School Team Loses Twice

Carrizozo's high school team lost Friday and Saturday night's basketball games when they were defeated by Roswell 32-28 and by Eunice 58-25.

Friday night's game at Roswell showed Carrizozo ahead at half-time 14-11, only to lose that lead and be edged out during the last half. The extreme height of the members of Roswell's team may have been a contributing factor to Carrizozo's defeat.

Fourteen fouls were committed by each team with Carrizozo making six out of 18 charity tosses for 33 per cent, while Roswell netted four out of sixteen free throws for 25 per cent. High point man for the local team was Jimmy Barnett with 11 points as against 10 points by Brownie of Roswell.

In the Eunice-Carrizozo game here Saturday night, the visitors took the lead immediately and were ahead 32-12 at half-time. The local team's spirit appeared broken when Eunice made 8 out of their first 10 shots to take a 14-point lead, but they came back during the second half to play their slow and deliberate type of basketball and make a better showing.

Of the 21 fouls committed by Carrizozo and the 14 by Eunice, Carrizozo gained 9 out of 15 of their free throws for 60 per cent, while Eunice made 12 out of 28 for 43 per cent. Henry Vega was high man for Carrizozo with 8 points. Eunice had five men making nine or more points with W. Stephens leading the parade for a total of 12.

The preliminary game on Saturday night featured the B team of the local high school and the Carrizozo Town Team. Winner in this game was the town team by a score of 31-23.

Nick Vega, Jr. was high man for the town team with a total of 18 points. Lee Straley and Tino Lopez of the high school team each netted 9 points.

The high school cagers played an excellent game considering their older and more experienced opposition.

On January 13 the Carrizozo High School team will journey to Dexter, and the next home game will be with Corona on January 19. The local teams will travel to Carlsbad on January 20.

Changes In Social Security Act Told

Steven P. Vidal, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of New Mexico, has announced certain changes in the Social Security Act which will be in effect beginning with the 1951 calendar year. The New Mexico Collector stated while some of the 1950 amendments of this Act will be more or less of a technical nature, there are numerous important amendments which definitely extend the coverage of the old age and survivors insurance system.

One of the important changes is that which applies to farm employees. In order for a full calendar quarter, known as the qualifying quarter, during which no tax liability is incurred. He must also have been employed by the same farmer in agricultural labor for at least sixty days during the succeeding quarter and his cash wages must have amounted to $50 or more.

Another new field into which the insurance system has been extended is that of domestic service. As in the case of agricultural labor the taxes are not applicable to all workers. The simple test to determine if a domestic worker is affected is to ascertain if she works at least twenty-four days during a quarter and if she is paid at least $50.00.

Employees of the United States and instrumentalities thereof, will also be covered unless such service is covered by a retirement system established by law of the United States. This will have the effect of bringing under the Social Security retirement system several thousand temporary emergency employees of the Government who are not now covered by the Civil Service retirement system.

If a non-profit religious, charitable and educational organization, ordinarily exempt from income tax, files a certificate electing coverage for its employees, two thirds of whom concur in such election, the services of such employees will be covered. The interest displayed in this provision by non-profit organizations and their employees has been surprising.

Finally, the self-employed, with certain exceptions, are brought into the Social Security system. The tax on self-employment will be handled by the Income Tax divisions in Collectors' offices.

While "Social Security Taxes" representing a 1 1/2 per cent of taxable wages paid by the employee and the same amount paid by the employer (a total of 3 per cent), are paid on a quarterly basis to the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, questions relative to benefits and employees' account numbers should be addressed to the Social Security Administration, 611 West Gold Avenue, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Collector Vidal stated under the new Social Security law, nearly 8 million additional workers will be affected, with the possibility of another 2 million, to whom coverage may be extended under special arrangements. This will bring the number of workers who may have this protection to about 45 million, or 3/4 of the nation's paid workers.

Teltschik Brothers In Next Concert

"T for Two" could easily be the musical signature for the brothers, Alfred and Herbert Teltschik, the talented pianists who will play at the Alamogordo High School auditorium February 6, at 8 P.M.

Multiplying four swiftly-moving talented hands by 176 keys that respond to a touch of genius and you have the Teltschik brothers.

Born in Floresville, Texas, of Austrian parents, Alfred and Herbert Teltschik, who are in their early thirties, began their training at an early age under the guidance of their father, an old-world musician. After moving to Houston, the brothers continued their training under Aldridge Kidd for the next decade, until they were old enough to enter the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. At Juilliard, they studied under such eminent personalities as Sascha Gornoditzki and the late Mme. Olga Samaroff Stokowski. Upon graduation from Juilliard, they returned to Houston to teach in the city's public schools and in their own studio. Both brothers were married shortly after their return to Houston.

To satisfy their love of making music for audiences, they commenced giving two-piano recitals until World War II when they were called to active duty. Fortunately, their talents were recognized and they gave numerous recitals for the armed forces at home and overseas.

Back into civilian life as a full-fledged two-piano team, they soon encountered the usual occupational hazard of duo-pianists, namely, finding two evenly matched pianos out in the field. They have solved this problem by conversion of a small bus to transport their luggage and two concert grand pianos. Their families have nicknamed the bus "Operation Trailer". The Teltschiks maintain, tune and repair their pianos which assures concert goers everywhere a performance of unexcelled musical pleasure.

To date, they have completed their second completely "sold-out" transcontinental tour which has taken them into every state in the union and Canada, indicative of their success, is the mounting number of reengagements to meet the demands of music lovers who have so thoroughly enjoyed hearing them.

Perfect blending of tones, unison of timing, rhythm, a highly developed technique and unusual programs are but a few of the pianistic attributes that are carrying "The Teltschiks from Texas" to the top rank of the art. They are a young, brilliant American-trained self-contained team, embodying in their playing and interpretations rich quality, vision and unlimited expression, yet tempered with the great musical traditions of old Austria—Austria of Mozart and Strauss.

Mrs. Lorine Samelson Receives Burns

Mrs. Lorine Samelson, newly elected county schools superintendent for Lincoln County, started the New Year off with a bang when a cooking stove she was using exploded.

The accident occurred in Carrizozo on New Year's Day as Mrs. Samelson was lighting the oven. She had previously lit it only to discover later the flame had gone out. After waiting for what she considered to be a safe period of time, she again attempted to light the oven. It exploded causing Mrs. Samelson's clothing and hair to catch fire.

Displaying exceptional coolness and presence of mind, she quickly turned off the gas and extinguished the fire from her clothing and hair. She received several burns about the face and hands and her hair was badly scorched, but she was able to go to the local hospital by herself for treatment.

Legion Auxiliary Chooses "Buddy"

Some time ago the Carrizozo American Legion Auxiliary requested the name of a "buddy" and that of J. W. Albertson, Ward No. 5, Veterans Hospital, Albuquerque, New Mexico was received.

A Christmas box in which the following articles each wrapped separately and with the name of the sender, were sent him: Shaving lotion, Razor and Razor blades, cards, handkerchiefs, cigarettes, comb, shaving soap, shaving cream, Shaving Brush, tooth brush and tooth paste.

The packages were Christmas packed, wrapped and mailed by an auxiliary member, Mrs. Reed Sheerrill. Each member of the auxiliary were asked to mail a Christmas card to their buddy also. It is hoped any members who may go to Albuquerque in the future will take time to go out to the Hospital and visit Mr. Albertson.

Polio Mystery Solved By Medical Science

For generations polio was accepted as one of the "mystery diseases" of mankind, an elusive destroyer and crippler, striking unpredictably with epidemic force. Today, medical science knows a great deal about polio. The "mystery" phase is past. The period of exploration, discovery and eventual conquest is well under way.

With funds provided by the March of Dimes, the nation's top scientists are hard at work in hospital and university laboratories, exploring every reasonable approach that may lead to the ultimate control of polio epidemics and conquest of the disease as an individual affliction.

The recent discovery that polio virus could be grown in test tubes, using non-nervous tissue as the culture medium, has been acclaimed as a new milestone in polio research. It has greatly widened the field for the research scientists in their efforts to find a vaccine, drug or serum effective against infantile paralysis.

In its thirteen years of existence, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has authorized the expenditure of $11,743,786 in March of Dimes funds for research. Of this amount, $8,841,168 has been granted in the field of virus research, while $2,912,578 has been allocated to study of prevention and treatment of the disease's crippling after-effects.

There is a sound basis for the hope that some day polio will be controlled or wiped out by science—through the March of Dimes.

The second day will be devoted to production and marketing of quality dairy products. The third day will be given over strictly to plant problems.

Treatman, head of the college dairy department; and J. R. Poe, state dairy commissioner and secretary of the American Dairy Association of New Mexico.

New Brochures On School Finances

"This Is How Public Schools are Financed in New Mexico" is the title of a revision of two previous brochures on the same subject. This publication is of interest and value to all who are interested in educational costs and administration. Heads of school systems and educational institutions have expressed their approval of this attempt to present the facts with reference to the financing of public education. In this brochure, figures are published to show the progress of the New Mexico public elementary and high school education over the last ten years, as measured by funds made available, qualifications of teachers, and the expansion of educational services and facilities. In the matter of compensation of teachers, principals, superintendents and superintendents, New Mexico ranks probably among the ten highest in the United States. Reports recently compiled by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce from reports received from state education departments show that people in New Mexico spent 3.6 per cent of the total income of the people for the public elementary and high schools for the year 1948-49. This is the highest percentage spent for education in relation to the peoples' income of all the states.

Funeral Services For Billy Miller In Corona

Junior choir members who sang at the services included Misses Pat Bagley, Pauline Porter, Amelia Grosenbacher, Sally Pfeiffer and Louella Mays. Their leader is Mrs. Griffin. Mrs. L. W. Parker accompanied at the piano. Songs selected were "In the Garden" and "Nearer to the Heart of God". Flower girls were Darlene Ashcraft, Catherine Grosenbacher, Judy Perkins, Roe Lovelace, Gail Clements, Betty Merritt, Jo Evelyn Yandell and Allene Mulky.

Ball bearers were Holt Lovelace, Warren Harkey, Lee Straley, Frank Mulky, Gilbert Bryan, Darrell Robinson, Billie Bagley, and George Ryberg.

The obituary was given by L. W. Parker and George Rogers delivered the prayer. Interment was at Ancho cemetery.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Price Miller, and a brother, Jimmie, all of Ancho; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drake, Roswell; as well as several aunts and uncles, including Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, Alamogordo; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dale, Roswell; and Mr. and Mrs. William Cathey of Roswell.

Billy who was born at Ancho July 6, 1936, was a student at the Corona school. He was a quiet and unassuming lad, yet fun-loving, who made it a habit to be kind to those with whom he came in contact. At one time, it was necessary Billy remain in bed for several months as a result of a heart ailment, but he never faltered in his cheerful and helpful attitude about the matter. He will be sadly missed by his family and many friends in Carrizozo, Ancho, and Corona.

"Lend Me A Hand" New Polio Slogan

"Lend Me A Hand". That is the slogan of the 1951 March of Dimes which will open here and throughout the nation on January 15. The four words are expressed eloquently by the poster-portrait of a bright-faced American boy whose arms have been crippled by polio. He is Larry McKenzie, 12 years old, one of some 64,000 men, women and children to whom the helping hand was extended by the March of Dimes last year.

In three successive years, polio has struck more than 100,000 people in the United States. In that time it has cost the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis $58,000,000 to help them, as well as earlier victims still needing care. Since 1938, the patient-care outlay alone has been $24,000,000 in March of Dimes funds.

But these are only inanimate figures—the real story of the March of Dimes is people. That story is unfolded in hospitals, rehabilitation centers and clinics throughout the country where real people—not "cases"—are fighting their way back to useful lives. It is told in homes, factories and offices by men and women who have made comebacks over great odds and at great cost.

The knowledge that the individual battle can be and often is won should stimulate everyone to back the fight against polio. Tragically enough, the ranks of polio sufferers will be increased this year. We cannot control that. But we can all lend a hand through the 1951 March of Dimes, January 15-31.

Local Man Burned In Explosion Friday

An explosion which occurred Friday night cost Robert Ross, Carrizozo, second degree burns about the face and head.

The accident occurred as Ross was attempting to fill an oil can from a barrel in the back yard of his residence.

He was taken to the local hospital from which he was released Tuesday.

New Mexico Fleeces In Denver Show

Forty-eight New Mexico fleeces, representing 36 growers, have been entered in the wool show at the National Western Stock Show at Denver, January 12-20. Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman, said today. The fleeces have been entered in four divisions: (1) Territory—fleeces from the northern part of the state, (2) Texas-Southeastern New Mexico—fleeces from the southern part of the state, (3) Farm flock—chiefly junior fleeces, and (4) breed classes—also chiefly junior fleeces.

PTA Discusses Youth Center

The regular meeting of the Carrizozo P-TA was held on January 9 this month since their regular meeting date fell on January 1, a holiday.

Mrs. J. E. Thornton presided and after a short business meeting, a panel discussion on "Recreation for the High School Students" was held by members of the Home Economics II class. Serving on the panel were Peggy Cathey, Chairman; Emily Ann Johnson; Cherry Hyden; Jo Ann Straley; Katie Snodgrass and Dorothy Moore.

The students discussed the need of a youth center in Carrizozo where they could meet during the week. Although they realize it is not a propitious time to attempt to buy recreational equipment, they would be satisfied to have a place where they could meet to dance and have soft drinks and sandwiches to serve for refreshments.

The students were frank in their discussion of the lack of recreational facilities in Carrizozo, and believe the creation of a youth center would solve the problem of students seeking amusement in other towns in and out of Lincoln County. They also pointed out the fact parking by couples on the Mal Pais is on the increase, and believe much of it could be stopped if a place is provided for Carrizozo's young citizens to meet where they can enjoy themselves in wholesome entertainment.

The student members of the panel expressed the opinion a youth center open from 4 P.M. to 9 P.M. Monday through Friday and until 12 midnight on Saturday would be beneficial to the community. They also want the help of the parents in sponsoring and governing the center. The panel members also expressed the hope parents and responsible adults would be willing to take their turns so that the group could be properly chaperoned.

Several possibilities for a meeting place were discussed, but nothing definite about the matter has been decided.

Other recreational facilities desired by the students include a skating rink and a bowling alley. A swimming pool is another feature which would be thoroughly enjoyed by the young set, as well as a soda fountain.

Audience members taking part in the discussion included Mayor Vernon Petty, Rev. Ray Miller, Marshall Powell, Carrizozo-Grade School Principal, and Miss Betty Hogan, local Home Economics teacher.

The next regular meeting of the local P-TA group will be held February 5 at the grade school auditorium.

News Helps News

The assistance of the Alamogordo News in making it possible for the Lincoln County News to issue this week is greatly appreciated.

Because the publisher and typesetter of the local paper is in the hospital, the owners and staff of the Alamogordo paper have been so kind and cooperative as to come to our aid.

Inasmuch as it was necessary to have the type set at Alamogordo earlier in the week in order to have it back in Carrizozo in time for the paper, some stories are necessary omitted. However, a full account of any such stories will be carried next week.

New Weed Menaces Western Rangeland

A fast-spreading, poisonous weed, halogeton (pronounced halog-EE-ton) now imperils livestock on the rangelands of six Western states and might spread to New Mexico, warns Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman at New Mexico A & M College.

Halogeton, a close relative of Russian thistle, has spread from Elko County, Nevada, where it was first noted about 15 years ago, to Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, Montana, and California. How this plant, native of the Caspian Sea region, made its entry to the United States is not now known.

The weed brings sudden death to sheep and cattle feeding on it in late fall and winter when other forage is not available. Oxalic acid, the poisonous substance in halogeton, combines with calcium in the blood serum. From a half pound to a pound and a half of the weed, dry weight—depending on the size of the animal—will kill a sheep. Smaller amounts cause loss of weights and abortion.

An annual, halogeton grows most abundantly on bare soil. Destruction of other plant cover opens the way for the weed's invasion. In the Western range country it has moved first into the trails roadside ditches, sheep bed grounds and similar areas where there has been little other plant competition. From there the invader has swept into burned and overgrazed range lands. It is now established on more than a half million acres and spreading rapidly.

A desert plant, the weed is widely adaptable. Although most vigorous in alkali soils of the lower flats and sage brush areas, the pest tolerates a variety of soils and thrives high in the juniper forested mountains at about 5700 feet above sea level.

The halogeton plant has a high water content and an unusually large root system for its size. Three-inch seedlings may have a 14-inch root spread. The seedling starts growth late in the spring. Both large and small plants begin producing nearly red to purple blooms in July and continue to flower through August.

Then begins an avalanche of winged seed that covers the surrounding land, and soon to spread the weedy pest far and wide. Where there is no other plant over, halogeton blankets the land.

What can science do to halt this menace? Chemical treatments on a large scale are impractical, as the cost is too high. Present findings demonstrate that even through the chemicals kill the weed one year, they will not prevent its return next year where seed have been distributed, if there is no other competitive soil cover.

The long term hope for control, says Watson, rests on the fact that halogeton competes poorly with other plants. In Nevada, it has not been able to invade good stands of crested wheat grass. Whether the grass can crowd out the weed in other areas remains to be determined. Even unpalatable cover such as cheat grass is preferable to halogeton. To replace the poisonous weed with crested wheat grass would return thousands of acres of land to productive range. In one place where this has been tried, productivity was increased forty-four fold.

Apparently U. S. shorn wool production will have increased slightly in 1950 over the previous year. But production still is running 45-odd per cent below the peak year, 1942.

In 1950, 25 per cent more ewes and old sheep went to slaughter than in 1949, though two per cent fewer lambs were marketed in 1950.

Limit Controls

It looks as if the cost of certain key food items isn't going to be controlled very soon, after all.

Price Administrator Mike Di Salle who came to Washington prepared to do a job for the housewife got a rude shock when he read the price-control law thoroughly.

So Di Salle will have to go back to congress in January and get the law rewritten.

Aside from this the new price czar has decided that he will not try to control a whole variety of prices, but will stick chiefly to a few cost-of-living items plus basic metals and war production raw materials.

Not a Di Salle arrived in Washington from Toledo, Ohio, to find he had no telephone, no staff, and no full legal power to stop price rises.

Russian War Plans

Outguessing the Kremlin is extremely difficult these days, but here is how American experts, trained to do this job, size up the immediate war future.

No. 1 Soviet strategy will probably be to grab off weak and isolated nations one-by-one.

No. 2 will be to turn the United States into committing men and resources in a big war in Asia.

No. 3. While we were tied up in Asia, Russian armies would drive across western Europe. The latter move is not expected this year, however.

A summary of Soviet war strategy can be paraphrased as follows: "Russian policy is to expand its borders as far as the indifference or timidity of its neighbors allow, and to hold or draw back when met by determined resistance, and wait for a new chance to spring at its victims."

Next probable Soviet victims will be French Indo-China, already torn with Communist revolt. Siam, Burma and Malaya would probably follow.

Another weak spot which may fall to Russia without a battle is Iran. Already, Soviet pressure has caused Iran to ban broadcasts of the Voice of America and the British Broadcasting company on local radio stations.

Truman and MacArthur

President Truman came into a cabinet meeting some time ago carrying a copy of the New Republic, the liberal weekly magazine.

During the cabinet session, Secretary of Defense Marshall complained about the difficulty of getting cooperation from General MacArthur. He indicated that MacArthur was a law unto himself.

"This is the way to handle that bird," he said.

Cabinet members, after the meeting, immediately sent for copies of the magazine. It contained an article by former Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes criticizing MacArthur for violating directives from Washington.

Happy Chandler's Tears

Senate colleagues always knew Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler as one of the happiest men in congress when he served as senator from Kentucky. But his smile turned to tears at his annual banquet for major league club owners in Tampa.

Happy had just been informed by his guests that his $46,000-a-year contract would not be renewed.

No one was expected to show up for the banquet that followed, but Chandler went through with it nonetheless. News reports that the party "proceeded without a hitch" was wrong. It started at 8:00 p.m.—two hours late. All but New York Giants Horace Stoneham and St. Louis Cardinals Fred Saigh came. Saigh is the big gun behind Chandler's ouster.

The unhappy host refused to take his customary seat at the head table but sat by himself with his back to his guests. Several times he was forced to leave the room to wipe his eyes.

Chandler, sitting alone, said he was sitting where he felt he belonged. Once he went out for a box of cigars and presented them to Joe Cronin of Boston as an ironic gift for Cronin's anti-Chandler vote.

The atmosphere was tense and electrifying. Hardly anyone dared speak to other guests.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Rejects Hoover Demand For a New U. S. Foreign Policy; Allies Approve Army of 750,000

Here is another view of a section of the city corridor through which the first marines fought their way to the Hamburg beach-head. Weary leathernecks used every pause to catch a nap, even on the frozen ground. Over 11,000 of them were killed or wounded.

HOOVER:

A New Foreign Policy

Herbert Hoover demanded a new foreign policy for the United States in a major radio-television speech. He urged the U.S. to concentrate on holding the Atlantic and Pacific oceans with the island outposts of Britain, Japan, Formosa and the Philippines.

The former president's speech created a buzz of controversy in Washington. Democratic officials called it "rank isolationism" and even some top G.O.P. policy makers, including Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, did not agree in all respects with Mr. Hoover.

This is how Mr. Hoover saw the situation. "It is clear continental Europe has not in three years of our aid developed a unity of purpose and that will power necessary for its own defense."

"It is clear that our British friends are flirting with appeasement of Communist China. "It is clear that the U.N. is in a fog of debate and indecision on whether to appease or not to appease."

He then went on to outline his seven "principles and action" for American policy:

- 1. Preserve "this western hemisphere Gibraltar."
2. Hold the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, seeking the cooperation of Great Britain.
3. Arm our air and naval forces "to the teeth," free Japan and help her rearm, and stiffen the defenses of Formosa and the Philippines.
4. Reduce other expenses, balance the budget, and roll back inflation.
5. Aid other nations that show "spirit and strength" in defending themselves against the Communists.
6. No appeasement anywhere, "no more Yehans and Yallas."
7. Watchful waiting in Europe pending its own development of "unity and will" to resist aggression.

Much of the criticism against Mr. Hoover's proposals centered around the belief that the Pacific and Atlantic oceans can be made a defense line. Some critics pointed out that failure to continue aid to our friends and allies would isolate us and eventually we would find ourselves without any friends in the world.

President Truman issued a statement shortly after Hoover's speech which amounted to a firm rejection of the former president's demand that troops and money be withheld from Europe.

The President said the Atlantic pact nations had shown they "mean business" about getting up a common defense and asserted the protection of western Europe was vital to United States security.

"Let there be no mistake," Truman said. "The unity of the nations of western Europe and the North Atlantic area is vital to their security and ours."

He then announced that soldiers of pact nations—presumably including U. S. troops—will be training together "within the next few weeks."

EUROPE:

Army of 750,000

The 12 Atlantic pact nations pledged themselves to try to match America's partial-war mobilization. They pledged themselves to build an unprecedented international peace-time army of 750,000 men to stop Communist aggression. This is the army that General Eisenhower will command.

The pact nations met for two-day conference in Brussels with the issuance of a formal communique which included:

- 1. Establishment of an integrated force under centralized control and command. This force to be composed of contingents contributed by the participating governments.
2. An order to United States, Great Britain and France, to start negotiations with the Germans to persuade them to agree to cooperate with the west in limited rearmament.
3. Creation of a new defense production board "charged with expanding and accelerating" rearmament; it will supersede the Atlantic powers old military production and supply board.
4. It will be many months however before General Eisenhower will have anything more than a token force. But observers agreed that at least the western powers have gotten down to the serious business of building a defense against communism.

CHRISTMAS:

A False Gaiety

The world—that part which still celebrates the Birth of Christ—went all-out for Christmas 1950, but it was a false gaiety. Those parts of the world where there was no strife could not forget that men still died believing in the dignity of man and the principle of freedom.

But people tried to make it a merry Christmas in many lands. In the United States department stores recorded near record sales.

Frenchmen, even while many of them feared it might be the last Christmas before World War III, sent sales records to new heights in the stores, buying for feasting and giving which would hide from their children the frayed nerves of their elders.

Britain, too, was determined to put the best face on matters and enjoy the holiday.

Brussels set the tone for Belgium. The city was gaily festooned for the holiday, the mood of worry successfully hidden and the celebration testifying to Belgium's renewed economic strength.

West Germany tried to forget that she was the object of a tug of war between Communism and non-Communism. Christmas sales hit a post-war peak.

In East Germany there was no observance. There were no displays in the stores and no decorations anywhere except for a few foreign wreaths here and there, hung up by the less timid householders.

That was the world on Christmas day—divided into two parts, one trying to be happy with a false gaiety, the other grim and foreboding.

CHINA:

Refuses to Negotiate

If the world held any hopes that the Chinese would talk peace in Korea, they were killed when China's Foreign Minister Chou En-lai said they would not negotiate with the United Nations Korean-truce team.

Chou then went on to name his price for peace in Korea.

- 1. Removal of the United States seventh fleet from Formosa waters.
2. Withdrawal of "foreign troops" from Korea.

S. A. seat in the United Nations for Communist China.

Thus ended any hopes that the Chinese Communists would dicker with the three-man truce committee set up by the General Assembly to try to bring about a cease-fire in Korea. Peiping did not even bother to transmit a copy of its blast to Lake Success, seemingly content to let its radio demands remain the last word.

The Chinese statement contained the usual propaganda lines. Meanwhile, a warning to China by Malcolm MacDonald, Britain's commissioner-general for southeast Asia, that they are heading for disaster caused a stir of comment throughout the east.

MacDonald said in part: "... Should the Chinese government stay hostile to the western nations, oppose the Asian powers who strive for eastern and western co-operation, and defy the United Nations, then we could only adapt our attitude accordingly."

Observers were quick to point out that such a statement would not have been made unless previously approved by London. It would seem a blunt warning to Peiping that Britain is getting fed up. For this reason many observers believed it was the first indication of a get-tough policy by the British.

EISENHOWER:

Concerted Effort Needed

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Atlantic pact armies, urged Americans to settle down to a concerted effort to meet the emergency controlling this country and stop partisan squabbling over the nation's leadership.

In his first formal press conference as supreme commander, he asked for "no more business as usual, no more profits as usual, no more working hours as usual."

Observers were interested in the general's view on including German troops in the new western European army. He said he wanted his former foes included but emphasized his belief that the Germans should make their military contributions only on a "voluntary basis" to be a really effective combat organization.

"In accepting anything like that," he said, "we must be sure we are getting strength and no weakness."

Of one thing Eisenhower was positive. The nation's strength is so great that its people can do "anything in the world they set out to do."

CASUALTIES:

The Price of War

The horrible price of war was brought home to the American people with the announcement that 11,904 United States troops were listed as dead, wounded and missing from the time the Chinese Communists attacked up to December 31.

With previous defense department figures, total American casualties for the war exceeded 42,000. The report said the Chinese Reds had suffered approximately 120,000 casualties during the same period.

The defense department's last previous total of casualties, whose next of kin had been notified, numbered 36,421. These included 6,516 killed, 23,537 wounded and 6,316 missing. Of the wounded 947 died later.

SHAKESPEARE TO "FRODUNNIT" . . . Two greats of the Theatopian world are chatting here on the set of a film in which they are teamed. At left is Maurice Evans, famed English Shakespearean actor, who has been leading Hollywood blockbusters for 15 years, finally to succumb to a film contract. His companion is Ethel Barrymore of the "royal family."

RED "PEACE" APPROACH . . . While Communists in the United States still prefer to work underground, Communist workers in Bologna, Italy, apparently make no secret of their intentions. They attach cards to their machines like the one operated by this girl. The card reads: "This machine never will produce for war." The card-machine campaign is one of the Communist efforts to stall the rearming of Atlantic Pact nations against the threat of Russian domination.

INNOCENT CAUSE OF RIOT . . . Maria Marika Horlogh, 14, Dutch girl who was the innocent cause of the racial rioting in Singapore, arrives with her mother, Mrs. Adeline Horlogh, and her father in Amsterdam. The girl was rescued a Moslem after she was lost during the Japanese occupation of Java. She was returned to her mother by a British court after marriage to a Moslem was annulled. Court decision caused Moslem riots.

Gold Tipped Cigarettes End Romance and Start Career

By BILLY ROSE

Yesterday, at one of those cocktail parties where only pedigreed olives are used in the Martinis, I met a movie actress who used to dance in one of my chorus lines back in the '30's.

"Glad you're doing so well," I said. "You've really gone places since the days when you made a fast forty a week."

"Have I changed much?" she asked, lighting a gold-tipped cigarette.

"Well, for one thing," I said, "you never used to smoke buck-a-pack ciggies."

"You mean these Sobranites?" said the actress. "Matter of fact, I started smoking them while I was working at your club. One of your customers introduced me to them."

"Boy friend?"

"Yes, if a man in his 30's can be called a boy. Remember Big Joel?"

"That's the one," she said. "I know something! I probably would be married to him today if not for those Sobranites."

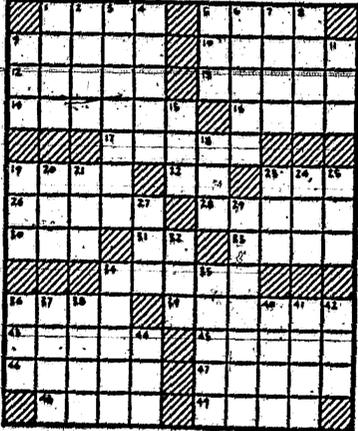

"Tell me about it," I prodded.

"Well, it's not much of a story," said the actress. "One night Big Joel threw a party at the Central Park Casino for a bunch of his pals—Jimmy Walker, Billy Beaman,

THE LITTLE BOY NEXT DOOR

By Popinto J. Knowles

NEW PEOPLE were moving in the old house across the fence, and Molly went about her sewing with the certainty that the couple with the ten-year-old boy with whom she'd talked the other day were not the folks moving in today.

Molly Turner had never liked children, and through all these twenty-five years she had been fortunate that none had moved next door. She felt in a way that telling prospective tenants with children the bad features about the old house could spare her an association she couldn't have endured.

She straightened and turned toward the window, and that was when she saw him: Ronnie, the ten-year-old boy belonging to the woman she'd talked to the other day. He was standing against the fence looking toward her house. Flanking up his conquests of devilry, she thought, and she groaned in sick disappointment.

She hebbled back to her chair. So they had taken the house after all! Well—somehow she had to keep her hat out of her yard. There were her flowers in the spring and summer. Her's rummage in her sheds and break up things.

She glanced out of the window and saw Ronnie climbing the fence. She pulled herself out of the chair

Molly thought she had Ronnie settled, but the next afternoon when she went out to the shed for a bucket of coal, he came to the door.

"I'll get your coal in," he said. "I wouldn't look at him. 'I don't need you to get my coal in,' she said. 'Get back in your own yard. Go on, now!'"

It was the way Molly looked that caused the kid to scamper down the walk and climb over the fence as if she had actually shot at his feet.

The unpleasant incident didn't keep Ronnie away. Every day Molly had to chase him out of her yard. Every day she vowed she'd skin him alive. What kind of mother did Ronnie have that she allowed him to pester a crippled old woman like her?

But one night a blizzard came, and the town of Hanover was covered with ice. Molly just had one bucket of coal by her stove, and she dared not venture out on the ice to get more.

"I'll get your coal in, Miss Turner," he said. "It's sick, 'n you might fall."

Molly couldn't speak for a moment. She felt almost humble with shame and gratitude that he had come. "Well, I—well, that would be sweet of you," she said finally, and for the first time in all these twenty-five years of not wanting children next door, she saw the latitude of her prejudice toward them.

What queer quick in her mind had blighted her to the happiness a child could bring her? Maybe it was because she had never looked at one—not as she was looking now at Ronnie and seeing the clear innocence of his eyes.

A smile broke across her old face. "Thank you, Ronnie," she said. "Strange, how good she felt saying it. The feeling was beautiful—one that she had waited much too long to experience."

Injured Mike Finds Friends Did Not Forget

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—This story seems almost like a Christmas story because it is about a little boy who had his faith restored. It began some six months ago when a can of cleaning fluid exploded and horribly burned 14-year-old Mike Caffi. Ever since then the youth has been in a hospital.

Recently Mike became discouraged over his condition. He said he wanted to die because no one cared about him—any more and no one came to see him. But within two days Mike was laughing at himself because he had learned that nowhere else in the world are people so fond of children.

Now he knows that everyone cares—apparently the whole country. An incessant stream of humanity has been pouring into the West Penn hospital where he has lain since the explosion.

Receives 5,000 Letters They started coming to see Mike as soon as the story got out that he didn't want to live anymore. Now the hospital has to turn his friends away because there are so many of them.

Mike has received 5,000 letters from all over the United States. The correspondence became so large the hospital had to reroute the mail to Mike's Oakland (Pa.) home.

Movie actress Celeste Holm sent him a wire telling him that she and others in Hollywood were pushing for him. Rich folks have thrown open their doors to Mike for an expense free rest cure as soon as he is well enough to leave the hospital.

Movie comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello chose him the "brave boy of 1950" and offered him "any Christmas gift he wanted." Pittsburgh Star back Joe Geri and Howard Hartley gave Mike a football autographed by the entire national football league team.

Home run king Ralph Kiner of the Pittsburgh Pirates sent an autographed bat from his Alhambra (Calif.) home.

Faces a Long Fight And still the letters from every part of the country continue to swamp Mike. His seven brothers and four sisters are kept busy opening and sorting mail. All letters from pals Mike never knew he had. And Mike has found that people everywhere do care.

A former newsboy, Mike still faces a long fight. Doctors report he needs more skin grafts—he's had three already. His family has nearly run out of its financial resources to pay medical expenses.

Doctors have set up the Michael Caffi fund to help meet the cost of from $0,000 to $10,000 still needed to get Mike well again. As for getting well, Mike no longer has any doubts.

Expert Visits Machines Taking White-Collar Jobs

NEWARK, Del.—Within a decade electronic calculators might take over the tasks now done by millions of white-collar workers, Dr. Robert F. Jackson, associate professor of mathematics at the University of Delaware believes.

According to the professor one of the major reasons why these electrical brains have not been put to widespread use has been the cost. An electronic calculator, built by hand, now costs about $700,000. In mass production, however, they would cost from $10,000 to $25,000.

The electric brain, he says, can turn out as many and as good results as hundreds of payroll clerks, hand-computers, shipping clerks, job-routing clerks—almost any type of clerical help.

"They are not built for a single, narrow, specialized job," he said. "They are sufficiently versatile to do almost any type of job, so long as no imagination or originality is required."

Dr. Jackson is a consultant to the defense research laboratory of the army's Aberdeen proving grounds.

New Hair Growing Hormone Being Tested on Humans

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—There is still hope for men with bald heads. The United Research Laboratory in Philadelphia reported recently that a hog hormone has been developed that grew hair on white rats. The hormone is due for a test on humans.

Albert Roberts, 34, president and technical director of the laboratory, is credited with developing the hormone. It cannot be purchased by private citizens.

Extensive clinical tests on humans will be conducted by several of the nation's leading dermatologists and endocrinologists.

Roberts calls his discovery the dermatotropic hormone. He said it was taken from the pituitary gland near the hog's brain. Roberts said that every hair in a human has a life span of between two and six years; then it falls out. When new hair fails to grow in, you're bald. The new dermatotropic hormone activates the hair follicle and produces new hair.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Life of Wardrobe Can Be Extended With Simple Tricks

By Erita Haley

THIS IS THE time of year, shortly after the holidays and middle of the season, when wardrobes seem to wilt. It's too early to buy into the next season, but you must somehow manage to look well dressed until the new clothing is practical.

Any woman who has tried the simplest wardrobe-saving trick will realize that clothes, like people, respond to kindness. For every dress or suit that needs life extension, there's a simple needle and thread treatment, trimming trick or cleaning tip that will work wonders.

True, really threadbare clothes will have to be discarded, but clothes which need some minor fact-lifting features can be as good as new. Who knows, you may even be able to rescue some clothing from the "It's all right class," to "It's wonderful to wear" category.

The last is particularly true of clothes which may need a bit of cleaning to make them fit your proportions better, or a dash of color to get them off properly with your complexion, or an easy sewing adjustment that makes them more comfortable.

If you have a wardrobe of several separates, you may be able to add a new ingredient in the way of a scarf, pin or belt that is what they've needed since the original purchase. Now, passed by necessity to make mistakes as using too hot an iron, ironing on a skimpy padded board or insufficient rinsing. For pressing the ironing board should be taut, the padding thick and soft, yet firm. Always iron on the wrong side, except collars, pockets and cuffs which should be pressed with a cloth over the fabric. Shine shows more on dark colors, and the above rules should be applied to such garments with special attention to the details. Avoid sprinkling when you're pressing. Sponging with a cloth or sponge will do the job better, and better still, if you have dried the garment to the correct degree of dampness before attempting to iron. All garments hang better and look better if they've had their seams pressed open. Use a damp cloth to do this properly. Add Sparkle, Glitter To Trim Dresses Any plain dress can be made to sparkle and glitter for the remaingood pressing to old garments. Clean and Fresh Garments Properly Cleaning will brighten dull-looking garments and add new life to them. If washable, do them at home, using directions that came with a tag on the material at purchase time. If professional cleaning is recommended, then turn over the job to a professional. After cleaning, you may have to add new snaps, buttons or zippers many of which can come out of the remnant boxes you use to collect used, but good articles. If decorative buttons are necessary, select these tastefully and fasten properly. Many suits, dresses and coats need new shoulder pads after several cleanings. If the pads are softened by too much use, they're not doing much for you. Just change them and give yourself a good, though conservative shoulder line. When you're able to avoid shine on clothes, you've done a lot toward life extension. Avoid such common der of the season if you will use embroidered trimming for it. White, fragile materials like silks, chiffons and nylons can be sparked with sequins. If you want to use them for collars, neck tuck-in pieces and cuffs. Clever with the needle? Use heavy gold or silver thread to stitch out designs for collars and cuffs. Jet may be used on black as well as white and other colors for cuffed, bared-shoulder necklines, pockets and sleeve cuffs. Delicate laces, either purchased or crocheted at home can be turned to use as cuffs and collars. They'll add fresh, frosty touches to any plain dresses turned dull and uninteresting with wear.

Sheath Dress

Facel-weal jersey is used to make this sheath dress one of the more exciting costumes in the new silhouette. The dress is sleeveless but with high cut armholes and has an all-around pleated skirt. The matching jacket fastens with bone buttons and has sleeves that cuff just below the elbow.

Vary Separates To Add Interest Many girls started out the fall and winter with two to four pieces which they combined for costume interest. These probably still are good but it's possible to add a single blouse or skirt which might be worn with either of the skirts or blouses you already have.

Many of these separates can be remodeled from old clothing, such as a skirt from an old taffeta or velveteen dress whose top is too worn for further use, or a top from a dress whose skirt is out-of-date.

Jersey is one of the most popular of the daytime materials for separates while taffeta, faille and velvet-or-velveteen-vie-for-attention in the dresser materials.

You can add a colorful taffeta sash or a spanking new leather belt to any of the separates you now own to give them a new lease.

Many wardrobes contain too-short pleated plaid skirts which may be just a bit moth-eaten in spots. If you'll check over the material that can be used, you'll undoubtedly find enough for a smart, scoop-necked waist.

A smaller amount of material from that source or another (like an old blouse) will certainly yield enough for a small round collar, and bias-cut cuffs.

Add dashing color to your separates with a dicky-type collar, and matching cummerbund made of plaid. Create your own patterns, or buy them.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Childhood Has Certain Rights

WILL YOU HELP my brother and me solve a terrible problem?" writes Vivian Bates, from a Philadelphia suburb. "We are 16 and 14. Five years ago my mother divorced my father, taking us with her to Reno, and marrying there, on the day of her divorce, a man to whom she had long been devoted. My father had just been appointed to the management of a California branch of his company, and he moved there. The arrangement was that we were to spend summers with him, which we have done, and that when Bob was 14 we should have the right to choose which parent we wanted to live with.

"My mother has a little boy by this second marriage, and also the care of a 10-year-old daughter of my stepfather's first marriage; our house is very small, and money scarce, although my father pays generously for my support and Bob's. Both my brother and I have decided that we want to go to my father, who now has a comfortable home, with a beloved aunt of ours, who is widowed, keeping house for him.

"Bob and I love our father, and although we love our mother, too, we feel that we can do little to make her happy in the difficult circumstances here. But she cries bitterly at the idea of our going away and tells us very frankly that she cannot make ends meet without the allowance our father makes her for our expenses. She says we owe her more than we ever can repay, and of course we do. But I feel that if I am to go to college I want to be a California college, and Bob and I never want to be separated. So we are writing to you to see if you can suggest any argument to my mother that will make her feel that this is the right thing to do."

into an absolutely false position, and of a mother so blind that she cannot see how serious an injustice she is doing to her son and daughter. While married to their father, in their small childhood, she transferred her affections to another man, dragged the children through the bewilderment of a Reno experience, and then established them in one of those mixed households infinitely confusing to immature minds.

A Hard Life Vivian and Bob, between ruptured relationships, step-relationships, half-relationships, between the curious fact of their banished father helping to support his successor, and their mother claiming from them the loyalty in which she has been so conspicuously lacking herself, have been victims of an adult selfishness rare even in this world of broken homes and broken

Turn Remnants Into Blouses, Scarves

Sheer, misty pieces of silk, chiffon and other fine fabrics can be found at any remnant counter, and they offer wonderful possibilities for that much needed blouse or scarf to wear with a suit or classic dress. You may even find such a remnant in your own sewing cabinet if you're in the habit of cutting out pieces of material from old formal, dresses or blouses.

Give the old suit a new look by hemming a length of material just long enough to tie around the neck, with a soft, crushable velvet flower right at the knot. With more scarf material you can do a clever draping job and have it look like a blouse of dicky.

Longer pieces of fine fabric can be used for a sash around the waist to dress up a costume. The stiff materials like taffeta, faille or novelty weaves are excellent for just such a purpose.

Dream House Is Moved 1,200 Miles by Pair

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.—Houses are difficult to find these days, especially dream-houses. A Vermont man and his wife knew this and as a result moved their house some 1,200 miles.

Bryon White and his wife built their Vermont home themselves, lovingly adding each new gadget and labor saving device. When the time came for them to move to Virginia they decided they wouldn't leave it.

Through half a dozen states, up hills, across ferries, down slippery wet pavement they drove, pulling their house behind them.

Sorely tired by fire, breakdowns, blowouts—and vigilant policemen—they never gave up. After all, how could they abandon 14,200 pounds of house.

Altogether, with detours, they towed the house 1,200 miles.

Six Weeks Journey But six weeks after the hazardous journey started, the house is set among a grove of evergreens. Its picture windows look out on rolling grass and gardens. Its winding driveway leads to the garage they have built at the rear of the much traveled, modern home.

White, an electronics engineer and former assistant professor at the University of Vermont, was just finishing up his house on university property when he took a job in Newport News with an electronics manufacturing concern. The Whites had not overlooked the possibility that they might have to move their house when they planned it. The structure was built in the form of a T with the living room the T's crossbar. They built the living room so that by using hinges it could be folded up no wider than the T's perpendicular.

They had also used hardwood plywood—not yet on the home builders market—and aluminum screws instead of nails. This made for lightness.

Trip a Nightmare When they hit the road for Virginia, the home, set on a specially made trailer, was 33 feet long, eight feet wide and 14 1/2 feet high. But if the house was a dream, the trip was a nightmare. They had to get permits from the states they planned to drive through. They had to avoid underpasses and some bridges. They had to write ahead to arrange for tows in some places.

They spent $250 on tires on the trip. Each time one blew out it ripped itself to pieces under the weight of the house. Bear mountain in New York never will be forgotten by the Whites. Almost to the crest of the long, high hill their overheated motor burst into flame. When they got the fire out the crankcase oil was a chocolate brown from the heat.

Now that the house is set up again, and livable, some of the terror of the trip seem humorous to the Whites. But they're certain of one thing, never again!

Long-Lost Century Clock Being Sought in Colorado

DENVER, Col.—Colorado officials have been presented with the mystery of the missing clock. The timepiece was built by J. W. Hill, a Kansas clockmaker, and displayed in the Kansas-Colorado building at the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia in 1876.

It was among the new-fangled gadgets, supposed to run for 100 years. Its power was supplied by a heavy weight attached to cords and set to drop 70 inches at a rate of three quarters of an inch a year.

Doane Eaton, Doraville, Me., wrote Governor Walter Johnson of Colorado that he found a reference to the clock in an old family record. Did the governor know what became of the clock? Was it still in time?

The governor didn't know. He passed the timepiece inquiry to Mrs. Agnes Wright Spring, acting state historian. She sent it along to Orville R. Hagans, Denver—horologist, whose extensive treasures on time-keeping gave the price of the 100-year-old clock at $1,000, but no references as to where it might be.

The search goes on. Hagans passed the problem to fellow horologists in the country.

Bomb Threat Increases Sale of Land in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—Land prices throughout the country have boomed since the current world crisis. The latest boom is in Utah. Real estate men from all parts of Utah agree that talk of this-or-that large city being a good target for atom bombs seems to be driving a lot of city folks into the rural-estate market.

Land prices in Utah have not boomed as high as in other parts of the nation but salesmen report an increasing reluctance of farmers to part with their land at present prices.

A real estate dealer in Richfield reported that one out of every two buyers of farms in Sewer Valley is a Californian. He said many move in while others put tenants on the land "just to have a little land in the mountains."

them last the season, you may even find you'll want them to wear next fall and winter.

Start with the clothes which need only minor work at first. Once you've found how easy it is to work miracles, you'll be carried enthusiastically to bigger jobs of renovating.

Clean and Fresh Garments Properly Cleaning will brighten dull-looking garments and add new life to them. If washable, do them at home, using directions that came with a tag on the material at purchase time. If professional cleaning is recommended, then turn over the job to a professional.

After cleaning, you may have to add new snaps, buttons or zippers many of which can come out of the remnant boxes you use to collect used, but good articles. If decorative buttons are necessary, select these tastefully and fasten properly.

Many suits, dresses and coats need new shoulder pads after several cleanings. If the pads are softened by too much use, they're not doing much for you. Just change them and give yourself a good, though conservative shoulder line.

When you're able to avoid shine on clothes, you've done a lot toward life extension. Avoid such common

ONCE-OVER Why Not Chorus of Dancing Books?

By H. Phillips

WILLIAM J. WALLIN, chancellor of the board of regents of New York State university, came out for entertainment and commercials at FCC hearings on special video channels for schools and colleges. "No video audience can be expected to spend its time in a classroom," he declared. Mr. Wallin has something. Charn will have to enter into the teaching profession, with perhaps more attention to a V-neck-gown. A good gag here, and there would help any educational telecast. But we hope the idea will not be carried so far that there will be faculty disputes over whether the dean or the president should be the straight man.

Beauty is a powerful consideration on video. To get over big, a male teacher with plenty of hair will obviously have the jump on the field. Genuine screen personality will help get across any lecture. A college with a Faye Emerson might quickly eclipse Yale or Harvard. In time we might even see the battle getting so hot that Princeton would get a master of ceremonies as an educational telecast. We can fancy the video education student sitting eagerly "Who's on tonight?" And if it isn't hard to imagine him turning from one educational telecast to another with the explanation "Let's switch to Dartmouth. They've got a swell master of ceremonies and a fancy guest panel."

What many people fear most is an educational program opening

Missionaries Ride Tandem Bike Built for Two Easier for Mormons

HELENA, Mont.—Two young Mormon missionaries occasionally at odds are finally a team today, on a bicycle built for two.

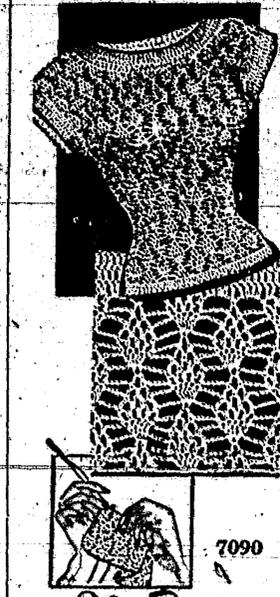

"We can't get mad at each other now," said Elder Lester Fordham, 21, Greenville, Utah. "Or one of us would have to climb Helena's hills on foot and the other would have to pedal a tandem alone."

Before, they had pedaled apart, delivering "The Message" from door to door. Yet other things they did together, such as studying, mending, washing, pressing and cooking.

"We finally figured it would be easier to pull up all hills together," said Elder Richard Church, 21, La Verkin, Utah. "And we haven't hit a hill around here yet we haven't been able to make it."

"Before we teamed up," Church said, "alone, each was bait for dogs, especially those mean poodles. But now, Elder Fordham in the rear fights them off and I just keep a peddling." Clocking at 25 miles per hour, Fordham and Church have the record of never having been ripped. "On our side is an element of surprise," Elder Fordham explained. "Most dogs are startled by this contraption, and by the time they recover we're away."

What is Swiss cheese, really? "It's a sort of round animal with a thick yellow skin, and has to be shot twenty-five or thirty times before it is dead. You'll find lots of defunct Swiss cheese in delicatessen stores full of bullet holes."

Life of Action

Lesson for January 14, 1931

SCRIPTURE: Mark 1:21-28. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 148:10-21.

THEY say that in four regions of the United States there are four different questions which are asked of newcomers. In the New England states they ask a stranger "How much do you know?" In the wealthy northern states they ask, "How much have you got?" In the South where ped- grees are so much treasured, they Dr. Foreman ask: "Who was your grandfather?" But out in the wide-open west they have only one question: "What can you do?"

Action in Religion IT is a fair question. If the answer is "Nothing," then it does not make any difference at all what a man can answer to the other three questions.

To be sure, they look at this differently in the Orient. According to the ancient philosophy of the East, it is only the inferior man who rushes around doing things. The superior man sits and thinks. The West's admiration for action, and the Orient's admiration for contemplation, enter into religion here. The typical Oriental "saint" may be a man who never turned his hand to a piece of work in all his life. The typical western "saint" is likely to be a very busy and active sort of person. It is all the more interesting that Jesus combined both the western and the eastern ideas of religion. He was a man of prayer and meditation, yet a man of strenuous life too.

Life of Action THE Gospel by Mark, reliable tradition claims, actually comes from Simon Peter. During Peter's missionary travels he used to speak often about the life and work of Jesus, and young John Mark would take down notes of what he said. Then later Mark worked up into a connected "gospel" many of those story-sermons. It is easy to believe the tradition, because this gospel sounds so much like what would appear to Peter, a man of action.

At any rate, in Mark we have very little said about Jesus' teaching, a great deal said about what he did. Jesus does not have a spare minute, not a day off. What about the rest of us? Suppose some biographer were to write up you who read these lines. Suppose he could use in his story only your actions, not your words or ideas. Would there be enough material for him to write a book?

Words of Power. WHILE Mark almost never tells us what Jesus taught, he does tell us that Jesus was a teacher. In describing the synagogue-service in Capernaum Mark tells us the people were astonished, and even two demon-riden men were struck down with terror.

What Jesus said that astonished the people and alarmed the demons we do not know. Possibly Peter, who was there, may have been too busy watching people's faces to hear what Jesus was saying. However that may be, Jesus is here introduced to us not only as a deer but as a thinker and teacher. Life is not all action; it is also thought. Jesus' acts were full of power; so and not less so were his ideas, words, teachings. Look at the rest of us again: We may be full of talk, but how much power is there in our ideas?

Straightway ONE word is found many times in Mark's stories of Jesus. "Straightway" as the older versions have it—that is, immediately. It is not just Mark's style. It is his way of bringing out something important about Jesus' life and habits.

There were no blank spaces, no pages unwritten, no empty gaps, no waiting-around, in Jesus' life. In his life one activity followed on the heels of another. He had no time to waste, and he wasted none.

Let the honest reader try to make a realistic budget of his time. At the beginning of a week let him draw up a kind of chart showing how he expects to spend his 16 waking hours each day,—so much for work, recreation, study and so forth. Then at the end of the week let him ask himself: Where did my time go? He will often have to admit that he did not really live the whole day, any day,—only parts of it. Living as a Christian means living one's full time, living one of these 16 hours a day.

Household Hints

Ivy growing in water will be helped considerably if you keep a small chunk of charcoal in the water.

If a candle is a little too small for a holder, you can make it firm by dipping the holder—provided it's metal—into piping hot water for a few minutes to get it hot before inserting the candle.

Stumps of candles and candles ruined by summer heat can be melted down and made into new candles by pouring the molten wax into an empty cold cream jar or a cardboard milk or cream container. If the cold cream jar is used, the candle can be burned right in the jar. With the cardboard carton, it's a simple matter to tear the paper aside once the wax gets hard. In either case, though, put a piece of string in the middle for a wick, and tie a weight to the bottom of it to keep it from rising while the wax is still in a fluid state.

To clean pearls—and amber beads, rub olive oil on them with a piece of flannel or chambray. Go easy on the amount of oil and the pressure of your rubbing.

Nearly any kind of ring is best cleaned with a toothbrush. Soap and water will do the job, unless the ring is badly tarnished, in which case try using bicarbonate of soda. Just dip the damp brush in the bicarb and scrub the ring. Then rinse the ring when you're finished.
