Micaiah, A Prophet of Israel Lesson for July 4, 1948

WE BEGIN a new series of studies this quarter—a series studies this quarter—a series of lessons based on less known Bible characters that have much to offer us. Such a character is found in Micaiah, about whom we learn in I Kings 22:1-40.

Ahab, king of Israel, planned an expedition to recover the city of Ramoth in Gilead, which the Syrians had taken: He invited Jehoshaphat. king of Judah, to join him. Ahab relied upon his court prophets to predict victory; but Micaiah, the prophet of God, whom Ahab had shut up in prison, when he was summoned, at the insistence of Jehoshaphat, told Ahab the truth-the unpleasant truth-which subsequent events verified.

BRAVE ENOUGH TO TELL THE TRUTH

Dr. Newton

THE first blessing in the study of this obscure Bible character, Micaiah, is to discover a man who was brave enough to tell the truth when he knew it was unpopular.

It is always the best policy to tell the truth, sthough there be many in 'today's world who deny this principle. It is not enough to say that we will tell the truth because it pays. That is true, but it is a by-product of doing what is right. One must tell the truth because it is right to tell the truth. Men swear with their hand upon the Holy Bible that what they testify is the truth and nothing but the truth. But, alas, such men often tell anything but the truth. They have been corefully coached to evade the truth.

Micaiah told the truth, because he was speaking for God. It hurt him, but it must needs be the truth which he spoke to Ahab.

TRUTH DISREGARDED

HAB scorned the words of Mi-(12) calah, and ordered him thrown back to prison. But scarcely had the prophet of God been thrust again into prison, until Ahab was bleeding to death in his charlot.

Men not only take their own lives in their hands when they disregard the truth, but, like stubborn Ahab, they bring grief to countless others. Had Ahab beeded the words of truth which Micalah proclaimed. Ahab might have lived. Indeed, had Ahab heeded the words of truth, he might have recovered Ramoth, and more beside.

Truth may appear forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne, but time always proves a hard taskmaster to the man who regards wrong instead of truth.

THE SOURCE OF TRUTH

OD is the source of truth-all truth. If we miss this, we miss the lesson of the lesson. Note the words of the golden text, "As the Lord liveth, what the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak," said Micalah.

Let us remember that it was God speaking through his prophet. Ahab sould not have doubted that Micaiah was speaking what God had told him to speak. But Ahab did not want to hear the truth. He wanted to hear pleasing words that would encourage him in his evil plan.

God speaks the first and last word on every subject, because God is truth. "I am the truth," said Jesus. And he went on to say, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

THE PENALTY OF DISOBERING THE TRUTH

TIORRIBLE, indeed, was the pen-II alty which Ahab suffered for disregarding the truth. The way of the transgressor is hard-always hard. The wages of sin is death. Be sure your sine will find you out.

Take down your cherished books of history. What do they say to you? That the straight line of truth is the only safe way in which to walk. It is applicable for the individual, for the family, for the community, for the nation, for civilization.

Thus every great prayer must be, "Thy will be done," God's will is the way of truth. Micalah declared it. Every true prophet must declare it. It is the only way to peace and joy in this world.

Here's Your Vegetable Canning Guide (See directions below)

Conning Time

IT'S TIME to roll up those sleeves again and start taking out canning equipment. The corn is sweet and tender, the pea pods are full and 'green, and carrots are still in that nice young, crisp stage - all of which makes them can-worthy.

It's not a good idea to wait too long before putting up vegetables because the produce gets too old and, as you know, conning merely preserves, it works no wrinkle smooth or restores no color to old vegetables. When you want a good product from the can, start with superior material. That means fresh from the garden produce, two hours from garden to can, if you can manage It. Here are some tips to select good produce. Asparagus should be tender. green and freshly cut. If possible cut when it is no more than five inches tall so the ends of the stalks will have a minimum of woody | ready. liber.

Only freshly picked green beans should be used as they dry easily upon standing. If you pick your swn, then get them after the dew is off. Shapely, beautifully green anes can be canned whole.

Lima beans should be almost mature but still green in color as well as being very sweet and sender. If immature, they lack flavor: if too old, they are like dried lima beaus.

Young beets, the size of a golf ball, are ideal for canning. Be careful not to break the skin or tap the roots of the beets in order to preserve the color.

used for canning. To select the best com for canning push a fingernail sharply into the corn kernel. If the milk is thin and sweet, the corn is perfect for canning. When the milk is thick, the eorn is past the to within one-half inch of the top.

ranning stage. Carrols, when right for canning, are sweet and tender. The young carrois which are about threefourths of an inch in diameter make the best canned product

In canning greens, select only sender young produce with undamnged leaves, and have them freshly picked or at least as fresh as possible. Don't use old produce with large tough stems and midribs.

To test for tenderness in okra, pierce a pod with the thumbrail arid if it cuts through easily the rezetable is ripe.

Peas will not wait for canning pecause it takes only a few hours for peas to develop from the right stage, which is tender, sweet and alightly immature, to the point where they are starchy and not as good tasting. Gather pods early in the morning, selecting those which are very green and crisp and well filled with peas.

FLAN TO HAVE all canning equipment ready by the time you go after your produce so that you can bring it into the house and start it on its way. If you just have to go out into the garden to pick the vegetables you can even start your water boiling for the precooking.

LYNN SAYS: More's Tipe on Causing Vegetables at Messe.

All vegetables contain enzymes which cause various changes in color, flavor and fexture. To the home somer the most obvious size of encymatic activity is that of food turning dark on top of the jur.

Have water in the pressure cooker. You can start this heating as soon as you come in because there's not very much water needed. Naturally, you have checked the pressure cooker previously to make certain it closes properly and that the pressure gauge works too.

Cleaning equipment such as kettles and colanders, paring knives and other things also should be

WASH FOODS before cutting. stemming or hulling. You'll probably need several changes of water for absolute cleanliness. Handle the vegetables gently and lift them out of the water rather than pouring it off them. Discard any spelled vegetables during washing.

Try to use the same sized pieces for each jar. Those vegetables which are outsized may be cut up rather than canned whole.

Then prepare as necessary for each vegetable, cutting green beans, shelling peas, scraping carrois, et cetera.

Precook or blanch (immerse in hot water) long enough to shrink ONLY SWEET CORN can be or wilt the vegetables to get a better pack. Vegetables may be placed | the longer dresses now being worn, in a cheesecloth eack and immersed is in boiling water.

> Fill sterile jars to within one inch of the top. Then add boiling water One teaspoon of sait to each quart also may be added before the water is pottred in > Adjust lids according to manufacturers' directions.

> Place the rack in the bottom of the messure cocker and set the jars on it. Leave a little space between the jars so that the steam can circulate freely. Only enough jars to fit in the pressure cooker should be prepared at one time.

Adjust the pressure cooker cover and screw down the safety valve. Steam should be allowed to escape only through the petcock.

Allow the petcock to remain open from seven to 10 minutes, counting from the time the steam begins to escape steadily. Close the pelcock.

Allow the pressure to come within two or three pounds of the desired amount, then lower heat. This prevents overshooting the desired pressure mark moment the gauge registers the desired pounds of pressure. Have pressure remain as constant as possible so you neither overcook or underprocess your food.

Jars may be removed with a lifter onto layers of newspapers or cloth. Keep them away from drafts.

Beets which do not have an even distribution of coloring usually will have better color if pared, cut and precooked for five minutes before canning. They reabsorb color when handled this way.

Woman's World

Give Summer Clothes Fresh Touches With Simple Tricks

By Ertta Haley

CLOTHES usually show infinite variety, and the desire for this seems boundless. However, most of us can afford only one wardrobe, if that, for a season, and it's nice when we can do something simple at home to freshen up the dresses.

This year, particularly, women's summer clothing is full of tricks to make them more feminine, more colorful and more summer-like. If you need to perk up the wardrobe a bit, any one of these sewing tricks I'm going to tell you about will do lots for your morale.

Gloves Can Be Decorative

You've never seen gloves within recent years that look like those being shown now. Even gentle pastels are breaking out with a rash of color. Sweet powder blue ones are made more surprising and daring with a flash of cherry red at the wrists. This is easy to do at home even to a pair of white gloves for they can be tinted, and the color added from another piece of fabric.

Or if you are wearing white gloves with a summer print, a place of that print might be used to decorate the cuffs of your gloves. It takes but a few minutes to cut and single or double frilly row. Eyelet or lace is particularly effective if you are going to wear gloves with a dress that is similarly trimmed.

Camisoles Are Pepular Under Sheer Blouses

Almost every good looking organdle blouse that is being sold comes with a camisole. Take the tip if you're planning to make a frilly blouse, and make a camisole to wear underneath it. To be in high fashion, make it fit beautifully, have wide strape on it and a pretty ribbon that you can run through the lace or eyelet.

Or if you are making a slip to wear underneath sheer dresses. especially those with sheer tops, you'll be right in step with the times if you make that with a camisole attached.

Slips naturally are longer to fit

Or make a blouse for skirt.

so you'll have to take this into consideration if you are using old pat-

Half slips are made as pretty as the camisoles for many of them come with at least one flounce at the hem, and others with a lot of eyelet decorated with ribbon of course, done up in a nice full ruffle.

Dark half slips are popular under billowy skirts and these frequently have a gay plaid flounce on them, a good idea for lengthening some Count processing time from the too short half slips you may alteady have.

> Skirts are being tucked up in one or two places just alightly to show off the pretty flounce underneath, and you'll find it a very pretty touch for teen-aged daughter.

Here Are Tips For Basic Dresses

In case your basic dress has become just a little weary you can dress it up with nice simple touches. The first and easiest idea consists of changing the buttons, Elaborate, jeweled buttons are high fashion and can do much to decorate a simple dress,

Another very smart idea for the older or younger woman is the use of a stole with a dark dress. Choose some material in a nice print, or if you want to be more dramatic, a nice stripe with giorious shades of color. All the material needs is finishing at both ends, for it can be draped suitably around the shoulders.

If you would choose a demurely différent touch for your basic dress select a smart and practical capelet collar of plque, sharkskin or one of the lovely crisp whites. These are entirely separate and can be kept immaculately fresh very casily. Select a style with Cavaller points or neckband, according to the needs of your basic dress.

A dark bolero is very good to use on a print dress if you want to make it more sophisticated. Black is a good color to use with pink, aqua or soft green prints. If you like, select a wide black belt to put on the dress to carry out the dark motif in the bolero.

If you have made the print your-This may be eyelet or lace, in a self, you may have enough material to make cuits of the print on the bolero. Wide culls are very popular.

'If you don't want either capelet or bolero, make up a jacket in a brilliant color to give your basic dress a real lift. Light blue, plak or red goes well with navy; belge or pink go nicely with brown, and green looks well with black.

Frenken Hals With Flowers

Open crowned hats are especially easy to freshen if they have flowers or ribbon because either of them can be changed.

If the hat is a pastel shade and you want to clean it, dip a soft brush or cloth in cleaning fluid and rub over the hat gently. You then may decorate with new ribbon or flowers to match, perhaps, another suit or dress you are wearing.

These half hats will look especially refreshing and pretty if the flowers are enclosed in veiling. A stunning hat which I saw recently was a navy blue taffeta decorated with soft pink rosebuds enclosed in very sheer navy blue veiling.

If you are the type for a pretty by those near buildings, property picture hat, you may want to wrap some veiling over the top that comes down underneath the chin to tle as a bonnet. Most of the large picture hats now are being shown with some sort of fastening under the chin.

Straw hats may have their flowers freshened; or you-may want to have several sets of flowers that can be snapped on to change with whatever dress or suit you are wearing.

Be Smart!

Pretty, feminine and very new are these slip-on gloves that become dress-up accessories when edged with eyelet embroidery sheerest ergandie trimmed with lace and other tiny ruffles. You'll find these lovelles in fine desskin or suede leathers, in quality sucds fabries or you can add your own triminings, the better to match a froth of organdic and lace or what-have-you on hat,

Electric Fence May Kill;

Saféty Precautions Listed Electric fences take their toll of human lives every year. Most victims are children. Also, many animals are killed. Listed below are some of the safety rules recommended by the National Safety council. Do not use home-made electric sence controllers; they are not safe. No fence should be energized from any alectric source except through an approved controller, one that meets the safety standards of a recognized agency. It is important that the controller is properly installed with good ground and lightning protection.

Do not tamper with the controller. If it needs servicing return it to the manufacturer or have repairs made by a factory-authorized representative.

Do Credit Requirements Vary?

Generally speaking, a bank's credit requirements remain rather constant. Loans are made to individuals who pay their bills, have dependable earnings or income, and who are in sound financial condition. One variable factor is whether or not the loan is economically sound — whether or not it is for an essential purpose that is good for the nation as well as the borrower.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Uneasy Truce Prevails in Palestine; No Talks With Russia, Truman Says; Draft Machinery Set to Begin Work

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer_

(RDITOR'S NOTE: When opinious are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

HOLD FIRE Still No Peace

For a little while the dove of peace drifted over Palestine on frayed and weary wing as Arab and Israeli armies were observing. more or less loosely, a four-week truce in the war for possession of the Holy, Land.

At best the United Nations-superviséd truce agreement was a fretful and uneasy affair. Before the four-week mediation period was two days old both Arabs and Jews had begun charging each other with violations of the pact.

Count Folke Bernadotte, U.N. truce negotiator, was investigating the accusations, but it looked very much as though another security council cease-fire order might go unloved, unhonored and unobeyed.

Actually, it is difficult to see how any synthetically imposed truce could succeed in Palestine. There are no basic grounds upon which a genuine interruption of hostilities could rest. Both sides profess military proficiency and the ability to keep on fighting and winning.

And more important, each side is fanatically opposed to modifying its demands: Israel is determined to retain its covereignty and to have unlimited immigration of Jews into the state. The Arabs are just as determined to eraso the state of Israel from the map.

Thus, there is little confidence in the security council's truce plan and its power to effect peace. And that pessimism was heightened by the knowledge that no U.N. ceasefire edict has worked yet.

Aside from the seriousness of the struggle for Palestine itself, deepest significance of the affair lay in the fact that it is raising duce more the old question of whether any world peace organization of nations ever can succeed in the task it sets for itself—the maintenance of peaceand order on earth.

Pressure of world opinion-which is all the U.N. security council can bring to bear, lacking both military teeth and the power to bring economic sanctions against offending nations-apparently is not going to be enough, at least in the case of Palestine.

One inference which may be drawn is that the U.N. will need more power of one kind or another before it can prevail against the fetish of whid, militant nationalism that has hurled the world into two major wars already in this cenury.

PRESIDENT: About Russia

Forsaking for the moment the political whiplash he has been using on congress during his western tour, President Truman issued a major enunciation of U.S. foreign policy. bounded on all sides by an indictment of Russian tactics, in a speech at Berkeley, Calif.

President Truman's Berkeley speech was a creditable reply.

His theme was that the Soviet Union is acting as an aggressor and obstructor of world peace, and he postulated the theory that there is no likelihood of settling disputes hetween the two nations by negotia-

by deeds, not propaganda.

"We shall judge the policy of every nation by whether it advances or obstructs world progress toward peace and we wish our own policy to be judged by the same standard."

As a measuring stick for that principle Mr. Truman suggested that Russia begin the demonstration of her good intentions, if any, by halting the perilous strife in Greece and Korea.

Thus, both Americans and Russians know where the U.S. stood. And from this side of the ocean it looked to be as good a place as any.

DRAFT: Machinery

Peacetime selective service actually had been all but a reality for months before President Truman put his signature to the draft bill.

The gears, wheels and levers of the draft machine needed but a flick of the finger to start turning out citizen-soldiers for the benefit of the nation.

So much spadowork has been done. that the office of selective service records estimated that it could have inductees on the way in 80 to 90 days after the law becomes effec-

There will be no hoop-la or goldfish bowl drawings. Instead of being determined by lottery the order of induction probably will be figured out according to age groups.

It is likely that 21-year-olds will start the proceedings. After the registration, all men over 21 and under 22 would be classified. Those not exempt would be put into Class 1A as eligible for immediate induction. Whether the first age group selected would be exhausted before another is called up had not yet been decided.

Military authorities estimate that about two out of every three men in the 10-through-25 bracket who are single and non-veterang will have to serve in the army, navy, air force or marines, either as draftees or volunteers, Roughly, there are about 1,552,000 single nonveterans in that age group.

mentioned as the substitute site, although nations supporting the idea are taking no open sleps and are confining their efforts currently to laying groundwork for the real drive which may be expected to emerge this fall at the Paris assembly.

The whole plan might go down the drain, however, if congress were to approve the 65-million-dollar Isan to the U.N. for building the projected skyscraper headquarters in Manhattan.

As usual, there is a play of forces behind the acenes on this question. The Arab states favor moving the U.N. to Europe, primarily because they are bitter over the success Zionist Jews have had in influencing the U.S.

Britain originally wanted a European site and might under certain conditions, revert to that stand. Russia, another question mark, is expected to grasp the opportunity to attack the U.S. for fallure, to keep promises should congress fail to approve the loan.

AID CASH:

And Politics

Although its funds were still in a state of confusion as a result of a combination of congressional economy and GOP political machinations, the economic cooperation administration nevertheless managed to toss off the biggest bundle of foreign relief cash so far.

Paul G. Hoffman, ECA administrator, approved the assignment of $95,610,605 for 10 European countries, including Trieste, and China. The action brought total Marshall plan authorizations from available funds to $393,737,029.

Countries sharing in the new approvals were Great Britain, The Netherlands, France, French zone of Germany, Austria, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Greece, Trieste and

The assignment of almost 96 million dollars in foreign aid funds served to point up the squabble set off in congress when the house voted to spread the recovery funds over 13 months instead of 12, thereby producing the effect of slashing aid appropriations by one to two billion dollars.

While the senate restored the appropriations cut, many U.S. leaders were gravely worried about another possible significance of the house action.

Theory was that the house, by cutting ECA appropriations, demonstrated that Republican organization bosses are determined to fight. and reverse if possible, the line of foreign policy represented by the Marshall plan.

It was thought to be part of a larger plan to gain control of the Republican party and to defeat the new postwar GOP leaders-Vandenberg, Dewey, Stassen and Warren-by chipping away the cornerstone of the foreign policy they all profess.

The situation had the outward appearance of chaos, but bekind it lurked the business of playing election year politics while permitting the rest of the world to go hang,

MIDDLE INCOME: That's $2,920

Any American family which could add up the wages it received in 1947 and get $2,920 for the total had earned a "middle income," according to the way the federal reserve board has it figured out.

That "middle income," up $320 from 1948, incidentally, means that half of all the 42 million U.S. families made more than that while the other half made less.

About 68 per cent or 28,980,000 families had a joint income of $2,000 or more last year. By contrast, in the mid-1930s fewer than the United Nations headquarters 6.8 million families had incomes at that level. But a dellar bought con-Genova, Switzerland, is being siderably more then than it does IBBY'S death was a shock, coming on her wedding day as it did. Neighbor folks would be shaking their heads sadly. People liked laside. Libby. Sort of old-maidish she was, mear 40, but there was kindness and generosity in her heart.

Not that her death would be surprise. She was very frail and chronic heart sufferer. Doc Huntley had begged her to slip off with him and have a quiet justice-of-thepeace wedding and avoid excitement. But no. She'd wanted to be with her family—what family she had, and such as it was.

With tightening throat, Doc gazed down on the thin dark figure in the blue tulle wedding dress lying on the quilted bedding. She'd fallen on the rag carpet, they had told him when he arrived, and one of the women guests had picked her up and placed her on the bed and had removed her stockings to massage. her legs. Doc noticed the heavy finger marks on the thin ankles Then his gaze swept to the digitalis. bottle on the dressing table.

Libby's heart never had been in such a bad condition that a shot of heart stimulant hadn't brought her outgof it. But it was obviously a severe attack. Her face was bluish. her dark eyes bulging, as if from an exploding heart. A look of abject horror had torn open her mouth, twisting her pretty face.

"My husband was settin' in the front room waitin' fer the preacher and you to come, Doc," Cousin Laura said-Doo always called her Cousin Laura, because she was Libby's cousin, the only relative Libby

"The first guests were jest comin' up the read. I was in the kitchen trimmin' up the weddin' cake. I thought I heard Libby scream. About an hour ago it was. I came in here as quick as I could wash off my hands, and there she was a-lyin' there on the floor, but blue in the face."

Cousin Laura was a big-boned woman with suspicious, disapproving eyes. Her hair was coal black. Cynics had whispered that Laura had married Grandpappy Bogle, 40 years her senior, for his farm. He was stone deaf and couldn't (it was believed at the time) live more than six months. Grandpappy had a son, Harv Bogle, living with him. That was the family—Grandpappy Bogle, Cousin Laura, Bogle, Harv Bogle and Libby.

Doc had always had an uncomfortable feeling that Laura hated him, or at least resented his taking Libby from the family.

Doc could hear Grandpappy in the front room yapping away with the guests. No matter what anyone sald to him, he assumed that they were agreeing with him and went on yapping.

"Where's Harv?" Doc said.

"Harv's out to the barn sulking, I reckon—on account of the wedding," Cousin Laura said with evil suggestion. "He ain't been in all day-didn't even come in fer his dinner." Then she became thoughtful her black eyes slitting. "Now. wait a minute-I believe I seen him out on the back porch about an hour ago. Yeah, I did, come to think of

"Did you say 'murder?"

"Yes, Libby was murdered. By the person who would inherit the 200 acres of rich bottom land. Libby's land is certainly more tempting than Grandpappy Bogle's red clay hills-"

"How-how-" *Libby was picked up by her ankles and held upside down until she died from a heart attack. That's how those bruises came to be on her ankles: they certainly weren't caused by massaging. Her heart

"Harv, I never talked with Libby about it. But who gets Libby's property? She had a will, didn't she?"

Doc knew that Libby owned 200 acres of valuable bottom timber land where Harv did his hunting and fishing.

"Naw." Harv replied. "She didn't leave no will. You sort of got left out, didn't you. Doe? Ifn she'd lived through the day, you'd have got yo'r hands on that land, wouldn't you?"

Doe struggled to keep from getting mad. His gaze shifted to the dry branch at the foot of the redguilled hill. Some varieties developed by Dr. J. C. Eldredge and associates at the agricultural experiment station of Iowa State college have expanded 34 times in tests. This big an explosion doesn't always occur, and size 34 popcorn isn't available for popcorn growers. But it may come along in time.

The bigger the explosion, the bigger, fluffier and tenderer the pieces of popped corn. Dr. Eldredge said. People like it better, even though they get less popcorn to a bag.

Popcorn venders like it better, too, because it takes less corn to draw as much money in sales.

Four Measures Listed To Curb Elm Disease Increasing Toll Noted Over Widespread Area

The dread Dutch elm disease, killer of thousands of trees, is spreading rapidly over large areas, n o t destroyed: (3) piling of stored elm wood in a dry building or cellar; (4) removing and burning promptly all elm trees killed by the disease.

There are three good clues for spotting the diseased trees, according to University of Massachusetta specialists. Evidence of woodpecker work is one. Where strips of bark have been removed from tree limbs it may indicate that woodpeckers are feeding on elm bark beetles, carriers of the Dutch elm Shepherd's crooks are another sign It has been thought that the hull of the disease. These crooks are lack of spring buds, may indicate that the trees have been attacked by the disease.

LOS OLMOS GUEST RANCH TO OPEN IN NEAR FUTURE

Glenwood, N. M .- Ore Samples from mines of New Mexico are cemented together to form a novel central fireplace in the main lodge at Los Olmos Guest Ranch, new $150,000 vacation spot in the foothills of the Mongollon Mountains, scheduled for opening in the next six weeks.

The unique fireplace, glittering a dozen colors, contains iron, copper silver, gold, zinc and lead ores. One chunk of silver ore from the Sil ver Creek mine five miles north of here is valued at $4.50 a pound. It carries in rock the letter 'K' which owner Ray Elms, well known hotel man in the Southwest, has put in for his son, Keith,

The ranch has a 35 by 85 fool swimming pool and a private trout pond for guest fishermen. It will offer fishing and hunting pack trips into the nearby isolated wilderness of the Mogollons,
