By PAUL BAKER

The loss of the major portion of the apple crop is a severe blow not only to people of the Hondo Valley, but to the entire County. Everyone is proud of the accomplishments of the fruit growers in raising a fine quality of apples and building a modern plant for packing and marketing. Loss of a crop is discouraging, to say the least. The answer may be wind machines or smudging, along with some form of insurance to cover at least a portion of the loss of a crop.

72 YEARS AGO IN TOMBSTONE

The gun battle that grew out of the Earp-Clanton feud, in Tombstone, Ariz., back in 1881 is still talked about in the Southwest. The Tombstone Herald special edition each year reprints the account of this shooting affray in which three were killed in one minute, as reported in the "Epitaph" of October 27, 1881. It follows:

TOMBSTONE, Oct. 26, 1881—

The "hottest" street battle that ever occurred in Tombstone took place at 2:30 p.m. today, resulting in the death of three persons and the wounding of two others, one probably fatally. For some time past several cowboys have been in town, and the fight was between the city marshal, Virgil Earp, and his two brothers, Morgan and Wyatt Earp, and Doc Holliday on one side, and Ike and Billy Clanton and Frank and Tom McLowery on the other. The Clanton and McLowery brothers are known as cowboys, and Ike has been in town for the past week drinking pretty freely, and was arrested this morning for carrying concealed weapons, he having appeared on the street with a Winchester rifle and a six-shooter on. After paying his fine, he is reported to have made threats against Marshal Earp and his brothers, and it is known that had blood existed between them for some time.

About 2:30 o'clock the marshal requested his brothers, Morgan and Wyatt, and Doc Holliday to accompany him to aid in disarming the cowboy, as trouble was feared in the evening. They started towards the O. K. Corral on Fremont street, and a few doors below the Nugget office, saw the Clantons and the McLowery brothers talking to Sheriff Beaman, who had requested them to disarm. The marshal called out, "Boys, throw up your hands; I want you to give up your shooters."

At this Frank McLowery attempted to draw his pistol, when Wyatt Earp immediately shot him, the ball entering just below the waist. Doc Holliday then let go at Tom McLowery with a shotgun, filling him full of buckshot under the right arm. Billy Clanton then blazed away at Marshal Earp and Ike Clanton, who it is claimed was unarmed, started and ran off through the corral to Allen street. The firing then became general, and some 30 shots were fired, all in such rapid succession that the fight was over in less than a minute.

When the smoke cleared away it was found that Frank McLowery had been killed outright, with one ball through the torso, one in the left breast, and one in the right temple, the latter two wounds being received at the same instant. Tom McLowery lay dead around the corner of Third street, a few feet from Fremont, the load of buckshot fired by Holliday killing him almost instantly. Billy Clanton lay on the side of the street, with one shot in the right wrist and another in the right side near the waist, and the third in the left breast. He was taken into a home and lived about half an hour in great agony.

Morgan Earp was shot through both shoulders, the ball creasing the skin. Marshal Earp was shot through the fleshy part of the right leg. Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday escaped unhurt. The shooting created great excitement and the street was immediately filled with people. Ike Clanton was captured and taken to jail, where he now remains. The jail is guarded by a number of citizens to prevent lynching, of which there is no apparent danger. The three bodies were removed to the morgue.

It is reported that several thousand dollars were found on the bodies. The feeling of the better class citizens is that the marshal and his posse acted solely in their right in attempting to disarm the cowboys and that it was a case of kill or get killed.

Mr. Firman has had approximately 20 years of experience in education, including five years in New Mexico. He is a native New Yorker, where he received his A. Freeze Strikes Valley Orchards

A devastating freeze struck a serious blow to the Valley fruit crop last Saturday and Sunday nights, when temperatures of 26° were recorded on two successive nights. Saturday night's dip was sufficient alone to destroy most of the apple crop, and fruit growers assessing the damage this week believed from 90 to 100% of the crop was lost. Bill Shreengost reported from his Hondo Valley ranch that the Delicious and Winesaps appeared a total loss but that the later Rome-Beauty and Golden Delicious trees might bear some fruit. Losses are believed to have been equally severe in other apple orchards, including those of Wilbur Coe, John Bell and Kenneth Noaker. Johnny Thomas of San Patricio used a pressure sprayer in an unsuccessful attempt to save his fruit.

The things that have been brought out so far indicate that a great measure of control of the prison is held by the inmates. Since last June they have forced the resignation of one warden, transfer of an assistant warden, resignation of the prison steward, seized control of the inside of the prison at will and engaged in an armed revolt last December without any of the participants suffering a loss of good time credit. It is an accumulation of these things plus difficulty of prison officials to speak in line with facts about the latest embarrassment that is pointing towards a possible house-cleaning. Whether that comes off depends on the action of the legislative committee meeting here this week to look into the dope raid.

WILL HARRISON'S Inside the Capital

SANTA FE, April 14—The new rhabarb at the state pen about the September dope raid may bring a sweeping clean-up of the administration which successfully withstood two murders, sit-down strikes and armed revolt in the past ten months. It's not so much what happened on September 19, when a convict mob seized the hospital and smashed open a safe holding narcotics, but the things that were said about the outbreak when it finally came to light 7 months later. There was such a mass of crudely conflicting statements and explanations from the prison crowd as to make anything further they say subject to doubt. The facts and the statements started conflicting immediately after the September outbreak which saw prisoners seize the yard, break into the hospital smash a safe and seize a quantity of dope, force the transfer of the assistant warden, C. B. Mead, and the resignation of the prison steward, Celestino Leyba. The prison was queried two days later by the Associated Press on reports of violence at the institution and was told that nothing out of the way had happened. When the story of the outbreak was finally confirmed almost 7 months later, the warden said it was not worthy of mention at the time, that "four or five" inmates had robbed the hospital of "a small amount of narcotics." "We never have more than a dozen morphine pills around," he said. Albert Babcock, custodian of the pills, and hospital superintendent, said 20 convicts rushed the hospital and took 5 quarter-grain morphine tablets, 100 half-grain tablets of cocaine, 20 cc's of demoral. And then it was confirmed that almost the whole prison population was in revolt in the incident not worthy of mention. The prison authorities said that none of the hospital raiders were apprehended because it was impossible to identify those who took part. Babcock said he didn't have any trouble spotting them. They were the same gang whose charges before a public press conference last June forced the resignation of Warden Joe Tondre and the elevation of Morris Abram to his job. Abram said that he gave a complete report of the September 19 outbreak to the prison board. Board Members Wayne Collins and Joseph Schifano said they never heard of it. The state police said an investigation made by their officers was reported to the board and District Attorney Bert Prince. The board and the district attorney said they did not see such a report. The warden and Board Member Collins said Assistant Warden Charley Mead's transfer to the prison farm at Los Lunas, just after the outbreak, had been determined two weeks earlier. But when the bag hit the fan last week Abram and Mead agreed that the transfer was determined on September 19, when the convicts were demonstrating. The whole case of the September raid is peck-marked with this kind of conflict in what was said and what happened. Another important factor aside from the inability of the prison people to keep their talk in line with the facts, was the failure of prison authorities to report the narcotics theft to the federal narcotics bureau. That was pretty serious in the estimation of those who understand the stringent controls practiced by the federal dope squad. There was finally, some weeks later, an incident report made by Dr. W. L. Hamilton who turned it in unofficially after learning that the prison officials had not said anything about it. The things that have been brought out so far indicate that a great measure of control of the prison is held by the inmates. Since last June they have forced the resignation of one warden, transfer of an assistant warden, resignation of the prison steward, seized control of the inside of the prison at will and engaged in an armed revolt last December without any of the participants suffering a loss of good time credit. It is an accumulation of these things plus difficulty of prison officials to speak in line with facts about the latest embarrassment that is pointing towards a possible house-cleaning. Saturdays, Sundays Dangerous on Highways

Most of us think of weekends as a time for rest and pleasure. We can relax with the kids, or shoot a game of golf. It's a time for watching television, loafing through the newspaper, going to church, a visit with old friends.

But it is also a time of climacteric violence on our roads. More than 15,000 persons were killed and nearly 750,000 hurt in weekend accidents last year, according to figures compiled by The Travelers Insurance Companies. Forty per cent of the deaths and 33 per cent of the injuries were recorded on Saturdays and Sundays in 1952.

The most dangerous day of the week was Saturday, partly because more cars are in use Saturday than on any week day. Something else sets this day apart from others. Saturday night for too many people is a time for drinking and driving together. No one knows exactly how many traffic accidents are caused by drinking drivers, but everyone knows it is a major problem. Everyone needs to know that even one drink before a drive is too many.

HIGH ALTITUDES—LOW LOADS

Attempts to scale Mt. Everest and other towering peaks are hampered by the comparatively small loads porters can carry at high altitudes, says the National Geographic Society. Men who could pack 100 pounds or more at sea level have difficulty with loads of 20 pounds when establishing base camps at 25,000 feet.

ANCHO SUNDAY

By ELVA WILSON

Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Payne and children of Carlsbad were Easter guests of the Hightowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harkey and baby and Richard were week-end guests of the Harkeys. Sparky and Rose are the usual grandparents, "proud as punch."

Rev. and Mrs. L. S. Markham visited their new granddaughter at McCamey, Texas, over the Easter weekend. We hear "She's the most beautiful baby girl in the whole wide world. It's the first baby girl."

The Wilsons visited their grandchildren at Hobbs, and they are also "tops."

Mrs. Tommy Steward entertained the following guests, honoring Judy's birthday: Johnny Demmitt, Betty Ann and Larry Bond, Grady, Margie and Ronnie Eldridge; Mayre, Johnny Jr., Joe and Holly Gardner; John Allen, Vernelle, Gary and Bill Hightower, and Walton and Ruth Wilson. An enjoyable time was had by all.

On Easter the Ancho Sunday School visited the Corona Presbyterian Sunday School.

R. E. Risinger was in Tucson, Ariz., Tuesday and Wednesday for a medical checkup.

Harry and Kate Straley have returned from T or C, both looking better. They enjoyed the Ralph Edwards show.

"Jackie" is home for a few days. We will be so glad when "Monkie" is well and they can return for good.

The Ancho school attended Play Day at White Sands last Saturday. They felt very much at home, as the wind blows there, too.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Flier attended the district teachers meeting in Carrizozo Monday.

Guy Dabney moved that the County Agent be appointed secretary ex-officio, the motion being seconded and carried.

A motion was made by Guy Dabney and seconded by Archie Perkins that the committee hold meetings annually on the first Monday in March. The motion carried.

Kenneth Nosker made the motion that the Lincoln County Land Use Planning Committee adopt the following items to set up a schedule of construction for the Federal Aid Secondary roads in Lincoln County and that the present priorities will not be changed in any way by this schedule of construction. The schedule shall proceed in the exact order they are stated:

Item 1. That the road be finished to Arabela.

Item 2. That the next allotment be used on the road from Mechem Drive on Highway 37 as far as that one allotment will take it toward Angus.

Item 3. Any further allotment shall revert back to Land Use Road Planning Survey made April 14, 1952.

The motion was seconded by John Cooper and carried. As there was no further business, a motion was made by Ken-

News and Views From Your Nation's Capitol

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY
Congressman from New Mexico

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 14—

Hearings to determine what legislation shall be submitted to this session of Congress to improve the nation's highways and cut down the toll taken annually on the highways will be started next week by the House Public Works committee's sub-committee on roads, it has been announced by Harry McGregor (R-O.), chairman of the sub-committee.

Deliberations of this sub-committee, of which I am a member, will be concerned with more than a dozen proposals which will set, in a great degree, the pattern for the Federal Aid Highway program of the near future. Among the items on the sub-committee's agenda is proposed legislation to increase the funds for the Interstate Highway System. H.R. 14, the bill I introduced early in the session, will be among those considered. That bill increases the annual authorized funds to match state monies for work on interstate highways from 25 million to 225 million dollars.

I have urged upon the chairman the need for the earliest possible consideration of this measure because of the steadily growing deterioration of those main traffic arteries across the nation. This has contributed greatly to the record-breaking traffic toll which will not be dealt with effectively until such hazards as narrow bridges, sharp and blind curves and inadequate traffic lanes are removed. Surveys of these hazards have been completed and information necessary is now available to the sub-committee. All the organizations in the nation that concentrate on the highway safety program are actively supporting this legislation and there is strong indication that it may be enacted during this session.

Another proposal to be considered by the sub-committee is that made by the recent Governors' Conference that the government relinquish the excise tax on motor fuels to the individual states and that the activities of the Bureau of Public Roads be curtailed. This proposal undoubtedly will find a sharp opponent Nosker that the meeting adjourn. The motion was seconded and carried.

vision of opinion both in the Congress and among the people of the country. Regardless of what may be done with it, it is most heartening to know that more of the people than ever before have come to the realization that something must be done to cut down the fearful death toll on the Nation's highways which has reached the unprecedented total of 110 persons per day. The people realize also that they are paying excessively for this terrific accident toll because premiums on automobile insurance have increased 200 per cent within the last decade and will amount to nearly 3 billion dollars this year, according to the best available information.

I am hopeful that the Congress will insist that the government devote more of the income from excise taxes on motor fuels, automobiles and other collections from highway users, to the road-building program. Currently out of an income of more than 2 billions from these sources the return to the states in federal-aid funds is about 25 per cent. As I have pointed out on many previous occasions this is inequitable and unfair to the states and to the highway users—and virtually all of us are highway users.

If legislation were passed providing for the ear-marking of all excise taxes from gasoline and other motor fuels to match state funds for building of federal-aid highways, it would make available for that purpose in excess of $900,000,000 a year compared to the $350,000,000 authorized in the 1952 Federal Highway Act. It is an indisputable fact that more money must be devoted to the highway program in this country before our roads can be improved to a point where they are capable of carrying the modern traffic load efficiently. Until they are improved to that point, the huge toll of life and property will continue to be taken.

NEW ROADS BUREAU HEAD
Francis V. duPont of Delaware yesterday became the new Commissioner of the Bureau of Public Roads, succeeding Thomas H. McDonald who has held that post for 34 years and remained two years after being eligible for retirement. The new commissioner, an engineer, was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and has been a member of the Delaware State Highway Commission for more than 25 years, thus having long road-building experience. He is a member of the widely known industrial duPont family.

'52 DEER KILL SAME AS IN '51
Comparable to hunters' successes for the past three years, the 1951 deer season yielded the same 28-30 per cent kill ratio. Although exact figures are unavailable, a conservative estimate would place the number of deer taken between 10,000 and 11,000. The year 1951 saw even larger numbers of hunters in the field, but the kill ratio remained at the same level—an indication that our ranges are not yet over-hunted.

NOW IS THE TIME TO EAT MORE BEEF

Beef is another food which rates a top spot on your shopping list. If you've bought it lately, probably the best news you had was that price tags weren't as large as they've been. In fact, beef prices are the lowest since the war, because supplies are plentiful. Many homemakers may have difficulty in dispelling the idea that beef is a luxury item because it's been a long time since beef has been as cheap as it is now. The most expensive cuts of beef aren't necessary for a delicious dish. The cheaper cuts, when prepared right, are just as full of food value and every bit as tasty as the high-priced steaks and roasts. So be sure to add beef to your shopping list this week-end.

Control Pests In Home Gardens

While stocking up on seeds, fertilizers and other supplies for this year's home gardens, it is well to plan ahead for controlling the insect and plant disease pests which are sure to follow. Simple directions for the control of common vegetable garden pests are available in the recently reprinted Vegetable Gardeners' Handbook on Insects and Diseases prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and now issued as Home and Garden Bulletin No. 23. This booklet includes brief descriptions and pictures to aid in identification of pests, formulas and directions for mixing insecticides and fungicides needed for effective control, and descriptions of the necessary equipment. Single copies of this publication can be obtained free by writing to the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. Information regarding the purchase of the insecticides and fungicide materials may be obtained through experienced local gardeners, local dealers in agricultural supplies, and seedsmen; or through the county extension office.

Room to swing a cat

You don't have to be a claustrophobe to appreciate the wide-open roominess of modern streamliners. Nobody likes to be cooped up, and on the train you have plenty of leg room and move-around-room. There are places to go on streamliners — to the Dining Car or Coffee Shop, or to the Lounge or Tavern Car for refreshment or recreation. And, of course, there's plenty of room for your baggage. Remember, when you're going any place, that there are no finer streamliners than the Southern Pacific "name" trains listed below.

Chair Cars on Southern Pacific's modern streamliners have been built with your comfort the first consideration. Dust-free, draft-free air-conditioning. No-glare fluorescent lighting. Soft-escal cloud foam-rubber seats. Extra large windows. Feather-touch doors. Spacious washrooms. That's why Chair Cars on S.P. streamliners are the most luxurious form of all low-cost transportation.

Along the whimpering stream
Tenebrous shadows creep;
Fast falls the night upon
The bosom of the deep.
O'er vale and mountain steep,
By vagrant winds caressed,
The sun has sunk to sleep...
The world's at rest,
Upon thy pillow, love,
Find peace in slumber deep.
The silence creeps apace...
Taps sounding... go to sleep!

The public drew 240 permits for elk of either sex in 1951 and a total of 109 elk were taken during the five separate hunts. The kill ration totaled 45 per cent for the combined hunts. Hunters brought out 38 bulls, 53 cows and 18 calves.

RED HATS HONORED First U. S. Submarine AT FIRE CAMP

By DOROTHY GUZE
The fifth annual Mesalero Apache fire training camp was held on the reservation April 1. Under the joint direction of the Indian Service and the U. S. Forest Service, the all-day event provided a thorough discussion and training of all men in Lincoln County who might be available for fighting forest fires.

Every year camp is set up in Carrizo Canyon as an exact replica of the camps operated on a project fire. This year the weather was favorable for a most successful day of training. The Dodson sawmill closed for the day to allow all their personnel to attend.

There were representatives of all the other local sawmills who are always so very cooperative in answering forest fire calls. The timber constitutes their means of livelihood. Many ranchers and interested citizens attended the meeting, as well as persons from various State and Federal agencies and all regular fire season employees of the Forest and Indian services, including the famed Red Hats.

Clerks Powell and Begay registered all volunteers, putting them on the imaginary payroll. Charlie Sutton supervised the portable field kitchen. Lonnie Hardin, Mesalero supervisor, welcomed the trainees and turned the schedule over to Arthur Lusher, Indian Service forest supervisor on the Mesalero. In recognition of the valuable service the Red Hats have rendered during the past three fire seasons in New Mexico, California, Idaho and Oregon, each man was presented a red tin hat bearing his name in fluorescent aluminum.

Ironically, the Apaches have won national recognition as the "Red Hat Fire Fighters" without ever wearing red hats. The new headpieces, fashioned on the order of the hard safari helmets, not only fit the name; they protect the wearer from burning limbs and embers. During the morning, fire behavior, line construction, and mop-up technique were discussed and demonstrated by Regional Forest Service Fire Chief C. E. Collins of Albuquerque; Arthur Lusher, Mesalero forest supervisor, and Dean Earl of Alamogordo, Lincoln Forest fire chief.

After the hot camp dinner, an actual fire was set burning. The Red Hats, under the direction of Ranger Bert Shields, quickly built an adequate line to suppress the blaze. Veteran firemen Rufus Lester and Fablen Dolan were on hand to put the crews through their paces.

The Red Hats formed their organization in the spring of 1949, registering charter members, electing officers and drawing up certain rules and regulations, and choosing their own fire bosses. These boys studied fire behavior, worked out a rhythmic 3-lick method of building a fire line with kotticks, pulaskis, axes and backfiring to destroy the fuel between the fire and the line. Their strategy has never failed them.

The Red Hats, more than half of whom are war veterans, live in all sections of the reservation. Fire calls are transmitted by their own system of communication. On the reservation, they travel to fires in a red truck with bench-like seats which carry the tools. To fires off the reservation, they have traveled by bus, horseback by plane and afoot.

In the Capitan Gap blaze, they dog-trotted up the rugged terrain to the line. Realizing the potential manpower obtainable in the Indian tribes of the Southwest, the Forest Service sought the help of Bert Shields last year in organizing and training crews in New Mexico and Arizona. He and Rufus Lester spent several weeks teaching their tactics to other Indians.

With the training camp in Carrizo Canyon, preparations have begun for the protection of the forests of Lincoln County in 1953. Let's hope the Red Hats don't have to earn their laurels there. You can prevent most fires. Incidentally, the training camp, the only one of its kind in the nation, disbanded abruptly when a fire call was issued from White Tail. Ranger Shields and the Red Hats left to squelch it.

ARTHRTIS
I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to active life after being crippled in nearly every joint in my body and with muscular soreness from head to foot. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set. Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

POWER FARMERS NOW
Although a national population, now more than 150,000,000, has increased about 25 per cent since 1920, the amount of land in use for farming has increased only about two per cent—from 400,000,000 acres to 409,000,000 in the same time. Farm population has decreased considerably since 1920, from about 32,000,000 to about 24,000,000. In other words, about 8,000,000 less farm people, farming about the same acreage of land, are feeding than in 1920.

Ewe Demonstration At Fuller Ranch

The second annual demonstration on the selection of ewe lambs for the breeding herd will take place at the Fuller Ranch near Picacho, April 24, starting at 10:15 a.m., according to Bill Snyder, extension ram and wool marketing specialist at New Mexico A&M College.

Snyder will carry out the day-long demonstration, assisted by Ralph Dunlap, Lincoln County Extension agent.

Added features this year will be a method demonstration of the selection of "stud" or top super ewe prospects from among super ewes and the inspection of August-born rams.

Last year's area-wide demonstration on ewe lamb selection at the Fuller Ranch was attended by many growers from southeastern counties of the state. This year Snyder hopes that many more producers from other counties will attend the demonstration.

A ranch-style luncheon will be served at the Fuller Ranch headquarters in the productive Hondo Valley. Throughout the day, growers will observe the methods and results of hand classing ewe lambs in the grading chutes, as well as the shearing and technique of marking and wrapping fleeces to be scoured and tested at the college and the market preparation of wool.

To reach the Fuller Ranch, turn south across the Hondo bridge near the Bowser Store on Highway 70 near Picacho and drive two miles.

The invitations have been issued and must be presented at the door for admission. The gym and lunch room have been decorated in a manner suggestive of South-of-the-Border. The banquet will be served at 6 o'clock to the Juniors, Seniors, High School faculty, members of the Board of Education and their wives.

The Prom music will be furnished by a band from Walker Air Force base at Roswell. The first event on the program is the grand march, culminating in the crowning of the Prom Queen—Mrs. Betty Williams, the former Betty Moore.
