Carrizozo Schools North Central Approved

Dr. E. H. Fixley, North Central Association representative in New Mexico has notified the school that it continues on the North Central list fully approved. There are now in New Mexico one hundred thirty four schools listed on the State accredited list, of this number there are forty schools that belong to the North Central Association, which is less than one third of the total high schools in the State. This is an achievement that every person living in this district should be proud. This accrediting gives graduates of this school entrance in any college in the United States. There are a number of high schools in the State that are much larger than do not have the distinction of being a member of the North Central Association.

Highway 54 Meeting

Mr. Roy E. Shafer, attended a Highway 54 meeting in Vaughn Tuesday of this week. Last week Federal Public Roads Bureau approved a contract for 12.5 miles on Highway 54 between Carrizozo and Tularosa. Armstrong & Armstrong of Roswell were low bidders in the amount of $374,085. The State will bear the total cost of four miles at $35,948 while the remaining eight and five tenths will be federal aid bituminous top, course surfacing and general construction.

Another road contract important to Lincoln County is a nine mile stretch on 380 between Carrizozo and San Antonio. All bids were rejected at the last contract letting because bids were considered too high by the Highway Commission.

Others on the program will be Mrs. Chancy Thomson, Mrs. E. T. Bond, Mrs. Cliff Switzer, and Mrs. Bill Keelin. The meeting place will be at the school lunch room. Not only members, but everyone is invited to attend these meetings.

Everyone in attendance returned with ample information and enthusiasm for summer camping.

Corona is building a cabin for their troops in Red Cloud Canyon. They hope to invite troops of surrounding towns to camp with them there. Many towns are sending their troops to Mary White Camp.

Rebekah President Visits Here

On Tuesday, April 29th. the Daughters of Rebekah gave a banquet at the Southern Pacific Hotel in Carrizozo, honoring the State President of the Rebekah Assembly, Mrs. Bernice Jewell of Tucumcari; past president, Mrs. Beattie Miller of Albuquerque and Mesdames Vessie Beever and Hattie Clark both of Santa Fe.

About fifty members and guests were present. The centerpiece for the tables were pink carnations and pink snapdragons. The guests were presented with white Carnation corsages. Place cards were hand made by Miss Betty Elkins, being small cards with the cores links neatly done in ink. All quoted the Lord's Prayer in unison before being seated. Between courses, short talks were made by Miss Margaret Lane, Miss Alma Lane, President Bernice Jewell, Miss Nina Norris and Mrs. Rachel West.

After the last course all joined in singing the Doxology after which the entire assemblage went to the Lodge Hall where the golf team demonstrated the beautiful floor work of the order, by initiating a member. The Lodge motto, F. L. T. (friendship, love and truth) drill was also given.

Following the regular meeting Lodge was dismissed in the usual manner, after which a pink and green May Pole was placed in the center of the room with members taking part in the May dance and Mrs. Jewell being crowned queen of the May, her crown was brought in on a satin pillow, followed by presentation of an elaborate pink and green basket which contained a chachalaine costume pin with pink settings.

Much praise was given Miss Alma Lane who directed the entire program.

Worthy Grand Matron Visits Here

Comet Chapter, No. 29 Order of Eastern Star, was honored on April 24, by the official visit of the Worthy Grand Matron of the O.E.S. of the State of New Mexico, Mrs. Vallie Sharpe.

A number of out of town visitors attended the occasion. Included in the Worthy Grand Matron's official family were Grand Representative from Mass Mrs. Ann Hunt; Grand Representative from New Jersey, Mrs. Jeanette Lemon; and Mrs. Gussie L. Titworth, Deputy District Instructor.

From Bethel Chapter, Tucumcari home Chapter of the Worthy Grand Matron came Mrs. Mildred Poppo, Worthy Matron, and others. Comet Chapter also had the pleasure of five visiting Past Matrons and four Patrons.

Mrs. Sharpe held a school of instruction in the afternoon and was formerly introduced to the Chapter at a banquet in the Southern Pacific Hotel covers were laid for about 75.

The Worthy Grand Matron's theme for the year being "Love and Service", and Tradition holding that the Rose is the flower of Love, her theme was presented throughout the evening by the lovely roses decorating the banquet tables, the Rose corsages worn by the officers and later the floral tributes in the Chapter room from the Rainbow Girls and from the Chapter.

Exemplification of the Eastern Star Ritualistic work was presented for the Worthy Grand Matron in an admirable manner. Initiated, were mother and daughter Mrs. Mary Barber and Ann Barber.

Husband and wife presided in the East, Worthy Matron, Clara Lowe; Worthy Patron, Otho Lowe.

The Worthy Grand Matron's address of the evening, "The Cross of Love", was a sincere appeal to let Love dominate lives here and abroad. In Mrs. Sharpe, we find a lovely, gracious person who exemplifies her life as well as does the Rose. After the recess of the Chapter, the Past Matrons served refreshments in the dining hall of the Masonic Temple.

Everyone enjoyed a delightful evening and felt that another milestone in Comet Chapter's history has been successfully completed.

The Sweeping Tides

by H.M. EGBERT W.N.U. SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page, another American, is his assistant. Madame Madeline Kinross, a young and pretty widow who owns the timberland on which Mark is operating, has requested that Mark cancel the lease. Mark has refused. Madame Kinross' lawyer, Hercules Broussac, has offered Mark $5,000 to give up the lease, but Mark has also turned this offer down. After a conference with Louis Larousse, the foreman, Mark gets lumbering operations running smoothly, although the French-Canadian workmen are suspicious and vaguely hostile. Then suddenly they demand double wages and threaten to strike if refused.

CHAPTER IV

If Broussac had paid them each fifty dollars, they would have thrown up five dollars a day, let alone two. His decision had been the one they wanted.

He had already received one package of bills from his bank in Quebec. Another was waiting for him at Alphonse Vitard's post office. And it was quite plain to Mark that Vitard had heard the news. There was a look of smug satisfaction on his face and there was the same furtive whispering in St. Victor.

Mark paid off his men late that afternoon. Some were still sullen, especially Larousse, some, strangely, even a little respectful.

"I'd like to get the hang of this thing," he told Nat. "Of course, we can float that lumber later in the year, but it means importing fresh labor, and the hire of two schooners twice over. We can stand it. I wonder if Broussac thought the loss would bankrupt us."

"I'd have paid them five dollars till we got that lumber through, and then fired the lot," said Nat.

"They'd have raised the ante to seven," said Mark grimly.

He went to bed in no very contented frame of mind. He had been counting on that lumber. Now it was likely to be touch and go unless he could raise a little more capital from his backers. Still, looking over the situation he didn't see what other course he could have taken.

He was half-dressed next morning when Nat came into his room. "Madame Kinross and Larousse are waiting to see you," he informed him, "and the cabins have been vacated."

"What?"

"Every living soul gone." In the office Madeline Kinross was waiting, Larousse standing behind her, cap in hand. The moment Mark entered, the girl burst out:

"I was ready to fight you in any fair way, Mr. Darrell, but I will not be a party to this. Nor Larousse. It was he came and told me last night."

"I am a poor man," shouted Larousse, beating his chest. "What can I do when I am offered a hundred dollars to strike?"

"Who offered you a hundred dollars?" asked Mark quietly.

"Alphonse Vitard, le maire!" shouted Larousse.

Mark breathed deeply. He had always suspected that the mayor, storekeeper and postmaster was acting as Broussac's chief agent.

"You know what has happened?" asked Madame Kinross.

"The men seem to have disappeared."

"Yes, they've all got homes in St. Victor. But they spent all the night emptying the kids. And the logs have jammed at the channel of the gorge, just above the dam. You're going to lose your lumber and your boom. And I say I will not be a party to this treachery. I came to tell you so!"

Her eyes were glowing, her breast rose and fell quickly under the influence of her emotion. Mark turned to Larousse.

"You're a good peavy man!"

"Monsieur, one man could not break that jam. It is piling up deeper every moment. It means death to venture out on those logs in the current."

Mark turned to Nat and translated quickly. "I'm going to break that jam," he said. "You go to the dam and see if they've closed the spillways. If they have, open them, to draw off some of the water. Thank you, Madame Kinross."

"Bring me a peavy," Mark shouted to the weedy Pipeton, who had been taking in every word in amazement.

Larousse Helps Mark Break the Log Jam

Mark saw the jam now. Fifty thousand logs, forming a fantastic bridge between shore and shore, each end of it anchored to the rocks and the shoal ice. And fifty thousand more behind, dumped from the skids, battering and ramming this bridge, like the charge of wild guerrilla horsemen, mounting it, welding into it, and perpetually dissolving.

A slow, undulatory motion, the outer logs revolving round and round the key logs of the center. But that center was bending inward under the pressure of the battering logs behind. It was a matter of minutes, perhaps, before the whole mass would disintegrate into fantastic blocks, sliding over the dam, and smother the boom below, to split it self across the St. Lawrence.

There was just the one chance. If Mark could find the key logs of the jam, and pull them away, then, instead of the sudden, irresistible charge of two thousand cords of lumber, the mass might go over the dam lightly enough for the boom to withstand the impact.

In which case, the whole mass would come to rest in the basin underneath the dam.

Peavy in hand, Mark leaped out upon the mass of churning logs, riding them as they slipped beneath his impact, forcing his way toward the place which he had already discerned as the key to the jam.

Here, some hundred logs were piled up in a fantastic structure. One of these was the key log. Remove this, and the whole architectural scheme would crumble and dissolve.

Another man was straddling the logs beside him. Mark recognized Louis Larousse. And suddenly the imminent danger made them comrades—suddenly Mark knew that he could trust Larousse.

Straddling the sliding, bobbing logs, until they reached the heart of the wedge, the two moved side by side.

"She is there!" Louis shouted,

Suddenly the whole piled-up mass dissolved in ruin.

pointing to a log wedged in the heart of the upheaved mass.

Mark recognized the key; only a man trained through years of white water work would have recognized it. Remove that log, and the whole mass would sweep over the dam. God help the boom! It must hold or crash, but the jam must be broken.

Side by side, their peavies sunken into the key log, the two worked. Not force of brute strength; just the delicate finesse of artistry. Side by side, with the torrent churning about them. This was living! Mark felt an immense exultation in his heart as the peavies pecked at the key log, turning it this way and that.

The structure above it was tottering. The key log was loosening. Suddenly it gave. Suddenly the whole piled up mass dissolved in ruin. The white water leaped up like clutching hands. Mark slipped and went down.

Louis Larousse had him in his arms. Mark was again straddling the leaping, churning logs as they faced toward the dam. He leaped from one to another until he reached shore. There he sank down, utterly spent.

Not too much, however, to follow the rush of the piled up logs through the narrow channel of the St. Victor. In a moment the dam was black with two thousand cords of pulpwood, whirling over the rushing waters, leaping into the pool below, battering against the boom.

Broussac Takes Another Defeat

And it held! It held! Mark, sitting, gasping, upon the bank, saw the mass of logs hammer against the boom, recoil, and slowly come to ease in the pool. And an immense exultation filled his heart. He had won, had snatched victory out of the impossible. He had saved his lumber, and, if he could obtain help, he could put it through the mill and into the hold of the waiting schooner!

Somewhere in the vicinity, he was convinced, he could obtain workers.

Larousse jerked him to his feet, his face tense with emotion.

"Voilà!" he shouted. "The boom holds! You have saved your lumber, Monsieur Darrell."

"Thanks to you, Louis," answered Mark, swaying a little in the big man's arms.

Louis Larousse was shouting and gesticulating to Madeline Kinross, who was running up the bank of the gorge. "The lumber is saved!" he cried, pointing down to the boom, where the two thousand cords now lay peacefully, buffeted one another as the current swept them.

on his. "I'm glad," she cried. "I'm glad!"

Suddenly Mark remembered what Father Lacombe had told him about her marriage to the seigneur, half-an-hour before the sealing-fleet sailed for the Newfoundland shores. He stared into her white face, and turned his eyes aside. For he knew that he loved her, and had loved her since the moment of their first meeting. And they seemed destined to be eternal enemies.

Broussac had come back, and was occupying the long, yellow house overlooking the harbor, where, being unmarried, he resided in the summer with an old housekeeper. He had returned as he always did, on the eve of the departure of the sealing-fleet, to adjust partnership contracts and last minute difficulties.

Mark's retrieving of his lumber had suddenly made him a person of consequence in St. Victor. Nobody dreamed that he would straddle the logs in the rush of the torrent, and break up a jam. The habitant loves and admires courage more than any other quality. St. Victor had never thought of Mark as a man of efficiency—merely as an outsider who had come there to fling away his money for the benefit of the inhabitants.

There was the same whispering, the same sudden cessation of conversation when he entered the post-office, but there was a new deference, even though his men were on strike for that ridiculous five dollars a day. He had conquered—but St. Victor didn't know it yet.

Perhaps Broussac did. Mark never saw the lawyer, who remained secluded in the long, yellow house. People wondered, how Broussac could afford to stay away from Quebec, where he had a flourishing law firm, but Broussac's interests were innumerable.

Not the least of them was Madeline Kinross. Mark saw them riding together, and wondered if the lawyer was anything to the girl. At such times a spasm of fierce jealousy would shake him. Mark felt in a dim way that it was more than the signorial trees that he had come for.

His two schooners lay off the flume, waiting for their load of lumber. It was five days since the attempt to break the boom had failed, but the lumber still lay in the lake, in default of labor to put it through the mill.

"We're losing a neat little sum of money, keeping those two schooners waiting on the job," said Nat Page.

It wasn't so much, but the schooner captains were getting their five dollars a day, and each vessel had two hands; then there was the cost of the hiring.

"I'm going to wire a labor exchange to send me thirty men from up-river tomorrow," answered Mark.

But that wasn't exactly what he wired. He wired asking whether thirty men were available, at a daily wage of two-fifty knowing that the news would be all over St. Victor within a few minutes after Alphonse Vitard, the mayor, storekeeper, and postmaster, had sent off the dispatch.

As soon as Mark had sent his message, Monsieur Vitard hurried across the street to confer with Hector Mackintosh, the storekeeper. Mark had some business with the captain of one of his lumber schooners. When he got back, the street was lined with men, furtively and imploringly watching him.

Back to Work At $2 a Day

Two-fifty a day for outside labor! Perhaps, if they hadn't been such fools, Mark might have raised their wages to that sum. They cursed Broussac, in the long, yellow house, who had persuaded them to strike, giving them a small sum of money, and telling them that God would provide a way. There were plenty of starving mouths in St. Victor.

Big Louis came to Mark that evening. "I think the men are ready to come back to work for you, Monsieur," he said.

"I'll see them when they think they're ready," answered Mark. Walking into town next day, he picked up a telegraphic dispatch that Monsieur Vitard had received. "Can send you all the men you need." He guessed then that the battle was won.

It was late that afternoon when a little column of men appeared at the mill office. At their head strode Louis, like an officer marshalling his company.

Mark went to the door, and the column formed into a ragged line. Mark recognized his former workers, shamefacedly and a little sullen, but unmistakably penitent.

"Monsieur, these men say that they wish to return to work for you," Louis announced. "They say they were misled in regard to the rate of wages prevailing. They will gladly work for you at the same rate that they were getting before they struck, though they would like the extra fifty cents a day that you are willing to pay for outside labor."

Mark looked at the line of pathetic faces.

While You're Waiting For Delivery
In ordinary times when a purchaser could walk right into a dealer's showroom and get quick delivery of the car he wanted, he was likely to spend little time in choosing a financing plan. As a result, many people took the first financing suggestion offered to them. Today the picture is different. With delivery delayed, there is ample time for every car purchaser to select his financing plan as carefully as he chooses his car, why not take this opportunity to look into the advantages of financing your car with the help of a convenient bank auto loan? Come in and ask us for the exact cost figures on the loan you will need. Then make your decision.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Sam Abernathy Holds the Line!
Folks in our town have been making mighty complimentary remarks about Sam Abernathy. In spite of talk about inflation, Sam's prices—(say, on eggs for instance)—are what they were a year ago.
"Shucks," says Sam; "Don't give me credit. I get my eggs from Slim Hines' dairy farm. Slim hasn't raised his wholesale prices, because Bert Childers has kept his price the same on chicken feed. It works by mutual agreement!"
And there again you have Self-Regulation, doing what no law could ever do! Like Self-Regulation in the Brewing Industry... Brewers and tavern keepers get together by mutual agreement to maintain decent, law-abiding standards among places that sell beer.
From where I sit, the more you leave things up to the people themselves, the more you get the kind of results America is famous for—co-operation by mutual agreement. Or, if you want another name for it, self-regulation!

Sugar Rationing Offices
Under an entirely new arrangement announced by Frederic A. Adams, Regional Sugar Executive—the rationing of sugar, and price control of sugar and syrups, will be conducted hereafter from one central office in Denver, Colorado for the state of Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah, Montana and Idaho, excepting the ten northernmost counties in the latter state.
Sugar Rationing Administration Branch offices in Albuquerque, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Helena, and Boise will be closed May 28 and the duties of the offices will be transferred to the Denver Branch office. This office will now operate as a branch of the San Francisco Regional office. These offices have been rationing sugar to consumers, wholesalers, retailers, industrial, and institutional users.
Adams explained that functions of the closed offices will be discontinued as follows: For institutional users, April 23; for industrial users, May 14; for wholesalers and retailers, May 21; for consumers, May 23. After those dates all applications and all correspondence regarding sugar rationing should be sent to the Denver Branch office.
Banks formerly dealing with closed offices should send their reports on sugar rationing accounts after May 16 to the Denver Branch office, Sugar Rationing Administration, Kittling Building, Denver 2, Colorado. Employees of the closed offices will be given termination notices on April 23. Some 45 employees are affected. Consolidating these sugar offices will mean a more economical operation of the sugar rationing program, within the limited budget available, Adams explained.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Tornado Kills 120, Hurts 1,000; Lilienthal Confirmed, 50-31; House Gets 'Tough' Labor Bill

Released by Western Newspaper Union. When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

German workers in the British zone have been growing increasingly restive because of small food rations. Numerous strikes, particularly in the coal mines and steel plants, have resulted from what the Germans call starvation allowances. This picture shows part of a huge crowd that gathered in the main street of Düsseldorf in a protest meeting. Signs read, "We Hunger" and "We Don't Want Calories, We Want Bread."

LABOR BILL:

Plenty of 'Teeth'

A strike control bill that would rigorously restrict labor unions in many ways has been approved by the house Republican steering committee. Its most drastic provision, perhaps, is a clause authorizing the federal government to obtain injunctions for a 75-day period in industries which affect public health or safety. This apparently would cover the telephone and other communication industries, coal mining, electric light and power companies, railroads and possibly several other fields.

The bill was prepared under direction of Chairman Hartley (Rep., N. J.) of the house labor committee. He told newsmen he hoped that the bill would pass the house within a week. It probably faces a struggle in the senate, observers believe.

The injunction feature is designed to give the government a stronger weapon against strikes imperiling public safety and welfare. The attorney-general would be empowered to seek a restraining order in federal courts which would require a 75-day "cooling off" period. During this "no-strike" time, government conciliators would attempt to settle the dispute.

Other provisions would outlaw industry-wide bargaining and ban the closed shop. Unions would be required to keep dues low and to elect officials regularly by secret ballot. Communist domination in unions would lose the recognition of the National Labor Relations board. Unfair labor practices would be investigated and prosecuted by a new agency—the Office of Administration of the National Labor Relations Act.

LILIENTHAL:

Confirmed at Last

After 11 weeks of argument and vituperation, the senate has confirmed David Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy commission. The vote was 50 to 31. Lilienthal was appointed to the powerful position by the President last October.

David E. Lilienthal

Lilienthal, in a terse victory statement, said, "The important thing now is to get on with this job."

"This job" means supervision of all atomic energy plants and materials in the country, all of which are now government-owned. It also means almost complete authority over all research and development work in the field. The President's budget provided half a billion dollars for the commission's work.

Third of Workers Are Women

The 15 million working women in the country today represent 28 per cent of all employed persons, the women's bureau of the department of labor says, and adds that "historically determined social and economic factors" have led to women getting increasingly important positions. During the war the number of women employed represented a third of the total labor force in the country, while before the war it numbered a fourth.

TORNADO:

Sweeps Panhandle

At least 120 persons were killed and 1,000 injured by a tornado that ripped across five counties of the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandle country. A third of the buildings in Woodward, Okla., were flattened. Only one structure remained in Glazier, Tex. Higgins, another Texas town, was leveled except for three brick business buildings.

Furious wind and "hailstones like golfballs" accompanied the twister. It first was sighted at White Deer, Tex., where it blew a house from its foundations and injured three persons. Then it moved northeastward, parallel to the Santa Fe tracks, on which it derailed a freight train. Last town struck was Gage, in Oklahoma.

The Red Cross rushed doctors and nurses, equipped with bedding, food and blood plasma into the area. The department of public safety of Texas used its two-way radio to replace disrupted communications. All seriously injured patients were sent to Oklahoma City.

RAIL ACCIDENTS:

Daily Occurrence

Deralement of the Santa Fe's Super Chief in northern New Mexico, with injuries to 25 passengers but no fatalities, rounded out a week of railroad accidents reminiscent of the early days of railroading.

The Super Chief, one of the nation's most famous streamlined luxury trains, left the track near Raton, N. M., while traveling at high speed. The three-unit diesel locomotive broke loose and came to rest with its nose on the trestle of a dry river bed. The train was eastbound from Los Angeles.

Other accidents within a week: April 3, Burlington's Twin City Zephyr derailed in Downers Grove, Ill.; three killed, 35 injured.

April 4, engine of Rock Island Rocket derailed near Linwood, Kan.; engineer injured.

April 5, Milwaukee road switch engine fell off bridge near Ottumwa, Iowa; crew narrowly escaped drowning in swollen Des Moines river.

April 6, Union Pacific's City of Portland collided with a freight near Granger, Wyo.; 11 injured.

FRANCE:

Trouble in Colonies

Plotting and revolts in various parts of the French empire have prompted the French cabinet to strengthen the army. To this end President Auriol has called up conscripts of the 1947 class on May 15, several months early.

An uprising in Algeria has brought promises of reforms. Interior Minister Debreux has gone to the North-Africa country to make swift changes to pacify the rebellious Kabyle tribes and to quiet general unrest.

War Minister Paul Costa-Floret has demanded additional troop reinforcements to cope with trouble spots in Indo-China, Madagascar, Algeria, Morocco and several African protectorates.

See Recession Coming

A recession is almost certain to come during the summer, most economists agree. This downturn in business activity can be mild or severe, but few expect it to be a long or serious setback. Many look upon it as a healthy corrective reaction. Prices would fall somewhat, there would be some losses and unemployment, but there need be no grave misdeeds.

ATOM BOMB SECRET:

Safe for 8 Years?

Semi-official war department view is that the United States will possess the secret of mass production of atom bombs for at least eight years. There is no short cut method of manufacturing fissionable material, according to these officers. Best estimates are that it will take foreign nations several years to make one successful bomb.

"For a number of years, perhaps as many as 8 to 15, only the United States will possess atomic bombs in significant quantities. After this period, other nations will possess atomic bombs in significant quantities," reads a joint statement. All this presupposes that no international control agreement is in effect, it is pointed out.

The navy, in a summation called "authentic but not official," states: 1—Rockets with atomic war heads capable of thousands of miles of range are not to be expected for another 25 years.

2—The present strength and type of navy is needed for the next 10 years.

3—Dockyards and repair bases are most vulnerable and should be spread out more.

4—Ship structures should be strengthened to withstand the force of atomic explosions.

5—Advance bases should be built far from our shores to detect and intercept a surprise bomb attack.

6—Ships should be able to stay at sea from four to six months at a time.

Sees for First Time

Miracle of surgery has given sight to 3-year-old Elizabeth Mae Klein, born blind. She now can see partially and is eagerly catching up on her reading of colored picture books at her home in San Francisco. Joe Wilson, a veteran who befriended the family, helped her to obtain medical aid.

JEWISH FARMERS:

Succeed in U. S.

Refugee Jews who have settled on farms in the United States have become satisfactory farmers in most cases, according to a report by the Jewish Agriculture society. Of 502 families placed on farms in recent years, 429 are still there. They have repaid $485,000 of the $588,000 they borrowed from the society.

Most of these refugees settled in the East, but others have become farm owners in Illinois, Michigan and California. Two hundred Jewish families are living in Petaluma, Calif., engaged in poultry-raising. Another group operate an 800-acre peach and plum orchard.

The society was founded by Baron Maurice de Hirsch.

Chandler Gets Tough;

Suspends Durocher

In one of the most severe crackdowns in baseball history, Commissioner A. B. Chandler suspended Leo (Lippy) Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, for the 1947 season. The reason: Durocher cannot engage in organized baseball in any manner.

Chandler also suspended Charles Drotter, coach of the New York Yankees, for 30 days, and suspended Bob Ewing, coach of the Dodgers, for 30 days.

The case against Durocher was "because of his conduct in a public controversy damaging to baseball."

The case against Drotter was "because of his conduct in a public controversy damaging to baseball."

The case against Ewing was "because of his conduct in a public controversy damaging to baseball."

Chandler in his statement declared that the suspension was ordered "as a result of the conduct and inflammatory incidents in which he (Durocher) has been involved."

SMALLPOX:

New York City Hit

Four positive cases of smallpox have been diagnosed in New York City and others are suspected, causing a flurry among health authorities. This is the first outbreak of the dread disease in the metropolis since 1939. Many New Yorkers are being vaccinated as a precautionary measure.

An out-of-town business man who died in a New York hospital March 16 is blamed for bringing the disease into the city.

LURE TO TRAVELERS . . . As its bid for the postwar traveling trade, the railroad industry is introducing sleek streamliners embodying a wide variety of improvements designed for passenger comfort, relaxation and safety. Typical of the new trains is this scale model of the observation lounge-car of the Train of Tomorrow.

PALACES ON WHEELS

Improved Service Is Keynote Of Railroads' Bid for Trade

WNU Features.

Faced with the keenest competition in their long history from the modern automobile, bus and airplane, American railroads are leaving no stone unturned in their all-out bid for passenger preference, if the new streamliners now entering the transportation picture are any criterion. These new streamliners, sleek and beautiful in their exterior appearance, are modern palaces on wheels inside.

Determined to replace outmoded rolling stock, the railroads are adding equipment at an ever-increasing rate. As builders slowly recover from a wave of postwar strikes and work stoppages that have kept strategic supplies of steel, roller bearings, air-conditioning and certain electrical appliances, hardware and other materials coming into their plants in a more trickle since V-J Day.

Traffic and revenue reports on America's first four postwar-built trains constructed by Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company show that the public not only is showing great interest in the new trains, but also is backing it up at the ticket window. The new equipment is bringing improved service, and the public is responding with increased patronage.

Stress Comfort. Postwar railroad coaches are designed from end to end for passenger relaxation and comfort.

One of the greatest postwar improvements is in seating. Coach seats of the Sleepy Hollow type provide the ultimate in comfort. This seat, so spaced as to give ample leg room and provide a wide range of adjustment of back and foot-rest position, was developed as a direct result of studies of 3,067 persons who were measured by a university scientist to determine the sitting requirements of the average passenger. This reclining seat is adjustable to 10 different positions and the foot rest has four positions.

In the main seating compartments of the new postwar cars, a new type of lighting affords a high degree of reading comfort and convenience. The reading lights, installed in the overhead baggage rack, are equipped with two lenses over each cross seat, one to give light for the window passenger, the other for the aisle passenger. Each light has an individual switch to permit a passenger to read without disturbing his neighbor.

The new trains are particularly interesting from a color standpoint, inasmuch as the new color themes are set by the route of the train. In an effort to have these streamliners express in color the characteristics of the countryside through which they pass, colored pictures are taken and studied by the builders. As a result, interiors are strikingly pleasing to passengers, for the rest formations furnish the inspiration for the tone and drowse, the foliage provides the greens, and the skies and lakes set the interior color tones for the blues and grays.

Further decorative effects are obtained through use of colorful fabrics for shades and chairs, and mirrors in-flesh or gold-tones are used for bulkhead ornamentation. Tinted murals also have made their appearance in postwar equipment, done in special monochromatic coloring, matching or contrasting to the wall tones.

No Spilled Coffee. A new postwar diner, with diagonally placed seats and tables, has made its debut. This diner seats its patrons at the sides of the car at square tables, which are placed diagonally along the car wall. This modern arrangement permits patrons to pursue a direct conversational attitude at the tables; permits serving from between tables instead of from the aisle, and obviates the necessity of reaching in front of one patron to serve another, as is the custom in the conventional diner.

Although the railroads and equipment builders have emphasized beauty and comfort in the new postwar train, no compromise has been made as to safety features, for here, too, new ideas have been incorporated into the finished product.

Basically, the streamliner trains must be lighter in weight than the old conventional equipment. It must be sleek of surface but strong enough to meet rigid requirements of the railroads.

Development of new materials for construction of lightweight cars created many new problems, and the choice of car-building materials and processes came as the result of intensive investigation by welding engineers and other research agencies. It is the conclusion of the nation's largest car-building plant that the so-called low alloys of steel, of high tensile strength, and the strong alloys of aluminum—together with the advantages of girder type construction—offer the combination of qualities most suitable for the building of modern lightweight passenger train cars.

Extensive testing and service use, and experience with severe forms of shock, have confirmed the soundness of these selections of basic car-building materials and designs.

No Sudden Awakenings. Postwar cars are equipped with the famous titelock coupler, which offers maximum safety by making virtually impossible the accidental uncoupling of cars and also adds to the riding comfort of passengers by permitting no slack between the cars to cause jolts in starting or stopping.

Double pane, shatter-proof glass is used throughout the new lightweight equipment, assuring insulation not only against frosting and steaming of windows but also against outside noises. Special materials control temperatures and reduce outside noises.

On some of the new equipment, fool-proof electric impulses are replacing the deft hand of the locomotive engineer in stopping high-speed passenger trains. Engineers on these streamliners merely press a button when they wish to stop and a robot electrical "aide" makes all the decisions from there on.

This new system results in smoother and faster stops because the maximum of efficient braking is applied automatically at each speed range. Loss of efficiency in stopping, which takes place when train wheels slide, is eliminated by a deccelostat.

Yes, the postwar transportation battle is on, and it all adds up to the best deal the traveling public has yet been offered.

Woman Lives in Same Hotel 90 Years.

CARLYLE, Ill.—"Aunt Clara" is a woman who likes to live in a hotel. "Aunt Clara" is Miss Clara Truesdell, 90, who has lived in the same hotel here for 90 years.

Her hotel home is the Hotel Truesdell, a family institution, which was built by her father in 1857 when she was five years old. For many years Miss Truesdell helped operate the hotel, but it now is run by a third generation of the Truesdell family.

The Telephone Strike Situation Today

You as a telephone user have an important stake in the issues involved in the telephone strike. We would like to give you straight answers to some questions that you may be asking.

WHY IS THERE A TELEPHONE STRIKE?

In recognizing its responsibility to the public, to the workers in the business, and to the owners, the management could not in good conscience accede to the Union's excessive demands. The Union refused the offer to continue the present liberal contracts, and has refused the Company's offer to submit wage issues to arbitration.

WHAT WERE THE DEMANDS?

There were over one hundred items and the pay roll cost would amount to over $27,000,000 a year. That is about five times the Company's net earnings last year. If added to present payroll it amounts to more than all the revenue collected last year by the Company.

WHY DOESN'T THE COMPANY GRANT AN INCREASE?

The Company's earnings in relation to its investments are the lowest point in its history of operations. It is in the process of seeking increases in its charges for service based on 1946 costs, the largest element of which was wages. A further increase in wages will make it necessary to seek additional telephone rate increases in areas where recent increases have been made, and larger increases than otherwise would be necessary in areas where rates have not yet been increased.

The Company feels, therefore, that if present wages are fair and just, it should not increase them and thus increase the cost and eventually charges for the service.

Mountain States Telephone wages have increased 72 Per cent over 1939.

ARE PRESENT TELEPHONE WAGES GOOD?

The Company thinks so. Here are some typical wage rates in CARRIZOZO:

A girl starting as a student OPERATOR in CARRIZOZO begins at a minimum of $26.00 for a five day week; gets two raises the first year, and after 18 months has a basic wage rate of $29.00. Regular increases bring this basic rate to a top of $34.00. This does not include overtime and premium payments for evening and night work.

There are other advantages to working for the Telephone Company, including eight holidays a year with pay; vacations with pay, of one, two or three weeks, depending on length of service; liberal sickness and death benefits; and pensions, with full cost paid by the Company—and telephone work is STEADY WORK.

ARBITRATION—WHAT IS IT?

The Company thinks its wages are good, but the Union does not agree. The Company suggests that a board composed of impartial citizens of this area who are not associated with either the Telephone Company or any union, and who are mutually agreeable to the Union and the Company, should decide the question.

Arbitration is simply a means of letting an impartial person or group of persons settle a dispute after reviewing the facts and giving full consideration to both sides. The arbitrator acts as a judge or umpire. We think this method of having an unbiased party decide the wage question would be fair to employees and the Company. It would certainly be in the public interest.

It would hardly seem logical that the Union should oppose arbitration, especially when the Company is not proposing a reduction in wages if the board should find that telephone wages are above community levels of pay for work requiring similar skill and training.

SHOULD INCREASES GRANTED IN SOME INDUSTRIES IN OTHER AREAS SET A PATTERN FOR TELEPHONE WAGES HERE?

The Company does not think so. It will be noted that some of these other industries whose business is of a competitive character have stated that it will not be necessary for them to increase prices. An impartial board of arbitration would, of course, decide among other things the extent to which recent wage settlements in other industries have a bearing, if any on telephone wages in the Rocky Mountain Area.

We regret the continuation of this unhappy situation. We are doing everything we can to bring about normal restoration of service. In the meantime we sincerely appreciate the friendly cooperation of the public.
