langer (Rep., N. D.); Young (Rep., N. D.); Murray (Dem., Mont.); Kilgore (Dem., W. Va.) and Taylor (Dem., Ida.).

Some provisions of the bill would eliminate discriminatory freight rates by directing the Interstate Commerce commission to prepare uniform class rates for railroad transportation; authorizing the justice department to participate in patent suits and prohibit patent licensing agreements which limit production or control prices; authorizing the Federal Loan administration to make long term capital loans at low interest to small and competitive business enterprises with emphasis on guaranteed loans handled through private banks; more adequate enforcement of the Sherman and Clayton acts, and amendments making officers and directors of corporations violating the acts liable to penalties; authorizing the Federal Trade commission to act as master in chancery in any anti-trust proceeding and to bring findings of fact and recommendations to the court; directing the President to review the operations of regulatory agencies.

A Losing Battle

Recently your Home Town Reporter discussed the report of the house small business committee showing how ineffective had been the fight against trusts and monopolies during the past 50 years, and how this concentration of economic power had grown to effectively shut out competition.

President Truman, although aware of the conservative trend of the present congress, did not hesitate to back up this house committee report and, indeed, of a prior finding of fact by a committee known as the temporary national economic committee. Said the President:

"The second major policy I desire to lay before you has to do with the growing concentration of economic power and the threat to free competition in private enterprise . . . to strengthen and enforce the laws that regular business practices is not enough. Enforcement must be supplemented by positive measures of aid to new enterprises. Government assistance, research, programs and credit powers should be designed and used to promote the growth of new firms and new industries . . . we also should give special attention to the decentralization of industry and the development of areas now under-industrialized."

Expect Little Action

Although this question of eradication of monopoly and concentration of economic power is considered by economists as ranking high in importance if the American capitalistic and free competitive enterprise system is to survive, there is grave doubt if this congress will take any action, either upon the President's suggestion or the bill which Senator Morse and his colleagues have introduced. It may be remembered that Senator Morse introduced this same bill in the 76th congress and it ran up against a stone wall of opposition. If possible, the present congress is more conservative, more inclined to let business alone than even the last congress, and although the anti-trust division of the justice department and the restraint of trade suits may be pressed by this and other agencies, there simply are insufficient funds and personnel to carry through on any well organized program. It not backed by further action from congress.

After reaffirming his belief in capitalism, Senator Morse declared:

"However, I refuse to blind myself to the fact that private property economy does not entitle great combinations to a license to make unreasonable profits and exercise unreasonable controls over the public at the expense of the rank and file of the American people. I refuse to ignore the fact that if we are to maintain this private property economy then the individual citizen who wishes to exercise economic initiative must be able to do it in a free competitive system."

THE GEORGIA MESS

WASHINGTON—It was carefully hushed up at the time, but the political mess in Georgia, might have been avoided if the justice department had gone ahead with a secret probe it conducted of the Talmadge election.

Last fall, the justice department had FBI men making a thorough check of Talmadge intimidation and racial discrimination at the polls. This, under recent supreme court rulings, now is the direct concern of the federal government and can be prosecuted as a criminal offense.

The FBI investigation showed that Talmadge had sent instructions to the Georgia primary polls aimed at preventing Negroes from voting. Although the evidence was conclusive, the justice department finally got cold feet. The case was dropped.

One obstacle the justice department ran up against was the fact that Eugene Talmadge was sick and they couldn't get to him for interrogation. Also son Herman Talmadge outbluffed the justice boys and refused to answer questions unless a stenographer was present.

Final factor, however, was the fear that federal government intervention in Georgia would boom-erang, hurting the very same liberal forces the justice department wanted to help.

MARSHALL'S WAR LEAK

One of the most significant things to watch regarding the state department under General Marshall will be whether he continues Jimmie Byrnes' policy of open diplomacy.

No secretary of state since Charles Evans Hughes has been as frank with the press as Byrnes. Hughes handled all press conferences himself, was a master at giving important background information, was generally frank and forthright. Byrnes, while not handling many conferences himself, went further than Hughes in making sure that a competent state department official gave newsmen a general picture of what was happening inside diplomatic negotiations.

Byrnes also didn't object to most news leaks; felt the American people had the right to know about foreign policy.

However, some of those allegedly close to General Marshall say he may tighten up on the Byrnes policy and crack down on news leaks. This, of course, may be unfair to the new secretary of state; for, based on his own past record, Marshall has been quite a "leaker" himself. In fact, one cable seized from the files of the German foreign office now reveals that General Marshall was woefully indiscreet in the early stages of the European war and inadvertently let out important secrets to the enemy.

AIDS TAX EVADERS

Some of the nation's biggest black-marketeers and on-the-make war contractors are getting away with income tax evasion, thanks to a snarled-up situation inside the justice department.

Around 300 criminal income tax cases are awaiting prosecution, with little chance of rapid action. Needed them is another 1,200 income tax fraud cases in the treasury, soon ready for transmission to the bottlenecked justice department. Meanwhile, the black-marketeers and certain war contractors have been getting away with murder.

CHURCH AND LABOR

It hasn't been announced officially, but prominent church leaders are beginning an important behind-the-scenes study in connection with the government's efforts to maintain industrial peace. There have been several private meetings recently at which both Protestant and Catholic clergymen sat down and traded ideas with industrial and labor spokesmen on the question of labor relations.

While the churchmen deny that they are endeavoring to make religion a "bargaining factor" in the settlement of labor disputes, they feel that the church should play a definite part in improving work and pay standards. They also believe it is the duty of the church to inject a "greater sense of moral responsibility and understanding" in bargaining between employers and employees.

'CAPITAL CHAFF'

Washington's poorest guesser is the Pentagon official who transferred General Marshall from a plush suite of offices at the Pentagon to a small, two-deck room just four days before the general was named secretary of state. . . . Henry Wallace has jacked the New Republic's circulation up from 40,000 to 100,000 weekly in one month. . . . Harold Smith, former director of the budget, may replace Jack Hinson as assistant secretary general of the United Nations.

Murder in Plain Sight by GERALD S. BROWN

Duke McCale, private detective, is investigating the murder of Curt Vallancourt, who was about to marry Veronica Bigelow, heiress to thirty million dollars. McCale trades information with police Lieutenant Doolley, and learns that Veronica is the one the police suspect. The other members of the family all have alibis, but none of them is above suspicion. This includes Veronica's mother, Sybil, her sister and brother, Victoria and Stephen, and Stephen's wife, Sharon. Shari Lynn, former wife of Vallancourt, may also be involved. McCale and his assistant, Rocky, head to the park for the murder weapon. They have reason to believe that the gun will be found in the old garage.

CHAPTER X

In silence, they climbed the rise of ground where the old World War cannon stood. It was Rocky who pushed his longer arm into its barrel, groping, grunting. He withdrew it finally, growling his disappointment. "No soap, Duke," he said. "I touched bottom. Nothing there but a handful of leaves." McCale was puzzled. "Leaves at the bottom of that shaft? Nonsense. Let's see." He snapped the button on his flashlight. In the round yellow circle of light, he examined the "leaves." Rocky held in his hand. An exclamation of surprise escaped his lips. "The handful of 'leaves,' tangled, wet, was obviously a woman's red-haired wig.

Shari Lynn was noticeably done in. She lolled on the divan in an almost unnatural attitude. McCale thought for a fleeting moment that she had passed out or was dead. "Oh," she said, "it's you." "The door was ajar," he offered, and knew that instant that she had been expecting a visitor. She swung herself off the divan abruptly at that and staggered to her feet. She looked at him, her eyes snaky and vicious. "Get out of here before I call the desk and have you thrown out. I've got nothing more to say to you—or your friend, the lieutenant, either." He fished out a cigarette and said over the flame of his lighter, "So you told them your little story?" She smiled like a contemptuous cat. "Sure. I told it."

"Why? Would you rather have waited until morning to put the finger on Veronica Bigelow?" She laughed a high-pitched witch's laugh.

"You're a rat-trap." "Maybe. Just thought I'd ask." She pivoted slowly, and there was uneasiness under her bravado. "Listen, mister. Just what is it you want with me?" "I only want to ask you a question or two and give you some advice." "Look here," he said. "I know it was you who ran away from the Vallancourt murder. You were the only woman who ran over the hill. I know, because I was at an upstairs window, and if there had been two women, I would have seen them both." "You know a lot," she said sullenly, "but you can't prove it." "I'm on my way to." "Oh, yeah? Well, nuts to you. My story is still good. Besides, the woman had red hair. If you saw her, you'd know that." "Granted." "Well, then?" "Well—then," he drew the red wig down on the table between them. She gasped. "Where'd you get that?"

Shari Gets a Warning

"In the cannon where you hid it. Now get this straight. Any cop or judge or lawyer is going to know after I produce this wig that your story is phoney. You should have taken more pains with it if you wanted your story to stick. You're in a jam, lady. I think you're going to be in a worse one. You're making a little gamble on your own, somewhere along the line and I think you'd better tell me what it is." Her eyes narrowed, Tartar-like, for a brief instant. "I'll give you five minutes. Think it over." He went over to the desk, holding out his wrist as if timing her by his watch. It was five minutes of two. While he waited, his eyes roved cynically over the pictures of Shari Lynn's boy friends. There was a sailor and a petty officer, a jockey, a tall, unhappy-looking marine, an army lieutenant, and—McCale suppressed a smile—an acrobat in white tights. There were several others, proving that, besides her catholic taste, Shari was evidently attracted by anything in uniform. There was no picture of Curt Vallancourt. McCale wondered at that. At two o'clock, he turned to her again. She surprised him by beginning to talk almost immediately. She had found the wig at Vallancourt's apartment, days before. He had some woman who came there to see him, someone disguised as Veronica. She sensed she was a woman. She didn't know, hadn't the slightest idea who could have been checking up on him. No, whoever was watching evidently had to think that only Veronica went there. It was hardly rational, because you'd think the only person to whom it would matter would be Veronica herself. Lately the woman hadn't come any more. Hence the wig which she had found. "Didn't Vallancourt confide in you at all?" McCale asked. "No. Why should he?" "I've played with the idea that you were once his wife." A secret look behind the mascara told him he was right, but she said nothing. He got up, reaching for his hat on a nearby chair. At the door, he turned, his dark-eyed face all sharp points and edges in the light. "You're in a bad spot," he tried to control the hardness in his voice. "I'd lock the door if I were you." He saw fear burning bright in her eyes. "Is that the advice you were going to give me?" "Yes," he said. He became deadly serious. Somehow he had to get through to her. He slipped a business card from his wallet and placed it on a nearby table. "If you're frightened or just want to talk," he said, "call me at the number on that card. You really ing in looking more like one of the Furies. His musing swiftly encompassed the whole lot of them, the Bigelows en masse. With the possible exception of Miss Adelaide, they were unreal, without authenticity. He watched Victoria with a bored expression as she fingered a book on the desk, examined the Lester Varga painting of a Nubian woman which hung over a bookcase to see if it was an original. "It's late," he said, breaking the silence. "You came to see me about something. It must be important for you to call at this hour. I hate to hurry you, but if you've satisfied your curiosity, perhaps you'll tell me what this is all about." She turned abruptly and came over to him. "I want you to do something for me."

"What can I do for you?" His voice was urgent and exasperated. "Well"—she fumbled for a phrase—"you'll probably have an opportunity to go through Curt Vallancourt's things, won't you?" He looked up, pursing his lips. "We-e-h." Better not tell her the cupboard was bare. "There is something of mine—that is, Curt had some letters that belong to me. I thought—" "That I might take them out from under the eyes of the police? I'm afraid I wouldn't have the chance. By this time, the place has been gone over with a vacuum cleaner." "But they wouldn't just be in any ordinary place. I'm sure he had a hiding place somewhere in that apartment. A wall safe or—something." "I doubt it. It seems perfectly obvious that you have already looked in every available place."

"Why I—" "Tut, tut. Your intonation gave you away."

"My, you're clever, aren't you?" "Let us say—well-trained. You visited Vallancourt often?" "No, I—well, that is, I went there once in a while for cocktails, with a few friends." She was on her guard now. "Often enough to look about for something that was mine."

"Vallancourt was hanging onto your correspondence." "Oh, no." "Then why didn't you just ask for it?" "I did, but he'd only laugh and say he'd give them all back when—" She caught herself. She bit her lower lip sullenly.

"When he was safely married to Veronica Bigelow, I'll wager." "You're quite the Sherlock, aren't you, mister? Listen, can I or can I not buy your services? I want those letters. Do I get them?" She moved closer to him and stared him in the face boldly, a viperish intensity in her eyes. For a moment, McCale gazed deeply into her vicious little soul. "Not from me." His voice was as cold as steel.

He turned away from her with a brusqueness intended to convey that he was through with their little interview. He spoke quietly. "I'm sorry. I wish you'd take my word for it that there are none of your letters at the Vallancourt apartment. No letters of any kind, in fact." She eyed him narrowly. "You've been there already." He nodded. "Thanks, but I don't believe you."

"All right," he went on wearily, "don't believe me. But I assure you, there is nothing there. There's not a wall safe or a sliding panel in the whole shebang."

"The police—" "I hardly think so. I was there before they arrived." She seemed suddenly drained of vitality. There was a thwarted look on her face. "So that's that."

A Parting Shot Startles McCale

"Oh, my God! What a stink they will make strewn all over the front pages of some slimy paper. It'd take more than the Bigelow money to—" "I don't mean that." "Oh!" The echo of it hung in the air. She gazed at him once more as if to reassure herself of his honesty. His inscrutability seemed to have baffled her. "We shall see what we shall see," she said finally, a note of derision and forced facetiousness in her tone. He followed her to the door, watching her down the stairs. At the turn, she looked back at him. She stopped, waiting a moment until he became aware that she intended to explode a farwell bombshell. "If they don't turn up, Sherlock, I'll go to Shari Lynn for them, what?" She laughed knowingly as she continued down. McCale shook his head in utter weariness as he went back in. He was sure the interview had been a fiasco. At least his share of it. Things were piling up too quickly, too fast, one conclusion contradicting another.

Rocky pushed his arm into the barrel, groping.

should talk, you know. I mean more than you've talked so far. I know you're holding back something important—something that is dangerous to someone. I think you're planning to sell that information. A little blackmail, maybe. But let me warn you, you are dealing with a cold-blooded murderer. You're in danger, Miss Lynn. "You know that."

She laughed loudly, hysterically. "You fool," she screamed. "You think you know a lot. Well, what do you know? Just a lot of bunk I told you. You think you can scare me into admitting something. I can take care of myself. What're you trying to do? Get out! Get out!" His last look showed her ahen and distraught. She was stretched on theavenport, hair disheveled, mouth lax, deep circles under the horrible eyes.

"That's how she'll be when she's old," McCale thought as he reached the pavement. He walked slowly down Tremont street, gulping deep breaths of wet air.

Victoria Bigelow Seeks Her Letters

The buzzer sounded in the outer office. McCale looked at his watch. It was three in the morning. He walked quickly to the door, pressing the button that released the lock in the vestibule. He opened the office door, looked out into the hall, and wondered who could be calling at that hour. Sharp heel clicks told him it was a woman coming up the stairs. The head and shoulders, then the figure of a girl auburn in furs, with a cowl concealing most of her face, rose out of the stairwell.

She saw him, hurried forward with a short laugh and stepped inside hurriedly. She pushed back the cowl of her Persian lamb coat and he saw the black hair and Beardsley face of Victoria Bigelow.

She perched herself on the corner of the desk, loosening her coat and swinging one leg. "I could stand a drink. You might be that hospitable."

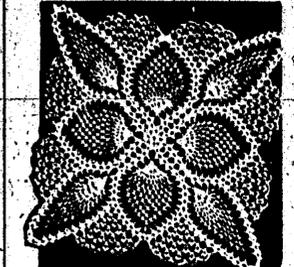

Silently he poured her a whisky and soda from the cabinet. He still looked at her with hardly concealed hostility in his glance.

"About my being followed here," she said, sipping her drink, "have no fear. The police didn't even put a man on the house. Old unimpeachable family stuff."

"You can't be sure."

"Sure enough," she shrugged the suggestion away. She slipped off the desk with a languorous movement, meant to be provocative, McCale supposed. Scrutinizing her closely, he was aware of the complete artificiality of her make-up. She had tried to effect an exotic appearance, in the manner of the cinema, but succeed-

On the Grassed Side of the Fence

A Bank is only as prosperous as its customers; its customers only as prosperous as the manner in which they utilize their resources. To our Ranchmen Customers, we are on the grassed side of the fence, on the productive side. Over here there is a heavy, vigorous growth of grass made possible by proper grazing management. In the good seasons, we graze more livestock than during poor seasons; we adjust our stocking according to the amount of grass available. We always leave sufficient grass on the ground to carry our stock over at least one season of drought, thus assuring us this cheap feed and protecting the density, vigor and vitality of the grass. In this way we are enabled to market our grass as pounds of meat and wool at a neat profit every year.

We trust that we are not on opposite sides of the fence. Your bank is staying on the Productive side.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

A Definition of Our Town

Somebody defined our town just the other day as "A place where the people talk about you behind your back, and come to wait on you when you're sick."

I've got to admit there's something to it. A lot of our folks are inclined to be pretty outspoken and quick to criticize. . . . even about little things, like a woman's hat, or a man's preference for a glass of beer, or the color of Cy Hartman's new barn.

But when anyone's in trouble, these differences and points of criticism are forgotten . . . and folks become neighborly and helpful, like they really are.

From where I sit, criticism never did much harm to anybody, so long as folks don't let it guide their actions . . . so long as they respect our individual preferences, whether they apply to hats or beer. That's the way it is in our town, anyway, and I hope that it's the same in yours.
