Engineers To Prepare Water System Report

City Council in regular session Tuesday night authorized the engineering firm of Ashley G. Clasen and Associates of El Paso to proceed in preparing a feasibility report on a municipal water system for the village.

Mayor Vernon Petty reported Wednesday the Clasen firm had informed him by telephone they will have a representative in Carrizozo Monday, March 12, to meet with council in City Hall at 7:30 P. M. The mayor was informed a representative of an Omaha investment firm will be present also.

The public is urged to attend this meeting.

It was announced at Tuesday's meeting the tank which the city had hoped to purchase from the Army is no longer available. An alternate solution for the town's water problem was suggested by Mayor Petty who stated it might be practical to install a 50,000 gallon overhead tank with a ground reservoir underneath capable of holding 400,000 gallons of water or more and a well nearby. A surface tank of this type, Petty reported, will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000, and an elevated 50,000 gallon tank about $18,000. A ground surface tank of the type needed here would probably be dug to a depth of six feet and the excavated dirt piled up around the edge to give an added height of about three feet.

The possibility of that section of land about one quarter mile west of the Country Club as a site for the location of the town's water system is under discussion. The feasibility of drilling an exploratory well there is expected to be taken up at Monday night's session.

A representative of a New Mexico state department who attended the meeting told council the Clasen firm is regarded by officials of his department as one of the outstanding sanitary engineering firms of the Southwest.

Another matter presented to council was the request of Fay Harkey, Harkey Lumber Company, the village trustees approve the extension of utility lines to a section of land south of the present softball park, which will be approved for FHA financing provided the town will agree to extend the utility lines. If the town is not financially able to do (Continued on Back Page)

San Patricio Students Start Nurses' Training

Training as nurses' aides has been started at the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley General Hospital for three San Patricio students. Mary Gleche, R. N., supervisor of nurses at the hospital, announced this week that the students, Amelia Gomez, Josephine Chavez and Josephine Silva, have volunteered to work on Saturdays at the hospital.

They will learn routine hospital procedure and certain techniques in caring for patients and equipment, Miss Gleche said. Two other valley residents have indicated their interest and may join the class soon, she said.

Girls who would like to receive instruction in the duties of nurses' aides and who could be available for volunteer duty during the summer are urged to visit the hospital for possible enrollment in the class.

Odd Fellows, Rebekahs Sponsor Youth Groups

The third Saturday of each month has been designated as Youth Night by the Carrizozo Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Once a month these organizations will sponsor a youth party for the young people of this community in the local Odd Fellows Hall.

March 17 at 8 P. M. is the date and time for the get-together this month. Parents and friends of the community's youth are cordially invited.

To Reduce Fire Rates

J. G. Moore announced this week fire insurance rates in New Mexico will be reduced approximately 20 per cent, effective March 15.

Huge Crowd Attends Capitan PTA Meeting

By DOROTHY GUCK

The library of the Capitan High School was filled to overflowing March 2 by parents and teachers of that community interested in organizing a Parent-Teacher Association. Frank Taylor, outlined the overall objectives of the PTA and explained a few items connected with an educational system in which they are not concerned.

A PTA is not in the least concerned about the personalities of the individuals running the school system as long as those individuals are accredited educators and perform the duties for which they were hired. Whether Joe Zlich or Amy Woggepuss is a member of the educational system is of minor concern. However, the Capitan school system and its members as a group are very vitally an item in which Capitan parents are privileged to take an interest. The educational system is the safest and surest institution in which we parents can make an investment by joining the PTA, whose chief objective is to promote the welfare of the community. It pays high dividends in the growth of better citizens.

K. A. Huey told of his experiences organizing the PTA at Claunch about 12 years ago. That association is still a very active and helpful part of the Claunch community.

A second meeting will be held March 30. At that time there will be election of officers, choice of meeting time, an outlining of the initial steps of the organization, an entertaining program and refreshments.

The following are members of the nominating committee: Fletcher Hall, Billy Hunt Hobbs, Mrs. Sam Cox, Mrs. Jack Shaw, Frank Taylor, Mrs. Yarbrough and Mrs. Guck.

The meeting adjourned to the gym where the Cubs, under the direction of Mr. Leroy McKnight, drew the Old Men in an overtime basketball bout. On the oldsters' team, all the players exhibited a huge amount of activity during the first quarter. Leroy McKnight, Tom Utterback and Ed Guck played a game of ball such as had never been seen by any audience. Primo Cozzens, Frank Taylor and Lewis Cummins sunk a few amazing shots, but Henry Peebles proved that a hard working rancher never loses his natural agility. The score was 18 to 16.

Ruth Meeks-Max Lane Troth Is Announced

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Ruth Meeks to Max Lane, Alamogordo, was announced last week by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Helen Meeks, Lincoln.

The wedding, of interest to many in this area, will take place at the First Methodist Church in Alamogordo early this spring.

Miss Meeks has asked Miss Christine Fillington to be her maid of honor. Mrs. Robert Hite (sister of the prospective bridegroom) has been selected as matron of honor. Performing the duties of best man will be Audrey L. Dunn.

The future Mrs. Lane is a graduate of Eastern New Mexico University at Portales. She was employed for several years as secretary to W. Barnie Caton, superintendent of Alamogordo schools, and is presently employed with the Northrup Aircraft Company at Holloman Air Force Base, Alamogordo.

Mr. Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vel M. Lane, Alamogordo, is vice president of the Sacramento Gas Company of that city. He is a graduate of New Mexico A. & M. College, Las Cruces, and served 18 months with the U. S. Navy during World War II.

Rifle Meet Scheduled

The monthly meeting of the Lincoln County Rifle and Pistol Club will be held Monday, March 19, 8 P. M., at the Carrizozo Fire Station. All members are urged to attend.

Retail Sales Jump 54 Pct. In County

Retailers in Lincoln County experienced a bigger Christmas month this year than last.

December sales rose 54 per cent above December, 1949, according to the latest issue of New Mexico Business, monthly publication of the Bureau of Business Research, University of New Mexico.

This percentage compares with a 33 per cent increase for the state. Decreases in sales of food stores and drug stores were more than offset by quite large increases in all other categories.

December sales increased 32 per cent over November sales, compared with a 37 per cent gain for the state. This rise was felt in all groups except automotive establishments and food stores, where sales declined.

Business in New Mexico closed out the year 1950 with a great upsurge in activity.

Professor Ralph L. Edgel, UNM Bureau of Business Research director, said that all retail groups shared in the state-wide gain in retail sales. He stated that the gains were quite generally distributed throughout the counties.

Only exceptions in county gains in retail sales were Catron, which showed a loss of 18 per cent from a year earlier, and Torrance County, which barely held its own.

Drug stores showed the second largest gain near the close of the year but for the entire year automotive dealers made the best showing.

Next in line for the complete year, the materials dealers followed closely on the heels of handlers of automotive products.

December's construction activity lived up to the high level set in the early part of the year although employment in the construction trades fell off slightly toward the latter part of the year.

Bank debts, likewise, dropped slightly from the November level.

Mining of metals in the state recovered at the end of the year from the mid-year slump in 1949 and ran well ahead of the pre-war rate of production.

The tonnage of potash mined in December surpassed the records of all previous months except August and October of 1950. The overall gain in state retail sales for December, 1950, over December, 1949, was 33 per cent.

Capitan FFA Holds Father-Son Banquet

The Capitan FFA Father and Son banquet was held March 3 at the high school cafeteria. Guests were L. W. Clark, D. O. Murphy, R. M. Jones and Frank Taylor. All made brief talks.

FFA members on the program included Malcolm Petree, who spoke on the history of FFA; Barton Jones, the purpose of FFA; Joe Chaney, accomplishments of the FFA this year and plans for the future. Malcolm Petree also told about the Capitan members' work in recent contests.

Mesdames H. R. Jackson and Jim McEuen prepared and served the dinner to the FFA members and their parents.

Mrs. L. W. Clark supervised the decorations which were in the FFA's colors of national blue and corn gold.

Replicas of farm scenes were used throughout the room to effect the motif for decor.

Others who appeared on the program were Raynette Eddington and Shirley Morgan, who entertained with vocal selections. They were accompanied by Mrs. Fletcher Hall. The group also heard a special selection by Miss Eddington.

The fathers and sons spent more than an hour getting acquainted with each other and some helped with the dinner dishes. The banquet, originated last year, is planned as an annual event.

Approximately 60 per cent of fathers and sons were present, although illness prevented several from attending.

Statewide contests for high school teams in livestock and dairy judging will be conducted this weekend at Eastern New Mexico University, Portales.

Capitan FFA members participating are: Livestock judging, Eugene Petree, Barton Jones and Grady Harlan; dairy judging, Bill Poindexter, Joe Bert Chaney and Malcolm Petree.

Paul H. Jones Korea Casualty

By DAN STORM

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Jones of Glencoe returned Friday from San Antonio where they spent four days visiting their son, Paul H. Jones, who is hospitalized at Brooke Army Hospital after having been wounded in Korea.

Sergeant-First-Class Jones was born in Lincoln County, having finished grade school and the first two years of high school in Carrizozo. He finished high school in New Mexico Military Institute, and upon his graduation entered the military service. After having spent four years of service in World War II, he joined the Army Reserve Corps when the Korean war began, he was called again to active service and arrived in Korea in October, 1950, joining the First Cavalry Division as a platoon leader.

On January 26, 1951, Paul was leading one platoon of infantry of the Company B of the First Cavalry Division in an attack upon an enemy hill position near Choensong. The company was engaged in battle to take a hill held by the enemy. Rifle, machine gun and mortar fire from the enemy position was heavy.

Early in the fighting, Paul, in advance of his platoon, was struck by a bullet in the thigh above the knee. The wound paralyzed the leg below the knee. Unable to walk, he fell to the ground attempting to continue combat, but was ordered to crawl back to safety. This was impossible on account of the heavy fire laid down by the enemy, so he rolled back out of the thickest of the fire. From here he was dragged through the snow one mile and a half to a litter in an open jeep. He was then flown to Japan and from there to the United States.

Mrs. Jones says that Paul's thigh bone is shattered, and the ligaments behind the knee and the sciatic nerve severed. However, she says, he is receiving the best of medical care. The process of healing the damage to the leg will require at least five months, Mrs. Jones was told by doctors. She said her son is cheerful and anxious to hear from his friends in Lincoln County.

One thing that impressed Mrs. Jones on her visit to the hospital was the fine spirit there among the wounded soldiers. Men of all races and creeds were lying side by side helping and cheering one another. There were Filipinos, Puerto Ricans, colored men and others represented, and all cheerful and sympathetic one to the other. Mrs. Jones said the thought (Continued on Back Page)

Death Strikes Thrice In English Family

Death, which struck three times within a month, claimed relatives of the F. A. Englishs, Carrizozo, well known and prominent Lincoln County residents.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. English left Tuesday for Peckville, Pa., to attend the funeral of Mr. English's brother, Walter, 62, who was the third member to succumb.

His death, which occurred Monday, March 5, was attributed to a heart attack suffered early that evening.

A sister of Mr. English, Mrs. May Nicols, about 74, died February 20, at Peckville after a long illness. Her husband, Bruce Nicols, also about 74, succumbed of a heart attack the following day, February 21.

Episcopalian and Methodist services were conducted on February 23 with interment at the Peckville Cemetery.

Surviving Mrs. Nicols and Mr. English are four brothers, F. A. English, Carrizozo; Arthur English, Denver; E. H. English, Truth or Consequences; and Alvin English, Bethlehem, Pa.

In addition, Mr. English is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edward Wood, and a son, Leonard English, both of Peckville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. English of Carrizozo attended the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Nicols. The young couple with their son "Toby" were en route home from a month's vacation trip in the East. The majority of their time was spent with Mr. and Mrs. E. Hermes, Franklin Square, Long Island, the parents of Mrs. English. It was the couple's first trip east in about a year and a half.

Red Cross Stresses Civil Defense Need

A representative of the American Red Cross last week painted a dark picture of what could happen in the United States and urged the village to plan an adequate civil defense program.

Speaking at City Hall on March 1 before approximately 20 persons who attended a civil defense meeting called by Mayor Vernon Petty, Joseph Racz, Red Cross field man, told the group an adequate blood bank and a number of trained first aid workers are prime requisites in any civil defense program.

Petty named the Carrizozoans in charge of the various civil defense groups (the list was previously published in The News-Outlook) and outlined their duties and qualifications. He also spoke on the methods devised for handling contingencies, and announced meetings are planned from time to time to discuss the duties of each group and safeguard the continuance of an efficient and workable method of operation in case of disaster, whether from enemy attack or domestic emergencies such as fire, storms, etc.

Racz said the federal government had asked the Red Cross to expand its program to train as many persons as possible in first aid and home nursing work. In reply to a question, the Red Cross man said Carrizozo would have to be responsible for the training of its first aid workers. He added he could give a three-hour conference review course to former Red Cross first aid workers and then reauthorize them under Red Cross regulations to do this work. The News-Outlook subsequently learned Medcames W. J. Hadley, Bertha Storm and Lorine Samelson have taken the refresher course and are now authorized to instruct others.

Racz also told the group the Red Cross plans to give an instructor's course in Alamogordo at a later date.

Mayor Petty urged everyone to have their blood typed and to carry their blood identification certificate upon their persons at all times.

W. J. Hadley, local hospital superintendent, reported 18 out of 43 blood donors have already been used, and urged the importance of having an adequate supply of all types of blood available. It was suggested each business firm be permitted a definite time at the local hospital for employees to be typed, and that all employees and their families be urged to take advantage of the opportunity. It was pointed out in addition to helping save a life, the donor might just possibly help save his own life in an emergency. Hadley pointed out there is no expense involved in connection with the local blood typing program which is in operation at the local hospital. He added blood donations are now being accepted from women as well as men and urged Lincoln County residents to take advantage of this blood typing program whether or not it is feasible for them to donate blood.

Mayor Petty closed the meeting with an expression of appreciation to those present for their cooperation in taking time to attend the meeting, and said others will be held at intervals to permit coordination of civil defense activities in the community.

J. W. Humphries, 79, Succumbs In Progresso

J. W. Humphries, 79, who succumbed Sunday night, March 4, at his home in Progresso, was the father of Mrs. Paul Lackey of Corona.

Funeral services were held Wednesday with interment at the family cemetery near the deceased's home.

Mrs. Humphries preceded her husband in death several years ago.

Surviving are a son, Roy, Albuquerque, and three daughters, Miss Alma Humphries of Progresso, Mrs. Leonard Hobbs of Cedarvale and Mrs. Paul Lackey of Corona.

The late Mr. Humphries, who came to New Mexico more than 40 years ago, homesteaded a few miles west of Cedarvale and had maintained his home there since that time.

High Schools To Vie For State Basketball Crown

Winners and runners-up in the high school regional basketball tournaments last week will travel to Albuquerque to vie for the state crown this weekend.

Hurley won the decision for Region Three championship when they raced past Belen, 43-27.

Region One championship was taken by Highland of Albuquerque, who defeated Our Lady of Sorrows, Bernalillo, 42-37.

St. Michael's "Horsemen" of Santa Fe clipped West Las Vegas, 46-35, for Region Two's crown.

Portales pulled an upset in their victory over Clovis, 42-40, to gain the championship for Region Four.

These eight teams will compete at Albuquerque over the weekend in a tourney which replaces the former 20-team state meet. In 1950, the New Mexico High School Athletic Association divided the state into 15 districts instead of 10, and made four regions out of the 15 districts.

Coaches of the eight squads met last night in Albuquerque to draw for their places in the first round brackets.

Regardless of the outcome of the meet, each team will be sponsored by two Albuquerque merchants who promise the players a good time during their stay.

The following chart shows the results of last week's contests:

Region One	First Round
Highland 66, Taos 42.
Espanola 49, Fort Wingate 33.
Our Lady of Sorrows 39, Espanola 36.
Semi-Finals
Highland 53, Farmington 35.

Landscaping Of Local Hospital Underway

The new plantings at the Lincoln County Municipal Hospital, Carrizozo, have done a great deal to point up the attractive building.

A number of shrubs and small trees have been set out all around the hospital and the nurses' home and a portion of the plot in front of the hospital has been prepared for a lawn.

The project, initiated by the Tres Valles Garden Club and later joined by the Capitan and Carrizozo Women's Clubs, is proceeding at full steam and a number of ideas and plans for its further development are in process.

Contributions of various kinds have been made in the past in behalf of beautification for the grounds of the local hospital and nurses' home (the names of the donors and their contributions have been published previously in The News-Outlook).

It is suggested residents of the county stop at the hospital the next time they are in Carrizozo and see for themselves the new beauty imparted by the landscaping completed to date. Carrizozoans, too, should take time to view the work that has been done—it will give one an excellent idea of the future beauty of the hospital grounds when the entire project is completed.

Leon Todd, formerly of Ruidoso and now a pharmacist at Mineral Wells, Texas, pleaded not guilty in District Court here Wednesday to charges of murder in the death of William Henry Hewatt in 1940. District Judge W. T. Scoggin has set May 1 at 10 A. M. as the date for trial.

Todd remains free on $4,000 bond which was posted at the time of his arrest. The case will be tried at the Court House in Carrizozo.

Todd, with his attorneys, Judge E. M. Davis, Brownfield, Texas, and George L. Zimmerman, Carrizozo, appeared in court Tuesday morning to answer to the charges which were filed last fall when Glen Thornton, Arizona prison inmate, allegedly confessed in a sworn statement Todd had hired him to do away with William Henry Hewatt, 30, at Ruidoso in 1940. A coroner's inquest report at that time listed Hewatt's death as suicide. Thornton claimed Hewatt was in love with the woman who was Todd's wife at that time.

Todd's attorneys were served on Tuesday with a copy of the information from District Attorney Tom Campbell which charges Todd with murder. The defendant's attorneys urged a speedy trial and Judge Scoggin informed Todd of New Mexico law which provides 24 hours must elapse before the accused can be arraigned and permitted to enter a plea. The case was continued until March 7 to permit compliance with the law.

In a statement last week, the defendant's attorneys reported Thornton has repudiated his alleged confession; and stated the convict said he had made it in an attempt to obtain mental treatment.

District Attorney Tom Campbell stated in court Wednesday morning his office will move for examination of Thornton by an El Paso psychiatrist prior to the trial. Defense attorneys may be present at the examination, Campbell said, and they will be given a copy of the findings.

Mrs. Ben E. Hewatt, Roswell, mother of William Henry Hewatt, who died in 1940, was present at Tuesday morning's hearing. She expressed the wish, in an interview with The News-Outlook, the case be tried as quickly as possible.

Kathlene Merritt Weds Arthur Jones In Estancia

A wedding of interest to many in Corona was that of Miss Kathlene Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Merritt, Corona, to Private Arthur Jones at the Estancia Methodist Church Saturday, March 3. Rev. Ault officiated at the afternoon nuptials.

The bride wore a tailored dark brown suit and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. Her maid of honor, Miss Minnie Alice Welch, chose a tailored suit of teal blue, which was complemented by her shower bouquet of red carnations.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was Roy Yates, Estancia.

The couple left immediately following the ceremony on a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination. They expect to visit in Corona this weekend.

The bride, who is employed with the Production Marketing Administration at Estancia, represented Torrance County at the State Fair Queen contest last fall, and won riding honors in the horsemanship show.

Guests at the wedding included the bridegroom's parents from Carlsbad; his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Groff, Estancia, and the bride's parents, as well as other relatives and intimate friends.

The new Mrs. Jones will continue with her work in Estancia as her bridegroom, now in the armed service, expects to be called for overseas duty soon.

Washington Newsletter

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY, M. C.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Last week's newsletter from Washington was not distributed as I was away from the national capital for a brief visit to New Mexico. Although the trip back home was a short one, it did give me an opportunity to visit with many of my friends in the state.

During the past couple of weeks, most of the attention in Washington has been directed toward committees of both the House and Senate. On the Senate side, a subcommittee headed by Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.), is digging into charges of favoritism in handling of Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans, a matter which I shall discuss later in this letter.

My own committee, that on public roads, has been holding hearings on the proposed St. Lawrence seaway project, which calls for development of the water link between the Atlantic seaboard and the Great Lakes ports. It provides for a 27 foot channel through the St. Lawrence River and a power development at the dam that would be necessary.

The idea is not a new one. It has been proposed to previous congresses without success, but this time it is being sponsored on the basis that it is vitally needed for the defense effort because it would provide a means of transporting iron ore from Labrador to steel mills in the Great Lakes region. Whether or not this is actually the case is one of the questions which the committee seeks to answer through the public hearings.

On one of the days during my absence from Washington, Mr. Charles E. Wilson, the defense mobilizer, testified before the committee I had prepared some questions which a colleague of mine on the committee asked for me. One of these was whether the easiest and simplest way to handle the project would not be through private financing, since Mr. Wilson said at an earlier conference which I attended with my committee at the White House that he felt sure private capital could easily be obtained.

Mr. Wilson replied: "Well, it is a big subject, sir, but I have to admit that at the conference in the White House on this subject I said that I thought it was good enough to employ private capital to do the job, that it could pay out. Maybe that is the best recommendation I could give it. I believe it could pay out with private capital."

My next question inquired if the government would not profit more from the efficient operation of private ownership, since it would still share largely in the profits by virtue of the high rates of corporate taxation plus a take on the dividends. Mr. Wilson declined to answer, saying "I do not think you expect me to get into a discussion of whether or not private ownership or government ownership would be most efficient."

It has been estimated that our share of cost of the proposed seaway will be $570,000,000, but there is no assurance that this figure will remain constant in view of the diminishing value of the dollar.

At a later session, I had an opportunity to question Mr. Roger B. McWhorter, chief engineer of the Federal Power Commission, regarding these estimates of cost of the proposed project. I asked Mr. McWhorter if the difference in its estimated cost in the early thirties and now is not due to the fact that the dollar now is worth only about 50 cents in purchasing power.

"I think that naturally has had something to do, a great deal to do, with the cost," he answered, and then explained that the cost has increased 100 per cent since 1939. I then asked what he thought the dollar would be worth in 1955, and he admitted he had no way of knowing. The point to the latter questioning was that if it takes five years to build the project which is anticipated, the chances are strong that any estimate will have to

The Boy Scouts had rifle practice Sunday morning under John Davis' supervision. The majority of the Scouts have received the following uniform items: Caps, shirts, kerchiefs and belts. The remainder of the uniforms are expected within 60 days.

Our Lincoln Grade School basketball team played Hondo Grade team Monday night. The score was 13-12 in Hondo's favor. The grade school tournament will be held at Captain High School March 16 and 17.

Miss Ruth Penfield of El Paso spent the weekend with her mother and family in Lincoln.

Priscilla Maes and Mrs. Slade of the Hondo Valley General Hospital staff visited the Roman Maes Saturday.

Agnes Chavez of Captain visited Priscilla Padilla Saturday. Lydia Polanco has been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Escobedo.

Mr. and Mrs. Isabel Aldaz have been visiting with their parents, Mr. Aldaz, who has been attending Highlands University in Las Vegas for the past year and a half, will complete a course in refrigeration in December. Sara Sedillo, who resides in be revised in view of the cheapening dollar.

"Do you think," I asked, "one of our great projects should be to try to get that dollar back to where it belongs? Would that not be a great project?"

"That is a very large question," Mr. McWhorter replied.

From my own view, this falling off of the purchasing power of the American dollar is one of the most serious things that is happening in our economy. Unless it can be checked, the United States faces serious financial difficulties. It is a subject which I plan to discuss in more detail in a later letter.

SOME CHANGES DUE. Senator Fulbright and his Senate subcommittee investigating charges of alleged influence peddling in the RFC are turning up some very disturbing information as to what has been going on in this leading agency.

Testimony is not yet complete, but already it has brought out such figures as E. Merl Young, who was able to acquire an $8,500 mink coat for his White House stenographer wife, while apparently in a low-salaried job. His rise to fortune leaves a lot of questions to be answered.

If these charges of selling influence are finally proved true, then it is time to clean up the whole mess, even killing off the RFC if that is the only way it can be done.

I feel that the RFC or some such agency is necessary during this period of full mobilization which lies ahead of us. I would like to see the existing RFC reconditioned to meet the needs of the country in the manner which Congress intended at the agency's creation.

But unless the RFC can be reorganized to eliminate such highly improper, if not actually illegal, practices as the Fulbright subcommittee is bringing to light, I would vote to abolish this agency.

Roswell, visited her mother, Mrs. Sara Salazar, last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gomez, Mrs. Vicente Garcia and Mrs. Lujan took a trip to the northern part of the state. They visited in Albuquerque, Santa Fe and "El Santuario" in Chama.

Roy Taylor and several others from in and around Captain have gone down to the Gulf of California fishing. Hope they bring Gady Eldridge's new GMC home full of fish.

E. S. Buchanan of Hondo, driver of the Lincoln-Capitan school bus, is in the hospital in Carrizozo, critically ill with pneumonia and complications. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Tranquillino Montoya are very proud of an 8 1/2 pound boy born February 28. Tranquillino was taking him to a doctor this week, though, it seems he isn't feeling too well.

Ida Fay Morris was taken to the doctor at Ruidoso Sunday night.

Bobby Romero went to Roswell Sunday.

Mrs. Jeff Dockray is organizing a Lincoln Girl Scout Troop. The girls seem greatly interested and I'm sure it will be a success. We appreciate Mrs. Dockray's efforts and the fact that she is willing to give her time to the organization.

Orlando Sanchez was visiting home folks again this weekend off his station at Fort Bliss.

George Morris is now stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Neille Zamora is back home again after being in the hospital. She is feeling better but her grandchildren and her daughter, Emma, are ill.

The students at Lincoln School are enjoying well balanced meals as the following week's menus will indicate:

Monday—Lettuce salad, liver and onions, hominy, cheese biscuits and butter, orange souffle, 1/2 pint milk.

Tuesday—Cottage cheese and peach salad, beef vegetable stew, hot buttered toast, coconut cake, 1/2 pint milk.

Wednesday—Vegetable salad, macaroni, tomatoes and cheese, spinach, raisin muffins and but-

ON THE JOB

By WALTER E. TAYLOR

WITH SUGAR ON IT—A recent issue of Holiday magazine tells how manpower shortages in New Zealand have caused employers to go to fantastic lengths to secure workers. Everybody in New Zealand is working and so employing firms are in competition with each other in offering lush benefits to workers and to young people leaving school. One employer's want ad offers female workers "free permanent waves, daily carfare, taxis home on late nights and tickets to the movies twice a week." All this and afternoon tea, too. Through want ads, employers practically beg people to come to work, but since almost everyone is working the ads only succeed in enticing workers from one job to another.

TINNIE

By RUBY ALLEN

Friends of Johnny Hodges were sorry to learn of his being seriously wounded in action in the Korean fighting...

We regret to learn that Fred P. Bowser, our Peacho neighbor, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital March 5 for treatment...

County Nurse Mrs. Angie Blumgardner visited Tinnie School Friday, March 2, and vaccinated some of the children.

Shorty and Herford were seen in the community one day last week.

Dan Storm of Glencoe was in Tinnie on business Thursday.

Lined Morris was in Tinnie Friday afternoon of last week.

Mrs. Wayne Bradley of Dexter has been visiting Bonnie, Glen and Melvin Bradley for the past week.

E. H. Latham and Bob Harcrow were in Tinnie Saturday afternoon.

Mary Anne Jones and John A. Mosteller were in Roswell Saturday.

C. H. McLeod went to Roswell on business Saturday.

Little Melvin Bradley, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bradley, is doing nicely in St. Mary's Hospital in Roswell.

The baby has gained about one-half pound recently.

Irene, Kenneth and Denny Nosker were visitors at the Tinnie Mercantile Company Sunday.

Mrs. D. E. McLeod is in Roswell spending a few days this week.

Billie and Eugene Sloan were Tinnie visitors Saturday afternoon.

Lola Romero and Mollie Allen were visitors in Roswell Sunday.

Fred Chavez of Capitan was in Tinnie on business Saturday.

Morris J. Allen went to Roswell Saturday for his final checkup at the hospital after his recent illness.

H. M. Dow of Roswell was in Tinnie over the weekend.

W. F. Casey has purchased the little rock house and acreage across the Peacho bridge, and has had the house remodeled and electricity put in.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Murtenk. Paul is employed by Mr. Sloan.

Visitors over the weekend at the W. N. Hodges home were Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hodges of Clovis, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Tabor of Peacho, Mrs. Louise Massey Mable, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Murtenk, the W. F. Caseys, the M. J. Allens, the Wilkersons of Roswell, Herb Hodges and family.

Cecil and Teeny Green were visitors in the home of Teeny's parents, the Allens, Sunday.

They have to come out Sunday to retrieve the little daughter, Linda, for her grandparents generally manage to go to Roswell every Saturday, mainly for the purpose of bringing Linda back with them.

Wesley Hodges, his wife and daughter, Beverly, are spending a few days with Wesley's parents in Tinnie.

John Allen was a midnight visitor at the home of his parents, then went to Roswell to be ready to help move the Case family to Tularosa where Mr. Case is going to do a little farm.

CAPITAN

Mrs. Byron Ausbrook left on Saturday, March 3, for her home in Davenport, Iowa.

A host of friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Hobbs on Tuesday, February 27.

Hobbs' forty-sixth wedding anniversary and those friends present made up four tables of bridge after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs were presented with an anniversary gift.

Mrs. J. W. Malcolm and daughter of Albuquerque are here visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Hobbs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ellis, their two children and Mrs. H. W. Ellis, all of Santa Fe, are visiting with Mrs. Maclie Edmondson.

A party of 11 have left for Guaymas, Mexico, a distance of 750 miles from here, to enjoy some deep sea fishing.

The party are Grady Eldridge, Virgil Hall, Bill Humphries, Ray Taylor, Jimmie Palmer, Orland Willis, Willis and Nolan Lovelace of Corona, Dell Jameson, also of Corona, and two men from Ruidoso.

They expect to be gone a week or 10 days.

It was a family reunion at the home of Mrs. S. A. Pearce this past weekend.

All her children and grandchildren were home, including Mr. and Mrs. Reece Foster and sons of San Diego, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Ray Braden and daughter of San Diego, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Dodds of Alamogordo and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hobbs and sons of Alamogordo.

The Thursday Bridge Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Hugh Bahcroft.

Prizes were received by Edna Laramie and Henrietta Belknap.

The teen-agers enjoyed a tacky party at the VFW Home on Friday evening, March 2.

The Capitan Fire Department was called out at noon Monday to a grass fire at Angus.

Upon arrival they found the fire had been practically extinguished by the men living in that locality.

The FFA held a Father and Son Banquet in the grade school cafeteria on Saturday evening, March 3.

The tables were appropriately decorated with miniature farm products.

The attendance of nearly 50 reported a very interesting and enjoyable evening.

The Bi-Weekly Sewing Club held its pot luck luncheon and sewing bee on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Ferris.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Walker of Montrose, Colo., visited with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Dean last week.

Mr. Walker was school superintendent in Capitan 25 years ago.

ing along with his well drilling work.

Alf Berry, Gerald Burrow and Walter Allen stopped by the home of Walter's parents in Tinnie Sunday afternoon long enough to eat up two raisin pies, and drink several cups of coffee.

The three gentlemen all work in Roswell, but had gone to visit Alf's sister, Mrs. Joe C. Tabor of Encinosa.

A shower is being given by Marjorie Tisworth in honor of Betty Lou (Taylor) Underwood at the Frank Tisworth home, March 11.

Betty Lou's many friends wish her happiness in her marriage.

Opal and George Butts, and family are moving into their new home this week on the Frank Purcella ranch.

The Lincoln County teachers will meet Friday, March 9, at the Hondo Valley Union High School.

While E. W. Nelson of Tinnie was reported loafing in Roswell last week, his Columbia ewes started lambing.

Upon his return Mr. Nelson found five ewes had lambed out 12 lambs.

One lamb died, but that still left 11 lambs out of five ewes.

If all sheep men could train their herds after this fashion, and realize an increase like that, they might afford to loaf like Mr. Nelson!

occurred to her that if this same spirit could come into the hearts of men throughout the world, there would be no more wars.

Mrs. Jones said the Gray Ladies of the Red Cross are present always in the hospital doing everything possible to help the wounded and sick men. Also a patriotic spirit is being shown by girls and women of San Antonio, who make daily visits to the hospitals running errands, writing letters and visiting—trying in every way to make things easier for the hospitalized soldiers. Paul told her, Mrs. Jones said, that in Japan the officers' wives help out with the Red Cross work, meeting every boat and plane of wounded and helping place telephone calls and arrange meetings between friends in the service helping in every way possible.

Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Jones was Mary Lou Cunningham, ham of Albuquerque. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Morris of Glencoe also visited Paul and then went to see their son Joe, who is stationed at Fort Hood, Texas.

Paul's home is in Glencoe where he followed the life of a rancher. His brother, Tom, is a veteran of World War II of four years as a combat flier in the Army Air Force.

Paul's present address is: S. F. C. Paul H. Jones, E. R. 3971429, Brooke Army Hospital (Ward 35) Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Engineers To Prepare the work when called upon, the local firm will finance the extension of lines with the eventual owners of the FHA homes ultimately assuming the obligation for their proportionate share.

Harkey stated there will be space in the development for 21 houses with 6,500 square feet of land for each house. FHA restrictions also require the houses to contain 630 square feet of floor space and the value of each house to be not less than $5,000. He added the rate of interest to be charged is 4 1/2 per cent with a down payment of 10 per cent required. Harkey told the trustees Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Reil are their partners in the proposed housing project. Council approved a motion to extend utility lines to the housing project with the provision the Harkey Lumber Company assume the cost if the city is not financially able to do so when requested.

Harkey said a well had been drilled on the property, the depth of which is about 80 feet and capable of pumping 75 gallons a minute without lowering. He explained this figure was gained from a preliminary test and it is believed more than that amount of water can be pumped. In case of fire in that section, Harkey pointed out, this source of water will be of immeasurable value. A report on revenue and operating expenses for the city's utility departments indicate the following profits: Light and power, $1,701; gas, $573; and water $256. These figures do not include allowance for depreciation, etc. The ice department, according to the report, operated at a loss of $56.23 for the month. Other routine business was transacted.

Green Tree Mayor Cites New Mexico Traffic Toll

Green Tree's mayor, H. A. Parrnell, cited statistics on New Mexico's huge traffic toll in an interview with The News Outlook this week.

Parnell stated the village of Green Tree is doing its part in attempting to cut the staggering death toll of the state by regulating the speed of motorists through that town. The mayor added many motorists were traveling at excessive speed through the village and endangering the lives of school children as well as adults.

Parnell reported the traffic death toll in New Mexico last week was the same as the number of New Mexico soldiers killed in Korea to date. New Mexico's ratio for 1950 was 11.5 deaths for each 100,000,000 miles of vehicle operation during 10 months of the year.

The Legislature is considering measures to revamp the state traffic setup which would involve a 65-mile speed limit. There is no speed limit at present in New Mexico.

President Truman's Highway Safety Conference has submitted a report showing New Mexico's 1950 average was higher than the national average in 1945. In that year, the national figure was 11.3 and by 1950 it had been reduced to 7.2. The report said the rate of progress in cutting down accidents is "too slow and too spotty."

NOGAL MESA

By DOROTHY GUCK

If any Carrizozo property owner is missing a few acres of earth, kindly come up on the Mesa and remove it from my window sills.

G. L. Dutton flew to Carrizozo from Tucson then drove to the Mesa to spend the weekend with Dooge LaMay.

Sonny Luck is helping the Game Department in Lincoln County.

Mrs. Fred Pfingsten returned from Denver last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Holmes are commuting between Capitan and their ranch on Loma Grande. They expect to remain on the mountain after April.

One of the Pettys purchased the Nelson ranch in Nogal.

The Forest Service fence crew are working on the Watson range maintaining the boundary fence.

Roy Morgan and his crew are replacing the bridge on the forest road in front of Mert Zumwalt's house in Nogal Canyon, with a culvert. Roy LaMay is using his heavy equipment to move the dirt.

March 10 Paul Jones will be married to Arlene, daughter of Arlis Richardson, at the home of W. M. and Dottie Witterding of Muleshoe, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gould of Fort Stanton spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peebles.

Fire Destroys 60 Acres Of Grass Near Angus

Carol Anderson reported a fast spreading fire at noon Monday near Angus. It originated on the land formerly owned by Roy Skinner. Whipped by a strong southwest wind, the fire quickly destroyed about 60 acres of grama grass. Arvel Runnels had leased the land for forage. Several farrowing sows with their broods were in the barn on the place Henry Peebles and Ranger Guck were the first to arrive on the scene and directed their first attack at the barn, which was saved. Gill and Lamoyne Peters, Bobbie Peebles, Peg Pfingsten and Virgil Jones were among the local fire fighters.

The Captain fire truck arrived to lend a hand. Huge swatters, shaped much like fly swatters, were used. With each short lull in the wind, a pincer attack was made. At 2:30 the fire was out and most of the men were fed at the ranch of Gill Peters. The cause of the fire could not be determined. It might have been started by a carelessly flipped cigarette of a passenger on the Alto road. Due to the fact the fire was on land outside the national forest, Ranger Guck remarked, "This is the first time in years that I have been on a fire in the capacity of an ordinary citizen, not a ranger."

1951 License Plates Subject To Penalty

Elfred Jones, Carrizozo, distributor for 1951 auto and truck license plates, announced this week the purchase of plates is now subject to penalty unless the owner of the vehicle in question can sign an affidavit the car has not been operated on New Mexico highways since midnight of March 2.

Jones said that date had been designated as the deadline for securing 1951 license plates without penalty.

Sowell, Drake Praised By Speaker Of House

Speaker of the House of Representatives in New Mexico, Calvin Horn, has written The News-Outlook commending the service of the two representatives from this district, L. S. Drake of Ruidoso and Ray D. Sowell of Pinon.

The letter follows: "Editor, "Lincoln County News-Outlook, Carrizozo, New Mexico. "Dear Editor:

"I have had the privilege of serving with your two state representatives throughout the legislative session now drawing to a close. As speaker of the House, I have observed them closely and in my opinion they are among the most valuable of our 55 members.

"Representatives Ray D. Sowell of Pinon and L. S. Drake of Ruidoso have taken active interest in every important measure considered by the House. They have rendered vital service to the people of their district and to the state as a whole.

"I feel it only fair to express my commendation of them publicly, to the people whom they represent in the House. It has been a privilege to work with legislators of such sound judgment, fine men both.

"Sincerely, "CALVIN HORN, "Speaker of the House."

Family Night Observed By Ancho Auxiliary

The Ancho Woman's Auxiliary held their "Family Night" February 23 at this school house in Ancho.

Mrs. Bettye Stewart, president, opened the meeting, after which it was turned over to Mesdames Kate Straley, Harry Risinger and June Straley, who were in charge of the program and refreshments for the evening.

Members had previously been instructed to prepare to answer rollicall with a stunt. Each family responded with stunts that showed evidence of excellent preparation.

The Snodgrass family was the winner of the stunts contest in a secret ballot election.

Basketball Tournament Scheduled For Tularosa

The freshman basketball players in this area start their tournament this weekend at Tularosa in the high school gym.

The Carrizozo team's first game of the tournament is scheduled for 8 P. M. March 9 with the Cloudcroft quintet.

Morals Charge Hearing Scheduled For March 21

The case of Lee Wimberly, Ruidoso, who faces a morals charge involving the indecent handling of a minor girl, was set for March 21 by Judge W. T. Scoggin in District Court this week.

Wimberly was arrested several months ago by Sheriff S. M. Ortiz upon complaint of the girl's parents.

The defendant is at liberty under bond.

Ruidoso Lions Guests Of Carrizozo Club

Guests at Wednesday night's meeting of the Carrizozo Lions Club were Ruidoso Lions W. A. Hart and Lloyd Bloodworth. Mrs. Mary Nell Taeger of the Ruidoso News was another guest.

The Carrizozo Lions have been invited to a party at Ruidoso on March 31 which the Lions of that village are sponsoring to raise funds for the Hondo Valley General Hospital.

Post Nuptial Shower Honors Mrs. Zumwalt

A post nuptial shower given Sunday afternoon at the Woman's Club building honored Mrs. Tom B. Zumwalt (nee Patty Stephenson). The Zumwalts were married recently at a church wedding in Carrizozo.

Hostesses for Sunday afternoon's event were Mrs. Clarence Hust and Miss Kathleen Ward, who were assisted by Mrs. Elmer Hust.

The large array of gifts was attractively displayed on a lace covered table illuminated with blue tapers in crystal holders.

Prior to the opening of the gifts by the honoree, several guessing contests were conducted by Mrs. Lamoyne Peters with prize honors going to Mrs. Anne Hust.

A molded salad, eye appealing as well as luscious, centered the linen covered tea table and was flanked by yellow candles in silver holders. Cheese filled wafers, cookies, mints, nuts and coffee were served with the salad.

Approximately 20 guests from Capitan, Nogal and Carrizozo gathered at the club house for the occasion.

Oil Worker Fined On Drunk Driving Charge

T. F. Campbell, oil well worker near Carrizozo, was arrested Tuesday afternoon at a local service station by Sheriff S. M. Ortiz on a drunk driving charge. He appeared before District Judge W. T. Scoggin Wednesday morning, who fined him $100 and ordered he pay $100 court costs. The fine was suspended.

Entertain At Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Earl of Capitan entertained at a dinner last week for Mrs. Edna Laramie, Theodore Lantau and Mrs. Bryon Ausbrook. Herbert Honeycutt, an old friend of the Earl family, also was a guest.

Wilson Dominates Cabinet

THE MAN WHO really dominates the cabinet meetings these days is not the President but Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, Truman is so fond of Wilson personally, so determined to give him complete power, that the big square-jawed ex-head of General Electric carries far more weight than any member of the cabinet.

In fact, some cabinet meetings have featured none-too-friendly arguments in which Wilson always gets what he wants.

For example, Wilson will announce to the cabinet: "We need more timber for defense construction. The lumber people tell me we can get it from the national forests."

The national forests are under Secretary of the Interior Chapman, while the timber in them is under the forest service and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. And if the latter argue about the need of saving timber for future generations and suggest using only half the proposed amount, Wilson's brusque reply is: "We need all of it."

Usually the president calls in the opposing cabinet member and says: "I think you'd better go along with Charlie. I had an awfully hard time getting him to take the job, and I don't want him to leave because he doesn't get cooperation."

Chief inner-cabinet gripe against Wilson is that he listens chiefly to his advisers from industry and not to his colleagues in government. Generally speaking, Wilson is doing a good job, is especially trying to help place orders with little business—despite the fact that he comes from one of the biggest companies in the world.

NOTE—Wilson's chief need is a few men around him who can do more long-range planning.

People-to-People

In the summer of 1947, this writer had an interesting talk with Gen. George Marshall, then secretary of state, about the importance of penetrating the iron curtain in order to refute the Moscow radio and convince the Russian people of the basic friendliness of the American people.

Secretary Marshall seemed convinced at that time that much was to be gained from drawing a distinction between the "Russian people and their government, and making it clear that the American people had no quarrel with the Russian people.

In a nation which has no free press, no churches, no parliament to exercise a check rein on the Kremlin, the only way to prevent a precipitous declaration of war is contact with the people of Russia.

This fact is, of course, the chief reason for the iron curtain. The Kremlin's greatest fear is that the Russian people will get too friendly with the outside world.

Secretary Marshall, at that time, favored making a speech in the assembly of the United Nations urging Moscow to remove the iron curtain and permit free intercourse between the people of Russia and the outside world. It was suggested that after such a speech was made, translations in the Russian language could be dropped behind the iron curtain—by weather balloons if necessary. The speech wasn't made.

Senator Wherry's Toast

Before French Premier Rene Pleven returned to Paris, he attended a stag dinner at the French embassy where he sat directly across the table from Sen. Ken Wherry of Nebraska, the arch foe of European aid.

Throughout the meal, the French premier and the Nebraskan isolationist chatted pleasantly about past experiences. Pleven told about visiting Nebraska as a youth, and spoke glowingly of Nebraska's beef cattle.

Wherry responded with a story on himself. He recalled that, as state GOP chairman, he had made a political barnstorming trip across the state. As he moved from town to town in southwest Nebraska, he came upon a small community that had received no advance word and wasn't expecting him. Nevertheless, he rounded up the local Republican leaders and arranged a pep rally that night. As he went into his spiel about the Nebraska GOP ticket, however, he got a cold reception. There was an exchange of whispers with the local leader, and the red-faced Wherry discovered he had wandered across the border and mistakenly arranged a rally in Colorado.

The French premier laughed heartily, and soon the two were talking back and forth as if Wherry were an ardent supporter of aid to Europe. When it came time for the traditional toasts, all drank to success of Franco-American relations and the French aid program.

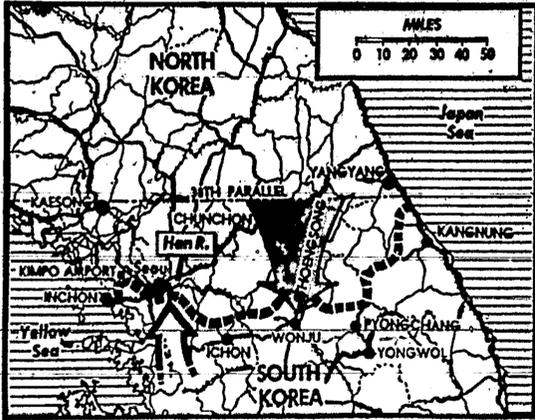

Finally it came Wherry's turn to lift his glass and turning to Pleven, he declared:

"Mr. Premier, I may ask a lot of questions. But I want you to understand that I am in favor of helping the French."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Premier Joe Stalin Attacks Britain, United States for Korean Conflict; 100,000 European Force Is Planned

(EDITOR'S NOTE: What opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

The Chinese Communist offensive aimed at Wenju in an effort to split the United Nations line came to an abrupt halt with the destruction of two Red divisions. U.N. troops then pushed forward in a limited offensive that carried up to six miles along the 70-mile sector from Seoul to Wenju. The Reds were reported to have lost approximately 31,000 troops in their one week offensive.

STALIN:

The Role of Prophet

Prime Minister Stalin, in one of his rare public statements, predicted the United States and Great Britain are doomed to defeat in Korea, and the disintegration of the United Nations.

Assuming the role of a prophet thundering from his mountain, the Soviet leader attempted to intimidate the free nations of the world, to stir up discord between the North Atlantic pact nations, and brand Russia the only true champion of world peace. He succeeded only in tangling himself in a web of contradictions and lies.

There was even a minor threat of war when he said war "cannot be considered inevitable," but that it might come if the "warmongers succeed in antagonizing the masses of the people in lies, in deceiving them."

Stalin went so far as to blisteringly denounce British Prime Minister Attlee for "lying" in saying that Russia had not demobilized after World War II. For his efforts in this direction, Stalin received a sharp slap by the British government with the charge that Russian armed forces now total 175 divisions, 23,000 tanks and 29,000 planes. With tongue in cheek, the British pointed out that figures don't lie.

Some western observers, noting Stalin's assertion that the U.N. was "burying its moral prestige and damning itself to disintegration," believed Russia may be preparing to quit the organization.

No one in his right mind could believe any of Stalin's statements and the left-handed assertion that Russia really wants peace. To the contrary, Stalin's statements and the American and British replies only point up the seriousness of the present world situation.

The statement should do much to bring about a concentrated effort on the part of the west for what now seems inevitable.

KOREA:

Reds Pull Back

United Nations troops in Korea regained the offensive after breaking the back of the Communist attack which saw the Chinese suffering an estimated 31,000 casualties.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's troops pushed forward in limited advances, but there were indications that Ridgway would not cross the 38th parallel in the immediate future.

There remain large unlocated Chinese elements north of the old political boundary line and the Chinese could bring down masses of men from further north.

Ground gains have assumed a secondary role in the Korean fighting. General Ridgway seems to be operating on the theory of hitting the Communists where the maximum number of casualties can be inflicted and retreating to established positions to plan the next move.

No one can foresee the end of the Korean war which has raged up and down the peninsula for eight months. And although the Chinese have suffered defeats in recent weeks there is no indication that they are seriously hurt.

TROOPS:

Marshall Tells Plans

Gen. George Marshall, secretary of defense, took much of the steam out of the "great debate" over the question of American military aid to Europe when he told congress that the U.S. planned to send 100,000 more men abroad. The number was much smaller than had been expected.

It seems fortunate that opponents of the administration's foreign policy finally forced General Marshall to reveal the exact number of men. It certainly provided the Soviet Union with a valuable bit of military information.

Official Washington circles reported that sharp debate preceded the decision to tell the size of the army planned for Europe. Both the defense and state departments were against the disclosure.

However, continued attacks on foreign military aid by influential senators, including Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, forced the decision. These attacks were continued even after Taft and members of the senate armed service committee were informed in secret of the plans.

General Marshall told the senators that for security reasons he spoke "reluctantly." His reluctance was understandable in that he knew and disapproved of giving aid and comfort to a possible enemy of the United States. It is too bad other prominent figures on the national scene did not feel the same way as General Marshall, Washington observers reported.

LABOR:

An Open Revolt

Angry labor leaders were in open revolt against the nation's mobilization program. It began when the wage stabilization board voted 6 to 3 to stabilize wages at a level generally 10 per cent above that of January 15, 1950. Three labor members quit the board.

But labor's complaint against the board's new formula for equalizing wages proved to be only a pretext. What they really had on their chests was a whole series of gripes against Charles E. Wilson, director of mobilization.

They contended that labor was not given a prominent place in policy-making, and that attempts were made to freeze wages while food prices and rents were still unsettled.

Many observers believed that the blowup was inevitable, that sooner or later someone would challenge the vast power bestowed upon Wilson and the "bull-through" manner in which he wielded that power.

It was the old story of big business and labor in open conflict. But in this instance it was the nation's mobilization program that suffered.

Also on the labor front, the brotherhood of railway trainmen unexpectedly pleaded guilty to contempt charges arising from "sick" strikes in the Washington yards and were fined $75,000.

Labor circles wondered to what extent the guilty plea—a union assuming responsibility for "wildcat" strikes—would effect other pending cases, and whether it would help control wildcat tactics in the future.

CONTROLS:

New Curbs Likely

The protests of the nation's housewives, labor and the average home towner may bring about new legislation soon to stabilize food prices.

Erie Johnston, economic-stabilization director, hinted that legislation will be requested to "equalize and stabilize" farm prices and industrial wages.

Critics of recent enacted wage-price controls contend that the law protecting farmers' standard of living—by the parity device—is making a mockery of the government's anti-inflation program.

On the other hand, farm spokesmen have countered with a charge that an attempt is being made to smear farmers and make them the goat in any federal move to roll back prices.

Johnston is on something of a spot, with the housewives and labor lined up on one side and the farm bloc on the other. He has expressed himself as believing the farmer is entitled to his parity. But by the same token, the laboring man is entitled to his parity, too, for as the cost of food goes up, the cost of living goes up.

Meanwhile, the government stopped on stiff new credit terms for nonresidential construction, amounting to 50 per cent down payments, in its battle against inflation.

The new order called for one-half down on construction of new stores, offices, hotels, banks, warehouses, garages, auto-servico stations, restaurants, theaters, clubs and "other new structures."

The same requirement applies to repair, enlargement, alteration, and reconstruction of existing commercial buildings if the cost of the improvement exceeds 15 per cent of the building's appraised value.

SPORTS:

Game-Fix Scandal

The sensational disclosure of basketball game-fixing involving three New York colleges and a number of prominent players had repercussions as far down as the home towns of America.

Basketball is the most popular high school and college sport in the nation. Year after year a greater number of people see basketball games—from cracker-box gymnasiums to Madison Square Garden—than witness any other sport.

It is apparent that game-fixing has not been confined to New York alone. A number of investigations which are just being launched will undoubtedly reveal bribery in many sections of the country.

High school basketball in the home towns of the nation does not draw national headlines, but there can be little doubt that there must have been numerous cases of attempted game-fixing on the high school level.

The scandal among the big schools, if nothing else, will bring about closer inspection of the game on the home town level. It may cause a clean-up that will again stress fair play and sportsmanship among the nation's youth.

CHINA:

An Inside Report

The first reliable information from within Communist China since that country's intervention in Korea was made public by Arthur Moore, a British newspaperman who visited Peking with the backing of the Indian ambassador.

Moore reported the large number of casualties in Korea was causing concern to Red China's leaders and that Manchurian hospital facilities had been unable to care for the wounded.

The war in Korea, although waged on a limited scale, is still somewhat of a surprise to the Chinese. Casualties are greater than expected and a major gasoline problem has developed.

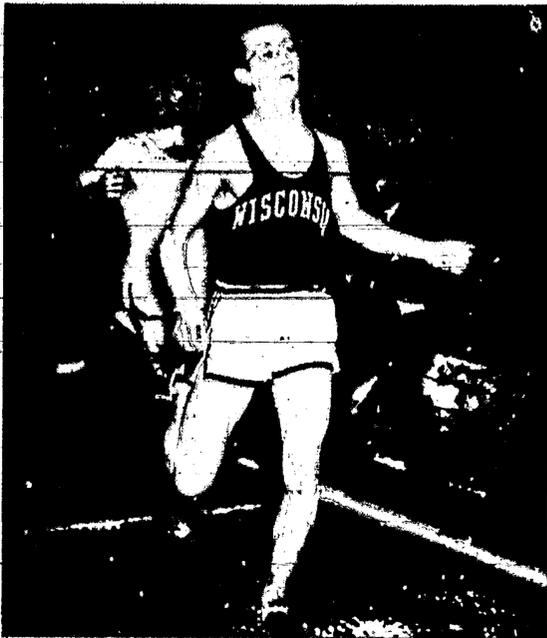

Off to Europe

In a supposedly secret departure, witnessed by some 25 reporters and 75 cameramen, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and his wife, Mamie, board the Queen Elizabeth. The general returned to Europe to resume his command of western defense forces.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Regional, State Training Centers Planned in Civil Defense Program

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on civil defense by Walter A. Sheard, Washington Correspondent.)

By WALTER A. SHEARD

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Authority in the line of command for the tremendous civil defense army needed in case of full scale war stems from the President, through Civil Defense Administrator Millard Caldwell, to the 48 state civil defense directors and down the line to the appointed officers in cities, towns and counties throughout the nation.

National defense against atomic, biological and chemical warfare rests upon thorough training to start in a civil defense staff college to be established for top civil defense planners and administrators. The college will serve as a source of all latest information. Regional technical training centers are also planned where this information will be disseminated in the civil defense training programs in the states and local communities. The technical centers will be staffed by thoroughly trained men and women in all phases of the work and will provide means for standardization of the technical and special training. Standardization is a prime factor for successful mutual aid and mobile support which require a force of uniformly trained civil defense workers.

Graduates of the federal technical training centers will train other civil defense workers and trainers within the states who, in turn, will train the local volunteers. Under the program, two kinds of training will be provided: general and specialized. General training will consist of instruction in basic subjects to include fundamental principles of organization and operation, basic first aid and improvised rescue operations.

Specialized training will give civil defense volunteers the detailed knowledge and skills to carry out their especially assigned jobs, including specialized health service courses against atomic, biological and chemical warfare. The American Red Cross, officials of the public health service and other organizations concerned with health services will conduct certain phases of specialized training such as first aid and nurses' aid training. Many medical officers of the military services, public health services, the veterans administration and other organizations have taken specialized courses in defenses against atomic warfare and these will be asked to assist in the program.

ALREADY, in the atomic warfare field, 148 physicians from 38 states have taken courses given by the atomic energy commission in cooperation with the national security resources board. Similar courses for nurses have been started. Other courses either federal, state or local, will be available for dentists, veterinarians and other professional and technical people working in health services. State health officials have taken courses in radiological monitoring which included many aspects of the civil defense program.

Similar training courses will be available for biological warfare against humans and animals, and chemical and biological warfare against crops. Courses in these subjects will have three prime aspects—detection, treatment of casualties, and methods of decontamination. Training will be available for nurses and home nurses, radiological monitors, auxiliary sanitary personnel and auxiliary laboratory workers.

For large segments of the general public, the major type of training will be in the category of first aid—what to do first in any of the fields of civil defense. The goal is 20,000,000 trained first-aiders in a 22-hour course which will also include training in special weapons defense and in procedures for treating minor illnesses in time of emergency when physicians will be overburdened with casualties.

Every state will operate under a uniform system of organization, equipment and procedure. Establishment of control stations in strategic areas, of first aid stations and the implementation of all necessary ambulance, hospitalization, fire fighting equipment and a score of other defense mechanisms will be taught. It is estimated that approximately 35 per cent of surviving casualties in an atomic bomb-burst would require transportation by litter to first-aid stations, hence the importance of first aid work. As an example, if there were 40,000 injured survivors, about 13,000 probably would have to be carried by litters. Another 27,000 would walk, or would be taken to first aid stations by other means. So the most important function is in first aid training, since even fire-fighters, rescue teams, police, engineering and other personnel, first to contact the injured, would be called upon for first aid to casualties.

So every individual should watch for announcement of establishment of regional training centers and schools for training volunteers. Don't wait, volunteer your services. In the meantime, thousands of pints of blood, both plasma and whole blood, must be obtained and stored. Here is a first and most duty which can be carried out now.

(The text of this series of civil defense articles will appear next week.)

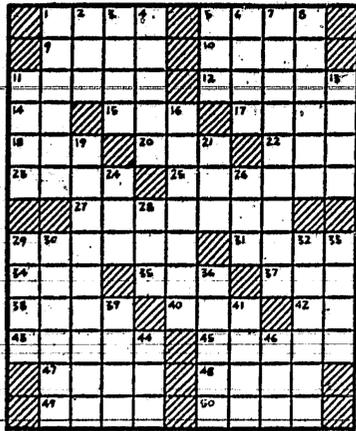

Margaret Sheridan, discovered five years ago by Howard Hawks has been studying hard all this time in preparation for a picture career. She makes her debut as the feminine lead in Hawks' "The Thing", for RKO.

Thomas Ritter's first starring film, "The Mating Season", has a fine cast, good direction, and a familiar story. Miss Ritter was better as a supporting actress. Gene Tierney, John Lund and Miriam Hopkins are excellent.

THE FICTION CORNER

A DULL FELLOW

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"IT WAS PROBABLY suicide," I said, looking around the cabin. "Why?" Capt. Rhodes asked. I nodded toward the walls. At least a half dozen photographs of Arthur Kimball hung there.

3-Minute Fiction

decorate his cabin on a two weeks cruise, must have been vain about other things. "You mean he'd probably suffered financial reverses or something, and was too proud to face the facts, so he shot himself?" "That's about it," I nodded, pleased that the captain should give so much consideration to my theory. A very dull fellow this Capt. Rhodes.

The captain looked down at the lifeless body of Arthur Kimball. He had apparently been sitting at his desk, writing. There was a bullet wound in his temple. An automatic was clutched in his fingers of his right hand. The captain looked at the pictures.

"I'm probably right, don't you think, Captain?" I said. "Captain Rhodes granted, 'No,' he said, 'I don't.' He turned abruptly and went out. Well, this only confirmed my ideas about the Captain's stupidity. To me the thing was dead open and shut. The first mate, a tall, rugged individual named Brooks, told me to go to my quarters and stay there until I was called.

Capt. Rhodes was prepared. As I sprang I landed in the arms of one of his men.

"IT WASN'T UNTIL evening that I must summoned me. I followed him down the corridor to Arthur Kimball's cabin. Captain Rhodes was there and several other men in uniform, and a strange man and woman. "That was a very logical theory you advanced," the captain said, looking at me. "But we've proved it to be dead wrong."

"Wrong?" I said. "Mr. Kimball was murdered!" I didn't say anything. The captain was not only a dull fellow, but now he was revealing a tendency toward dramatics. "An soon," went on the captain "as I decided that Mr. Kimball was murdered, I began to look for someone who knew him before he called. This wasn't as easy as it sounds. Kimball was traveling alone. Still, I figured that someone had engaged passage on the same boat with the idea of murdering him. That someone, I reasoned, would have taken a cabin as near to his as possible. As we began inquiring into the careers of all the cabin occupants along this corridor. The only two people whom we discovered who might have known Kimball were Mr. and Mrs. John Cole, these people here." The captain glanced toward the strange couple.

"But," he continued, "they have conclusively proven that they were in the main salon at the time the murder was committed." "How did they know when the murder was committed?" I asked, importantly. "I told them," Capt. Rhodes said. "As I mentioned my head, and presently I discovered there was only one other person on board who knew Kimball. I discovered that this man had suffered financial losses through Kimball's activities. "And who?" I asked quietly, "is this man?"

"You," said Capt. Rhodes. "It was a remote possibility, and I had not believed it would occur, but nevertheless I was prepared. That's why the uniformed men were present. One of them had died in behind me, and as I sprang I landed in his arms. The captain granted, "if," he remarked dryly, "you ever have occasion to plan another murder, consider the details." He pointed to one of the pictures of Arthur Kimball. It was the picture in which Kimball was seated at his desk writing. "Note," said the captain, "that Mr. Kimball is holding his pen in his left hand, as he is the riding crop and polo mallet in the other pictures. He must have been left handed, yet you placed the murder gun in his right hand." A dull fellow, the captain.

Mason-Dixon Line Is Still There; Markers Worn

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—The state of Maryland has just finished a survey of the Mason-Dixon line and it's still there—or most of it anyway. It was the first such survey since the line was marked out by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon between 1763 and 1767. The southern boundary of Delaware, surveyed by a colonial commission in 1780, also was rechecked for the first time.

William H. Bayliff of the Maryland board of natural resources reported the monuments marking the boundaries are remarkably intact. Many of the limestone monuments imported from England have deteriorated to such an extent that they now look like ordinary slabs of stone.

Some Covered With Brash

About five feet high and a foot in width, the stones were set up every mile of the Mason-Dixon line and at five-mile intervals on the older colonial boundary. Some have been covered with underbrush or stolen; some have fallen or been thrown into lakes.

The 200-mile east-west boundary between Maryland and Pennsylvania seems to be in the best condition. New markers have been added to this line which was checked at the turn of the century. Of the original 216 monuments all but two have been accounted for.

The last 25 miles of the Mason-Dixon line which separates Pennsylvania and West Virginia has not been checked. Maryland paid Mason and Dixon for surveying the stretch in mistaken belief it bordered on its territory line.

Mason and Dixon stopped at Dunkard creek, the terminal point, because of trouble with Indian guides and workers. According to a journal kept by the two men, their Indians "would not proceed a step further" after encountering a war party of the Shawnee and Delaware tribes.

The north-south division between Delaware and Maryland should have 95 markers. Some of these reportedly were lost as far back as 1859.

The southern tip of Delaware on the eastern shore of the Chesapeake bay was pegged out at five mile intervals. Although seven monuments should have been erected, only six were set up. The colonial surveyors found the exact center of the border fell in the Pocomoke river. They were too perfectionist to put the center stone up on one or the other of the banks.

The new surveys were made by a Johns Hopkins student who received his draft notice just after completing the long trek, and an optometrist who, according to Bayliff, "grows around the border as a hobby."

Military Strut Is Harmful To Back, Texas Doctor Says

CHICAGO, Ill.—A Texas surgeon advises a slight slump when you sit and disdain "that old military strut" if you want to avoid low back pains.

Declaring that approximately 60 per cent of adults suffer low back pain, Dr. Paul Williams of Dallas said that most of it was due to "erroneous ideas about what constitutes correct posture."

He said that the military strut habit tended to accentuate a "hollow in the back." Certain joints and shock absorbing cushions in the lower back can be adversely affected unless we do everything possible to keep that "hollow" at a minimum.

He advises sitting slightly slumped, so your spine will describe a moderate curve instead of being somewhat S shaped. Sit in a low chair, so your knees are higher than your hips.

As for walking, walk somewhat as you would if you were climbing a hill. Never "lead with your belly." And for sleeping, curl yourself up either on the side or on the back with the knees propped up. Never sleep on your tummy unless you place a pillow under it.

Himalayan Tribes Draw Or Stone Lepers to Death

NEW DELHI—According to reports from India some Himalayan tribes have a quick way of disposing of serious leprosy cases—by drowning or stinging to death the patients.

In the Dun district, no sympathy is felt for lepers, who are believed to suffer for their sins of former births. The people also believe that if the leper sacrifices himself by drowning in the sacred Juma river the rest of the family become immune.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODEY

Venerable Bird

The grouse has been an inhabitant of this continent for a mighty long time. Bones have been found in caves on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts that date back to the Pleistocene period, some 25,000 years ago. Old campfires reveal that the grouse was an Indian delicacy. And even far back of that, King Henry VIII in 1531 put out a royal order concerning the "grows" and the grouse tail was once popular in France as a fan. In fact, the word grouse, itself, comes from the French and means "spotted bird."

While the bird is most plentiful in East Tennessee, it is now moving westward. Quite a few birds were noted last year in several different areas of the Cumberland mountains. The species once blanketed Tennessee and Audubon in 1831 reported birds almost as far south as Natchez, Miss.

Like its smaller cousin, the bobwhite quail, the grouse wasn't overly-plentiful before the coming of the white man. The "brown bombshell" seems dense undergrowth and thrives only in areas near open clearings. The white man, of course, broke up the timberland into ideal grouse cover and the bird became plentiful.

The grouse prefers second-growth timberland areas that include some conifers, used for protection against the elements. Oddly enough, the bird was once barred from markets in Philadelphia because, among its items of diet, was the poisonous laurel. Too, it can eat poison ivy berries without suffering any ill effects.

It's A Tonic

The question that never fails to be shocking is, "Why go fishing, when I can buy my fish at the market?"

To dyed-in-the-wool fishermen this question may seem foolish; however, the psychology underlying the urge to go fishing makes this indeed an important question.

We moderns, here in America anyway, are reasonably sure there will be a next meal—that there will be meat on the table. Yet fishing is more important now than it was in pioneer days. The urgency still has to do with the bodily well-being, but the organ affected is no longer the stomach; it's the mind.

Doctors tell us that mental disturbances, heart ailments and gastric disorders are on the increase. Our bodies seem ill-equipped for the modern tempo of living. And with the current world unrest and our entry into the atomic age we cannot expect that life will be more simple or more secure in the near future. Relaxation is extremely important today—it may become more significant as time goes on.

The man... waiting for that 3-pound crappie to bite has for the time forgotten his business worries. He is not like the man who follows the small white ball around swinging frantically at it with a special bent steel rod. He does not pull out a card and write down the number of casts it took to snag the bass he has just landed, then cuss...

Return Those Cards!

After the past season, many duck hunters received franked return postcards from the regional offices of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. This marks a new experiment to obtain more accurate information on the waterfowl harvest in which the individual sportsman holds the key, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

The card simply asks for the number of days the hunter was afield, the number of ducks, geese, and coots bagged, and the state in which hunting was done. Far better returns are expected from this method than from the report cards published in the magazines and newspapers in past years. Each of the present card recipients has been contacted in the field by a federal game management agent, and the new procedure requires even less effort. It is, however, a simple and human matter to delay filling out a report of this kind and then to forget it completely. Simple though the information may seem, the data compiled from the returns is extremely important to those entrusted with the management of the waterfowl.

If you received a card, take the few seconds needed to fill in the blanks and mail it. You will help yourself to better hunting if you do.

Keeping Records

Keeping records of your fishing trips—something few fishermen do—will provide much valuable information for the future. Any sort of notebook will serve the purpose, and it would be better if it is small enough to go in your tackle box. With it there, you'll probably take the time to note important data which you might not do after getting home and storing your gear away. It is well to record weather, direction of the wind.

Publicity of Punishment Will Halt Delinquency

By Wright A. Patterson

YOUTH DELINQUENCY is growing and spreading rather than abating in the cities, considerable sections are over run with youth gangs who terrorize the public by committing many depredations, up to and including murder. But youthful delinquency and the organization and operation of gangs is no longer only a city problem. It has spread to the towns and villages.

My home town is a rural community. In it, the automobile owners over a considerable period suffered the loss of auto parts, spare tires, hub caps, hood caps and other things of value that could be easily detached. These thefts were traced to a gang of 13 high school boys, and the police of the county arrested them. Though some of them admitted the thefts, none was locked up to await trial. Instead the names and addresses of the boys were taken, and also the names of their parents. They were given instructions to appear at the juvenile court, accompanied by their parents, the following day.

The boys and their parents were present, and the police presented convincing evidence to which no rebuttal was offered. After sentencing each of the boys to one year in prison, the court listened to a plea for clemency made by the parents. The judge suspended the sentences, placing each boy under the parole of his parents for the one year period, with the provision the boy must continue to attend school until graduation and must not be allowed outside of the home after six o'clock each evening, for the one year period, with the provision that any violation of that parole would be construed by the court as making the parents an accessory before the fact, subjecting the parents to conviction and sentence under such a charge.

The liberal publicizing of that case, including names and addresses of the 13 boys, and the sentence of the court caused both the boys and their parents to be ostracized in school and in the community, but failure to attend school meant going to prison. That was a wise decision on the part of that judge. It not only put the fear of the law into these 13 boys and their parents, but it had similar effect on other boys with criminal and gang tendencies and on their parents. The one lesson has had a long way toward curbing youth delinquency in my home town. It would not have been effective without the publicity given by the newspapers.

A committee of the senate that keeps its eye on the expenditures of the operations of the federal government, asked the 26 departments and agencies for the effect of the legislation that activated the recommendations of the Hoover commission. Of the 26 departments and agencies which received that request, 23 complied. Each of the 23 reported increased efficiency, better service for the people, and, in practically all cases, a reduced cost of operation, ranging from a few thousands into the millions.

The one not reporting was that of defense. General Marshall merely acknowledging receipt of the request from Senator John L. McClellan, chairman of the committee. But he gave no estimate of actual or expected savings, though it was expected the legislation would reduce the cost of operation in his department by from three to four billion dollars a year.

The committee is instituting an investigation of the department of defense to determine for itself what result has been accomplished. It has full authority to make such an investigation. General Marshall has seemingly resented any interference on the part of congress with the operations of his department and has shown no interest in a reduction in cost.

He has on his department payroll a larger army of employees than the number of men fighting in Korea. The Senate investigation may cost his department an appropriation to pay the army of civilians. It would do a welcome job if it did. Senator McClellan, Democrat of Arkansas, is a real fighter for economies. General Marshall will discover that congress, including the senate, is top brass in the armed services.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

Fear Causes Forgetfulness

By Lawrence Gould

Is forgetfulness based on fear?

Answer: Very often, directly or indirectly. You may forget an appointment with the dentist because you're afraid that he will hurt you, or forget childish experiences because they are too frightening to recall.

talent he may have. "The time to provide music lessons is when the child asks for them, or responds to your suggestion with pleasure."

May we be "swamped with incompetents"?

Answer: That is a probability which we must face, says Dr. Oscar J. Kaplan, California psychiatrist. Already one-third of the patients admitted to mental hospitals are "insane" only from old age, and the proportion may be doubled within the next thirty years.

Should you "make" a child take music lessons?

Answer: Not if you expect him to win success as a musician, or even find pleasure in music, writes Joan Barlow. "Music is meant to be enjoyed, and long hours of compulsory practice before a child's musical sense has been developed tend to destroy any natural taste or

WOMAN'S WORLD

Properly Framed Pictures Will Liven Any Livingroom

By Erta Haley

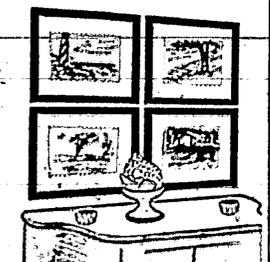

PICTURES can add more to your rooms than you've probably ever dreamed, especially when they are adroitly hung and cleverly framed. The pictures themselves do not need to be expensive originals, if these are out of reach, but they should be properly used for best effect.

Dull rooms look smart and colorless settings take on new brightness if the walls are properly adorned with pictures. These may be something you've clipped from greeting cards, calendars, papers or magazines. They may be inexpensive reproductions which are, however, true to the original.

Good framing and background can dramatize even the inexpensive picture and make it an asset in your room. Clever groupings of pictures can become the center of attention in many a room, especially if you use some of the time-tried formulas for hanging them properly.

Those who like a lot of pictures should be careful to group and place them in accordance with good decorating precepts. Pictures do not necessarily have to be of one type, but their framing and matting should bring them together enough to place them in a grouping for the sake of effectiveness.

Making unlike pictures somewhat alike can frequently be done at home with good matting and fram-log. When you do the job yourself, do it with the care and attention of a professional, and your pictures will look that much the better for it.

Relate Pictures To Decorative Style

To observe the rules of balance and unity, use traditional pictures in the same type rooms. Victorian bouquets, Early American historical scenes and Colonial portraits belong in rooms of these different periods.

Modern paintings and prints are best in rooms of the current period, while floral and fruit prints, seascapes, family portraits, black-and-white sketches are considered neutral and may be used in any period type of rooms.

For the neutral types, you may choose framing that goes with a certain period. If you want to keep all furnishings in harmony, a very decorative gilt frame on a family portrait might be used in one of the decorative French period rooms for unity, while in a modern home the same picture could be framed in simple light wood or ebony type to be in keeping.

If your home is a combination of traditional and modern, then some pictures of either type may be used, provided they're in good taste.

Use Pictures in Harmony With Wall Space

Everyone of us has seen pictures

Allover Tucking

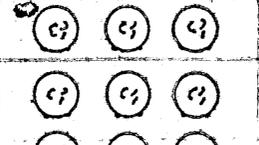

This smart casual dress illustrates some important fashion trends of the season with its allover, stitched tucking on navy silk tissue faille crepe. used in disproportion to the wall space available, and has had an easy feeling about the result. No matter how good the picture, how nice the framing, the effect is not suitable if the wall space is not there.

Avoid too large pictures in small rooms. If you have no small ones, it's better to eliminate them entirely.

As a general rule, ornate wall-papers which you may have used to make a large room look less its size do not generally take pictures as this would give too much diverse pattern and destroy unity. Small-patterned papers may sometimes be used with very simple prints and frames, if the effect is not too confusing.

For pictures and plates.

ever piece is adjoining or part of this particular group.

Large sofas take the large pictures, while a good-sized console or mantel may take some of the other large prints.

If you do not have large enough pictures for the large pieces, then plan to use several small ones or one large one with several small ones around it. Another possibility is to use two medium sized ones with one set above the other.

Good effect can be achieved with four related prints framed in a single large frame. This, too, will give you one large picture.

Give Small Prints Character, Importance Small pictures placed on a large wall by themselves will lose all importance. If you can get together several, with some relation to each other, frame them alike with some attractive matting which picks up a color from the room furnishings, they'll be important.

Let the over-all form of hanging small pictures be symmetrical for a pleasing effect. It's best never to hang them step fashion unless they're going to be used up a stairway wall.

Many small pictures can be made to appear larger if they have wide matting on them. Let's say you have four or six small prints and want them over a large sofa. Wide matting in a deep or bright color, with good frames, such a group will have more interest and character than a single large picture.

It's a good idea, with several small pictures, to use a rectangular grouping which suits the furniture above which they're placed. If you have a plaid couch covering, too, the rectangular grouping would be in keeping.

Use Common Sense In Hanging Pictures

To be seen to best advantage, pictures are hung at eye level for the average person, if there are several pictures in the group, the bottom lines of all pictures should, of course, be at the same level.

Let's take, for example, the chest or sofa that is quite low. Is it then wise to hang the picture at eye level? No, common sense as well as unity and balance dictate that this picture or grouping would look best hung low enough on the wall to become almost a unit with couch or chest.

The above frequently happens in a chest in the hall or even a room. The better the picture is tied to the chest, the more dramatic the effect. If you have taken the colors for the room from such a picture, use it close above the chest, and try to get one or two accessories to place on the chest. These accessories should have lighter or darker color of the same hue as that in the picture.

Centering a picture on the wall is done for pleasing and restful feeling. However, if you have a massive arrangement of plants or a lamp on one side of the wall, the large print or group of small ones can be slightly off center to balance the mass properly.

Pictures will stay hung straight if they are fastened with wire run through a small screw eye at each side of the frame. They should be flat against the wall, with no wires showing in a "U" above the frame.

Decorative Plates Substitute for Prints

Those who have decorative plates may prefer to hang them on the wall in place of pictures. It's possible to use them in much the same way, and to get as interesting effects from them as from pictures.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Lost Confidence and Illusions

"HOW CAN WE HELP our daughter?" writes Lucy Cotton, from Duluth. "Fay is 24, our only child, but we had my niece, whom I will call Meg and Emily, living with us for many years, Emily married at 10, three years ago, and had a baby son. Meg worked in an insurance office and was married last year."

"Neither girl is actually as pretty as our Fay, but both are attractive, confident and popular. Of their small estates only a few hundreds are left, but Fay will inherit enough from us and her grandparents to be financially independent. However, both Harry and I thought that she should find occupation, too. She completed a course as a kindergarten, but did not care for the work; later she and a friend opened a tea and gift shop, in which her interest did not last long. The girls cold out, and Fay went in seriously for amateur theatricals, having real talent in character and comic parts. She also worked hard as property woman and prompter, and we hoped she was really started."

"Imaginary" Infatuations "However, a year ago, she began to give unmistakable signs of nervous disorder. She shut herself away from us, sometimes was absolutely silent and moody, sometimes talked fast in what a psychologist later called 'delusion.' (We took her to our best mental man, who did help, and papers her engagement to a man I am convinced never had the slightest romantic feeling for her. He is a business associate of her father's which makes it the more embarrassing. Reporters telephoned him, and he went to see Harry, and we were saved publicly, at least, but Fay took the matter very lightly, laughing it off by saying that apparently the man had changed his mind. Whom your fastidious daughter had the honor to refuse! she will say when any man's name is in the paper; whether he is engaged, or going to the front, or has been given some honor or promotion.

"My husband and I can't bear to see her going on into middle-age like this. When she was a small girl she did romance about things; we expected her to outgrow it. But it seems she never has. How can we help her?"

Since she is still very young, and since she has some property to give her a sense of security, I would, in her case, spike her guns in advance. You and her father love her enough to do this subtly and tenderly. Don't harp on it. But remind her often that you see through it.

Tell her that you and her friends know that she wants to marry, that it is quite natural, but that only by occupying herself in some hospital or Red Cross or charity work—so terribly needed now on all sides—can she learn to forget herself, distinguish truth from fable, and make real friends among the sort of men who interest her.

Perhaps your strongest argument will be that if she decides to grow up now she can make a good life for herself, but that in 10 years she will be confirmed as the limping, flirtatious old maid.

In self-protection she has worked up a flock of romances for herself, and childishly exults in them, unconscious of the fact that these fables don't make sense.

Just How Old Is Oldest Turtle?

News Dispatches Hint Some Last 1,000 Years

Two giant sea turtles, one recently captured in Australia's Tasman Sea and the other taken in Korean waters 13 months ago, were centenarians when the Battle of Hastings was fought in 1066—according to the first news dispatches telling about each.

The cabled reports blithely ventured in each case that 1,000 years would be a fair estimate of the captive's age. If so, they were hatched and swimming before Leif Ericson was born. How's that again? The turtle, scientists agree, has roamed the earth's lands and seas in virtually unchanged form for 200,000,000 years. It saw dinosaurs come and go, and witnessed the development of mankind.

Nor do scholars dispute the fact that the turtle is the longest living backboneed creature on earth today. Uniformly, however, the men who know turtles best look askance at the idea that any of the stolid reptiles alive today antedate, say, the Spanish Armada (1588), or even the voyage of the Mayflower (1620).

The Fight Against Tuberculosis

By Dr. James W. Barton

LESS THAN 50 YEARS AGO, physicians and the public generally looked upon tuberculosis of the lungs as inevitably fatal within months or at most a few years. Today, it is known that tuberculosis need not be always fatal, thanks to the great work of the National Tuberculosis Association, which, by research, placing patients in special hospitals with fresh air and good food and, latterly by surgical methods in which whole lobes of the affected lung or lungs are removed, has enabled many formerly doomed individuals to return to home and work.

or not, in the age group from 15 to 34," his report states. Despite the apparently discouraging figures, Dr. Perkins tells us that tuberculosis, a communicable disease, is also a preventable disease.

Some of the immediate and outstanding requirements to fight tuberculosis are: (a) further medical advances in research and education of the public, particularly parents; (b) more local health units to serve the general health needs of all the people; (c) more widespread efforts to find people with tuberculosis while the disease is incipient.

While the day is expected when tuberculosis will be conquered, eternal vigilance will always be necessary. Because it has been amply proven that tuberculosis can be cured and preventive measures can successfully overcome the disease, Dr. Perkins believes that in the very near future all countries will enforce the preventive methods that will save the lives of thousands of the young and the middle-aged—our most productive people.

HEALTH NOTES

One out of every five adults has high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries.

The heart is a hollow muscular organ, about the size of a grapefruit, but infinitely tougher.

Research has not yet discovered the cause of high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries.

The heart is rated as only 1/240th horsepower.

High blood pressure strikes most commonly during the high productive years of middle life.

The reason why the heart can last so long is that, unlike the whole person, it relaxes as often as it works.

Nobody's Money Is Classed 4-F

By H. I. Phillips

ONE FEATURE in Secretary Snyder's new tax bill is a 20 per cent green-fee tax for golfers. This is the first proposal for a tax on walking, crabbing, muttering and adding INCORRECTLY! Your troubles as a golfer may soon be due to the fact Truman and Snyder are GRIPPING the club too hard.

high as 1990. That used to buy a bus and allow for extras. Another three or four-cents hike seems on gas. The day is at hand when the AUTO will have to take the MAN in for repairs and adjustments.

Nothing is certain but death, bigger tax bills and a vacuum cleaner in every wallet. This time Washington is not only drafting money but taking it without a physical. Your dollar is going to war no matter what shape it is in. Mr. Snyder's new proposals call for a pickup and delivery service. The government gets you, cleans you, presses you and delivers you back in a federal automatic dryer.

"Happy motoring!" (When you say that, smile!) The dashboard panel of tomorrow may include an aspirin ejector, a pain killer, a blank check printing press, a stiff drink mixer, direct radio communication with your fiscal agent, a speedometer to tell how fast your bankroll is going and an automatic gauge to indicate when an OWNER has run down and needs recharging. Take off that windshield wiper! There's nothing ahead but the Democrats anyhow.

If you smoke, drink, chew, wash, shave, listen to Howdy Doodly, follow Uncle Millie, own an auto, need an icebox, carry a watch, play golf or take a glass of beer before going to bed this one will take you for plenty. "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man's brow," Roosevelt said 20 years ago. That was covering minimum anatomical territory. You can't get enough from a brow to pay one installment today.

It is the new tax on golfing that is the big surprise. It's really a "tee" tax. Truman thinks only the Republicans play golf. In our book a golfer already pays plenty. Look at the liquor tax he becomes liable for before he gets out of the locker room! There's a tax when he phones the wife he won't be home for dinner. And after he gets home there's a fight that can only be settled via a milk coat, tax or no tax.

Mr. Snyder's latest ideas include a tax of 20 per cent on new automobiles. This means putting the bumpers on the swags instead of the auto. The tax on a new sedan can be as advised care, love and time as the cure.) From what she told him he gathered that jealousy of her cousin, perhaps unconscious, was partly the cause.

"Fay seemed better, and for a few months was more like her old self. But now there is a new phase, infinitely disturbing to me. It began, I see now, when she told me last summer that her psychologist was not only in love with her, but had made improper advances. As he is a married man of 50, with three sons, I was at first shocked, and then incredulous. I persuaded my husband to talk her into giving up treatments from this man, which she did.

"To make the rest of the story short, Fay now believes, of at least asserts, that at least half the men she meets are infatuated with her. Her cousins' husbands, their male relatives, our clergymen, even the postman and grocer are all by turns supposedly under her sway, and she relates her affairs with these men with a relish that makes my heart ache with pity and shame.

"How Can We Help Her?" "Yesterday she announced to the

By What Authority?

Lesson for March 11, 1951

Dr. Foreman

IS IT right or wrong? This is a fair question always. But there is another question to go with it. Who is to say whether it is right or wrong? Who is the authority? "Authority" means more than "orders." It means the final judge—the court of last appeal.

Neither You nor the Crowd SOME SAY: Nobody can tell me what to do; I do as I please. There is no authority I am bound to recognize. Such a person has an authority, all the same: himself. For him, "what I want" and "what I like" are the only reasons for anything and all the reasons he wants.

Now aside from the fact that such people are a nuisance to all concerned, and the fact that they can't even pretend to be Christians, this point of view won't work. The person who acts as his own authority runs into others who take themselves as their authority, and the result is the awful mess called anarchy. So all sensible people do recognize some authority outside themselves. They want approval from outside, from above.

But whose approval do they want? Under whose jurisdiction, as lawyers would say, do they live? Some recognize only that vast and vague authority known as "Everybody." If everybody does it, it must be right. If nobody does it, it's bound to be wrong.

Well, this is not necessarily so. Fifty million Frenchmen can be wrong, or 150 million Americans for that matter. You can't take a vote and decide what's right and what's wrong by a simple count of Ayes and Noes. Neither you alone, nor a crowd no matter how big, can be the final Authority on Life.

Calendar, Code, Conscience ANOTHER proposed authority, be- lieves it or not, is the calendar. Some people will not read a book or see a show or wear a dress or listen to music that isn't up to the minute. If it's "dated" it's dead, unless the date is today.

That is silly, on the face of it. But there are other more respectable authorities which are still not THE Authority. One of these is the Law. If it's legal it's right, say some people, and it can't be right unless it's legal.

There is something true in this, of course. We should by all means obey the laws, and also see that good laws are made and bad ones repealed. But law is not the final authority on right and wrong. Law-makers can make mistakes. What is a good law at one time may be a bad law under other circumstances.

The best laws can never catch up with the morals of the best people. Still other people take as their authority conscience, meaning their own conscience. This is not quite the same as taking your own wishes or pleasure for your guide. Your conscience may lay unworkable burdens on you. But while every one should of course follow his conscience, still anybody's conscience can be asleep or mistaken.

Some of the worst crimes in history have been committed by some of the most conscientious people.

God's Last Word WHAT, THEN, is the highest authority for the Christian? Nothing and no one less than Jesus Christ himself. As we were thinking a few weeks ago, the very word "Christ" is a symbol of authority at the highest level.

In Jesus' day there were two supreme symbols of God: the Law and the Temple. Jesus not only assumed superiority to the Law, but (as our Lesson reminds us) of the Temple itself, though he was no priest and had no ecclesiastical position whatever. If there is a difference between Christian and non-Christian today, it is not that Jesus is the authority for one and not for the other; rather it is that the non-Christian refuses to recognize what is the fact: that for us and for all men, Jesus Christ is God's "last word" to mankind.

And if some say that the law of love is the supreme authority, is there any real difference between the spirit of Jesus and the law of love? For he is God's love incarnate.

Brucellosis Is Danger in Work

ALTHOUGH FARMERS are in constant danger of getting brucellosis from cattle and swine veterinarians and packinghouse workers run an even greater risk according to a report in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The report, made after a joint survey by the U.S. public health service and the Indiana state board of health, declared that brucellosis can be regarded as an occupational hazard of persons whose work brings them into contact with infected animals.

Through use of a blood test, it can be determined if a person has been exposed to brucellosis.

Tests showed that as many as 25 per cent of one group of veterinarians either had had the disease or had been exposed to it. The tests were made during a three-year period on more than 600 veterinarians.

Considerable numbers of packinghouse employees also showed exposure to the disease. Numbers of reactors to the test were highest on jobs requiring frequent contact with infected animals—with group percentages running as high as 33 per cent.

Employees of a rendering plant also showed a high incidence of exposure, with some 27 per cent giving positive readings on the blood test.

When groups of farm workers were tested, slightly less than four per cent of the men reacted to the test and less than two per cent of the women.
