The girls from Mexico City in full costume, performed a group of symbolic and religious dances for a large and appreciative audience. The Boy Scouts then joined them in a social hour of dancing before they returned to the Roberts home for another hour of dancing and music.

One Mexican girl is studying to be a concert pianist and played for the group with much expression. Refreshments of Trefoil cookies, sandwiches and pop were served to 41 guests.

Souvenirs of silk tea aprons were presented to the visiting girls. The Girl Scout program stresses "Camping" in order that girls may be friends of nature, and it stresses "Internationalism" so that they may be friends of all mankind. If the millions of girls now taking part in the world wide program of scouting are to become mothers with a conscience will to friendliness then their children will live in a happier world than ours.

SCRIPTURE: Daniel 1. DEVOTIONAL READING: I Timothy 6:11-18.

Daniel Stands By His Convictions

Lesson for May 30, 1948.

"A picker frozen on duty—
A mother starved for her brood—
Socrates drinking the hemlock—
And Jesus on the rood."

SUCH a picture we have before us in Sunday's lesson. All you need to do to get this dramatic picture is read the first chapter of Daniel. You will then feel anew the meaning of that cherished statement, "This conviction that convinceth..."

BRAVE TO DO RIGHT
WE GET the first draft of this tonic in verses 8-9, 14-15 and 17. "But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank..."

He was brave enough to take a stand for what he knew was right. Which reminds me of the story told of Henry Ward Beecher, when yet a small boy. A teacher in the school he attended asked a boy a question which he promptly answered. The teacher appeared displeased, and told the boy to sit down. He asked several other boys the same question, and got the same answer. Finally he asked Beecher, and Beecher gave the same answer, but refused to sit down when the teacher frowned at him. Seeing that Beecher was going to defend the answer, the teacher said, "Boys, you were all correct, but only Beecher was sure enough to stand his ground. I was simply trying to teach you the lesson that you must stand by what you know is right."

DARE TO STAND ALONE
DANIEL knew that he was taking an unpopular position, but he was willing to be alone so long as he knew he was right. He knew that the consequences would take care of themselves. That is the quality of character which America needs today in her youth. It is easy enough to be popular, if you run with the gang; but remember this—the gang is always heading downhill. Daniel stood by his convictions when it was costly. In the final windup, he was the head man.

ENDURING INVESTMENTS
DANIEL, winning his point, made every hour count toward victory. He not only abstained from strong drink, but used his superior strength to serve the king in such way that his talents were sought out and brought into larger fields of opportunity.

Standing by his convictions, he had won over those who at first were disposed to poke fun at him. By superb performance, due to clear thinking and high purpose, Daniel made enduring investments that paid off in big dividends. He did not do right for reward, but because he did right, the reward was inevitable. And so it will be with every young man and woman who purposes in his or her heart to do right.

GOD'S FAVOR
I WANT you to look carefully at verse 17. "God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom; and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams."

It is impossible to account for Daniel's fortitude apart from his implicit trust in God. Remember the incident of Daniel opening his window toward Jerusalem in prayer? God never fails those who stake their all on Him. He will not—cannot let them fall: It was because of God's favor that Daniel and his companions proved themselves ten times better than the young men who defiled themselves.

"Who sides with God must always win."

Cut violets will stay fresher longer if leaves and flowers are kept close to the water—spraying gently and frequently also helps, since cut violets won't absorb much water through their stems.
Try waxing venetian blinds after you have washed and dried them thoroughly. Waxing provides a lustrous, clean look; and makes dusting easy.

When packing lunch boxes, stand sandwiches on edge instead of laying them flat; this way the filling is less apt to soak through the bread.

Colcous plants will grow in the shade, but the more sun they get, the deeper the color of their leaves.

Migratory Bird Flyways
Ducks and other wild fowl travel from north to south, and then back again, as seasons change, over four favored routes, which are: (1) Along the Atlantic seaboard; (2) down the Mississippi valley; (3) from Canada to Montana and then directly south, or southeast into the Gulf of Mexico area; (4) the Pacific slope. Only explanation for the migrations of some birds is heredity. Most are born in the North, and many breeds date back to the Pleistocene age.

Simple Dehydrator Saves Garden Crops

Homemade Apparatus Serves Many Purposes

A homemade dehydrator heating unit, which also may be used as a room heater in the home or brooder house, is an economical device and a labor-saver on the farm.

Successful drying depends upon removal of enough moisture from the fruit or vegetables to prevent spoilage. This must be done at a temperature that does not seriously affect the texture, color and flavor of the vegetable or fruit.

Best results are obtained when fruits and vegetables are dried in a dehydrator, like one shown, rather than in the sun. In hot, dry localities, however, sun-dried fruits have excellent color, flavor and good nutritive value. Sun-dried vegetables usually are noticeably inferior to dehydrated vegetables in most respects, but when properly dried they are fairly satisfactory.

If gas-filled tungsten-filament lamps are used, care should be taken to prevent liquids dripping onto the bulbs, as that is likely to crack them. If carbon-filament lamps are used, as shown in the picture, water dripping on them will not crack the bulbs.

Minerals Will Improve Quality of Egg Shells

Improvement in shell texture of eggs can be made in many cases by providing the foods that supply the mineral properties contained in the shell itself. The shell of the egg contains about 90 per cent calcium carbonate and foodstuff containing the minerals and vitamins necessary for shell production should help to increase the supply and bring about some improvement in shell quality.

Shell-grit or oyster shell-grit provides calcium carbonate, but without vitamin D the hen may not be able to convert sufficient quantities to meet the demands for bone and egg-shell formation.

Nests For Turkeys

Crowding of turkeys in nests will be largely eliminated if enough space and enough nests are provided. Accepted size of an individual turkey nest is 18 inches wide by 24 inches high by 23 inches deep. Quite often eggs are broken and these broken eggs soil others. It is wise to have turkey nests both inside the brooder house and outside during periods of rapidly changing weather conditions. Photo shows Utah type of turkey nest.

Swine Diarrhea Curbed With Proper Nutrition

Proper nutrition plays an important role in control of swine diarrhea and scour, a source of considerable loss to most pork producers, according to Wise Burroughs of the Ohio station. Nursing pigs are susceptible to the disease, feeder pigs get enteritis and even older animals sometimes scour.

Deficiencies in any one of five different B-vitamins may cause diarrhea, Burroughs warns.

Safflower Crop Thrives Without Heavy Rainfall

Safflower poses no serious question of competition with flax in humid areas where flax prospers. It seems to thrive in areas of less rainfall, where normal precipitation is only 12 to 18 inches annually and where flax generally does not yield so well. Normally, too, under "dry-land" conditions, safflower does as well as wheat or better. It is resistant to most diseases and insects.

Burglar Walks Off With 10,000 Bees; No Stings Attached

MILWAUKEE.—The theft of one hive and destruction of another had two Milwaukee county beekeepers buzzing angrily.

Whoever walked off with a colony of 10,000 bees that belonged to J. P. Kallas, 5735 Milwaukee River parkway, really knew what he was doing, Kallas said. The thief picked a chilly night when the bees would be inactive and he brought his own lid for the hive. The little stingers apparently didn't give him a bit of trouble.

His colony is worth about $20, Kallas said. But it would have multiplied to a honey factory with 60,000 workers when the clover starts to bloom. By then, it would have been producing about 10 pounds of honey a day, and honey is worth about 30c a pound.

Kallas had one hope left. If the thief didn't take the bees more than a mile, and if the weather turns very warm in a day or so, they may come home again. But, said Kallas, the man who took them probably knows that.

Other prowlers who tried to take a hive that belongs to Fred H. Krahn, 1738 S. 30th street, muffed the job.

Using a wheelbarrow, they rattled a hive from its site in an orchard at S. 43rd street and W. Grange avenue, town of Lake, to the street. Mad, the bees stung the thieves, who spilled the hive on the pavement. The box was smashed and the bees died.

Horses Run Amuck in Town; Wreck Auto and Stop Sign

MOLINE, ILL.—Police Magistrate Ralph Stephenson had to delve into history to find a complaint on which to issue a warrant for the arrest of Frank Powell, Rock Island, Ill.

Powell left a team of horses unattended in an alley. Children threw rocks at them and they bolted.

They wrecked the wagon, damaged an automobile, almost ran into the front window of a tavern and crashed into a stop sign.

Powell was charged under an 1872 ordinance with leaving horses unattended.

California Sea Lion Wears Toilet Seat as Neck Piece

SAN FRANCISCO.—A sea lion which lives on the Seal Rocks off San Francisco beach has stuck its big neck through a floating toilet seat, and it apparently can't get the thing off.

Where Buster—that's what Cliff House balcony observers call him from their vantage point overlooking Seal Rocks—found the bathroom fixture is a mystery. It is of the horseshoe type, and a gleaming white.

The other seals on the rocks at first shunned Buster, and then clustered around to inspect the new collar.

Dr. Robert T. Orr, curator of mammals of the California Academy of Science, said that the collar ought to be removed but that there is a chance Buster will get along all right anyway—barring a nervous breakdown.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the coast guard and the navy have all pondered the problem of what will happen to Buster, but they have reached no conclusion. S. P. C. A. officials wondered how they could reach the rocks, which are 100 yards offshore and are in the midst of heavy surf that would wreck small boats.

Mother, 19, Hides Newborn Baby in Garbage Parcel

MINNEAPOLIS.—A newborn baby boy, found among garbage parcels on a city truck, is alive and well at Minneapolis general hospital.

Walter Lindell said he found the child when he investigated a newspaper-wrapped package which stirred after being dumped into his truck from a refuse can. He called an ambulance.

Police, arriving with the ambulance, found a 19-year-old girl in the crowd that had gathered. She became hysterical at questioning, then sobbed that she had given birth to the child an hour earlier.

Pending further questioning, she was reunited with her baby at the hospital. Both are in good condition.

Chemist Predicts End Of Oil Changes in Autos

BIRMINGHAM, ENG.—Professor Maurice Stacey told the Royal Institute of Chemistry that a new compound will permit automobiles to run a lifetime with no change of oil.

Stacey said the compound is based on fluorine, which eliminates hydrogen from oils and makes them non-inflammable.

Present lubricants have to be changed mainly because they partly burn. With the oil non-inflammable it will be practically everlasting, provided the cars have good oil filters and the lubrication system does not leak, Stacey said.

Don't Neglect Lunch If You Want to Stay Full of Pep, Health

ARE YOU ALONE at home for lunch so that you don't bother to prepare something for yourself? Or does the family come home, and you simply rummage around the refrigerator and don't know what to serve?

These are frequent situations in many homes throughout the country. Lunches of this type—or none at all for the homemaker alone at home—don't help pep, vitality and health. If you get a lag in the afternoon and wonder what's wrong with you, check your luncheon habits.

Physicians and nutritionists are of the opinion that if you skip a meal, it places too much of a load on another meal. Let's say you've skipped lunch and eat a very full and ample dinner. Do you feel like doing anything but flopping into bed and wasting the evening? And have you ever thought of what it does to your digestive process to have it called upon suddenly to digest a big meal after having been lazy for many hours?

You may be busy, but you can prepare cottage cheese with oranges, grapefruit and berries in season with a buttered muffin and a glass of iced tea for a lunch that's healthy and balanced.

It's much better to try to distribute your calories evenly throughout three meals during the day. In between you won't feel an energy lag and you will keep your system in good working order.

Don't give the excuse that you think lunch unimportant and simply don't feel like bothering with it. Even if you're alone at noon, it doesn't take much effort to prepare a nice cottage cheese and fruit salad and a glass of milk with roll or toast. Or, if the youngsters are at home, it's simple enough to cream some leftover vegetables into a piecheese, serving it with fruit and cookies for dessert.

Planning will give you plenty of the right foods on hand from which to choose a nutritious and well-balanced lunch. And if you value your health and well-being, you'll certainly not count half an hour at noon much to give up to it.

HERE ARE SOME HOT DISHES from which to choose for lunch if there are several of you at home. They are made from "planned" leftovers—and are quick and easy to prepare.

Corn Scramble (Serves 6)

1 cup cubed leftover ham
2 tablespoons fat
2 beaten eggs
Salt and pepper
1 No. 2 can cream style corn
1/4 cup green pepper, cubed

Creamed Meat in Potato Nests (Serves 4 to 6)

Combine one 10 1/2-ounce can of condensed cream of mushroom soup with 1/2 cup milk. Blend and heat. Add 1 1/2 cups of diced, cooked turkey, chicken, roast veal or pork, ham, or fish and 1/2 cup of diced pimiento. Add some of this hot sauce to 1 egg yolk and stir into remaining sauce. FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSES

By Roger Whitman

QUESTION: Our windows are set in steel frames. They sweat so badly it runs down on the frames. We were told the trouble was caused by the oil burner. We changed to a floor furnace, but the windows are still the same. The water is gradually rotting the sills. What can we do?

ANSWER: The trouble probably would be greatly reduced by the installation of storm sash. As the windows are now, the steel frames become chilled by the outdoor air and the warm, moist air of the house condenses on their cold surfaces. Storm sash would protect the windows from such chilling and the sweating should be checked.

QUESTION: I am going to install the upstairs of my home and would like information on this subject. Can you give me any advice?

ANSWER: Get top-quality products and, whichever type you select ask for instruction sheets on the correct method of installation. Well insulation that requires "blowing-in" usually is handled by special companies who have the equipment for this work. Batt or blanket-type insulation can be put in by a home owner who is handy with tools. When insulation is placed in between the rafters, the attic space can be utilized for living quarters.

QUESTION: We are planning to build a recreation room in our basement. Can you give me any plans or suggestions on how to build and arrange it?

ANSWER: Booklets on this subject are published by the manufacturers of asphalt floor tile and wallboards suitable for such rooms. Your first consideration should be to see that all traces of dampness are eliminated.

QUESTION: How can I wash a white stone mantel? I always used a wirebrush, but that makes an awful dust.

ANSWER: Scrub the stone with very hot water containing about a cupful of trisodium phosphate in a pailful of water, then rinse with clear water.

FACTS ON DIPHThERIA

Editors Note: This is the second of a series of articles which will appear at intervals, prepared by Dr. R. G. M. Ehlers, District Health Officer, for the District, comprised of Dona Ana, Sierra, Otero and Lincoln Counties. They will deal with health, and are designed to inform the public of what is being done in this line, and to offer valuable advice and suggestions for keeping well and fit.

A safe and simple method of prevention of diphtheria has been developed by medical science. The District Health Department now urges that advantage be taken of this means of prevention, because diphtheria is one of the most fatal of childhood diseases. It is most dangerous to very young children, particularly those from nine months to five years of age.

Diphtheria is a severe "caching" or communicable disease of childhood. It is caused by a germ which enters the body through the mouth and nose and attacks the warm, moist linings of the mouth and nose and windpipe. The diphtheria germ produces a toxin or poison which readily goes through the body, and if not checked, may cause lasting injury or death. The type of the disease which attacks the windpipe is sometimes miscalled croup. Certain other forms may be mistaken for tonsillitis or ordinary sore throat. In some cases, because of lack of definite symptoms, the illness may become well established before the disease is recognized as diphtheria. The germs are present in the nose and throat of those having the disease, and in the discharges from these parts. These germs are given to others by coughing, sneezing, kissing, or even speaking. Persons may catch the disease by handling articles recently contaminated.

CARRIERS

Individuals who have had diphtheria or who have been exposed to it may be carrying the germs in their nose or throat, although they are apparently well themselves. Such individuals are called "Carriers" and may give the disease to others. In one epidemic, nose and throat cultures were taken from the pupils of the school where cases had originated. Thirty per cent of the pupils were "Carriers". It is thus possible to be exposed to the disease without knowing it.

Recovery from diphtheria depends on the presence in the system of enough antitoxin to counteract the effect of the toxin or poison of the toxin or poison of the disease. Consequently, as diphtheria is suspected, antitoxin must be given by a physician promptly. Each day, delay increases the danger to the child. Because the systems are not always definite, a sore throat may mean diphtheria. A doctor should always be called at once for a sore throat, because unless the disease is recognized early and the antitoxin given immediately, in sufficient dosage, the cure cannot be certain. In cases where antitoxin is not given until after the third day, paralysis of the throat or heart or other complications may occur.

Antitoxin should be also given promptly when it is known that an individual has been exposed to diphtheria, and when it is known that he or she is not protected against the disease. This gives immediate protection, but only temporarily, lasting two or three weeks. Lasting immunity, however, can be brought about in a simple way and this does insure protection from diphtheria. The protection is accomplished by what is called active immunization or the administration of a preparation known as Toxoid, under the skin.

Children who are too young to go to school, need protection against diphtheria even more than school children. This disease is particularly fatal to children from three to five years old, and ranks third among the fatal diseases from one to three years. Parents who fear to have their babies done because they fear they are too young, should not delay the prevention because babies rarely show the slightest reaction from the administration of the Toxoid.

Did you know that rules of the American Bowling Congress call for daily replacement of the bowling pins on its 40 tournament alleys? This means some 75,000 new pins are used in the course of the event. The practice assures that every team will compete under exactly the same circumstances. From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Ben's Chickens
Take a Hint!

Ben Ryder's tried almost everything to get his hens to increase production: Forced feeding, new mash, heat and lighting, even yodel in the hen house...

"Finally," says Ben, "I took 'em a copy of the Clarion and showed 'em the market prices for dressed chicken. That fixed 'em. Now they are layin' fit-to-bust!"

Ben's kidding, of course! But it's true that often a note of warning will correct a fault. The brewers have found that out, with their program of "Self Regulation"...

which any tavern selling beer, and failing to maintain decent surroundings, is warned to "clean up" or face the consequences.

Generally that warning gets results (like it did with Ben's chickens). But if it fails, the brewers call on the proper authorities to close the place up. Drastic action (and not often necessary)...

from where I sit it's why taverns selling beer today are a credit to their communities!

FLOYD LEE NAMED TO BOARD OF DIRECTORS NEW MEXICO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Floyd W. Lee, prominent rancher and business man, was named to the board of directors of the New Mexico State Chamber of Commerce, Lee Griffith, President announced. This is in line with the announced policy of the State Chamber of Commerce in having every industry and every section of New Mexico represented on the board of directors.

Mr. Lee is well known throughout New Mexico, and holds many other important posts. He is a Director, New Mexico Cattlemen Association; Director, National Wool Marketing Corporation; President, Albuquerque Production Credit Corporation; Director, New Mexico Wool Cooperative Association; Chairman District Grazing Board No. 1, State of New Mexico; Member, National Advisory Council Department of Interior; Vice-president, Excelsior Laundry, Albuquerque; President, San Mateo Company; State Chairman of the Newcome Society; and Director, New Mexico Boy's Ranch.

not received until after September 1 subsistence allowances will be increased as of the date the evidence is received.

Information as to the type of evidence required is available at VA offices or through the Red cross and service organizations. All evidence should be mailed to the VA office where the veteran's records are filed.

Veterans enrolled in combination (part job and part school), on-the-job, or institutional on-farm training under Public Law 340 (G. I. Bill) will receive a form, which they must fill out and return before increased payments may be made. This report concerns earnings only, and is in addition to the necessary proof of dependencies.

In most cases, disabled veterans training under Public Law 16 will receive automatic adjustments of subsistence without any action on their part. However, proof of additional dependents, not already on file with VA, must be submitted by the veteran.

A recently enacted law gives World War II veterans until February 3, 1950, to apply for mustering out pay.

More than 40 per cent of the 3,271 patients hospitalized by the VA in Branch 13 served in World War II, VA reports. The Branch 13 area includes Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming and Utah.

This is an increase of about nine percentage points over the proportion of patients who were War II veterans in February, 1946, and an increase of three percentage points over February, 1947. National figures reveal that nearly 50 per cent of the 103,000 VA hospital patients are War II veterans.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviets Express Desire for Peace, Agree to Discussion of Differences; U. S. Seizes Railroads—Strike Off

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

OVERTURE: Peaceful

All of a sudden the air between Washington and Moscow was filled with talk of peace and desire for co-operation.

Exactly what had happened to bring about the quick flow of the milk of human kindness between the U. S. and Russia was not clear. Certainly there had occurred no basic change in the potentially explosive relationship.

It began with a U. S. statement of position, voiced by Bedell Smith, ambassador to Russia, in the presence of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Smith, apparently speaking officially, suggested that the way is clear for a discussion of differences with Russia. Said the U. S. ambassador:

"The present state of U. S.-Soviet relations is a source of grievous disappointment to the American people. As far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences."

Russia's reply, as broadcast by the Moscow radio, expressed a positive attitude toward improving Soviet-American relations and stated that Russia "is in agreement" with a U. S. proposal for "discussion and settlement of existing differences."

Although these developments received a big play in the press and radio of both nations, indications were strong that the aura of mutual hostility separating the U. S. and Russia might not be dispelled by the willingness to "compose our differences."

Neither side had modified its foreign policy. Rather, each had emphasized it in the exchange of notes.

The U. S. statement said, in part:

"The concern and the determination of the people of the United States have been intensified by the inexplicable hostility of the Soviet government to the European recovery program—a measure which in its inception and subsequent developments is so obviously only a measure of American assistance for reconstruction on a co-operative basis without menace or threat to anyone."

In their reply the Soviets contrasted what they termed military threats against the Soviet Union with the Russian government's pursuit of "a consistent peace policy."

At least there was a definition of terms and a preliminary agreement to talk things over. Whether or not any good would come of it was, at this stage, problematical.

There was a suspicion abroad that Russia, balked in its ambitions to expand into western Europe by the European recovery program, might be ready now to try to make some kind of deal.

ALL ABOARD: Trains Run

U. S. economy escaped being a victim of railroad paraplegia at the eleventh hour when three rail brotherhoods yielded to a restraining order brought against them by the government and called off their impending strike.

Events leading up to that climax had run a course which has become familiar to strike-weary Americans. Negotiations between the railroads and the three dissenting brotherhoods—engineers, firemen and switchmen—had been fruitless. As the strike deadline approached they remained miles away from any kind of agreement on wages and working conditions.

By that time President Truman had built up a full head of steam and he opened the throttle wide.

Acting under the sanction of a 1916 law which authorizes the government to take over the railroads during the time of war (U. S. is still, officially, in a state of wartime emergency) Mr. Truman seized the entire vast network of tracks and trains in the name of the federal government.

That move paved the way for a court order restraining the unions from striking for eight days. Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough issued the order and the nation's trains kept running, for the time being, at least.

Possibly proving that there is no wind so ill that it doesn't blow up some good for somebody, one of the major influences leading to cancellation of the rail strike was John L. Lewis, who didn't have a word to say about it.

But Lewis had set the pattern. The

SMOKE, SMOKE, SMOKE

Americans Burning More Cigarettes

Cigarette consumption in the U. S. in 1947 ascended to an all-time high for the 14th consecutive year, despite spectacular wartime gains which would have made a subsequent postwar decline no great surprise to the industry.

According to an article in the May edition of "Business Comment," bulletin of Northern Trust company,

Eastern Hotspot

Latest area to emerge as a pivotal point in the world-wide drive against communism is southern Korea where about seven million registered voters went to the polls to elect 200 representatives to what is known as the Korean national assembly. Prior to the election, Communist-trained agents were reported to have been attempting to stir up trouble in the U. S. zone to influence the balloting.

rail union leaders—Alvanley Johnston of the engineers, D. B. Robertson of the firemen and A. J. Glover Jr. of the switchmen—were uncomfortably aware of what happened to the mine chief when he disobeyed an injunction to call off his soft coal strike.

They knew that if they disobeyed Judge Goldsborough's restraining order they would be exposing themselves and their unions to whopping big fines and possible jail sentences.

It was becoming apparent that the government had hit upon a hard-fisted way of delaying crippling strikes. With labor unrest destined to grow this summer, that method, though far from ideal, might come to be the basic formula for inducing arbitration and settlement of strikes.

DIXIE: Anti-Truman

Although President Harry Truman had not held forth publicly on the subject of civil rights for some time now, the echoes of the civil rights program he advanced earlier this year were rattling around like snubbers south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Alabama voters had expressed themselves as being anti-Truman in the state's primary election they had given majorities to candidates pledged to cast electoral votes against the President because of the civil rights issue.

It was the first concrete indication that a bolt from the regular Democratic party nominee might not be unlikely next November if the nominee (like Mr. Truman) is committed to supporting the civil rights program.

And in Jackson, Miss., a "state's rights" Democratic rally was key-noted with a flat prediction that President Truman would not be re-elected because he is not acceptable to the nation or the southern Democrats.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina defined the South's stand when he told the rally that the South is not in revolt against the Democratic party but against its present leadership.

Spark that kindled the political fire in the South was Mr. Truman's espousal of proposals to pass federal laws outlawing lynching, poll taxes, job discrimination and segregation of races. Legislation like that, Governor Thurmond asserted, would violate the historic principle of the right of states to determine their own attitude toward such matters.

"So far it was only talk, but anti-Truman feeling had crystallized in the South to the point where party leaders were badly worried. If the Dixie Democrats carried their defection to the ultimate point of nominating their own candidate, the big-wigs might as well throw in the sponge for the '48 elections and start looking to 1952.

UNCERTAINTY: Who Won?

Just about all that anyone was sure of when the smoke from the Ohio primary elections had cleared was that Sen. Robert Taft had won 44 delegates to the Republican national convention and that Harold Stassen, the wolf at Taft's door, had captured nine.

How these results should be interpreted promised to be a thoroughly argued question by the time the Republicans convened in Philadelphia to nominate a presidential candidate.

Many held the opinion that the Ohio primary resulted in, if not an outright defeat for Stassen, at least a brusque check on the Minnesotan's heretofore snowballing campaign.

Stassen had competed with Taft for 23 of the state's 53 delegates. He won nine and Taft took 14 of those 23. In a pre-election statement, Stassen had said that the Ohio contest could be accounted a victory for him only if he won a majority of the 23 disputed delegates.

Thus, by his own estimate, Stassen lost in Ohio. He lost, however, to a "favorite son" candidate strongly supported in his own state by Ohio's powerful political organization.

It was hardly a victory for Taft to shout about.

In the final analysis the G.O.P. election race had not changed much. It was Taft and Dewey teaming up to force Stassen into the rail, with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan coming up fast on the outside.

FARM ISSUE: Truman's

Rather hard put for a good, earthy issue to play upon in his coming campaign, President Truman has hit upon the farm problem as the vehicle to carry some of his convictions before the public.

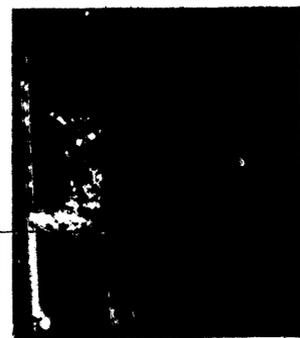

He began by planning a message to congress on the subject of long-range agricultural legislation. The idea was originated by the retiring Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson who opined that such a plea to congress would put the Republicans "on the spot."

The message which Mr. Truman was preparing would ask for an "adequate appropriation" to continue the government farm program, "particularly on soil conservation," according to Alben Barkley, senate Democratic leader.

Barkley acidulously recalled that the President had asked in his budget message for 300 million dollars for soil conservation in the coming fiscal year, and that congress had cut that sum to 225 million.

Many U. S. farmers would be inclined to agree.

'X' for Taft

Sen. Robert Taft's presidential star once again was in ascendancy following the important Ohio primary election of 53 Republican national convention delegates. He won 14 of the 23 contested in which Harold E. Stassen was a strong dispatant.

WHEAT: Big Crop

Word from the department of agriculture was that the U. S. would produce the third largest wheat crop in history this year.

The department stuck to that prediction even though it had reduced its estimate of the important winter wheat crop by 14.5 million bushels from the April 1 estimate.

Except in parts of the southern great plains, the crop made good progress, it was revealed in an official department report.

As of May 1, prospects were for a total of 1.117 billion bushels of wheat. Largest crop was 1.36 billion bushels last year. Production in the 1936-45 period averaged 890 million bushels.

Department of agriculture estimated the fall-sown winter wheat crop at about 845 million bushels, a decline of 14.5 from its April 1 forecast. No official estimate of spring wheat was available, but a guess was that average yields should produce 272 million bushels.

PLANT LIFE: Appetites

Atomic scientists have learned that some plants, like human beings, are finicky eaters.

This new knowledge, important commercially, is the result of exhaustive tests with radioactive isotopes of phosphorus.

Now science can tell a farmer who spends $50 to put phosphate fertilizer on his land whether the plant only nibbles or takes a bite big enough to repay his expenses.

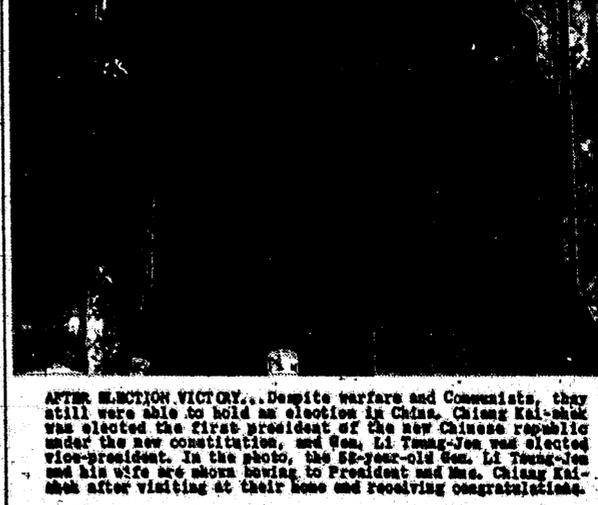

HEADS WILL ROLL... This was one Wallace rally that got rained out. Members of the 'Youths for Wallace' and the 'Students for Wallace' organizations put up big reasonable facemasks of the heads of their heroes, Wallace and Sen. Glen Taylor, on a backdrop at the Sylvan theater, near the base of the Washington monument in Washington. Heads of the two third party leaders were rolling all over the place, but to no avail. The weatherman failed to cooperate—he's probably a Democrat.

MARGARET AND CUBS... Miss Margaret Truman, daughter of the President and ambitious concert singer, is shown rehearsing with a group of Cub scouts in preparation for the gigantic Scout-O-Rama which was held in New York's Madison Square Garden. Margaret's singing of 'God Bless America,' to which the Cub Scouts also added their piping voices, was one of 14 events in the first Scout-O-Rama to be held in New York since 1940.

QUITE CABINET TO RUN FOR SENATE... Clinton P. Anderson, who has become almost a household word among U. S. farm families as the secretary of agriculture, has resigned that cabinet post to run for the U. S. senate in New Mexico. President Truman formally accepted his resignation and Anderson started to pack his things to leave the office for good. During his tenure as secretary of agriculture farmers of the nation experienced their greatest period of prosperity in history.

AFTER ELECTION VICTORY... Despite warfare and Communists, they still were able to hold an election in China. Chiang Kai-shek was elected the first president of the new Chinese republic under the new constitution, and Gen. Li Tung-Jen was elected vice-president. In the photo, the 55-year-old Gen. Li Tung-Jen and his wife are shown having to President and Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek after visiting at their home and receiving congratulations.

Went to Sea Early
In Scotland, on the north shore of Solway Firth, near the fishing hamlet of Arbigland, John Paul, known in history as John Paul Jones, was born July 6, 1747. When he was 12 years old, his school days were over. As a small lad he could manage his own sailing boat, and he showed a great fondness for the sea. In the summer of 1769, James Younger, a ship-owning merchant, was in Arbigland to recruit sailors, and he took the boy, a hardy, well-knit and capable lad of 12, to Whitehaven, where he shipped on a vessel about to sail to America.

Wild Indian Bees
The Russian beekeepers are experimenting with wild Indian bees. The Indian wild bee is said to possess a number of qualities which make it superior to the domesticated species, especially for colder climates. It emerges from the hive to lower temperature than ordinary bees and has a much greater speed of flight. It is able to fly through fog when visibility is poor. Indian bees even have been known to go out for nectar on moonlit nights.

THE FICTION CORNER

A CASE OF JITTERS

By WILLIAM CUTHBERT

JOHNNY LISIK sat in the barber chair smiling as he flicked through the pages of the magazine, looking at the cartoons.

In the mirror in front of him he saw the two men peer through the store window. He expected that they would move on once they saw that Tony, the owner of the shop, wasn't there. Johnny's reputation as a barber wasn't too good, and he had had only one dissatisfied customer all night.

Suddenly it dawned on Johnny that these two men had appeared at the window a few minutes before. He couldn't be mistaken. They both had several weeks' stubble on their faces, and hair was growing over their ears and down their necks.

The door opened and the men stepped inside. Johnny winced. It was almost eight o'clock. He'd have to work overtime.

Johnny pushed himself out of the chair, and noticed that both men were as tall as he, but lean. He saw eyes that were alert, but could stand some sleep. Beneath the growth of whiskers were thin faces that needed a few square meals to help fill out the sunken jaws. And a good whiskbroom could be used to advantage to remove some of the dust from their clothing.

"You the only barber here?" one of the men snapped as he set a small valise on a chair.

Johnny didn't like the man's surly tone. He hunched his broad shoulders, stretched to his full six feet, and was tempted to toss the two haggard looking ceps out of the shop, but decided that that might hurt Tony's business.

"Yeah," answered Johnny casually, realizing that he had never seen the men in town before, "the owner of the shop took his wife out tonight, and I'm filling in for him."

"I'll go first, Ed," the spokesman for the two said as he began to remove his coat.

The man called Ed grunted, "I don't like takin' this chance, Dick," then he flopped on a chair near the wall and pulled the valise to him.

"Forget it," Dick grinned, "I feel lousy with all this hair on me. A good clean shave and haircut will pep us up."

Johnny walked to the door and started to pull down the shade.

Ed jumped to his feet knocking the valise on the floor, his hand flashing to his coat pocket with the same movement. "What are you doin' that for?" he snapped menacingly.

Johnny was stunned by the sudden outburst. He found his voice and explained, "It's getting near closing time. I'm pulling the shades down so that no one else will come in."

Dick giggled and said, "You've got the jitters, Ed. We don't want anyone else to come in here, do we?"

Suspicion arose in Johnny's mind. The men's names had a familiar ring. Ed and Dick? Where had he seen or heard these names linked together before?

He went to the store window and pulled down the big shade, and the three men were hidden from the eyes of any passerby. He wished he hadn't thought about the shades. He had an uneasy feeling now that he was alone with the two men.

Ed saw the bolt lock on the inside of the door and said, "That's right, Dick, we don't want anybody else comin' in here." With two long strides he reached the door and pushed the bolt barrel into place.

"Nobody can come in now," he sneezed. Then he went back, retrieved the valise, and sat down.

Johnny walked to the barber chair and adjusted the headrest. He had an inkling now of whom these two men might be, although it seemed fantastic that he could be right.

Dick loosened his necktie and collar then eased into the barber chair. He looked at his fingernails, brushed them on his knees and said, "You ought to have a girl here to manicure my nails. They could stand a polishin'."

At first Johnny winced at the thought of a man having manicured nails. Then, although he showed no outward emotion, he was jolted inside. Dapper Dick Crane! Surely that was the name of the man sitting in the chair! And the jittery man near the wall who was staring at him with cold piercing eyes was his twin brother, Ed.

"If this guy's a barber, then I'm Santa Claus," Ed snarled, "I think this guy's been planted here and we've walked into a trap!"

Johnny took a long linen cloth, spread it in front of Dick, then pinned it around his neck. So these were the kidnapers who had made the headlines two weeks before! They were 700 miles from the coast where they had collected $50,000 in ransom money, and the F.B.I. was supposed to be hot on their trail.

"Don't cut it too short," Dick said, "just give me a good quick trim, and make a neat job."

After picking up the clippers, Johnny turned his back on Ed. He had a good view of him in the mirror.

"Been in these parts long?" Ed asked behind him.

"Lived on a farm outside of town all my life, except when I was in the army," Johnny said as he ran the clippers up the back of Dick's neck.

"You don't look like a farmer to me," Ed growled, his voice full of suspicion.

"What's eatin' you Ed?" Dick grunted.

Johnny became shaky when he saw Ed's hand grip something in his coat pocket again. He began to work faster and the back of Dick's head didn't look so good.

"After all," Johnny thought, "a fellow who had cut hair only aboard a transport on the way back from Japan couldn't do too good a job, especially on a mop of hair like this Dapper Dick had."

For a minute or two Ed watched in silence, then he stood up and put the valise on the chair. Putting his hands on his hips he turned toward the barber chair.

He snapped, "I told you, Dick, that this idea of stoppin' at a barber shop was no good. You know those F.B.I. boys are smart, and I bet they figured that Dapper Dick Crane wouldn't be able to resist stoppin' somewhere for a trim."

The clippers poised above Dick's head, Johnny looked in the mirror and said nothing although a wild thought was running through his head.

Dick straightened in the chair, "You've got the jitters," he said, "what harm was there in comin' here?"

"If this guy's a barber, then I'm Santa Claus," Ed snarled, "I think this guy's been planted here and we've walked into a trap! Pullin' them shades down was a signal!"

Dick ran his hand over the back of his neck, and Johnny forced a smile.

Johnny said, "It doesn't look so good now, but wait until I put the other clippers on it."

He moved around the chair with

Ed's eyes watching intently. After pulling open a drawer he reached far inside.

Suddenly he whirled about, a 33 in his hand.

The brothers were taken by surprise. Ed mumbled, "I told you he was one of Hoover's men."

Holding the gun in his left hand, Johnny used his right to throw the clippers at the big bulk store window.

Amid the crash of glass, Johnny backed around to the door, and as he unbolted it, he could hear running feet on the pavement.

Sheriff Ike Willard was among the crowd that hurried to investigate the noise caused by the breaking window.

After Johnny explained who the brothers were, Ike smiled and said, "Local boy captures big city slickers."

Still rubbing his hand over the back of his neck, Dick mused, "then you ain't a Fed, heh?" He looked at his brother and added, "Why didn't you shoot the punk?"

Johnny waited until Sheriff Ike took guns away from the brothers, then he smiled and said, "I thought Tony was crazy for keeping an unloaded gun in the drawer—but I guess it was a good idea after all."

Dance Mis-steps

When the record seems endless; when you can think of at least a half dozen other things you would rather be doing at that moment; when a cut-in would be as welcome as a 'phone call at 3:30 Friday night — it's time to change partners.

And, according to a survey we've just made on this vital subject, any change would be an improvement when your partner is guilty of these corny crimes!

UPS AND DOWNS — You have plenty of 'em, when your partner uses the pump handle technique with his left arm and your right. By the time the dance is over you feel as if you had been harnessed to a see-saw which might have been more fun.

DISAPPEARING ACT — Don't you love the boy who leaves you stranded in the middle of the dance floor when the record is over? You know the type — as soon as the dancing stops he mumbles something and absently fades away — leaving you with what seems like six hands and six feet and a fervent hope that someone will rescue you or that the house will catch on fire.

JOLLY GOOD FELLOW — Does he have to be so sociable — with the other boys' partners — when a he's dancing with you? He carefully steers you from one couple to another in order to exchange pleas anties with all the girls he's MOI dancing with.

Jungles of New Guinea Still Defy Patrols

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—Even after 64 years of German and Australian rule, large chunks of the mountains and jungles of the New Guinea trust territory, one of 10 subjected lands under United Nations supervision, have never yet come under the white man's control.

Reporting that problem to the U. N. trusteeship council in the first answer by an administering power to written cross-examination, Australia revealed that some 30 per cent of the primitive area had not even been touched by patrols, as of 1941 reckonings.

Of the territory's 93,000 square miles, 38,700 were then under "complete control" of the government, 11,070 under "administration influence," 9,220 under "partial influence," and 6,050 "penetrated by patrols."

Aussies Answer Criticism
Australia's 24-page document replied to searching Council questions on its first annual report of administration to the U. N. The one subject unanswered was the criticism of a projected "administrative union" with Australia's adjacent Papua territory, which will be handled separately. The council has decided to take up the case again.

While New Guinea was self-supporting before the war and the Japanese occupation, Australia replied to a Chinese question that rehabilitation costs would exceed receipts for many years. For 1946-'47 revenue of Papua-New Guinea was 484,000 pounds, expenditure was 2,303,370 pounds. The commonwealth government provided a grant of 2,018,673 pounds and 234,344 pounds for special services.

Assist Natives With Loans
To American questions on aid to natives' economic projects, Australia replied that the department of post-war reconstruction provides gifts and loans, including seeds, planting material and advice by competent Europeans on native cash crops.

In Copra, natives on most coastal areas have at least 20 bearing trees per village unit. Arabian coffee has been grown at an experimental station, and highland natives have been encouraged to plant small coffee plots, with the government buying produce.

The government has planted small tea crops for native owners. It is carrying out research and surveys aimed at establishing native cocoa projects. Rice seed has been distributed. Free vegetable seed has been given to natives who wish to grow European vegetables near the larger centers for sale to local Europeans.

Trappists Will Eat Meat On Long Trip to Monastery

CUMBERLAND, R. I.—Bearded, silent men of an old Trappist monastery prepared for a journey to New Mexico on which they will experience what are forbidden in their religious lives — ham sandwiches and pullman cars.

The Rev. Dom M. Futterer, O.C.S.O., prior of the abbey of Our Lady of the Valley, announced that he would lead a band of 26 monks, priests and brothers to the new abbey of Our Lady of Guadalupe at Valley Ranch, near Santa Fe.

Travel by pullman and the eating of meat on the trip, the abbot explained, were allowed by special dispensation from the severe code of the cloistered Roman Catholic order founded more than eight centuries ago in France.

The vows of Trappist monks, he said, include one against eating meat, fish or eggs except in illness or on long sea voyages. The Trappists also observe a rule of silence, but the abbot may dispense with the edict at any time. Father Futterer did not say whether the monks would be permitted to talk on their long train ride. He said that the journey originally was to be made in coaches, but only pullmans were available.

Spinsters and Bachelors Disappear From Society

NEW YORK — Spinsters and bachelors are fast disappearing from American Society.

By 1964, if present trends continue, marriage may be almost universal in the 20 to 45 age group, according to a report by the Institute of Life Insurance.

But economic depression could reverse the trend the report suggested. "The number of single persons of both sexes is now at the lowest ratio since 1890," the report, based on United States census bureau figures, said.

The Institute said that only one of every three men between the ages of 20 and 45 is single, while the percentage for women in the same bracket is even lower.

"The proportion of married people has been showing a steady increase," the report continued. "This trend has been accelerated since 1940 by the biggest marriage boom the nation has ever experienced." The Institute also said that girls are marrying younger each year. Remarriage by divorced persons also has increased, the report said.

CATTLE GROWERS ASSOC. ADVISES PARTIES

The Democratic and Republican parties have both shown the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association and the livestock industry ample consideration in the preparation of their state platforms according to G. W. Evans, Magdalena, President.

"A. D. Brownfield, Deming and James Marrow of Raton are serving on the eight man Democratic platform committee and Floyd W. Lee of San Mateo and I have been invited to serve on the six man Republican Platform Committee," Evans said. All are directors of officers of the association.

"Our association is not interested in partisan politics. We do feel it necessary, however, that our industry be well represented on these platform planning groups in order that the livestock business will receive fair consideration on all problems confronting our industry, no matter which party is in office," Evans continued.

"This association has never endorsed any political party or any individual running for office. Our members are well qualified to make their own individual selections," Evans stated.

"We are interested only in promoting and developing sound business in government, economy in state expenditures and recognition for our industry which is basic in the economic structure of New Mexico," he said.

U. S. Navy personnel equipped with cameras, television and depth sounding equipment are combing the bottom of Lake Mead reservoir Hoover Dam, Nevada, the world's largest artificial lake, to determine what deposits of silt and sand are doing to the lake.

Land Purchase Program

The purchase of land for developing fish and game resources for the State Game Department reaches large figures. Among the purchases either made or contemplated are the Vermajo Park Ranch in Colfax County, which is one of the most highly priced ranch units in New Mexico, a $100,000 ranch unit recently purchased in San Juan County. In view of the withdrawal of so much valuable land from the tax rolls, serious consideration in Eddy County, and a large ranch should be given to the suggestion the State Game Department make payments in lieu of taxes to the governmental units now receiving revenue from the taxation of these properties.
