Nogal Couple To Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Reception From 3 until 9 p. m. at Carrizozo Woman's Club Building

February 13, 1948 will be a golden date for Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Zumwalt of Nogal; a star-spangled gold studded date for their children and grandchildren and a red letter date for their friends; for on this date they will celebrate fifty years of happy, successful married life.

A short life sketch of the couple follows:

Mr. Zumwalt was born in Ingram, Kerr, county, Texas, March 14, 1878. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Zumwalt. They moved to Roswell when Bowen was only one year old. In 1888 the family moved to Lincoln County and located at Angus. He attended the Angus school where he met Effie Skinner, a daughter of the late Rev. John H. Skinner, and wife. They became childhood sweethearts and when she was sixteen and Mr. Zumwalt was twenty they were happily married the 13th day of February 1898 at Bonito City in a little log schoolhouse that also served as a Methodist Church.

When they were first married Mr. Zumwalt worked for the VV Cattle Company, the Bar W and the Block outfits.

On February 11, 1900 their first son came to bless their home. They are parents of ten children; two daughters and eight sons. The daughters are, Mrs. Gilbert Peters (Chloe) and Mrs. Byrl Lindsay (Irene) both of Nogal. The sons are Clifton B. Carrizozo; Floyd R. Arlett; Wayne, Sheridan, Oregon; Murray, Nogal; Jack, Carlsbad; A. B. Jr., Carrizozo. The other two sons were Gladney, missing in the Pacific since March 28th, 1943 and Freddie who passed away when only three years old. They have 18 grandchildren.

In the intervening years Mr. Zumwalt became a miner and then in 1910 he became an employe of the El Paso & Southwestern railroad as pipe line laborer. In 1910 he was promoted to pipe line foreman; then in 1918 he received another promotion to pipeline supervisor. In 1924 the El Paso and Southwestern was merged and became part of the Southern Pacific Railway system. Since that date and until the present he has worked continuously as supervisor and is due for retirement at a future date not too far distant.

They have lived at Nogal since September 1924.

The Anniversary Reception will be held at the Woman's Club Building in Carrizozo from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 9:00 o'clock in the evening of February 13th, and all friends of Mr. and Mrs. Zumwalt are given a cordial invitation to call during those hours.

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 53:4-6; Matthew 1:21; Mark 8:31; Luke 18:31; Hebrews 11:16
DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 53:1-12

His Work of Salvation
Lesson for February 1, 1948

PROFESSOR WILLIAM JAMES was once asked to give a definition of Christianity. He replied, "I doubt if there is a satisfactory definition of Christianity, but I can give you an example of it—Dr. Phillips Brooks."

Our lesson for Sunday tells us many things about Jesus, his work of salvation chiefly. But before we can understand what he does, we must look again at who he was and is. We begin with Isaiah 53:1-12. Who can read those majestic words without tears? And then we come to Matthew 1:21, "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." Then go on to read Matthew 5:17-28, Luke 19:1-10, and Hebrews 4:15, 16.

The key verse, it seems to me, in Sunday's lesson is Luke 19:10, "The Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost." Hold to this key, and every door will open in this lesson.

JESUS HELPS ZACCHAEUS IN THE first ten verses of the 19th chapter of Luke we have the fascinating story of Jesus calling Zacchaeus down from the tree, forgiving his sins, and entering into his house. The disciples complained that Jesus had gone to lunch with a man that was a sinner. It was then that the Master declared, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Zacchaeus is but an illustration of what Jesus seeks to do for every man. He has not come to save a few, but "whoever will." He will not force himself upon any man, but he waits in hope of saving every man.

The "worst" boy in your community may be saved—will be saved—if only he will do as Zacchaeus did, come to Jesus, just as he is, confessing his sin and believing on the Lord Jesus Christ.

HOW JESUS CHANGES PEOPLE JESUS saved Zacchaeus by forgiving his sins and putting a new attitude in his heart. He had harmed many people, or at least they thought he had. They would not forgive him.

He may not have asked them to forgive him, but when he met Jesus—and was changed by the redeeming grace of the Saviour, he proposed to restore tenfold wherever he may have wronged anyone. More than that, Zacchaeus offered to give the half of his goods to the poor. He gave convincing evidence that he was a changed man. So will every man who believes in Jesus.

But we must remember this, Zacchaeus bared his soul to the Saviour in repentance of his sins and believed on him as the Son of God before he manifested a changed attitude.

THE PURPOSE OF JESUS RECALL again the words of the angel to Joseph, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." It was to save sinners like Zacchaeus that Jesus came down from heaven and died on the cross. That was and is his purpose.

"He went about doing good, for God was with him," Acts 10:38. We shall never understand the work of Jesus until we come to see him at work in every age and amongst all mankind to do the will of the Father in saving any and all who will come unto him in faith believing.

"SO SEND I YOU" JESUS calls upon you and upon me and upon every follower of his to accept as the central purpose of our lives this mission of winning lost souls unto him. "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you."

I sat in a boat with two prominent business men, Lehmy in a private lake one afternoon last November. Mr. A. G. Candler of Atlanta and I were guests of Mr. Carr P. Collins of Dallas. We were at his Wild Briar farm, a few miles from Dallas. We were talking about the plight of the world. Mr. Collins said, "What is money worth if we think of it apart from the purpose of God? Until we come back to the words of Jesus, 'So send I you,' we cannot hope to improve the sorrowful plight of our frightened day and generation. All men are lost until they come to know him as Saviour."

Let this testimony of one of God's gentlemen be heard and heeded by laymen and preachers alike, and fear will give way to faith, and the kingdoms of this earth will become the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

WILL OF THE WIND

By WILLIAM BEARDON

MRS. HACKETT found her in the bedroom crying. She stood in the doorway and said grimly: "I came in to borrow some sugar, Sylvia. The door was open so I just walked in. Now what on earth's wrong with you?"

Sylvia sat up and dried her eyes. Her starched gingham skirt was wrinkled and her black hair was tangled and disordered. A curling strand of it hung down beside her nose like an ink stain. A pin had come out of her imitation lace collar and it had fallen down to catch in the red buckle at her waist. She said shakily, "Hello, Mrs. Hackett. Nothing."

Mrs. Hackett drew down the corners of her mouth. "Nothing, my foot. It's because of Chip wanting to pull up stakes and go to Canton. Isn't it? Of course it is."

Sylvia slapped the lock of hair out of her eyes. "I won't be a boomer's wife!" she flared. "I won't!"

"Min," Mrs. Hackett said sourly. "A boy's will is the wind's will. That's a poem. It's the truest thing in the world. Don't do no good to fight against it. Remember that and you'll have it easier."

"I won't be a boomer's—b-boomer's wife! I won't drag around to one mill after another all my life, and never have anything, no home, and no—no nothing! I won't!"

"Well, it's his job, if he wants to throw it away."

"It isn't! It's just as much mine as it is his! I don't believe in that old idea that a woman's just a slave, to follow a man around at whatever he happens to want to do!"

"Oh, you don't," Mrs. Hackett said. "And just what can you do about it?"

Sylvia bowed her head and scrubbed unhappily at her cheeks with her handkerchief. "I don't know," she sobbed.

"Of course you don't. You're nothing but a child," Mrs. Hackett sniffed. "You'd be twenty years heading out what to do and by that time it's too late to do you any good. Unless there's somebody around to tell you to begin with. Somebody who knows."

Sylvia was not impressed. "What could you tell me, Mrs. Hackett? What could anyone do? I've argued with him until I'm almost crazy but he—he doesn't even listen any more. He's got his mind set on moving on, to something different that won't be any different at all, and then he'll want to go again, and—"

"A boy's will is the wind's will," said Mrs. Hackett. "That's what the poem says. It's just as true of a man or an old man, for that matter. The older they get the truer it gets, I reckon. Only they kind of give up trying to do anything about it after so long a time." She pushed up her lower lip and looked down her nose at Sylvia. "Like Mr. Hackett."

Sylvia looked up, startled. "You mean Mr. Hackett used to—want to—"

"He was the hardest man to hold down in this town. He got tired of everything, that was his trouble. It's a sort of laziness, that's all it is. But he stuck here. He stuck, all right."

"Why?" Sylvia wailed. "What did you do?"

"Well," Mrs. Hackett said, "you can take it for what it's worth, Sylvia. It worked with Mr. Hackett, I know that."

"But what was it?" "Whenever he worked himself up to a pitch about cutting loose and chasing away some place after something he thought was better, I simply gave him his way."

Sylvia looked disappointed and puzzled. "Oh."

"But," Mrs. Hackett said profoundly, "he didn't know it. I took him on a trip. Just a week or so. And I kept him on the jump every minute of it. I always liked little trips around, anyway. Well, by the time that man would get home again he'd be so tired of jumping around that he wouldn't have left for a pension. That," Mrs. Hackett said, "is something you find out about men, Sylvia. They like to start but they like getting back a whole lot more."

Sylvia said doubtfully, "It doesn't sound like Chip would—"

"Maybe he wouldn't. I'm the last person in the world to try to give folks advice, Sylvia. Nobody wants it and I guess everyone has to sew his own seams anyway. But Mr. Hackett says they're shutting down for a week for the millwright's gang, and if Chip was to spend that week in a car bouncing along from one place to another, without even a chance to catch his breath . . . Well, a boy's will is the wind's will, and the wind can change in a minute."

"But what if he wouldn't want to go?"

"Min. You tell him you want a little vacation before you move to Canton. If he thinks you've given in about that he'll take you. You try it and see."

They went up into Michigan, west to Wisconsin, down through Minnesota and Iowa and St. Louis to Memphis.

ture show for a month. I told you, Wind's will, that's the poem. They're all alike." She put the cup of sugar on the kitchen cabinet and looked at Sylvia and frowned. "But I wouldn't say you look so happy about it, Sylvia. But you're tired."

Sylvia stopped swinging her foot and rested her chin on her hands. She sighed and said, "Only of this town, I guess. I was just thinking, when we came back yesterday, and it looked so . . . so old and so shabby and dull and tiresome . . . and I thought that we'll spend all our lives here."

Mrs. Hackett drew back and regarded her and then said again defensively, "You're just tired, Sylvia." Sylvia looked up and her eyes were sparkling. "But I'm not," she said. "I had a wonderful time."

"You mean Mr. Hackett used to—want to—"

"He was the hardest man to hold down in this town. He got tired of everything, that was his trouble. It's a sort of laziness, that's all it is. But he stuck here. He stuck, all right."

They went up into Michigan, west to Wisconsin, down through Minnesota and Iowa and St. Louis to Memphis, east to Knoxville and up through Louisville to come home.

They were gone six days. Each day Sylvia had them up and driving at daylight and she kept on the job, circulating the sights of the next stop until late at night. She called upon Chip to stop often at roadside stands where she purchased catyed ornaments and bumpy pottery.

She piled him with hot dogs, soft drinks and bad coffee. She was surprised and delighted at the glazed look that appeared in his eyes on the third day.

Mrs. Hackett came over the day after they returned. She said, "Well!" and paused expectantly, holding the cup of sugar in both hands.

"He went back to work today," Sylvia said. There was a listless note in her voice. "He hasn't said anything about going to Canton for days."

"Min! And what did he say when he got home?" She pursed her lips. "That he never thought it would look so good to him!"

Sylvia nodded. She sat down on a kitchen chair and swung one foot and watched it pensively. "Just exactly," she said.

"You won't even be able to get him to stir out of the house to a place

AROUND THE HOUSE

To sew a smooth bias seam, baste a piece of paper between the two edges.

Aluminum paint makes an excellent sealer. It will seal in most of the stains and chemicals. Finish later with two coats of good oil paint.

Set your mixing bowl on a damp dish cloth when in use to keep it from slipping.

Use unbleached muslin of heavy quality for pressing cloths. Edges may be left unfinished if desired. To be sure the cloth is lint free, boil the muslin cloth and rinse thoroughly.

Mix whitening and a little lemon juice into a clear paste. Use this as a cleaner for ivory or bone cutlery and you'll be amazed with the results. Leave the mixture on a few moments, then rinse, and polish.

If there's no room in the hem of your skirt for lengthening, try adding a width of ribbon around the waistline. Use a contrasting ribbon. Some of the newer dresses have contrasting waist interest, so you'll be right in style.

Buy your clothes to fit the largest part of your figure. It is much easier to take in a dress than it is to let out the seams.

That murky appearance that comes overnight on mirrors during warm weather can be wiped off with a cloth dampened with ammonia. Then rub dry with a clean cloth.

YOU

WAS THIS THE MOST CHARMING WOMAN?

You can pick up almost any woman's magazine and read an article about the most charming woman that ever lived. One writer will select a movie actress like Ingrid Bergman. Another writer will point to the fact that the Duchess of Windsor is the most charming, magnetic woman. Imaginative writers go all the way back to Cleopatra in making their nominations.

It seems to me, however, that everything considered, the most charming woman who ever lived was not a movie actress, an Egyptian queen, or the heroine of a popular novel—she was instead a mild, middle-aged woman who lived in Paris around the middle of the Nineteenth century.

Her name was Madame Recamier, and although she left behind nothing but an exquisite legend "as of a rose that had bloomed for a while in a garden and vanished," men and women still praise her.

The secret of Madame Recamier's charm was that she put herself always in the other person's place. "She was an enchanting listener," one of her admirers said. She was. She rarely spoke herself. But she did something far more important—she contrived to make you say bright and witty things.

She had tremendous tact. When you called at her home, she smiled graciously, made you feel more welcome than you'd ever felt anywhere before. She wasn't flowery or so extravagant about it. It was the way she said what she said rather than the words she used.

One of her friends, the great French author Sainte-Beuve, wrote on the day after her death, "She would have liked to stop everything at April—her heart remained at early Spring."

What did she offer these persons that they loved her so? Not wealth. Hers was lost. Not position. She lived in a four-room flat. Then what? The sheer charm and power of a perfect personality.

Jeanne Francoise Recamier was her full name. She lived in Paris from 1777 to 1826. To this day when writers want to set up a standard of charm and personality, they choose her as their model.

Due to water heating conditions we did not have the Baptismal service last Sunday night, but plan to have it at the close of the service this Sunday night.

A group from the Church attended the monthly workers conference of The Lincoln Association, which met at Tinnie this week. Rev. Allen's part on the program was, Security Of the Believer. Mrs. Allen had the Devotional Service for the W. M. S.

Rev. Cochran and family from Alamogordo visited in the service Sunday morning. Rev. Cochran was at one time pastor of the church here. He had just received his discharge from the Army where he has been serving as a Chaplain. We welcome them back to our Church any time.

Other visitors were present. Come again, you are always welcome.

Mr. Charles R. Montgomery and Miss Jane Armstrong exchanged marriage vows in the home of the Pastor Saturday, January 31. They are from Claunch and we wish them many happy years of married life.

You are always welcome at the Church where everybody is somebody, and nobody is a stranger.

Lowest fares are good in chair cars & coaches on our finest, fastest trains!

No other form of low-cost transportation gives you the comfort, convenience, luxury and safety you get in chair cars and coaches on Southern Pacific trains.

You can read, write, play cards, enjoy the scenery, or sleep, as you ride. There's plenty of room to move around and stretch your legs. Most trains are air-conditioned and offer porter service. You'll find meals delicious, prices moderate, in dining and coffee shop cars. (Eating on the train is half the fun of traveling.)

The engineer does the driving. You relax, snug and comfortable no matter what the weather outside. Steel rails are the safest highway ever built.

You'd expect all this to cost a lot—but it doesn't. Hardly more than before the war. Low coach and chair car fares are good on our finest, fastest trains. And on some trains seats are numbered and reserved. Reservations should be made in advance.

Remember, too, children under five years of age ride free, five to eleven inclusive for half fare.

Next time, try chair cars and coaches on S. P. trains.

BACKWARD GLANCES

FORTY YEARS AGO FROM 1888 CAPITAN NEWS

The mohair harvest is now on in this county, and large crops are being gathered. The goat industry throughout the county seem to be improving, although goatmen have many grievances, they claim, that sadly need remedying-- notably, the privilege of grazing their stock on the reserve.

Edward Queen, the boy from White Oaks was in Capitan last Monday night. He left for the Bonito country to secure some machinery for use in their mining operations at White Oaks.

Dispatches from Santa Fe announce a decision in a case that has convulsed this county during the past year, and the result is far from satisfactory to the people of the lower valley. The dispatch reads: "The territorial board of water commissioners has sustained the decision of territorial engineer granting the El Paso & Southwestern Railway Co. the right to divert part of the flow of the Bonito river in Lincoln County to another watershed in order to supply the towns of Carrizozo, Ancho and other places as well as the locomotives of the company with pure water. This project includes the laying of 150 miles of pipe and the expenditure by the railway company alone of $1,500,000.

With a flourish of trumpets and the beating of tom toms, we are informed by those who are clinging to the tail of the administration kite that statehood is a certainty next winter-- after the presidential election. This sounds quite familiar, in fact, a similar announcement has been made annually for eleven years.

THIRTY YEARS AGO FROM 1918 CARRIZOZO NEWS

The finishing touches are being given the Lutz building and the Carrizozo Trading Company is moving its stock of goods into the new building. The Trading Co. expects to give a formal opening in the near future.

The German measles struck town with vengeance early this week. The contagion however is not serious, and if the Huns do not give us something worse we feel that our ultimate victory is certain.

Cattle Growers between the ages of twelve and twenty-four are urged to attend and participate in the annual convention of the New Mexico Junior Cattle Growers Association which will be held in Albuquerque, March 7, 8, and 9, according to Jack Berkshire, Estancia, President. The Junior organization will meet in conjunction with the senior group with headquarters in the Hilton Hotel.

"The Junior Association was organized several years ago, but its growth was handicapped during the war when so many of our members entered the service," Berkshire said. "We are making an effort now to develop renewed interest in the organization with a view towards establishing a strong counterpart for the senior organization."

'Year of Decision' Arrives for U.S.

America Alone in Struggle To Save Western Ideologies

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Cartoonists and others have titled 1948: "the year of decision." It is a pretty good title. The only trouble is that America's most important decision has already been made, and nobody seems to realize it. We know that the British empire has broken up, but, aside from the fact that there is some grumbling about loaning money to the British, it doesn't seem to concern us very much.

In the current issue of the United Nations World magazine, the British historian and author, D. W. Brogan, has an article entitled "The British Shed No Tears for Their Lost Empire." In it, he says:

... In the nineteenth century, the progress of English prosperity was in close association with the spread of a general political and economic religion of all sensible men. The Bank of England, free trade, parliamentary government all increased their range of influence together. And the English looked on what was largely their work—and their profit—and found it good. They were satisfied with what they had accomplished.

"It is natural enough, today, when this world situation has changed to take pretty calmly the decline in the favored historical position of England. If the spread of English ideas, practices and profits has ceased, why worry—unless you are English."

"Unless you are English." And yet the people who ought to be doing the worrying are the Americans.

We are taking over where Britain left off, and the job is a bigger one than England faced. But, the average person in this country will say in horror: "You talk like a Communist! America's whole tradition is non-intervention. Of course we had a wild period in South America, and in our salad days as a nation, we somehow acquired what we called Texas although the Mexicans, at the time, thought it was a part of Mexico, and then, there's Hawaii. But those days are over. See how promptly and politely we returned the Philippines to themselves, and took our marines out of the banana plantations where they didn't belong, and the other day even abandoned our bases in Panama. Don't tell me we're going to establish a second British empire!"

We aren't. The spirit of live and let live is just as strong as it ever was in this country. Unfortunately, however, what Brogan calls "the spread of a general political and economic religion of all sensible men" suddenly encountered a force that threatened to destroy it when the Germans marched into Poland and the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor.

It took all America could afford, and more than Britain could afford, to stop that force. And today, another and stronger force is gaining power, and there is nobody to stop it but the United States.

When a British official in London said "every means short of war" would be used "by the British and American governments to keep Greece within their own strategic and ideological orbit," it didn't make much of a ripple outside of Washington. But it was a statement of tremendous import, for it means that the Truman doctrine was not just a phrase, that its implementation is now certain. It means that the people responsible for the destiny of the United States know that the year of decision is here, the decision having been made not in Washington, but in the Kremlin, just as the decision to fight Japan was made, not in Washington, but in the office of one small little man now awaiting a death sentence in Tokyo, one Hideki Tojo, former premier of Japan.

Partisans Succeeded in Soviet Spheres

Today it is fashionable to make funny cartoons about the "third party" announced in December by Henry Wallace. Yet that third party fits neatly into a plan to wreck our way of life, the plan, another part of which was the careful coaching by the Kremlin of the "partisan" fighters in World War II. The partisans were formed, first to help beat down one of the Soviet's enemies, but they also were groomed to destroy representative government in their respective countries.

The partisans were most successful in the countries nearest Russia, in territory where the Red army, in the guise of allies fighting a common enemy, gained a foothold which they kept when peace came, and which was used to put their trained stooges into power.

In Italy and France, they were unable to capture completely the partisan or resistance movements. But they did get a grip on both countries which neither France nor Italy dared throw off until the United States made a last condition of aid. The capture of the Communist parties from both governments.

Temporarily, at least that much of the carefully-planned Soviet program failed. But new steps are being planned. A part of the pattern of communication is Communist alliance with the left-wing non-Communists. The Reds cooperate with the non-Reds, help them bring about their objectives, then slowly dominate and absorb them. One method used by Reds to get rid of non-Communist left-wing resistance is to help a reactionary government into power. Such a reactionary government suppresses the non-Communist left-wingers, and pushes those surviving deeper into Communist toils.

That is where the Wallace third party fits into the Kremlin design. The Reds hope it will split and weaken the liberals in this country, increase the friction between them and the conservatives as much as possible, aid the conservatives to get into power. Then when the reactionaries, in the conservative will be thrown out, and the well-organized Communists can take over easily.

Greece is a testing point in the Russian-American struggle. The only way in which the Communist internal aggression there could be checked was for Britain and the United States to step in and actually direct the Greek government. That was done. Much as any country dislikes having a stronger one run its affairs, the United States, as a choice of evils, is the less unwilling to come to the Greeks, especially when we come bearing gifts without which the government knows it cannot resist the Communist organization.

When one talks with the "exiles," the refugees from the Red terror, one is appalled by their attitude. Recently I spoke at length with a former foreign minister of one of the countries now firmly in the jaws of the Soviets. He assured me that today, if there were a free election in his country, not 1 per cent of the people would vote to support a Red regime. He said these "satellites" are not satellites at all, they are as much a part of the Soviet Union as the Ukraine or Outer Mongolia. The secret police paralyzes all independent action.

There is a desperation about the attitude of these men who fought the losing battle against the Kremlin. They say there is absolutely no hope for Europe unless the Russians are driven back to their old borders, and the Balkan states, Poland and Finland are freed of Russian domination. They say there is only one thing that will have effect: A threat by the United States to use force.

When the quotation of the London official which I mentioned, stating that the United States and Britain were committed to "measures short of war" came over the wires, I was reminded of the conversation with the former foreign minister.

He had said to me: "If the United States threatens to use force now, the Russians will pull out of Eastern Europe. They cannot afford war now. They fear the United States. But in a few years, mere threats will not suffice. The Russians then will be ready to fight."

And this force moving against the "political and economic religion of all sensible men" is moving not only in Europe. All along Russia's periphery, the red tide is rising against its frontiers, in the Middle East, in India whose gates Russia has threatened for centuries, in China, Korea, in the islands adjacent to Japan.

Plan African 'Disease Safari'

Armed with microscopes instead of 16-inch guns, naval medical scientists are preparing for a new sort of African safari on which they will study some of the diseases native to the dark continent.

The navy medical group will accompany the African expedition being sponsored by University of California, hence will have the duty of providing medical service to the university paleontologists and anthropologists who will cover most of Africa this year seeking traces of primitive man and ape.

For their own purposes the navy doctors will study such native diseases as African sleeping sickness,

THEY WON'T LAND... In Philadelphia at a rally of the marine corps reserve, Gen. Clifton B. Cates (right), now commandant of the marine corps, took occasion to announce that no leathernecks are scheduled to land in Palestine. He also dismissed the sending of about 1,000 marines to the Mediterranean as "routine." With General Cates are Fleet Adm. William Halsey and James H. Duff, governor of Pennsylvania.

NEWS REVIEW

Slump Possible: Truman; Cite Air Power Need

In this season of presidential reports to the nation the alarm bells were jangling for everything from the state of the entire world to the frayed condition of John Doe's back pocket.

And through his "Semi-Annual Economic Report of the President," Mr. Truman sounded the gong ominously on a new note: The impending peril of economic disaster in the U. S.

The nation's economy, he said, is operating on borrowed time and inflation-ridden Americans are operating on borrowed money in a situation flirting with depression.

Millions of persons in the low-income groups, his report pointed out, now are keeping the inflation carousel whirling by liquidating their savings, reducing their current savings and by extensive use of consumer credit.

"Such use of savings for current living expenses is an ominous sign for the economy as a whole."

Without stopping to consider any possible political aspects of the President's economic report, Americans could take it as a sober, realistic picture of what lies beneath the relative luxury in which many of them are existing now.

Exhaustive and complete, the economic survey presented figures notable in that they:

1. Showed for the first time that "real purchasing power" of the American masses—basic factor supporting U. S. economy—has declined 8 per cent since the first quarter of 1946, and that

2. Millions of Americans are living on their savings accounts and borrowing money. Almost one-quarter of all families and more than one-half of families earning less than $2,000 yearly "held no liquid assets in 1947."

Then Mr. Truman tied in these facts with his administration's proposed policy to beat the inflation rap. If inflation, he said, is "permitted to run its own course, it will be met with destructive force."

And in order not to let it run its own course the President again urged adoption of his anti-inflation program—limited price and ration controls.

That way, he indicated, lies a new, greater economic era for the U. S. embodying maximum employment and solid and lasting prosperity.

AIR STRENGTH: 'A-Day' 1953

How important is it that the U. S. have a potent, efficient air force? Virtually a matter of life or death, thinks the President's air policy commission which recently reported on the status of the nation's air strength.

Immediate and substantial enlargement of the air force for "survival in the air age" was urged by the commission; and January 1, 1953, was set as "A-day," or the ultimate date when the U. S. might consider itself relatively secure against atomic attack.

After "A-day," the commission intimated, it will be anybody's ball game as far as airborne atom bombs are concerned. "The air force is hopelessly wanting in respect of the future... when a serious danger of atomic attack will exist."

On that premise the group recommended that the government start now to spend on the air force in 1948 1.3 billion dollars more than the 2.85 billion currently scheduled for this calendar year, and that in 1949 this total be raised still another 1.3 billion dollars.

For actual air strength the commission said that by 1942 the U. S. should command a total of 12,000 first-line planes, plus more than 8,000 held in reserve.

Although it was extremely unlikely that the air policy commission's recommendations would be adopted in toto by this or any other peacetime congress, the report put realistic emphasis where emphasis belonged. Everyone has been aware that air power is mandatory if the U. S. is to have any degree of national security in an era of feverish atomic-bomb production, and the commission has succeeded in putting that awareness on as factual a basis as is possible now.

OPEN CITY:

Jerusalem

Since apparently nothing can stop the quasi-civil war between Arabs and Jews in Palestine, that country's harassed government has done the next best thing and requested both factions to spare the holy places of Jerusalem from any depredations they might carry out.

The Palestine government asked the Christian, Moslem and Jewish religious communities to declare Jerusalem's ancient walled area an "open city."

That plea couldn't stop the bloodshed but it could preserve the religious relics sacred to all three of the world's main religions.

Meanwhile, transportation was being made available to evacuate any of the 1,500 Jews still living under Arab siege inside the walls. They are the remnants of 4,000 normal residents of the area.

Which Way Judea?

Mothe Shertok, head of the Palestine Agency's political department, now in the role of Moslem official to U. N., ponders one of the many enigmatic partitions of the Holy Land has thrust upon him. He said the Jewish agency soon would ask U. N. for an international police force, arms and funds to enforce the partition agreement.

AND NO DEPENDENTS... Two-and-a-half-year-old Wendy Roy blocking, one of Chicago's youngest models, tells off the furies as she covets her earnings in preparation for paying the last installment of her 1947 income tax.

PLENTY SCARED... Brig. Gen. Wallace Grakam, White House physician accused of speculating in grain, told the senate food-packing committee that he got out of the wheat market because he was "pleasly scared" by President Truman's scathing denunciation of grain speculators.

Filled the Bill!

At the "We Have a Card for Every Occasion" counter of a large department store, the clerk asked a woman shopper if he could help her.

"I'm afraid you haven't anything that will do," she said. "I've looked all these cards over."

"Madam," said the clerk, "we have greeting cards for everything. What kind do you want?"

The woman hesitated, then leaned forward and said in a low voice, "My brother has just been sent to jail, and I want to send him a card expressing my regret."

The clerk thought a moment, then reached among the cards "For the Sick" and handed her one. It read: "Sorry to hear you're a shut-in. Hope you get out soon!"

The 1850 horse car at Baltimore's sesquicentennial exposition is back in business. Hearing the bell clanging and children clambering aboard, officials investigated. They found a nine-year-old boy acting as conductor and charging a penny a fare.

He had 12 paid passengers before officials put him out of business.

Company for Dinner

"I just don't feel like I can entertain now that food prices are so high," said a friend of mine to me recently. Actually you can do so, I explained to her, if you serve less expensive food but dress it up, company style.

There's pot roast; for instance, which, done to succulence and tenderness, and garnished with stuffed prunes or spiced crab apples, leaves nothing to be desired.

Or what about a meat loaf? Now there's a good old-fashioned meat dish that can be dressed up beautifully with a fluting of mashed potatoes and served with parsleyed carrots and glazed onions.

Short ribs of beef? Yes, indeed, there are few meat dishes that can come up to it in fastness.

Desserts can be made that are very inexpensive, but, put in a mold, they have "company manners." Here are menus to fit the smallest of purses, but they all have style and class.

FROM FARM TO FOREST... Churches are playing an important role in the concerted effort to improve rural living. Typical are these scenes, taken at the Alpine, Tenn., mission of the Presbyterian church, which operates a forest of 1,500 acres and a farm of 100 acres. The dairy herd (left) in front of the modern barn show the strides made in better agriculture while the sawmill (right) helps make the forest a paying proposition.

Revitalized Country Church Plays Social, Economic Role

By EARLE HITCH
WNU Features.

Long on the road to decline, the country church is being revived as an integral force for re-energizing small rural communities. Acting on the principle that where the community thrives, the church also thrives, all denominations are backing a widespread campaign to revitalize the country church.

Without in any sense departing from the Christian aims of saving souls and preaching redemption, the churches simply are adding an awareness of social and economic responsibility to their mission of salvation. The concerns of the entire community — home, family, farming, health — become the concerns of the community church.

Particularly valuable and instructive as models or demonstrations for study are the community plans being carried out by missions of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches in the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee. The Presbyterian projects are at Morris Fork and Wooton, Ky., and at Alpine and Big Lick, Tenn. The Methodists have community missions at Frakes, Ky., and Sevierville, Tenn. A larger community project at Blue Springs, Tenn., represents the combined parishes of the Methodists, Disciples of Christ and Presbyterians.

Diverse Projects.

All have much in common, but in some things each is unique. Blue Springs is the oldest mission, and its area is the largest—some 400 miles square. It has seven churches, and four preaching points at neighborhood centers, a cooperative store, an energetic training program in public health and a continuing series of adult education classes in current problems, such as farm machinery repair, soil conservation and home decorations.

All this represents the life work of a great-country preacher. He was Paul A. Doran, who went to Blue Springs in 1917 as a divinity school graduate, and died there three years ago after 28 years spent entirely in that community's service.

One of his many lasting services was his homestead plan. He made home buying his personal concern. Through small loans from a semial sum held in trust by him, the minister made it possible for 24 families in his community to become owners of their own farms.

The pastor at Big Lick is both ardent and articulate in behalf of better rural living. He has known Wooton community, under the ministry of Benton Deaton, has a fine community church and playground, built by the people themselves. In the recreation center the children of the neighborhood have a place to enjoy their games and the whole community has its picnics and outdoor religious gatherings.

Wooton owns a cooperative truck, which provides transportation for the farmers who want to send things to market, and have things bought for them in town. "Very few of the people have cars, and their usual means of travel is by mail back.

Wooton also has a circulating library, the beginnings of a demonstration farm, and a training course in handicrafts and cottage industries, for both men and women.

Similar work, especially in health, soil saving and better farming, is going on at Alpine, Morris Fork, Frakes and Sevierville. The programs vary according to local needs and the resources that can be put to use.

Productive Enterprises.

For example, the parish at Alpine is the owner of a forest of 1,500 acres and a farm of 100 acres. A trained forester and an expert farmer make those enterprises produce earnings, and furnish examples for other farm and woodlot owners. The Alpine program is in charge of the head of the mission, the Rev. Bernard M. Taylor, and Mr. Taylor has made the mission responsible for developing the community's full resources through the activities of the citizens themselves, and their labors are being reflected more and more in better health and living.

The same can be said of the communities at Frakes, Morris Fork and Sevierville, all of which have vastly improved their ways of living because practical economic plans for conserving the land and finding more useful employment for surplus labor have been made principal aims in the community plan. The pastors, of course, have not neglected their religious duties. They simply have added economic concerns to their other responsibilities.

The next article will tell of the important community development plan now being carried on in five counties centering around Tupelo, Miss. The Tupelo plan is one of the most ambitious that has been undertaken anywhere in the unfolding rural life movement.

COMMUNITY ENTERPRISE... One of the leading churches in promoting community development is Calvary Presbyterian church (above) at Big Lick, Tenn. The church was built by people of the community, which consists of only about 50 families. Landscaping was done by the pastor and farmers.

country life from childhood and he knows how to farm. He can run a tractor, plow a contour furrow and help in the saw mill. He has organized a Big Lick homestead project to aid young men get established on the land, and 27 families have been assisted in buying farms since 1940. LIBRARY SCIENCE COURSE TO BE OFFERED.

To aid in offsetting the present shortage of trained librarians in New Mexico High Schools, New Mexico A & M College will offer courses in library science in its 1948 summer session, which opens June 14, Director of Summer sessions, J. W. Branson has announced.

Courses will be designed to train librarians and prospective librarians and qualify them for library work in the high schools of the state.

Courses and instructors will be announced later by Mr. Branson.

BOY SCOUT WEEK TO OBSERVE 38th ANNIVERSARY

More than 2,120,000 members of the Boy Scouts of America throughout the nation will observe the 38th anniversary of the organization during Boy Scout Week which opens Friday, Feb. 6 and continues through Thursday, Feb. 12.

The anniversary will be celebrated in every city and town and most villages and hamlets throughout the nation and its possessions. It is young America's largest birthday celebration.

The theme of Boy Scout Week this year is, "The Scout Citizen at Work...in his home...in his community...in his nation...in his world." Scouting activities for the year beginning with the birthday celebration will be related to this theme.

"Bushels of Food" Plan
The nation's Boy Scouts are engaged in the program of saving and producing food to alleviate the world's food shortage. As part of their service program this year each Boy Scout is expected to "save a bushel, grow bushel, share a bushel" of food.

Each Cub Pack, Boy Scout Troop, Senior Scout Unit, will share in a "Report to the Nation" that will tell of their community service last year and their program for this year. The report will be made to the President of the United States, to Congress and to the United Nations.

VETERAN NEWS

For less than $14, the average World War II veteran can reinstate the full amount of his $10,000 National Life Insurance term policy regardless of how long a time it has lapsed.

For even less money, he can reinstate any part of the policy, should he not wish to carry the full $10,000.

The above figures were released by Carl F. Krumm, V A Regional Insurance Officer for New Mexico to counteract an opinion prevalent among veterans that a substantial sum of money is required to put a lapsed NSLI term policy back in effect.

Even though the policy has been lapsed for a period of years, the law requires the payment of only two monthly premiums and a statement of health acceptable to the Administration to effect complete reinstatement. The first premium covers the month in which the policy lapsed and the second one the month in which reinstatement is made. The interim period is completely forgiven. It should be remembered, though, that July 31, 1948, is the deadline date for insurance. After that date a complete physical examination will be required in reinstatement of GI insurance.

Since the average GI was 28 at the time his insurance was issued a reinstatement of the full $10,000 can be made in his case upon payment of two $3.80 premiums or $13.60. Younger veterans will pay a proportionately less sum while older veterans will pay a slightly higher rate.

Monuments to James J. Davis

James J. Davis, 74, former U. S. Secretary of Labor and former U. S. Senator from Pennsylvania, died Nov. 23d in Washington, but two outstanding American communities live on as monuments to his memory. They are Mooseheart, Ill., famed City of Happy Childhood for youngsters who have lost one or both parents; and Moosehaven, Fla., City of Contentment for dependent old folks. Both were founded (Mooseheart in 1913 and Moosehaven in 1922) by Mr. Davis, who from 1906 until his death was Director-General of the Loyal Order of Moose, a fraternity dedicated to humanitarian work, and with a membership of 900,000 men throughout the United States and Canada. Nearly 1,000 children receive care and a high school education—plus a trade—at Mooseheart, a 1,200-acre community located 86 miles west of Chicago. Three hundred old folks dwell at Moosehaven, part of Orange Park, Fla., on the banks of the St. John's river, 14 miles south of Jacksonville. The Loyal Order of Moose maintains both communities. Mooseheart children are sons and daughters of members of the Moose. Moosehaven residents are Moose members, wives of members or widows of members.
