CORONA NEWS

The High School Operetta, "The Ghosts of Hilo," under the direction of Mrs. L. Parker, was presented Saturday night, March 15th. It was a fine performance. There were beautiful costumes and lovely songs and music. We think this Operetta was something out of the ordinary for a community of this size.

The Federation Women's Club met again for their regular meeting last week. Mrs. L. Parker gave a review of the book called "The Robe." From the interest shown and the comments made all around the Review must have been wonderful. It was reported that music by Mrs. Ayres was also much enjoyed by all. We are sorry we were not able to be present.

Mr. Dale Jamison has moved to Corona and has taken Mr. Bill Bagley's place as manager of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Jamison and his family have moved in the new residence recently constructed and owned by M. Joe Willingham.

The American Legion Auxiliary are giving a card party March 29 at 8:00 P.M. at the Gym. The admission will be 25 and 35 cents.

The four Scout Troops here at Corona are sponsoring a clean up campaign. They plan to clean up the city dump and remove and bury a part of the accumulated garbage and trash along the highway.

The Girl Scouts celebrated their 35th birthday last week by entertaining the Boy Scouts at a skating party. They had a large cake with G. S. and 35 outlined on it. The Brownies entertained their Mothers the same evening. They served delicious and attractive refreshments and all enjoyed the occasion.

Rev. E. J. Hollis, and about fifteen other people from the Corona Baptist Church, attended services at the Progresso Mission Point in Torrance County last Sunday afternoon.

The Corona Junior and Senior Chorus are planning something extra special for Easter Sunday. There were 107 people out for Sunday School, Sunday Morning. Last Easter there were about 175 out for church. We expect an even larger number this year.

Corona School has a good picture show and assembly program every Monday. This week the Brownie and Cub Scouts put on the program. Next Monday the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts will present the program. We know these programs are "super." Parents and visitors are welcome.

Mr. Louis Babb and family, who recently moved here from Hondo, have leased the Mulkey Machine Shop. Mr. Babb is a good blacksmith and can fix farm machinery, sharpen plows, or shoe a horse. Corona is fortunate in having almost every kind of business a small town needs.

Woman's Club Notice

The Carrizozo Woman's Club will meet Friday March 21st at the Club house.

Mrs. Ben S. Burns
Press Reporter

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Norman returned from San Diego last Saturday where they attended the funeral of their sister Mrs. Mary Forsyth.

William H. Martin

The hand of death was again felt at Fort Stanton with the demise of the Venerable William H. Martin, Protestant Chaplain at the U. S. Marine Hospital and Episcopal Archdeacon of New Mexico.

The beloved cleric had not been well for some time and became very ill about ten days before his death. His passing was peaceful. Up to the very last he kept his sense of humor for which he was noted. He will be missed by a host of friends from all walks of life.

The Rev. J. Harvey of Roswell officiated at the simple funeral services held at the Chapel of Our Redeemer, Fort Stanton. Mrs. W. C. Hendren played muted music both before and during the ceremony.

The chancel of the little chapel was banked with the floral offerings sent by his numerous friends, some of whom could not find room in the building to hear the service.

The funeral cortege journeyed to the cemetery at Lincoln where the members of the Ancient Free and Accepted Mason Lodge No. 41 of Carrizozo took charge. The Ven. W. H. Martin was a life member and Past Master of Frontier Lodge No. 48 of Stillwater, Oklahoma.

The pallbearers were C. A. Boyd, James H. Howard, Bar R. S. McClain, W. C. Hendren, A. S. Lowery of Fort Stanton and Dan Giles of Lincoln.

The veteran clergyman is survived by his widow Ruth Penfield Martin, his son, C. Wayne Martin of Canyon Texas, two brothers Charles L. of Fredonia, Kansas and George F. of Arkansas.

Funeral arrangements were under the direction of T. E. Kelley of Carrizozo.

E. N. M. C. Summer School

Summer school plans at Eastern New Mexico college have been completed and the eight week session begins on May 26, according to Dr. H. C. Gossard, dean of the college.

The summer school faculty is complete with 27 members and the summer curricula will include 75 courses in all schools and divisions of the college.

The college's largest summer school enrollment is expected because of the large number of veterans desiring to continue during the summer and the need for teachers to renew certificates.

Work is also being offered for the beginning freshman who desires to start his higher educational training this summer.

With registration on May 26, classes begin on the twenty-seventh and the session closes on July 18.

Along with regular classes a number of conferences will be arranged and special entertainment features will be presented. Administrators of public schools have a conference late in the summer, the Parent-Teacher association will have a session, and a special institute on professional and public relations problems for public school is being arranged.

Democrats To Meet In Capitan

There will be a meeting of the Lincoln County Democratic Central Committee at Capitan on Saturday March 22 at 2 p.m.

Lincoln County Rifle and Pistol Club Organized

Last Sunday afternoon at the Burton Hardware Store the local gun club was formed and named the Lincoln County Rifle and Pistol Club.

Mr. Marvin Burton was elected president, Mark Sloan vice-president, Charles Hodgins Sec. Treas., Vernon Petty, Chief instructor with Orville Luttrell and Bill Cathy as assistant instructors.

There are 20 members at present but the charter will be held open until the next meeting which will be held on Sunday March 30th.

Training Cruise

A two week training cruise during which either a Mexican or Canadian port will be visited will be conducted for Naval Reserves by the Eleventh Naval District from May 4th to 11th, Captain S. G. Hooper, USN, District Director of Naval Reserve has announced. Ten officers, six chief petty officers and 145 will be carried. The USS John A. Bole, modern destroyer, has been designated to carry the Reserves.

Members of both the inactive and organized components of the Reserve are eligible for the cruise. They will be furnished with transportation between their homes and the port of embarkation, will receive half a month's pay, and will be provided with necessary uniforms and bedding. Application forms may be obtained from the office of the District Director of Naval Reserve and must be returned not later than April 14th.

The Bole cruise second to be conducted by the Eleventh Naval District, will be the first of a continuous series of Reserve training cruises sailing from San Diego every other Sunday until the end of the year. Battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers and amphibious vessels will be employed.

Baptist Church

Rev. O. L. Oldham, Pastor

We are expecting Reverend Charles Ashcraft of Albuquerque, who is now superintendent of the Baptist Brotherhood of New Mexico. The Rev. Ashcraft served as chaplain in the last war. Also we are expecting Mr. Jimmy Ward, secretary of the Royal Ambassadors of New Mexico. These men to be with our church here in Carrizozo the 26, 27, 28th of this month. Our women of the W.M.U. are planning for a supper and social hour, Wednesday evening the 26th beginning 6:30, for all the men and boys of our Sunday School and Church and for others who will come. There will be a brief program with talks by the men mentioned above and visitors from Tinnie, Ruidosa and Capitan.

Among those who attended the Singing convention at Tinnie last Sunday were Rev. and Mrs. O. L. Oldham, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Tom, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Carl Mr. and Mrs. Pat Withers, Mrs. R. C. Withers and Mrs. Mae Jordan.

Mrs. Julia Sherrill, Mrs. Emma Sherrill and E. W. Meyers were White Oaks visitors last Tuesday.

Methodist Church

F. J. Johnston, Pastor

A youngster who had the reputation of being quite opinionated when asked if there were other members in his family answered, "Yes, but I am the only one of much importance." As the family is a group in the plan of the Creator every member is of much importance. When we ministers knock at house doors we never get a more cordial welcome than when we come in the interests of the home. One of our visitors was met at the door by a teen-ager. On being asked if her mother and father were engaged answered, "O yes they've passed that stage long ago."

It seems so tragically strange in this Christian county that so many parents are otherwise engaged when the hour for Sunday School and Church Worship has arrived.

Soon it will be Easter. During the first Lent Jesus went down the via dolorosa for you and me and in the interests of our homes. Does it mean nothing to you, dear householder, in this year of our Lord?

Sermon Topic for next Sunday: "The Christian Family." Please come again, won't you.

I am setting Palm Sunday March 23rd for baptisms. Please come and bring your children. Watch for other announcements.

Barnum Greenwood

Funeral services were held March 7 from Immanuel Baptist Church of Duncan, Okla., for Barnum Greenwood, 80, who passed away at his home in Comanche, March 4.

He was born January 26, 1867 in Gilmer County Georgia, and came to Stephens County Okla., in 1925 settling east of Duncan. In 1930 he came to Corona, N. M. where he lived until he returned to Oklahoma for his health.

He is survived by his widow, six daughters, Mes. Raymond Perkins and Walter Bryan of Corona; N. E. Clark, Comanche; B. E. McIninch, and John L. Jackson, Duncan Okla.; M. A. Langetieg of Madison, Wis.; and one son, W. M. Greenwood of Duncan, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Bradley Moberly and small daughter of Pensacola, Fla., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Burnett and the H. W. Mac Millan family here.

Veteran News

A number of inquiries have been made concerning dividends on National Service Life Insurance. NSLI is mutual insurance and as such the dividends represent a premium adjustment rather than an "investment" return. As may be determined by the Administrator of Veteran Affairs, dividends will be payable on NSLI from gains and savings which arise in calculating premiums. If the mortality is less than was assumed, or if the interest earnings are higher, or both, gains and savings arise from which dividends are paid to the insured.

Hundreds of government checks for war veterans are returned to the Treasury Department each month because the veterans have failed to keep the Veterans Administration advised as to their correct addresses at all times. New postal regulations provide that the letter be returned if the addressee is not residing or receiving mail at the address given. Changes of addresses should not be sent to the Treasury Department. All such letters or notifications must be mailed the Veterans Administration, which authorizes the divisions of disbursement, Treasury Department, to make the change of address in all cases.

VA's vocational rehabilitation and education or vice reports that as of Aug. 31, 1946, there were 1,590,780 disabled veterans of World War II on VA claims rolls. While 160,712 or 9.5 percent of these veterans had entered training under Public Law 16, almost one third of the number had temporarily or permanently discontinued their training, leaving a total of 105,041 in training. The average age for the veterans in training was 26.8 years. Three-fourths of them were between 20 and 30 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Peebles of Nogal Mesa were business visitors here Wednesday.

TONY ZALE, middleweight ruler, starred in the best ring fight of 1946 with a dozen miles to spare. His hurricane meeting with Rocky Graziano happened to be one of those thrillers you won't see twice in a lifetime.

There was no other fight even close to this one. I can't recall any other fighter who ever showed more intentional fortitude than Zale showed that September night, when he came out of a foggy dreamland to knock out Graziano. It so happens that Zale is in the toughest division of them all. Among those after his middleweight crown you'll find Jake LaMotta, Marcel Cerdan, George Abrams, Charley Burley and one or two others—all tough. Graziano, the toughest of the lot, has had his license revoked in New York, but the National Boxing association has ruled that he can fight in any place under NBA's jurisdiction. This gives Rocky a lot of territory to swing his lethal fists in.

Zale had been away from ring action so long when he met Graziano that his handicap was known to be a heavy one. Various crowds had seen too many baseball and football players from the service show a startling lack of old-time form, including speed and timing. Zale had been away longer than most, close to four years.

So when Graziano knocked him down early in the fight and then had him dazed, bewildered and badly battered, his reign apparently was over. But Zale down the stretch proved several things. He proved that he was dead game and could take the hardest punch the hard-hitting Graziano could throw. He also proved that he had a punch of his own. He proved that he knew how to fight—and what to do in a storm.

Faces Tough Competition

With more time in which to get ready, it stands to reason that Zale should be a better fighter in 1947 than he was in 1946. His win over Graziano gave him greater confidence, for one thing. He is also sure to be in better all-around physical shape. Yet in this present middleweight outfit no one is safe. Tony is surrounded by a pretty rough crew, the best in any other weight division, and he will have to be better than good to keep his crown.

LaMotta is a rough and ready customer who won't be any soft mark. LaMotta is a hardy man to hurt and he also can hurt on his own. Cerdan made a promising debut over here and he should be better on his next visit, when he has a longer time to become acclimated and to get in better physical condition. There is no Stanley Ketchel, Harry Greb or Mickey Walker hanging around the premises, but there is more class in this section than the ring has known for many years. Just how the tangle will be unraveled is another guess. LaMotta must be given a chance and so must Cerdan if he can repeat his opening performance, or show improvement.

In addition to the leaders named, Jersey Jones still insists that his man Burley can slash his way through the entire list.

With the heavyweight bunch outside of Joe Louis, in such a sad state, it begins to look as if the middleweights must take over a big part of the show. But as good as many of his challengers are, they will find Zale none too easy to shove around.

Two West Coast Stars

The west coast is keeping an alert eye on the coming actions of its two favorite baseball sons. Their names are Joe DiMaggio of San Francisco and Ted Williams of San Diego, both reporting from the extensive domain of California.

DiMaggio, bothered by physical ailments, had an off-year. Regarded as one of the great outfielders of all time, a brilliant artist, fielding, hitting and throwing, Joe finished with the worst season he has known in big league baseball. He fell back with many other big league stars who had been in war service.

Williams, who looked as if he were on the verge of wrecking the entire American league without help up through mid-July, began to sild later and spent an unhappy fortnight during the 1946 World series. Despite this decline Williams batted well over .340, which left his all-time average still over .350.

Ulcers Stopped Joe

Anyway Joe and Ted were not what they had been in their former seasons. Only Dom DiMaggio came along to repair part of the damage, as far as California was concerned. Bobby Doerr and Johnny Pesky were two west coast features from further north. Joe DiMaggio wasn't feeling any too well when he reported for spring training. A few stomach ulcers didn't help him. After an early start at high speed, Joe began to fall away.

Highlights of New York:
The Main Stem's 75th anniversary blazes with beauty. Bulbs wink and blink like a million fireflies. The electrostatic signery flits, wiggles, dips handsprings and blows smoke rings. Rainbow-dipped hues gleam and glitter and coat the atmosphere with a fairyland of colors. Broadway wears its electric jewelry like a crown while it celebrates the nightly carnival.

The exciting pyrotechnics of sounds along Times Square. Loud-speakers outside music shops pin-wheeling the latest five-jamboree. Shouts of newboys roman-candling headlines mingle with the honking of horns and the shrieks of motorists when tempers explode in the traffic maze. The firecracker gab of sidewalk vendors and flea-circus barkers rocketing their shrill shrills. The bonfire of noise reaches its blazing peak at midnight when you can converse only by climbing to the top of your voice.

The metropolis is a jagged carpet of stone and steel from atop the Empire State edifice. Skyscraper peaks provide exclamation points for the poetry of the sprawling city's landscape. Winds sprint over buildings humming their natural lullabies. Ribbons of traffic below move with paralytic indecision, and humans are slow-motion dots along the streets. Distance transforms the turbulent roar of city life into whispered music.

St. Patrick's Cathedral occupies the throne of architectural majesty. Its spires resemble hands in prayer. Pigeons frolic on its manicured lawns and peck crumbs. Sunlight sprays the impressive interior with a lovely glow. Only the ripple of murmured prayers disturbs its hushed beauty. The cathedral is not just a place of worship—it stands as an imposing monument to dignity and peace.

When dusk settles over the town, a haphazard rash of lights zig-zag across the 50th St. skyline. The buildings are sprinkled with luminous confetti. This crazy pattern of magic lanterns inspires the imagination and defies the vocabulary. It etches a portrait that always will be displayed in memory's gallery of compelling views—castles-in-the-air that have come down to earth.

Central Park unveils its most exciting scenic magic at midnight. The string of streetlamps along its lanes adorns its dark beauty like a fabulous necklace. Skeletons of trees stripped of their leaves cast eerie shadows. Silence stands guard over the mysteries lurking in the darkness. Crisp winds roam through the park and juggle dead leaves as they continue their endless flight into nowhere.

The proud loveliness of La Liberty warmed by the soft fingers of sunshine. Breeces whisk broom the fields of her flowing gowns. The foghorns of passing ships offer their deep-throated salutes. America's most eloquent symbol—an old and always stirring sight. And when its massive torch is ignited—the Lady of Freedom becomes a visual hymn.

The waterfront is alive with activity. Grimy merchant ships wave white smoke handkerchiefs as they leave on their trans-Atlantic errands. Skills curtsy in the breeze. Ferries slowly shuttle to and fro like mechanical icebergs. An army of tugs patiently nudges a huge liner into port. The long arms of docks reach out to grasp cargoes being unloaded. Baby waves bruise themselves as they crash against the centipede legs of piers.

George Washington bridge spans the Hudson with a cobweb of steel. Cars whiz across—the fingers of the headlights poking holes in the surrounding darkness. On both sides the bridge is flanked by round-shouldered hills. And when it is splashed with moonlight—this engineering marvel becomes a scenic miracle.

Vth Avenue's fabulous shop windows. This is where imagination has a field day, and the resulting productions provide a holiday for the orbs. Goods are showcased with all the color and pomp of a coronation. Stroll along the spacious boulevard and you'll be gifted with a moving picture of a little perfumed world wrapped in silks and sables.

Wall Street during the early afternoon hours has its visual delights. Darkened skyscrapers whitewashed with moonlight stand like frozen ghosts. Grotesque shadows are scribbled across the streets. The narrow canyons are packed with roaring winds that provide the background music for a rhapsody of serenity. If you listen intently you can hear the footsteps of a policeman blocks away. An occasional light in a one-eyed man's eye appears like a bee-eyed monster.

Sulfur Omitted From Cattle Grub Powder Pyrophyllite, Tripoli Earth or Frianite Used

Here's something new on an old farm subject—cattle grub control. For years the livestock specialists have been recommending a combination of sulfur and derris powder for dusting on the backs of grubby cattle. Some of them still are recommending this combination, which had its origin in the U. S. bureau of entomology.

What's new? Well, the bureau revised the formula during the war. Derris powder is still in the formula (it contains rotenone, the grub killer).

Cattle grub will cause serious trouble if not properly controlled.

ing agent), but sulfur is out. Sulfur had no value as a grub killer—it served only as a diluent for derris, which contains the rotenone that does the job.

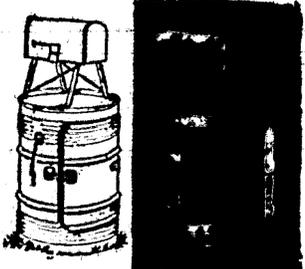

The bureau now recommends that the dust for grubs be made of one part derris (containing 5 per cent rotenone) and two parts of either tripoli earth, pyrophyllite or frianite.

The reason sulfur was taken out is that the sulfur particles become electrified when applied to the animal's back. As a result, they stick to the hair instead of settling down to the skin and into the grub holes. The new materials designated for mixing with derris do not have this drawback.

Packages placed in this old drum will remain dry until they are picked up.

Wins 'Ton of Gold' Award

Dinah Lady, winner of the "Ton of Gold" award.

Dinah Lady, 750-pound Jersey, owned by Walter Welkener, Jacksonville, Fla., recently announced as the "Ton of Gold" award winner of the American Cattle club, for having produced 3,121 pounds of butterfat in a 48-month period, during which time she produced four calves.

Welkener has been credited with maintaining as good a permanent pasture as can be found. In addition to grass, the cattle feed on lespedeza and Italian rye.

Molasses Fed Young Pigs for Fast Gain

Results of tests at Hawaii university show that a ration containing 20 per cent molasses proved economical for pigs from weaning to a weight of 70 pounds. Above 20 per cent, both the rate of gain and efficiency of feed utilization decreases markedly.

Work at Wisconsin showed that 18 per cent molasses was equal in value to corn on the basis of total digestible nutrient.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Full Length Coats Easily Made Into Fashion-Wise Shorties

By Etta Haley

Many-Purpose Suit

WHEN you can convert old coats into something fashionable and exceedingly wearable, it's like finding a bargain that you didn't expect. Yet, there are very few woollens that cannot be made fashionwise and practical.

Take an outmoded, full length spring coat which now looks shabby and extremely unwearable. This can be completely re-cut and made into one of the new coats with a full, rippling back, and full push-up sleeves, if you desire. Yes, even the lining, if it will still give wear, can be used for the new coat.

When you're making something new out of something old, always select a pattern that is simple. You will have to make the old fabric do, and there is usually not enough to plan on for lots of extra detail.

However, it is a matter of practical experiment that a full length coat, even though it has rather narrow shoulders and sleeves, can be made into a new shortie coat with fashion features such as the full back and new, wide sleeves.

But how is this done, you ask? Well, by clever piecing of courses. You may use a tweed coat, if you wish, but if you are still somewhat of an amateur in this business of sewing, I'd suggest working with a solid color that is easier to match in the intricate job of cutting and fitting together properly.

Preparation of Material Precedes Cutting

It's no fun working with a dusty piece of fabric. Do have it cleaned first, as this will make it easier to see just what you have for working. And another thing, if the old coat has faded, it's perfectly possible to have the material dyed either commercially or at home before you do any cutting at all.

Woollens dye nicely if you use a dye suitable for the material and work with the directions instead of against them. I can guarantee they will be soft and pliable to the touch.

If you have a light blue coat that has faded in spots, dye the whole thing a navy, which will cover faded portions. A yellow coat which looks rather soggy can be dyed with blue to give you one of the popular new greens. Brown dyed with red gives a lovely reddish brown, while an orange dyed with purple gives a nice rust shade.

After the material has dried, it should be pressed smooth just as would any other woollen garment. Use a damp cloth, and not too hot an iron and keep going over the damp cloth long enough to dry it out and make the wool smooth.

Recut and sew it into a fashionable one.

Hang for a few minutes to permit a thorough drying of the material.

If the wool has worn badly, plan to use the wrong side of the material as your right side: it will look more fresh and new.

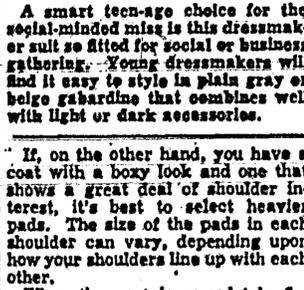

Finish Coat With Lining, Shoulder Pads

There are so many types of shoulder pads now available that it probably will not be necessary for you to make your own. However, you will want to select them with care. If your coat has a soft shoulder line, you will not want too large pads. Choose something that will make the coat look truly casual.

Fashion Flashes

A novel type of hat recently seen in the draped hat. This is carefully molded to the head and gives the wearer a rather sculptured look.

You'll be seeing lots of laces and chiffons used about the bodies and the necklines in the new fashions. Bertha yokes and shawls are being used for effect in many new collections.

A smart teen-age choice for the social-minded miss is this dressmaker suit so fitted for social or business gathering.

Young dressmakers will find it easy to style in plain gray or beige gabardine that combines well with light or dark accessories.

If, on the other hand, you have a coat with a boxy look and one that shows a great deal of shoulder interest, it's best to select heavier pads. The size of the pads in each shoulder can vary, depending upon how your shoulders line up with each other.

When the coat is completely finished it's ready for the lining, which should be of a smooth, closely woven material that wears well. The lining may have an extra fold at the back to give you a feeling of roominess.

The sewing on the lining is done much as that on a dress would be. The important thing is to cut it to fit and then sew the seams and slipstitch into place. The coat, naturally, is hemmed before the lining is added, as lining and coat are separate.

You can save yourself a lot of time in fitting the lining if the coat is turned inside out. Also, press the seams of the lining flat after you finish sewing it.

Pinning and basting will help you keep the lining in place while you do the slipstitching. Try the coat on after basting to see whether or not you feel comfortable in it. Move the arms about to make certain there is enough roominess.

Choosing Fabrics
If you've decided you want gathers in your next dress, here's the way to select a suitable fabric. Gather the material in your hands, as you would in gathering it, and see whether it lies in soft gathers or whether it juts out at angles.

If you want pleats in your next dress, you must look for a fabric that has a certain crispness or wiriness, or you will constantly have to press in your pleats. If you can crease the fabric and have the mark remain readily, you can be sure the material will pleat.

When you are making a woolen dress, always select a light weight wool. Heavier woollens are made only for suits or coats, and are somewhat difficult to work with.

If you've decided on ruffles galore, choose a fabric that has some crispness, like organdie, marquisette, etc. You'll also do wisely choosing a fabric that has a permanent finish.

For dresses with straight classic lines, choose a material that has some body, and one that will hang straight easily without too much tugging. Firmness of fabric is very important here.

For dresses with draped effects, choose a fabric that has softness but enough weight, and not too much stiffness.

For dresses that have a softness, choose fabrics that seem to mold themselves easily like rayon, crepe or silk.

The trim look is very evident in the new spring hats. You'll find small brims, cloches and other styles, but many of them look restrained.

Jackets on dresses and suits show a wide variety. There's everything from the neat and short bolero to the long outway types, and even tunic styles.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

A Great Bunch
—Those Ex-G.I.'s

Willie Wells and a bunch of the boys from our town went to Found Ridge Saturday to a reunion of their old regiment.
There were about two hundred and fifty boys who came from miles around to a good old feast in Farmer Collins' barn. I expect they seemed a lot different to each other out of uniform. But they had a great time, spinning yarns, drinking beer, and talking over the old times in South Africa and Italy and the Aleutians.
I went over to cover the meeting for the Clarion, and one thing that sure impressed me was the good behavior of those boys—their preference for a moderate beverage like beer—their friendly spirit.
From where I sit, our ex-G.I.'s are making as good a showing in peacetime as they made during the war. And they're setting a mighty good example to the rest of us—in tolerance, and moderation, and good fellowship.

Opposition to Federal Aid to States Rising

WHAT would your reaction be if congress should, in the interest of economy and of states' rights, immediately slash from the federal budget about one billion, 200 million dollars which is now being paid out to the states as grants-in-aid and in individual payments within the states?

The answer to this question will affect millions of persons in the home towns and rural communities of the nation. Your Home Town Reporter sees in this 80th congress a definite trend in opposition to these federal grants, either as direct payments or on a cooperative payment basis with the states.

In December of last year, the board of managers of the Council of State Governments, meeting in Miami, adopted a resolution declaring that most of the major functions of state governments such as highways, education, public health and public welfare "are supported to a large extent through the medium of grants-in-aid systems." The resolution deplored the "overlapping, duplication and confusion which not only results in waste of public funds, but also makes it extremely difficult for the states to establish and maintain a constructive and economical over-all budget system."

Within the past few weeks the Indiana general assembly adopted a concurrent resolution declaring, "Indiana needs no guardian and intends to have none... we have decided there is no such thing as federal aid. We propose henceforth to tax ourselves and to take care of ourselves. We are fed up with subsidies, dolars and paternalism. We are no one's stepchild. We have grown up. We serve notice that we will resist Washington, D. C., adopting us... we want government to come home."

Now whether by this resolution the State of Indiana gives notice that she will henceforth refuse to accept the millions of dollars annually sent into that state in federal aid, only time will tell.

Let States Pay Own Way

On the floor of the house, Congressman John W. Byrnes of Green Bay, Wis., serving his second term in congress, wants to see these federal aid projects returned to the states.

"When this is done," says Byrnes, "I personally am convinced the projects not only will be continued, but they will be continued in a more efficient and more economical manner." "The jurisdiction of the federal government should cease and these projects, at least some of them, should be controlled by the local units of government and financed by the local units of government."

Of course, that is a matter for conjecture as to whether local units or local legislatures would vote to tax themselves to raise the funds which now are going into these states in the nature of federal grants. For instance, here are only a few of them, in round figures, for fiscal year 1944:

Agricultural experiment stations, $7,000,000; agricultural extension work, $23,000,000; school milk and lunch program, $50,000,000; colleges for agriculture and mechanical arts, $5,000,000; cooperative vocational education, $20,000,000; grants for vocational rehabilitation, $10,000,000; public health service grants for general health, $28,000,000; old-age assistance, $39,000,000; aid to dependent children, $60,000,000; aid to blind, $11,000,000; unemployment compensation, $55,000,000; maternal and child health, $13,000,000; emergency grants for maternity and infant care, $30,000,000; regular grants, highway construction, $43,000,000; emergency grants for highway construction, $33,000,000; emergency grants to the bureau of community facilities under federal works, $33,000,000; public housing, $7,000,000.

AAA Payments, 356 Million

Here are some federal aid payments to individuals for the fiscal year 1944: Forest roads and trails, $7,000,000; agricultural adjustment act payments to farmers, $356,000,000; National Guard, $28,000,000; training of nurses, $37,000,000; and there were many other millions in other categories.

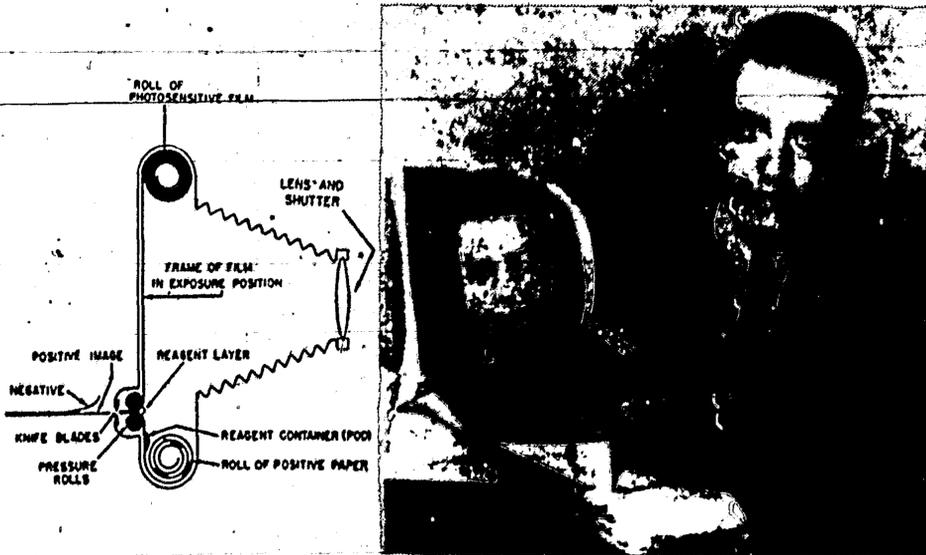

If these funds are suddenly cut off there would be a great set-back in the general welfare program developed over the last dozen years.

Congressman Byrnes declared that every single federal aid to states should be examined on these points: First—is it essential to the nation's welfare? Second—is it not historically and constitutionally a more proper function of state and local governments? Third—are not individual states better able to assume the entire responsibility for these activities?

The key in the statement is, of course, that some wealthy states may be able to take over responsibility and financing of these programs, but others are not.

VICTORY OVER DARKNESS... "Blind Activities and Recreation, Inc." is the name given to the group organized by Robert Anderson to aid the blind to find recreation in sports. Horseback riding, baseball, basketball, bowling are a few of the sports that Anderson and his friends have conquered. Even golf has its blind players. Above photos show the sightless, men in various sport activities and how they score with courage and ingenuity.

BARNYARD ART... Without professional instruction, Mrs. Lowell Murphy of Bethany, Mo., executed this eye-catching landscape painting on the big double doors of the Murphy barn. Many motorists passing the farm stop to admire the murals. She works with common house and barn paints mixed with oils. She has turned down many offers to paint professionally, deciding to continue work on their own farm.

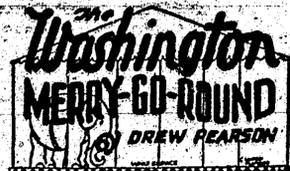

INHERIT BIG ESTATE... Gunner and Pat, Irish settlers, for whom most of the $20,000 estate of the late Carlton R. Bamberger, wealthy veteran attorney, was left in trust to a friend, Charles Connelly, Los Angeles painting contractor.

OFF TO ENGLAND... President Truman named Lewis W. Douglas, 52, above as U. S. ambassador to Great Britain. Douglas, former director of the budget, split with the New Deal over money control policies.

YOUNG HARVARD MAN... Following the tradition of his maternal ancestors, Joseph Curtis Beedle V, six-months-old, will be a Harvard man.

ERA OF FANTASY

WASHINGTON.—It is difficult for the average person to understand the amazing vistas opened up by science during World War II and realize that the unbelievable era of Buck Rogers fantasy is now actually here.

The most obvious development was the atomic bomb. Not as well known but perhaps even more fantastic are the numerous secrets of the earth which the bomb's invention also opened. For the past three years, for instance, geologic scientists have been working on a project for setting off a controlled chain reaction in the crust of the earth.

This project is described by scientists as a hydrogen-chain reaction, in which the hydrogen in the surface of the earth would be made to burn in a slow but continuous stream. Simultaneously, these scientists are reported to be preparing a means for speedily extinguishing, such blazes.

Fantastic as this may sound, it is only a small phase of the field which science opened up at a time when the government, in desperation and out of fear of what enemy scientists might be doing, gave American scientists full freedom to work.

An earth-crust chain reaction now is deemed a reasonable possibility and might mean the end for a country even as large as Russia. A chain reaction of this type could carry across mountains, through ice and snow, searing everything in its path with the relentless force of a gigantic, fire-burning steam roller.

American scientists warn that what they are working on also is being worked on by scientists all over the world. No nation has a monopoly on knowledge. What American science has is a head start and the "know-how."

DISLIKES MODERN ART

President Truman is strictly a conservative when it comes to modern art. "Ham and eggs" art he calls the paintings of the surrealists, the futurists and the cubists. The chief executive wants his art down-to-earth and easy to understand. He likes it to be beautiful, not shocking, and to represent something. Reporters saw an example of the art Mr. Truman loves recently, when he gave them a private showing of "The Peacemaker"—a painting by George Healy which the President had purchased for the White House for $10,000.

MARSHALL'S 'FILIBUSTER'

GOP congressmen are accusing General Marshall—half-jokingly—of being just as good at filibustering as Senator Bilbo. Members of the house foreign affairs committee say that in their closed-door session with the new secretary of state, he kept on talking until just before the bell rang calling congress into session. By that time there was no chance for them to fire any embarrassing questions.

Several Republican congressmen came to the secret committee session primed with questions on Palestine and Russia. However, Marshall, with one eye on the clock, gave a brilliant monologue on foreign affairs for more than an hour.

Marshall's monologue, however, gave a well-rounded picture of U. S. foreign policy. Here are the highlights:

RUSSIA—The Byrnes policy of being fair but firm with Russia will be continued. Marshall has given this policy careful study and is convinced Byrnes was right.

AUSTRIA—Will be the first treaty to be taken up in Moscow, largely because it is "in the nature of a liberated area."

GERMANY—Within three years the German people should become economically unified and self-sufficient, requiring no more loans or food from the U. S. A.

PALESTINE—The United States must be more cautious regarding Palestine now that Britain has agreed to lay this problem in the United Nations lap. Instead of giving advice regarding Palestine, the U. S. A. now will have to act.

EUROPEAN RELIEF—Food continues to be the greatest stabilizing influence in the world, and the United States must continue to feed the world—perhaps for some years to come.

CHINA—"I am somewhat disillusioned about the Chinese situation," Marshall commented. He spent more time on this subject than any other, remarking with a laugh that he felt more at home when talking about China. His off-the-record discussion, however, included little he had not already stated publicly.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Murder in Plain Sight by GERALD BROWN

Duke McCale, private detective, is investigating the murder of Curt Vallancourt, who was about to marry Veronica Bigelow, heiress to thirty million dollars...

CHAPTER XV

The case was beginning to irk him badly. Not only was he not making progress, he almost seemed to be going backwards.

"He came right out and admitted he was the one who was following Vallancourt around the last few days, however. Said he had the itch either to get his hands on him and tear him to pieces, or to get something on him that would influence Veronica."

"Very civilized. I knew all that." "Then why in the name of the Father and the Son did you give me that cryptic message just before you were blitzkrieged last night? Why did you want me to put a tail on him?"

"Because, my good friend, I began to suspect that the lad thinks a lot, that he has more than a glimmer as to what this mess is all about. I was sure that eventually his elephantine mind would hit on something important."

"Not a thing, unless you think Karen is the girl we're after. I've got a man on every last one of them now. She drew $300 from the bank this morning."

"The Murderer Must Be in the House!" "You don't know me. Besides, the lady I'm going to see is in a worse condition than yours truly. Someone tried to bump her off."

"Someone Strikes Down Sybil" At six o'clock Rocky came in from the bedroom where he had been getting some sleep. He pulled the curtains over the dark windows.

"What do you want there, boss?" "A list of the pictures over the desk in the living room. Just a description. There's one missing."

McCale was alone when the call came an hour later. He lifted the receiver with his good hand to hear the frightened voice of Adelaide Bigelow.

"Mr. McCale's residence?" In spite of the feverish anxiety in her tone, she clung to the formalities. "Right here, Miss Bigelow."

"Yes, but I'm quite all right. What is it?" He was urgent. "It's Sybil. She's been attacked. Right here in the house. I am frightened. What can it mean? I thought—"

"Not at all. Keep calm. I'm coming right over."

McCale unfolded a large black silk handkerchief.

the cold, dark February night and walked toward him. "That you, Mr. McCale?" "Yes, officer—or-hello, Humphrey. If I'd known it was you I'd have invited you inside long ago."

"Come on, Humph. You'll get a dusting from the lieutenant if you lose your quarry."

"No. Just over the hill, and I can't take you in. Too bad. The house is full of beautiful women."

Adelaide Bigelow seemed changed. Like the house, she was enveloped in tragedy. To be sure, tragedy had touched her life more than once in the last hours, had crouched on her own doorstep.

"Oh," she said, seeing him standing before her, noticing his arm in its hammock. "Your arm, I knew, of course, you were hurt, but—oh, I shouldn't have called you. Her voice was dull, hopeless."

"About five o'clock. She must have laid there a good hour." "Where?" "In the attic."

"What was she doing up there?" "I—I don't know. Putting some things away or—"

"Who found her?" It flashed through his mind that someone must have known where she was, would have had subtly to reveal her hiding place.

"She recovered her senses after—goodness knows how long. She walked downstairs by herself. Veronica found her pacing up and down the hall on the third floor, in a daze. She—she couldn't find her own room."

"What can we do, Mr. McCale?" He shrugged away the pity that flooded his mind. No time for sympathy. His business was not commiseration. His mouth was grim; his voice held no clemency, no hope.

"I want to see the attic." She rose obediently, mechanically. In the hall, she led the way, some of the granite in her taking possession again. She preceded him up the stairway, dead eyes straight, her fine-drawn lips set in a firm line.

Up the dark, heavily carpeted stairway of the brooding house they went, past the double doors of the drawing room where Karen still played her macabre music, up to the third floor, where a policeman sat dozing before the closed portal of Sybil's room where death was hovering, up the last flight, darker and narrower than the others, to the attic where murder had been—perhaps only delayed.

McCale dropped down beside the trunk, asking curtly. "The weapon?" "The police took it away—a chimney brick wrapped in a towel. The towel was from the third floor bathroom." Miss Adelaide's eyes avoided the blood on the floor.

"Yes," he said quietly. "It could only have been the murderer of Curt Vallancourt and Shari Lynn—the person who attempted to remove me from the world last night—here in this house. Surely you have known, have suspected, Miss Bigelow, that the murderer is either one of your family, or someone who goes and comes at will to and from this house."

A Black Handkerchief Intrigues McCale

She looked at him bleakly. He began to go through the contents of the trunk, swiftly, urgently. It was apparent that Sybil had stored her keepsakes there. Written labels were pinned to a number of articles. There was a girl's white dress with a card that read: "Victoria's graduation." Sybil's own wedding gown. Two envelopes contained locks of Stephen's and Victoria's childhood curls. There were several schoolbooks.

As he removed other souvenirs from the depths of their hiding place, a brand-new picture of Sybil flashed across his mind. She was revealed, not so much as the woman who clung so desperately to her fading youth, who made rapid, silly conversation, who bolstered her empty middle-age with sherry, but more as a doting mother secretly keeping alive the brighter moments of a not too easy life.

A puzzled look came over her face. She struggled with memory. "I don't know. I can't place that. Could it have been my brother's?" "I hardly think so."

'ANTI-RED' LITERATURE A NEW FIELD FOR CON MEN

CON men sell more gold bricks, bronze lions, city halls and Brooklyn bridges to certain types of big business executives than ever were purchased by rural visitors to metropolitan centers.

Methods of the con men change as changing conditions offer new opportunities. Some years ago I knew the head of a fairly large business who was victimized into signing a contract for the employment, as a business adviser, of the man who swindled him.

Today the business man fears—a well warranted fear—the spread of so-called Communism, the nationalization of business, in this country. Each one knows his own ideas offer the solution for the danger.

It creates a situation for the clever individual with a large vocabulary, who might, in the past, have been selling gold bricks or Brooklyn bridges. He interprets the ideas of the business executive, a group or class, into 10 words, and presents it in an attractively printed brochure. Those whose ideas that brochure expresses are solicited for liberal contributions to the cause of combating Communism in the United States.

For that contribution they receive a copy of that brochure which they can lay on their library table, and read to other business executive friends as expressing their ideas. In proportion to our 140 million population, the number of brochures printed and circulated is so small as to be entirely negligible, even if the content was of value in affecting the opinion of the masses who determine our form of government.

If you and I, as representing the masses, were shown how and why the American economic system, our free enterprise, benefits us—and it does—and be shown by those in whom we have confidence, we would be so sold on that system there would be no opportunity for the alien voice of Communism to make an impression. The masses, you and I, are interested in the how and why of free enterprise as it affects ourselves. We want to be told in ten cent words how we enjoy the benefits of our American way of life, what it does for us. It is we, the masses, who will determine what the future in America will be. We each have as much vote in determining the course of government as has each executive, and there are a thousand of us to each one executive.

Should those business executives who are buying gold bricks spend their effort and money in showing us, the masses, the how and why of our benefits from free enterprise, they would be accomplishing something of real value to the nation and to themselves. Selling themselves that of which they are fully convinced accomplishes nothing for anyone other than the promoters.

There was deep sorrow in California caused by the freezing of the citrus crops in Florida (?)

ACCORDING to Senator Byrd of Virginia, the bureaucrats are not growing less in number. They are just transferred from one bureau to another. What can we expect? If the boys and girls were let out they would have to work for a living, and then they would vote as they please.

Household Hints

If the collar of a man's shirt is badly worn, cut it off with a razor blade and use it for a pattern in cutting a new collar from the tail of the shirt.

Sweep up broken glass carefully and empty it into a tin can. Use a damp cloth or moist cotton to pick up the tiny slivers.

Wash nylons after every wearing, since perspiration is detrimental to the delicate fibers. It's a good idea to wash new nylons before you wear them.

Rubber heel marks may be removed from linoleum with a cloth moistened with turpentine.

If a shingle stain has been exposed to the weather for three or four years it can be safely painted. Earlier than that, there is a chance it will become discolored.

For removing rust from steel or iron, a combination of steel wool and kerosene is good, although considerable elbow grease certainly will be necessary.

Profits Fallacy

The profit incentive is widely misunderstood and maligned. Many folks talk about profits as though they were injurious. These folks indulge in side-glances, as if profits were a vicious imposition upon the people. Profits, to some who are misled or misinformed, have assumed a negative sound. The fallacy is that industry arrives at selling prices by piling onto production costs as much profit as the traffic will bear. This is not the way profits are calculated.

Sales prices on the tags are the prime consideration. In a free competitive market, the price tag is not marked according to preconceived notions of what the profit ought to be. Another fallacy, that free enterprise makes goods for profit rather than for use, comes to light here. The consumer is king in a free market; the price tag is slave to the demands of a price-conscious buying public. This is one gump in which the consumer takes the sweet stakes.

Efficiency Is King

You and I manufacture radios. We meet squarely in the market, where mine is priced at $100 and yours at $75. If the quality is the same, I must either lower my selling price to compete or give to the customer one-third greater value than you do. The lower the price and the more quality included, the better off each of us will be—saleswise. And the first one of us to achieve quantity sales, or real mass production, will be the first one to give the customer lower prices and better quality. Competition thus regulates the selling price regardless of my costs.

The cycle is just that simple. To keep factories running, the goal of our industries is to make a better product available to a larger number of people through mass production and lower selling costs. After deducting costs from the customer's price the result may or may not be a profit. When the margin is uncomfortably close, the next logical step will be toward more efficient production.

Efficiency of operation means to industry the ability to keep down costs of making and selling a product. The object is a favorable position on the open market. This means that factories must be busy constantly, taking up the unemployed, supplying products at lower costs to an ever increasing buying public. Not only idle men, but idle money, is called for to provide the tools to increase output.

The Public Profit

Winner of this game is the buying public. Because of the profit incentive and free competition, the public reaps huge dividends in the form of better merchandise at fair prices. To the average citizen of socialistic and totalitarian countries, where I have observed that these things are never duplicated, these simple facts seem an unattainable dream. What American would wish to exchange this system for methods that have never succeeded half so well?

Profit is no parasite feeding on our economic system. Profit is the life blood of the industrial and business enterprises responsible for the highest level of civilization the world has known: Freedom to compete against skill and efficiency by using better skill and more efficiency means a progressive civilization—not a static economy that either withers away or makes spoilage for the spoilers.

Uncle Sam Says

Have you stopped to consider that save-as-you-go is as important to you as the pay-as-you-go plan, which millions of my nieces and nephews are rediscovering this month as their best friend in meeting income obligations? When you are signed up on the payroll savings plan or have arranged with your bank for regular monthly purchases of U. S. Savings Bonds, you're on an automatic, easy save-as-you-go plan which will enable you to meet future personal and family obligations, or a business of your own, pay for a new home, travel or education for your children. As a good American, you are paying your income tax bill to your Uncle Sam to help pay for the war. As a good American, you also have the opportunity to turn the tables on your Uncle Sam by investing in U. S. Savings Bonds regularly, your Uncle Sam will pay you $1 for every $7 he has years.

Most home gardeners like to grow annual flowers. Coming quickly into bloom from seed sown each year, they are the easiest of all flowers to grow and bring a wide range of vivacious color for a long period.

Poppy and Bachelor button are two of the earliest. The low-growing edgers, sweet alyssum and candytuft, are also fairly quick to flower from seed. The lovely balsam, fragrant pinks, the graceful scabiosa, the hedge-forming four o' clocks, the colorful nasturtiums and petunias are next in line. Later come the tall cosmos, the beloved zinnias and the marigolds. Most annuals are so easy to grow that even children can raise them successfully. Special favorites for children's gardens and those of some grownups are feathered celosia, the seddy interesting cockscomb, and the gay woolflower.

One secret of growing near-perfect annuals is to use good seed and sow it thinly. In outdoor planting do not sow deeply but cover the seeds firmly so that they will make immediate contact with warm moist soil for speedy germination. When the seedlings appear, thin the plants so that the remaining ones will have plenty of space to spread and mature.

Most annual flowers are not particular about the kind of soil they grow in but they do like plenty of sunshine and air. Most annuals do not thrive in shady places.

In but they do like plenty of sunshine and air. Most annuals do not thrive in shady places.

In order to get the most bloom from annual flowers all through the season, they need a certain amount of attention. Petunia plants sometimes grow lanky and crowd their neighbors. Cut sprays of blossoms freely and arrange them for indoor enjoyment. The plants will recover quickly and bloom better than ever. Snip off the fading blossoms of zinnia, marigold, cosmos, and other annuals. If left to go to seed, they rob the plants of strength to develop new flowers. Keep the edging annuals, such as sweet alyssum and candytuft, from looking frowny by clipping off the tops with shears after they have bloomed. They will reward you by flowering again and looking pretty for a long season.
