Lupe S. Gabaldon Announces For County Sheriff

We have been authorized to publish the announcement of Mr. Lupe S. Gabaldon, for the Republican Nomination for the office of County Sheriff, subject to the approval of the Republican primary June 8th.

Mr. Gabaldon was born at Rahadon Lincoln County, received his education in the public schools of the County, and has resided here for half a century.

He is the father of four children one son a veteran of World War II. Three of his children have completed high school and have done college work, and held responsible positions in the county.

Mr. Gabaldon has served as a deputy sheriff under Sam Kelsey during his two terms and as a deputy under Sheriff Nick S. Vega from his election to the present. He has had experience in handling men, both on his own ranch in the Gallinas mountains and also for other people where he has been employed as foreman. He has never held an elective office.

Mr. Gabaldon is well known in all parts of the county where he has been on official business in his capacity as deputy sheriff, and on personal business, and the knowledge he has thus gained of the vast county area, its roads and trails further qualifies him for this office.

In making the announcement Mr. Gabaldon said, "If nominated and elected, I will serve the people of Lincoln County to the best of my ability, impartially and faithfully, putting the call of duty above all else. I will appreciate the support given me in the June 8th primary election."

W. T. Scoggins, Jr. Announces Candidacy For District Judge

W. T. Scoggins, Jr., candidate for District Judge on the Democratic Ticket at a farm near Las Cruces, New Mexico, on July 12th, 1909. He finished high school at the Las Cruces Union High School in 1928 and was graduated from the New Mexico A&M College in 1932.

He read law in the office of Judge Edwin Mechem for 6 years and has a law degree from the La Salle Extension University at Chicago, Illinois. He was admitted to the New Mexico Bar in March, 1941, after which he was associated in the practice of law with J. Benson Newell until he was appointed District Attorney in June, 1943, to fill out the term of Martin A. Threet, who was appointed Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico.

Mr. Scoggins taught school for 7 years and was President of the New Mexico Principals Association in 1938.

He served two terms as County Tax Assessor of Dona Ana County and was President of the State Organization of County Officials in 1941.

Mr. Scoggins has been a victim of infantile paralysis since he was two years old, and was therefore ineligible for military service.

Mr. Scoggins has been married 14 years and is the father of a boy and two girls.

The Return From Exile
Lesson for April 13, 1943

COWPER'S lines come to mind as we study the dramatic return of the Jews from their exile in Babylon to Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Cyrus, king of Persia, 538 B. C.:
"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform; He plants his footsteps in the sea And rides upon the storm."

And yet it is not altogether strange, for if you will turn to Jeremiah 29:4-14, you will find a prophecy given 50 years before the event that this very thing would occur. There were two other deportations of the Jews from Babylon, prior to the incident in our lesson—the return led by Daniel, 608 B. C., and the one led by Ezekiel, 597 B. C.

PROCLAMATION OF CYRUS
THE proclamation of Cyrus, Ezra 1:1-5, records the happy word to the Jews that they would not only return, but that the temple would be rebuilt. Cyrus called upon all the people who would make offerings by which the temple might be restored. Cyrus was acting under divine impulse in this gracious and generous proclamation.

"The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah," said Cyrus, Ezra 1:2. Fifty thousand Jews, their hearts rejoicing at the thought of returning to the land of their fathers, set out on the trek of 600 miles, laden with gifts from the Persians for the restoration of the temple in Jerusalem. They could now sing the song of the Lord, and no longer did their harps hang silently on the willow trees.

THE DECREE OF ARTAXERXES
THE fourth chapter of Ezra brings us to the halting of the work on the temple, after they had raised the magnificent sum of approximately $400,000, and had laid the foundation for the temple, with imposing ceremonies.

This delay was occasioned by the jealousy of the Samaritans, who went to Artaxerxes, through employed counsel, and convinced him that it would be dangerous to allow these Jews to rebuild Jerusalem. At first, the Samaritans proposed that the Jews let them use the temple in joint worship, but the Jews feared the Samaritans and refused their offer. It was then that the Samaritans effected the delay in the building of the temple by the space of 14 years. Meanwhile, the Jews went forward with the building of their homes and reestablishing themselves and their civilization in Jerusalem.

STICKING TO ONE'S PURPOSE
WE come now to the part Haggai played in summoning the Jews to their duty and obligation to God to restore the temple. It was in the second year of the reign of Darius that Haggai received the word of the Lord. "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your celled houses, and this house lie waste? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Consider your ways."

It was enough. The people rallied to the call of Haggai, and the temple was completed. Men can always do what they ought to do, if they will to do it.

GOD'S PURPOSE FULFILLED
THE message of Haggai was heeded. The temple was completed, Ezra 6:13-18, and God's purpose was fulfilled. Read Psalm 126. This brings us to the golden text: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Luke 9:62. When once the returned exiles felt the iron of God's purpose surging through their veins, they quitted themselves like men, and God's power was everywhere manifest. So may it ever be with us!

As We Achieve
The degree of success which we achieve in making effective our Christian education program in the life of this generation will determine whether future generations will be able to enjoy a society free from the distrust of religious intolerance, the vindictiveness of race prejudice, and the bitterness of class hatred.—Walter W. Hood.

Easily Built Bird House And Feeding Station

If you want to turn your spare time into a useful and productive hobby, make up this birdhouse and feeding station. You'll have fun building these attractive houses and will be agreeably surprised to see what a professional job you can do using only hand tools.

I have each component part of the house in several full sizes on the printed paper pattern, all the mystery usually associated with woodwork is dispelled. You merely cut each piece of wood according to the shape and size of the pattern, then fasten each part together in exact position indicated. Decorating the finished house is further simplified by merely tracing the full size decorating guides directly on the house. The outlines are then painted the colors indicated.

If your youngster is interested in developing a part-time business, get him to make up one or two of these houses or feeding stations. Almost every homeowner is interested in attracting birds and they will be delighted to buy these two houses.

The patterns specify exact size and amount of materials needed. Much of the wood can be salvaged from grocery boxes, crates, etc. Send 25¢ each for Bird House Pattern No. 13 and Feeding Station Pattern No. 9 to East-Build Pattern Company, Department W, Pleasantville, N. J.

MERRY MERRY MERMAID

By MARY LOUISE CHEATHAM

It was still early and the beach was deserted except for a few lone bathers far around the shoreline. Merry finished her splashing in the chilly waters and climbed on a rock by the lakeside, the only rock in view anywhere on the sandy beach. It made a nice spot to sit and dry as the morning sun grew warmer. Spreading her beach robe over the rock to protect her new green bathing suit she rubbed her arms and legs briskly with a towel, then cast it aside and rummaged in the canvas beach bag for her brush and comb, and a hand mirror. She had just finished shaking the water from her long, blonde hair and was brushing it to a golden sheen when a masculine voice beside her told her she was no longer alone.

"Ah, a mermaid!" said the voice, and there stood a bronzed young man in bathing trunks. He was tall and dark and broad-shouldered, and just the sort of a young man a girl dreamed of meeting on her vacation, only he had appeared much too soon. She blushed and groped for an answer. She shivered and sneezed.

"Well," commented the young man, "I don't know mermaid language but kerchoo, yourself."

Without waiting to be asked, he had seated himself on the sand beside the rock and not knowing what else to do Merry went on awkwardly brushing her hair.

"What's your game?" he asked. "Mine's Terry Thornton. Staying with some cousins at that cottage down the line."

"Merry," she admitted unhappily. "Not Mary; Merry, like in Merry Christmas. Only my last name's Day. My mother had original ideas."

"Hmm," Terry mused. "Well, on you it turned out all right, though she took a chance. Supposing you were one of those grave, sober people who go around frowning all the time? But with those dimples and that smile it suits you."

Merry blushed again. It was disconcerting to have a strange young man studying her face so closely, but it was funny, too. She laughed. "Merry," he repeated. "I like that. Merry and Terry. Makes a good combination. Hey! Where you going? Don't jump back in the water, mermaid. I'll only swim right after you!"

"Breakfast," said Merry, gathering up her belongings. "We haven't eaten yet. They're expecting me at the cottage."

"Well," said Terry reluctantly. "Bye, then, for now. See you again." He walked over to the deep end of the pier, waved, dived cleanly and, as Merry left the beach, she saw him swimming with long, sure strokes out to the raft. If only, she thought, he hadn't come along quite so soon! Now she would have to go to the beach even earlier.

"Terry Thornton?" said Mrs. White, with whom Merry was boarding during her vacation. "Why, yes. He comes up here summers to visit relatives in one of those cottages down the row. One of the best swimmers around here. Regular fish."

Merry's heart sank but she ate heartily of the blueberry muffins and decided nothing was going to spoil this vacation of hers. She had planned too long and worked too hard for it, and now she was going to enjoy every minute.

It was not much fun, going in the water so terribly early, but she splashed determinedly the next morning, then spread her beach robe on the sand and lay there on her stomach, soaking up what sunshine there was. Head cradled on elbow, she gazed dreamily at the lake. It was always changing color, like the stone in a ring she used to have—green, blue, silver or gray, according to the light. The office, with its irritations, seemed far away.

"Hello, there!" It was Terry. She sensed his presence before he spoke. "Care for a swim?"

She shook her head. "I've already been in," she said.

"Well," he persisted, "You can go in again."

"No," said Merry. "I like it here on the beach."

"Okay," Terry shrugged. "Suit yourself, I'm going to take a swim, then I've got to go to the village. Be gone all day. You ought to come along."

"No," said Merry. "Thanks anyway."

She was sorry to see him go, yet happy, too. He would be gone all day! As soon as he was completely out of sight she waded back into the water. Olga, Mrs. White's cook, came wading out but Merry didn't mind. Olga was plump and comfortable and she was eating an apple.

She had just finished shaking the water from her long, blonde hair and was brushing it to a golden sheen when a masculine voice beside her told her she was no longer alone.

"Can you swim, Olga?" called Merry.

"No," answered Olga, "but I can float." She lay back, easily, on the surface of the water and continued eating her apple, gazing unconcernedly up at the sky.

"That's wonderful!" said Merry. She tried it but sank immediately, and sat up, gasping and blowing water out of her nose. A peal of laughter rang out and she looked into the face of a 10-year-old boy who was swimming about like a porpoise.

"Here's the way," he said, and floated like Olga. "Gee!" he said. "Don't you know how to swim?"

"No," Merry admitted, sadly. "I've never been around water, much. I've always lived in the city, and I just never did learn."

"It's easy," said the boy. "Watch here."

So the lessons began. Hopeful and hopeless by turn, Merry kicked and splashed. Her freckle-faced tutor was a hard taskmaster and a merciless critic. They kept at it most of the day but Merry still couldn't stay on top of the water. "Looks like I'll never learn!" she thought, but early the next morning she was at it again. She managed to be lying on the beach when Terry dropped by. She turned down his invitation to go on an all-day boating trip with some friends. "Another day," she thought hopefully. Her young instructor turned up again that afternoon, as enthusiastic as Merry was determined.

Day after day, by some ruse or other, she managed to avoid Terry and keep on with her attempts to swim. "I don't know why I don't tell him," she thought. "He probably would teach me himself but he might think I am awfully stupid, the way I don't make any progress. Somehow, I am ashamed to let him know."

She went on practicing strokes and kicks, swallowing water and floundering in despair—and then, one day, one day of days, it happened! She swam! Only a few feet at first, then farther and farther and farther with practice. Bobby, her 10-year-old teacher, jumped up and down and shrieked with joy, and they had a water-fight to celebrate. After that, nothing could stop her. It was just an easy sidestroke but it was swimming!

"Tell you what," said Bobby. "I'll take the rowboat and row alongside in case you need me, and I think by now you can easily make it as far as the raft."

"All right," Merry agreed bravely. "I'll do it."

She lay on her side, taking slow, easy strokes, watching Bobby in the boat. The water felt wonderful—she felt wonderful herself! Hardly out of breath at all, she reached the raft.

"Hurray!" shouted Bobby. "You made it!"

"Hurray!" echoed another voice. "Three cheers for the merry mermaid!"

And there on the raft, outlined against the sun, was Terry. Eagerly, he pulled her out of the water.

"I crown you queen of the mermaids," he said, adorning her head with a dripping white waterlily he had brought from the lagoon. "So you learned to swim in less than two weeks!"

Merry caught her breath. "How did you know?" she asked.

"Well," said Terry, smiling deeply into her eyes. "That kid brother of mine is a pretty good teacher."

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU

BY CHARLES J. ROTH

A Good Conversationist

That the man I have just spent a week with has mastered one of the most important of all human arts, there is no doubt. Wherever we went he charmed those we met, charmed them by his personality, his graciousness, his poise, but principally by his conversation.

For he seemed to know exactly what to say to everyone to whom we talked. I mentioned it to him. "Oh, it's simple," he replied, "all I do is talk to them in terms of interests—their interests—their SPECIAL INTERESTS."

Every human being, as you know, has certain subjects in which he is especially interested—his business, his hobby, his family, some outside accomplishment, politics, something that especially interests.

Anything that appeals to a person's special interests, identifies you with him; will get and hold his attention—and if you get and hold anyone's attention he will find you an engaging personality.

If you want your personality to appeal to others, all you have to do is follow the few simple rules which my friend explained to me.

"The first thing you have to do is to find out what your person's interests are," he began. "And that is not hard. Listen to anyone talk. We all talk most about what interests us most. You can also ask others about the interests of the person you are going to meet. It isn't hard to get information."

"Then," he continued, "acquire knowledge on the subject." None of us likes to talk to an ignoramus, but you can read up on any subject and get a passable knowledge of it.

"Then—and this is the last rule—all you have to do is show him you are interested in the subject, too. Then in his eyes you become irresistibly interesting. See how easy it is?"

Peaches also spruce up meat. Use broiled mint peaches with lamb, carried peaches with veal, scupperd peaches with sausage, and serve catsup glazed peaches for meat loaf or with pot roast.

Fill a chilled Graham cracker crust with drained sliced cling peaches. Cover with a generous topping of whipped cream with folded-in toasted coconut. It's delicious!

Corduroy is excellent for a young man's room. Use light weight corduroy for window draperies and bedspread in plain colors such as bottle-green, wine-red, or navy-blue.

DEWY-EYED and shivering...
Facing the morning
In starting on the journey of today;
In old worlds faded and seemingly forgotten;
In old scars wiped away.

This brave new world! How smoothly it is won
From out the darkest corners of the night;
How valiantly it bids itself to enter
The splendid ways of light!

So would I shake the darkness from my eyes;
So would I don my garments with the dawn,
The old protocols healed, the old stars unremembered,
And thus I would move on—
Into the waiting ways of light and splendor,
My heart's bright banner lifted and unfurled,
That I may be a valiant marching forward
To this brave new world.

"Yesterday's Fashions Today" how famous hat designers delve into history for today's "new look". Read this intriguing article in the American Weekly, that great magazine distributed with next Sunday's Los Angeles Examiner. Profits that come from exploitation of land are costly profits. Large profits which result from a drain on soil fertility are not real profits, because the replacement of the fertility in the soil will cost even more.

The children of the town engaged in an Easter Egg hunt Sunday. Hen fruit in colors that would abash the modest barnyard fowl, was plucked from every corner and the children enjoyed it very much. The hens continued to sing their little lay, just as if nothing had happened. A young man Enoch Engstrom, returned yesterday from Carrizozo, to which point some powerful magnet had attracted him a few days earlier. He was all smiles, and said he had a delightful time; for he found a portion of Carrizozo's population quite entertaining and very attractive. The first game of ball, matched this season in this section, will be played at Capitán next Sunday, the contestants being Fort Stanton and Capitán mines. Both teams have some good material, but a portion of each is an unknown quantity, and we'll know more about their playing when the sphere is put in action on the diamond.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Lewis Battles Taft-Hartley Law; Baruch Sees 'Total Mobilization'; Eisenhower Repeats His Refusal

Released by WNU Feature

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

LABOR:

Lewis Fight

John L. Lewis and the Taft-Hartley law were locked in a mortal struggle.

His United Mine Workers were still out of the pits in a "voluntary" objection to the companies' alleged refusal to provide them with a $100-a-month pension plan. Most of the 400,000 miners were out fishing. Lewis himself was out gunning for the Taft-Hartley law, enactment of which was largely the result of his activities in the first place.

After the miners had gone out, President Truman, acting under the Taft-Hartley law, had appointed a fact-finding board to investigate the difficulties. But when the board asked John L. Lewis to testify, he refused.

Then the board issued a subpoena requesting that he appear. Again Lewis refused, stating that the board had no right to demand his presence before it.

He said he based his disinclination to testify on the facts that:

1. Neither he nor the UMW had done anything covered by the Taft-Hartley law, thereby nullifying the President's invocation of the law, and

2. Two of the three board members were "biased and prejudiced and in honor should not serve."

Finally, minutes before the deadline, the burly, bushy-eyebrowed chief appeared.

It was obvious, of course, that the UMW chief was out to break the Taft-Hartley enactment. Apparently he was determined to drag the pension dispute all the way through the courts—preferably as high as the supreme court to get a final verdict.

And any way it turned out, the process would react for the miners' immediate benefit. While the courts were mulling over the matter the date for the annual renewal of the mine workers' contract in June would be approaching. The longer the present dispute remained unsettled, the worse the nation's coal situation would grow, thus putting Lewis in a good bargaining position to extract a favorable contract for next year.

MOBILIZE:

Controls?

Bernard M. Baruch approves of selective service and universal military training for the present quarter, but he does not think that is enough to meet all the implications of the world situation.

The financier and presidential adviser called also for an "economic mobilization plan" and said that America's failure to muster all its resources now for peace would leave "no alternative but to mobilize for war" in the future.

Baruch told the senate armed services committee that he was afraid that if the nation suddenly and without preparation was called upon to mobilize and prepare for a big war, such forces of domestic inflation would be set in motion as could blow the country wide open and leave it defenseless.

He suggested the appointment of someone to "watch the impact upon our economy of the partial mobilization we are entering upon and to maintain a constant inventory, balancing all our growing commitments against our resources."

It had not been a hidden threat, but Baruch's statement had focused attention on the possible danger that a sudden spate of military spending could bring about ruinous inflation.

As a result, talk of reviving the dormant OPA was being heard in Washington. Baruch's warning touched off internal discussions in congress about the possibility of reviving wage-price controls, rationing and other curbs on the domestic economy.

This, of course, had been an integral part of President Truman's famous 10-point program against inflation which he proposed last year, but most congressmen virtually had gagged at the thought of reimposing price and wage controls, and the President was accused of trying to set up something like a "police state."

Now, however, congressmen were not so sure. They were beginning to wonder if the military spending necessary to contain Russia might not have to be buttressed by controls at home.

BUNDLE FROM HEAVEN

New Minor Planet 'Swims Into Ken'

U. S. astronomers have revealed the discovery of a bundle from heaven—a strange new minor planet which moves around the sun at high speed.

The planetoid is only about two miles in diameter. Although there are about 100 of these minor planets of matter, all circling around the sun like the sun, most of them

'Greatest Killer'

Glenn L. Martin, pioneer aircraft builder, revealed that the U. S. has developed an offensive weapon superior to the atomic bomb. He called it a "radioactive cloud—the greatest killer of human beings ever devised." Martin said also, "I'd be in favor of using it before I'd become a slave to another nation."

LUCIUS CLOBB
On War Nerves

"Pharonic," said Lucius Clobb to his helpmate as he arranged a quizzical wrinkle in his brow, "d'you think we're thunderin' toward another war?"

"Soon as you open your mouth I figure we're in for at least a skirmish," retorted Pharonic. "If you spent half as much time cultivating my peace of mind as you do your soybeans we wouldn't have near the arguments we do." She impaled the elder statesman of Psychoooley county on a spearlike glance.

"Dang it, Pharonic, why do you have to drag your rockin' chair militarism into everything I set out to do a little talkin' out? One of the reasons you married me in the first place was to get security. Now you got security but you still want to fight."

The light of creative achievement gleamed brightly in Lucius Clobb's eye. "Say, by gosh, that there gives me a right smart idea for an aphorism. Nothing I like better than an aphorism. What d'you think of this Pharonic's Dilemma 1941 and 1945 we were united with Russia in the bonds of holy war-look, but now the honeymoon's over, the lock is busted and there ain't nothin' left of the original idea except war."

"Mister Clobb, you can put that out in the corn crib with the rest of your aphorisms," commented the critical Pharonic.

"Kobbe so," sighed the elder statesman, "but it worries me—not knowin' how to feel about this here world situation. I'm gettin' on toward 69, so I could afford to think that in order to have peace and a secure-foreign-policy we first got to rig up a strong backbone at home. And a strong backbone right now means a strong army and navy and air force."

REPEAT:

Ike's 'No'

Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower, fair-haired boy of both political parties, said it once more: He would not be a presidential candidate on anybody's ticket.

There had been a hull following his unequivocal refusal of Republican overtures, and then the pro-Eisenhower sentiment was resurrected in the hearts of the fever than four widely divergent groups.

Probably the most unique approach was being made by Torrey Stearns, a New York public relations man, who harbors the opinion that Eisenhower is a Republican. He conceived a "People for Eisenhower" movement. The method is a nationwide solicitation of voting citizens to send in postcards bearing this signed testimony:

"I want to vote for General Eisenhower for president in November. I am a citizen of voting age."

"On June 21," Stearns announced, "all of the statements will be presented to the Republican national convention as indisputable evidence that the people of the United States demand the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower for president."

But Eisenhower was having none of it. Speaking through a statement by Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, army press chief, he indicated that "his no politics statement of some weeks ago" should "apply to all parties and groups of voters."

Said Parks: "He has not changed one iota in his position and I do not believe he will do so."

SHIPBOARD WATCH IN EGYPT... As a welcome relief from pictures of profound significance, this is just a photograph of an Egyptian camel driver standing on top of his camel in front of one of the pyramids of Giza and looking for whatever camel drivers look for in Egypt. Probably more camels.

BIG SHOT COMBINATION... Number one father-and-son combination rifle team in the U.S. in 1948 were Harry J. Grimesey (left) and son Robert, 17, of Janesville, Wis. Grimesey, senior, a supervisor in the Parker Pen company plant in Janesville, recently set a national record of 199 for the prone and kneeling positions. Bob is an Eagle scout as well as a champion marksman.

JUST A COUPLE OF ELEPHANTS... This is the season of the year when circus press agents start trying with politicians to see which can make more noise and get more space in the newspapers for their assorted exhibits and freaks. Here, for instance, are two elephants of the Dalley Brothers circus which wintered in Geassies, Tex., and is ready for a tour of the country this summer.

COMPULSORY TRAINING IN CHINA... Stricken with continuous war for a decade, China has turned to compulsory military training to provide manpower. Here, at a ceremony held in the westside of the Shanghai city council, Shanghai's first lot drawing for military service was held. There were 211 numbered bamboo tickets in the jar.

Bigger Fowl Contest Extended for Year

Poultry Raisers Seek Heavier Farm Flocks

Bigger and better drumsticks for "Junior" are sought in the national Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest, which will be extended through 1948. The decision to continue the event was made in response to demand from poultry raisers from coast-to-coast.

Unlike popular reducing fads among the hen's human counterparts, this barnyard project is designed to add weight to the farm flocks and to give American chicken eaters more for their money. Poultrymen from all parts of the country are joining in the hunt for a breeding formula which will add at least 10 per cent more meat to the present-day chicken. A higher percentage of meat on the bone structure and even meatier wings are sought, thus assuring "Junior" that no longer will only a skimpy appendage be left as his lot when the dinner platter arrives at his lowly place.

The industry-wide educational breeding contest originally was set up on a three-year basis, with two years of state and regional contests culminating in a grand national championship this spring in Delaware. Forty top breeders throughout the nation will send eggs to the finals, where they will be hatched and raised under identical conditions under supervision of the department of agriculture. Winners will receive $7,000 in prizes awarded by A & P stores, sponsors of the contest.

Expensive Alarm

Why keep a rooster when an alarm clock is cheaper?

That question is posed by Boyd A. Ivory, Wyoming agricultural extension service poultry specialist. A rooster, Ivory points out, eats about $5 worth of feed a year at current prices. All you get in return, he insists, is a lot of crowing—accompanied by NO eggs!

A rooster is worthless in a poultry flock unless he is being used for breeding purposes in supplying fertile eggs for hatcheries or home incubation.

Hens won't lay any more eggs than they are laying just because a rooster is on the premises, so why not sell that "crowing so-and-so"?

Trade him for a $1.93 alarm clock that tells the time of day for the entire 24 hours and you'll save about $3 in feed costs on the swap!

Quality Chicks Needed To Offset Feed Costs

One method through which poultrymen can combat the present high cost of feed is to purchase good quality chicks. Feed costs, records compiled by the extension service indicate, now amount to 80 per cent or more of the total cost of producing eggs and chicken meat in contrast to 50 per cent in normal times.

Tree 'Butchery' Blamed On Untrained Pruners

It often takes 50 to 75 years to raise a good shade tree. But, extension foresters insist, it takes only a few minutes for an untrained pruner to ruin its beauty. Poor trimming technique is destroying the beauty of many streets.

Examples of good pruning are seen on most public building grounds. On the other hand, on almost any street examples of tree "butchery" can be seen.

Italian Genius, 8, Directs Orchestra In Carnegie Hall

Appreciative Audience Applauds Before Selections Are Ended

NEW YORK—Ferruccio Burco, 8-year-old conductor who began his rise to fame in Rome, made his American debut in short, "stovepipe" pants before a packed Carnegie hall audience, which applauded enthusiastically.

The applause broke out before the overture ended, as it did with every subsequent selection. In the "William Tell" overture the applause that broke in was so deafening that the 80-piece orchestra, kettle-drums, full brasses and all, was drowned in the larger sound.

One thing definite that can be said about Burco — he likes to play loud. It can also be said that he knows how to keep music lively, vigorous, melodious and firm in its rhythms. In the case of the Italian operatic selections, too, he knew what he wanted.

But just how much talent he has and how much he really knows is, perhaps, open to question. Benjamin Bonito, the impresario of the New Jersey Grand Opera, who presented him, made sure he had a good orchestra, engaging almost the entire New York Philharmonic-Symphony for the occasion.

The men, undoubtedly, could play the familiar classics for almost anyone who could beat time. Then, too, the program was almost identical with the one the youngster gave in Rome. So there is no telling how many works the boy knows, though he conducted all the selections from memory except the Prelude to "La Forza del Destino," which closed the program. He brought in the score for this, but hardly seemed to consult it.

Each selection evoked an ovation, and flowers were bestowed on him after two of the numbers. At the end of the Wagner prelude, a woman in the front row was so moved that she got up and made a speech. She insisted, too, on kissing the boy's hand. She was Maria Dell'Orefice of the Hotel Bellechance. So happy at expressing her feeling, she did not resent being ejected.

This Tax Payer Believes that U.S. Has Him by the Collar

HARTFORD, CONN.—Federal tax officials here told of a man who enclosed a collar in a letter asking for a copy of his 1946 tax return.

"This doesn't make sense," the man wrote, "but if that is the rule, then that is the rule."

Investigation proved that the taxpayer was right. He had written previously asking for a copy of his return and had been told it would cost him "one collar."

Embarrassed, bureau officials said such typographical errors—"collar" for "dollar"—were rare but they did happen.

Pilot With Broken Neck Flew Fighter During War

WASHINGTON—A former army bomber pilot testified that he was required to fly 15 combat missions with a broken neck before medical officers would ground him.

He flew the missions strapped to his seat and with a board strapped to his back, he told a house armed services subcommittee. His neck had been broken, he said, when his plane crashed in flames in the China sea. The testimony was given by Lt. Thomas L. Frazer, Adrian, Ga. He was one of four crippled officers who told congressmen that they have been unable to get disability retirements despite severe wounds.

The other three were ground officers, and all had started their army careers as enlisted men. They are Capt. Charles Ogden, San Jose, Calif., Congressional Medal of Honor winner; Capt. Frederick J. Bready, North Wilbraham, Mass., and Capt. Thaddeus S. Moore, Highland Park, Mich.

Frazer, who wore a high neck brace as he testified, said his injury was first diagnosed as a muscle strain. He flew until one arm became paralyzed, then hospital examinations showed that his neck had been fractured.

He has been a patient at Walter Reed hospital here since last October. He said he was wearing the brace when the army discharged him.

The committee called Frazer and the others as witnesses in its investigation of the army and navy retirement systems.

Have Rats on Your Farm?

Here's How to Take a Census

EAST LANSING, MICH.—According to a rat census method developed by Michigan State college:

If you never see rats, but see signs of their damage, there are 1 to 100 rats on the farm.

If you see rats now and then at night there are 100 to 500.

If you see rats every night and occasionally in the daytime, there are from 500 to 1,000.

If you see many rats at night and several every day you have from 1,000 to 5,000.

Variety of Salads Offers Inspiration For Meal Planning

How much can a salad do for a meal? Well, you all know it adds precious vitamins and minerals to the meal, but have you thought about how much flavor and true texture contrast it brings, too?

There are thousands of salads from which to draw for true meal inspiration. There's a crisp, green, tossed type for the really heavy meal; there's a cheese and vegetable combination for the meal to which you want to add more protein, and then there's a tossed fruit or molded fruit when you want to add toothsome interest to the meal or have the salad double for dessert. Don't neglect the plain lettuce salads when you lack inspiration for an idea. You can vary the lettuce with several different dressings made beforehand or tossed quickly together the last minute.

Flavor artistically like this can be practiced by any cook to add new meal interest. Subtly flavored, delicately pink tinted shrimp and mellow green avocados are as happy a blending of flavors and colors as ever graced a salad plate.

Vegetable Salad Bowl (Serves 6)

- 2 small tomatoes
- 1/2 Spanish onion
- 1/2 cucumber scored
- 1/2 green pepper
- 1/2 bunch radishes
- 1 stalk endive
- 1/2 small head of lettuce
- 1/2 small head of escarole
- 1/2 small head of chicory
- French or Roquefort dressing

Peel and chill tomatoes. Slice onion, cucumber, green pepper and tomatoes. Slice radishes half way through. Arrange on clean, crisp, chilled salad greens and place dressing in a small bowl in the center or toss through the salad just before serving.

Tomato Cottage Cheese Mold (Serves 5)

- 2 tablespoons plain gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 4 cups tomato juice
- 1 onion
- 1/2 cup celery
- 4 cloves
- 6 peppercorns
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 pint cottage cheese

Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Cook tomato juice with onion, celery, cloves and peppercorns for 10 minutes. Strain and add to soaked gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Add sugar, salt and lemon juice. Pour into large mold or several small molds. Serve with seasoned mayonnaise.

Health Salad (Serves 5)

- 1 cup raw, sliced cauliflower
 - 1 cup raw, grated carrots
 - 2 cups shredded lettuce
 - 1 bunch radishes
 - 1/3 cup nuts, if desired
 - Mayonnaise or bottled dressing
- Combine vegetables and lettuce. Chill. Add nuts and toss in dressing just before serving.

Do you like main dish salads for lunch? You'll enjoy these interesting types:

Tongue Macaroni Salad (Serves 4)

- 1 small can tongue
- 2 cups chilled cooked macaroni
- 1/4 cup sliced, stuffed olives
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 3 tablespoons sliced onion
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Mayonnaise
- Sliced greens

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- Baked Beans with Wieners
- Vegetable Salad Bowl
- Hard Rolls
- Fresh or Stewed Fruit
- Beverage
- Cookies
- Recipe given

Cube the tongue. Add all other ingredients and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in a bowl lined with salad greens.

Asparagus Salad (Serves 6)

- 1 No. 2 can asparagus, drained
- Salad greens
- 3 slices boiled ham or salami
- 2 finely chopped hard-cooked eggs
- French dressing

Arrange chilled asparagus tips on salad greens. Sprinkle with eggs and pour dressing over all. Make cornucopias out of meat and place around the salad.

Fruit Salad Bowl (Serves 5)

- 2 heads romaine
- 1 pineapple, pared, cored and sliced
- 2 grapefruit, peeled and sectioned
- 1 red apple, sliced
- 1/2 pound grapes, seeded
- 1 orange peeled and sectioned
- Whipped cream mayonnaise

Line salad bowl with romaine and lettuce. Divide bowl into four divisions with half slices of pineapple. Arrange alternate sections of grapefruit and apple slices in one division, and place remaining fruits in separate divisions. Fill center with mayonnaise. Whipped cream mayonnaise is made by adding half whipped cream to half mayonnaise.

Molded Fruit Salad (Serves 6)

- 1 No. 3 can crushed pineapple
- 1 package fruit gelatin
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 6 ounces cream cheese
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 3/4 cup chopped nuts
- 1 cup seedless grapes or white cherries
- 3/4 cup diced marshmallows
- 1/2 cup diced celery
- 2 mandarin, diced

Drain pineapple. Measure juice and add enough water to make one cup. Heat juice to boiling and add gelatin and salt. Stir until dissolved. Cool, and when it begins to thicken, add cheese which has been softened and whipped with an eggbeater. Whip cream until stiff and fold into gelatin with remaining ingredients. Pour into individual or large molds and let chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce.

Diced apricots or peaches may be used in place of pineapple.

Chef's Dressing (For Greens)

Mix together 1 cup salad oil with 1/4 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon sugar and 1 tablespoon grated onion. To make French

Tossed green salads are true harbingers of spring because they bring true color of the gardens as well as freshness and crispness to the meal. Use tossed salads when the meal is heavy and when you require sharpness and crispness for contrast.

In serving salads, remember that they will be more tasty if all the ingredients are thoroughly chilled. It's also a good idea to chill the plates or bowls in which salads are served. Lettuce should be washed and dried carefully to prevent bruising the leaves. Shake the lettuce in a sugar bag for perfect drying.

An easy and satisfying lunch on days you've wakened too late for breakfast consists of broiled bacon and fried eggs served in toasted, buttered buns.

Keep your dried fruits in the refrigerator so they'll hold their original bright color, flavor and vitamin C. This also keeps them safe from insect damage.

Don't try to put fresh pineapple in gelatin and expect the latter to jell. Pineapple contains an enzyme which peptonizes the gelatin. Cook the fruit first.

Trained Homemaker Shortage in America

Maudie Morlock, consultant to the United States Children's Service, believes this country is far behind in supplying homemakers services for families temporarily without the help of their mothers.

"In this country," Miss Morlock said, "we have only made a slight beginning to develop trained homemakers who can take over the duties of a mother who is temporarily disabled or absent from her home."

She rated the U. S. second in a survey she conducted to all the following countries: England, New Zealand, New South Wales, Sweden and Denmark.

CAPTAN SOLDIER IN PERU RECEIVES AWARD

T/Sgt. James M. Dockray, of Capitan, New Mexico, was recently awarded the Commendation Ribbon by the Army for meritorious service with the Army Ground Mission in Lima, Peru.

A Member of the Mission since October 1944 Sgt. Dockray received the award for outstanding services from November 1st 1944 to October 1st 1947.

In recommending the award to
Sgt. Dockray, Colonel C. H. McFarland, Chief of the Mission in Peru, said: "Sgt. Dockray gave valuable assistance to the Centro de Instruc-cion de Automovil by acting for a period of one year as principal instructor for student mechanics. The result of this work was the development of the first group of military mechanics of the Peruvian Army."

Sgt. Dockray furthermore did valuable work in organizing the Automotive Spare Parts warehouse of the Automotive Service. During one entire summer he voluntarily relinquished the accepted shortened working hours and worked on a full schedule in order to put the warehouse in operation.

Born at Roswell, New Mexico,
Sgt. Dockray was employed as a diesel operator for the B. C. Dunlop Company at Dallas, Texas and with the Municipal Light and Power Company at Capitan, New Mexico before entering the service.

Sgt. Dockray's wife and two children live with him in Lima, Peru.

$2,237.50 U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

Lincoln Countians invested
$2,237.50 in U. S. Savings Bonds, at issue price, during the month of March. It was announced here today by S. E. Greiser, Chairman of this county's Savings Bonds Committee. This brings the total investments of these Bonds for the first quarter of 1948 to $23,500
Savings invested in Series E Bonds during March of $2,737.50 raises the total for 1948 to $15,600.

The Security Bond Drive, which was launched by President Truman in a radio address on April 14, continues through June 30. In the three-months drive, New Mexicans are expected to buy $7,000,000 worth of Security Bonds of all three series—E, F, and G. Security
Bonds are the same as Defense, War, and Savings Bonds except that the limit of $5,000, maturity value, in any calendar year, has been raised to $10,000. The increased limit will make more Series E
Bonds available to large investors.
A man and wife may now buy
$20,000 worth of E Bonds for $15,
000 purchase price.
