 WASHINGTON, July 26.—The Defense Production Act legislation emerging from the House during the past week is perhaps the most thoroughly considered bill to come before the House in recent times. For about two weeks, the full membership of the House has gone over the measure to the point where it bears little resemblance to the original bill.

Man amendments have been made to the act. This will put a big job in the lap of the conference committee whose job it is to adjust the difference between the Senate and House versions in order to bring forth a bill acceptable to both bodies. Ordinarily, it is not too difficult to do this, but there are so many differences in this particular legislation that it will be much harder.

It is my intention to impress on the agencies charged with the responsibility for administration that much of the trouble which the Defense Production Act faced in Congress was due to the attitude of the administrative agencies. Often, regulations have been issued which certainly would not have had the approval of Congress.

While it is necessary to give the agencies the power to make these regulations, it is often abused. My own personal experience with the National Production Authority was an excellent example I have written previously about NPA's attempt to freeze the public to the tune of $125,000,000 a year by removing the fifth tire from newly built automobiles.

It is interesting to note how that agency attempted to save face when the fifth tire ban was lifted on July 6. News releases issued by NPA stated that the regulation was found to be unnecessary "because a 20 per cent cutback in the manufacture of new cars will save the same amount of rubber." The agency ignored the fact that the regulation had never saved a pound of rubber and was only put into effect at the behest of certain powerful lobbying groups.

It is time that all government agencies realized that their own best interests would be served by an honest attitude toward the people of the United States, through their elected representatives in Congress.

STATE DISCOVERS SPAIN For a long time, those of us who value the security of the United States have been unable to understand why the State Department has been giving Spain the cold shoulder while attempting to establish a European alliance against communism.

At long last, it appears that Spain with its important ports and strategic position may obtain a favorable consideration from the United States. Certainly, Spain is as important to the defense of Europe as any other country on that continent.

Inclusion of Spain in the western defense setup is being opposed by Great Britain, and the suspicion grows that the latter country's motives are financial ones. England may feel that any American aid to Spain would decrease the amount of help which England will get.

It is time that England made up her mind where she stands in the fight against world communism. To date, if the allocation of funds to Great Britain matched that country's contribution to the fight, the amount of money she would receive would be nil.

LOCKING THE BARN DOOR. Last week, Congress approved a $25,000,000 allocation for disaster relief in the flood-stricken areas of the Midwest. Although there was no doubt about the need for the funds, it was something like locking the barn door after the horse is gone.

I reminded the members of the House that the Army engineers were recently denied funds to plan for the future, and that it was exactly this sort of shortsightedness that is causing the situation we are in today. We are

New Type Insurance Disabled Veterans

Disabled veterans recently separated from service may be eligible for a new type of government life insurance as a result of a law especially enacted for their benefit. Veterans Administration announces.

The present Congress authorized this insurance to provide special coverage up to $10,000 for certain disabled veterans.

Four basic requirements are established by law for veterans to qualify for this insurance. They are:

1. The veterans must have been disabled in active service or under the special conditions specified in the act.
2. The veterans must have been separated from such service on or after April 25, 1951, under other than dishonorable conditions.
3. VA must find that the veterans are suffering from disabilities for which VA compensation would be payable if 10 per cent or more in degree; and,
4. VA also must find that, because of these disabilities, the veterans would not be insurable under the good health standards of National Service Life Insurance.

Under these conditions, the law covers many groups who were in active service or special types of service on and after June 27, 1950, and who were separated on and after April 25, 1951.

planning for everyone on earth except ourselves.

I explained the lack of water in New Mexico and the hardship it is working in our state.

"Water is a terrifically destructive thing," I told the House. "It destroys if it does not visit you often enough, and it destroys if it visits you too often and you do not make preparation in the way of impounding the surplus water. We have long delayed doing those things which we should do."

"If you get around this great nation of ours, as I think we members of Congress should do, we would be making adequate expenditures here in the United States of America before spending money in the rest of the world."

The Missouri River flood disaster, one of the greatest and costliest in the history of the nation, was not caused by the Missouri River channel itself, but by its overloaded tributaries. For years, we have urged that these streams be harnessed to prevent floods while conserving soil and water resources.

In like manner, the Middle Rio Grande project is vitally connected with the economy of the entire state of New Mexico as well as parts of Colorado, Texas and Mexico. Here the problem is one of water shortage rather than surplus, an even more disastrous situation.

The President's request for $1,462,000 for channelization in the vicinity of San Marcel was received and approved by the Senate after the House had passed the interior appropriations bill. The conferees have been appointed and Congressman Fernandez and I have discussed these funds with the House members of the committee. We have been reasonably assured that the amount will be retained in the final bill.

The cowboy camp meeting this year was one of the best. Each year it seems to get bigger and better. Besides hearing some wonderful sermons and beautiful singing one gets to meet so many new people and also see old friends that you seldom get to meet other places. The weather was grand during the entire meeting, Sunday it rained about two hours but no one complained about that.

We are very sorry to lose the E. P. Sawyers from our town but are very glad that Mr. Sawyer is now well enough to go back into duty.

Lloyd Absher leaves this week to go back to the hospital in Salt Lake City where he is having some grafting work done.

The Captain Woman's Club held its regular meeting Friday evening, July 20. After the opening of the meeting, Wilbur Coe, W. C. Cooper and Joe Wigley were introduced by the president, Messrs. Coe and Cooper gave talks explaining our part and duty in the REA. They urged all members to attend the meeting of the co-op to be held in Cloudcroft on August 4. At this meeting the new board of directors will be elected. After these men talked the business meeting was held. The club will give a benefit dinner on August 3 at the high school, plates to sell for $1. A program is being planned to go along with the dinner. Be sure and buy your ticket early. The club also voted to have a book case made for the City Hall in order to move the Woman's Club Library from the drug store to the hall. After the business meeting the club was served delicious refreshments of ice cream and cookies by the hostesses.

Jack Young is in the hospital in Carrizozo, having undergone an appendectomy. At this time he is doing very well.

Mrs. Zana Allen and daughter, Teddy Sue, of Roswell, were up visiting friends over the weekend and also attending a few of the meetings at the camp meeting. Oh, yes, Teddy's boy friend was also with them.

Mrs. Faye Younker of Montana is here visiting her mother and brother. Mrs. Younker is the former Faye Petree.

Miss Devan Dale has returned from a two weeks vacation. She visited friends in Alamogordo and went on to El Paso to visit her sister, Mrs. Hoyt Callahan.

Mr. and Mrs. Chappellear of Tucson, Ariz. were here the past week visiting Mr. Chappellear's sister, Louise Harlan.

Mr. and Mrs. Rayford Burnett and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Young attended the VFW meeting in Esawell last Monday night. The VFW is planning a barbecue dinner in the near future. Watch for the date.

Three young businessmen of Capitán have opened a Nutrina feed store in Capitán. It is located on Second Street in the block east of the high school. It is operated by Wally Ferguson, Johnny Werner and Bobbie Eshom.

Miss Anneese Yarbrough returned this week after spending several weeks in Oklahoma visiting relatives and friends. Miss Patricia Ann Story came home with her for a few days.

Unsulphured Molasses Gingerbread Key

Just as you use a specific type of flour for rolls and cake, or a definite shortening, you use unsulphured molasses rather than other types for a gingerbread with sweetness and delicate aromatic flavor.

Grandma's Homemade Gingerbread
2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder

Sift together flour, salt, baking powder, ginger, cinnamon and cloves. Cream shortening, sugar and soda. Add unsulphured molasses. Stir in 1/2 cup flour mixture. Beat in eggs. Add hot water alternately with remaining flour mixture.

in history, our country, and, yes, even the world itself is leaning ever so heavily upon the farmer and rancher of America.

Among the matters to be taken up at the meeting will be the election of nine trustees for the cooperative. The following 10 men have been nominated:

Wallace Ferguson, Captain; W. F. Coe, Glencoe; Giles Ramey, Lincoln; Hugh Bancroft, Captain; Bryan Runyan, Hope; J. C. Read, Cloudcroft; Forrest Chambers, High Rolls; W. A. Gage, James Harrow, both of Captain, and Jim Mahill of Mayhill.

Other matters to be voted upon are the dividing of the cooperative into four districts with two representatives from each district and one at large; and making of arrangements so that annual and other meetings can be held at any place in the cooperative area.

Wilbur F. Coe, trustee representing the Ruidoso Valley, and pioneer in rural electrification, has stated this meeting is of serious importance. He urges every one in the county to attend and vote, emphasizing again that this organization belongs to us all.

"Another thing," Coe reminded, "it is worth a trip over to Cloudcroft, if for nothing else, just to enjoy the drive. There are two fine roads, one through the reservation and another around by Tularosa and Alamogordo. Both have scenery the likes of which is hard to match anywhere, and the wild flowers are especially colorful around Cloudcroft after the recent good rains."

NOGAL MESA

By DOROTHY GUCK

We should have had one of those gadgets for counting traffic on the Mesa last week. With all those camp meeting visitors, we'd have rated pavement.

G. A. Rowland of Wichita Falls, Texas, is visiting the Henry Peebles. Mr. Rowland used to live in Lincoln County, coming here in 1888 at the age of 13. He served as deputy sheriff under Pat Garrett in Dona Ana County, worked for two years on the Garrett ranch, and attended the funeral of the famous law officer. Mr. Rowland is making a stopover on his way home after an extended visit on the West Coast.

Tommy G. Zumwalt, son of Tom Zumwalt of Nogal, left July 17 for French North Africa as a C. T. 3. He had been on furlough after serving in Guam.

Mary Ann Cox visited on the Mesa this weekend. She is attending the summer session at Portales.

Mrs. Mag Pfingsten came from Tucumcari to camp with her son, Ben and sister, Mrs. Lulu Wingfield. Ben is quite enthusiastic about his chances of finally winning a game of canasta from his friend, Mike Gados. His nephew, Arizona Bob, is expected to arrive from Bisbee this week.

The death of Dr. Larry Moore of Ruidoso came as a shock to many. We are so engrossed with our own ailments when we visit the doctor, we never consider the state of his health. Dr. Moore as a private physician and county health officer helped many people in the county who are grieved at his passing.

Mr. and Mrs. McCarter and children who bought the Stewart ranch near Alto spent their vacation in the mountains. Mr. McCarter is a noted square dancer and is employed by the postal department in Roswell.

Jennings Blalock, owner of the Alamo Courts in Alamogordo, purchased the Welch Morgan place some time ago. To the amazement of his neighbors, the 150 acres of old fields were planted to that valuable, but not often cultivated crop, grass. Charlie Peebles did the seeding with crested wheat, western wheat, fescue and brome grass. Louis Bromfield in his famous book, "Malabar Farm," extols the wisdom of planting grass as a crop. Whether Mr. Blalock followed the advice of Bromfield or decided to risk $1,500 on grass as his own idea, he can't say. The rains have come. Incidentally, Mrs. Blalock planted a lawn.

Speaking of rain, debris washed into our yard, every rivulet poured into the wash that runs through our pasture until the murky water almost spread from bank to bank. After the storm was over Sunday, hail remained on the ground until the next day. Garden vegetables looked as though someone had used the food chopper on the leaves. We found one drowned rat and one drowned rattlesnake in the ditch. Peg and Leota Pfingsten, whose garden suffered too, cheerfully marveled, "But wasn't it so nice and wet?"

Of all the good natured, happy people, you can't beat Mrs. Dooge LaMay.

There is another story about that bear on the Capitan Mountains. You remember I told you how he broke into the camp of the fire fighters and ate their supplies? Well, he's been seen regularly mousing around the area where a couple men still patrolled the burned area. One day, curled up and went to sleep nearby. The men decided to call him Smokey's pa. They moved most of their supplies off the mountain top to a spot near Padilla Springs. Last week Smokey's Pa dragged some Army blankets below the spring to dam up the stream enough to produce a mud hole in which he could wallow. First time I ever heard of the Forest Service supplying a bruin with such pleasure.

Billy The Kid Subject Of Book By Texas Professor

"Quiten es?"

"Dropping over sideways from the chair toward the floor in a tricky, dodging movement, Garrett answered the question with a shot. A flare of lurid flame lighted up the darkness for an instant, the room shook with a sudden crushing explosion, and Billy, the Kid fell dead with a bullet through his heart."

This bit of dramatic action is the Walter Noble Burns version, and the popularly accepted story, of how William H. Bonney, or "Billy the Kid," was killed one night in the spring of 1881 at the Maxwell ranch house in Lincoln.

However, William V. Morrison, El Paso, businessman, has taken loud exception to this legend, and claims he has proof to back up his story.

Morrison has spent many months of travel and research on the subject and has collected an amazing file of documents and statements which indicate that Burns' romantic tale of the demise of the fabulous "Kid" may be just so many words.

And not only is Morrison trying to prove the "Kid" was not killed on that night in 1881, but that he actually was in contact with the legendary bad man.

Morrison's man, going under the name of William Henry Roberts, died this past winter at a ripe old age of over 90.

Last fall, southwestern papers were jammed with stories of Morrison and the old man he claimed was Billy the Kid. The most sensational of these was concerned with a trek the duo made to Santa Fe in an attempt to obtain a full pardon for Roberts from the governor of New Mexico.

The interview ended in bitter failure for Morrison and his ward when the governor refused to consider the request. At that time Morrison claimed that the governor was completely unfair and did not pay proper attention to the details of the request.

At any rate, far from dropping the subject with the death of the colorful nonagenarian, Morrison has doubled his efforts to prove that the "Kid" was not killed by Pat Garrett.

He feels that he now has sufficient evidence to present to the public, and Dr. C. L. Sonnichsen, professor of English at Texas Western College and recognized authority on southwestern history, will compile all of Morrison's research into novel form in the near future.

"In my opinion, the evidence Morrison has turned up indicates that the whole case of the

Reseeding Of Lincoln Forest Completed

The reseeded of 6,500 acres of burned over forest land to grass in the Lincoln National Forest has been completed, according to C. E. Moore, Alamogordo, forest supervisor.

The seeded land is part of the 14,700 acre Allen Canyon fire which swept over some of the best timberland in the Sacramento Mountains last June. The portions selected for reseeding were burned so badly there is danger of serious erosion before native vegetation can recover and bind the soil. Erosion of this land would pose a serious threat to the highly productive farms in the nearby mountain valleys, said Moore.

Vernon B. Bostick, forest service technician in charge of the project, related 1,000 acres of the most critical areas were seeded virtually on the heels of the fire by Mesquero Apache Indians who had just finished fighting the blaze. Armed with hand seeders, they spread a mixture of five species of grass seeds in the still warm ashes. The hasty action was taken in case of immediate rainfall that might occur, thus starting an early cover of vegetation. The balance of the area was seeded from the air at tree-top level. The altitude of the burned area ranges up to 8,000 feet and flying so low at that elevation over rugged terrain is extremely hazardous.

Grass species used included crested wheat grass, intermediate wheat grass, mountain brome, timothy and orchard grass. The mixtures were varied to suit different site conditions.

Bostick said that if the seeding is successful it will prevent incalculable injury to this portion of the Pecos Valley watershed and damage to mountain farming lands, as well as provide a quick start toward restoration of the area itself.

Ford Motor Company's glass plant in the Rouge currently produces a continuous ribbon of plate glass 52 inches wide and 3-16th of an inch thick at the rate of 215 inches per minute. Aggregating 11 million linear feet, Ford's annual glass output would stretch from New York City to Phoenix, Ariz.

"Kid's" death or survival needs to be re-examined," Dr. Sonnichsen said.

Dr. Sonnichsen, who has authored many books on southwestern history and lore, said he expects to commence work on the book sometime this summer.

Improved Screwworm Remedy Available

EQ335, the new screwworm remedy developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is now available through regular commercial channels, Dr. James W. Benner, extension veterinarian at New Mexico A. and M. College, said in an announcement made through Austin A. Albert, Lincoln County extension agent. The new remedy replaces EQ62, or Smear 62 as it is commonly known.

EQ335 contains (by weight) 3 per cent lindane, 35 per cent pine oil, 42 per cent white mineral oil, 10 per cent emulsifier and 10 per cent silica gel. This treatment, which is applied to livestock wounds with a small paint brush, will kill maggots deep in the wound, young maggots as they hatch from eggs, and flies attracted to the wounds. EQ335 will have no harmful effect if applied according to directions. The new remedy is superior to EQ62, Benner says, because (1) one treatment will last for seven days, (2) treated wounds heal quickly, (3) it will not deteriorate on standing, and (4) it does not contain lamp black and other coloring chemicals that stain clothing, wool or hair. Severely infected wounds should be treated again three or four days after the first treatment and at seven-day intervals thereafter, until the wounds are healed, Benner advises. EQ335, when diluted with nine parts of water, is also effective as a treatment for wool maggots on sheep.

Daily Record. Frazier's letter, addressed to M. Johnson, real estate department head, San Francisco, asks for a conference with top executives of the western branch of S. P.

According to the Roswell paper, Frazier has written Carrizozo Mayor Petty assuring him any dealings that city has with the Southern Pacific are open to Carrizozo, Corona and Vaughn, adding that Roswell is "primarily interested in public ownership of the water for the benefit of the people."

The railroad company recently confirmed that Bonito Dam (which presently supplies water) to towns from there north to Vaughn) is for sale since conversion to diesel engines makes the dam unessential to its operations.

The story goes on to state that at a recent meeting of the Roswell committee it was brought out that city has no desire to buy the property alone and sell water to the towns of Carrizozo, Corona and Vaughn, but that there was some misunderstanding by the committee and believes it would benefit everybody. Members of the Roswell City Council Bonito Dam committee are M. L. Norton, chairman; Max Little, Aubrey Gregg and City Manager C. M. Woodbury.

Roswell officials hoped to arrange a meeting with Johnson, who planned to visit the Bonito area this week, and possibly A. T. Metzger, president of the Southern Pacific Company.

The article in the Record states Frazier has assured the Carrizozo mayor Roswell will put the water interests of the three towns ahead of any other consideration in any cooperative agreement that may be reached, and that Carrizozo, Corona and Vaughn formed the Bonito Inter-Community Water Supply Association without any notice to the city of Roswell.

According to the newspaper story, Roswell is not interested in all the water in the Bonito, but only that which is surplus after the needs of the towns, the railroad and other basic needs are filled, and that the surplus would serve Roswell's purposes. It appears the neighboring city desires the added source of water because of an expected fall in the artesian basin at Roswell of from five to 10 feet by the end of the year, and that a 10-foot fall at Roswell will result in a 200-foot drop at Artesia. Roswell City Council's committee expressed the opinion the entire Artesia basin area should be interested in the acquisition of Bonito Dam and lake considering the low level of the basin and the possibility of its becoming saline in the foreseeable future.

Parts of Frazier's letter to Petty are quoted in the newspaper story and it appears he is of the opinion cooperation of the three towns with Roswell has been lacking. The Roswell mayor adds it is feared the three towns may become so involved with engineering fees and similar items as to make it impossible for Roswell to become involved. The article develops the Roswell committee believes that city can be of great aid to the three towns financially yet protect the interests of all with mutual, ironclad agreements. The mayor told Johnson in his letter it is believed detrimental to the interests of the three mountain towns, Roswell, and the public generally to sell the railroad property to private interests. Frazier added he believes Roswell is also able financially to handle the deal alone.

A major reason Roswell is in-

Lincoln County as it was before the coming of the Anglo-Americans. The growing pains experienced by this county will be graphically illustrated in the portrayal of the lives of those men and women whose "blood, sweat and tears" contributed to its progress and growth. Those men and women could not know then that one day old Lincoln Town would be the gathering place for visitors from all over the world to view the re-enactment of scenes from its history.

The grand finale of the pageant comes with "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid," one of the episodes in the fabulous career of William H. Bonney, that argument-provoking character in Lincoln County's history whose escapades, even at this late date, are the basis for much controversy.

Another meeting is scheduled for tonight (Friday) for the casting of other parts in the pageant and further discussion of plans for the August 12 presentation.

Giles Ramey, Lincoln, was in charge of Tuesday night's coffee making over a huge blazing campfire, and the enjoyment expressed by visitors and acting competitors for the steaming cups of Java he served was ample expression of his ability as a coffee maker.

The Lincoln County Historical Society, sponsor of the annual "A Day in Old Lincoln," requests the cooperation of Lincoln County in making the production a huge success, reminding residents there are still a number of roles to be filled, and urges as many as possible be present at tonight's tryout. The society issued a reminder also that a campaign for additional membership in the organization is underway. Annual dues of $1 for 1951 membership may be sent to Mrs. Ruth Martin, Lincoln, treasurer.

Interested in the surplus water at Bonito Dam, says the newspaper, in because the artesian basin is closed to future drilling which makes the city helpless to supply additional water if the city continues to grow, and that their only other alternative is to purchase farm land with water rights in the Roswell area and drill wells to meet the demand, but that this would result in drying up land that could otherwise be used.

Representatives of the Roswell Chamber of Commerce water committee met with the city council's committee on water last week and the two groups are agreed on all major points.

No further action will be taken by Roswell officials pending replies to their correspondence with railroad and other officials.

Demo State Chairman Visits Lincoln County

Waldo Spless, Democratic state chairman, in Lincoln County on his trip about the state said he wondered why he had been told that Lincoln is a "strong Republican county."

"I can't find evidence of that," he said. "In the 1950 election eight of the 12 Democratic candisongster. He formed a young people's choir that sang many of the old favorite hymns. Mrs. Bernard Rooney, Veda Lou Branum and Wanda Garrison were soloists.

Both preachers and families, managers Ralph Hall and Roger Sherman, Joe Evans and about 80 other families camped under the trees on the Mesa. Photographers Al Rosenfeld and George Thompson from Time Magazine took several pictures which are to appear in an early issue of Time and possibly Life. Walt Wiggins of Roswell was also on hand taking pictures for story material.

Saturday afternoon, a business meeting was held in which the same managers were reappointed and the same chairmen re-elected to serve another year. Every year a portable tank is used to haul water from Nogai Lake. This entails several trips a day to supply the 8,000 gallons needed. Efforts will be made to install some form of water system on the grounds before next camp meeting. A sign will be placed on the grounds telling the elevation at that point.

Several people attending the camp for the first time have vowed to return next year. Children kept up a spirited game of volley ball between services, alternating with the old fashioned fun of tag, tree climbing and baseball. Joe Evans made the nightly campfires a nucleus for all the best western jokes in the country while Mark Sloan served as master of ceremonies. Rev. Boles gave proof that a minister of the gospel can be a comedian deserving of the plaudits of the best of audiences. Dora Peralta and her father made the cool night air sing with the lively tunes they created with guitar and violin. As Joe Evans closed the Saturday night entertainment at the campfire he said, "People were meant to laugh and be happy. If they hadn't been, God wouldn't have made them so they could."

Rev. Boles left immediately after the morning services on Sunday to attend the golden wedding anniversary of his parents in Amarillo. Ralph Hall and Roger Sherman, assisted by the men on the Mesa, packed all the equipment Monday morning to haul it to Montosa, near Magdalena, where they will hold the next camp meeting. Then their schedule will take them to Sonolla and Perkinsville in Arizona and back to Glenwood in New Mexico. Ken Schafer of Chicago is going with them.

I wish I could tell you of all the old friends that spent the four days on the Mesa, but I'd be sure to forget some. I hope I can remember all the stories I heard to tell during the year, and make you think they are original. But most of all, I hope when camp meeting time rolls around again next year every familiar face will be there to enjoy the companionship of the best neighbors in the world and know the truth of Ralph Hall's words, "God is in the mountains and the trees, the sky and the grass. I humbly thank Him for the privilege of camping in the beauty of His Holy Kingdom."

dates were given majorities. That usually doesn't happen in a strong Republican county."

Spless said he finds the Democratic party in the state "unified and confident."

"There is every reason for the party to be that way," he said. "We elected 11 out of 12 candidates in 1950 with an average vote of 99,000 as compared to an average of 75,000 for our opponents. That average majority of 24,000 shows that the Democratic party retains its normal total potential majority of 35,000 to 40,000 votes. That many votes are hard to overcome."

"While there were no big majorities either way in Lincoln County in 1950," he continued, "the Democratic candidates came out on the right side of the books. Lincoln County, therefore, cannot be properly called Republican."

Spless said the unity he has found among the Democrats is "definite evidence that whatever factionalism once existed has disappeared almost completely."

Alken Attacks Byrd

SEN. George Alken was once governor of the rock-ribbed Republican state of Vermont, one of only two states voting for Alf Landon in 1936. Alken is a frugal gentleman as are most Vermonters, but he writhed as he sat listening to Senator Byrd of Virginia lead a drive to cut appropriations for school lunches, juvenile delinquency, The Women's Bureau and The Children's Bureau.

Finally Alken could stand it no more. "An $80,000,000 ship is being built at Newport News, Virginia," he told Senator Byrd, who used to be governor of Virginia. "It will be turned over to one of the shipping lines for $28,000,000 or a gift by Uncle Sam of $50,000,000. That gift is 50 per cent more money than we plan to appropriate for maternal and child welfare work in this country under the budget cuts."

"Does a five-year-old child have any cash value?" continued the usually mild-mannered Vermont senator. "What is it worth to restore a crippled person to a place where he is self supporting? What is the cash value of a healthy mother, as compared to a sick one? Are we to determine this in terms of dollars and cents, and decide the fewer the cents the better off the country will be?"

"To hear the talk this afternoon," Alken added bitterly, "one might assume that we ought to drown all our children and mothers and get them out of the way. Then they wouldn't cost us anything."

A Reason for Peace

Unquestionably one reason for Moscow's peace feelers is the effectiveness of a little-known U.S. weapon in Korea. For some reason, never explained at the MacArthur hearings, General MacArthur failed to use this weapon in the early stages of the Korean war. More recently, however, it has caused terrific Chinese casualties.

The weapon is the radar-controlled proximity fuse, now so hazy a secret. This amazing device explodes artillery shells just as they hit the target, giving them a devastating effect. Previously shells exploded as they buried themselves in the ground, which detracted from their effect.

The proximity fuse was used during the end of World War II, but it has been a major mystery why MacArthur failed to use it in the early stages of the Korean war. If he had done so, the back of the Communist offensive might have been broken early with countless saving of American lives.

To solve the mystery of MacArthur's failure to use the proximity fuse, the Pentagon finally sent ordnance expert Col. C. H. Roberts to Korea. He came back with the explanation that MacArthur had failed to train artillery crews in the use of the fuse.

Under Gen. Ridgeway, however, the proximity fuse has become the key to American firepower, and the chief reason the Chinese have suffered such devastating casualties. Undoubtedly also it is one reason why Malik has thrown out overtures for peace.

Note.—Illustrative of the Army's present policy of admitting and correcting mistakes, Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks' press branch in Washington was willing to make public the facts regarding the proximity fuse error. However, the Far Eastern Command overruled Parks.

Peace Overtures

It is no longer a secret that U.S. delegates to the United Nations have been working with other U.N. members for some time on a Korean truce proposal and that Comrade Malik jumped the gun on them.

The most important issue in these discussions, however, has not leaked out—namely, the differences of opinion regarding two highly controversial points: 1. Disposition of Formosa; and 2. Seating the Chinese Reds in the United Nations.

The U.S. proposal, discussed with 15 other U.N. nations by U.S. Ambassador Ernest Gross, was to postpone any consideration of Formosa or seating the Reds until after all other conditions had been ironed out. The State Department was completely adamant on this, and maintained that we would not discuss these two points even until: 1. The whole Korean question had been settled, and 2. All troops had been withdrawn.

This was the chief stumbling block between ourselves and some other U.N. members.

The above terms were somewhat similar to those which President Truman sent to General MacArthur for his personal just before Easter and which MacArthur subsequently issued as his own. MacArthur's jumping the gun was one fact which contributed to his ouster. The President, however, is in no position to oust Comrade Malik for likewise jumping the gun when he heard that the U.N. and the U.S.A. were working on a truce.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

"Cease-Fire" Talks Should Follow Unusual Pattern of Korean Events

PEACE—LIKE THE WAR—PUZZLING—With the confusing Korean conflict little more than a year old, the prospects for peace suddenly became brighter than ever. For the average citizen on the Main streets of America, however, the promise and the possibilities of an end to hostilities seemed just about as puzzling as ever.

American government and military leaders at first took a dim view of the "feelers" for cease-fire negotiations. With understandable caution, they mistrusted the sincerity and purpose of Red China and those pulling the strings of the puppet from behind. But UN and American leaders would not miss a chance for a just peace. Truman sounded the keynote: "We are ready (to negotiate), as we have always been."

As America, and then the world, watched with abated breath, the peace campaign followed the pattern of war—aggressiveness and then reticence on both sides. Appropriately enough, thin-lipped Jacob Malik made the first overture—suggesting a cease-fire and withdrawal behind the famed 38th parallel as the "first step." After some half-silent political parrying, negotiations began through normal diplomatic channels in Washington and Moscow. Then wires hummed between Tokyo, Peiping and Pyongyang.

Anxious to save lives, Ridgway declared himself ready to talk to the Reds as early as July 5th. They, however, wanted a preliminary meeting on the 8th and a meeting of the top brass later. Ridgway concurred, and the first meeting was held in a one-room home in the "no-man's-land" of Kaesong. The UN sent three colonels, one a South Korean. The Reds dispatched a like number, but included "receptive personnel."

The first meeting, merely a preparing for the real negotiations, was tense, and held in utmost secrecy. American officers returned tight-lipped to their stations, but said the meeting had been "harmonious."

Tuesday the top brass began to get at the core of things. As they did, American officials pointed out to the folks at home that a cease-fire order would not be an assurance of peace, and that the approach to this one seemed fraught with trickery. The statement, intended, no doubt, to ward off optimism, was not necessary.

Generally, the American belief was that the Communists wanted to quieten the Korean scene in advance of a new outbreak somewhere else. The only optimists were those who thought the quest for a cease-fire meant the Russians were desirous of shifting main efforts to the diplomatic fronts in view of the disastrous failures in Korea. Some so-called "reliable" sources also said that Stalin was ailing, that there was a general internal struggle in Moscow to get in line for his job, and so the Reds needed more time to devote to the home front. One of the most logical ideas was that Red China wanted out while it still could "save face" and say it had not lost the war. Factually there was less truth than speculation everywhere. Only the Reds knew why the peace movement originated.

Keeper U.S. observers marked the week the beginning of peace in Korea. Yet, they were quick to point out that, if peace comes, the hypothesis that the world would be rid of one headache, and then could turn attention to many other ailments. A peace in Korea might be fuel for a colder war.

Joy That Is Real, If Premature

Patients at a hospital in Korea let their spirits rise after word of the possible "cease-fire" negotiations reached them, both nurse upon their shoulders. For most of them, the war is already over—their joy is for comrades on the front lines.

SHIFT INTO REVERSE—As the anxious world watched the move for peace in Korea, the business world reluctantly checked reverse gears to see if it was in working order.

Business analysts know that cessation of hostilities would lessen the feeling of urgency and military spending would fall short of projected plans. Once the last shot had echoed in Korea, business could expect two things. First, the government would drastically cut down on quantities ordered. World War II stockpiles taught Washington a lesson. Second, delivery dates would be strung out over longer periods, with a few "rush" orders.

Future policy of business: to cease producing all-out and still remain ready for all-out production.

INFLATION PROFILE—During the year of Korean war, wholesale prices increased 20 per cent; retail prices about 10 per cent. Although restrictive measures had curbed the rise, and even dropped a few items down, defense spending and cutbacks in civilian production point to a strong inflationary trend, unless strong controls are applied.

Price director Michael Di Salle faced newsmen with these words, "We will need every bit of price control we have had" to combat inflation. He pledged to keep up the fight for more and stronger controls, said the public was beginning to get on the controls bandwagon.

IN THIS CORNER—While Di Salle spoke to the newsmen, congressmen on the hill were getting squared away for their own battle royal over prices and controls.

The administration was fighting gamely uphill, with two major sore spots: (1) An amendment sponsored by the agriculture committee to prohibit all price rollbacks on farm products, rescinding even the live beef cut of 10 per cent already in effect. (2) A proposal by the labor committee to revise the makeup of the wage stabilization board so as to give public members control and to take away WSB's authority to handle labor disputes.

UNDAUNTED DEFENSE—The President's trouble-shooter, W. Averell Harriman, spoke in support of the President's $5.5 billion dollar foreign aid program, warned congress that any relaxation now in the defense program "can lead only to disaster."

THE OTHER WAR—As the world watched for peace in Korea, President Truman called on congress to end the state of war with Germany, now nine-and-one-half years old. As he made the request, Britain, Australia and New Zealand ended their state of war with the Germans, and Canada and France were expected to follow suit shortly. India had done so on the first day of the year.

The moves were a definite attempt to bring the German people back into membership among the nations of the free world. Coming at such a time, however, the action seemed part of the jig saw puzzle that is our world of today. Wars, peace, and rumors of both.

LEST WE FORGET—And still another sign of the times came from Washington with the announcement that the U.S., Australia, and New Zealand have worked out a defense treaty. Uncle Sam is not forgetting the Pacific area.

The treaty, which will go unsigned until the Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco two months hence, is expected to state that the United States will consider an attack on Australia and New Zealand from any quarter dangerous to the peace and security of this country. The treaty might well be the nucleus of a future pact embracing all of the Pacific area.

POOR UNIONS! . . . Transit workers' strike sets Washington workers walking.

TAKES PRICE PROBLEM TO SHOPPERS . . . U.S. Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and manager of a New York food store, Casar Ottolina (right), confer in the latter's store as Johnston discusses price rollbacks with interested customers. Johnston warned that a ban on price rollbacks in the new controls law would add a dollar a day to every household budget. Strongly backed by President Truman, Johnston made his plea for strong wage-price legislation as an unfriendly house opened debate on an amendment-riddled controls bill that the administration feared would hamper the inflation fight.

NEWARK BLAST LOOKS LIKE A-BOMB EXPLOSION . . . An aerial view of the spectacular fire in Newark, N. J., as one of the tanks of the Warren Propane Company goes up in an explosion resembles that of a miniature atom bomb. Some of the unexploded gas and oil tanks are in the foreground. All were expected to blow. The city of Newark may be seen behind the smoke pall created by the burning propane. The fire raged for many hours and cost approximately five million dollars. GOLDEN AGE OF MUSIC

United States Is Most Musical Nation in History of the World

America is beginning a Golden Age of Music. This is now the most musical nation in the history of the world; and the trend is typically American, growing out of the people themselves instead of patronage by an upper class.

Some of the signs of our musical renaissance are obvious and pervasive. More than 96 per cent of our families own radios that pour forth music of various sorts at the flick of a switch. More than 15,000,000 homes have phonographs and records. Every motion picture has music as a backdrop, with the musical film the most popular of all types. In the theater, plays like "Oklahoma," "South Pacific" and "Guys and Dolls" are the record-breakers. In restaurants, offices and hotel lobbies music is piped in to entertain and to relieve monotony.

But the more significant signs that music is coming to have a basic place in our way of life are in the private lives of the people. There are today more adults learning to play instruments, taking part in community orchestras and choruses, joining in music festivals and events than there have been for many years. The number of children who are learning to play instruments in our schools is at an all-time high. Musical colleges report that the number of students preparing to teach music surpasses the proportionate increase in enrollment in other subjects. Attendance at concerts and other musical performances is breaking all records, particularly in the smaller cities and the small towns where such fare was scarce indeed just a few years ago. According to the American Music Conference, there are more than 700 community symphony orchestras in cities of all sizes, including one in Mountain Lakes, N. J.—population 2,500.

In adult recreation, music is playing an ever-increasing part. YMCA's and YWCA's in many cities are offering class instruction on various instruments, and service clubs and other groups put on periodic songs, musical events and concert series. Music appreciation is rising toward the top of the list of things many adult organizations are offering their memberships.

The bright fact is that the American people are making music for themselves—a bright fact because throughout history music has been one of the greatest forces for happiness, stability, and harmony among men.

This trend is putting the piano, the organ and the harp back into the home, and the instrument case back into the hands of our children.

THE MUSIC CLUBS and their unifying organization, the National Federation of Music Clubs, have brought music into the lives of thousands of communities and have encouraged young musicians to follow the art seriously. Service clubs like Kiwanis International, Rotary and Lions have helped bands and orchestras, provided scholarships, put on music festivals, added singing to their own programs and otherwise helped make us music conscious. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers' music committees have been behind much of the sharp increase in opportunity for music offered in the schools and for growth of music in community affairs.

In rural areas, the 4-H, extension departments of state universities and other groups have been influential, and in the adult field the YMCA and YWCA have made music prominent in their activities and offered classes on various instruments.

Though it is less than four years old, the American Music Conference has had an important part in the current boom. Financed by various branches of the music industry as a public service, AMC is devoted entirely to helping more people get the benefits of music. Much of the tremendous increase in material about music appearing in newspapers, magazines and radio is AMC inspired. Its films and literature are helping to keep the trend moving. Its small field staff is carrying know-how on organization, techniques and materials to cities and towns in all parts of the country. Contributing its services to organizations, school systems and anyone else who wants help to advance music, AMC has increased the effectiveness of many other agencies and has given the total movement a new spark and acceleration.

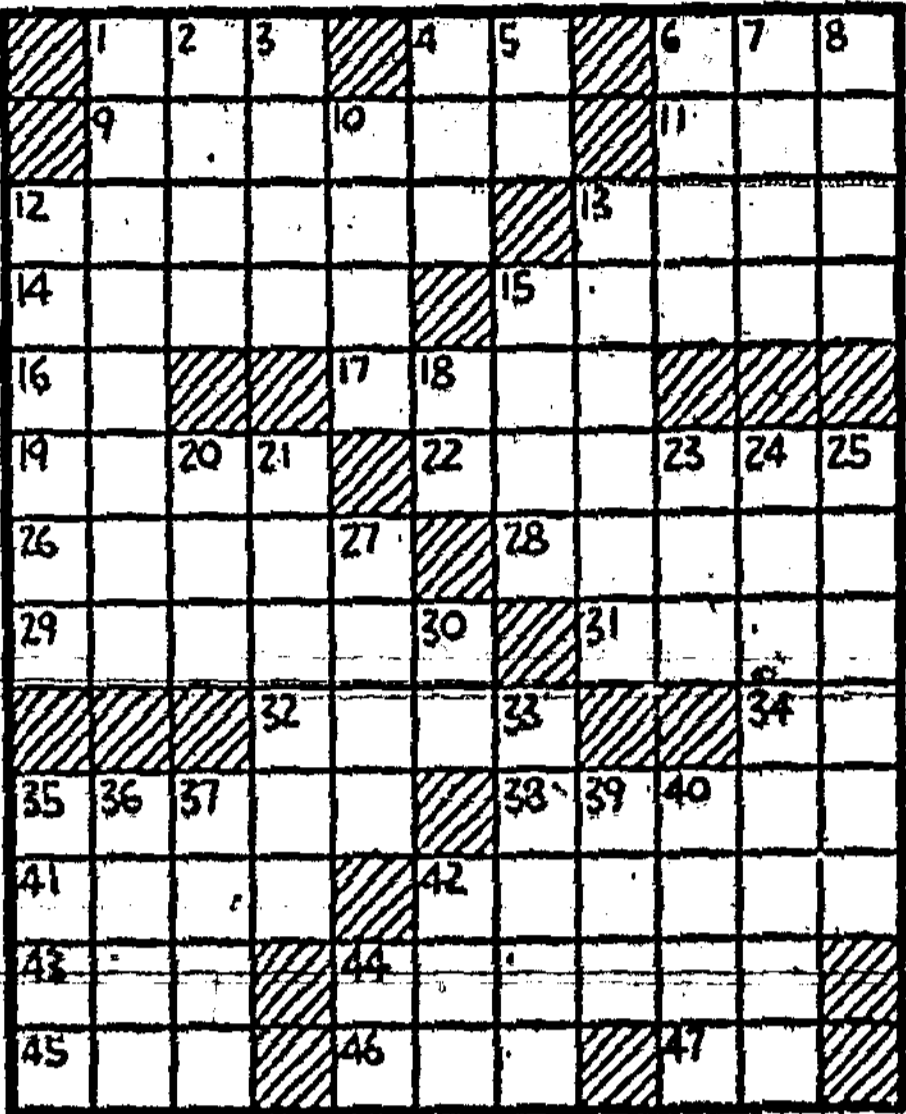

Much of the credit, too, must go to the music industry. It has found that in this country the way to progress is through service. Both through their contributions to AMC and music educators and by introducing improved products, the manufacturers, distributors and merchants have been instrumental in making music more at home in millions of homes.

 STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
 By INEZ GERHARD

CHARLOTTE MANSON is one of the daytime radio's foremost actresses, but at night she's a salo-lady, though not for hire. Best known as leading lady in the CBS "King of the Roar" series, in private life she is Mrs. Dick Brown, wife of the popular radio and television singer, and her self-appointed job is in his behalf. At least three nights a week she visits several of New York's top dice jockeys with some of his records, to plug them. And the "King of the Roar" star has made such a hit with her witty ad-libbing that she's been offered a regular night-time show of her own on a metropolitan station, which she will accept in the fall.

Tim Holt is forsaking cowboy roles temporarily; he was so good in "His Kind of Woman" that Howard Hughes has asked the RKO staff to find a good dramatic vehicle for him. Holt has won critical acclaim in all his straight assignments.

Congress As Prodigal With Tax Money As Truman

By Wright A. Patterson

FOLLOWING the close of four years of civil war our national debt amounted to two billion, two hundred million. That had been reduced to one billion at the start of World War I. At the close of World War I, our debt was $3 billion, 200 million. We had reduced that to 19 billion, 600 million by 1923. That total of 1923 represented $571 for each American family. By 1933, with no war, but the New Deal in vogue, our national debt had increased to where it represented $1,165 for each family. In 1939, our national debt amounted to 257 billion, 400 million, a total for each family of $8,785.

With such a financial condition facing us, with a debt burden and taxes higher than at any time in our national history, congress equanimity to spend money "like a drunken sailor." Only recently, the senate voted an authorization for an Arizona irrigation project, the total cost of which will amount to considerably more than two billion dollars. That irrigation will benefit less than 30,000 farmers, for which all the people of all states will be taxed to an extent of nearly $3,000, to be added to the $6,786 each family is now slated to pay.

That is not the kind of economy candidates for both the senate and house promised the voters before the last election, when economy was an issue in the campaign, but it represents the kind we are getting.

The senators who voted for authorization for such a project should not be allowed to go back to Washington. A two-billion-dollar project that would benefit 30,000 Arizona farmers, but would seriously endanger the water supply of close to 5,000,000 people in southern California, who have at tremendous expense to themselves carried the water of the Colorado river through the mountains and over the deserts that they might live, should be voted down. Now the senate proposes to give away that water to 30,000 Arizona farmers at a cost to the families of all states of $3,000 per family.

That is spending on a scale that neither the New Deal or the Fair Deal have suggested, and it came directly from the senate without a recommendation from the President. It was not a partisan measure. It was voted for by both Democrats and Republicans.

Fortunately that was only an authorization. The Senate cannot inaugurate appropriation legislation as that must start in the house. And it is not believed that such an appropriation has any chance of passage in the house. Such an incident, futile though it may be, demonstrates that the spending proclivities cannot all be laid to the President. Some of it must be attributed to congress, and there both parties must assume a portion of the blame.

That would be Arizona expenditure is but a large sized sample of

THE BENNY'S COW

By Eunice Thomas

3-Minute Fiction

If you ever saw Mama look at Benny you might know why she wanted a cow so bad. Benny was our second brother, twelve years old, and he looked like he might have been cut out of a scarecrow pattern. Mama blamed it on not having milk.

But Daddy was always getting mad because Benny was afraid or wouldn't fight like the other boys. He said you couldn't blame it on milk. Then Mama's face got sort of light and she said Benny needed it more than the others.

So, at last we got a cow. Uncle Hal brought her home in his truck.

Uncle Hal maneuvered his truck by hand from under the steering wheel and waddled to the back of the truck. Daddy stalked around from the other side. Next to Uncle Hal he looked nearly as underdressed as Benny.

"We gotta be careful," Daddy said. "She ain't taking to us strangers so well."

"She looks crazy in her eyes," Uncle Hal poked a finger through a crack and the cow let out a low bellow. "She's scared silly. No telling what she'll do when we turn her loose. Might as well find out, though."

He let down the tail gate and untied the rope from her horns.

"You young'uns get out of the lot!" Daddy yelled at us. "She's upset enough to try to fight."

She came out snorting and pawing and went over the fence to the peanut patch just like it hadn't been there. Uncle Hal climbed the fence with considerable speed, consideringly his blubber, and took off to drive her back. Daddy ran to head her off the other way. They circled around her, intending to drive her back to the lot. But she was too upset and scared. She lowered her head and pointed her long sharp horns straight toward Uncle Hal.

Despite his bulk, Uncle Hal ran. With his head back and his elbows pushing the spare tire around his middle, he plowed a path straight to the back field fence. He beat the cow there by several yards, but he didn't bother to climb. He fell over, leaving a good sized patch of his overalls on the barb wire.

Old Beasle turned her attention to Daddy. He made it to the fence and grabbed a post and swung for safety just as Beasle's horns tangled in the wire below him.

THE COW was tangled in the wire and backing. Uncle Hal was peeping from behind a nearby oak. The rest of us were atop fence posts.

Daddy was mad enough to shoot Beasle then and there, but she was a summer's profit. He couldn't afford to harm her or let her hurt herself. He hollered for Mama to send the wire pliers.

Before she could speak to one of the other boys Benny was half way to the house. And he took the pliers to Daddy.

"Watch that cow!" Daddy yelled at him. "She could make hash of you in no time!"

Benny went on. The cow had calmed down some and he got pretty close to her.

"Git back!" Uncle Hal yelled. "When a cow is that crazy—"

"She ain't skeered o' me, Daddy!" Benny reached out a hand and caressed the cow's quivering side. You could see her relaxing. He rubbed her back a minute and worked up to her shoulder. The restless hoof pawing and she stood there trembling while Benny tied a rope around her horns. Daddy started to cut the wire and she reared up again. So he went and lashed on Uncle Hal's oak and tossed the pliers back to Benny.

"All right, son. Cut her loose. She's all yours."

Benny roped her—by himself—and led her into the lot.

"Sure. Now can you stop thinking of your son as a coward and admit he has—ah—"

Mama stopped and started turning pink. She was always mighty careful of what she said.

Daddy laughed at her. "Okay, huzie. We'll call it intestinal fortitude."

Plastics Ancient

Plastics are generally considered rather new, but their use goes back well over 100 years. First there was the use of natural resins, gums, shellac, and ceiling-wax in 1840 cellulose nitrate began to be produced. Progress has been steady in the past century until now, if this were not known as the Atomic Age, it might well be called the Plastics Age. Today's plastic spectacle frames, with their rich variety of styles and colors, are a good example of why plastics are popular.

Moss Menace

Lack of fertility, poor drainage or both cause moss in some lawns. Fertility deficiency is corrected by raking away the moss and fertilizing the bare spots liberally with a special lawn food. Where water gathers because of faulty drainage, this moss-causing factor can be ended by changing the grade. If surface drainage is good but seepage water saturates the subsoil it may be necessary to install tile to end the difficulty.

Cleaning Brushes

The painter who neglects to clean his brushes after they've been used doesn't deserve much sympathy; but at least he deserves a tip on how to recondition his brushes the next time they have to be used. Fill up an old can with vinegar, stick the brushes in it, and put it on the stove until it boils for ten or fifteen minutes. This may cause falling bristles in inferior quality brushes; but it will soften them up considerably, and a good washing should complete the reconditioning.

An optimist and a pessimist went into business together. Business was very good for the first few weeks and the optimist was feeling glad and grateful. "Well," he said to his partner, "we've had a wonderful month. Its been one constant run of customers." But his partner, the pessimist, refused to become elated. "Yeah," he admitted dourly, "we have had some good business. But look at those front doors. If people keep shoving through them like they have been this first month, the hinges will be worn out in another week!"

Can Do Better

The old farmer was dozing in the shade of his front porch, when a high-pressure salesman busted up the front walk and awakened him with a cheery "Good afternoon." He had a sample book of a 10-volume set on scientific agriculture he was selling. The old farmer was at length persuaded to page through the specimen volume. "None," he objected, "ain't got no use for it." "But you ought to have it," the salesman insisted. "It will teach you to farm twice as good as you do now." "None, son," barked the ancient agriculturist, "I don't farm half as good now as I know how."

Outclassed!

Speaking of haircuts, recently a small town barber raised the price to $1 but forgot to remove from his window the sign reading: "First class haircut for 25 cents."

When he sought to collect a whole truck from the town miser, the latter complained "But, Jake, you advertised 'first class haircut for 25 cents.'" The barber contemplated the dour countenance of his unhappy customer. "Yes, that's right," he agreed. "But you see friend Tucker, your hair's not first class."

Double Talk
The two men were meeting again after several years. "So here's old Tom!" one of them guffawed. "The guy who boasted he was going to marry a pretty girl and a good cook! Did you?" Tom grinned sheepishly. "Yeh," he replied. "Divorced the pretty girl last year, and now I'm married to the good cook."

FEELBY SPOKEN
A seascak couple lay stretched out in deck chairs somewhere between life and death. Meanwhile, their young son became more rowdy by the minute. Finally the mother mustered valor enough to say: "John, I wish you would speak to Wills." The father, unable to lift his head, said seckly: "Bells, Wills."

Wrong End
A befuddled mathematics professor awoke one morning to find his feet on the pillow and his head hanging over the foot of the bed. He grumbled to his wife, "Here I was convinced I was suffering from a headache—and it's just my corns aching!"

Think of Brother

Lesson for July 29, 1951

THE Christians in the city of Corinth were bothered about a number of things. One of them never bothers anybody any more, and yet, strange as it seems, it throws a light on some of the hottest problems a Christian meets.

The Corinthian problem was beef-steak. We have a problem with that too,—that is, how are we going to pay for it? That wasn't the Corinthian problem.

This was away back in Roman times. Every city had its temple where sacrifices were made to the gods. Sacrifices were of all kinds, from flowers to cattle. It was considered rather wasteful, after killing a big bull, to throw the carcass away; so after the ceremonies at the temple, the rose-garlands would be taken off the beast's neck, and the animal would be hauled away to some butcher's shop, where it would be cut up into roasts, steaks and what not, and sold over the counter just like any other meat.

Now some of the Christians began to worry over their meat supply. Suppose I buy a steak in the market (one would ask) and suppose that steak came from a bull or a cow that has been killed as a sacrifice to one of these heathen gods? Won't that make me guilty of idolatry?

Your Conscience May be Clear, but—
SO they wrote to the best man they know, their old evangelist and pastor, the man who had converted them to Christ and organized their church, the Apostle Paul. They asked him about this and other things; and what we call "I Corinthians" is his answer.

Don't think this beef-steak problem trivial, but Paul never handled a trivial problem in a trivial way. He approached the problem in this way: Meat is only meat, he said; it certainly wasn't the bull's fault that he was part of a heathen ceremony. As for the butcher, he paid good money for the animal, in a perfectly respectable business transaction. Then where was the sin in eating such meat?

But wait a minute. Suppose you are dining out, and you happen to know where the meat came from, and everybody at the table knows, and somebody at the table isn't very clear-headed, and when he sees you eating the meat, thinks you must be approving of heathen sacrifices; then what?

Or perhaps, some one else is less enlightened than you; eating such meat seems quite wrong to him; but when he sees you eating it, he may (just to be polite) follow suit, and yet his conscience, not being an educated conscience like yours, will hurt him all the same. So what you do quite freely and rightly, causes another man to go against his conscience.

Think of Your Brother!
NOW, then, Paul says: "If what I eat makes my brother fall, I will never eat meat again, rather than make my brother fall." (American translation.) There you have the Christian principle.

The important question is not, "Is it any harm?" but, "What effect is this going to have on other people?"
