Village Offered $4,600 For Gas System

An offer of $4,600 for the Carrizozo gas system was made to the village council at Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting by Joseph Hawkins, Ruidoso, Sacto Bros. distributor. Hawkins reported it would take approximately $5,500 to repair and improve the present system. The offer is subject to several technicalities, including approval of bondholders, availability of adequate insurance, approval of Public Service Commission and agreement on franchise. Hawkins was accompanied by his partner, Leo Pagle.

In addition to disposition of routine business, Carrizozo representatives on the local hospital board were reappointed. These men are Dr. J. P. Turner and Mayor Vernon Petty.

It was also disclosed the contract between Clifton B. Zumbalt and the village of Carrizozo for the sale of butane and propane gas had been terminated by mutual agreement effective the first of this year.

Progress Reported In Lincoln County Rural Telephone Meetings

By DAN STORM

The Lincoln County rural telephone projects made a very encouraging beginning Monday, Jan. 7, in the opinion of Paul Frost, principal speaker at meetings held in the Capitan City Hall and the Hondo High School.

Approximately 50 persons were present at the Hondo meeting and the Capitan conference drew 20 or more from the areas surrounding Lincoln and Capitan.

Frost was especially encouraged by the number of applications signed at the meetings. Frost stated "With this kind of response, a community has everything in its favor toward receiving first class telephone service, under the Rural Telephone Administration." The speaker added every person in the area who needs telephone service should sign an application. In late January or early February he will go to Washington, D. C. to present the applications to the RTA.

At both meetings, Bryan Runyan, Penasco, reviewed the progress of the cooperative, stating RTA regulations have been revised to encourage telephone cooperatives. He added that RTA was organized for the purpose of bringing telephone service to rural people throughout the country who otherwise would not have it. Runyan also said New Mexico has a very small percentage of rural homes with telephones.

Runyan pointed out that the farmer and rancher without telephone service are the ones who really need it and the most isolated homes are in dire need of service.

He explained telephone companies in the nation are cooperating wholeheartedly with the RTA program.

Wilbur Coe, in introducing the speakers and board members, expressed appreciation to Eermin Montes, superintendent of the Hondo High School, for granting use of the school.

Among those who have a supply of application blanks are Grady Eldridge, Capitan Mountains; Mr. Peters, Nogal; Arvel Runnels, Bonito-Alto area; Mrs. Leota Pfingston, Nogal Mesa; LeRoy McKnight, Capitan; Edward Penfield and Red Ramey, Lincoln; Mill Mable, R. C. Nunez, Charles Fuller, Picacho; Mrs. Ed Nelson, Tinnie; Shelton Taylor, Ben Sanchez and Tom Babers, San Patricio; R. Douglas, Hondo; W. F. Coe and Daniel Storm, Glencoe and Green Tree.

Larry Stockton, local high school principal, reported a film strip, "How Strong Is Russia?" will be shown following the business session. The picture, both timely and of current interest, will also demonstrate the trend of visual education employed in today's schools.

Councils on parents present will be taken for the monthly room awards.

Safety Meeting

Southern Pacific Company's monthly safety meeting scheduled for Thursday, January 10, at the Odd Fellows Hall, Carrizozo, included the showing of a film embracing both current and safety topics of interest.

"Red Heads" To Tangle With Town Team

Fans should have a real treat Tuesday night, Jan. 15, when the local town basketball quintet meets the famous All-American Red Heads, all women team, at the high school gymnasium about 7:30. The avowed purpose of C. M. (Ole) Olson's all-girl basketball cagers is to please the fans. Their zany antics and superb basketball skills make them a top notch drawing card. A world champion professional girls' team, its efforts for the past 11 years have been confined to opposing big strong men.

The idea for the female team started back in Casaville, Mo., in 1936, just after Olson had completed 3,000 professional games with his "Terrible Swedes." Looking around for an association that would keep him in touch with the game even though his playing days were over, he decided an all-girl team playing against only men's teams might be a hit. His wife contributed the name "Red Heads" as well as the hair dye solution. Olson added the prefix "All-American" and after careful screening the team began to take shape.

The present group of players came up from the farm club owned by Connie Mack Olson Jr. and its record last year betters the showing of any previous team. In six months of one-night stands, they travel about 40,000 miles and wear their colorful two-piece warm-up suits for comfort and advertising. As much "at home" before 15,000 persons as 500, they have never been known to miss a basket because of a wolf-whistle.

Orwell Moore, a native of Arkansas, coach and road manager for the Red Heads, is married to "Butch" Moore, a member of the team. The coach explains their six months season is from November to May and that the members play hard, give the public a good show, but the schedule is too rugged for them to win all the games and they don't try.

The appearance of the Red Heads in Carrizozo on Jan. 15 is sponsored by the local Lions Club.

Carrizozo Rainbow Hold Installation

Carrizozo Rainbow Assembly No. 7 held their installation of officers for the current year Tuesday night at Masonic Temple. Mrs. Laura Jones presented several vocal selections during the ceremony.

Carrizozo Wins Over Magdalena After Losing To Socorro

The Carrizozo High School basketball quintet edged out Magdalena Saturday night, 41-40, in a hard fought overtime tilt.

Leading 19 to 16 at the half period, the visitors were trailing by one point at the end of the third quarter. The final period saw them still tagging the Zozoltes until the final gun when John Sherman sank a free throw to tie the score 37-37 and send the players into an overtime period. Gerald King dropped a field goal into the net during the last minutes of play to give the local team a one-point margin.

Sherman was high for Magdalena with 15 points while his teammate, Robert Baca, was next with 11. High point men for the Grizzlies were Jerry Kennedy with nine markers and Eddie Holguin, Henry Vega and Gerald King tallying eight points each. The visitors netted eight out of 19 throws and drew nine fouls. The Zozoltes were tagged with 19 fouls and made three out of eight free tosses.

Friday night's game with Socorro there was lost by the narrow margin 48-42. The first game after the Christmas vacation, the local squad had only three days' practice. Playing a hard battle in the first half, the Grizzlies led during most of the first 30 minutes, only to lose their stride in the third quarter and let Socorro take the lead. Gaining seven points by the close of the third period, the neighbor team swept through the final period of play which saw it mark up another seven tallies for the winning score.

The B team lost out to Socorro second quintet 39-29 after holding a four-point lead during the first quarter.

The Carrizozo team travels to Cloudcroft (conference team) tonight (Friday) and the following night will meet the Dexter cagers here.

Local fans are urged to be on hand and show the team its hometown is rooting for it.

Safety Films Shown By Lincoln Co. Theaters

State Patrolman Carlos Salas, Carrizozo, said this week Lincoln County theaters were showing a safety film in conjunction with the state and national drive to cut the toll of traffic accidents.

The Lyric Theater, Carrizozo, scheduled its showing for Tuesday through Thursday of this week, following which the film goes to Ruidoso for exhibition there.

Salas also reported that after this week penalties will be imposed upon New Mexico owners of vehicles without the proper brake and light stickers. Violators, he said, are subject to prosecution.

Pictures of past traffic accidents which have taken a toll of human life are on display at Ortiz Brothers station as a warning and reminder of the importance of observing safety rules when driving.

Drake Seeks Reelection To State Legislature

L. S. (Heavy) Drake, Ruidoso, announced this week he will be a candidate for re-election as state representative from Lincoln County. He is now serving his first term in that office.

In making the announcement, Drake stated he will run on his record as representative during this past year, and that he believes if he is elected again he can do more for Lincoln County during the next term of office. He added he was a "freshman" during the last session of Legislature, but that he now has more contacts in Santa Fe and knows his way around. The candidacy of Drake, a Republican, is subject to the primary in May.

Commissioners Back Wasteful Purchasing Policies Of Moore

The Lincoln County Board of Commissioners in regular meeting on Jan. 7 endorsed the policy of the county purchasing agent, who is also the county clerk, in buying certain county supplies out of the county at considerable more money than it would have cost had they been purchased at home. Although they refused to take an official vote, when asked individually while in session, they said "we agreed" to take a united stand in all county matters and "appreciate the cooperation and efficiency" of the county clerk.

Bob Means Heads Local Scrap Metal Drive

Bob Means has been appointed chairman of the Carrizozo scrap mobilization committee, it was announced this week by Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, regional chairman. Means will be in charge of the campaign to get iron and steel scrap, in the form of obsolete and broken machinery, junked automobiles and worn-out tools and dies, moving back to the steel mills where it is urgently needed.

General Hurley pointed out steel is the backbone of our defense effort, and unless more scrap is moved back to the mills immediately there is danger that some mills may have to reduce operations this winter. The Carrizozo and his committee will work to enlist the aid of all local businessmen in speeding up the flow of this dormant scrap. The use of scrap in steelmaking cuts down the time required, thus speeding up production, and every ton of scrap replaces four tons of ore and limestone otherwise needed to make pig iron.

General Hurley also announced the selection of the following members of the scrap mobilization committee: Virgil Hall, Capitan; Cap Straley, Ancho; R. L. Huffmyer, White Oaks; Ed Penfield, Lincoln, and Lloyd Bloodworth, Ruidoso.

Art Exhibit Opens At Lincoln Museum Sunday

Residents of Lincoln County will have the opportunity to view an unusually interesting art exhibit when "Still Life in New Mexico Art" opens Sunday at the Old Court House. The formal opening will be at 2 P. M. and tea will be served in the gallery from 2 until 4.

Twelve well known New Mexico artists will be represented by one picture each in this exhibit. All subjects are still life and show a variety of treatments.

"Still Life in New Mexico Art" which comes to the Old Court House from the Museum of New Mexico traveling exhibit program provides something for every taste.

This represents the third in the winter series of art shows being sponsored by the Old Lincoln County Memorial Commission, and the public is very cordially urged to attend.

During the month of December, a total of 422 guests registered at the Old Court House. For two days, during inclement weather, there were no guests, and the Court House was closed Dec. 24, 25 and 26 for the annual Christmas recess (the only days during the year when the Museum is not open to the public).

The register shows guests from 23 states, Alaska, Mexico and Japan for December.

March Of Dimes Drive Now In Full Swing

The March of Dimes drive in Lincoln County is in full progress this week with a number of novel ideas inaugurated to highlight the campaign.

One Capitan business place has set up a jar of water in which a small glass has been placed. Awards are given to all donors whose contributions land in the glass instead of in the water. The Yucca Bar in Carrizozo invites all donors to the March of Dimes fund to take a free guess on the length of a rope which has been hung on the wall. At the close of the campaign Jan. 31, the rope is to be given to the donor whose guess is the most correct.

Son Born To Ben Smiths

An 8 pound, 4 ounce son was born Jan. 6 to Mrs. Ben Smith, Carrizozo, at the Ruidoso Hospital. Smith, courthouse jail custodian, said they plan to name him Benny Wade. The couple also have two daughters, Sharon and Jennifer Gay.

There hasn't been any news in the last two weeks but I think I had a pretty good cause. We've got a new addition in our family—a big boy named Danny Bern.

Some of the news may be old by now, but here are some of the things that have happened in the last two weeks:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aguayo and Peggy were here over Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Aguayo and L. E. LaMaya.

Members of the newly organized Presbyterian Church of Nogal have painted the former school house which is the new church.

The Nogal Sunday school class gave a Christmas program on Dec. 23 which was very good. Santa Claus came to see them afterwards and had treats for all.

The Clean-Up

WHITE HOUSE advisers report that while the President was at Key West he did not seem too anxious to move boldly toward a corrupt clean-up. When he got back to Washington, however, he got much more in a mood to houseclean.

Some of the young men around him felt pretty strongly about the housecleaning and did their best to influence the President. So did Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, a former cabinet member, while new Democratic Chairman Frank McKinney also threw his weight behind a purge.

It was Senator Anderson who first phoned the President at Key West more than three weeks ago urging drastic action.

At first, Chief Justice Fred Vinson, though anxious for a clean-up, seemed to think things could be patched up without firing Howard McGrath as attorney general. Senator Anderson, however, disagreed. He told the chief justice that the President would lean on him heavily for advice and that he should recommend drastic measures.

Without a drastic purge, the senator from New Mexico argued, the administration would lose all control over congress. Vinson seemed to agree.

Broken Mink Market

The other day a high official of the munitions board wanted to buy a small fur piece as a 25th wedding anniversary present for his wife.

Momentarily forgetting the current congressional investigations, he entered Washington's swank Eriebacher's and asked to see some fur neckpieces.

"Here is a nice Russian sable at $450 per skin," said the clerk.

"That's too high for me. What else do you have?" said the official.

Then the clerk produced a stone marten fur piece at $335 a skin. The official again shook his head, claiming it was too steep a price, and added:

"Well, don't you make these fur pieces for mink?"

The startled clerk practically had a stroke. Recovering his breath, he finally stammered:

"Mink? Who would buy mink in Washington? The market has been broken—broken in little pieces. There have been no mink sales in Washington for two months."

Abandoning Ship

More and more top government officials are deserting the Truman administration. Latest to plan their exit are Stuart Symington, Reconstruction Finance administrator, and Manly Fielichmann, head of Defense Mobilization.

Both are among Truman's top trouble-shooters, but both are afraid of getting smeared by close association with an administration that gets bogged down deeper daily.

In addition, Symington, when he started cleaning up the RFC and firing certain "friends" got a deluge of unpleasant ribbing from certain White House "guardsmen."

"Who do you think you are—little Lord Fauntleroy?" asked one White House secretary who had a finger in the RFC.

Coddling American Women

A group of congressmen investigating U.S. supply bases in Europe recently got a lecture on how we coddle our womenfolk.

The congressmen were quizzing a London businessman about delays in British arms production for the North Atlantic Pact program.

"We in the United States are going all-out to defend the free world against communism," said GOP Congressman Charles Brownson of Indiana. "But there seems to be a lag on this side of the Atlantic. Maybe if you fellows tried incentive pay for defense workers you'd get better production."

"It wouldn't work over here," disagreed the Londoner. "Yes Americans believe in extra drive and overtime, but a lot of your incentive on the job is to get more money to buy heavy treatments for your wives or labor-saving gadgets to lighten their load. Over here, we work a little less and work our wives a little harder."

Congressman Brownson suggested that the Britisher would get a different view of the working habits of American mothers if he visited an average household, particularly around spring cleaning time.

Merry-Go-Round

Mink coats and 12-pound hams should be scarce around Mike Di Zella's stabilization offices at Christmas time—if his staff follows the notion that they are to accept no Christmas presents which they can't eat or drink inside 24 hours.

John Sherman Cooper, ex-senator from Kentucky, now a delegate to the United Nations, will run for the senate again—this time against Sen. Tom Underwood, Democrat.

Americans Disappointed by Red's
List of 3,198 Prisoners-of-War

LAUGHTER AND TEARS—Tears and laughter echoed in the home towns of America. The Communists handed over their list of American prisoners, containing 3,198 names.

For mothers and fathers, sweethearts and wives, of these 3,198 there was laughter and one of the happiest holiday seasons on record. But for other thousands there were tears and despair.

The nation as a whole, however, was shocked and disappointed by the list. What had happened to the remaining 11,559 American soldiers known missing in Korea?

A civilian employee of the Defense department's public information office hands reporters the first list of names of 3,198 American prisoners-of-war as reported by the Communists.

There was no answer to this question. But all too well the people of America remember the stories of atrocities made public recently in Korea.

And even as thousands were rejoicing at word that their fighting men are still alive, the Department of Defense and President Truman warned that the Communist prisoner-of-war reports are completely unverified. The enemy has refused to permit Red Cross inspection of its camps.

White House Secretary Joseph Short told newsmen: "The President has asked me to urge every news medium to stress as often as possible that the prisoner-of-war list is entirely unverified."

"He appreciates the efforts already made along this line but believes it important to continue them—to do even more than already has been done.

"This country has no way of verifying whether the list is accurate or inaccurate," true or false, complete or incomplete.

"For the sake of the families whose sons are missing in action, everyone should treat this list with skepticism."

But for the mothers of America there was one reaction: "Thank God for such wonderful news. It answers tens of thousands of prayers."

Shortly after the names of Americans on the Communist list was made public, the UN handed the Reds a stiffly-worded note demanding that the "enemy account for more than 1,000 prisoners not named. The UN contends these prisoners had been named in earlier Communist propaganda broadcasts, but were not on the prisoner-of-war list. What has become of them, the UN wants to know?

EUROPE'S UNITY—There has been a growing feeling in the rural sections of America that the countries of western Europe are making little progress toward unity in spirit or force. Secretary of State Acheson, however, believes otherwise.

Acheson said recently that Europeans have made more progress in the last four years toward bringing about this unity than they did in the previous five centuries. As examples, he pointed out the six-nation Europe-army program and the Schuman plan for pooling coal and steel resources.

One of the main blocks in the formation of the Europe-army is the British unwillingness to contribute troops to such an organization. Before the plan can succeed as planned by General Eisenhower, the British will have to change their policy which dates from the time of Queen Elizabeth.

COST-OF-LIVING—As 1951 came to a close, the Bureau of Labor Statistics released figures on the cost-of-living for the American family. The bureau's index hit a new peak of 10.8 per cent above the level of June, 1930, when the Korean war broke out.

The bureau said, however, that the increase in the cost of living was largely due to the increase in the price of fresh fruits and vegetables, which were largely responsible for the increase.

NEW BLACKMAIL—Hungary, with a record of holding American citizens to gain concessions from the United States, has embarked again upon the blackmail trail. This time she is holding four U. S. airmen whose plane was forced down by Soviet fighter planes after it strayed across the Hungarian border.

The Soviet puppet says she will bring to trial the four airmen who violated the Hungarian border "with the criminal intentions of dropping spies and diversionists in the territory of the Hungarian Republic."

Last year Hungary jailed American businessman Robert A. Vogeler on charges of espionage and later released him after the U. S. agreed to a number of concessions.

It is now but a matter of time before the Hungarians ask for more concessions. And if the blackmail works as before, the airmen will be released after much propaganda and the concessions granted.

THE BIG TRAGEDY—Among other things, the year 1951 will be remembered for the big tragedy—the millionth traffic fatality.

The nation's tragic parade of motor vehicle accident deaths began September 13, 1899, H. H. Bliss, victim No. 1, was killed by a horseless carriage in New York City.

Heavy snow and ice-cruised highways and the fact that thousands of Americans made holiday trips, contributed to the traffic death rate late in the year.

U. S. WALKS—For the first time in the history of the United Nations, the United States balked at the levy it must pay to help maintain that organization. The U. S. cited its huge expenditures in the Korean war and the billions spent to uphold the charter principles which the United Nations was not in a position to implement.

The assembly, however, approved a 1952 budget of $48,096,700, of which the U. S. will pay 36.9 per cent. Although less than last year's levy, the U. S. objected, that no state should pay more than one third of the budget.

The British are to pay 10.56 per cent of the fiscal year 1952 and the Soviet-Union, the Ukraine, and White Russia 11.49 per cent.

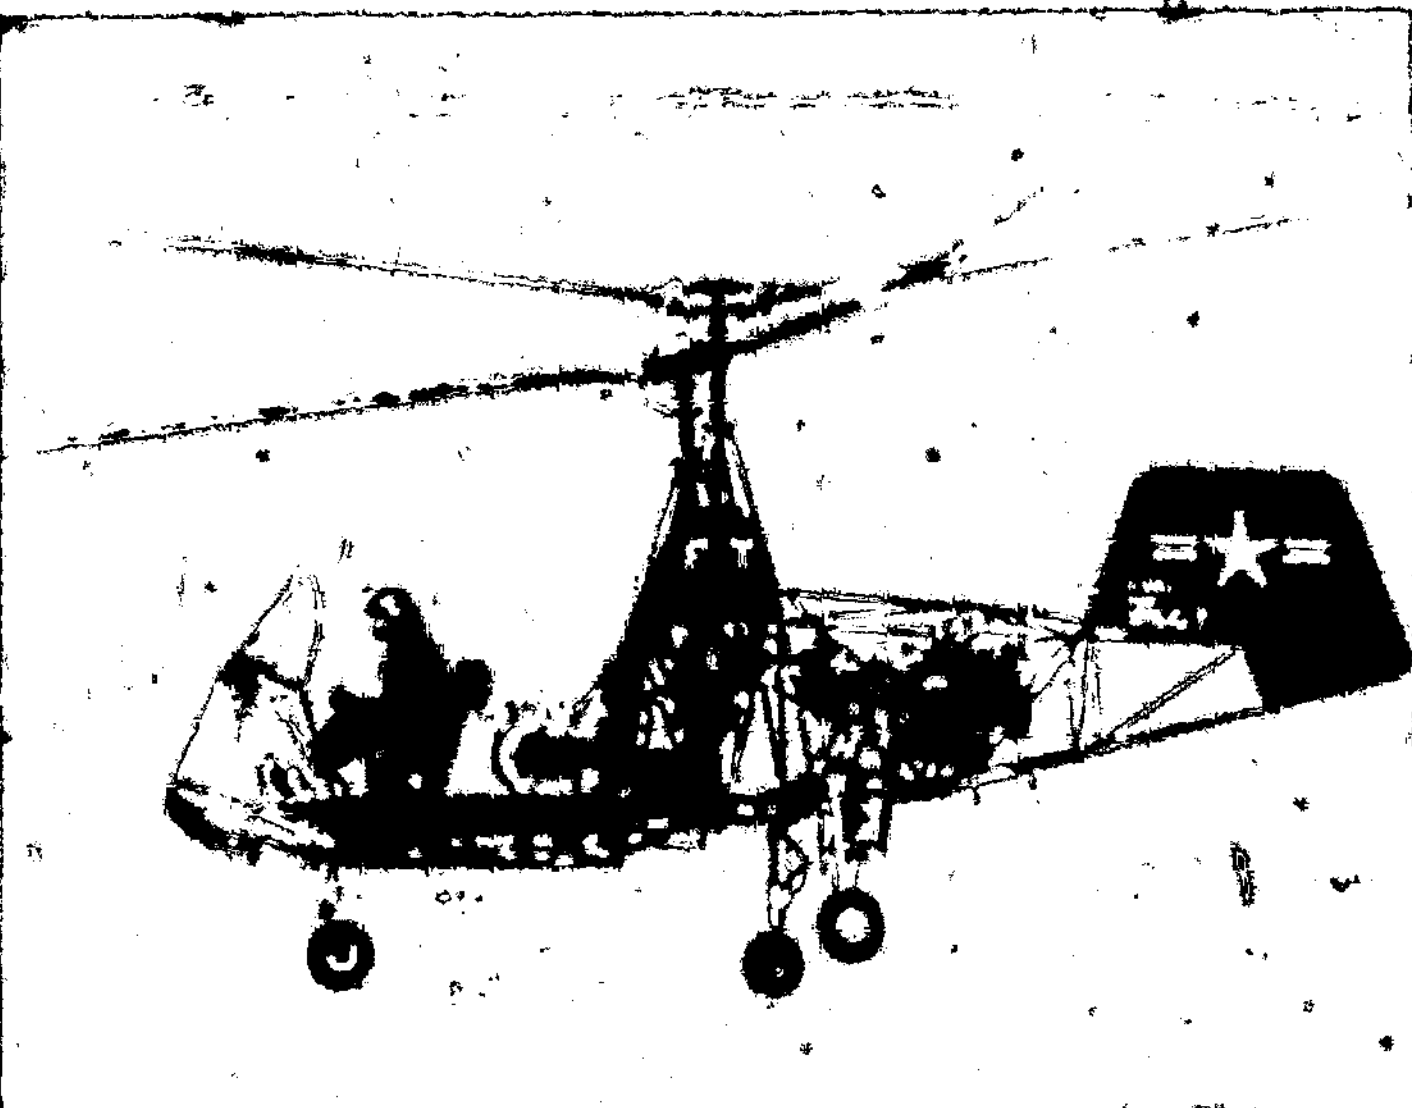

Meeting for the first time since World War II, two old friends, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower (left) and Prime Minister Winston Churchill (right) met in Paris recently for a series of conferences on the European army plan. Eisenhower was understood to have made a fervent appeal to Churchill to give more encouragement to the plan. There were also reports circulated after Churchill returned to England that Eisenhower expressed his willingness to "lay on the job" for a longer period if Britain would give greater support to the plan.

U.N. ADMITS RED CHARGES... At Panmunjom, Korea, Colonel Andrew J. Kinsey (right) in the sun as he and a Chinese Communist officer held a part of a napalm bomb casing found by the Reds at Kaseon. The United Nations admitted a charge made by the Communists that an allied aircraft strafe and bombed Kaseon. The city is the headquarters for the Communist delegation to the armistice talks.

JET HELICOPTER... Former navy pilot William Murray, Wilton, Conn., flies the experimental helicopter H-23 during its first successful flight, just announced by the navy. Instead of using velocity of exhaust gases for forward thrust, the craft uses this power to turn shaft of rotor blades. Engine can operate on low grade fuels or on high octane gasoline. Unlike piston engine, the turbine requires neither a cooling fan or a centrifugal clutch. Engine is 175 h.p.

CROSSING ACCIDENT KILLS DRIVER... This panel truck, in which the driver died, rests atop a railroad trestle in Pittsburgh near the train with which it collided. The freight train struck at the crossing, and the force of the collision carried the truck several hundred feet on to the trestle. The driver, Jacob Ambrosio, who was an operator of a cleaning shop, was delivering clothing to his customers when his truck was hit by the train and shoved on the trestle.

Crime in America

Smashing the Crime Syndicate

During the crowded final hearings of the Senate Crime Committee—or my chairmanship of it, at least—we pried into a situation which smacked strongly of the roaring '20s.

Such were the workings of a vast bootleg ring which is running whisky from Cairo, Ill., into dry Southern states. This was reminiscent of the bloody prohibition era, when trucks were hijacked, liquor shipments disguised as legal merchandise and public officials corrupted on a wholesale scale. But these new-style rum runners boasted an up-to-date wrinkle: They use counterfeit federal and state liquor stamps.

Some of the wholesalers involved, we discovered, had been connected with a huge black market liquor racket in World War II. Leading distillers have been appealed to both by a conference of Southern state revenue and alcohol commissioners and by our Senate Committee to take steps to remedy this situation.

We also saw in Washington a new type of gambling witness—42-year-old Sydney Brodson of Milwaukee, who told us he is licensed to practice law in two states. Brodson, polite and soft spoken though almost unbearably cocky at times, is a graduate of two colleges. Some years ago he found he had a talent for picking winners. Leaving his law practice aside, he set up a small office, describing himself fictitiously as a "food broker," and went into the full-time business of scientifically wagering on football and basketball games across the nation.

He estimated that he placed bets with bookies and other gamblers in about 20 states, wagered about $1,000,000 per year and netted approximately $50,000 a year. In seven uninterrupted years of this, he said he has amassed a net worth of approximately $250,000.

The smart young man, however, wasn't smart enough. On the heels of his testimony, the state income assessor in Milwaukee announced that the income Brodson had reported over recent years simply did not add up to what he told the Committee he was worth, and that a thorough investigation would be undertaken.

Certain of the bookmakers who handled Brodson's bets also must have wished he had talked less. Law enforcement officers in various cities jotted down names and addresses of the individuals with whom he said he placed bets. Before Brodson left the stand, they had located and arrested his betting associates in cities separated by thousands of miles.

I opposed continuance of the Crime Committee I realized, of course, there were facets of interstate crime which could have been explored further I felt, however, that we had done the basic job of exposing the framework of the nation-wide criminal operations.

The job, I felt, should be continued, but through establishment of a permanent federal crime commission, rather than by a committee of the Senate.

But the pressure for continuance was overwhelming—letters were pouring in by the thousands—and I was overruled. I was prevailed upon to stay with the committee for a limited time, but I insisted that it should have a new chairman. Sen. Herbert O'Connor of Maryland was chosen to succeed me.

The Committee, under my chairmanship, made some specific recommendations to the senate, aimed at crushing big-time crime once and for all. One proposed that an independent Federal Crime Commission be set up.

A Federal Crime Commission, the Committee majority thought, should be composed of three members, "all of whom are prominent citizens and not otherwise members or employees of the federal government." It would be empowered to hear witnesses and conduct hearings, keeping alive a continuing study of the activities of the national crime syndicate. The commission would maintain proper liaison between federal, state and local law enforcement agencies and crime commissions, recommend legislation and other corrective policies and act "as a national clearing house of information respecting criminal activities in interstate commerce."

Among other things, the Committee favored the organization of a racket squad in the Justice Department to go after racketeers and organized criminal mobs, and the setting up of special internal revenue fraud squads. This latter step was taken by the Treasury Department after the Committee had noted that organized crimesters were defrauding the government on tax revenue possibly running into hundreds of millions of dollars.

"Money is the key to power in the underworld," we observed. "It buys protection for illegitimate enterprises and enables underworld characters to buy up legitimate business and to claim respectability by contributions to worthy causes. The large financial resources at the disposal of criminal gangs and syndicates make such gangs and syndicates a serious menace."

The Internal Revenue Bureau should take effective action to stop the continual violation by racketeers of the laws which require all taxpayers to keep adequate records of their income and expenses. Gambling casinos also outrageously flout internal revenue requirements by their so-called "bookkeeping" methods. They should be required to maintain daily records of moneys won and lost and to file these records with the Bureau.

We felt that the biggest fare and effort, in so far as the applications of internal revenue regulations to illegal gamblers is concerned, is the fact that the present law permits gamblers to deduct wagering losses and overhead costs as "business expense." Such deduction often includes the hidden bribes paid to law-enforcement officials. The Committee recommended an amendment that would prohibit any sort of tax deduction by illegal enterprises.

Another recommendation was passage of a bill completely outlawing the state-to-state sending of gambling by telegraph, telephone or other communication facilities, by an outfit "devoted to a substantial extent to providing information used in illegal gambling." The bill is aimed at the so-called Continental Press Service, which keeps alive a multi-million-dollar industry for the underworld throughout the country.

The present law against interstate, transportation of slot machines, we decided, should be extended to include the other gambling devices on which individual racketeers and organized crime syndicates thrive—punchboards, roulette wheels and so forth. We noted that "the lowly punchboard has attained the proportion of a major racketeering enterprise."

We asked that penalties be increased against the illegal distribution and smuggling of narcotics, that immigration laws be amended to facilitate deportation of undesirable aliens, including criminals, and to provide punishment for smuggling, concealing or harboring illegal aliens.

A bill which, the Committee recommended is designed to prevent racketeering elements from entering the wholesale liquor industry and to eliminate such elements now entrenched in it. The bill would require liquor distributors to secure yearly renewals of their federal licenses.

On the community level, we encouraged the creation of more state and local crime commissions—where they are set up, have achieved effective results—more local racket investigations by unhampered grand juries, and the clearing up of jurisdictional arguments between local law-enforcement officers, which usually result in the law-breaker escaping all punishment.

The answer to the Costello and the crooked officers and public officials lie in these recommendations. There will be powerful opposition, not only from the national crime syndicate, whose financial and political resources are powerful. There will be a passive opposition, too, from the natural inertia that operates against any far-reaching program of social reform. But, with the help of the people, these bills will provide the ammunition for the war against organized crime in America.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Household Linens Should Be Selected for Durability

By Erita Haley

IS there a greater homemaking thrill than opening the door of a well-appointed linen closet? Most women will agree there isn't, and this holds true even though women do not spend their time from doll to marriage days spinning and weaving linens for their dowry.

Linens are not always linen in the pure sense of the word, but we have become accustomed to designate them as such, as long as they are woven goods for bedroom, bath, dining room or kitchen. They may be linen, but they may be made of cotton, rayon or even the synthetics like nylon or plastics.

No wise homemaker will let her linen supply get too low for comfort. She should take stock at regular times, and replenish the closet when she can get the types, quality and quantity at a reasonably fair price.

The best rule to follow is to get the best quality one can afford. Check for wearing qualities, and also choose the most suitable linens for your purposes.

You may find it economical to have several different qualities of linens on hand such as inexpensive utility towels for trips and school, a nicer quality for family use and some very luxurious sets when you want to put on your best airs.

Quantity depends a great deal on personal considerations. However, as a guide for a family of four with laundry done once a week, you'll need these in towels; 2 dozen each of bath towels, wash cloths and hand towels; 1 dozen guest towels and 2 or 3 bath mats.

Diagonal Look

is well made, any type of salvage, woven, lockstitched or hemmed type, is satisfactory.

Here's How to Judge Good Bed Linens

Though you may not read labels on very many things you buy, you should do it as an absolute necessity in buying bed linens. They give you real information as to what kind of material is used as well as a clue to its wearing qualities.

Percale is used in fine quality sheets. It has a smooth feeling, it's firm but not bulky. Woven of fine yarn, it has a high thread count. Usually percale sheeting comes in two types—utility or carded or combed yarns with a thread count of 180, which means the number of threads per square inch. Fine percale is made of combed yarns with a count of 200 or more.

Muslin is used for utility sheeting. It is woven of heavy, carded yarn with a thread count of 140, 124 or 112. Lengthwise (warp) threads should equal the crosswise (weft) threads in number, quality and size of yarn for best wearing quality as this means the material is well balanced.

fastened securely, and salvages must be firm, neat and strong. Best salvages are used on best sheets, and these have extra yarn to give extra strength.

Pure finish on a sheet means a minimum of sizing, a special kind of starch that's added to the warp yarns in all sheets to protect the thread while it's being loomed. If too much sizing is used, the result is a sleazy sheet that shows up when laundered.

Remember that the torn size is the size before hemming. To get the correct size for the bed, deduct 6 inches for making the hem, and another 5 inches for shrinkage. Allow at least 6 inches for tucking in at the sides, for both width and length.

Give Consideration To Pillow Covers Pillow cases are made of the same material as sheets, so the same considerations and standards apply to selecting them, as do for the sheets. For comfort and appearance have a case that fits the pillow nicely, but one which is not too roomy, or the pillow will slip continually.

Cases will wear much better if you get them six to ten inches longer than the pillow and two to three inches wider.

Judge Workmanship On Bed Linens

Check the hems on sheets, just as you do on towels. These should follow the direction of a single stitching thread at the fold or at the line of stitching. Stitching should be neat and even, about 14 stitches to the inch. Ends of hems should be

Divorce Is a Dreadful Solution

"WHEN I WAS DIVORCED, four years ago, I was 21," writes Hazel Carroll, from Austin, Texas. "I charged Chester with interference and mental cruelty, and with my degree got custody of our son Murray, now seven years old. But partly because the child was so devoted to his father, I agreed that Chester should have him for the vacation months, giving him to me for winter schooling.

best check possible on Murray's father, too.

Life with you is lopsided now. You are yourself extremely young and the care of a small restless boy is confining and anxious. In sending Murray to the life he so craves, you will win more than you lose. You can feel comfortable about him, for it is his father's obligation now to make you feel that the sacrifice was a wise one.

But try to keep the arrangement flexible, so that if next summer you find yourself free for a few weeks of short or mountain, it will be natural for them to grant it, and if in a few years—and they go so fast—Murray needs more special schooling than he can secure out in the horse country, he can rejoin you, and you can win his friendship all back again on a higher level.

Life is full of these readjustments; full of these terrible moments when we feel that a realistic and generous attitude demands of us the very hardest thing life can offer. Anything else, we say in our unguarded hearts, but not this! But time has a strange way of altering values. It doesn't make our children any less precious, but it does teach us when to let them go.

Military Again Training Dogs

Animals Are All German Shepherds

THE ARMY is resuming its final training of dogs for military use for the first time since World War II.

There are several differences, however, between the wartime "K-9" corps and the present program. This time the army will accept no donated dogs, and all the animals purchased will be German Shepherds.

In World War II the armed services acquired more than 18,000 dogs of many breeds. Some were lent, others were donated by their owners. Only 10,432 of these saw service. Some arrived at training centers too late. Some just couldn't stand the military life.

Training of dogs in the new program has been entrusted to the provost marshal general, and a special center to teach both dogs and handlers has been set up at Camp Carson, Colorado. The new center will supplement the present limited use of army dogs, a few of which, holdovers from wartime training, are on guard and patrol duty in Korea.

The dogs will be trained primarily for sentry duty, as were the majority of canine recruits in the 1941-45 war. In that conflict, however, dogs were also employed for scout and messenger work, as sledge dogs and for mine detection.

The best military dogs are "working dogs" in the broad sense. They are not hunters of wild game and they are not pets. The German Shepherd is one of the most popular dogs in the "working" classification, and other working dogs, such as Doberman Pinschers and Boxers, have proved successful on military duty.

Military employment of the working dog, as opposed to the hunter or tracker, is centuries old. In the Roman conquest of Gaul, both sides used fighting dogs, some of them armored or with collar knives.

... to your story ...

"Chester has asked me for sole custody, in a letter enclosing one from his wife. I am sick trying to think out what is best to do, and want your advice. Should a mother ever give up a small, trusting son of seven; can anyone else do for him what she can do? I've thought of trying to get Chester to shift our times of having Murray; he answers that he wants him completely, except for my three-weeks vacation, if I want to take him to the mountains or shore.

"Murray begs to go to his father; but I will not take that too seriously. If the present arrangement is best, I'll skip the agony the parting would be; my only consolation would be that he will feel none of it. But every mother knows what it means. It would take a Solomon to answer; but I want to know what you think."

Wise Case This is one of those rare cases, Hazel, when I truly believe that the mother is not the small boy's best guardian. These circumstances are unusual. Apparently your husband's immaturity has ended; he has become a responsible person, and the life he offers his son is not only wholesome for Murray, sweet love a big family group, but probably the

Judge Linens Carefully

A minimum requirement in bed linen is that each bed have four sheets, and more is better. Three or four cases per pillow is minimum. Replace a pair of sheets a year for each bed.

Look for Absorbency, Durability in Towels

When you check absorbency in bath towels, look carefully at the loops. They are on both sides of the towel or in ribs or patterns. They should be close and thickly packed. The closer the loops, the more absorbent the towel and the sooner it dries out after using.

Long loops make the towels soft as well as more absorbent. If you like towels for friction rub-downs, choose the shorter loop and tight weave so that you get the harsh feel.

Check durability by looking at the underweave of the towel. This

If you want to be proud of them, closely woven, about 1/4 inch wide and strong enough to withstand the rubbing that so often causes the towel to fray. As long as it

KEEPING HEALTHY

Tooth Decay From Too Much Sweets

By Dr. James W. Barton

I OFTEN THINK of the usefulness of the members of our school boards who give their valuable time freely in their endeavor to help our boys and girls become useful and loyal citizens. To help along this valuable work, there are formed what are known as home and school clubs which take a keen interest in the regular school subjects and also in the matters of the other school interests of the pupils outside the classroom.

One of these organizations, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, has recently received great praise in The Journal of the American Dental Association for its action in condemning the sale of candy and carbonated beverages in the nation's schools. A statement issued by the congress said these sweets interfered with a balanced diet and the formation of sound health habits.

I have recently written of the efforts of the American Dental Association in pointing out that candy, sugar in any form, left on the teeth is the greatest single cause of tooth decay and that the profit from the sale of candy and sweet drinks in our schools would not begin to pay for the cost of caring for and removing decayed teeth caused by too much candy and sweets.

While every dentist, physician and health worker will agree with the stand of the American Dental Association and of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in condemning the sale of sweets in the schools, we are all overlooking one important point. The boy or girl at the end of the school day, 3:30 to 4:00 p.m., is tired and needs starch food (candy and sweets) if he is to play until the evening meal. The candy or sweets he eats will carry him, give him energy, until the evening meal. Contrary to general opinion, food eaten and used in play or other physical effort will be all used before the evening meal and the child will still have an appetite for more food.

MIRROR Of Your MIND Mothers Need Outside Interest

Should mothers have outside interests?

Answer: Yes, Dr. Exlo E. Weloch, child psychiatrist, told the New York Child Study Association. The parent who does most to help a child "roll with life's blows" is one who besides being a parent, is a good husband or wife and an interested member of the community. This is easier for men because business automatically involves them in social contacts, but a mother who spends her days at home with her children should try to keep up at least one outside interest, like a bridge or book club. If she does not, she risks losing her perspective and trying to do more for her children than can be done without smothering them.

good example.) But the images of other groups in our minds are based on feelings rather than facts, and particularly on the wish to see our own group as superior to all the rest. As a result, our judgments generally are neither fair nor up-to-date—there is a "lag" between the progress other groups make and our willingness to recognize it.

Answer: Yes, write Dr. Richard N. Brinkner and associates in Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, Chicago. After personal interviews and tests, 23 psychiatric patients were first given large injections of sodium amylal and then made to listen for an hour while a manuscript explaining the nature of the inner conflicts that produced their difficulties was read to them. Favorable results were reported after following up 30 of the cases for "at least a year." The technique, however, must be described as "suggestive" because the interpretations impressed on the patients' minds were the psychiatrist's rather than their own.

Do groups judge each other fairly? Answer: No, says Dr. A. N. J. don Hollander of the University of Amsterdam. Every group of people tends to develop a "mental image" of the members of other groups—a more or less vague complex of ideas about their qualities, appearance, customs and culture. (The idea of the "stolid Dutchman" is a

OPERATION UNITY Unity Must Be Top Consideration In Alliance of Western Nations

By Farham F. Dudgeon (Editor's note: This is one of a series of articles prepared by the Editor of Western Newspaper Union while on a 15,000-mile flight through Europe and the Near East...)

"The program on which the United States is embarked in Europe must succeed, for there is no acceptable alternative for our country..."

It was with these, and other equally inspiring words from General Dwight D. Eisenhower in his Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, near Paris, France...

In this same initial briefing, the supreme allied commander authorized another direct quotation, which was to register with us again and again...

General Eisenhower said: "The free world vastly outnumbers the Iron Curtain countries in total resources. The essential, however, is unity..."

Can this "enlightened" unity be achieved? In an attempt to get some kind of answer to this vital international question our group of newspapermen had a pretty good look at much of what is happening in these countries...

Deployed Around U.S.S.R. The United States and its Western allies are very definitely deployed in a political and economic organization and in a limited military aggregation around the Russian perimeter from Norway on one flank through Turkey on the other flank...

The battle lines for defensive military tactics are drawn. Our strategy to defend the free world from Russian aggression has been charted. Maps showing the deployment of the enemy forces have been compiled from a hard-working intelligence organization...

There is the feeling of false optimism or of bluff. Our leaders admit that we would be in serious trouble if the Soviet forces were to move tomorrow. But we are in better shape today than we were six months or a year ago.

One military leader put it this way: "We think Russia knows that if this thing breaks, it will be a fifteen round fight. Russia might win the first round, but we think they know that there would be fourteen more rounds to fight..."

GRASSROOTS Nostalgic Recollections of Old Rural General Stores

By Wright A. Patterson YESTERDAY I visited a store, as I do whenever opportunity offers, that carried me back to boyhood days in an Iowa village...

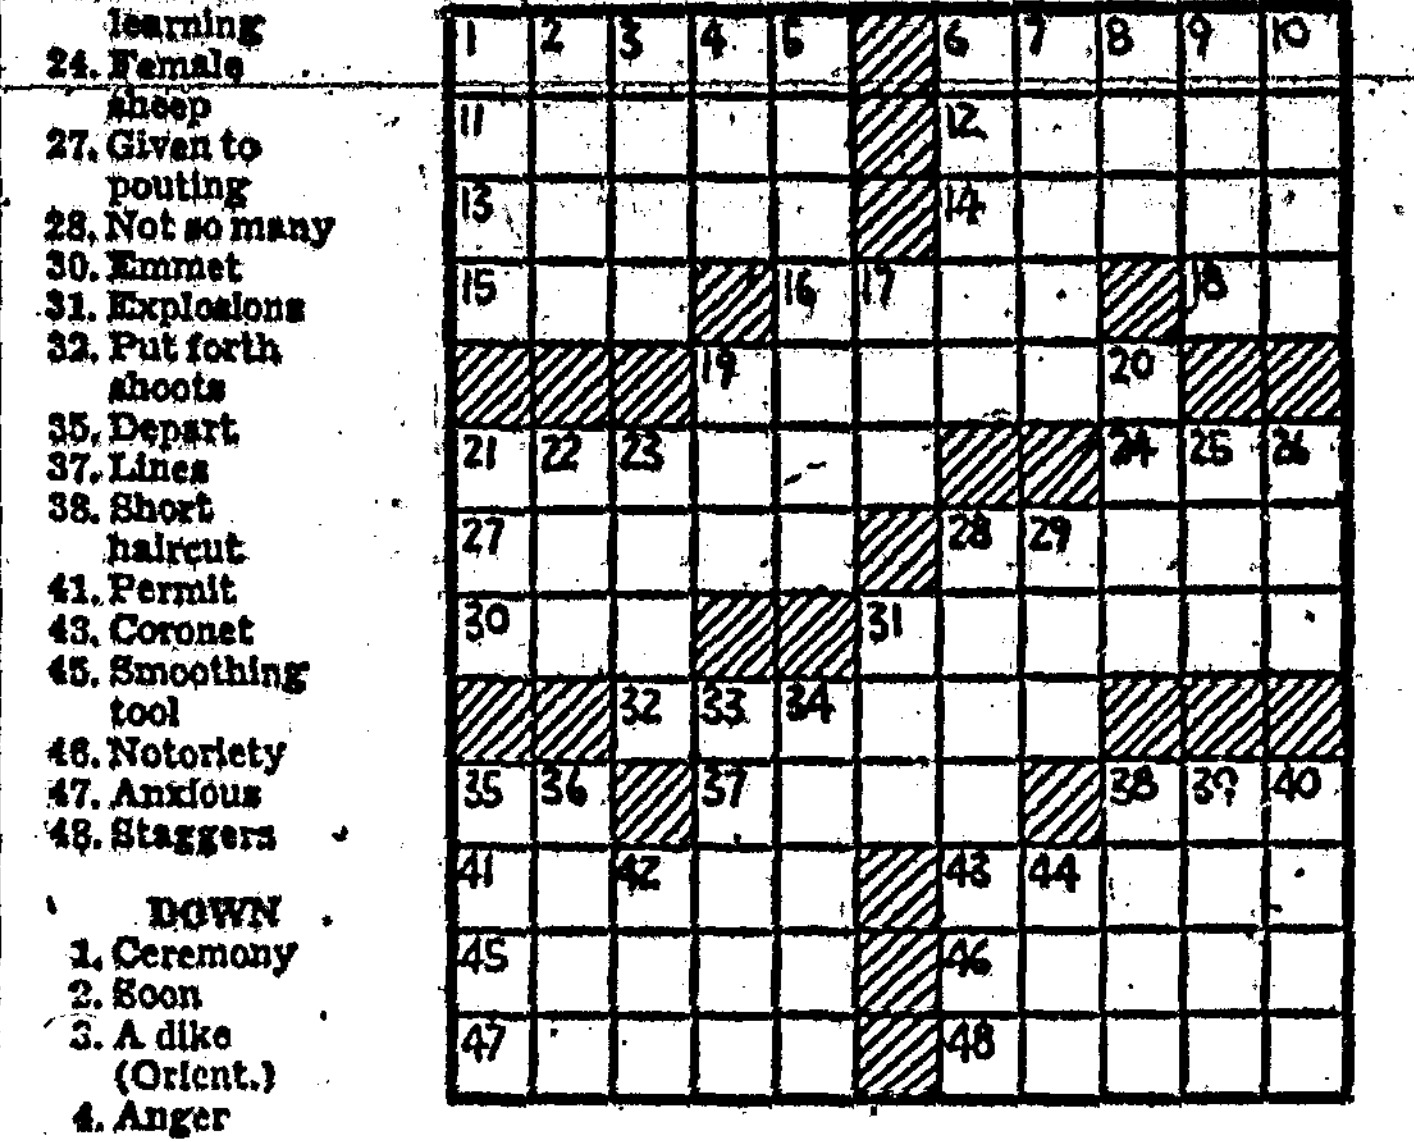

Somewhere in their stock, they did not always know just where, were slippers, soothing syrup, paragon, cello "cure". There were high chairs and trundle beds. On one shelf were "patent medicines" guaranteed to cure every ill of man or animal to which flesh is heir...

The stock of that Iowa general store in which I, as a small boy, was specially interested was its stock of penny candies. I still recall how patiently that store keeper served me when I went to spend my one or two pennies. How many I would get of this for one cent, and how many of that. I listened to it all, carefully and thoughtfully considered each item, and in the end went back to the stock of striped peppermint candy...

get more hours and minutes of pleasure than from anything else he could offer. Yesterday I headed for the counter on which the candy was displayed. There were the same varieties, including the striped, peppermint stick, but instead of one or two pennies a stick they had gone up to five and ten cents. The storekeeper gave me the same patient, courteous, attention I had received as a boy.

STOCK IN TRADE

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

SAM'S pride, his independent nature and almost belligerent disposition were his stock in trade. Everyone said so. They were responsible for his success as a real estate agent. He always sold what he thought, regardless of the consequences.

3-Minute Fiction He gave no quarter and asked none. But he always kept his word. That's why people tolerated him.

And now he'd fallen in love with Audrey Gardner. Audrey was a mama's girl. She depended on her mother for everything. It was always: "Yes, mama." "Of course, mother, dear." "Well, if you think it's best, mama." It got under Sam's skin. A yes-man or a yes-woman denoted a weak character, a spineless, shallow individuality. But he had to take it and like it if he was going to have Audrey.

He wanted Audrey. That's why he swallowed and suppressed. Secretly he was disgusted with himself for doing so.

After the wedding they went to live in a cottage close by where Audrey's mother lived. Audrey's mother came over every day. She made suggestions; she issued commands. The dining room should be done in blue, the living room furniture were atrocious, the bedrooms were cold and barren. Everything should be changed. It was.

Sam ground his teeth and said nothing. And when he tried to sell a building lot to a bridal couple they weren't very impressed. They grunted and stalled and said: "Hum. Well, we'll talk it over." And went home.

Sam was wild. He'd never let a prospect walk out on him like that. It happened a second time and

He threw her hat, parasol and handbag out the door after her. a third, it began to look as if Sam's business were going to pot.

Three months passed. Sam's business was on the brink of disaster. He had not sold a single piece of property since his marriage. He began to wish that he didn't love Audrey, that he could stop loving her.

HE returned home one evening to find that Mrs. Gardner had spent the afternoon with Audrey. She had come over for a purpose. The purpose was to rearrange and do over the small room off the living room Sam used for an office and study. Every other room in the house reflected the personality and ideas of Audrey's mother. The study had been left until last.

Sam stood on the threshold and stared. His desk had been moved. Papers which he had left on top of it were swept into the waste basket. Pink drapes hung from the windows. The wall was decorated with a picture of a cherub. There as a floor lamp with pinkish frills hanging from its shade.

Slowly, then more rapidly a fierce anger mounted in Sam. Same reasoning fled from his brain. He whirled. His eyes fell on the triumphant, pompous countenance of Mrs. Gardner. He raised a trembling forefinger and pointed it at her nose.

"Get out!" he said, his voice like a threatening wind sweeping down from the mountains and growing ever louder. "Get out before I break your damnable neck!" Mrs. Gardner gasped. She started to speak. "Get out!" roared Sam. "Get out! Do you hear?"

Apparently Mrs. Gardner heard. She gasped again, but made no effort to speak. Instead, her eyes wide with apprehension, she backed to the door and disappeared, forgetting her hat, parasol and handbag. These items, however, overtook her as she was springing down the walk.

Sam banged that the door and leaned against it, breathing heavily. Slowly, very slowly the significance of what he had done struck home. He had lost Audrey (and he loved her) but there was a warm glow of satisfaction inside of him. Audrey stood in front of him. Audrey said: "Well, my goodness, it's about time you showed a little gumption. I had begun to think I'd married a freak. I mean, a man without a spine!" The next week Sam sold the house lots.

A 'Yes' to Christ

Lesson for January 13, 1952

JESUS knew some distinguished people. But his first and most intimate friends were not of that kind. Christianity started at the grassroots of humanity. It did not start in the top branches. It is a good thing, too.

It is quite true that Christianity has depths and heights to which most Christians do not attain. A St. Paul has not only mystic raptures but intellectual penetration which comparatively few Christians have shared or can share; he was a genius, and most of us are not geniuses. But in Jesus' first group of companions there was no St. Paul. They were the plainest of plain people. The first of them were fishermen. They were not used to lectures; it is extremely doubtful whether any one of them would have understood the Epistle to the Ephesians if it had been read to them. But they understood Jesus. . . at least they understood what he said. He said, "Follow me;" and they followed him. It was as simple as that.

Surrender WHAT is what Christianity is, at its heart: saying Yes to Jesus. When those fishermen said their "Yes" it meant three things, and those three are always involved whenever any one sincerely begins the Christian life. For this was only the beginning, of course. There was a long road ahead, much they would have to learn and do and suffer; but even the longest road has its beginning. And the Christian's road begins with this first "Yes."

First of all, it means surrender. They took him for their leader, they absorbed his teaching, they obeyed his orders. There is a Christian hymn, "My Jesus, as Thou wilt"; one hears it most often at funerals, but it is not intended as a funeral hymn. It could well be the hymn sung when young people are confirmed or join the church; it could well be the every-morning song of every real Christian. What do I want most? Is not a Christian question. Rather it should be, What does Christ want most?

Separation AGAIN, those fishermen's "Yes" meant separation. They left their nets, their old occupation. We must not read too much into this, as if in order to be a Christian one must leave his wage-earning business, whatever it is. On the contrary, the best place to be a Christian may be right where we are.

However, no matter what we may do for a living, it is still true that saying "Yes" to Jesus means saying "No" and "Good-bye" to many other things. It means separation from all that is out of tune with him; separation from selfishness, from sin, from trash and trifles. It means separation from habits that enslave us, from "recreations" that do not recreate but tear down, from places and opportunities of temptation, from hatred and prejudice and pride.

If a man really means "Yes" to Jesus, he cannot mean "Yes" to what is opposite to Jesus. The Christian life is a separated life. It is not that he is separated from people. Isn't it likely that the fishermen who followed Christ had a far wider circle of friends as they went with him than they had ever had before? But they were being shaken loose from what had before seemed to them most important,—yes, even from themselves.

Service BUT that is the negative side of it. The Christian life is not only "from" but it is "for." That is, just as these first fishermen followed Jesus in order to become fishers of men, so the Christian's yes-saying always means enlistment for service.

A Christian's sincerity cannot be measured in what he says, nor even in what he does not do; it is to be measured in what he does.

It is a serious and solemn question: Suppose this is your last day in life, and all the accounts are in. Looking back on what you have been and what you have done, has your life actually helped what Jesus Christ is undertaking in this world. . . do you have hindered him? The Christian life is a surrendered, a separated life, but also a life of service. "Yes" can be said with the lips alone—that was Judas; a "Yes" to Christ can truly be said only with the life itself.

Other county business at Monday's meeting included a request from R. E. Aldrich, Captain, for consideration as justice of the peace to replace Earl Harcrow, now employed as deputy in the county clerk's office. State Rep. L. S. Drake, Mayor Ratliff, Bill Hart and Lloyd Bloodworth, all of Ruidoso, requested commissioners' approval on a move to incorporate an area outside the limits of that village which includes the Ruidoso Hospital. The Ruidosians reported the proposed incorporation is satisfactory to the residents of the area in question and that all necessary procedures will be followed. Cheaper insurance and other rates will be enjoyed by those residents, said Spokesman Hart, if the proposed annexation is accomplished. Hart added that if the commissioners had any "loose money" to give the Ruidoso Hospital, it would be appreciated. Board members of the Ruidoso Hospital for the current year include Mrs. Lloyd Bloodworth, William Hart, Fernin Montes, A. T. Pfingsten and Kiel Bonnell. The Ruidosians reported the hospital's books were gone from July to September during an auditing and that it had been difficult to keep adequate records during that period.

Request for lie detector machine for sheriff's office to be referred to district attorney for further information. Cost of machine is about $210. The sheriff said he had not filled the position of deputy sheriff at Ruidoso since the resignation of the late Jim Pickering, subsequently killed in an automobile accident, and that he wished to pay for the machine with the money accumulated from that allocation. Instructions issued that no further long distance calls are to be charged to the courthouse telephones since it involves extra bookkeeping in repayment as well as the tax structure.
