No Greater Prophet Lesson for January 23, 1949

OF ALL the characters in history, which one do you admire most? We know how Jesus answered that interested question. He had a great array of personages from whom to make his selection. But he took as the Great Man of all time, up to his own generation, no heroic figure from the past, no king, general, scholar or prophet. The greatest man, for Jesus or at least one so great that he could think of none greater—was one of his own contemporaries, a cousin of his who was in jail at the time when Jesus said of him, "Among those born of women none is greater than John." Known to us as John the Baptist, that is, John the Baptizer, we seldom realize either his greatness or the close connection between his life and that of Jesus.

John of the Jordan WE DO not know how much Jesus himself owed to John. We do know that John was the man who first called the public's attention to Jesus. John it was who gave some of Jesus' most important disciples their first training; John who introduced to Jesus, and turned over to him, some of his own followers. It may be significant too that Jesus' first preaching was identical with that of John (compare Matthew 3:2 and 4:17).

Some Christian scholars have gone so far as to suppose that it was John's preaching that stirred the young carpenter from Nazareth to leave his shop and begin his great work as teacher. Whether this is so or not, we do know that it was the baptizing by John which led to the baptism of Jesus, and that Jesus' baptism was the turning-point between Jesus' private life and his short and stormy public career. It is quite clear that if there had been no John the Baptizer, the story of Jesus would have been very different from what it actually was.

Only a Voice JOHN'S own picture of himself is not a picture at all. When they asked him to say what he was, and half-expected him to declare that he was the Messiah, the long-looked for King, John said only, "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness." John, so far as we know, never accepted dinner invitations, he was never under the roof of any friend, and he had no roof of his own. People even called him demon-possessed, he was so far removed from ordinary life.

But Jesus was always in people's homes. That is one reason why the greatness of John fades before the greatness of Jesus, for a voice makes a poor companion. Jesus had the human sympathy that John lacked, and John well knew this. "He must increase, but I must decrease," he said.

Repentance: Seed and Fruit NEVERTHELESS the Voice spoke truth, John must have been a powerful preacher, for his meetings were held miles from the nearest town, so that to reach him from Jerusalem one would have to travel through wild country infested with bandits. Few modern preachers, without benefit of advertising, music or choir, without even a tent, would dare to start a revival meeting 15 rough miles out of town. But John did—and the people came in crowds. We do not have the full report of his preaching that we have of the preaching of Jesus, but we do know that he broke the hard crust of his listeners' conscience.

He made them see how unlit they were for the Kingdom of God for which they prayed; he broke down their pride till they went down to the Jordan and were baptized under the open sky, in public confession of their sins. When men asked him, What shall we do? John did not have the fuller, higher message that Jesus later had. But he did make plain two things about the good life, the life that pleases God: it cannot even begin without repentance and confession of sin, but it does not end there. Repentance is not a simple granite milestone on life's way; it is a seed which if it is real will bear fruit.

Balanced Personality "My friend," said the missionary, "are you traveling the straight and narrow path?" In silence the man handed over his card. It read: "Signor Ballancio, Tightrope Walker."

Canada Starts New Palsy Cure Effort By Intense Therapy

MONTREAL.—To the tots it was just a game—and great fun. They sang lustily. But behind their "Bonhomme, bonhomme, si tu jouais," shrilled in childish treble, lay Canada's first experiment with treatment of cerebral palsy by intensive therapy in the pre-school-age period.

Every gesture as the little ones imitated the playing of violin, trumpet and big bass drum was helping their disabled bodies on the long road toward normal living.

The five-hour treatments three times weekly include physiotherapy concerned mainly with enabling the children to walk; occupational therapy, training the hands, with special emphasis on teaching them to feed and dress themselves; speech, therapy, play, rest and lunch periods.

PRODUCTION ON DECLINE

Is the great postwar boom slowing noticeably? There are very definite indications that it is. Certain industries which could not begin to fill the demand a short while back-- such as household appliances-- have been cutting production. Even in the motor car field where shortages have been intense, conditions are changing with rapidity, some types and models of cars--mostly in the higher-priced, brackets-- are available almost immediately. The market for lowest-priced cars is still strong, but producers believe that an era when cars will have to be pushed to make sales, isn't far off. Few seem to think a serious economic setback is coming in the near future. But the peaks are leveling off.

THE NEW MEXICO WEEKLY NEWSLETTER
(Dr. G. Ward Fenley)

Djever wonder what a university professor does as a hobby for relief from class bells and students' silly questions? Recently this columnist (that's my comic relief) ran into a whole pile of quotations on newspapers and editors which Keen Rafferty has been patiently collecting through the years.

A Newspaper's Function

Wading through the mass of quotations, I found a very potent, to-the point saying of Wilbur Storey in the Chicago Times around 1861: "It is a newspaper's duty to print the news and raise hell."

An unidentified writer boldly stated: "The function of a newspaper is to make the ignorant more ignorant and the crazy crazier."

The late Arthur Brisbane (died in 1930) was fond of saying: "Writing good editorials is chiefly telling the people what they think, not what you think."

And If You Have Wondered

Will Rogers was not by a long shot the first to say: "All I know is what I read in the papers." John Bright in 1861 wrote in a letter to Charles Sumner: "I know nothing but what is in the papers".

Charles Dana who died before the turn of the century, briefly defined journalism as "consisting of buying white paper at two cents a pound and selling it at 10 cents a pound." Of course, Mr. Dana did not live in the 20th century.

Not So Complimentary

The vitriolic pen of Henry L. Mencken terms newspapers in general as "querulous and hellacious. They never defend anyone or anything if they can help it; if the job is forced upon them, they tackle it by denouncing some one or something else."

Of course this line is not new because La Bruyere (Frenchman) wrote back in 1753: "A newswriter is a man without virtue, who writes lies at home for his own profit".

But all recognize the power of the press. Oscar Wilde said in 1931: "In America the President reigns four years, and journalism governs for ever and ever."

Other Professors and their Hobbies

There is another professor at the University of New Mexico who is crusading for correct grammar--"as she is spoke by the common man."

Dr. T. Malt Pearce spends his spare time preaching that (as you read in the papers last week) it should be correct to say: "It is me".

Furthermore, says the learned Doctor, usage has made proper: "None are here" and "who are you looking for?"

"Ditch-diggers make the language and not the university prof," says Dr. Pearce. "I don't like these kind of apples, anyway," he added.

Place Names Again

Dr. Vincent H. Ogburn (ENMC) has through the years traced down a few New Mexico place-names--some of them a bit whimsical. In the ENMC bulletin of 1944, he wrote that one origin of Portales was from the long-haired, lanky Texas ponies that were chased across the border: "broom tails" or "pore-tails"-- thus Portales.

In this Dr. Ogburn differed widely from Col. Jack Potter's origin of the the Peanut Capitol (I resent the Capital spelling) who said it came from the port-holes in the rocks from which men could shoot when surrounded.

A Pass Through the Pearly Gates

One clipping in the collection, which was published in the Journalism Quarterly, University of Illinois, December 1948, would admit any newspaper man without question into heaven. The inference is, he's had enough hell on earth. "Some day I'll pass--by the great Gates of Gold,

And see a man pass through unquestioned and bold. 'A Saint?' I'll ask and old Peter'll reply:

No; he carries a pass--he's a newspaper guy."

And In Conclusion

That's all this week except a word about this "two-bit" reporter's hobby as a university professor.

My eyes always catch that peculiar gleam when I spot a typographical error in some New Mexico paper. The Clovis News Journal said (perfectly seriously) last week: "Cashiers in big stores (during holiday) are usually hushed (for rushed of course) so they don't have time to examine the money to be given back in change."

Then the Otero County Times mixed headings on an Alamogordo Rebekah Lodge installation item and a story on measles. Result: "Two Measles are Here for Joint Installations". And last, which may or may not be true to life, we found in the Gallup Independent: "Dr. S-- felt the patient's pulse and decided there was no hope."

NEW MEXICO NOTES

From A
Wheel Chair
By: Katherine
B. Mabry

As I look out from my wheel chair through the West window of the Mansion, and into the blue haze of the Jemez Mountains, and picture to myself—and feel—the calm and placid atmosphere of these rugged and majestic sentinels who stand guard over the new super-power plant of the world—Los Alamos—it gives me cause to pause and reflect.

Los Alamos lies Northwest, some twenty-five miles from Santa Fe, the second oldest permanent settlement on the North American Continent, and within five miles or so of Los Frijoles, even an older settlement by centuries, though not a permanent one. At Los Alamos we have the final touch and man's last great contribution (up to now) to the machinery for human destruction.

Men, women and children go about their business and pleasure in Santa Fe, Espanola and in the nearby pueblos of the Rio Grande Valley, seeming to pay less attention to Los Alamos, and much less curious about what is going on in the laboratories and machine shops there, than people far away, less even than some on the other side of the globe. And there was but little more curiosity shown during the war and when none knew what was "cooking" at this secret weapon base.

We all knew we had something in the way of a new "industry" which had come into our community and set itself up for the business of helping win the war. As time wore on and the well-guarded conduct and word of the workers at Los Alamos were noticed, there were some questions and some speculation. But it more or less ceased after the first few weeks, and those of us close by, now began taking Los Alamos for granted as a producer of submarine parts, new design airplanes or just simply new army uniforms, and settled down to our daily avocation of attending to our own and other people's business.

The explosion of the first test bomb at the White Sands in New Mexico aroused but little curiosity anywhere in New Mexico and none at all in Santa Fe. It was all explained and accepted, the army and state department hoped—as just a powder magazine explosion and nobody hurt.

And so, to me the blue-dressed Jemez Mountains at sunset time standing guard over the secrets of the present as they have of the past reminds me that, perhaps, after all, we have not improved much over the achievements of the cliff dweller whose home and haunts we have now pre-empted for civilization's science. I mean, achievements in things which make for safety and security of the human beings.

The cliff-dwellers inherited, or won, this beautiful spot of mountain, mesa and sky and then had to retreat. He had to take nature as he found it and fight off the enemy peoples as best he could, and yet he lived, and prospered maybe for centuries; but he did not know HOW; he doubtless carved peace and security as do those of us who live today, but he failed eventually in both desires. We are told this by the mute monuments of stone and clay and burial relics. Maybe more died of pestilence and famine than from war. We don't know. But they died. And we who follow them should not feel ourselves too much their superiors for we have never been able to find a way to bring peace and good will to men, with all our learning.

We know that these powerful new weapons of destruction are not doing it; indeed it seems that the very possession of them retards rather than promotes peace.

I wonder whether we are not missing the formula entirely as we place all our reliance in what man's mind and skill can do, and forget almost, the power for good of the spiritual. As some one else has well said: "If our civilization dries up or is destroyed, it will be because the courses of moral conduct have dried up, at the precise moment when moral problems are most pressing".

Anyway, living this close to Los Alamos and the mountains of the Jemez, which ages ago guarded another helpless "unfit" (for peace) race of men provokes in some of us deep thoughts.

REPORT OF U. S. SAVINGS BONDS IN NEW MEXICO

New Mexicans added $14,344,377 to their purchases of U. S. Savings Bonds during 1948, bringing the total from May 1, 1941 to December 31, 1948, to $185,998,857, of Series E, F, and G, at issue price. This does not include $114,000,000 worth of other government securities bought during the War.

Since January 3, 1946, people of this state have invested $41,418,409 in U. S. Savings Bonds. Before and during the War and Victory Loan Drives, they bought $124,580,458 worth.

While no accurate figures are available for New Mexico, nearly one-third of the amount placed in Savings Bonds has been paid to owners by the Treasury, including interest accumulated. Assuming that New Mexicans have redeemed their Savings Bonds at the same rate as other Americans, they now hold approximately $118,000,000 worth at present value.

If held to maturity, these holdings will return as interest to citizens of this state at least $3,000,000 a year. Translated into items, this interest return will build 300 new $10,000 homes, 1,500 new $2,000 automobiles, and send 4,000 people to college with $750 each.

Series E Bonds have attracted nearly $124,000,000 of New Mexicans' money since May 1, 1941, including $29,740,677 in the last three years. After deducting redemptions at the national average adding estimated interest earned, holdings at present value would be around $90,000,000. If held to maturity these E Bonds will return to their owners $2,320,000 annually in interest.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Proposes Keeping Pledges In State of Nation Congress Talk; Mercy Killing Has Public Support

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

CONGRESS: Big Order

In calm unhurried manner, President Truman outlined to the 81st congress his legislative proposals. To the surprise of no one he asked legislators to enact virtually every recommendation he made during his election campaign. He called for more taxes, authority to restore economic controls, a broad program of social legislation.

Along with corporations, individuals in the middle and higher-income brackets would share in the task of providing the four billion dollars more annual revenue which Mr. Truman says the government must have.

These are the major recommendations made by the President in his "state of the union" message:

INFLATION—Widen government control over bank and consumer credit; exports and transportation allocations; extend and strengthen rent control. Grant authority to regulate commodity speculation, allocate scarce key materials, control certain wages and prices, if necessary.

TAXES—Raise four billion dollars additional revenue for the government, mainly by taxing corporations, but also by boosting estate and gift taxes; consider increasing income taxes for the middle and upper pay brackets.

LABOR—Repeal the Taft-Hartley law and re-enact old Wagner act—but with bans against jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts and some provision for avoiding strikes in general industry. Boost minimum wage from 49 to 76 cents an hour.

BUSINESS—Strengthen anti-trust laws by closing loopholes that permit monopolistic mergers and consolidations.

FARM—Use price supports to keep farmers at a fair income level.

OTHERS—Extend social security; set up systems of pre-paid medical insurance. Aid state educational systems. Pass some civil rights proposals made to 80th congress. Push power flood control and navigation projects on the rivers. Maintain armed forces "sufficient to deter aggression." Pass universal training legislation.

MERCY KILLING: Has Advocates

Euthanasia, a euphemism for "mercy killing," gained important support in New York state where hundreds of Protestant and Jewish religious leaders petitioned for legislation legalizing the practice.

THE QUESTION has agitated humanitarians and sociologists for centuries and there are many cases on record where mercy killings have been committed. Despite legal barriers and penalties, the record in such cases, for the most part, shows that juries are inclined to look with some leniency on the person who kills another to put him or her "out of his misery."

On an appeal to the emotions alone, much convincing argument for euthanasia may be presented. But, considered from all other angles with individual rights, possibility of criminal intent and other such factors involved, the practice could become highly dangerous.

The New York group advocating the measure included 379 Protestant and Jewish ministers of the Empire state, the largest group ever publicly to advocate euthanasia. The practice is now punishable as murder in all the 48 states. The petition was sent to every member of the New York legislature.

NEED SHROCK HOLMES

Thief Makes off With Pound Notes

British authorities would be very happy had the renowned Sherlock Holmes been real and available, since the country was facing two aggravating and puzzling problems. Someone had stolen several sheets of one-pound sterling notes, amounting to approximately $900, from the extraordinarily guarded bank of England printing works. An an added puzzle, someone had been going around with a shag

New Star

Dorothy Malone, in typical Hollywood garb—that is for picture releases such as this—was the first film player to be accorded stardom in 1949. Warner Brothers, her boss, elevated her to filmland's top pinnacle for her performance in the film "One Sunday Afternoon."

THE MINISTERS' petition, sponsored by the Euthanasia Society of America, declared that "ending of physical existence of an individual at his request, when afflicted with an incurable disease which causes extreme suffering is under proper safeguards not only medically indicated but also in accord with the most civilized and humane ethics and the highest concepts and practices of religion."

The safeguards: The sufferer must submit a petition, duly attested by himself and his physician, asking for euthanasia. This must be presented to a court of records which will appoint an investigative committee of physicians. If this committee agrees, the court may permit euthanasia.

CASTE SYSTEM: Officers Adamant

The superiority which many army officers feel and affect over the G. I. came graphically to light in Berlin. There, in the biggest American club in the city, U. S. enlisted men were barred—but German frauleins were admitted.

G. I.'s and civilians got hot as the proverbial two-dollar pistol. Enlisted men won a temporary victory when the board of governors of the club suspended the month-old ban pending a special meeting to thresh out the matter.

One lieutenant-colonel epitomized the officer viewpoint. Ninety per cent of enlisted men were all right, he conceded, but it was the other 10 per cent which caused the ban.

"THERE ARE 10 per cent of the enlisted men," he said, "who do not know how to behave." Then he added the clincher: "We don't want these enlisted barbarians with officers and ladies." Evidently possessed of the power of his convictions, he asserted he would resign from the club if enlisted guests were permitted.

Significant was the reaction of the German civilians. In effect, they asked if such tactics had any place in the teaching of democracy. As one employe put it: "The ban simply means that everybody in Berlin can come into the club except an American enlisted man. That is not our idea of being American."

An idea of how hard-to-catch may be the pound-note thief is provided in the fact that the money, stolen last summer, had only begun to circulate recently.

HARMONY: Same Question

Congress was off to a rough start. The hope of general "harmony", expressed by President Truman and some congressional leaders, grew dim at the start.

Republican Senator Vandenberg charged Democratic colleagues with violating the spirit of bipartisanship in foreign affairs.

Committee assignments provided the spark which set off the blast of discord. When the Democrats decided to take eight of the 13 seats on the foreign relations committee, the Republicans cried "foul" and uttered their protests.

Senator Vandenberg, who will be replaced as committee chairman by Senator Connally (D., Tex.) called it a "political decision." Senator Morse (D., Ore.) was less restrained. He charged that the "implications are that the Democratic party proposes to play politics with war and peace."

Democrats denied any partisanship, claimed they were entitled to more seats because they have a bigger majority than the Republicans had.

Vice-President Barkley regretted the "controversy." He told reporters that the bigger Democratic majority will in no way affect the bipartisan course of the committee.

CHINA REDS: No Comment

"The winners tell the funny jokes—the losers holler, 'deal!'"

But the apparent winners in China's civil war weren't saying a word, and the nationalist government's peace offensive appeared stalled against a wall of Communist silence.

From the government side came a rising tide of clamor for a truce and a negotiated settlement. The Communists, who have been winning, continued to say nothing.

Nanking reported growing anxiety among Chinese who had predicted quick Communist response to Chiang Kai-shek's New Year offer to mediate. It was predicted that the Red answer, if and when it came, would be a demand for the government armies to lay down their arms.

In Peiping, a group of delegates to the national assembly sent the Communist leader a message urging an immediate cease fire order because, they said, "the people cannot endure further suffering."

Meanwhile, American position, as indicated by two statements, seemed uncertain, or divided. Vice-Admiral Oscar C. Badger, commander of U. S. naval forces in the western pacific, denied rumors of a withdrawal of "American forces from China." He declared the rumor was based on reports the marines had terminated their lease on Shantung university campus where they maintain their barracks.

"Wishbone" Magic

Feasting over the amazing power of a chicken wishbone—that's going to make someone's fondest wish come true—are movie stars Dan Daffey and Celeste Holm. The trio sat at a table in the nationwide "Wishbone Contest" being sponsored by the Poultry and Egg National Board.

WISHBONE: Send It In

Perhaps you've never thought about it, but there must be a particular reason you like chicken every Sunday. Now, if you'll only think about that reason, tell it to a judge, and it happens to be declared the best submitted, you will find your fondest wish coming true.

THERE IS a big "Wishbone Contest" going on in these United States and the national prize is the granting of the winning contestant's own "most-desired" wish. The contest is sponsored by the Poultry and Egg National Board of Chicago, and the only requirement is that a chicken wishbone—a real one—must accompany each entry. Anyone in the United States is eligible for the contest.

Contestants must write, in fewer than 100 words, their reasons "Why I like chicken every Sunday." They can send entries in the form of an essay, limerick or slogan—but each entry must be accompanied by a real chicken wishbone and the contestant's "most desired" wish.

THREE REGIONAL winners will receive a trip to Hollywood to witness the final judging at a gala chicken-dinner celebration. During the Hollywood stay, the regional winners will be honored at the "wishbone premiere" of the movie of "Chicken Every Sunday."

FLOODS RAGE OVER NEW ENGLAND . . . Staid New England stayed, but just barely after raging flood waters in the western part of the area began to recede, leaving well over 1,000 residents homeless, including half a dozen communities in Massachusetts, Vermont and Connecticut and causing upwards of two million dollars damage. Among the casualties was this car which nose-dived into the torrent that washed out bridge on Brodie mountain road in Hancock, Mass.

FIRST GIRLS TO BECOME REGULAR GYRENEES . . . Maj. Nancy Altman, U. S. marine corps, is shown as she swore five girls into the marine corps, putting them on record as being the first women called as members of the regular marine corps in the New York area. All five served in the corps reserve during the war.

SEEK FIRST NIGHT OUT . . . Princess Elizabeth of England is back in circulation again after her confinement. Here, she is photographed leaving a London theatre after attending a BBC show on her first night out from Buckingham palace following the birth of her son, Prince Charles, more than six weeks previously. The princess attended the show with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. A typical family gathering.

SEEKS LIGHT PLANE INSTANTLY MARK . . . Capt. Bill Odum, veteran round-the-world flyer, poses with his standard-type Beechcraft Bonanza in which he planned to seek non-stop Honolulu to New York flight record. The plane is a stock model, modified only in that wingtip fuel tanks were added to make the 4,000-mile trip possible. Completion of the flight would give the U. S. the world record in light plane distance flying.

Household Hints

If you use waxed paper to roll dough on, moisten the tabletop first, then lay the paper on it. This prevents the paper from slipping.

Sprinkle baked custard with coconut and nutmeg before putting into the oven. Serve with peach sauce.

Try putting down on paper everything you are planning to serve for a week and work out how to use your leftovers to the best advantage.

Chopped pecans go well with the following kinds of cheese, as sandwich fillings: cream cottage, smoky, softened-American cheddar.

Roll leftover pie crust thin, cut in small squares, and bake in pie pans. Serve hot with a dab of jam or marmalade on each square, with tea.

The preference of red salmon over pink salmon is based on eye appeal rather than on higher food value. Both kinds contain similar amounts of niacin and riboflavin.

If you have a tablespoon or two of tomato paste left in the can, add three times as much mayonnaise as you have tomato paste; a few grains of chili powder and a few drops of tabasco and, presto, a zingy new salad dressing!

It's a good idea when waxing floors to wax the feet of the furniture, too. Then, when furniture is moved around, it will be less likely to mar the floor and will reduce abrasion wear on rugs and carpets.
