FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

By Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Our old house is full of chimneys, some of which we would like to use occasionally. They don't smoke, but they are open with no damper, so that they really consume warm air and fuel. Can a damper be purchased that will not require taking out half the chimney to install?

ANSWER: That cannot be done in a chimney that is already built. If you wish to close off the fireplace opening much of the time, have a sheet metal panel made to fit the opening that can be taken out when the fireplace is to be used. This panel will prevent the escape of warm air up the chimney.

QUESTION: I have a large window, the pane of which when broken is expensive to replace. I am wondering if it would be practical to put in a vertical strip to divide the sash, thus using two panes half the present size. Could I do it myself?

ANSWER: It would be best to take the sash to a millwork shop to have the muntin bar inserted there. The sash will have to be grooved to hold the bar in place. If there is no mill handy, a competent carpenter should be able to do this for you.

QUESTION: Could I use a lacquer paint on my concrete floor? The cement work is a home job, and it seems to be coming off in spots. It washes off like pieces of sand or small stones.

ANSWER: Give up the idea of painting the floor with lacquer. You might be able to pour a new topping coat on the present floor, since it probably is rough enough already. It might be better to break it up and use it as a base for a new surfacing.

QUESTION: How do you remove black marks on a varnished floor caused by bed rollers?

ANSWER: Rub lightly with a handful of very fine steel wool moistened with turpentine, then touch up the spots with a little paste wax.

African Wood Used By U. S.

American woodworking industries are turning to a wood from the vast forests of the Belgian Congo known as "Korina" because they are unable to obtain high-quality timber at home.

One of the countries largest timber users already has begun large-scale importations of the wood that stacks up with American oak. The industry is importing about 6,500,000 feet of Korina a month.

The inability to obtain high-quality timber in the United States is blamed on two things—lack of a sound conservation scheme and rapid growth of the woodworking industries.

Excessive Use of Lime Exhausts Soil Fertility
Specialist Warns Other Plant Foods Required

Liming can exhaust rather than rebuild soil fertility, unless lime is accompanied by the return of other needed plant food elements to the soil, declares Dr. William A. Albrecht, University of Missouri.

"Up to the present time in our land use," says Dr. Albrecht, "we have been putting limestone on our soils under the mistaken belief that its benefits rested only in reducing soil acidity. We have gone ahead with our campaign with the idea that lime is all that is needed, and that if a little is good, more will be better."

"This generous use of lime has helped produce more proteins in legume forage and other crops. But the added crop production has used up other plant food elements. Among these potash has been the most prominent."

"We have credited the lime and the neutralization of the soil with working wonders, but we have not realized that liming by itself was helping exhaust our soil fertility more rapidly," he points out.

"It is essential," concludes Dr. Albrecht, "to remember that we need potash to make the carbohydrates in the growing plant before we can convert them into protein."

Sturdy Roots Required For Top Crop Output

No crop can do a better crop producing job than the roots that nourish it. To get strong, healthy, bushel-producing growth above the ground, you have to have a sturdy root development below the surface.

Roots need plenty of "living room" to stretch out for moisture, air and plant nutrients. They need that room not only in the plow layer, but also in the subsoil below.

It takes plenty of organic matter to keep a clay or loam soil roomy, well drained and ventilated. Part of that organic matter is burned up every year in producing crops. If it is not replaced, then your soil packs down. It becomes "stuffy" and hard to cultivate. It loses its sponginess, or porosity. Roots cannot grow readily, top growth suffers and lower crop yields result.

Several steps are necessary to get good catches of legumes. Liming, based on soil tests, is important. So is the application of fertilizer carrying phosphate and potash.

To round out a balanced soil management program and add to the organic matter supply, animal manure and crop residues should be returned to the soil.

Johnson Grass Control Termed Community Job

Johnson grass control is a community job because it requires the attention of everyone in the neighborhood, according to Purdue University. Watch for new bunches of Johnson grass that start in clean fields. Kill them by pulling or hoeing before deep roots are formed. The grass spreads best by seeds and root parts and is scattered by water, in hay, by cultivator or wind.

Conserve Fruits Aid Health (See directions below)

Stock Up on Fruit

NOW IS THE TIME to use summer's plenty to bolster winter diet patterns and add nutrition to them. The gardens, orchards vineyards and berry patches are all at your disposal with their infinite variety.

It's really easy to can fruit because there is little to preparing it for canning, and provided you take care to follow directions nothing will spoil. Besides, well stocked shelves with a colorful array of fruit will make wintertime meals so much more easy to plan.

Fruit may be canned without sugar for dietary reasons but, if you can eat sugar, plan to can fruit with sugar as it gives a better product.

IF YOU DEPEND upon home-canned fruit as a main item for winter, it's a good idea to make up a canning budget. For example, if you serve tomato juice four times a week, one cup a serving, plan to set enough aside for 40 weeks. This requires 40 quarts of tomato juice per person. For a family of five you'll need 200 quarts.

Do you plan to serve apples twice a week? At one-half cup per serving you'll need four quarts for 15 weeks or 20 quarts for a family of five.

Peaches, at a half cup a serving, twice a week for 40 weeks will amount to 10 quarts per person or 40 quarts for a family of four.

If you serve berries twice every three weeks, at one-half cup per serving, you'll need three and one-third quarts per person to last 40 weeks.

If you serve pears once every two weeks at one-half cup per serving you'll need two quarts to last one person 32 weeks. This amounts to 10 quarts for a family of five.

Do you like to serve fruit juice at least twice a week? At one cup a serving, one person will need 15 quarts for 20 weeks. A family of five needs 75 quarts.

DIFFERENT VARIETIES of fruit come out better in the canning process than others. If you will study these tips and abide by them you'll have fine results.

Apples to be canned whole should be bright and red and hold their shape well although cooked. You'll find that Jonathans work out nicely for this method.

For applesauce, tart apples like Duchess, Maiden Blush, Greenings or Early Transparent are best because they cook to a mush easily. Use them at the peak of the season.

Fully ripe apricots are ideal for canning. Any good eating variety may be canned.

Firm, well-ripened peaches make the best canned ones. Select Elbertas or Hales that are fine textured and delicately flavored.

LYNN SAYS: You Need to Know These Canning Terms

Acid foods include fruits, tomatoes, ripe pimientos, sauerkraut and green peppers.

Non-acid foods are vegetables, meats, fish, poultry, game and soup mixtures.

Precooking means boiling food a short time until it is thoroughly heated.

Bartlett pears are good for canning but some people prefer the smaller Kieffer variety, which also are good if they are allowed to ripen in a cool place (60 degrees) for a week or two after picking. Any variety of plum may be canned as long as it is well flavored and ripe.

HAVE YOU EVER found yourself in the midst of packing fruit into jars and suddenly discovered that you won't have enough? This means digging into the storage closet or running to the store for more, and then washing and sterilizing them. All this comes at a time when you should be rushing the food into jars as fast as possible.

Avoid this by figuring out how many jars you need ahead of time:

One-half bushel of good-sized, perfect peaches yield eight quarts.

Six pounds of apples yield three to four quarts.

One-half bushel of apricots gives nine to 11 quarts.

One-half bushel of plums will give 10 to 11 quarts.

Two and one-half pounds of pears yield one quart.

Five cups (about two pounds) of berries will give one quart.

Eight to 10 tomatoes (2 1/2 to 3 1/2 pounds) give one quart.

HAVE ALL EQUIPMENT, including jars with proper lids, ready. Check jars for nicked tops and cracks. Wash in hot, soapy water and rinse thoroughly. Do this the day before.

Use only fresh fruit and berries for canning. Discard those with badly broken skins, broken or over-ripe specimens.

Pack cold or pre-cook according to directions in chart.

Fill jars to within one and one-half inches of top; add syrup to within one-half inch of the top.

Place into a boiling water bath (with water coming an inch or two above the jars.) Count processing time from the time the water starts to boil, not when it is just simmering, unless so specified. If you use a pressure cooker, follow time given in chart.

After 24 hours cooling period, wash the jars off with a damp cloth, dry and label. Store in a cool, dry place.

Boiling water bath, sometimes called hot water bath, equipment consists of a large vessel such as a wash-bowler, lard can or kettle the bottom of which is fitted with a rack or platform on which to set jars while they are processing. This should come fitted with a cover.

Sealing means closing the jars airtight.

Cold pack means filling the jars with food in its raw form.

Hot pack means filling the jars with hot food from pre-cooking.

"Just Right" Film Wanted To Pack "Bing" Cherries

Any manufacturer who can supply a plastic film that exactly meets the needs of the sweet cherry growers of the Northwest will find eager buyers, according to cherry packaging tests by U. S. department of agriculture scientists.

Films now on the market meet the various requirements, but no single film combines all the qualities needed.

The big deep-red Bing cherries come to Eastern markets and reach consumers from a week to two weeks after picking. When shippers load cherries they place up to half a ton of solid carbon dioxide (dry ice) in the refrigerator car. This keeps renewing the supply of gas, but enough escapes so that the car rarely has more than a 10 per cent supply.

Cherries, like other fruits, respire (breathe). They use oxygen and give off carbon dioxide. Why not pack the cherries in a gas-tight package and make use of this natural supply of the gas? Under test, cherries in a really gas-tight plastic bag used up all the oxygen available and generated too much carbon dioxide and so got to market with off flavor.

What is needed is a strong, transparent film that will allow considerable moisture to escape and some (but not much) transfer of carbon dioxide and outside air. The ideal film would retain just the right proportion of carbon dioxide and moisture for a period of a week or 10 days.

Strength of Jewish Army

Haganah, the first Hebrew army to take the field in the Holy Land in 2,000 years, is unofficially estimated to be 53,000 strong in full battle strength. With universal conscription, Haganah has at its disposal the full manpower of Jewish Palestine. All Jews between the ages of 18 and 35 get red conscription cards, after their medical examinations, showing their call-up dates. Fathers and only sons are exempt.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Here's a good treatment for scorched linen. Rub the flat side of a raw onion on the discolored area, then soak in cold water for several hours.

You can forestall the tarnishing of gold and silver slippers by wrapping them in old stockings when the shoes aren't being worn.

Water potted plants with tepid water to stimulate growth and avoid shock.

When your silver polish dries up you can usually remedy it adding water slowly.

Revive putty that's gotten dry and hard by mixing it well with a few drops of linseed oil.

Why?
 WHY TAKE HARSH LAXATIVES?
 Try natural Lemon in Water—

The juice of a lemon in a glass of water, when taken first thing in the morning, is all that most people need to insure prompt, normal elimination. No more harsh laxatives that irritate the digestive tract and impair nutritional. Lemon in water is good for you!

Not too sharp or sour, lemon in water has a refreshing tang—clears the mouth, wakes you up. It's not a purgative—simply helps your system regulate itself. Try it 10 days. USE CALIFORNIA SUNKIST LEMONS

At first, Ben thought it was just a matter of putting up a sign. Then he learned he had to get a license making him responsible for sanitation, adequate plumbing facilities, clean water, wiring and anything else affecting the welfare of his tenants.

GOP Convention Hands Nomination To Dewey in Display of Unanimity; Warren Second Choice on Ticket

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

GOVERNOR DEWEY AND FAMILY

... They want a new, white house ...

DEWEY EYED

GOP Convention

Out of the smoke-blurred rooms during the recess before the third roll call came the word: It was Dewey—first again with the medicine men.

From the very beginning of the GOP convention in the sweltering confines of Philadelphia's convention hall it was a simple case of Dewey against the field. The field was composed of Taft, Stassen, Vandenberg, Warren and MacArthur, plus a scattering of favorite sons.

Despite some frenetic jockeying for delegates by Dewey, Taft and Stassen over the week-end preceding the convention, the big three of the GOP started out on Monday with their pre-convention alignments unchanged.

But by the time Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois had finished with his keynote address Monday night it was apparent that a stop-Dewey movement was struggling to get under way. As it turned out that movement never did get beyond the struggling stage and Dewey remained virtually the only one unaffected by it.

In retrospect, the convention by that time already had assumed an inexorable course toward the Dewey camp. Second-guessers maintained that the whole affair oozed along as if motivated by some fundamental and changeless law, although that was not fully evident until the convention could be viewed as a finished product.

If there was a fundamental law it was compounded from a series of heterogeneous factors, political and personal.

First of all there was the superbly functioning Dewey machine, operating with almost 100 per cent efficiency to corral votes.

Secondly, the Dewey opposition was divided. Taft and Stassen, poles apart in their political philosophy within the Republican party, could not get together. Stassen flatly refused a deal and Taft kept waiting for a break that never came. California's Gov. Earl Warren refused to have a hand in a stop-Dewey drive, insisted he was running for the nomination and not just against Dewey. Vandenberg added to the confusion by remaining silent, noncommittal and even disinterested.

Nomination

Actual climax of the convention came when Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania renounced his favorite son candidacy and threw his support, backed by about half the members of Pennsylvania's 73 delegates, to Dewey. That started the blitzkrieg. From then on it was Dewey and downhill all the way.

As the crucial balloting began in humid, steamy convention hall it became more evident that a stop-Dewey coalition had not jelled.

On the first roll call it was Dewey 434, Taft 224, Stassen 166. On the second ballot Dewey had gone up to 515 and Taft to 274, while Stassen dropped to 149.

At that point the convention recessed for three hours, a move engineered by Taft, Stassen and other anti-Dewey leaders to give them time to decide whether or not to continue the fight.

When the convention reconvened for the third roll call the stop-Dewey drive had changed to a nominate-Dewey stampede. Sen. John Bricker of Ohio was the first on the rostrum to withdraw the name of his state's candidate, Senator Taft. This was swiftly followed by similar withdrawals by Warren, Stassen, Vandenberg and MacArthur.

On the third ballot the 1,084 delegates to the convention nominated Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as their unanimous choice to run as the Republican candidate for President in 1948.

Warren

Selection of Gov. Earl Warren of California as the Republican nominee for vice-president came as a complete shock to almost everyone, despite the fact that the choice was a logical and reasonable one.

Warren was a surprise pick because prior to the convention he had maintained stoutly that he could not afford to take the vice-presidency and would not accept the second spot.

It was even more a departure from the norm in that the Dewey-Warren ticket failed to offer a grain of consolation to the old guard and isolationist wing of the party. Warren has strongly internationalist political views—even more so than Dewey—and has been a consistent critic of the GOP isolationists.

Initial speculation as to the vice-president spot ran to Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana or Sen. Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, both of the "conservative Republican" tradition.

But in the night-long pow-wow that followed the Dewey nomination it was Warren who was chosen. Dewey himself averred that he had not influenced the choice, that the party leaders had become convinced that the California governor was the best bet.

Nevertheless, Dewey had had to make certain promises in order to get Warren for the job: The vice-presidency, he said, no longer would be the stale, flat and unprofitable post it had been. He planned to make Warren a "full partner."

Significance

Whether the GOP convention constructed its policy platform to fit the candidates or nominated the candidates to fit the platform is, of course, an impossible question. Nevertheless, the Republicans managed to do both.

Categorically, the platform is a sound, forward-looking one, in the light of the issues, both foreign and domestic, to be faced.

Strongly internationalist and bipartisan in tone, it rejects the old line of isolationism for isolationism's sake and upholds the European recovery program.

That foreign policy stand, harmonizing as it does with the previously stated convictions of Dewey and Warren, may stand as a historic milestone in development of the Republican party.

CONVENTION CLEAN-UP, OLD STYLE . . . The man who made the cleanest sweep of them all at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia comes up the aisle—behind a broom. By this time the last weary delegate had left the hall, the emotional spree, marking the naming of seven aspirants to the Republican nomination had ended and the dead trappings of the hectic nominating and voting demonstrations littered the aisles and corridors.

MINE WORKERS WIN PAY BOOST . . . John L. Lewis was in again. After a series of rocky conferences he and the soft coal mine operators announced a new 1948 wage contract providing a dollar-a-day pay increase for 440,000 miners. The agreement, which became effective July 1, also hikes the industry's 18-cent-a-ton contribution to the UMW welfare fund to 20 cents a ton. With Lewis here are James Owens (left), UMW secretary-treasurer, and Thomas Kennedy, UMW vice president.

COMING IN OUT OF THE DRAFT . . . The race was on. Passage by congress of the 15-month, 90-day draft bill brought a rush of youths within the susceptible age group to join national guard and reserve units throughout the nation. One provision of the bill exempts members of the national guard or active reserve groups from service in the armed forces.

TWO LITTLE OPTIMISTS FROM EUROPE . . . Janice Wernham, 2, and Emmi Matternick, 1, of Norway and Austria respectively sit happily on a rock near Eye, N. Y., and watch their fishing bass with interest, confident that any day now they might get a bite. They were two of a group of immigrant children who enjoyed a boating party and picnic given by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey for children of the Antique Jewelry Look To meet the challenge of dress fashions that hark back to the turn of the century, jewelry designers are fashioning modernized versions of antique brooches, clips, earrings and necklaces. The new designs often use palladium, particularly for the fashionable three-dimensional motifs.

The Weaker Sex Men are more often victims of accidents than women, according to National Safety Council. Men far outnumber women in accidental deaths—about seven to three. Only in falls, burns and poisoning did women come anywhere near the record of the men, and in all of these categories they still account for less than half the total.

Mushrooms for Food Mushrooms, once thought to add only flavor and variety to the meal, have been found to contain perceptible amounts of B vitamins plus iron, copper and all of the essential amino acids.

Glasses for Chickens Farmingdale, N. J., inventors have announced the perfection of plastic spectacles for poultry to prevent pecking. Made in the shape of miniature spectacles with two prongs where the nose rest would be, the prongs are flexed apart with the finger and placed over the lower part of the nostril opening. The new device is manufactured in different colors to make it easier to distinguish breeds, strains or ages.

Gets Mechanical Cop At a busy intersection near Trenton, N. J., a mechanical traffic sign regulator has been installed to give a longer "Go" sign to the road carrying the heaviest volume of traffic. Detectors are placed in the roads about 300 feet from the traffic sign to count the number of cars approaching from each direction. They flash a signal to the traffic light, which adjusts to give the right of way to the main stream of traffic. State highway officials believe the device will reduce unnecessary delays caused by cars waiting when there is no opposing traffic.

Farm Costs Climbing Since 1933, farmers' costs have been climbing from 8 to 25 per cent a year and are now the highest in history, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Big Timber Stayed Boise National forest in Idaho would not be depleted of timber stand or the water flow disturbed by the annual cutting of 50 million board feet of lumber.

Salvage on Ships Old sailing skippers saved pieces of partially worn line for various small uses aboard ship. Yarns from used strands were twisted together and used as shading gear or as whipping to protect the main lines.

Deep Sea Swimmers Polar bears are such good swimmers that they have been seen more than 200 miles from land in the open ocean.

Perceptive Life Saver Of all the forest animals, the porcupine is the only one that an unarmed man, weak from exposure and hunger, can kill with a stick or a stone. They often have proven the salvation of lost hunters as a source of food.

Old Experiment Fields America's oldest soil experiment fields, and the world's oldest corn experiment fields, are the Morrow plots, which have been cultivated at University of Illinois since 1876.

Hemp Is History One of the earliest recorded uses of hemp for a ship's line was with the famous galley Syracuse, built for Hiero under supervision of Archimedes, in about 220 B. C.

Stealing of Meats Meats that are already cured do not store well in lockers because of the salt. Salt causes meat to become rancid quickly, and should not be added to sausage until it is ready to cook.

Government Authorized The union station in Washington, D. C., is the only railroad station in America specifically authorized by congress—February 28, 1903. It was built and paid for by the railroads, however, and not by the government.

NOMINEE

Dewey Runs on Calculated Ambition

Thomas Edmund Dewey is a success story in himself, featuring the kind of success that is believed not happenstance but through precisely calculated ambition spearheaded by precisely directed energy. At 46 he has been elected governor of New York twice and defeated once for the same office. Moreover, he has received the Republican presidential nomination twice in succession. It is the only instance in the history of the Republican party where a defeated presidential candidate was nominated to run again. Born in Owego, Mich., Dewey achieved prominence in New York City as a racket-busting district attorney.

THE FICTION CORNER

BANDBOX BETTY

By MARY KEMPE CHEATHAM

HEAT shimmered from the downtown pavements. Torrid light fell in bars through the Venetian blinds in Mr. Humphreys' private office, carrying with it a coppery odor, like that of a penny clutched too long in a perspiring palm. It was a hot day all right, and the city lay panting under the noonday sun.

"Leave the door open, Miss Barclay," called Mr. Humphreys, as Betty returned from luncheon. "Let the air circulate." "Whew," he added, mopping his brow, "we've got to get some air conditioning in this hotbox."

Betty smiled, removing her white gloves and her crisp white hat. Mr. Humphreys said the same thing every summer. She laid her gloves and white purse neatly away in the bottom desk drawer and sat down at the typewriter. With her blonde hair sleek and smooth and her pale green dress miraculously unwrinkled, she looked as cool and fresh as an ice cream cone.

"How do you do it, Miss Barclay?" marveled Mr. Humphreys, entering the cubicle of an outer office where she sat as secretary and receptionist. "You can't be as cool as you look! Anyhow, let's put this fan out here somewhere to stir up a little breeze."

He looked around vaguely, pulled out a chair a few feet from Betty's desk, set the fan on it, plugged in the cord and returned to his own large desk through the open door marked Private.

Betty gazed doubtfully at the fan whirling away on the chair before her. She anchored the fluttering papers on her desk with paperweights, and with a little frown of annoyance, smoothed back the tendrils of hair which were beginning to blow loose from the bun at the nape of her neck. She caught Mr. Humphreys looking at her and smiled. After all, Mr. Humphreys was the boss. If he wanted to go around putting electric fans on chairs, it was no business of hers. Anyway, Mr. Humphreys was nice. Nice, and quite, quite happily married.

They were all quite happily married, thought Betty with a sigh, as she began on her transcription. All the really nice members of the office force in the other departments, all the nicest salesmen. That business of romance in an office was just something you read about in magazines.

"Is Mr. Humphreys in?" She looked up as a tall, broad-shouldered, red-haired young man strode toward her desk and thrust a business card into her hand. Before she knew what was happening, he had pulled up his trouser legs slightly, to preserve their meticulous crease, and had begun to assume a sitting position over the whirring fan.

"Don't sit down!" Betty shrieked, simultaneously with Mr. Humphreys' shout.

The young man catapulted away from the chair as though a bomb suddenly had sprung from the fan blades. Backed against Betty's desk, he stared, then grinned. Mr. Humphreys, flown to the rescue, was mopping his brow again, but not from heat.

"That," he said, shakily, "was a narrow escape." He disconnected the fan and stood, bewilderedly, holding it.

Her composure regained now that catastrophe had been averted, Betty became once more all cool efficiency. She glanced at the card. She chuckled. She could not help it.

"Would you," she asked, "have had coverage for THAT?"

The card read, "John J. Thomas, Insurance."

The young man chuckled, too. "I came here," he remarked, "to talk to Mr. Humphreys about accident insurance."

"Sure, sure," murmured Mr. Humphreys, still shaken. "Come right in. Have one of the boys put that thing on a bracket for you," he said to Betty, indicating the fan.

When they emerged from Mr. Humphreys' sanctum, John Thomas had a pleased expression on his face and, no doubt, a policy in the bag.

"It was really her fault, you know," he remarked to Mr. Humphreys, loitering at the door. "She looked so cool, I didn't even see that chair."

"Miss Barclay always looks cool in summer," said Mr. Humphreys proudly, "and neat all the year 'round."

Muggy gave her a broad grin, the more effective for three missing teeth. "You're pretty," she said. "I like you."

Betty flushed. She had had the expression applied to her before. Since her first days with the company, she knew she had been familiarly referred to by the other employees as "Bandbox Betty," but it was disconcerting to be discussed in this fashion.

"The least she can do," he teased, "is give me a dinner date."

"That's fair enough," echoed Mr. Humphreys, "if it's all right with Miss Barclay."

"Well," conceded Betty, "but I warn you, I have all the insurance I need."

Dinner with John Thomas was distinctly pleasant. It was cool in the Orchard room and the table appointments were perfect. The floor show was good, the food even better. From cocktail to parfait, the courses were faultless. John himself met every requirement as an escort.

Betty began to be glad Mr. Humphreys had put the fan on a chair. "Not a hair out of place," John commented, studying her across the table.

"They drill it into you," countered Betty, "at secretarial school. White collars, tidy fingernails, all that."

"TLL BET," John said, suddenly, eyes twinkling, "YOU WOULDNT EVEN GET MUSSSED AT A PICNIC!"

They parted early for, as Betty pointed out, a good secretary had to have plenty of rest. Besides, there was the usual routine of washing hose and gloves, cleaning shoes and purse, doing her nails and pressing a dress for tomorrow.

She had a number of dates with John, their tempo always smooth and pleasant. Her work suffered no misplaced commas, Mr. Humphreys was happy, John seemed happy and Betty was almost happy. Only—that was all that ever happened. Never once had John attempted to kiss her or even hold her hand. He was, she concluded finally, a confirmed bachelor.

"Just as I," she thought, poking savagely at the typewriter keys, "am a confirmed old maid."

It was a Saturday, almost noon, quitting time. John had not called, and the future suddenly became a whole series of weary calendar pages, neatly torn off day by day and deposited in the wastebasket.

As she walked from the building, there was John's convertible parked at the entrance.

"Get in," he called, "we're going on a picnic!"

It was amazing how his red hair could brighten up the day! Betty was happily in the car before she even noticed his female companion.

"Oh!" she gasped. For there, huddled between John and a balancing picnic basket, was a startling apparition—a little girl with freckles, wide blue eyes and the same red hair!

"Relax," smiled John. "Muggy is just my niece. Every year, about this time, I take her on a picnic."

"Oh," said Betty again, uncertainly. Muggy gave her a broad grin, the more effective for three missing teeth.

"You're pretty," she said. "I like you." She climbed into Betty's lap and settled herself with a comfortable sigh.

"You've got a pretty dress," she added, stroking it with a hand which was just a trifle grimy. Betty looked down at her wrinkled skirt, but under the child's weight it could not be straightened.

John, busy with getting the convertible out of the Saturday traffic, appeared not to notice. He looked different in wash trousers and sports shirt.

Muggy, too, wore a washable print dress. Betty ruefully considered her office apparel but made no comment.

As they drove, the wind whipped at Betty's hair. She had no hat and all she could do was keep pinning the strands back in place.

When they reached the picnic spot, Muggy jumped up and down in delight. "Can I wade, Uncle John, can I wade?" she called, casting off shoes and socks and stepping into the creek. "I'm going to look for crawdads," she declared, peering stealthily under rocks in the shallow stream, now and then letting her dress trail dribble in the water.

Betty was gazing into a pocket mirror, trying to smooth her hair. "Come help me," John called, pulling twigs in a little rock fireplace. "You unpack the lunch, while I build a fire to make the coffee and broil the steaks."

The fire smoked, ashes fell into the coffee, the charred stick forks made smudges. Betty did her best to stay neat, but Muggy was everywhere at once, dribbling steak-juice, mustard and catsup. A stinging sensation crept behind Betty's eyelids as she recalled John's admiring words, "TLL BET YOU WOULDNT EVEN GET MUSSSED AT A PICNIC!"

She pulled ineffectually at her wrinkled frock, dabbed with a handkerchief at stains, wiped the dust from her shoes. It was unfair of John to put her to such a test.

The picnic dragged mercilessly on to an amusement park where Muggy wanted to ride a roller coaster. Betty shuddered. She hated roller coasters. She hated flying turns, but she found herself hurrying through space with John and Muggy in any number of crazy fashions. When they emerged, her bun was quite gone, the blonde hair hanging loosely about her shoulders. Her shoes were full of shavings from the amusement park grounds, she had a fun in her nose and her face was smudged and devoid of makeup.

John stared at her and laughed aloud. "What," he asked, "has become of Bandbox Betty?"

Someone, she thought, should slap his face, but before she could put the impulse into effect, he had seized her hands and pulled her close. To her amazement, he kissed her fiercely, before all the people in the amusement park, with Muggy giggling at them both. Everything seemed to fade away as she kissed back.

"That," he breathed, "is more like it." "I couldn't have stood it," he said, "to have you respond with nothing but a neat little pack."

Hybrid Seeds Are Designed to Give Improved Crops

CHICAGO.—This year on the farm promises to be the biggest season yet for those hybrid seeds designed to produce more food per acre.

Their performance was hampered last year by bad weather, but farmers expect them to show what they really can do this time.

The hybrids are the plants whose parents have been carefully chosen for many generations. None of the great progress with them came easily. Painstaking work in the laboratory, test plot and field must be carried on by agronomists for at least 10 years—sometimes up to 20 years—to develop new varieties of plants.

But since the hybrids entered the big time early in the '30s, these things have happened in "representative states":

Corn was up 22 per cent in Illinois and Iowa in 1946, although combination of heavy spring rains and midsummer drought wrecked the crop last year. The Illinois peak yield was 57 bushels average to the acre in 1946, compared with 43 bushels in 1932, the best prehybrid season.

Wheat Yield Climbs
Average wheat yields have climbed 20 per cent or more in Ohio, and still are rising. They have increased nearly a third in top-producing Kansas.

Old-line varieties of soft red winter wheat in Ohio, like Poole, Fultz, and Fulcaster, have consistently yielded an average of 38 bushels an acre. Butler, the newest of the hybrids in production there, is yielding 43½ bushels. This means Ohio farmers will get an estimated six million bushels a year more than they would by sticking to the older types.

Oats have coasted at around a national average of 32 bushels to the acre for several years, but a new variety called Clinton gets into the big show for the first time this year. In test fields in Illinois it has run an average of nearly 43 bushels an acre for the last six years.

Other major crops like rye, barley, clover rice and soybeans are better today too.

In work with hybrids these men may choose parent stocks because they are heavy producers, or can resist disease and drought, or are better fitted to the soils and climate in which they are to grow.

Records Are Important
Simple surgery and carefully kept record books are the two keys to open the doors leading to better plants.

Surgical tools of the agronomists trade are few: A couple of tweezers, a needle, a pair of manufacturing scissors, and a set of magnifying spectacles. Some plant work, as in the removal of tiny anthers and florets from the flower of oats or soybeans, is so fine the human eye needs help; hence the magnifiers.

Record books containing the complete ancestry of the plants help the workers to trace down the exact traits they want in the new breed.

Information tags are attached to the plant, and the rest is left to sun, moisture and time to develop another step toward a possible new variety.

Plant breeders admit that though extensive work has been going on for many years, there still is much to be done in development of hybrids.

Efforts continue to push up yields, but now it is hoped to find varieties which will continue to give high production but will take less nutrients from the nation's rapidly depleting soil.

Prisoner Shows Police How To Scale High Wall Unaided

LOCK HAVEN, PA.—Police couldn't believe that a 21-year-old prisoner climbed over a 20-foot jail wall unaided. They made him prove it.

Sterling Wensel, of nearby Mill Hill, re-enacted his escape from the prison less than 12 hours after he fled and later was recaptured at his home, said Sheriff George A. Hickoff.

The agile youth demonstrated before Wensel and state police observers how he scrambled up and over the old plastered stone wall, using cracks and crevices as hand and footholds.

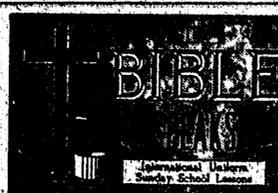

Hickoff said Wensel is awaiting trial on statutory charges.

Professor Raises Own Mosquitoes for Lab Use

LAWRENCE, KAN.—Three colonies of domesticated mosquitoes have been living on a special diet of powdered dog biscuits and raisins at the University of Kansas.

The mosquitoes were grown from eggs by Dr. H. B. Hungerford, professor of entomology.

The idea, Dr. Hungerford said, is to raise mosquitoes for safe experimental use in his medical entomology class.

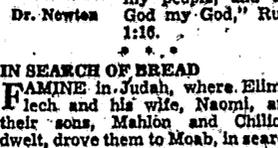

SCRIPTURE: Luke
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 138:1-4

Naomi, Woman Of Faith
Lesson for July 15, 1946

IF WE are to understand Ruth, a cherished heroine of the book bearing her name, we must know Naomi, her mother-in-law—woman of faith in God and surpassing patience and sacrifice in service to her day and generation.

It is the Book of Ruth which we have for Sunday's lessons, with Psalms 28:6-9 as the devotional reading. The golden text, "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God," Ruth 1:16.

Dr. Newton

IN SEARCH OF BREAD
FAMINE in Judah, where Elimelech and his wife, Naomi, and their sons, Mahlon and Chilion, dwelt, drove them to Moab, in search of bread. Elimelech died, and the sons married young women of Moab, Ruth and Orpah. And then the sons died. Naomi, feeling that she must no longer remain in Moab, announced her intention to return to her native land, and bade Ruth and Orpah farewell. In one brief decade Naomi had lost husband and sons, and now she longed for home.

"INTREAT ME NOT TO LEAVE THEE"
ORPASH accepted Naomi's suggestion, and turned away to her own people; but not so with Ruth. She loved Naomi. She could not give her up. Naomi had done something for Ruth in those years of sorrow and loss.

"Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge. Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou diest, I will die, and there will I be buried. The Lord do so to me, and more also, if I ought but death's part thee and me."

With these sublime words, Ruth lashed herself to Naomi, and together they started on the long trek to Bethlehem.

WHEN FAITH CONQUERS
HERE we witness conquering faith—conquering faith in the hearts of Naomi and Ruth. And they come to Bethlehem. It was the harvest season, and Naomi directed Ruth to glean in the field of Boaz, a wealthy and generous-hearted citizen of Bethlehem. Faith in action! And the world loves the story of Ruth becoming the wife of Boaz, and thus the mother of Obed, the grandfather of David the king in the ancestral line of Jesus Christ, the King of kings.

And Naomi, through her conquering faith, held in her arms the little baby, Obed, and dreamed of God's unfolding purposes to bless the world.

In this unsurpassed romance we witness faith in adversity, faith in association, faith in conduct, faith in change, faith in confidence, and faith in a glorious climax.

WHEN FAITH CONQUERS
LIFE is always ennobled when faith conquers. It is easy to imagine how history might have missed this beautiful love story, had not Naomi been a woman of conquering faith. She might have given up and over to her great sorrow and pined away in grief and defeat.

But Naomi followed the gleam. And her trust in God shed its gentle glow into the lonely heart of the Moabite widow, Ruth. Ruth clung unto Naomi. She could not do otherwise. "Truth is stranger than fiction."

And all history was enriched. It is ever so when faith conquers. Thus the poet states the case:

"God moves in mysterious ways,
His wonders to perform,
He plants his footsteps on the sea,
And rides upon the storm."

Faith

I cannot conceive that God could make such a species as the human merely to live and die on this earth. If I did not believe in a future state, I should believe in no God.

Poultry or Play House

IN RESPONSE to many who have requested information that would simplify building a small, general purpose backyard house, I designed the unit illustrated herewith.

It can be built 4 feet by 8 feet, 8 feet by 8 feet, or 12 feet by 12 feet, or any number of additional 4-foot lengths units. To conserve lumber, its outside sheathing consists of non-critical sections and cement board, available at your local lumber yard.

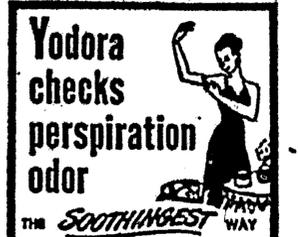

Patterns are supplied for cutting the angles of each piece of lumber. User merely cuts lumber according to length and pattern pieces indicated, saws and assembles. The platform, back, front and sides are first built as individual sections, then nailed together. Complete list of materials, step by step instructions, numbered assembly illustrations included. Send 10 cents for Pattern No. 51 to Kaul-Built Patterns Co., Dept. W, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Secretaries Have "Good Chance"

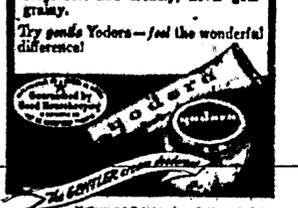

It is reasoned that well trained and well groomed secretaries have excellent marriage prospects because they work so closely with men. Secretaries need not dress expensively, like show girls, to impress an employer but they should be crisp looking at all times. To be avoided are, glaring nail-polish, short sleeves, chewing gum, skimpy skirts, seductive necklines, high heels and jewelry that jangles.

TOMORROW'S bridge is I think still in a rocky thing in view. As they are crumbling, as with me down, as they would be through.

The clouds it opens in dark and deep, And the sunset from the sky, I have crossed the bridge a thousand times Though I never have reached it.

It has crumbled beneath me as I go through, Although it is in my way, But though, the bridge that I have crossed Have all been safe today.

Perhaps I shall find again I reach that one Who has in the distance, Some good may have made in taking time And in pain may be strong and sure.

U. S. AGAIN ACCEPTS STATE AGE PERMITS FOR YOUNG WORKERS

Designation of New Mexico as a State in which State age, employment or working certificates or permits shall have the same force and effect as Federal certificates of age under the Fair Labor Standards Act (Federal wage and hour law) has just been renewed by the U. S. Department of Labor.

This was announced here by John R. Cartwright, who represents the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, U. S. Department of Labor in this state.

Effective for a year beginning July 1, Cartwright said at his headquarters 413 Federal Building, such certificates or permits, issued by New Mexico will continue to be accepted as proof of age by the Divisions in inspections of establishments for compliance with the child labor provisions of the Federal wage and hour law. He advised employers to obtain proper certification for all young workers, to avoid penalties the law provides in cases of illegal employment of boys and girls under 16, generally, and under 18 in occupations declared to be hazardous.
